SPECIAL FEATURES OF A. I. R.

1. Cheapest Journal in India for the service it renders to the Bench and Bar.
2. Notable case-law indicated to enable the profession to be up-to-date in a minute.
3. Marginal marking of all points.
4. Easy mode of citation invented for first time in India.
5. Separate pagination for each Court.
6. All reportable judgments of all the High Courts, J. C.'s Courts and of the Supreme Court which could possibly be reported within the price charged, are reported.
7. Numbering of paragraphs of the judgment.
8. Para numbers of judgments indicated for each point in headnote for facility of reference.
9. Top of each page indicates the year, names of parties and of the Judge, para numbers and Court.
10. Points in parallel legislation of different States brought together in the subject Index.
11. Entire case-law of India for 54 years in one compact series of reports.
12. Topical headings also adopted but referred to statutory headings.
13. Points given in the words of the judges as far as possible.
14. Cases cited in judgment listed at the beginning of each judgment with the number of the paragraphs where it occurs for facility of reference.
15. Volume and case numbers indicated for checking and ensuring accuracy.
16. Using first three letters instead of only one, as usually done in abbreviating names of Courts in references to reports, ensures greater accuracy of references.
17. Unrivalled exhaustiveness in reporting Supreme Court cases.
18. Unequalled for exhaustiveness of reporting.
19. Specially good type for Supreme Court judgments; very readable type for other Courts.
20. Maximum number of law points at minimum price.
21. Separation of points in head-notes.
22. Comparative Tables giving reference to other journals.
23. Acts of Parliament printed in full.
24. Dates of commencement of Acts of Parliament notified during the month are given at one place.
25. Exhaustive cross references to all relevant headings, statutory and topical.
26. Erudite journal section.
27. The only report which is cited most often in books, commentaries, digests and judgments in India, and even in foreign books where the Indian law is referred to.
28. Adoption of statutory headings to the maximum extent in preference to topical headings.
29. Points of dissenting judge indicated in Headnotes.
30. Notable Case Law indicates very important cases.
31. Unequalled promptness in reporting Supreme Court decisions.
32. Promptness of reporting of cases of all Courts.
33. Cases reversed, dissented and overruled clearly shown at the end of a point.
34. Complete List of Overruled, Reversed and Dissented cases given subjectwise and courtwise according to the order of the Courts of the Overruled etc. cases to facilitate easy reference.
35. Exhaustive culling out of points.
36. Dissenting judgments also reported.
37. Replacement of superior figures by bolder figures in brackets for easy reading.
38. Chronological Tables for all Indian Reports given with Index of Supreme Court section.
39. Separate Index and Comparative Tables given in each Supreme Court volume where it consists of more than one volume for a year.
40. First volume of Supreme Court always covers 1 to 1200 pages.

[Vol. 12] Fn.D. SP—12/68 (4 pp.)

A. I. R. PUBLICATION

THE FIFTEEN YEARS' DIGEST 1951–1965

(Civil, Criminal & Revenue)

[Including the cases of 1950]

BY

D. V. CHITALEY, B.A., LL.B., Advocate.

AND

S. APPU RAO, B.A., B.L.,
Advocate, High Court of Madras,
Chief Editor, "The All India Reporter"

(Authors of A. I. R. Commentaries and A. I. R. Manual)

Volume 12

PENAL CODE (1860), S. 53

TO RAJASTHAN LIMITATION ORDINANCE (1948

PUBLISHERS

THE ALL INDIA REPORTER LTD.

Registered Office:
Medows House, Nagindas Master Road,
Fort-Bombay.

Address for Correspondence:
Post Box No. 56, Nagpur.

(All Rights Reserved.)

Printed by D. V. Chitaley at the All India Reporter Rotary Printing Press and by Laxmanrao Mahale — Secretary, Press Workers Auodyogic Sahkari Sanstha Ltd. Congress Nagar, Nagpur at the All India Reporter Press, Nagpur.

K UNIVERSITY LIB.
K. DIVISION
Acc. No. 76108
Date 24.2.70

Books Checked

ABBREVIATIONS

(i) Relating to Journals and Reports.

A. I. R. 1914 All., Bom., etc. ... All India Reporter, Allahabad, Bombay, etc., sections of the respective years.
A. M. L. J. ... Ajmer-Merwara Law Journal.
All. or I.L.R. All. ... Indian Law Reports, Allahabad Series.
All. L. Jour. ... Allahabad Law Journal.
All. W. R. ...Allahabad Weekly Reporter.
I. L. R. Andhra (Andh. Pra.) ... Indian Law Reports, Andhra (Andhra Pradesh) Series.
Andh. L. T. ... Andhra Law Times.
Andhra (or Andh.) W. R. ... Andhra Weekly Reporter.
I. L. R. Assam ... Indian Law Reports, Assam Series.
B. L. J. or Bihar L. J. R. ... Bihar Law Journal Reports.
Bom. or I. L. R. Bom. ... Indian Law Reports, Bombay Series.
Bom. L. R. ... Bombay Law Reporter.
Cal. or I. L. R. Cal. ... Indian Law Reports, Calcutta Series.
Cal. L. Jour. ... Calcutta Law Journal.
Cal. L. R. ... Calcutta Law Reports.
Cal. W. N. ... Calcutta Weekly Notes.
Com. Cas. ... Company Cases.
Com. L. J. ... Company Law Journal.
Cr. or Cri. L. Jour. ... Criminal Law Journal.
Cur. L. J. ... Current Law Journal.
I. L. R. Cut. ... Indian Law Reports, Cuttack Series.
Cut. L. T. ... Cuttack Law Times.
E. P. or East Punj. ... East Punjab.
I. L. R. E. P. or East Punj. ... Indian Law Reports, East Punjab Series.
F. C. R. ... Federal Court Reports.
F. L. J. ... Federal Law Journal.
F. J. R. ... Factories Journal Reports.
I. L. R. Guj. ... Indian Law Reports, Gujarat Series.
Guj. H. C. R. ... Gujarat High Court Reporter.
Guj. L. R. ... Gujarat Law Reports.
Him. Pra. ... Himachal Pradesh.
Hyd. ... Hyderabad.
I. L. R. Hyd. ... Indian Law Reports Hyderabad Series.
Ind. App. ...Law Reports, Indian Appeals.
Ind. Cas. ... Indian Cases.
I. T. J. ... Income-Tax Journal.
I. T. R. ... Income-Tax Reports.
Jab. L. J. ... Jabalpur Law Journal.
J. & K. ... Jammu & Kashmir.
J. & K. L. R. ... Jammu & Kashmir Law Reports.
J. L. R. or Jaipur L. R. ... Jaipur Law Reports.
Kar. L. J. ... Karnatak Law Journal.
I. L. R. Ker. (or Kerala) ... Indian Law Reports, Kerala Series.
Ker. L. J. ... Kerala Law Journal.
Ker. L. R. ... Kerala Law Reports.
K. L. T. or Ker. L. T. ... Kerala Law Times.
Lab. L. J. ... Labour Law Journal.
Law Rep. ... Law Reports (Mys).
Luck. or I. L. R. Luck. ... Indian Law Reports, Lucknow Series.
Madh. B. or M. B. ... Madhya Bharat.
I. L. R. Madh. B. ... Indian Law Reports, Madhya Bharat Series.
Madh. B. L. J. ... Madhya Bharat Law Journal.
Madh. B. L. R. ... Madhya Bharat Law Reporter.
I. L. R. Madh. Pra. or M. P. ... Indian Law Reports, Madhya Pradesh Series.
M. P. C. ... Madhya Pradesh Cases.
M. P. L. J. ... Madhya Pradesh Law Journal.
Mad. or I. L. R. Mad. ... Indian Law Reports, Madras Series.
Mad. L. Jour. ... Madras Law Journal.
Mad. L. Tim. ... Madras Law Times.
Mad. L. W. ... Madras Law Weekly.
Mad. W. N. ... Madras Weekly Notes.
Mah. L. J. ... Maharashtra Law Journal.
M. L. R. or Marwar L. R. ... Marwar Law Reporter.
Mys. ... Mysore.
I. L. R. Mys. ... Indian Law Reports, Mysore Series.

Mys. H. C. R. ... Mysore High Court Reports.
Mys. L. J. ... Mysore Law Journal.
I. L. R. Nag. ... Indian Law Reports, Nagpur Series.
Nag. L. Jour. ... Nagpur Law Journal.
Orissa J. D. ... Orissa Judicial Decisions.
I. L. R. Patiala ... Indian Law Reports, Patiala Series.
Pat. or I. L. R. Pat. ... Indian Law Reports, Patna Series.
Pepsu L. R. ... Pepsu Law Reports.
I. L. R. Punj. ... Indian Law Reports, Punjab Series.
Pun. L. R. ... Punjab Law Reporter.
Raj. ... Rajasthan.
I. L. R. Raj. ... Indian Law Reports Rajasthan Series.
R. L. W. or Raj. L. W. ... Rajasthan Law Weekly.
R. D. ... Revenue Decisions.
Sau. ... Saurashtra.
Sau. L. R. ... Saurashtra Law Reporter.
S. C. A. ... Supreme Court Appeals.
S. C. C. ... Supreme Court Cases.
S. C. D. ... Supreme Court Decisions.
S. C. J. ... Supreme Court Journal.
S. C. R. ... Supreme Court Reports.
S. C. W. R.... Supreme Court Weekly Reports.
Trav..Co. or T. C. ... Travancore.Cochin
I. L. R. Trav..Co. or T. C. ... Indian Law Reports, Travancore.Cochin Series.
T. C. L. R. or Trav.Co. L. R. ... Travancore.Cochin Law Reports.
T. L. J. or Trav. L. J. ... Travancore Law Journal.
Vind. Pra. or V. P. ... Vindhya Pradesh

(ii) Other Abbreviations.

App. ... Appeal.
Appln. ... Application.
Appr. ... Approved.
Art. or A. ... Article.
B. R. ... Board of Revenue.
Ch. ... Chapter.
Civ. ... Civil.
Cl. ... Clause.
C. N. ... Case Number.
Cons. ... Considered.
Cr. ... Criminal.
Diss. ... Dissented.
Dist. ... Distinguished.
D. B. ... Division Bench.
Expl. ... Explained.
Expln. ... Explanation.
F. A. ... First Appeal.
F. B. ... Full Bench.
F. C. ... Federal Court.
Foll. ... Followed.
Illus. ... Illustrations.
Jour. ... Journal.
L. P. A. ... Letters Patent Appeal.
O. ... Order.
Over. ... Overruled.
P. ... Page.
Pr. or P ... Para.
Pt. ... Point.
P. C. ... Privy Council.
Pre. ... Preamble.
R. ... Rule.
Ref. ... Referred or Reference.
Regn. ... Regulation.
Rel. on. ... Relied on.
Rev. ... Revenue.
Revn. ... Revision.
S. ... Section.
S. A. ... Second Appeal.
S. B. ... Special Bench.
S. C. ... Supreme Court.
Sch. ... Schedule.

■ Black dot at the beginning of a point indicates that the decision is of the Supreme Court, the Federal Court, the Privy Council, a Full Bench or a Special Bench of a High Court.

* In the Contents indicates that the Heading has a cross-reference only and has no case law.

G. N. D... Advocate High C... Jammu & Kash... Srinagar.

Contents of Volume 12

● Black dot at the beginning of a point indicates that the decision is of the Supreme Court, the Federal Court, the Privy Council, a Full Bench or a Special Bench of a High Court.

* In the Contents indicates that the Heading has a cross-reference only and has no case law.

	Pages
PENAL CODE (contd.)
—Section 53
1. Scope	1
2 Minimum and maximum punishment	1
3. Fine	1
4. Fine in addition to imprisonment	1
5. Imprisonment for life	2
6. Punishment—Principles	2
—Sections 53-A, 55, 57, 60	4
—Sections 63, 64	5
—Sections 65, 67, 69, 70	6
—Section 71
1. Scope	7
2. Offence made up of parts—Para. (1)	8
3. Offence falling under two or more separate definitions—Para. (2)	9
4. Several acts when combined constituting different offence—Para. (3)	9
5. Cases where separate sentence can be passed	9
—Section 75	10
—Section 76	11
—Section 79	12
—Sections 80, 81	13
—Sections 82, 83	14
—Section 84
1. Plea of insanity—Absence of motive	14
2. "Incapable of knowing the nature of the Act"	16
3. "What is either wrong or contrary to law"	17
4. Proof of insanity—Legal and medical	18
5. Drunkenness	24
6. Occasional or recurring insanity	24
7. Somnambulism	25
8. Unsoundness of mind not covered by S. 84—How far relevant for ascertaining intention	25
9. Unsoundness of mind not covered by S. 84—Punishment	25
10. Criminal responsibility of deaf and dumb	26
—Section 85	26
—Section 86	27
—Sections 87, 88	29
—Sections 89, 90, 93, 94	30
—Section 95	31
—Sections 96 to 106
1. Right of private defence—S. 96	32
2. Private defence of body—S. 97	37
3. Private defence of property	38
4. Right of private defence against act of person of unsound mind or of person under misapprehension—S. 98	43
5. Right of private defence against act of public servant—S. 99	43
6. Extent to which right may be exercised	47
7. Time to have recourse to protection of public authorities	53

	Pages
PENAL CODE, Ss 96 to 106 (contd.)
8. Right of private defence of body when extends to causing death or any other—S. 100	54
9. Right of defence of body, when extends to causing harm other than death or grievous hurt—S. 101	60
10. Commencement and continuance of right of private defence of body—S. 102	61
11. Right of private defence of property when extends to causing death—S. 103	61
12. Right of private defence of property, when extends to causing harm other than death or grievous hurt—S. 104	63
13. Commencement and continuance of right of private defence of property—S. 105	64
—Section 107
1. Scope	66
2. Instigation	66
3. Conspiracy	66
4. "Intentionally aids by act"	67
5. Illegal omission	68
—Section 108	69
—Section 109
1. Scope and applicability	69
2. Sections 109 and 114	70
3. Sections 109 and 120B	70
4. Evidence	70
5. Illustrative cases	70
6. Offences under special or local law	72
7. Charge and conviction	72
—Sections 110, 111, 112, 113, 114	73
—Section 116	74
—Sections 117, 119	76
—Sections 120-A and 120-B
1. Scope and applicability	76
2. "Criminal conspiracy"	77
3. Abetment by conspiracy and criminal conspiracy—Distinction	77
4. Charge	77
5. Proof of conspiracy	79
6. Sanction for prosecution	82
7. Place of trial	82
8. Conviction and sentence	83
9. Conviction of single person	83
—Sections 121, 121A	84
—Section 124A	85
—Section 129	87
—Section 141
1. Scope and applicability	87
2. "Unlawful assembly"	88
3. Common object	90
4. Common object and same or similar object—Distinction	92
5. Clauses fourth and fifth	92
6. Charge	92
7. Explanation	93
—Section 142	93

Pages

PENAL CODE (contd)
—Section 143 94
—Sections 144, 145 96
—Section 146
1 Scope and applicability 96
2. "Force or violence" 97
3. "Common object" 97
4. Private defence 98
5. Conviction of less than five persons ... 98
6. Evidence 98
7. Finding as to number of persons necessary 98
8. Cases and counter cases 99
—Section 147
1. Scope and applicability 99
2. Conviction and sentence 100
3. Conviction under—Necessary ingredients to be proved 101
4. Charge 102
5. Conviction also under another section and separate sentences 102
6 Conviction of less than five persons ... 104
7. Right of private defence 104
8. Sections 147 and 148 106
—Section 148
1. Applicability 106
2. Conviction and sentence 107
3. Deadly weapon 107
4. Charge 107
5. Conviction under different sections ... 107
6. Proof 108
7. Right of private defence 108
8. Sections 148 and 149 108
9. Special Judge under M. B. Public Security Act (19 of 1953) — Jurisdiction to try offences under S. 148 109
10. Leave to appeal to Supreme Court ... 109
—Section 149
1. Scope and applicability 109
2. "Offence" 110
3. "Any member" 110
4. "In prosecution of common object" ... 110
5. Sections 149 and 34 113
6. "Knew to be likely to be committed" ... 114
7. Evidence 115
8. "Every person who ..... is a member of same assembly" 115
9. Conviction of less than five 116
10. Private defence 118
11. Sections 149 and 148 119
12. Charge—General 119
13. Charge under S. 149 — Conviction under S. 34 121
14. Charge under S. 34 — Conviction under S. 149 122
15. Sentence 122
16. Procedure 122
17. Leave to appeal to Supreme Court ... 123
18. Sections 149 and 302 123
19. Marpit cases 124
20. Alteration of conviction in appeal ... 125
—Sections 151, 153, 153-A 125
—Sections 159, 160 127
—Section 161
1. Applicability and scope 128
2. Public servant 129
3. Procedure 129
4. Gratification 129
5. Attempt to obtain bribe 130
6. Burden of proof 130
7. Motive or reward 131
8. "Forbearing to do any official Act" ... 131
9. Official act 132
10. "In the exercise of his official functions" 132

Pages

PENAL CODE, S. 161 (contd.)
11. Rendering or attempting to render service to person with public servant ... 133
12. Punishment 134
13. Abetment 135
14. Evidence 135
15. Sanction 142
16. Charge under the section 144
—Sections 162, 165 145
—Section 165-A
1. Retrospective operation 146
2. Offence under 147
3. Cognizance and jurisdiction 148
4. Sanction 148
5. Evidence 148
6. Conviction and sentence 149
7. Alteration of charge 149
—Sections 166, 167 149
—Sections 168, 170, 171-A, 171-B, 171-C 171-D 150
—Sections 171-F, 171-G 151
—Sections 172, 174 152
—Sections 175, 176 153
—Sections 177, 178, 179, 180 154
—Section 182
1. Nature and ingredients of offence under... 154
2. Information to any public servant ... 155
3. Intention, whether necessary ... 155
4 Section 182 and S. 217—Distinction ... 155
5. Report of police officer not a complaint ... 156
6. Evidence and proof 156
7. Practice and procedure 156
—Section 183 157
—Section 186
1. Ingredients of offence 157
2. "Voluntarily obstructs" 157
3. Complaint—Necessity of and what is ... 159
4. Practice and procedure 159
—Section 187 159
—Section 188
1. Applicability and scope 159
2. Essentials of offence under 161
3. Conviction—Propriety of order ... 162
4. Promulgated—Meaning 162
5. Necessity of complaint or sanction ... 163
6. Disobedience of illegal or irregular order 163
7. Practice and procedure 164
8. Revisions 164
—Sections 189, 190, 191 164
—Section 192 165
—Section 193
1. Scope 166
2. "Intentionally gives false evidence" ... 167
3. "In any stage of a judicial proceeding"... 167
4. Depositions 167
5. False affidavit 168
6. Contradictory statements 168
7. Complaint 169
8. Proof 169
9. Practice and procedure 170
10. Charge 170
11. Conviction and sentence 170
—Sections 194, 195, 196, 199, 200 171
—Section 201
1. Essentials of the offence 172
2. "Whoever causes evidence to disappear" 173
3. Intention necessary for the offence ... 173
4. Evidence of the offence 174
5. Charge 174
6. Practice and procedure 174
7. Conviction and sentence 174
—Sections 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 209 ... 176
—Section 211
1. Scope and applicability 176
2. Sections 211 and 182 177

Pages

PENAL CODE, S. 211 (contd.)
3. Sections 211 and 47, Madras District Police Act 177
4. Intent to cause injury 177
5. "Institutes ..... any criminal proceedings" 177
6. "Falsely charges any person" ... 178
7. Illustrative cases 179
8. "If such criminal proceedings be instituted" 179
9. Accused to have opportunity to prove truth of his complaint 179
10. Practice and procedure 180
—Sections 212, 214, 215 180
—Sections 216-A, 218 181
—Sections 220, 221 182
—Section 223 183
—Section 224
1. Scope and applicability 183
2. "Intentionally" 183
3 Resistance or obstruction to apprehension 184
4. "For any offence with which he is charged" 184
5. Escape from lawful custody ... 184
6. Sentence 185
—Section 225 185
—Section 225B 186
—Section 228
1. Insult or interruption 188
2. Insult or interruption should be intentional 188
3. Insult or interruption by lawyer ... 189
4. Judicial proceedings 189
5. Contempt of Court 190
6. Procedure 190
—Sections 231, 232 190
—Sections 235, 240, 241, 243 191
—Sections 253, 265, 266, 268 192
—Sections 273, 276, 277, 278 193
—Section 279
1. Rash and negligent driving ... 193
2 Procedure 195
3. S. 279 and S. 338 195
4. Gist of offence 195
5. Enhancement of sentence 196
—Section 282 196
—Sections 283, 285, 289, 290 197
—Section 292
1. Scope 198
2. Validity 198
3. Whether repealed 199
4. Test of obscenity 199
5. Mens rea—Necessity and proof ... 201
6. Obscene in part—Obscene as a whole ... 202
7. Publication 202
8. Obscene matter—Defence 203
9. Sentence 203
10. Interference in revision 203
—Sections 292A, 294, 294A 203
—Section 295 204
—Section 295A 205
—Sections 296, 297, 298 207
—Section 299
1. Scope 208
2. Intention and knowledge 209
3. "With the intention of causing death" 210
4. "With the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death" 210
5. "With the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death" ... 210
6. Absence of knowledge or intention ... 211
7. Explanation 2 211
—Section 300
1. Scope 213

Pages

PENAL CODE, S. 300 (contd.)
2. "Act by which death is caused" ... 213
3. Knowledge and intention ... 213
3A. Common intention 214
4. Intention of causing death 214
5. "Secondly" 217
6. "Thirdly" 218
7. "Fourthly" 222
8. Exception—General 224
9. Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation 224
10. Exception 2—General 232
11. Exception 3 235
12. Exception 4—Scope and applicability ... 235
13. Exception 5 239
14. Murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Distinction ... 239
15. Murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Illustrative cases 240
16. Murder or hurt 244
17. Motive 246
18. Framing of charge under S. 302, Penal Code 248
19. Charge to jury 251
20. Sections 34 and 300, Penal Code ... 251
21. Sections 149 and 300, Penal Code ... 253
22. Evidence—General 253
23. Onus of proof 258
24. Benefit of doubt 259
25. Circumstantial evidence 260
26. Proof of death 266
27. Dying declaration 266
28. Evidence of poisoning 266
29. Evidence as to possession of property ... 267
30. Confession 268
31. Evidence, value of—Illustrative cases ... 269
—Section 301 271
—Section 302
1. Sentence 272
2. Premeditation 275
3. Provocation 276
4. Enmity 277
5. Conviction on circumstantial evidence ... 277
6. Mental condition of accused ... 278
7. Age 278
8. Superstition 280
9. Intention 280
10. Drunkenness 280
11. Starvation 280
12. Confession by accused 280
13. Sex 280
14. Insanity 280
15. Deaf and mute accused 281
16. Nature of injury 281
17. Class to which accused belongs ... 282
18. Motive 282
19. Injuries to accused 284
20. Attempt to suicide 284
21. Family considerations 284
22. Lapse of time 285
23. Weapon used 285
24. Absence of corpus delicti 286
25. Verdict of jury 286
26. Murder under instigation or threat ... 286
27. Murder by several accused 286
28. Acquittal of some accused 289
29. Leniency to some accused 289
30. Abetment 289
31. Charge 289
32. Evidence 290
33. Onus 290
34. Sentence fine 290
35. Remission of sentence 290
36. Interference by High Court ... 290

Pages

PENAL CODE, S. 302 (contd.)
87. Procedure 291
—Section 303 292
—Section 304
1. Scope and applicability 293
2. Conviction under S. 304 read with S. 34 295
3. Conviction under S. 304 read with S. 149 296
4. Sentence 296
5. Provocation—Offence and sentence ... 297
6. Sudden quarrel—Offence and sentence ... 297
7. Exceeding right of private defence — Offence and sentence 298
8. Section 304, Part I—Illustrative cases 298
9. Section 304, Part II—Illustrative cases 299
10. Section 304 and applicable — Illustrative cases 302
—Section 304-A
1. 'Rash or negligent act"—Meaning ... 305
2. Death must be direct result of rash or negligent act 308
3. Rash or negligent act—Illustrations — Act held not rash or negligent ... 309
4. Rash or negligent driving ... 311
5. Contributory negligence 314
6. Sentence 315
—Section 306 316
—Section 307
1. Scope 316
2. "Whoever does any act ..... guilty of murder" 316
3. Intention or knowledge 317
4. "Under such circumstances" ... 319
5. Evidence and proof 319
6. Charge 320
7. Conviction and sentence ... ... 320(1)
8. Procedure ... ... 320(2)
—Sections 308, 309 ... ... 320(2)
—Sections 312, 316, 317, 318 ... ... 320(3)
—Sections 319, 320 ... ... 320(4)
—Sections 321, 322 ... ... 320(5)
—Section 323
1. Offence under, Illustrative cases ... 320(6)
2. Charge ... ... 320(6)
3. Constructive liability ... ... 320(7)
4. Evidence and proof ... ... 320(7)
5. Composition of offence ... ... 320(8)
6. Private defence ... ... 320(8)
7. Conviction and sentence ... ... 320(9)
8. Procedure ... ... 320(10)
—Section 324
1. Instrument likely to cause death ... 320(11)
2. Evidence and proof ... ... 320(11)
3. Charge ... ... 320(11)
4. Private defence ... ... 320(11)
5. Constructive liability ... ... 320(12)
6. Illustrative cases ... ... 320(12)
7. Conviction and sentence ... ... 320(13)
—Section 325
1. Measure of crime ... ... 320(13)
2. Intention and knowledge ... ... 320(15)
3. Constructive liability ... ... 320(15)
4. Right of private defence ... .. 320(15)
5. Evidence and proof ... ... 320(16)
6. Practice and procedure ... ... 320(16)
7. Conviction and sentence ... ... 320(16)
—Section 326
1. Effect of amendment of 1955 ... 320(18)
2. Scope and applicability ... ... 320(18)
3. Intention of knowledge ... ... 320(18)
4. Fracture ... ... 320(19)
5. Constructive liability ... ... 320(19)
6. Evidence and proof ... ... 320(19)
7. Private defence ... ... 320(20)
8. Conviction and sentence ... ... 320(20)
9. Practice and procedure ... ... 320(21)

PENAL CODE (contd.)
—Sections 327, 328, 329 ... ... 320(21)
—Sections 330, 331, 332 ... ... 320(22)
—Section 333 ... ... 320(23)
—Sections 334, 335, 336 ... ... 320(24)
—Section 337 ... ... 320(25)
—Sections 338, 339 ... ... 320(26)
—Section 340 ... ... 320(28)
—Section 341
1. Wrongful restraint ... ... 320(28)
2. Sentence ... ... 320(30)
3. Practice and procedure ... ... 320(30)
—Section 342 ... ... 320(30)
—Sections 347, 349, 350, 351 ... ... 320(31)
—Section 352 ... ... 320(32)
—Section 353
1. Scope and applicability 321
2. Assault on public servant in the execution of his duty 321
3. "With intent to prevent or deter public servant from discharging his duty" ... 323
4. 'In consequence of' 324
5. Assault on public servant acting in good faith and under colour of office... 324
6. Procedure 324
7. Conviction and sentence 325
—Section 354
1. Validity 325
2. Outraging the modesty of waman ... 326
3. Evidence and proof 327
4. Practice and procedure 327
5. Sentence 327
—Section 360 327
—Section 361
1. Scope and object 328
2. "Takes or entices" 328
3. "Out of the keeping of lawful guardian" 330
4. Age of girl 332
5. Consent of person kidnapped ... 332
6. Intention 332
7. Lawful guardian—Explanation ... 332
8. Evidence 333
—Section 362 334
—Section 363
1. Scope and applicability 335
2. Kidnapping—Proof of 336
3. Age of person kidnapped—Proof of ... 337
4. Charge under S. 363—Plea permissible in defence 337
5. Corroboration of kidnapped person—If necessary 337
6. Charge under S. 363 and S. 366 — Conviction under S. 363 if permissible ... 337
7. Charge under S. 363 and S. 376—Conviction under S. 363 338
8. Charges under Ss. 363, 366, 366-A and 368 — Conviction under all sections whether legal 338
9. Charge under another section — Conviction under S. 363 if proper ... 338
10. Facts falling under S. 368 and S. 498— Conviction under S. 363 not barred ... 338
11. Sentence 338
—Section 364 338
—Section 365 339
—Section 366
1. Scope and applicability 340
2. "Kidnaps or abducts any woman" ... 341
3. "With intent ... marry any person" ... 342
4. Against will 342
5. Intention of accused—How gathered ... 342
6. "Forced or seduced to illicit intercourse" 343

PENAL CODE, S. 366 (contd.)	Pages
7. Kidnapping and abduction — Distinction	343
8. Evidence as to age	344
9. Consent of minor abducted girl — Whether material	344
10 Evidence and proof	345
11. Evidence of prosecutrix — Value of	345
12. Place of trial...	345
13. Direction to jury	346
14. Charge under S. 364 and S. 366 — Conviction under S. 363 if legal	346
15. Charges under Ss. 363, 366, 366-A and 368—Conviction under all sections if legal	346
16. Charge of kidnapping under S. 66—Conviction for abduction if permissible	346
17. Charge under S. 366 and S. 376—Conviction under S. 376 when permissible	346
18. Section 366 and S. 365, I. P. C.	346
19. Sentence	346
—Sections 366A, 366B, 367	347
—Sections 368, 372, 373, 375	348
—Section 376
1. Scope and applicability	349
2. Consent	349
3. Penetration	351
4. Evidence and proof	351
5. Evidence of prosecutrix—Corroboration if and when necessary	352
6. Corroboration — Nature and extent of	355
7. Age of girl — Proof of	356
8. Direction to jury	356
9. Charge under S. 376 disclosing facts under S. 354—Conviction under S. 354 legal	356
10. Attempt to commit rape	357
11. Sentence	357
—Section 377	357
—Sections 378 and 379
1. Scope	358
2. Dishonest intention	359
3. "Out of possession of any person"	360
4. "Moves that thing in order to such taking"	360
5. Consent	360
6. Theft of aircraft	360
7. Fish in water	360
8. Removal of cattle turned loose	361
9. Bona fide claim of right	361
10. Cutting and removal of trees	363
11. Removal of crops	363
12. Removal of property under attachment	364
13. Creditor removing property of debtor	365
14. Temporary removal	365
15. Master and servant	365
16. Theft and other offences	366
17. Evidence and proof	367
18. Presumption under S. 114, Illus. (a), Evidence Act (1872)	368
19. Procedure	369
20. Conviction and sentence	370
—Section 380
1. Scope and applicability	371
2. Evidence and proof	371
3. Defence	372
4. Conviction and sentence	372
5. Procedure	373
—Sections 381, 382, 383	373
—Section 384	374
—Sections 385, 386, 387, 390	375
—Section 391	376
—Section 392	377
—Section 394	378
—Section 395
1. Scope	379

PENAL CODE, S. 395 (contd.)	Pages
2. Conviction and sentence	379
3. Evidence and proof	381
4. Procedure	383
—Section 396	384
—Section 397	387
—Sections 398, 399	388
—Section 400	391
—Sections 401, 402	393
—Section 403
1. Scope and applicability	395
2. Criminal misappropriation breach of trust and theft—Distinction	396
3. "Misappropriates or converts to his own use"	396
4. Explanation 1	397
5. Explanation 2	397
6. Partner	397
7. Evidence and proof	398
8. Practice and procedure	398
9. Conviction and sentence	399
—Section 404	399
—Section 405
1. Scope and applicability	400
2. Criminal breach of trust distinguished from theft, cheating and criminal misappropriation	401
3. "In any manner entrusted"...	402
4. "Property"	404
5. "Misappropriates or converts to his own use"	405
6. Disposal in violation of any legal contract	406
7. "Dishonestly"	407
8. Failure to account or false account—Presumption of dishonest intention	408
9. Breach of duty under civil law — Inference of dishonest intention	409
10. Clerk or servant	410
11. Public servant	410
12. Broker	411
13. Agent	411
14. Depositary or custodian of property	411
15. Pledge	412
16. Vendor and purchaser	412
17. Partner	413
18. Debtor and creditor	415
19. Banker	415
20. Hirer...	416
21. Onus of proof	416
22. Abetment	417
—Section 406	418
—Sections 407, 408	419
—Section 409
1. Scope and applicability	421
2. This section and Section 5 (1) (c) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947	423
3. Public servant	424
4. Banker	425
5. Agent	425
6. Partner	426
7. Broker	426
8. Sentence	426
9. Evidence and proof	427
10. Procedure	430
11. Some illustrative cases	432
—Section 410	432
—Section 411
1. Scope and applicability	433
2. Section 411 and other sections	434
3. Dishonestly receives or retains	435
4. Stolen property	435
5. Knowing or having reason to believe	435
6. Presumption under S. 14, Evidence Act...	436

Pages

PENAL CODE, S. 411 (contd.)
7. Possession after lapse of time ... 438
8. Possession must be exclusive ... 438
9. Identification of stolen property ... 440
10. Pointing out or production of property ... 440
11. Evidence and proof 441
12. Conviction and sentence 442
13. Practice and procedure 442
—Section 412
1. Scope and applicability 443
2. Evidence and proof 443
3. Joint possession 444
4. Sections 412 and 395 444
5. Practice and procedure 445
—Section 414 445
—Section 415
1. Scope 446
2. Intention 447
3. Fraudulent or dishonest inducement ... 448
4. Property 448
5. Damage necessary 448
6. Contracts opposed to public policy ... 449
7. Attempt 449
8. "Dishonest concealment of facts" ... 449
9. Evidence and proof 450
—Sections 416, 417 451
—Section 419 452
—Section 420
1. Scope and applicability 454
2. Essentials 455
3. Intention 457
4. False representation 459
5. Concealment of facts 459
6. Property 459
7. Valuable security 460
8. Attempt 460
9. Abetment 460
10. Conspiracy 460
11. Procedure 461
12. Sanction 462
13. Evidence and proof 462
14. Sentence 463
—Sections 423, 424 464
—Section 425
1. Intention 465
2. Knowledge 466
3. Wrongful loss or damage 466
4. Destruction or change 466
5. Property 467
6. Bona fide claim of right 467
7. Destruction of one's own property ... 467
8. Master's liability for servant's negligence 467
9. Mischief and theft 467
10. Evidence and proof 467
11. Practice and procedure 467
—Section 426
1. Scope and applicability 468
2. Evidence and proof 468
3. Practice and procedure 468
4. Conviction and sentence 469
—Section 427 469
—Sections 428, 429 470
—Sections 430, 434 471
—Sections 435, 436 472
—Section 441
1. Scope and applicability 472
2. Intention 474
3. "To commit an offence" 475
4. To intimidate 475
5. To annoy 478
6. Bona fide claim of right 478
7. Entry 479
8. In the possession of another... ... 479
9. Joint possession and ownership ... 480
10. "Unlawfully remains there" ... 480

Pages

PENAL CODE, S. 441 (contd.)
11. Use of criminal force 481
12. Criminal trespass whether continuing offence 481
13. Criminal trespass — Right of private defence 481
14. Abetment 481
15. Evidence and proof 481
16. Practice and procedure 482
17. Sentence 482
—Section 442 482
—Section 443 483
—Sections 444, 445 484
—Section 447
1. Scope and applicability 484
2. Intention 484
3. To intimidate 485
4. To annoy 485
5. Bona fide claim of right 485
6. Master and servant 485
7. "In the possession of another" ... 486
8. Joint possession and ownership ... 486
9. Unlawfully remains there 486
10. Use of criminal force 487
11. Criminal trespass whether continuing offence 487
12. Evidence and proof 487
13. Practice and procedure 487
14. Sentence 487
—Section 448
1. Scope 488
2 Intention 488
3. Illustrative cases... 489
4. Evidence and proof 490
5. Practice and procedure 490
6. Sentence 490
—Section 449 490
—Sections 451, 452 491
—Sections 453, 454, 455... 492
—Sections 456, 457 493
—Sections 458, 459, 460 495
—Sections 461, 463 496
—Section 464 498
—Section 465 501
—Section 466 502
—Section 467
1. Scope 503
2. "Forged document"——— 503
3. "Purports to be a valuable security" ... 503
4. "Receipt acknowledging the payment of money" 504
5. Evidence and proof 504
6. Procedure 504
7. Conviction and sentence 505
—Section 468 ——— 505
—Section 471
1. "Dishonestly" 506
2. Nature of user 506
3. Use of copies of forged document ... 506
4. Illustrative cases... 507
5. Evidence and proof 508
6. Procedure 509
7. Sanction for prosecution 509
8. Conviction and sentence 509
—Sections 474, 475, 477 510
—Section 477-A
1. Scope and applicability 511
2. "Falsify" 512
3. "Intent to defraud" 512
4. Conviction and sentence 513
5. Procedure 513
—Sections 478, 480 514
—Section 482
1. Applicability 515

	Pages
PENAL CODE, S. 482 (contd.)
2. Procedure	516
3. Counterfeiting—Meaning of	516
4. Evidence and proof	517
5. Sentence	517
—Sections 483, 484, 485	517
—Section 486
1. Applicability	519
2. Counterfeiting of trade mark—Tests ...	519
3. Taking of precautions	519
4. Burden of proof	520
5. Innocently—Meaning of	520
6. Counterfeit—Meaning of	520
7. Procedure	521
—Sections 487, 488, 489, 489A, 489B	521
—Sections 489C, 489D	522
—Section 493	523
—Section 494
1. Scope and applicability	523
2. Abetment	524
3. Marriage while husband or wife is alive ...	524
4. Apostacy of husband or wife	525
5. Complaint	525
6. Evidence and proof	525
7. Defence	526
8. Practice and procedure	526
—Section 495	526
—Section 497
1. Scope and applicability	527
2. Validity of Section	527
3. "Wife of another"	527
4. Consent or connivance of husband ...	527
5. Who can complain	527
6. Evidence	527
7. Charge	528
8. Practice and procedure	528
9. Sentence	528
—Section 498
1. Object and scope	529
2. Enticing or taking away	529
3. Intention	529
4. Offence can be committed in respect of married woman only	529
5. Concealment or detention	529
6. Complaint	530
7. Charge	530
8. Evidence and proof	530
9. Consent of woman	531
10. Practice and procedure	531
11. Sentence	531
—Sections 499 and 500
1. Scope and applicability	532
2. Publication	533
3. Explanation 2 — Imputation concerning class or collection of individuals ...	536
4. "Intending to harm or knowing or having reason to believe that it will harm reputation"	537
5. Explanation 4— 'Harming reputation" ...	537
6. Exception 1 — Imputation of truth for public good	537
7. Exception 2 — Opinion regarding public conduct of public servant	539
8. Exception 4 — Publication of reports of proceedings of Court	539
9. Exception 7—Censure by person in authority	539
10. Exception 8—Statement to person in lawful authority	540
11. Exception 9 — Imputation for protection of interest or for public good ...	542
12. Exception 10—Caution for good of person to whom conveyed or for public good ...	546
13. Evidence and proof	547
PENAL CODE, Ss. 499 and 500 (contd.)
14. Burden of proof	550
15. Practice and procedure	551
16. Conviction and sentence	553
—Sections 501, 502, 503	554
—Section 504
1. Applicability	555
2. Intention or knowledge	555
3. Insult and provocation	556
4. Abusive language	556
5. Complaint	557
6. Conviction and punishment	557
—Section 505	557
—Sections 506, 508	558
—Section 509	559
—Section 511
1. Applicability	559
2. "Attempts"	560
3. Punishment	562
PENAL CODE (APPLICATION TO VINDHYA PRADESH) ORDINANCE (48 of 1949)	562
—Section 2	562
✣PENAL LAW	562
✣PENALTY	562
✣PEN-DOWN STRIKE	562
✣PENSION	562
PENSIONS ACT (23 of 1871)	562
—Section 1	562
—Section 4	563
—Section 5	564
—Sections 6, 7, 8, 10	565
—Sections 11, 12, 13	566
PENSIONS RULES	566
—Rule 2	567
✣PEOPLE, HOUSE OF	567
✣PEOPLE OF INDIA	567
✣PEPSU ABOLITION OF BISWEDARI ORDINANCE	567
✣PEPSU ABOLITION OF OCCUPANCY TENANT'S TENURE AND SETTLEMENT OF LAND DISPUTES (AMENDMENT) ACT (4 of 2007 Bk)	567
PEPSU ADMINISTRATION (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (13 of 2005 Bk)	567
—Section 3	567
PEPSU ADMINISTRATION OF EVACUEE PROPERTY ORDINANCE (17 of 2006 Bk) ...	567
—Sections 2, 5, 40	567
PEPSU ADMINISTRATION OF EVACUEE PROPERTY (SUPPLEMENTARY) ACT (6 of 2007 Bk)	568
—Section 5	568
PEPSU ADMINISTRATION ORDINANCE (1 of 2005 Samvat)	568
—Section 3	568
PEPSU AVURVEDIC AND UNANI PRACTITIONERS ACT (12 of 2008 Bk) ...	568
—Sections 3, 14	568
PEPSU CIVIL SERVICE (CLASSIFICATION, CONTROL AND APPEAL) RULES (1952)	568
—Rules 6A, 12, 13, 22, 24, 25	568
PEPSU CIVIL SERVICES (SAFEGUARDING OF NATIONAL SECURITY) RULES (1954)	569
—Rule 3	569
PEPSU COURT OF WARDS ACT (1 of 2008 Bk)	569
—Sections 5, 16, 44	569

	Pages
PEPSU EVACUEES (ADMINISTRATION OF PROPERTY) ORDINANCE (13 of 2006 Bk) (1949)	569
—Sections 2, 3, 10	569
—Section 14	570
PEPSU GENERAL PROVISIONS (ADMINISTRATION) ORDINANCE (16 of 2006 Bk)	570
—Section 3	570
—Sections 4, 10, 14	571
✠PEPSU GENERAL SALES TAX ORDINANCE (33 of 2006 Bk)	571
PEPSU HIGH COURT ORDINANCE (2 of 2005 Bk)	571
—Section 52	571
✠PEPSU HIGH COURT RULES	571
✠PEPSU HOLDINGS (CONSOLIDATION AND PREVENTION OF FRAGMENTATION) ACT (5 of 2007 Bk) (1950)	571
PEPSU JAIL MANUAL	571
—Rule 455	571
PEPSU JUDICATURE ORDINANCE (10 of 2005 Bk)	571
—Sections 5, 25	571
—Sections 33, 49, 51, 52	572
—Sections 54, 60, 68, 76	573
—Sections 82, 92, 107, 116	574
PEPSU LAND ACQUISITION ACT (4 of 2006 Bk)	575
—Preamble, Sections 10, 18, 20, 27, 56	575
PEPSU LEGISLATURE (DELEGATION OF POWERS) ACT (22 of 1953)	575
—Section 3	575
✠PEPSU MANUAL FOR THE SUPERINTENDENCE AND MANAGEMENT OF JAILS	576
✠PEPSU MONEY LENDERS ACT (8 of 1956)	576
✠PEPSU MUNICIPAL ELECTION RULES (1949)	576
PEPSU NOTIFICATION (33 of 2005 Bk), dated 2-9-1948	576
✠PEPSU PANCHAYAT RAJ ACT (8 of 2008 Bk)	576
PEPSU POLICE (INCITEMENT TO DISAFFECTION) ACT (1 of 1953)	576
—Section 3	576
PEPSU PRE-EMPTION ACT	576
—Sections 8, 23	576
✠PEPSU PUBLIC SAFETY ORDINANCE (7 of 2006 Bk)	576
PEPSU PUBLIC SERVANTS (INQUIRIES) ORDINANCE (28 of 2006 Bk)	576
—Section 3	576
PEPSU PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ORDINANCE (6 of 2006 Bk)	577
—Sections 8, 9	577
PEPSU PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION (LIMITATION OF FUNCTIONS) REGULATION 1951	577
—Rule 4	577
PEPSU PURE FOOD ACT (5 of 1998 Bk)	577
—Section 23	577
PEPSU RECLAMATION OF LAND ACT (5 of 1953)	577
—Preamble	577
PEPSU RULES OF BUSSINESS	577
—Rule 34, 35	577
PEPSU RULES OF EXECUTIVE BUSINESS (1953)	577
—Rule 11	577
PEPSU RULES OF EXECUTIVE BUSINESS (VALIDATION) ACT (PRESIDENT'S ACT 6 of 1954)	577
—Section 3	577
PEPSU SERVICE REGULATIONS
—Volume 1, Rule 9	577
—Volume 1, Appendix 5	578
—Volume 3, Rule 3	578
—Volume 3, Rule 5	578
PEPSU SERVICE RULES	578
—Rules 9, 251	578
PEPSU SIRHIND CANAL AND WESTERN JAMNA CANAL (ENFORCEMENT AND VALIDATION) ACT (4 of 1954)	579
—Sections 1, 3, 4	579
PEPSU SIRHIND CANAL RULES	579
—Rules 32, 33	579
PEPSU SUGARCANE (REGULATION OF SUPPLY AND PURCHASE) ACT (10 of 1954)	579
—Sections 14, 21	579
PEPSU SUGARCANE (REGULATION OF SUPPLY AND PURCHASE) RULES (1955)	580
—Rules 1, 38	580
✠PEPSU TENANCY AND AGRICULTURAL LANDS ACT (8 of 1953)	580
✠PEPSU TENANCY AND AGRICULTURAL LANDS ACT (13 of 1955)	580
✠PEPSU URBAN RENT RESTRICTION ORDINANCE (8 of 2006 BK)	580
PEPSU VILLAGE COMMON LANDS (REGULATION) ACT (15 of 1955)	580
—Section 3	580
✠PER CAPITA AND PER STIRPES SUCCESSION	580
✠PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT	580
✠PERIODICALLY RECURRING RIGHT	580
✠PERJURY	580
✠PERMANENT APPOINTMENT	580
✠PERMANENT LEASE	580
✠PERMANENT OCCUPANCY RIGHT	580
✠PERMANENT SETTLEMENT	580
✠PERMANENT TENANCY	580
✠PERMIT	580
PERMIT SYSTEM RULES (1948)	580
—Rules 2, 12	580
—Rules 16, 29	581
PERMIT SYSTEM RULES (1949)	581
—Rules 5, 10, 19, 29, 31	581
PERMIT SYSTEM RULES (1950)	582
—Rule 10	582
✠PERMIT TO USE MOTOR VEHICLE	582
✠PERPETUAL INJUNCTION	582
✠PERPETUITY	582
✠PERPETUITY, RULE AGAINST	582
✠PERSON	582
✠PERSONA DESIGNATA	582
✠PERSON AGGRIEVED	582
✠PERSONAL APPEARANCE	582
✠PERSONAL COVENANT	582
✠PERSONAL DECREE	582
✠PERSONAL EFFECTS	582
✠PERSONAL INAM	582
✠PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE OF COURT	582
✠PERSONAL INTEREST OF JUDGE	582
✠PERSONAL LAW	582
✠PERSONAL LIBERTY	582
✠PERSONAL SECURITY	582
✠PERSONATING A PUBLIC SERVANT	582
✠PERSONATION	582
✠PERSONATION AT ELECTIONS	582
✠PERSONATION IN SUIT OR PROCEEDING	582

	Pages
✣PERSONS CONCERNED IN CRIMINAL ACT GUILTY OF SEVERAL OFFENCES	582
PETROLEUM ACT (30 of 1934)	582
—Section 3	582
—Sections 4, 11, 31	583
✣PETTY CRIMINAL CASES	583
✣PETYY OFFENCES	583
✣PHOTOGRAPH	583
✣PHYSICAL POSSESSION	583
✣PILGRIMAGE	583
✣PIOUS OBLIGATION	583
✣PIRACY	583
✣PITH AND SUBSTANCE—DOCTRINE OF	583
✣PLACE OF BIRTH	583
✣PLACE OF INQUIRY AND TRIAL	583
✣PLACE OF PERFORMANCE	583
✣PLACE OF PUBLIC WORSHIP	583
✣PLACE OF TRIAL	583
✣PLACE OF WORSHIP	583
✣PLACE OF WORSHIP, INJURING AND DEFILING OF	583
✣PLAINT	583
PLANTATIONS LABOUR ACT (69 of 1951)	583
—Section 30	583
✣PLEA	584
✣PLEADER	584
✣PLEADER AND CLIENT	584
✣PLEADINGS	584
✣PLEA OF ACCUSED	584
✣PLEA OF GUILTY	584
✣PLEDGE	584
✣POISON	584
POISON ACT (12 of 1919)	584
—Sections 5, 6	584
POLICE ACT (5 of 1861)	585
—Preamble, Sections 1, 2	585
—Sections 3, 4	586
—Section 5	587
—Section 7
1. Applicability	587
2. Departmental enquiry	588
3. Powers of I. G., D. I. G. etc.	589
4. Police Regulations—Cases	590
5. Interference	599
—Section 8	599
—Sections 9, 12, 13, 15	600
—Sections 15A, 17	601
—Sections 19, 20	602
—Sections 23, 24	603
—Sections 25, 26, 27, 28	604
—Section 29
1. Applicability	604
2. Jurisdiction	606
3. Lawful order by competent authority	606
4. Procedure	606
—Section 30	607
—Sections 31, 32	608
—Sections 34, 35	609
—Sections 36, 42	610
—Sections 43, 44, 46	611
POLICE ACT (3 of 1888)	611
—Section 3	611
POLICE CADRE RULES (1950)	611
✣POLICE CUSTODY	612
✣POLIC DIARY	612
✣POLICE FORCE	612
POLICE (INCITEMENT TO DISAFFECTION) ACT (22 of 1922)	612
—Section 3	612
POLICE INTELLIGENCE BRANCH MANNUAL OF INSTRUCTION	612
—Rule 12	612
✣POLICE INVESTIGATION	612
POLICE MANUAL	612
—Rule 851	612
✣POLICE OFFICER	612
✣POLICE REGULATIONS	612
✣POLICE REGULATIONS (STATES)	612
✣POLICE REPORT	612
POLICE SERVICE (APPOINTMENT BY PROMOTION) REGULATIONS (1955)	612
—Clause 4	612
POLICE SERVICE (CADRE) RULES (1954)	613
—Rules 2, 3, 4, 8	613
POLICE SERVICE (FIXATION OF CARDE STRENGTH) REGULATIONS (1955)	613
POLICE SERVICE (PAY) RULES (1954)	613
—Rules 2, 4, 8	613
POLICE SERVICE (RECRUITMENT) RULES 1954)	613
—Rules 3, 4, 6, 9	613
POLICE SERVICE (REGULATION OF SENIORITY) RULES (1954)	613
—Rule 2	613
POLICE STANDING ORDER	613
—Rule 558	613
—Rule 580	614
✣POLICE STATION	614
✣POLICE TENURE	614
✣POLICY OF FIRE INSURANCE	614
✣POLICY OF INSURANCE	614
✣POLICY OF MARINE INSURANCE	614
✣POLITICAL AGENT	614
✣POLL	614
✣POLLING AGENT	614
✣POLLING OFFICER	614
✣POLLING STATION	614
✣POLYGAMY	614
PONDICHERRY (ADMINISTRATION) ACT (49 of 1962)	614
—Sections 4, 7, 9	614
—Section 10	615
PONDICHERRY (APPLICATION OF MOTOR VEHICLES ACT) ORDER (1959)	615
—Clause 4	615
PONDICHERRY (LAWS) REGULATION (1963)	615
—Section 4	615
✣POONA CITY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION RULES AND BY-LAWS	615
✣POONA CITY MUNICIPALITY OCTROI RULES	615
✣PORAMBOKE	615
PORBANDAR (CITY) HOTEL AND KETTLE DHARA	615
—Sections 1, 6	615
PORBANDAR RULES OF HAZUR RAJ SABHA	615
—Section 1	615
PORBANDAR STATE LAND REVENUE CODE (1940-41)	615
—Rule 2	615
✣PORTS	615
✣PORTS AND AERODROMES	615
✣POSSESSION	616
✣POSSESSION OF WIFE, CLERK OR SERVANT	616
✣POSSESSORY LIEN	616
✣POSSESSORY RIGHT AND TITLE	616
✣POST	616
✣POSTAGE	616
✣POSTAGE STAMP	616
✣POSTAL ARTICLES	616
✣POSTAL COMMUNICATION	616
POSTAL GUIDE	616
—Rule 130	616

	Pages
POST AND TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENTAL RULES	616
POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS MANUAL	616
—Vol. 2 Regulations 12, 17, 21	617
—Vol. 2 Regn. 149-A	617
—Vol. 3 Sch 1-B Rules 2, 3	617
—Vol 3 Sch. 3	617
—Vol. 4 Chap. II, Rule 38	617
—Vol. 4 Chap. VIII, Rule 11	617
—Vol 4 Rule 32-A	617
—Vol. 6 Chap. 1, Rule 45	617
—Vol. 6 Rule 445	617
—Appendix 3	617
✠POST DIEM INTEREST	617
✠POSTHUMOUS SON	617
✠POSTMORTEM REPORT	618
✠POST OFFICE	618
POST OFFICE ACT (6 of 1898)	618
—Sections, 2, 3, 3-A, 6	619
—Sections 7, 9	620
—Sections 16, 18, 30, 32, 33	621
—Section 34	622
—Sections 35, 43, 44	623
—Sections 47, 48, 52	624
—Sections 53, 68, 72, Sch. 1	625
POST OFFICE GUIDE	625
POST OFFICE RULES (1933)	625
—Rules 30, 35, 76, 81, 133, 297	625
POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK RULES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF DEPOSITORS	625
—Rule 21	625
✠POUNDAGE	626
✠POWER	626
✠POWER OF APPELLATE COURT	626
✠POWER OF ATTORNEY	626
POWER OF ATTORNEY ACT (7 of 1882)	626
—Section 2	626
✠POWER OF LEGAL PRACTITIONER	627
✠POWERS, PRIVILEGES AND IMMUNITIES	627
✠PRACTICE	627
✠PRADHANI TENURE	630
✠PREAMBLE	630
PRECEDENTS
1. Rule of stare decisis	630
2. Application of precedents—Duty of Court	631
3. Supreme Court decision	643
4. Privy Council decision	646
5. Privy Council and Supreme Court	647
6. Federal Court	648
7. Privy Council and Federal Court	648
8. High Court decisions	649
9. Duty of subordinate Courts and Tribunals	658
10. Decisions of other High Courts	660
11. Judicial Commissioner's Court at Ajmer	660
12. Andhra and Madras High Courts	660
13. Madhya Pradesh and Madhya Bharat High Courts	662
14. Nagpur, Madhya Pradesh and Bombay High Courts	662
15. Bombay and Gujarat High Courts	662
16. Kerala and Travancore-Cochin High Courts	662
17. Lahore and Simla High Courts	663
18. Orissa and Patna High Courts	663
19. Mysore High Court	663
20. High Courts of Covenanting States	663
21. Conflicting decisions of Superior Court	664
22. Board of Revenue and other Tribunals	664
23. Law Reports	665
24. English and American decisions	666
✠PRECEPTOR	669
✠PRECEPTS	669
✠PRE-CONSTITUTION LAW	669
✠PRE-CONSTITUTION TAXES, DUTIES ETC. LEVIED BY STATE	669
✠PRE-EMPTION	669
✠PREFERENCE	669
✠PREFERENTIAL HEIR	669
✠PREGNANCY	669
✠PRELIMINARY DECREE	669
✠PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY	669
✠PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY OR INVESTIGATION BEFORE ISSUING PROCESS ON COMPLAINT	669
✠PRELIMINARY INQUIRY UPON COMPLAINT BY COURT	669
✠PRELIMINARY OBJECTION	669
✠PRELIMINARY ORDER IN DISPUTE REGARDING IMMOVABLE PROPERTY	669
✠PRELIMINARY ORDER IN SECURITY PROCEEDING	669
✠PREPARATION, FACTS SHOWING	669
✠PREROGATIVE	669
✠PREROGATIVE WRITS	669
✠PRESCRIPTION	669
✠PRESENTMENT OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT	669
✠PRESIDENCY MAGISTRATE	669
PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (15 of 1882)	669
—Section 8-A	669
—Sections 9, 18	670
—Sections 19, 21, 31, 38	671
—Section 41
1. Nature of proceedings under	673
2. Jurisdiction	674
3. Limitation for execution of order	675
4. Parties to proceedings	675
5. Right to remove fixtures	675
6. Revision	675
7. Decree and building—Meaning of	676
—Sections 42, 43	676
—Section 44	677
—Sections 45, 46	678
—Section 47
1 Scope of inquiry under	678
2. Stay of proceedings	678
3. Trespass	679
4. Occupant—Meaning of	679
5. Jurisdiction	679
6. Miscellaneous	679
—Sections 48, 49, 53, 55, 69	680
—Section 74	681
PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT (3 of 1909)	681
—Sections 2, 7	681
—Section 8	682
—Section 9	683
—Sections 9-A, 10, 11, 12, 13	685
—Sections 16, 17	686
—Sections 21, 22, 23, 28, 30	688
—Sections 33, 36, 41, 46	689
—Sections 47, 49, 51	690
—Section 52	691
—Section 53	692
—Sections 55, 56, 57, 65, 78, 82-A	693
—Sections 90, 92, 99, 101, 103-A, 119, 126, 127, Schedule 2, Rule 18	694
PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY RULES	694
—Rule 6-A	694
—Rule 52-B	695
PRESIDENTIAL AND VICE-PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS ACT (31 of 1952)	695
—Sections 14, 18	695
✠PRESIDENT OF INDIA	695

Pages

PRESIDENT'S REMOVAL OF DIFFICULTIES ORDER ... — ... 695
—No. 212-A 695
✠PRESS AND REGISTRATION OF BOOKS 695
PRESS AND REGISTRATION OF BOOKS ACT (25 of 1867) 695
—Preamble, Section 1 695
—Section 3 696
—Section 4 697
—Section 5 698
—Sections 6, 7, 8-B, 12 699
—Sections 14, 18, 21 700
PRESS (EMERGENCY POWERS) ACT (23 of 1931) 700
—Sections 2, 3 700
—Section 4
1. Sub-section (1) 701
2. Sub-section (1), Cl. (a) 701
3. Sub-section (1), Cl. (d) 702
4. Sub-section (1), Cl. (f) 705
5. Sub-section (1), Cl. (h) 705
6. May issue a notice in writing ... 706
7. Explanation (2) 706
8. Power of High Court to issue writ ... 707
—Sections 7, 8, 15 707
—Section 18 708
—Sections 19, 23, 24, 28 709
PRESS (OBJECTIONABLE MATTER) ACT (56 of 1951) 709
—Preamble, Section 1 709
—Sections 2, 3 710
—Sections 7, 10, 11 713
—Section 16 714
—Sections 18, 19, 22, 23, 24, 37 715
✠PRESUMPTION 715
✠PRESUMPTION OF INNOCENCE ... 715
PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT (2 of 1947) 716
—Section 4
1. Acceptance of gratifiation 718
2. Burden of proof 718
3 Presumption under 719
4. Rebuttal of presumption by accused ... 722
5. Constitutional validity of the section ... 724
—Section 5
1. Scope and object 725
2. Public servant 726
3. Sub-section 5 (1) (a) 727
4. Sub-section 5 (1) (b) 727
5. Sub-section 5 (1) (c)—General ... 727
6. Dishonest and fraudulent misappropriation—Sub-section 5 (1) (c) ... 730
7. Misappropriation — Evidence of — Sub-section 5 (1) (c) 731
8. Sub-section 5 (1) (d) 732
9. Sub-section 5 (2) 734
10. Sub-section 5 (3)—General ... 735
11. "Satisfactorily account" — Sub-section 5 (3) 739
12. "Disproportionate to his known source of income"—Sub-section 5 (3) ... 739
13. Burden of proof—Sub-section 5 (3) ... 740
14. Sub-section 5 (4) 741
15. Acceptance of bribe—Proof of ... 743
16. Sentence 744
17. Evidence recorded by predecessor — Conviction by successor, if legal ... 745
18. Charge under S. 5 (1) (a) — Presumption under S. 4 745
—Section 5-A
1. Scope and applicability 745
2. This Act and C. P. and Berar Special Police Establishment Act (17 of 1947) 746
3. 'Police officer' 746
4. Compliance with the section ... 746

Pages

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, S. 5-A (contd)
5. Non-compliance with the section—Effect 747
6. Permission of Magistrate for investigation 749
7. Nature of offence 752
8. Objection to the permission of Magistrate 752
—Section 6
1. Scope and applicability 753
2. Essentials of sanction 755
3. Authority competent to remove ... 756
4. Public servant 757
5. Absence of sanction 758
6. Grant of sanction 759
7. Validity of sanction 760
8. Form of sanction 761
9. Burden of proof 763
10. Proof of sanction 763
11. Taking cognisance 764
12. Sanction in the case of any other person —Sub-section (1) (c) 764
13. Sanction under Section 197, Cr. P. C. and this section 764
14. Valid sanction—Illustrations ... 764
15. Invalid sanction—Illustrations ... 767
16. Doubt about sanctioning authority—Sanction—Sub-section (2) 768
17. Charge under two sections, one requiring sanction—Want of sanction — Conviction under the other section if valid 769
18. Sanction for offence covering specific facts — Whether enures for conviction covering different facts 769
19. Facts falling under Section 409, I. P. C. and Section 5 (2) — Prosecution under S. 409 without sanction if permissible 770
20. Conviction for acts covering particular period — Prosecution for similar acts covering different period not barred ... 770
21. Sanction—Objection to 770
—Section 7 770
PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS ACT (11 of 1890) 771
—Sections 3, 3A 771
PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION ACT (37 of 1954) 771
—Preamble 771
—Section 2
1. "Adulterated"—Sub-sec. (i) (a) ... 772
2. Food—Sub sec. (v) (a) 774
3. "Local area"—Sub-sec. (vii) ... 775
4. "Local authority"—Sub-sec. (viii) ... 775
5. "Misbranded"—Sub-sec. (ix) ... 776
6. "Sale"—Sub-sec. (xiii) 776
—Section 7
1. Applicability 778
2. "Sell or distribute" 778
3. Sale by servant—Liability 781
4. Sale by servant of co-operative society — Liability 782
5. Commission agent in possession of article —Liability 782
6. Knowledge of adulteration or misbranding, if necessary 782
7. Sale under a licence 783
8. Sale of mixed milk — Standard of purity applicable 783
9. Adulteration or misbranding ... 784
10. Sale of Food need not be as article of food 785
11. No adulteration—No conviction ... 785
12. Prosecution 785
—Section 8 786
—Section 9 787

Pages

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION ACT (contd.)
—Section 10
1. Food Inspectors appointed under Local Acts—If continue after Act 37 of 1954... 788
2. 'To take samples' — Sub-s. (1) (a) ... 788
3. Cost shall be paid—Sub-s. (3) ... 789
4. "He may seize" — Sub-s. (4) ... 789
5. Power to break open — Procedure — Sub-s. (5), Proviso 789
6. 'Call two persons' — Sub-s. (7) ... 789
7. Non-compliance with sub-s. (7)—Effect ... 790
8. Examination of persons as witnesses in trial, if necessary 792
9. Restrictions on powers of Food Inspector —Sub-s. (9) if contravenes Art. 19 of the Constitution 793
—Section 11
1. Scope and applicability 793
2. Manner of taking sample — Sub-s. (1) ... 793
3. Vendor declining to accept part of the sample — Sub-s. (2) 794
4. Evidence and proof 794
5. Practice and procedure 795
—Section 12 795
—Section 13
1. Dispatch of sample by Court to Central Food Laboratory for analysis — Sub-s. (2) 795
2. Certificate of Director of Central Food Laboratory to supersede the report of the Public Analyst—Sub-s. (3)... ... 796
3. Report or certificate to be used as evidence — Sub-s. (5) 796
4. Certificate to be final and conclusive — Proviso to sub-s. (5) 797
5. Public Analyst—Who is and whether his signature is sufficient on report ... 797
6. Report of Public Analyst—requirements and contents of 798
7. Evidence and proof 799
8. Practice and procedure 800
—Section 14 801
—Section 16
1. Scope and applicability 801
2. Sub-section (1) — General 802
3. Storing the article of food in contravention of the Act 803
4. Selling the article of food in contravention of the Act 804
5. Sale of article of food on behalf of another 805
6. Preventing a Food Inspector from taking sample 805
7. Possession by manufacturer of food of an adulterant 808
8. Giving false warranty 808
9. Evidence and proof 806
10. Conviction and sentence 809
11. Conviction and sentence for subsequent offence of similar nature 810
12. Practice and procedure 811
—Section 17 812
—Section 19 813
—Section 20
1. Scope 814
2. Written consent — General 815
3. Prosecution by purchaser 820
4. Cognizance of offence 820
5. Evidence and proof 820
6. Practice and procedure 820
—Sections 21, 23 821
—Sections 24, 25 823

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION RULES (1955) 824
—Rules 1, 5 824

Pages

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION RULES (contd.)
—Rules 6, 7 825
—Rules 8, 9, 12, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 ... 826
—Rules 20, 22 827
—Rules 26, 28, 29; 828
—Rules 30, 40, 43, 44 829
—Rules 44-A, 46, 47, 49, 50 830
—Appendix B 831
✠PREVENTIVE ACTION ... 832
✠PREVENTIVE ACTION BY POLICE ... 832
✠PREVENTIVE DETENTION 832
✠PREVENTIVE DETENTION ACT (4 of 1950) 832
✠PREVENTIVE DETENTION (AMENDMENT) ACT (4 of 1951) 832
✠PREVENTIVE DETENTION (AMENDMENT) ACT (34 of 1952) 832
✠PREVENTIVE DETENTION (EXTENSION OF DURATION) ORDER, 1950 ... 832
✠PREVENTIVE RELIEF 832
✠PREVIOUS ACQUITTAL 832
✠PREVIOUS CONVICTION 832
✠PREVIOUS DEPOSITION 832
✠PREVIOUS SANCTION FOR PROSECUTION 832
✠PREVIOUS SANCTION TO LEGISLATE... 832
✠PREVIOUS SANCTION TO PROSECUTE... 832
✠PREVIOUS STATEMENT OF WITNESS... 832
✠PREVIOUS YEAR 832-880
✠PRICE 881
✠PRICE OF GOODS SOLD AND DELIVERED 881
✠PRICE OF WORK DONE 881
✠PRIEST 881
✠PRIMARY EVIDENCE 881
✠PRIME MINISTER 881
✠PRIME MOVER 881
✠PRIMOGENITURE 881
✠PRINCE OR CHIEF 881
✠PRINCIPAL AND AGENT 881
✠PRINCIPAL AND SURETY 881
✠PRINCIPAL DEBTOR AND SURETY ... 881
✠PRINTER 881
✠PRIOR AND MESNE MORTGAGE ... 881
✠PRIORITY 881
✠PRISONERS 881
PRISONERS ACT (3 of 1900) 881
—Preamble, Section 3 881
✠PRISON OFFENCES... 881
✠PRISONS 881
PRISONS ACT (9 of 1894) 882
—Preamble, Sections 3, 12, 45, 46 882
—Section 51, 52 883
—Sections 56, 59 884
PRISONS RULES 884
—Rule 121 884
✠PRIVACY 884
✠PRIVATE AWARD 884
✠PRIVATE COMPANY 885
✠PRIVATE DEFENCE, RIGHT OF ... 885
✠PRIVATE DETECTIVE 885
✠PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ... 885
✠PRIVATE PROPERTY 885
✠PRIVATE PROSECUTION 885
✠PRIVIES 885
✠PRIVILEGE 885
✠PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATION ... 885
✠PRIVILEGED DOCUMENT... 885
✠PRIVILEGED WILL 885
✠PRIVILEGES AND IMMUNITIES OF MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT AND STATE LEGISLATURE 885
✠PRIVITY OF CONTRACT 885
✠PRIVY COUNCIL 885

Pages

PRIVY COUNCIL RULES (1920) 885
—Rules 9, 12 885
✣PRIVY PURSE OF RULERS 885
PRIZE COMPETITIONS ACT (42 of 1955) ... 885
—Section 2 885
—Sections 4, 5 886
—Sections 6, 9, 11, 14, 20... 887
✣PROBATE 887
PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT (5 of 1881) 887
—Sections 50, 157 887
✣PROBATE AND LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION: 887
✣PROBATION 887
PROBATION OF OFFENDERS ACT (20 of 1958) 888
—Sections 3, 4 888
—Sections 5, 6 889
—Section 11 890
✣PROCEDURAL LAW 891
✣PROCEDURE 891
✣PROCEEDINGS 891
✣PROCESS 891
✣PROCESSION 892
✣PROCLAMATION FOR ABSCONDING ACCUSED 892
✣PROCLAMATION OF EMERGENCY ... 892
✣PROCLAMATION OF EXECUTION SALE 892
✣PROCURATION OF MINOR GIRL ... 892
✣PROCURING, INDUCING OR TAKING WOMAN OR GIRL FOR SAKE OF PROSTITUTION 892
✣PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS ... 892
✣PRODUCTION OF EVIDENCE 892
✣PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION ... 892
✣PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT 892
✣PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE... ... 892
✣PROFESSIONAL MISCONDUCT ... 892
✣PROFESSION AND VOCATION ... 892
✣PROFESSION TAX 892
PROFESSIONS TAX LIMITATION ACT (20 of 1941) 892
—Sections 2, 3B 892
PROFESSIONS TAX LIMITATION (AMENDMENT AND VALIDATION) ACT (61 of 1949) 893
—Sections 2, 3 893
PROFESSIONS TAX LIMITATION (AMENDMENT AND VALIDATION) ORDINANCE (17 of 1949) 893
—Section 3 893
✣PROFESSION, TRADE AND CALLING ... 893
✣PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT OF COMPANY 893
✣PROFIT BONUS 893
✣PROFITS 893
✣PROFITS AND GAINS OF BUSINESS ... 893
✣PROHIBITED DEGREES 893
✣PROHIBITED LIQUOR 893
✣PROHIBITION 893
—ANDHRA PRADESH PROHIBITION ACT (10 of 1937) 894
—Section 4 894
—ASSAM LIQUOR PROHIBITION ACT (1 of 1953) 894
—Section 2 894
—ASSAM OPIUM PROHIBITION ACT (23 of 1947) 894
—Section 5 894
—Sections 6, 10, 11, 16 895
—Sections 17, 28 896
—BOMBAY PROHIBITION ACT (25 of 1949) 896
—Preamble 896

Pages

PROHIBITION — BOMBAY PROHIBITION ACT (contd.)
- Sections 1, 2, 6-A 897
—Sections 11, 12 898
—Section 13 899
—Sections 17, 21, 23, 24, 24A 901
—Section 31 902
—Sections 39, 40, 52, 53, 59-A, 59-C ... 903
—Sections 59-D, 65 904
—Section 66
1. Applicability. 905
2. Prohibited liquor. 906
3. Possession of article. 906
4. "Mere drinking liquor"—"Consume." ... 907
5. Evidence. 907
6. Report of Chemical Examiner ... 908
7. Burden of proof. 908
8. Jurisdiction of Magistrate 909
9. Punishment 909
10. Interference. 909
—Section 67 909
—Sections 81, 83, 84, 85 910
—Sections 90, 92, 98, 103 912
—Sections 116, 117, 129-A 913
—Sections 129-B, 136 914
—Sections 139, 143, 146-A 915
—Section 149 916
—BOMBAY PROHIBITION (EXTENSION AND AMENDMENT) ACT (12 of 1959) ... 916
- Section 1 916
—BOMBAY PROHIBITION (MEDICAL EXAMINATION AND BLOOD TEST) RULES (1959) 916
—Rules 3, 4, 5 916
—BOMBAY SPIRITUOUS MEDICINAL PREPARATIONS (SALE) RULES (1954) ... 916
—Rules 5, 7, 9 916
—C. P. AND BERAR PROHIBITION ACT (7 of 1938) 916
—Section 1 916
—Sections 1-A, 6 917
—Sections 13, 24, 25, 28-A, 28-B, 28-H ... 918
—Sections 29, 30, 32 919
—Sections 40, 68 920
—COORG PROHIBITION ACT (1 of 1956) ... 920
—Section 3 920
—DELHI INTOXICATING SPIRITUOUS PREPARATIONS, IMPORT, EXPORT, TRANSPORT, POSSESSION AND SALE RULES (1952) 920
—Rules 3, 3A, 12 920
—KERALA PROHIBITION ACT (T. C. ACT 13 of 1950) 921
—Sections 2, 4, 8 921
—MADHYA BHARAT MADAK DRAVYA VIDHAN (14 of 2009 Smvt) 921
—Sections 12, 33 921
—(M. P.) FOREIGN LIQUOR RULES (1960) 922
—Rules 2, 4 922
—MADHYA PRADESH PROHIBITION ACT (7 of 1938) 922
—Section 6 922
—MADHYA PRADESH PROHIBITION (AMENDMENT) ACT (19 of 1953) ... 922
—MADRAS PROHIBITION ACT (10 of 1937) 922
—Sections 1, 2, 3 922
Section 4
1. Section 4—Validity of 923
2. Sub-section (1) 924
3. Offence—Proof of... 925
4. Examination of panchas, if necessary ... 927
5. Proviso to sub-s. (1) 928
6. Sub-section (2)—Presumption ... 928
7. Sentence 928

	Pages
PROHIBITION — MADRAS PROHIBITION ACT, S. 4 (contd.)
8. Non-compliance with S. 495, Criminal P. C.—Effect on trial	929
9. Charge under S. 4-A—Conviction under S. 4 (1), if legal	929
10. Conviction under S. 4-A— Subsequent prosecution under S. 4 (1) not barred ...	929
—Section 4-A	929
—Sections 5 .11 13	930
—Sections 14, 15, 16, 18	931
—Sections 18-A, 20, 21, 21-A, 23, 25, 28 ...	932
—Sections 29, 30, 31	933
—Sections 32, 34, 38, 41-A, 48	934
—Sections 53, 53-A, 54, Form III-A, B and C ...	935
—MADRAS PROHIBITION (AMENDMENT) ACT (8 of 1958)	935
—Section 16	935
—MADRAS PROHIBITION (SUPPLEMENTARY) ACT (11 of 1941)	935
—Section 2	935
—MYSORE PROHIBITION ACT (37 of 1948)	936
—Premble, Sections 4, 14, 16, 31, 32... ...	936
—Sections 41, 45, 51, 56	937
—MYSORE PROHIBITION ACT, 1961 (17 of 1961)	937
—Sections 1, 12, 59	937
—Sections 86, 109, 129 Sch. A, Item No. 3 ...	938
—PUNJAB INTOXICATING SPIRITUOUS PREPARATIONS, IMPORT, EXPORT, TRANSPORT, POSSESSION AND SALE RULES (1952)	938
—SAURASHTRA PROHIBITION ORDINANCE	938
—Section 66	938
—TRAVANCORE-COCHIN PROHIBITION ACT (13 of 1950)	939
—Preamble, Sections 7, 8	939
—Sections 9, 21, 37, 61-A ...	940
—TRAVANCORE PROHIBITION ACT (7 of 1123 M. E.)	941
—Section 9	941
✠PROHIBITION LAW	941
✠PROJECTION	941
✠PROMISE	941
✠PROMISOR AND PROMISEE	941
✠PROMISSORY NOTE	941
✠PROMOTERS OF COMPANY	941
✠PROMOTING ENMITY BETWEEN CLASSES DURING ELECTION ...	941
✠PROMOTING ENMITY OR HATRED BETWEEN GROUPS	941
✠PROOF	941
✠PROPER AND IMPROPER QUESTIONS TO WITNESS	941
✠PROPER PARTY	941
✠PROPERTY.	941
✠PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION ...	942
✠PROPOSAL	942
✠PROSECUTION	942
✠PROSPECTING LICENSE	942
✠PROSTITUTION	942
✠PROTECTED FOREST	942
✠PROVED	942
✠PROVIDENT FUND	942
✠PROVIDENT FUND OF COMPANY EMPLOYEES	942
PROVIDENT FUNDS ACT (19 of 1925) ...	942
—Preamble, Sections 1, 2	942
—Section 3	943
—Section 4	945
—Sections 5, 6, 7	946
—Section 8	947
PROVIDENT FUNDS RULES	947
PROVIDENT FUNDS SCHEME (1952) ...	947
—Paras 50, 53, 57, 59, 61...	947
PRVIDENT FUNDS SCHEME (contd.)
—Paras 70, 76	948
✠PROVIDENT SOCIETIES	948
PROVINCES AND STATES (ABSORPTION OF ENCLAVES) ORDER (1950) ...	948
—Clauses 3, 5, 8	948
PROVINCIAL AND SUBORDINATE SERVICES GENERAL RULES (MADRAS) ...	949
—Rule 22	949
✠PROVINCIAL DEBT LAWS (TEMPORARY VALIDATION) ORDINANCE (11 of 1945)	949
PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT (5 of 1920)	949
—Sections 1, 2	949
—Section 3	951
—Section 4
1. Scope and applicability	951
2. Power and duty of insolvency Court ...	952
3. Jurisdiction of insolvency Court ...	953
4. Applicability of provosions of Civil P. C.	954
5. Gift to wife	955
6. Insolvency of Hindu father or manager ...	955
7. Transfer from transferee	956
8. Applicability of Limition Act ...	956
—Section 5
1. Scope and applicability	957
2. Joinder of parties	957
3. Applicability of O. 9, Civil P. C. ...	957
4. Abatement	958
5. Injunction	958
6. Apeal	958
7. Revision	958
8. Review	958
—Section 6
1. Scope and applicability	959
2. Sub-section (a)—Transfer to third person for benefit of creditors	960
3. Sub-section (b)—Transfer with intent to defeat or delay creditors	960
4. Sub-section (c)—Transfer void as fraudulent preference	961
5. Sub-section (e)—Sale of property in execution	962
6. Sub section (f)—Petition for adjudication	962
7. Sub-section (g)—Notice to creditors about suspension of business	962
—Sections 6-A, 7	964
—Section 8	965
—Section 9
1. Scope and applicability	965
2. Condition precedent for petition ...	966
3 Act of insolvency	966
4. Debt owing—Meaning of	966
5. "Liquidated sum"	967
6. Secured creditor—Who is	967
7. Amendment of petition	967
8. Abatement of petition	968
9. Within three months	968
10. Applicability of Limitation Act ...	969
11. Petition for readjudication — Requirements	969
12. Hindu joint family — Competency of petition against	969
13. Partnership firm—Adjudication of partner of	970
14. Adjudication order—Who can challenge...	970
15. Appeal	970
—Section 10	970
—Sections 11, 13	972
—Sections 14, 15, 16	973
—Sections 17, 18, 19	974
—Section 20	975
—Sections 21, 22	976
—Section 23	977

Pages

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT (contd.)
—Section 24
1. Scope of inquiry under 977
2. Powers of insolvency Court 978
3. Inability to pay debts — Proviso to sub-section (1) (a) 978
4. Examination of debtor—Sub-section (2)... 978
5. Sufficient cause—Sub-section (3) ... 979
6. Miscellaneous 979
—Sections 25, 27 979
—Section 28
1. Scope and object 980
2. Scope and object of sub-section (2) ... 981
3. Property 981
4. "Shall vest. . . . .hereinafter provided"... 982
5. Insolvency of Hindu father 983
6. Vesting of property situated in foreign territory 983
7. Effect of adjudication in a foreign country 984
8. "Shall become divisible' 984
9. Bar of remedy 984
10. "Commence any suit or other legal proceeding" 984
11. Leave of Court—When necessary ... 984
12. Leave of Court—When not necessary ... 985
13. Effect of not obtaining leave ... 985
14. Rights and disabilities of insolvent ... 985
15. Position of receiver 986
16. Vesting of property held on trust ... 987
17. After acquired property—Sub-section (4) 987
18. Property exempted under Civil P. C.—Sub-section (5) 987
19. Property exempted under other enactments—Sub-section (5) 988
20. Secured creditor—Sub-section (6) ... 988
21. Relation back—Sub-section (7) ... 988
—Section 28-A 990
—Section 29 993
—Sections 30, 31, 33 994
—Section 34 997
—Section 35 998
—Section 36 999
—Section 37
1. Applicability 999
2. Section 37 and Section 39 1000
3. Section 37 and Section 43 1000
4. Sale in execution 1001
5. Vesting order 1001
6. Powers and duties of an appointee ... 1001
7. Effect of annulment 1001
8. Powers and duties of Court 1002
—Sections 38, 39 1002
—Sections 40, 41 1003
—Sections 42, 43 1004
—Section 44 1005
—Sections 45, 46 1007
—Sections 47, 48, 49 1008
—Sections 50, 51 1009
—Section 52 1010
—Section 53
1. Scope and applicability 1011
2. "Any transfer" 1011
3. Good faith 1012
4. "For valuable consideration" ... 1013
5. Transfer in favour of wife 1013
6. Transfer from insolvent's transferee ... 1013
7. "Purchaser" 1014
8. Conditions of avoiding transfer under S. 53 1014
9. "Voidable as against the receiver" ... 1014
10. Transfer annulled—Rights of transferee 1015
11. Defence to an application under this section 1015
12. This section and S. 58, T. P. Act ... 1015

Pages

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, S. 53 (contd.)
13. Jurisdiction 1015
14. Evidence and burden of proof ... 1015
15. Procedure 1017
16. Res judicata 1017
17. Appeal 1018
18. Limitation for application under S. 53 ... 1018
19. Scope of enquiry—Duty of Court ... 1018
20. Illustrative cases... 1018
—Section 54
1. Scope and applicability 1019
2. Evidence and burden of proof ... 1020
3. Fraudulent preference 1020
4. Intention to prefer 1021
5. "Within three months" 1021
6. "Void" 1021
7. Effect of annulment of transfer ... 1022
8. Effect of annulment of adjudication ... 1022
9. Procedure 1022
10. Appeal 1022
—Sections 54-A, 55 1022
—Sections 56, 57, 58, 59 1023
—Sections 60, 61 1024
—Sections 62, 64, 67 1025
—Section 68 1026
—Section 69 1027
—Sections 70, 73, 74 1028
—Section 75
1. Applicability and scope 1029
2. Who may appeal—Person aggrieved ... 1029
3. "Order of Court subordinate to District Court" 1030
4. "Order of District Court upon such appeal shall be final" 1031
5. Revision 1031
6. Appeal 1032
7. Order appealable with leave of Court ... 1033
8. Parties 1033
9. Procedure 1033
10. Limitation 1033
—Section 77 1033
—Section 78 1034
—Section 79 1035
—Section 80 1036
PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) ACT (25 of 1948) 1036
PREAMBLE 1036
†PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURT ... 1036
PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (9 of 1887) 1036
—Sections 3, 5 1036
—Section 15
1. Nature of suit 1036
2. Jurisdiction 1037
3. Suits of small cause nature 1038
4. Suits excepted from small cause jurisdiction 1040
—Section 16 1041
—Section 17
1. Scope and applicability 1042
2. Proviso—General 1042
3. Application to be made with deposit of or security for decree amount ... 1044
4. Direction of Court 1046
5. Liability of surety 1047
—Section 23 1047
—Section 24 1048
—Section 25
1. Scope 1049
2. Revision only in small cause suits ... 1052
3. "Decided", meaning of — Interlocutory order 1052
4. "According to law" 1053
5. Substantial justice 1053
6. Discretionary orders—Revision ... 1053
7. Ex parte decree 1054

PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, S. 25 (contd.) Pages
8. Error of procedure 1054
9. Interference on questions of fact ... 1054
10. Error of law 1056
11. Question of limitation 1056
12. Question of jurisdiction 1057
13. New pleas 1057
14. Powers of High Court 1057
15. Limitation for revision 1058
16. Forum of revision 1058
—Sections 27, 29, 32, 33 1058
—Section 35, Schedule II Articles 1, 2 ... 1059
—Schedule II, Articles 3, 4, 7 1060
—Schedule II, Article 8
1. Rent—Meaning of 1060
2. Suit for rent—Illustrative cases ... 1061
3. Suit not for rent—Illustrative cases ... 1061
4. Damages for use and occupation ... 1061
5. House rent 1061
6. "Court expressly invested with power" ... 1062
—Schedule II, Articles 11, 13, 15 1062
—Schedule II, Articles 19, 24, 29 1063
—Schedule II, Articles 30, 31 1054
—Schedule II, Articles 34, 35, 35 (i), 35 (ii) ... 1065
—Schedule II, Articles 36, 38, 41 1067
—Schedule II, Articles 43, 43-A, 44 ... 1068
✠PROVINCIAL TRANSPORT AUTHORITY 1068
✠PROVISIONAL ASSESSMENT ... 1068
PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES ACT (16 of 1931) 1068
—Section 4 1068
✠PROVISIONAL DECREE 1068
✠PROVISIONAL LIQUIDATOR 1058
✠PROVOCATION 1068
✠PUBLIC ANALYST 1068
✠PUBLICATION 1068
✠PUBLICATION OF BOOK 1068
✠PUBLICATION OF OBJECTIONABLE MATTER 1059
✠PUBLIC AUCTION 1069
✠PUBLIC AUTHORITY 1069
✠PUBLIC BODY 1069
✠PUBLIC CARRIER 1069
✠PUBLIC CHARITABLE PURPOSE ... 1069
✠PUBLIC CHARITY 1069
✠PUBLIC COMPANY 1069
PUBLIC DEBT ACT (18 of 1944) 1069
—Sections 2, 11, 19 1069
✠PUBLIC DEBTS 1070
✠PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ... 1070
PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT (7 of 1880) 1070
—Sections 43, 44 1070
✠PUBLIC DOCUMENT 1070
✠PUBLIC EXAMINATION OF PROMOTERS OF COMPANY. 1070
PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT (3 of 1867) ... 1070
—Section 1 1070
—Sections 2, 8 1071
—Section 4
1. Scope 1071
2. "Found in any such house" 1073
3. Illegal search—Effect on convictions ... 1073
4. Nature of offence 1073
5. Burden of proof 1073
6. Evidence 1073
7. Presumption under the section ... 1073
8. Validity of section 1074
—Section 5
1. Scope 1074
2. "Credible information" 1074
3. Procedure relating to search 1074
4. Search witnesses 1074
5. Delegation of authority to search ... 1074

PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT, S. 5 (contd.) Pages
6. Search warrant 1076
7. Warrant must state identity of place to be searched 1076
8. Seizure of money found on person ... 1076
9. Custom—Whether a defence 1077
10. Instruments of gaming 1077
11 Validity of section 1077
—Section 6
1. Presumption under section mandatory ... 1077
2. Presumption when can be raised ... 1077
3. Presumption is rebuttable 1078
4. Gaming 1078
5. Validity of section 1078
6. Conviction based on independent evidence 1078
7. Appeal and revision 1078
8. Cases under other similar Acts ... 1078
—Sections 8, 9, 10 1079
—Sections 12, 13 1080
—Sections 13-A, 16 1082
✠PUBLIC HEALTH 1082
✠PUBLIC HIGHWAY 1082
✠PUBLIC HOLIDAY 1082
✠PUBLIC INTEREST 1082
✠PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW ... 1082
✠PUBLIC NOTIFICATION 1032
✠PUBLIC NUISANCE 1082
✠PUBLIC OFFICE 1082
✠PUBLIC OFFICER 1082
✠PUBLIC PEACE 1082
✠PUBLIC PLACE 1082
✠PUBLIC POLICY 1082
✠PUBLIC PREMISES 1082
PUBLIC PREMISES (EVICTION OF UNAUTHORISED OCCUPANTS) ACT (1958) 1082
—Preamble, Section 1 1032
—Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 9 1083
—Section 10 1083
✠PUBLIC PROSECUTOR 1084
✠PUBLIC PURPOSE 1084
✠PUBEIC RECORDS 1084
✠PUBLIC RELIGIOUS TRUST 1084
✠PUBLIC RIGHT 1084
✠PUBLIC RIGHT, CUSTOM OR MATTERS OF GENERAL INTEREST, STATEMENT AS TO, ADMISSIBILITY OF ... 1084
PUBLIC SAFETY
—ASSAM MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT (5 of 1947) 1085
—Section 2 1085
—Section 3 1085
—Sections 4-B, 8-B 1086
—ASSAM MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (AUTONOMOUS DISTRICTS) ACT (16 of 1953) 1087
—Section 11 1087
—BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT (6 of 1930) 1087
—Preamble 1087
—Section 2 1087
—BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ORDINANCE (1 of 1947) ... 1033
—Sections 8, 11 1088
—BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW (INDUSTRIAL AREAS) (AMENDMENT) ACT (4 of 1942) 1088
—Section 4 1088
—BENGAL STATE PRISONERS REGULATION (3 of 1818) 1088
—BENGAL STATE PRISONERS REGULATION (ADAPTATION) ORDER (1947) ... 1089
—Preamble 1089

	Pages
PUBLIC SAFETY (contd.)
—BIHAR MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT, 1949 (3 of 1950)	1090
—Preamble, Sections 2, 5	1090
—Sections 8, 9, 12, 26	1091
—BIHAR MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (No 2) ORDINANCE (4 of 1949)	1092
—Sections 2, 4	1092
—Sections 6, 21, 23, 24	1094
—BIHAR MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (No. 2) (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (5 of 1949)	1094
—Preamble	1094
—BIHAR PREVENTIVE DETENTION ORDINANCE (2 of 1950)	1094
—Preamble	1094
—BOMBAY CONDITIONS OF DETENTION ORDER (1951)	1095
—Rules 12, 16	1095
—BOMBAY PUBLIC SECURITY MEASURES ACT (6 of 1947)	1095
—Section 2	1095
—Sections 9-A, 12	1097
—Section 13	1098
—C. P. AND BERAR GOONDAS ACT (10 of 1946)	1098
—Sections 2, 4, 4-A	1098
—C. P. AND BERAR MAINTENANCE AND RESTORATION OF ORDER AND COLLECTION OF FINES (INDEMNITY) ACT (2 of 1945)	1098
—Section 4	1093
—C. P. AND BERAR PUBLIC SAFETY ACT (62 of 1948)	1098
—Section 2	1098
—Section 14	1099
—Sections 16, 17, 29	1100
—COCHIN CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT (27 of 1124 M E)	1100
—Section 3	1100
—Sections 31, 33, 40	1101
—‡CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT (14 of 1908)	1101
—‡CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT (23 of 1932)	1101
—‡CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT (46 of 1952)	1101
—‡CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ORDINANCE (29 of 1943)	1101
—‡CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ORDINANCE (38 of 1944)	1101
—EAST PUNJAB PUBLIC SAFETY ACT (5 of 1949)	1101
—Section 3	1101
—Sections 4, 7, 20	1103
—Sections 24, 36	1104
—Sections 38, 43	1105
—HYDERABAD PUBLIC SAFETY AND PUBLIC INTEREST REGULATION (8 of 1358-F)	1105
—Section 2	1105
—HYDERABAD PUBLIC SAFETY AND PUBLIC INTEREST REGULATION (12 of 1358 Fasli)	1105
—Section 5	1105
PUBLIC SAFETY (contd.)
—HYERABAD PUBLIC SECURITY ACT (12 of 1348 Fasli)	1105
—Section 13	1105
—HYDERABAD SPECIAL TRIBUNALS REGULATION (5 of 1358 Fasli)	1105
—Sections 1, 2, 2-B, 3	1106
—Sections 4, 6	1107
—Section 7	1108
—HYDERABAD SPECIAL TRIBUNALS (TERMINATION) AND SPECIAL JUDGES (APPOINTMENT) REGULATION (10 of 1359 Fasli)	1108
—Sections 3, 4, 5	1108
—Section 8	1109
—HYDERABAD SPECIAL TRIBUNALS (VALIDATION OF PROCEEDINGS) REGULATION (1 of 1359 Fasli)	1109
—Section 3	1109
—INDORE PUBLIC SAFETY ORDER (1947)	1110
—JAMMU AND KASHMIR PREVENTIVE DETENTION ACT (4 of 2011 Samvat) (1954)	1110
—Sections 3, 4	1110
—Section 8	1111
—Sections 14, 19	1112
—JAMMU AND KASHMIR PUBLIC SECURITY ACT (15 of 2003 Samvat)	1112
—Section 3	1112
—Section 38-A	1113
—MADHYA BHARAT MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT (7 of 1947)	1113
—Section 3	1113
—Section 4	1114
—Sections 5, 7	1115
—Section 11	1116
—MADHYA BHARAT MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ORDINANCE (5 of 1948)	1116
—Section 3	1116
—MADHYA BHARAT PUBLIC SECURITY ACT (19 of 1953)	1117
—Sections 12, 13, 14, 15, 19, 21	1117
—MADHYA PRADESH PUBLIC SECURITY ACT (25 of 1959)	1117
—Section 3	1117
—Sections 12, 20	1119
—MADHYA PRADESH PUBLIC SECURITY MEASURES ACT (23 of 1950)	1119
—Section 11	1119
—Sections 12, 14, 15	1120
—MADRAS MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT (1 of 1947)	1120
—Sections 1, 2	1120
—Sections 2-A, 3	1123
—Sections 15, 16	1124
—MADRAS MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT (23 of 1949)	1124
—Preamble, Section 2	1124
—Sections 3, 4, 9, 19	1125
—MADRAS MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ORDINANCE (4 of 1949)	1125
—Sections 1, 4-A, 19	1125

Pages

PUBLIC SAFETY (contd.)

—MADRAS MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (REMOVAL OF DOUBTS AND AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (1 of 1949) ... 1126
—Sections 2, 3, 4 1126
—MYSORE PUBLIC SECURITY ACT (12 of 1948) 1126
—Section 3 1226
—Sections 4, 37 1127
—ORISSA MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT (4 of 1948) 1128
—Preamble, Section 2 1128
—Sections 3, 4, 13 1129
—ORISSA MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER ACT (10 of 1950) 1129
—Sections 2, 3, 22 1129
—ORISSA SECURITY PRISONERS (CONDITION OF DETENTION) ORDER (1950) 1130
—Clause 39 1130
—PATIALA STATE PUBLIC SAFETY ORDINANCE (11 of 2003 Samvat) ... 1130
—Section 3 1130
—PEPSU PUBLIC SAFETY ORDINANCE (7 of 2006 Samvat) 1130
—Section 48 1130
—PREVENTIVE DETENTION ACT (4 of 1950) 1130
—Preamble 1130
—Sections 1, 2 1131
—Section 3
1. Scope and applicability 1132
2. Constitutional validity 1134
3. Preventive detention 1135
4. Satisfaction of detaining authority ... 1135
5. Scope of enquiry 1138
6. Detention order 1138
7. Legality of order 1140
8. Past acts 1142
9. Prosecution or detention 1143
10. Order of detention against person already in jail 1145
11. Contents of order 1147
12. Correctness of order 1148
13. Mala fides—General 1148
14. Defence of India—Relation with foreign powers 1153
15. Security of State 1153
16. Public order 1154
17. Maintenance of supplies and services essential to community 1157
18. Arrangements for expulsion ... 1159
19. Foreigners Act 1159
20. Jurisdiction to pass orders 1160
21. "Forthwith" 1161
22. Report to State 1162
23. "Approval" 1162
24. Grounds for order—General... ... 1162
25 Power of Court. 1166
26. Miscellaneous 1173
—Sections 3A, 4, 5 1173
—Section 6 1174
—Section 7
1. Scope and applicability 1174
2. Communication of grounds 1175
3. "Authority making the order" ... 1176
4. "As soon as may be" 1176
5. "Grounds on which an order has been made" 1178

Pages

PUBLIC SAFETY — PREVENTIVE DETENTION ACT, S. 7 (contd.)

6. Vagueness of grounds—General ... 1179
7. Vagueness of grounds—Illustrations ... 1180
8. No vagueness of grounds—Illustrations ... 1181
9. Particulars whether should be given ... 1183
10. Sufficiency of grounds 1183
11. Supplementary grounds — When permissible — 1184
12. Some grounds vague and some clear — Effect 1185
13. Some grounds beyond the scope of the Act—Effect 1186
14. Past activities whether can be considered 1186
15. Representation by detenu 1186
16. Disclosure of facts—Sub-section (2) ... 1187
17. Powers of High Court 1187
18. Burden of proof 1190
19. Pleas permissible in the Court ... 1190
—Section 8 1191
—Section 9 1192
—Section 10
1. Scope and object 1193
2. Desires to be heard 1194
3. Report by Advisory Board 1194
4. Non-submission of report within ten weeks—Effect 1195
5. Detenu whether entitled to a copy of the report 1195
6. Writ petitions—Maintainability ... 1195
—Section 11
1. Scope and object 1196
2. Report to Government 1196
3. 'May confirm the detention order and continue the detention' 1196
4. Fixing the period of detention ... 1193
5. Order if to be communicated to the detenu 1199
6. Validity of the section 1199
7. Writ petition—Maintainability ... 1199
—Section 11-A 1199
—Section 12 1200
—Section 13 1202
—Section 14 1203
—PREVENTIVE DETENTION (AMENDMENT) ACT (4 of 1951) 1203
—Section 9 1203
—PREVENTIVE DETENTION (AMENDMENT) ACT (34 of 1952) 1204
—Section 3 1204
—PREVENTIVE DETENTION (EXTENSION OF DURATION) ORDER (1950) ... 1205
—Clauses 1, 2 1205
—PUNJAB COMMUNIST DETENUS RULES (1950) 1206
—Rules 40, 41 1206
—PUNJAB CRIMINAL LAW (AMENDMENT) ACT (30 of 1960) 1206
—Section 6 1206
—PUNJAB CRIMINAL LAW (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (2 of 1960) ... 1206
—Section 6 1206
—PUNJAB DETENUS RULES (1950) ... 1206
—PUNJAB DISTURBED AREAS ACT (1 of 1947) 1207
—Preamble 1207

Pages

PUBLIC SAFETY (contd.)
—PUNJAB PUBLIC SAFETY ACT (2 of 1947) 1207
—Preamble, Sections 3, 4, 10 1207
—Sections 9, 21, 37 1208
—PUNJAB SECURITY OF THE STATE ACT (12 of 1953) 1208
—Section 9 1208
—RAJASTHAN PUBLIC ORDINANCE (9 of 1948) 1209
—Sections 3, 43, 44 1209
—RAJASTHAN PUBLIC SECURITY ORDINANCE (26 of 1949) 1210
—Preamble, Sections 1, 3, 5, 33, 62 64, 69 ... 1210
—SAURASHTRA STATE PUBLIC SAFETY MEASURES ORDINANCE (9 of 1948) ... 1210
—Preamble 1210
—Section 6-A 1211
—SAURASHTRA STATE PUBLIC SAFETY MEASURES (THIRD AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (66 of 1949) 1211
—Sections 9, 10, 11 1211
—TRAVANCORE-COCHIN PUBLIC SAFETY MEASURES ACT (5 of 1950) 1212
—Preamble, Section 3 1212
—Sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 13 1213
—Sections 14, 15, 21, 22, 23 1214
—Sections 31, 71, 73 1215
—TRAVANCORE COCHIN PUBLIC SAFETY MEASURES ORDINANCE (5 of 1125 M E.) 1215
—Section 19 1215
—TRAVANCORE EMERGENCY POWERS ACT (1 of 1122 M.E.) 1215
—Section 29 1215
—Section 34 1216
—U. P. GOONDAS ACT (1 of 1932) ... 1216
—Sections 5, 6 1216
—U. P. MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (AMENDMENT AND PROCEEDINGS VALIDATION) ACT (11 of 1940) ... 1216
—Section 8 1216
—U. P. MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (PROCEEDINGS VALIDATION) ORDINANCE (2 of 1949) 1216
—Preamble, Section 3 1216
—U. P. MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER (TEMPORARY) ACT (4 of 1947) ... 1217
—Preamble, Sections 1, 3 1217
—Sections 4, 5, 11 1218
—U. P. PREVENTION OF CRIMES (SPECIAL POWERS) (TEMPORARY) ACT (1948) (5 of 1949) 1219
—Preamble, Section 3 1219
—Sections 4, 5, 12-A, 14 1220
—VINDHYA PRADESH CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT (SPECIAL COURTS) ORDINANCE (5 of 1949) 1220
—Section 5 1220
—WEST BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT ACT (6 of 1930) 1220
—Preamble 1220
—WEST-BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT (SPECIAL COURTS) ACT (21 of 1949) 1220
—Section 2 1220

Pages

PUBLIC SAFETY—W. B. CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT (SPECIAL COURTS) ACT (contd.)
—Section 4 1221
—Section 5 1224
—Sections 9, 12 1225
—Schedule, Item 3 1226
—Schedule, Item 8 1227
—WEST BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT (SPECIAL COURTS) (AMENDING) ACT (12 of 1952) 1227
—Sections 11, 12 1227
—WEST BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT (SPECIAL COURTS) (AMENDING) ACT (24 of 1960) 1228
—Section 2 1228
—WEST BENGAL SECURITY ACT (3 of 1948) 1228
—Preamble, Sections 6, 16, 18, 30 1228
—WEST BENGAL SECURITY ACT (19 of 1950) 1228
—Preamble, Sections 2, 6 1228
—Sections 11, 20, 21 1229
—Sections 22, 38, 40 1230
—WEST BENGAL SECURITY ORDINANCE (2 of 1949) 1230
—Section 11 1230
—Sections 22, 31 1231
—WEST BENGAL SECURITY (SECOND AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (14 of 1950) 1231
—Preamble 1231
—WEST BENGAL SPECIAL COURTS ACT (10 of 1950) 1231
—Section 5 1231
—WEST BENGAL TRIBUNALS OF CRIMINAL JURISDICTION ACT (14 of 1952) ... 1231
—Preamble, Section 2 1231
—Section 4 1232
—Sections 5, 8, 10, 12, Schedule ... 1233

———

✠PUBLIC SERVANT 1233
PUBLIC SERVANT (INQUIRIES) ACT (37 of 1850) 1234
—Preamble 1234
—Section 2
1. Applicability 1234
2. Enquiry—Nature, purpose and object of... 1235
3. Validity 1235
4. Applicability of Criminal P. C. ... 1236
5. Appointment—Meaning of 1236
6. Misbehaviour — Meaning of... ... 1237
7. Jurisdiction of Civil Court 1237
8. Suspension 1238
—Sections 3, 8, 11, 13, 15, 16 1238
—Sections 17, 19, 21, 22, 23 1238
✠PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ... 1240
PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION CONSULTATION REGULATION (1952) ... 1240
—Regulation 7, Annexure III, Clause 6 ... 1240
✠PUBLIC SERVICE VEHICLES ... 1240
✠PUBLIC TEMPLE 1240
✠PUBLIC THOROUGHFARE 1240
✠PUBLIC TRUST 1240
✠PUBLIC UTILITY SERVICE 1240
PUBLIC WAKFS (EXTENSION OF LIMITATION) ACT (29 of 1959) 1240
—Section 3 1240

Pages

✠PUBLIC WAY 1240
✠PUBLIC WORSHIP 1240
✠PUCCA ADITHIYA OR ARHATIA ... 1240
✠PUDUKOTTAI VILLAGE PANCHAYAT REGULATION (3 of 1925) 1240
✠PUERPERAL INSANITY 1241
✠PUNISHMENT 1241
✠PUNITIVE POLICE 1241
PUNJAB AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS ACT (5 of 1939) 1241
—Sections 2, 4, 9, 19, 23, 27, 28, 31 1241
PUNJAB AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS ACT (23 of 1961) 1241
—Preamble, Section 3 1241
—Sections 10, 13, 15, 43, 44, 47 1241
PUNJAB AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS (ELECTION TO MARKET COMMITTEES) RULES (1961) ... 1242
—Rules 8, 9 1242
PUNJAB AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS (CENTRAL) RULES (1962) ... 1242
—Rule 21 1242
—Rules 24, 25, 28 1243
PUNJAB AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS RULES (1940) 1243
—Rules 19-A, 31, 51 1243
PUNJAB AGRICULTURAL UNIVERSITY ACT (32 of 1961) 1243
—Section 6 1243
PUNJAB ALIENATION OF LAND ACT (CENTRAL ACT 13 of 1900) 1243
—Sections 2, 3-A, 4 1243
—Sections 5, 6, 14, 16, 21 1244
PUNJAB CAPITAL (DEVELOPMENT AND REGULATION) BUILDING RULES (1952) 1244
—Rules 2, 7, 117 1244
PUNJAB CINEMAS (REGULATION) ACT (11 of 1952) 1244
—Section 5 1244
PUNJAB CIVIL SERVICE (EXECUTIVE BRANCH) RULES (1930) 1244
—Preamble, Rule 5 1244
—Rules 17, 22, 23 1245
PUNJAB CIVIL MEDICAL SERVICES CLASS I (RECRUITMENT AND CONDITIONS OF SERVICE) RULES (1950) ... 1245
—Rules 13, 17 1245
PUNJAB CIVIL SERVICES (PUNISHMENT AND APPEAL) RULES (1952) 1245
—Rules 4, 7 1245
—Rules 9, 14 1246
PUNJAB CIVIL SERVICES RULES (1941) ... 1246
—Rules 1.4, 1.6, 1.8 1246
—Rules 2.2, 2.14, 3.26, 5, 5.28, 5.32, 7.5, 10 ... 1247
—Rule 14, Appendix 24 1248
PUNJAB CIVIL SERVICES RULES (1959) ... 1248
—Rules 1.6, 2.2, 3.13, 3.26 (d) 1248
—Rules 7.2, 7.5 1250
—Rules 8, 8.15, 8.19 1251
PUNJAB COAL CONTROL ORDER (1955) ... 1251
—Clauses 2, 9, 10 1251
PUNJAB COLONIZATION OF GOVERNMENT LANDS ACT (5 of 1912) 1252
—Sections 15, 19 1252
PUNJAB COMMODITIES PRICE MARKING AND DISPLAY ORDER (1962) 1252
—Clauses 3, 4, 6 1252
✠PUNJAB COMMUNIST DETENUS RULES (1950) 1252
✠PUNJAB CONSOLIDATION OF LAND PROCEEDINGS (VALIDATION) ACT (6 of 1957) 1252
PUNJAB CONTROL OF BRICKS SUPPLIES ORDER (1956) 1252
—Clause 4 1252
✠PUNJAB CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT (14 of 1955) 1252
✠PUNJAB CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT (25 of 1961) 1252
PUNJAB COURT OF WARDS ACT (2 of 1903) 1252
—Section 5 1252
—Sections 12, 13, 15, 17, 25, 48, Appendix, Clause 3 1253
PUNJAB COURTS ACT (6 of 1918) ... 1254
—Sections 3, 18, 20, 21 1254
—Sections 22, 24, 26, 30, 31, 33, 34, 37, 38, 39 ... 1255
—Sections 41, 44, 46-A, 70 1256
✠PUNJAB CRIMINAL LAW (AMENDMENT) ACT (30 of 1960) 1256
✠PUNJAB CRIMINAL LAW (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (2 of 1960) 1256
PUNJAB CUSTOM (POWER TO CONTEST) ACT (2 of 1920) 1256
—Sections 3, 6 1256
PUNJAB DAMAGED AREAS ACT (11 of 1947) 1257
—Section 3 1257
✠PUNJAB DEBTORS' PROTECTION ACT (2 of 1936) 1257
PUNJAB DEVELOPMENT OF DAMAGED AREAS ACT (10 of 1951) 1257
—Sections 1, 2, 4, 5 1257
—Sections 11, 12, 13 1258
PUNJAB DEVELOPMENT OF DAMAGED AREAS (VALIDATION) ACT (8 of 1963) ... 1258
—Section 2 1258
PUNJAB DISTILLERY RULES (1932) ... 1258
—Rules 9.36, 37 1258
PUNJAB DISTRICT BOARDS ACT (CENTRAL ACT 20 of 1883) 1258
—Section 5 1258
—Sections 10, 30 1259
—Sections 31, 56 1260
PUNJAB DISTRICT BOARDS (TAX VALIDATING) ACT (27 of 1955) 1260
—Section 2 1260
✠PUNJAB DISTURBED AREAS ACT (1 of 1947) 1260
PUNJAB EDUCATIONAL SERVICE (CLASS I) RULES (1931) 1260
—Rule 7 1260

Pages

PUNJAB EDUCATIONAL SERVICE (PROVINCIALISED CADRE) CLASS III, RULES (1961) 1260
—Rules 2, 3, 6 1260
PUNJAB EDUCATION CODE 1260
PUNJAB EMPLOYEES' STATE INSURANCE COURT RULES (1949) 1261
—Rule 17 1261
PUNJAB EMPLOYEES' STATE INSURANCE RULES (1951)... 1261
—Rule 17 1261
PUNJAB ENTERTAINMENTS DUTY ACT (16 of 1955)... 1261
—Sections 3, 12, 13, 15, 17, 20 1261
PUNJAB ENTERTAINMENTS DUTY RULES (1956) 1262
—Rules 17, 36 1262
PUNJAB ENTERTAINMENTS TAX (CINEMATOGRAPH SHOWS) ACT (8 of 19.4) ... 1262
—Section 6 1262
PUNJAB EXCISE ACT (1 of 1914) ... 1262
—Sections 1, 3 1262
—Sections 5, 6, 8 1263
—Sections 9, 14, 15-A, 16, 17, 18 1264
—Sections 21, 24, 25, 26 1265
—Sections 32, 34, 35 1266
—Sections 36, 39, 40, 44 1267
—Sections 50, 54, 58, 59 1268
—Sections 60, 61 1269
—Sections 68-A, 69-A, 80 1270
PUNJAB FINANCIAL RULES 1270
PUNJAB FORWARD CONTRACTS TAX ACT (7 of 1951) 1270
—Section 2 1270
PUNJAB GENERAL CLAUSES ACT (1 of 1898) 1270
—Section 2 1270
—Sections 3, 4, 6, 11, 12, 14, 19, 22 ... 1271
—Section 27 1272
✠PUNJAB GENERAL SALES TAX ACT (46 of 1948) 1272
✠PUNJAB GRAM PANCHAYAT ACT, 1952 (4 of 1953) 1272
✠PUNJAB GRAM PANCHAYATS (AMENDMENT) ACT (26 of 1960) 1272
✠PUNJAB GRAM PANCHYAT ELECTION RULES (1953) 1272
✠PUNJAB GRAM PANCHAYAT ELECTION RULES (1960) 1272
PUNJAB GRAM (REGULATION OF DISTRIBUTION) ORDER (1954) 1272
—Clause 3 1272
✠PUNJAB HIGH COURT RULES AND ORDERS 1272
✠PUNJAB HOLDINGS (CONSOLIDATION AND PREVENTION OF FRAGMENTATION) ACT (50 of 1948) 1272

Pages

✠PUNJAB INTOXICATING SPIRITUOUS PREPARATION, IMPORT, EXPORT, TRANSPORT, POSSESSION AND SALE RULES (1952) 1272
PUNJAB INSTRUMENTS (CONTROL OF NOISES) ACT (35 of 1956) 1272
—Section 3 1272
PUNJAB JAIL MANUAL 1272
—Paras 571, 572, 573, 574, 575 1272
PUNJAB KHANDSARI AND GUR DEALERS LICENSING ORDER (1963) 1273
PUNJAB LAND REVENUE ACT (CENTRAL ACT 17 of 1887) 1273
—Sections 3, 4, 9, 16, 28, 31 1273
—Sections 32, 34, 37, 42, 44 1274
—Sections 45, 48, 66, 67, 69 1275
—Sections 70, 97, 98, 111, 116, 117, 141, 155 ... 1276
—Section 158 1277
PUNJAB LAND REVENUE (SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS) ACT (6 of 1956) ... 1278
—Section 10 1278
PUNJAB LAND REVENUE (SPECIAL CHARGES) ACT (6 of 1958) 1278
—Section 3 1278
PUNJAB LAWS ACT (CENTRAL ACT) (4 of 1872) 1278
—Sections 2, 5, 6 1278
PUNJAB LAWS (EXTENSION NO. 2) ACT (7 of 1957) 1278
—Section 4 1278
PUNJAB LAWS (EXTENTION NO. 4) ACT (18 of 1958) 1278
—Section 6 1278
PUNJAB LIMITATION (CUSTOM) ACT (1 of 1920) 1278
—Preamble 1278
—Sections 6, 7, 8 1279
—Articles 1, 2, 3 1280
—Article 4 1281
PUNJAB LIQUOR LICENCE RULES (1956) 1281
—Rules 36, 36A, 36B 1281
✠PUNJAB LOCAL BODIES (VALIDATION OF CONTRACTS) ORDINANCE (1 of 1951) 1281
PUNJAB MAIZE AND MAIZE PRODUCTS PRICE CONTROL ORDER (1948) ... 1281
PUNJAB MANUFACTURED DRUGS RULES (1952) 1281
—Rules 27, 30 1281
PUNJAB MINIMUM WAGES RULES (1950) 1281
—Rules 9, 24, 25, 26-A 1281
✠PUNJAB MOTOR VEHICLES RULES (1940) 1281
PUNJAB MOTOR VEHICLES TAXATION ACT (4 of 1924) 1281
—Section 3 1281
—Section 8 1282
✠PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACCOUNT CODE 1282
✠PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT (3 of 1911) ... 1282
✠PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ELECTION RULES (1952) 1282

Pages

✠PUNJAB MUNICIPAL (EXECUTIVE OFFICER) ACT (2 of 1931) 1282

PUNJAB NEW CAPITAL (PERIPHERY) CONTROL ACT (1 of 1953) 1282

—Section 12 1282

✠PUNJAB OCCUPANCY TENANTS (VESTING OF PROPRIETARY RIGHTS) ACT, 1952 (8 of 1953) 1282

✠PUNJAB OCCUPANCY TENANTS (VESTING OF PROPRIETARY RIGHTS) (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (4 of 1958) 1282

PUNJAB OFFICIAL LANGUAGES ACT (28 of 1966) 1282

—Sections 3, 4 1282

PUNJAB OPIUM ORDERS (1956) ... 1282

—Orders 1, 59 1282

PUNJAB OPIUM ORDERS (1957) ... 1282

—Order 21 1282

PUNJAB OPIUM (RESTRICTION ON ORAL CONSUMPTION) RULES (1957) ... 1282

✠PUNJAB PANCHAYAT SAMITIS AND ZILLA PARISHADS ACT (3 of 1961) ... 1283

✠PUNJAB PANCHAYAT SAMITIS AND ZILLA PARISADS CHAIRMAN AND VICE-CHAIRMAN (ELECTIONS) RULES (1961) 1283

✠PUNJAB PANCHAYAT SAMITIS AND ZILLA PARISHADS (ELECTION) RULES 1961 1283

✠PUNJAB PANCHAYAT SAMITIS (PRIMARY MEMBERS) ELECTION RULES (1961) 1283

PUNJAB PARTITION (CONTRACTS) ORDER (1947) 1283

—Article 6 1283

PUNJAB PASSENGERS AND GOODS TAXATION ACT (16 of 1952) 1283

—Preamble, Section 3 1283

—Sections 4, 6, 8, 10, 15, 16, 17, 22 1284

PUNJAB PASSENGERS AND GOODS TAXATION RULES (1952) 1285

—Rules 21, 29 1285

PUNJAB POLICE RULES (1934) ... 1285

—Rules 10.70 (2), 13.18, 16.3, 16.4 1285

—Rules 16.17, 16.19, 16.23, 16.24, 16.39, 17.1, 26.2 1286

PUNJAB POLICE RULES (1959) ... 1286

—Rules 15.25, 16.38 1286

—Rules 23.4, 24.4, 24.5 1287

PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT (1 of 1913) ... 1287

—Preamble 1287

—Sections 3, 4 1288

—Section 5 1289

—Sections 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 1290

—Section 15

1. Scope and applicability 1291
2. Validity of the section 1291
3. Law before Amending Act (10 of 1960) ... 1292
4. Amending Act of 1960 — Effect on pending proceedings 1292

Pages

PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, S. 15 (contd.)

5. Sale by a co sharer — Pre-emption — Subs (1) (b) 1293
6. Sale by a female — Pre-emption — Subs. (2) (b) 1293
7. Right of pre-emption, when to subsist ... 1294
8. Consent to sale by minor's guardian — Effect of 1294
9. Parties to the suit 1294

—Section 16 1294

—Sections 17, 19 1295

—Sections 20, 21, 21-A, 22, 23 1296

—Sections 27, 28, 30 1297

—Section 31 1298

PUNJAB PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION RULES (1955) 1298

—Appendix B 1298

PUNJAB PROFESSIONS, TRADES, CALLINGS AND EMPLOYMENTS TAXATION ACT (7 of 1956) 1298

—Sections 2, 3 1298

—Section 5 1299

✠PUNJAB PUBLIC PREMISES AND LAND (EVICTION AND RENT RECOVERY) ACT (31 of 1959) 1299

✠PUNJAB PUBLIC SAFETY ACT (2 of 1947) 1299

PUNJAB PURE FOOD ACT (8 of 1929) ... 1299

—Sections 4, 11 1299

—Sections 13, 19, 22 1300

PUNJAB PURE FOOD RULES (1930) ... 1300

—Rule 3 1300

—Schedule, Item 3 1301

PUNJAB REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGES ACT (2 of 1913) 1301

—Sections 1, 4, 12, 13 1301

PUNJAB REGIONAL COMMITTEES ORDER (1957) 1301

—Sch. 3, Rule 171-A 1301

✠PUNJAB REGISTRATION OF MONEY LENDERS ACT (3 of 1938) 1301

✠PUNJAB RELIEF OF INDEBTEDNESS ACT (7 of 1954) 1301

PUNJAB RESTAURANT (CONSUMPTION OF LIQUOR) RULES (1955) 1301

—Rule 3 1301

✠PUNJAB RESTITUTION OF MORTGAGED LANDS ACT (4 of 1938) 1301

PUNJAB REQUISITIONING AND ACQUISITION OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY ACT (11 of 1953) 1302

—Sections 3, 8 1302

—Sections 11, 23, 25 1303

PUNJAB REQUISITIONING OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY (AMENDMENT AND VALIDATION) ACT (PRESIDENT'S ACT 2 of 1951) 1303

—Sections 3, 6 1303

Pages

PUNJAB REQUISITIONING OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY (AMENDMENT AND VALIDATION) ORDINANCE (CENTRAL ORDINANCE) (4 of 1951) 1304

PUNJAB REQUISITIONING OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY (TEMPORARY POWERS) ACT (17 of 1947) 1304

—Sections 1, 5, 8 1304

✠PUNJAB RESUMPTION OF JAGIRS ACT (39 of 1957) 1304

PUNJAB RULES OF BUSINESS... ... 1304

—Rule 8 1304

—Rule 28 1305

✠PUNJAB SECURITY OF LAND TENURES ACT (10 of 1953) 1305

✠PUNJAB SECURITY OF LAND TENURES SUPPLEMENTARY RULES (1956) ... 1305

PUNJAB SERVICES INTEGRATION RULES (1957) 1305

—Rule 16 1305

PUNJAB SHOPS AND COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS ACT (15 of 1958) ... 1305

—Section 2 1305

—Sections 3, 4, 7, 9, 11, 16, 18, 20 1306

—Sections 26, 30, 32, Form B 1307

(PUNJAB) SIKH GURDWARAS ACT (8 of 1925) 1307

—Sections 3, 5, 7 1307

—Sections 8, 10, 17, 18, 25-A, 29 1308

—Sections 31, 36, 37, 41, 52 1309

—Sections 64, 85, 89, 96, 142, 146, 148-B ... 1310

✠PUNJAB SMALL TOWNS ACT (2 of 1921) 1311

✠PUNJAB SMALL TOWNS APPOINTMENT, SUSPENSION AND DISMISSAL RULES (1925) 1311

✠PUNJAB SMALL TOWNS BUSINESS RULES (1924) 1311

PUNJAB SPECIAL POWERS (PRESS) ACT (38 of 1956) 1311

—Sections 2, 3 1311

PUNJAB STATE AID TO INDUSTRIES ACT (5 of 1935) 1312

—Sections 20, 35 1312

PUNJAB STATE LEGISLATURE (DELEGATION OF POWERS) ACT (CENTRAL ACT 46 of 1951) 1312

—Section 1 1312

PUNJAB SUPPRESSION OF IMMORAL TRAFFIC ACT (4 of 1935) 1312

—Section 5 1312

PUNJAB TAHSILDARI RULES (1932) ... 1312

—Rules 1, 7 1312

✠PUNJAB TENANCY ACT (16 of 1887) ... 1312

PUNJAB TEXTILES AND SUGAR (EXISTING STOCKS) PURCHASE TAX AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS ACT (8 of 1958) 1312

—Sections 6, 8, 14 1312

PUNJAB TOBACCO VEND FEES ACT (12 of 1954) 1312

—Section 1 1312

PUNJAB TOBACCO VEND FEES ACT (contd.)

Pages

—Section 4 1313

PUNJAB TOBACCO VEND FEES RULES (1955) 1313

—Rule 4 1313

✠PUNJAB TOWN IMPROVEMENT ACT (4 of 1922) 1313

PUNJAB TRADE EMPLOYEES ACT (10 of 1940) 1313

—Sections 2, 2-A, 2-B, 2-C, 7 1313

PUNJAB UNIVERSITY ACT (EAST PUNJAB ACT 7 of 1947) 1314

—Sections 1, 15, 20 1314

—Sections 24, 31 1315

—Section 33 1316

PUNJAB UNIVERSITY ACT (35 of 1961) ... 1316

—Regulation 7 1316

PUNJAB UNIVERSITY CALENDAR (1961) 1316

—Part I, Rule 10 1316

PUNJAB UNIVERSITY CALENDAR (1962) 1316

—Vol. I (1962), Regulations 12, 19, 21 : ... 1316

PUNJAB UNIVERSITY REGULATIONS ... 1317

—Regulations 6, 11, 12, 13, 18, 18-A, 23, 24 ... 1317

PUNJAB URBAN IMMOVABLE PROPERTY TAX ACT (17 of 1940)... 1317

—Section 1 1317

—Sections 2, 3, 4 1318

—Sections 5, 7 1319

—Sections 9, 10, 14, 16, 18, 24 1320

PUNJAB URBAN IMMOVABLE PROPERTY TAX RULES (1941) 1320

—Rules 4, 7, 18 1320

—Rule 20 1321

✠PUNJAB URBAN RENT RESTRICTION ACT (6 of 1947) 1321

✠PUNJAB VILLAGE COMMON LANDS (REGULATION) ACT (1 of 1954) ... 1321

✠PUNJAB VILLAGE COMMON LANDS (REGULATION) ACT (18 of 1961) ... 1321

✠PUNJAB VILLAGE PANCHAYAT RULES 1321

PUNJAB WEIGHTS AND MEASURES ACT (12 of 1941) 1321

—Sections 18, 28, 37 1321

PUNJAB WELFARE OFFICERS RECRUITMENT AND CONDITIONS OF SERVICE RULES (1952) 1321

—Rule 6 1321

PUNNYA RULES ALWAR (1931) ... 1321

—Clause 11 1321

✠PURCHASER 1321

✠PURDHA WOMEN 1321

✠(PURI) SHRI JAGANNATH TEMPLE (ADMINISTRATION) ACT (14 of 1953) ... 1321

✠PUROHIT OFFICE 1321

✠PUTRA PUTRADE 1321

✠PUTRAVAKASAM GIFT 1321

✠QUALIFICATION FOR BEING ELECTOR 1321

	Pages
✠QUALIFICATION FOR BEING LEGAL PRACTITIONER	1321
✠QUALIFICATION FOR ELECTION AS PRESIDENT	1322
✠QUALIFICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP OF PARLIAMENT	1322
✠QUALIFICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP OF STATE LEGISLATURE	1322
✠QUALIFIED MEDICAL PRACTITIONER ...	1322
✠QUALITY OF GOODS	1322
QUANOON HAQ SHAFA, GWALIOR ...	1322
—Section 3	1322
✠QUANOON MAL, GWALIOR (Smt. 1983) ...	1322
✠QUANOON MAL OF MEWAR (5 of 1947) ...	1322
✠QUANTUM MERUIT	1322
QUANUN-I-DIWANI OF PATIALA STATE (1874)	1322
—Chapter 3	1322
✠QUARRIES	1322
✠QUASHING PROCEEDINGS	1322
✠QUASI-CONTRACTS	1322
✠QUASI-CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS ...	1322
✠QUASI-EXECUTOR	1322
✠QUASI-JUDICIAL AUTHORITY ...	1322
✠QUASI-JUDICIAL ORDERS	1322
✠QUASI-JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS ...	1322
✠QUESTIONING BY PARTY HIS OWN WITNESS	1322
✠QUESTION OF FACT AND LAW ...	1322
✠QUESTION OF LAW	1322
✠QUESTION OF TITLE	1322
✠QUESTIONS, INDECENT AND SCANDALOUS, TO WITNESS, FORBIDDEN ...	1322
✠QUESTIONS INTENDED TO INSULT OR ANNOY WITNESS, FORBIDDEN ...	1322
✠QUESTIONS LAWFUL IN CROSS-EXAMINATION	1322
✠QUESTIONS, LEADING	1322
✠QUESTIONS, TENDING TO CORROBORATE EVIDENCE OF RELEVANT FACT	1322
✠QUESTIONS TESTING VERACITY OF WITNESS, ANSWER TO	1322
✠QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED OF WITNESS	1323
✠QUESTIONS TO BE DETERMINED BY EXECUTING COURT	1323
✠QUESTIONS TO JURY BY JUDGE ...	1323
✠QUESTIONS TO WITNESS	1323
✠QUESTIONS TO WITNESS TENDING TO CORROBORATE EVIDENCE OF RELEVANT FACT	1323
✠QUESTIONS WHICH WITNESS IS COMPELLED TO ANSWER	1323
✠QUORUM FOR COMPANY MEETING ...	1323
✠QUO WARRANTO	1323
✠RACES AND RACING	1323
✠RACING CLUB	1323
✠RAIGARH STATE WAJIB-UL-ARZ ...	1323
✠RAILWAY	1323
RAILWAY ACCIDENTS (COMPENSATION) RULES (1950)	1323
—Rules 2, 6, 11, Schedule, Part 2	1323
RAILWAY ADMINISTRATIVE RULES ...	1324
—Rules 39, 45	1324
RAILWAY BOARDS ACT (4 of 1905) ...	1324
—Section 2	1324
RAILWAY BOARDS CIRCULARS ...	1324
RAILWAY CODE OF ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT	1324
—Part 1, Rule 1023	1324
✠RAILWAY COMPANY	1324
RAILWAY ESTABLISHMENT CODE ...	1324
—Chapter 17	1324
—Rules 1, 5, 101-A, 105, 106, 134, 135 ...	1325
—Rules 143, 148	1326
—Rule 149	1329
—Rules 156, 157, 418, 509, 510	1330
—Rules 511, 742, 1314, 1336, 1503, 1701, 1702 ...	1331
—Rule 1704	1332
—Rules 1705, 1706	1333
—Rule 1707	1334
—Rule 1708	1335
—Rule 1709	1336
—Rules 1710, 1711, 1712	1337
—Rules 1713, 1717, 1721	1338
—Rules 1721-A, 1725, 1726, 1727, 1728 ...	1339
—Rules 1729, 2003, 2021, 2043, 2044 ...	1340
—Rule 2046	1341
—Rule 2202, Appendices II, II-A	1342
—Appendices X, XI-A, XIII	1343
—Appendices XIII, Part B, Rules 1, 3 ...	1343
—Appendices XX, XXIV	1343
—Appendices XXXI, XXXVII, XXXVIII ...	1344
—Schedule 2, Items 2, 3	1344
RAILWAY FUNDAMENTAL RULES ...	1344
—Rule 2044	1344
RAILWAY GENERAL RULES NO. 29 (1954)	1344
—Rule 10	1344
RAILWAY GOODS TARIFF GENERAL RULES	1345
—Rr. 15, 22, 29	1345
✠RAILWAY PROTECTION FORCE ...	1345
RAILWAY PROTECTION FORCE ACT (1957)	1345
—Sections 4, 5, 11, 12	1345
✠RAILWAY RECEIPT	1345
RAILWAY RULES REGULATING DISMISSAL OF SERVANTS	1345
RAILWAYS ACT (1890)	1345
—Section 3
1. Cl. (4) Railway.	1845
2. Cl. (6) Railway Administration ...	1846
3. Cl. (7) Railway Servant	1847
4. Cl. (14)—Terminals	1847
—Section 7	1347
—Section 13	1348

Pages

RAILWAYS ACT (contd.)
—Sections 27, 27A, 28
—Sections 29, 34, 39 1350
—Section 41
1. Implied repeal. 1350
2. Jurisdiction of Tribunal 1350
3. Reasonableness of charges 1351
4. Wagon load rate—Meaning of ... 1352
5. Bar of suit. 1352
—Sections 42, 45 1352
—Sections 46B, 46C 1353
—Section 47
1. Scope. 1353
2. Re-classification and revaluation of rates. 1353
3. Sub-section (1) (b). 1354
4. Sub-section (1) (e). 1354
5. Sub-section (1) (f). 1355
6. Sub-section (1) (g). 1356
7. Sub-section (2). 1358
8. Sub-section (3). 1357
—Sections 54, 55 1357
—Section 56 1359
—Section 57 1361
—Sections 58, 66, 67 ... ... 1 62
—Sections 68, 70 ... ... 13 3
—Section 72 (Old)
1. "Delivered to be carried." 1364
2. General liability of railways. ... 1365
3. General liability can be limited by contract. 1368
4. Risk Notes. 1368
5. Delay in delivery. 1376
5-A. Refusal to deliver. 1378
6. Misdelivery, Short delivery and non-delivery. 1378
7. Deviation from rank 1380
8. Theft. 1381
9. Theft from running train. 1381
10. Looting. 1383
11. Accident. 1383
12. Fire. 1384
13. Misconduct 1384
14. Proof of misconduct. 1386
15. Negligence. 1389
16. Proof of negligence. 1390
17. Wilful neglect. 1394
18. What ought to be proved by railway ... 1394
19. Proof of loss. 1394
20. Estoppel 1395
21. Rules. 1395
22. Notice. 1397
23. Who can sue. 1397
24. Who can be sued. 1401
25. Damages. 1402
26. Pleadings and procedure 1404
27. Limitation for suit 1404
—Sections 72A, (Old), 73 (New) 1404
—Sections 74 (Old), 74A (Old) 1405
—Section 74B (Old) 1406
—Section 74-C (Old)
1. Liability of Railway Administration. ... 1407

Pages

RAILWAYS ACT, S. 74-C (old) (contd.)
2. Negligence and misconduct. 1407
3. Evidence and proof. 1408
4. Burden of proof. 1409
5. Forwarding Note. 1410
6. Miscellaneous. 1410
—Section 74-D (Old)
1. Scope, object and applicability. ... 1411
2. Negligence and misconduct. ... 1411
3. Evidence and proof. 1412
4. Duty and liability of Railway Administration. 1412
—Section 74E (Old) 1413
—Section 75 (Old)
1. Scope, object and applicability ... 1414
2. Articles mentioned in the second Schedule. 1415
3. Parcel or package. 1416
4. Declaration of contents and value ... 1417
5. 'Loss' — Meaning of. 1418
6. Liability of railway for loss. ... 1418
7. Evidence and proof. 1419
8. Compensation for loss. 1419
—Section 75 (New) 1419
—Sections 76 (Old), 76B (New) 1420
—Section 77 (Old)
1. Scope and applicability. 1421
2. Notice under, if part of cause of action ... 1422
3. Combined notice under this section and Section 80, Civil P. C. (1908). ... 1422
4 Notice, when not necessary. ... 1424
5. "Loss, destruction or deterioration." ... 1424
6. Form and contents of notice. ... 1429
7. Claim for refund of overcharges. ... 1432
8. Through booked traffic—Notice to one of several railways. 1432
9. Notice to whom to be sent. 1435
10. "Six Months." 1438
11. Proof of notice 1440
12. Waiver of notice. 1440
13. Limitation for suit—Exclusion of period of notice 1440
—Ss. 77-C (New), 78 (Old) 1441
—Section 80
1. Scope. 1441
2. Suits. 1442
3. Liability of railways 1444
4. Non-delivery. 1445
5. Proof of loss or damage. 1446
6. Notice. 1447
—Ss. 82A, 82F, 82G 1448
—Ss. 82H, 82J, 84, 101 1449
—Ss. 109, 110, 112 1450
—S. 113 1451
—Ss. 118, 120 1452
—Ss. 121, 122 1453
—Ss. 134, 135 1454
—S. 137 1455
—Ss. 138, 140 1456
—Ss. 142, 145 1456
—S. 148, Sch. 2 1456

	Pages
RAILWAYS AND WORKS MANUAL ...	1458
—R. 638	1458
✠RAILWAY SERVANTS	1458
RAILWAY SERVANTS (DISCIPLINE AND APPEAL) RULES FOR NON-GAZETTED STAFF	1458
—Rule 1707	1458
✠RAILWAY SERVANTS ENDANGERING SAFETY OF PERSONS	1458
RAILWAY SERVANTS (HOURS OF EMPLOYMENT) RULES 1951	1458
—Rule 5	1458
RAILWAY SERVICES (SAFEGUARDING OF NATIONAL SECURITY) RULES (1949)	1458
—Rule 3	1458
—Rule 4	1459
—Rules 5, 7	1460
RAILWAY SERVICES (SAFEGUARDING OF NATIONAL SECURITY) RULES (1954)	1460
—Rule 3	1460
RAILWAYS GENERAL AND SUBSIDIARY RULES	1460
—Rules 52, 52-I	1460
RAILWAYS GOODS TARIFF (1950) ...	1460
—Chapter 8, Rule 6	1460
RAILWAYS LOCAL AUTHORITIES TAXATION ACT (1941)	1461
—Preamble, Sections 3, 4	1461
RAILWAYS RATES TRIBUNAL RULES ...	1461
—Rule 17	1461
RAILWAY REGULATIONS REGARDING DISCIPLINARY ACTION AGAINST SERVANTS	1462
—Regulation 11	1462
✠RAILWAY STORES	1462
RAILWAY STORES (UNLAWFUL POSSESSION) ACT (1955)	1462
—Sections 2, 3	1462
RAILWAY STORES (UNLAWFUL POSSESSION) ORDINANCE (1944)	1462
—Section 1	1462
✠RAILWAY WHARFAGE RULES ...	1463
✠RAIN WATER	1463
✠RAIYAT	1463
RAJASTHAN ABOLITION OF LAGATS ORDINANCE (1948)	1463
—Preamble, Sections 1, 2, 3, 4	1463
RAJASTHAN ADOPTION OF CENTRAL LAWS ORDINANCE (1950)	1464
—Sections 5, 7, 10	1464
RAJASTHAN ADMINISTRATION ORDINANCE (1948)	1464
—Sections 3, 17	1464
RAJASTHAN ADMINISTRATION ORDINANCE (1949)	1464
—Section 3	1464
RAJASTHAN ADMINISTRATION (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (1949)	1465
—Section 8	1465
RAJASTHAN (ADMINISTRATION OF EVACUEE PROPERTY) ORDINANCE (1953)	1465
—Sections 6, 7	1465
RAJASTHAN AGRICULTURAL INCOME-TAX ACT (1953)	1465
—Section 2	1465
—Sections 3, 4, 5, 6, 13, 22	1466
—Section 61	1467
RAJASTHAN AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS ACT (1961)	1467
—Section 1, 3, 4, 7, 14, 36, 37	1467
RAJASTHAN AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE MARKETS RULES (1963)	1468
RAJASTHAN AGRICULTURAL RENTS CONTROL ACT (1952)	1468
—Section 1	1468
RAJASTHAN APPEALS AND PETITIONS (DISCONTINUANCE) ORDINANCE (1949)	1468
—Sections 3, 4	1468
—Section 19	1469
RAJASTHAN APPEALS AND PETITIONS DISCONTINUANCE (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (1950)	1469
RAJASTHAN ARMED CONSTABULARY ACT (1950)...	1469
—Sections 6, 7	1469
RAJASTHAN BOARD OF REVENUE ORDINANCE (1949)	1470
—Sections 12, 13, 19	1470
✠RAJASTHAN BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CONTROL) ORDINANCE (1948) ...	1470
RAJASTHAN CASH JAGIRS ABOLITION ACT (1958)	1470
—Sections 2, 3	1470
RAJASTHAN CINEMAS REGULATION ACT (1952)	1470
—Section 5	1470
RAJASTHAN CINEMAS (REGULATION) RULES (1959)	1471
—Rule 3, 63, 74	1471
✠RAJASTHAN CITY MUNICIPAL APPEALS (REGULATION) ACT (1950) ...	1471
RAJASTHAN CIVIL COURTS (AMENDMENT, ACT (1956)	1471
—Section 21	1471
RAJASTHAN CIVIL COURTS LAWS EXTENSION ACT (1957)	1471
—Peamble, Section 3	1471
—Section 5	1472
RAJASTHAN CIVIL COURTS ORDINANCE (1949)	1472
—Section 17	1472
RAJASTHAN CIVIL COURTS ORDINANCE (1950)	1472
—Sections 5, 7, 21	1472
—Section 22	1473
—Sections 26, 27	1474

	Pages
RAJASTHAN CIVIL COURTS ORDINANCE (AMENDMENT) ACT (1951)	1474
—Section 2	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL COURTS (SECOND AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE (1957) ...	1474
—Section 21A	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ADAPTATION ORDINANCE (1950) ...	1474
—Section 14	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ADAPTATION ORDINANCE (AMENDMENT) ACT (1950)	1474
—Section 43	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (AMENDMENT) ACT (1951)	1474
—Section 29	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ORDINANCE (1948)	1474
—Section 4	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL SERVICE RULES (1951)	1474
—Rule 244	1474
RAJASTHAN CIVIL SERVICES (CLASSIFICATION, CONTROL AND APPEAL) RULES (1950)	1474
—Rule 14	1474
—Rules 15, 16	1475
—Schedule 2	1475
RAJASTHAN CIVIL SERVICES (CLASSIFICATION, CONTROL AND APPEAL) RULES (1958)	1476
—Rules 14, 16, 17, 30, 35	1476
RAJASTHAN CIVIL SERVICES (CLASSIFICATION, CONTROL AND APPEAL) RULES (1959)	1476
—Rule 14	1476
RAJASTHAN COLONISATION ACT (1954)	1477
—Sections 2, 7, 22	1477
✠RAJASTHAN CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT (1953)	1477
RAJASTHAN COTTON CLOTH AND YARN DEALERS LICENSING ORDER (1943) ...	1477
—Rules 3, 6	1477
RAJASTHAN COURT-FEES AND STAMP DUTY LAWS (EXTENSION) ACT (1958)	1477
—Section 8	1477
RAJASTHAN COURT-FEES ACT (ADAPTATION) ORDINANCE (1950) ...	1477
—Preamble	1477
RAJASTHAN COURT-FEES AND SUITS VALUATION ACT (1961)	1477
—Section 40	1477
RAJASTHAN COURT OF WARDS ACT (1951)	1477
—Sections 4, 8	1477
—Sections 9, 12, 17, 21, 53	1478
—Section 55	1478
✠RAJASTHAN COVENANT	1479
RAJASTHAN DISPLACED PERSONS (INSTITUTION OF SUITS) ORDINANCE (1949)	1479
—Section 3	1479
RAJASTHAN DISTRICT BOARDS ACT (1954)	1479
—Sections 5, 94, 263	1479
RAJASTHAN DRAMATIC PERFORMANCES AND ENTERTAINMENTS ORDINANCE (1949)	1479
—Section 2	1479
—Sections 4, 6, 8	1480
RAJASTHAN EDUCATION CODE (1957) ...	1480
—Chapter 8 Rule 3	1480
RAJASTHAN ENTERTAINMENT TAX ACT (1957)	1480
—Section 6A	1480
RAJASTHAN ESSENTIAL SUPPLIES (TEMPORARY POWERS) ORDINANCE (1949)	1480
—Preamble, Sections 6, 11	1480
—Sections 12, 20	1481
RAJASTHAN EXCISE ACT (1950) ...	1481
—Sections 1, 3, 10	1481
—Sections 44, 47, 54, 54A, 57	1482
—Sections 67, 71, 73	1483
RAJASTHAN EXCISE DUTIES ORDINANCE (1949)	1483
—Sections 5, 26, 28, 30	1483
RAJASTHAN FACTORIES RULES (1951) ...	1483
—Rule 4	1483
RAJASTHAN FINANCE ACT (1961) ...	1484
—Section 8	1484
RAJASTHAN FINANCE ACT (1962) ...	1484
—Section 9	1484
RAJASTHAN FOOD GRAINS CONTROL ORDER (1949)	1484
—Cls. 1, 4, 17, 25	1484
RAJASTHAN FOOD GRAINS (MOVEMENTS) CONTROL ORDER (1949) ...	1485
—Clause 5	1485
RAJASTHAN FOOD GRAINS (RABI) MONOPOLY PROCUREMENT ORDER (1952)	1485
—Clause 6	1485
RAJASTHAN FOOD GRAINS (RESTRICTION ON BORDER MOVEMENT) ORDER (1949)	1485
—Clauses 3, 4	1485
—Clause 5	1486
RAJASTHAN FOREST ACT (1953) ...	1486
—Section 35	1486
RAJASTHAN FOREST SERVICE RULES (1962)	1486
—Rule 7, Sch.	1486
RAJASTHAN (FORMER STATE) ORDINANCE (1949)	1486
—Preamble, Ss. 3, 14	1486
—Sections 23, 27, 32	1487
RAJASTHAN GOVERNMENT BUSINESS RULES (1955)	1487
—Rule 31	1487
RAJASTHAN GOVERNMENT SERVANTS' AND PENSIONERS' CONDUCT RULES ...	1487
—Rules 6, 23, 23-A	1487

Pages

RAJASTHAN GRAM AND BARLEY (REGULATION AND DISTRIBUTION) ORDER (1964) 1487
—Clause 1 1487

RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT CONDITIONS OF SERVICE OF STAFF RULES 1487
—Rule 10 1487

*RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT GENERAL RULES (CIVIL) (1952) 1487

*RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT GENERAL RULES (CRIMINAL) (1952) 1487

RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT JUDGES SALARIES ORDER (1951) 1487
—Clauses 2, 3 1487

RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT ORDINANCE (1948) 1487
—Section 1 1487

RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT ORDINANCE (1949) 1488
—Sections 17, 18 1488
—Sections 28, 30, 34, 40, 46, 49 1489

*RAJASTHAN HIGH COURT RULES (1952) 1490

RAJASTHAN HIGHER JUDICIAL SERVICE RULES, 1955
—Rules 1, 4, 10, 13, 22, 23, 24 1490

RAJASTHAN INDIAN MEDICINE ACT (5 of 1953), S. 36 1490

RAJASTHAN INDUSTRIAL TRIBUNAL (CONSTITUTION AND PROCEEDINGS) VALIDATING ACT (31 of 1959) ... 1490
—Section 2 1490

*RAJASTHAN JAGIRDARS (ABOLITION OF POWERS) ORDINANCE (27 of 1948) 1491

*RAJASTHAN JAGIRDARS' DEBT REDUCTION ACT (9 of 1957) 1491

RAJASTHAN JAGIR DECISIONS AND PROCEEDINGS (VALIDATION) ACT (18 of 1955)
—Sections 1, 3, 4, 37 1491

Pages

RAJASTHAN JAGIR DECISIONS AND PROCEEDINGS (VALIDATION) ORDINANCE 6 of 1955)
—Section 3 1491
—Section 4 1492

RAJASTHAN JAIL MANUAL, 1952
—Chapter 3 1492

RAJASTHAN LAND ACQUISITION ACT (24 of 1953)
—Sections 3, 4, 5-A, 6, 9 1492
—Sections 17, 18 1493
—Sections 30, 54 1494

*RAJASTHAN LAND REFORMS AND RESUMPTION OF JAGIRS ACT (6 of 1952) ... 1494

*RAJASTHAN LAND REFORMS AND RESUMPTION OF JAGIRS RULES (1954) ... 1494

*RAJASTHAN LAND REFORMS AND RESUMPTION OF JAGIRS RULES (1957) ... 1494

RAJASTHAN LAND REVENUE ACT (15 of 1956)
—Preamble 1494
—Sections 9, 21, 35, 83, 84, 91, 114, 184 ... 1494
—Sections 193, 230 1495

RAJASTHAN LAND REVENUE (ALLOTMENT OF LAND FOR AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES) RULES, 1957
—Rule 15 1495

RAJASTHAN LAWS (EXTENSION) ACT (27 of 1957)
—Section 7 1495

RAJASTHAN LIMITATION ACT (ADAPTATION) ORDINANCE (6 of 1950)
—Sections 1, 3 1495
—Sections 9, 11 1496

RAJASTHAN LIMITATION ORDINANCE (33 of 1948)
—Section 5 1496

THE
FIFTEEN YEARS' DIGEST
1951-1965

(CIVIL, CRIMINAL & REVENUE)

VOLUME 12

PENAL CODE (1860) — contd.

SECTION 53

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 53.)

1. Scope.
2. Minimum and maximum punishment.
3. Fine.
4. Fine in addition to imprisonment.
5. Imprisonment for life.
6. Punishment —Principles.

1. Scope.

● —S. 53 — Forfeiture provided in (Criminal Law Amendment Ordinance 38 of 1944) — Not penalty within meaning of Art. 20 (1). See Constitution of India, Art. 20 (1). 1963 (1) Cri L J 252 : A I R 1963 S C 255.

—S. 53—Scope—Section 408, Criminal P. C. confers on a person convicted, a right of appeal to the Court of Session. Section 414 contains an exception to the general rule. The exception contained in the latter section will not apply to the case of a person convicted in a summary trial of an offence where he is awarded both a sentence of fine and sentence of forfeiture of the cloth seized because the punishment awarded is of two different kinds and not a sentence of fine only within S. 414. In such a case an appeal could be brought by an application under S. 415 also because the sentence of fine has been combined with the sentence of forfeiture of property. 1954 Cri L J 1348 : AIR 1954 All 642 (642. 643) (Prs 3, 4, 5).

— S. 53—Youthful offender convicted of murder need not be sent to Reformatory School. See Reformatory Schools Act (1897), S. 4 (a). 1965 (1) Cri L J 704 : AIR 1965 Madh Pra 122 (DB).

—S. 53 — Constitution of India, Art. 14 — Equality — Meaning — Graded punishment offends rule of equality — Equality intended under Art. 14 is not to be judged by equality of sentence. Punishments, graded according to age, gravity of the offence in the context of fact and attending circumstances that lend colour to the perversity involved in the crime and other circumstances, do not offend the rule of quality that law assumes as to the members of society See Constitution of India. Art. 14. 52 Cri L J 700 : AIR 1951 Orissa 259 (DB).

2. Minimum and maximum punishment.

—S. 53—Conviction if must follow punishment — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32.

It is imperative that every conviction of an offence shall be followed by the prescribed punishment while in case no minimum is prescribed to reduce it to something nominal is completely within the discretion of the Court. A I R 1951 Orissa 284 (290) (Pt H) (Pr 28) (DB).

—S. 53—Punishment — Second offence under the Act;— Delay in disposal ot case — Good ground for awarding minimum sentence. See Prevention of Food Adulteration Act (1954), S. 16 (1) (g) (ii). 1963 (1) Cri L J 475 : AIR 1963 Punj 175 (DB).

3. Fine.

—S. 53 — Conviction without hearing evidence — Imposition of fine jointly and severally — Legality— The Magistrate cannot pass a sentence of fine payable jointly and severally. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1957 Cri L J 1426 : AIR 1957 Manipur 34.

4. Fine in addition to imprisonment.

—S, 53—Sentence of fine in addition to sentence of imprisonment—Propriety—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32).

Where long terms of imprisonment are given to convicts it is not desirable that in addition to imprisonment a sentence of fine should be passed upon them for the sentence of fine will be a burden upon the family of the convicts and not upon the convicts themselves. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 436 : 1953 Cri L J 1568 : AIR 1953 Assam 201 (202) (Pr 6) (DB).

—S. 53—Causing death by negligence — Sentence —Sentence is a matter of discretion and the limits cannot be fixed. The discretion is that of the trial Court—Ordinarily the High Court will not interfere with the exercise thereof, yet having regard to the circumstances of the case and the fact that the sentence must be such as to serve as a deterrent to others the High Court may if necessary impose a substantive sentence of imprisonment in addition to the sentence of fine imposed by the trial Court. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304-A. 1966 Cri L J 400 : 67 Bom L R 472 : 1965 Mah L J 668 : AIR 1966 Bom 122.

——S. 53—Fine when improper.

It is quite unnecessary to impose fines on persons who have been sentenced to death or to substantial terms of imprisonment. 1958 Andhra L T 200 : (1958) 1 Andh W R 441 : 1958 M L J (Cr) 388 : 1958 Cr L J 733 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 380 (383) (Pt B) (Pr 29) (DB).

5. Imprisonment for life.

——Ss. 53 and 53-A — Transportation for life and imprisonment for life.

Whatever justification there might have been for the contention that a person sentenced to transportation could not be legally made to undergo rigorous imprisonment in a jail in India except temporarily till he was so transported (S. 58), subsequent to the insertion of S 53-A in the Penal Code there is none. Under S. 53-A a person transported for life or any other term before the enactment of the said section would be treated as a person sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for life or for the said term. Gopal Vinayak Godse v. State of Maharashtra, 1961 S C D 255 : 1961 Mad W N 361 : (1962) 1 S C J 423 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 269 : (1961) 3 S C R 440 : 39 Mys L J 388 : 69 Bom L R 517 : (1961) 2 S C A 361 : 1961 (1) Cr L J 736 : AIR 1961 S C 600 (601, 602) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

● ——Ss. 53 and 57 — Duration of imprisonment for life—No definite period is fixed.

There is no provision of law whereunder a sentence for life imprisonment without any formal remission by appropriate Government, can be automatically treated as one for a definite period. Section 57 does not say that transportation for life shall be deemed to be transportation for twenty years for all purposes ; nor does the amended section which substitutes the words 'imprisonment for life' for 'transportation for life' enable the drawing of any such all-embracing fiction. A sentence of transportation for life or imprisonment for life must prima facie be treated as transportation or imprisonment for the whole of the remaining period of the convicted person's natural life. Gopal Vinayak Godse v. State of Maharashtra, 1961 S C D 255 : 1961 Mad W N 361 : (1962) 1 S C J 423 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 269 : (1961) 3 S C R 440 : 39 Mys L J 388 : 63 Bom L R 517 : (1961) 2 S C A 361; 1961 (1) Cr L J 736: AIR 1961 S C 600 (602) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

● ——S. 53 and S. 55—Criminal P. C. (1898). Ss. 401 and 402 — Sentence of imprisonment for life is for indefinite period — Government alone can remit sentence—Remissions earned by convict are of little help.

Before the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1955, a sentence of transportation for life could be undergone by a prisoner by way of rigorous imprisonment for life in a designated prison in India. After the said Act, such a convict shall be dealt with in the same manner as one sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for the same term (S. 53-A). Unless the sentence is remitted or commuted by appropriate authority under S. 55 or the Code of Criminal Procedure (S. 402), a prisoner sentenced to life imprisonment is bound in law to serve the life term in prison. The rules framed under the Prisons Act (e. g Bombay Rules 1419 (c) and 1447 (2)) enable such a prisoner to earn remissions — ordinary, special and State — and the said remissions will be given credit towards his term of imprisonment. As the sentence of transportation for life or its present equivalent, the life imprisonment, is one of indefinite duration, the remissions so earned do not in practice help such a convict as it is not possible to predicate the time of his death. That is why the rules provide for a procedure to enable the appropriate Government to remit the sentence under S. 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure on a consideration of the relevant factors, including the period of remissions earned. Gopal Vinayak Godse v. State of Maharashtra, 1961 S C D 255 : 1961 Mad W N 361 : (1962) 1 S C J 423 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 269 : (1961) 3 S C R 440 : 39 Mys L J 388 : 63 Bom L R 517 : (1961) 2 S C A 361 : 1961 (1) Cr L J 736 : A I R 1961 S C 600 (603, 604) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——S. 53—Imprisonment for life.

The Penal Code knows of no imprisonment for life. It provides for transportation for life. 52 Cri L J 257: AIR 1951 Kutch 27 (30) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

——Ss. 53 and 60 — Imprisonment for life — Court need not specify its nature — Means always rigorous imprisonment only.

'Imprisonment for life' in the I. P. Code means 'rigorous imprisonment for life' and it can never mean 'simple imprisonment for life'. There is therefore no necessity for the Court, when imposing the sentence of 'imprisonment for life' to specify that it should be rigorous : AIR 1957 Ker 102, Diss. from; AIR 1962 S C 605; AIR 1961 S C 998 and AIR 1959 S C 572, Rel. on. Under S. 53, 'Imprisonment for life' is a class of punishment different from imprisonment which is of two descriptions namely rigorous and simple. S. 60 refers only to the latter kind of imprisonment and therefore in terms it cannot be invoked in support of the argument that the Court when imposing 'imprisonment for life' should specify whether it is to be 'rigorous' or 'simple'. 'Imprisonment for life' in S. 53 was substituted for the word 'transportation' by S. 117 and schedule of Central Act, 26 of 1955. Prior to amendment, 'transportation for life' was construed to mean 'rigorous imprisonment for life' in AIR 1945 P C 64 and S. 60 was not applied in construing the meaning of 'transportation'. That section cannot be used in construing the meaning of 'imprisonment for life' even after the amendment.

The definition of 'imprisonment' given in S. 3 (27) and the provisions of S. 4 of the General Clauses Act cannot be applied to the Penal Code which is an enactment of an earlier date because the General Clauses Act itself has provided that the definition therein would apply only to Central Acts and Regulations made after the coming into force of that Act. 1964 (1) Cri L J 685 : AIR 1964 Orissa 149 (151) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

6. Punishment—Principles.

● ——S. 53—Measure of punishment — Principles as to, stated—Offence of blackmarketing—Fine imposed held excessive and reduced. See Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act (1946), S. 7. 1953 Cri L J 542 : AIR 1952 S C 14.

——S. 53—Object of awarding sentence is to provide a deterrent and is not to be vindictive. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32 ILR (1962) 1 All 451.

——S. 53—Object of awarding punishment—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32).

Punishment is awarded in order to achieve any or as many as possible of the four objectives namely, to serve as deterrent to be preventive to be reformative and to be retributive. Of these four the first is the all important one others being merely accessory. Punishment has to be before all things deterrent, for the chief end of the law of crime is to make the evil doer an example and a warning to all that are like-minded with him. Punishment is intended to prevent offences being committed by destroying the interests to which they owe their origin by making all deeds which are injurious also to the doers of them. Punishment must make the evil-doer feel that his act was an 'ill bargain' for him. 1959 All L J 540 : 1959 All W R (HC) 405 : 1959 All Cr R 321 : 1960 Cr L J 431 : I L R (1959) 2 All 591 : A I R 1960 All 190 (193) (Pt B) (Pr 20) (DB).

——S. 53 — Appropriate sentence — Subsequent notoriety of accused — Relevancy.

In order to judge the appropriateness of the sentence a Court cannot take into account the subsequent notoriety which the accused acquired. 1957 All L J 857 : 1958 Cri L J 324 : AIR 1958 All 214 (233) (Pt L) (Pr 83) (DB).

——S. 53—Punishment—Principles — Duty of Courts —Offence under U. P. Prevention of Cow-Slaughter Act—Sentence — Considerations—The law leaves the measure of punishment to the discretion of the Court. Nevertheless it insists that, the discretion be used judicially and not arbitrarily. This implies that it is bounden duty of the Court to apply its mind to the question and decide it after due consideration of all relevant circumstances. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32. 1958 Cri L J 316 : AIR 1958 All 198.

——Ss. 53, 420 and 511 —Railway Officer convicted under S. 420/511—Sentence of one year, if too severe —Object of punishment — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32.

The fact that the accused will lose his service is a relevant consideration in determining the sentence to be imposed but it is not the only one. Punishments are inflicted not to satisfy the desire for revenge in the human mind ; the State has no desire for revenge. One of the principal reasons for inflicting punishments is to deter others from repeating the crime. If corrupt railway officials could get off merely with a dismissal from service after making money by unlawful means, that would be no punishment at all and there would be no deterrent effect in the punishment. Hence, the sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment awarded to an Assistant Engineer of a railway for offence of cheating under S. 420/511, Penal Code, cannot be said to be too severe. AIR 1950 All 639 (643) (Pt G) (Pr 39).

——S. 53 — Sentence of imprisonment till the rising of Court—Legality—Proper procedure—The sentence of imprisonment till the rising of the Court is unknown to law. Such sentence is incapable of execution and does not therefore, amount to the suffering of imprisonment. If the Courts intend to give one day's imprisonment, it is their plain duty to issue a warrant to the jail to confine the accused. If the Court does not wish to send the person to jail it must all the same commit the person to be kept in confinement in some other place provided for the purpose. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1959 Cri L J 1141: AIR 1959 Andh Pra 530.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1962 S C 586.]

——S. 53— Punishment — Duty of Courts — Serious offence.

It is the infliction of lenient punishment that brings the administration of justice into contempt and sets a wrong standard before the public that they could commit serious offences and yet get away with them lightly. It is one thing if the Court does not believe the evidence let in for the prosecution in support of the charges and acquits the accused. But if the prosecution evidence is believed and an accused person is convicted of a serious crime, it is imperative to award an adequate and proper sentence commensurate with the gravity of the crime committed. 1958 Andh L T 856.

——S. 53 — Mitigating circumstances—Accused not previouly convicted—Trial dragging on for long time Amount involved trivial—Sentence of imprisonment reduced to imprisonment already suffered. AIR 1955 NUC (Him Pra) 1295.

——S. 53 — Sentence — Accused accosted by the deceased, when he had robbed a boy at point of knife—Inflicting of fatal injuries to the deceased—Offence committed without any premeditation — Apparent lack of motive—Extreme penalty altered to punishment of life imprisonment in view of the above circumstances. See Criminal Trial. ILR (1956) Hyd 914.

——S. 53 — Apportionment of sentence—Principles—Duty of Court — The apportionment of sentence in a case is left to the discretion of the trial Judge. Unless it is grossly inadequate or perverse, superior Courts are not to interfere. If a mitigating circumstance exists the sentence may be reduced accordingly but the reasons for the leniency should be stated so that the appellate or revisional Court can, by a perusal of the records adjudge the correctness or propriety of the order. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32. (1961) 1 Ker L R 184 : 1961 Ker L T 328.

——Ss. 53, 497 — Sentence — Law when offence is committed should be considered.

The sentence prescribed for the offence by the law in force when it was committed cannot be ignored, and must be taken into account in determining the sentence. Thus where an offence of adultery was committed at a time when the old Kutch Penal Code was in force and one year was the maximum punishment prescribed for the offence, a Court should not pass a sentence of nine months rigorous imprisonment which is almost the maximum punishment and is very severe, only because Indian Penal Code which has replaced the old Code, prescribed a higher punishment. A I R 1951 Kutch 17 (18) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——S. 53—Punishment — Criminal Trial—Sentence—Murder charge—Death caused by gun shot — Motive for firing—Accused suspecting deceased having illicit connection with his wife—Circumstance held enough to award lesser penalty — Death sentence commuted to transporation for life. 1956 M B L J (H C R) 343.

——S. 53 — Criminal Trial — Sentence — Offence under S. 304, IInd part—Sentence of 10 years rigorous imprisonment — Accused aged 18 to 20 years — Offence committed in the heat of temper arising during a family quarrel — Sentence reduced to 3 years rigorous imprisonment. 1956 MBLR (Cri) 301.

——S. 53—Punishment—Criminal trial—Murder case —Sentence — Sudden and unpremeditated fight between two groups, resulting in death of two persons —One of the deceased keeping the wife of one of the accused—Provocation to accused side—Trial Court awarding lesser of the two punishments prescribed in S. 302, Penal Code—No interference with the discretion exercised by trial Court in awarding the lesser punishment in the circumstances of the case. 1956 M B L R (Cri) 204.

——S. 53—Conviction—Punishment must be awarded — Detention as under-trial — Not a punishment—Refusal to punish on account of long detention as under-trial is illegal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 (2). 1962 (1) Cri L J 156 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 36.

——S. 53 — Enhancement of sentence — Deterrent punishment when called for—A dastardly attack was made on the Assistant Manager of a colliery by a labourer who happened to be an active member of the labour union for the reason that he did not get the post he wanted. The labourer was sentenced to 6 months' rigorous imprisonment. Held, that a deterrent punishment was called for in the case as unless such acts were put down no colliery could work, particularly as such attacks might too often be made in the pits when absolutely no evidence would be available the sentence was enhanced to one and a half years' rigorous imprisonment. See Criminal P.C. (1898), S. 439. 1954 Cri L J 306 : AIR 1954 Orissa 49 (DB).

——S. 53 - Proper sentence — Discretion of Court — Punjab Excise Act (1 of 1914), S. 61 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32).

What should be an adequate punishment within the maximum provided for an offence is primarily for the convicting Court to decide, but that discretion should exhibit that a reasonable proportion has been maintained between the seriousness of the crime and the punishment imposed. No hard and fast rule can be laid down. But Courts are expected to observe a desirable proportion between the gravity of the offence and the punishment for it.

(Held, that the facts that the accused was a refugee and that he had confessed his guilt were not, by themselves, extenuating circumstances and his sentence was enhanced). 1953 Cri L J 1261 : I L R (1953) Patiala 129 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 118 (119) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5).

● —— S. 53 — Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3 — Punishment — Measure of — The measure of punishment depends upon the facts and circumstances of each individual case. See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3. 51 Cri L J 1219: AIR 1950 Pepsu 9 (SB).

——S. 53 — Rajasthan Public Gambling Ordinance (1949), S. 4 — Sentence — Adequacy of — In case of first offence a sentence of fine is more suitable. See Rajasthan Public Gambling Ordinance (1949), S. 4. 1962 Raj L W 355.

——S. 53 — Legality of sentence — Power of High Court to examine after it is served — High Court has power to examine after it has become final when it is excessive on the face of it. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 264 (DB).

——S. 53 — Offences on highways — Sentence.

The quantum of the sentence must depend upon facts of each particular case. It is necessary that the highways are kept safe for passers-by and for that purpose, offences which are committed with a view to striking terror in the minds of people residing in the country-side must be punished with a heavy hand. 52 Cri L J 704 : AIR 1951 Sau 40 (41) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

SECTION 53-A

● ——Ss. 53-A, 55 and 57 — Transportation for life and imprisonment for life.

Whatever justification there might have been for the contention that a person sentenced to transportation could not be legally made to undergo rigorous imprisonment in a jail in India except temporarily till he was so transferred (S. 58), subsequent to insertion of S. 53A there is none. Under S. 53A a person transported for life or any other term before the enactment of the said section would be treated as a person sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for life or for the said term. Gopal Vinayak Godse v. State of Maharashtra, 39 Mys L J 388 : 63 Bom L R 517 : (1961) 2 S C A 361 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 736 : AIR 1961 S C 600.

——S. 53-A — Andhra Pradesh (Andh. Area) Children Act (4 of 1920), Ss. 3, 22, 24, 27 — Youthful offender — Effect of amendment in Penal Code — Young person cannot be sentenced to imprisonment for life — S. 24, applicability of — Section 27 held not desirable to be applied — Conviction under S. 302 maintained but sentence awarded under S. 24 of the Andhra Pradesh Children Act. See Andhra Pradesh (Andh Area) Children Act (4 of 1920), S. 3. 1964 (2) Cri L J 126 : AIR 1964 Andh Pra 350 (DB).

SECTION 55

● ——Ss. 55, 53 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 401 and 402 — Sentence of imprisonment for life is for indefinite period — Government alone can remit sentence — Remissions earned by convict are of little help. See Penal Code (1860), S. 53. 1961 (1) Cri L J 736 : AIR 1961 S C 600.

——S. 55 — Commutation of sentence of transportation can only be made by the Government and not by the Court. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2753.

SECTION 57

● ——Ss. 57, 53 — Duration of imprisonment for life — — No definite period is fixed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 53. 1961 (1) Cri L J 736 : AIR 1961 SC 600.

——S. 57 — Scope — Imprisonment for life.

Section 57 does not merely state that imprisonment for life shall be reckoned as imprisonment for 20 years. What it says is that it is for the purpose of calculating fractions of terms of punishment that such reckoning will have to be made. Instances of cases where fractions of terms of punishment have to be calculated are to be found in S. 116 and S. 511 of the Indian Penal Code. 37 Mys L J 202 : 1959 Mad L J (Cri) 397 : ILR 1959 Mys 115.

——S. 57 — Imprisonment for life in Rajasthan — Duration of — (Rajasthan Jail Manual, Chap. III).

Where the accused sentenced to R. I. for life, was placed in class I in accordance with the classification directed in Chapter III of the Rajasthan Jail Manual, the sentence of imprisonment for life is to be calculated as equivalent to 25 years. 1959 Raj L W 417 : I L R (1959) 9 Raj 689 : 1959 Cri L J 1365 : AIR 1959 Raj 273 (274) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 57 — Life imprisonment — Interpretation of — Power of High Court to release accused — The High Court with the jurisdiction under S 491 Criminal Penal Code, to examine a case already decided by the Highest Court of the Covenanting State to see if the sentence is illegal, can order release of an accused who has undergone a sentence of more than 20 years by taking into consideration the remissions granted to him along with the actual sentence served by him. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 5039 (DB).

——S. 57 — Jaipur Penal Code (1924), S. 49 — Life sentence — It means 20 years under Jaipur Penal Code — No analogy of S. 57, I. P. C. can be applied — Sentence for 25 years is illegal — Excess should be ignored. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 264 (DB).

SECTION 60

——S. 60 (as amended by Act 26 of 1955) — Murder — Sentence — Alternative punishment — Rigorous or simple can be awarded. See Penal Code (1860), (as amended by Act 26 of 1955), S. 302. 1957 Cri L J 852 : AIR 1957 Ker 102 (DB).

——Ss. 60, 63, 64 — Imprisonment — Fine — Imprisonment in default — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32 and 33.

If an offence is serious one short term imprisonment, i. e., anything less than three months, would be inadequate. If it is not serious, fine alone would be sufficient. The amount of fine should be within the means of the accused to pay though he must be made to feel the pinch of it. Imprisonment in default of fine should also be long enough to induce the accused to pay the fine rather than suffer the imprisonment. AIR 1950 Kutch 73 (74) (Pr 3).

—Ss. 60, 53 — Imprisonment for life—Court need not specify its nature—Means always rigorous impri sonment only. See Penal Code (1860), S. 53. 1964 (1) Cri L J 695 : AIR 1964 Orissa 149 (DB).

SECTION 63

——Ss. 63, 60, 64 — Imprisonment—Fine—Imprisonment in default—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32 and 33.

If an offence is serious one short-term imprisonment would be inadequate. If it is not serious, fine alone would be sufficient. The amount of fine should be within the means of the accused to pay though he must be made to feel the pinch of it. Imprisonment in default of fine should also be long enough to induce the accused to pay the fine rather than suffer the imprisonment. AIR 1950 Kutch 73 (74) (Pr 3).

SECTION 64

——S. 64 — Scope — Sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine cannot be made concurrent with substantive sentence of imprisonment. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3523.

——Ss. 64 and 69 — Sentence of imprisonment in default of fines—If can run concurrently—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 35 and 398 (2).

It is not competent for the Court to direct that sentences of imprisonment imposed for default in payment of fines should run concurrently. Such order, if passed is illegal; such direction can only be given in respect of substantive sentences of imprisonment or transportation and not to imprisonments in default of payment of fines. 1950 All L J 447 : 1950 All W R (HC) 479 : 1950 All Cri Cas 156 : AIR 1950 All 625 (625) (Pt A) (Pr 5)

——S. 64—Madras General Sales Tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 15 (b)—Order for payment of fine and in default, imprisonment — Legality — By virtue of S. 25 of the General Clauses Act, S. 64 of the Penal Code, would apply to the fines imposed under the Madras General Sales Tax Act — (General Clauses Act (1897), S. 25). See Sales Tax — Madras General Sales Tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 15 (b). 1958 Cri L J 1377 : AIR 1958 Andh Pra 707.

——Ss. 64, 65, 66 and 67, 40 to 42 — Offence under Calcutta Municipal Act punishable with fine only — Magistrate's jurisdiction to impose sentence of simple imprisonment in default of payment of fine—(Bengal General Clauses Act (1 of 1899), S. 26). (Obiter). See Penal Code (1860), S. 40. AIR 1953 Cal 41.

——S. 64—Applicability—The amount specified as due from a defaulter by way of fine, licence fees etc., in an order passed against him under S. 19, Travancore Cochin Act is outside the scope of S. 64. 1960 Cri L J 349 : AIR 1960 Ker 86.

—S. 64—Scope — Conviction and sentence of fine under Sales Tax Act — Accused further directed to pay arrears of tax or to suffer imprisonment — Legality.

Section 64 only enables the Court to direct that the offender sentenced to pay fine shall suffer imprisonment for a certain term in default of payment of the same. It is by virtue of this section that the Court awards a sentence of imprisonment if the fine is not paid, even though the penalty provided by S. 19 of the Travancore Cochin Act is only a fine and not imprisonment. The provision in S. 19 that the Court should specify the amount of arrears of tax does not mean that such amount automatically becomes transferred into a fine so as to attract the provisions of S. 64, Penal Code. 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 268 : 1959 Ker L T 403.

——Ss. 64, 60, 63—Imprisonment—Fine—Imprisonment in default — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32 and 33.

If an offence is serious one short term imprisonment would be inadequate. If it is not serious fine alone would be sufficient. The amount of fine should be within the means of the accused to pay though he must be made to feel the pinch of it. Imprisonment in default of fine should also be long enough to induce the accused to pay it rather than suffer the imprisonment. AIR 1950 Kutch 73 (74) (Pr 3).

——S. 64 — Sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine — Sentence would be in excess of other sentence of imprisonment — Two cannot run concurrently. 1964 M P L J (Notes) 215.

——S. 64—Power of Court—Person ordered to make payment in respect of two items — Appropriation of money tendered — Option — (Sales Tax — Madras General Sales-tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 15(b).)

If a person on conviction is ordered by a Court to make payments in respect of two items or matters, whatever the items or matters may be, then in the absence of any express provision in that regard the person, who is required to pay, has the option of saying that the money tendered by him should be appropriated to a particular item or matter most beneficial or at any rate least injurious to him and a Court has no jurisdiction to prevent him from making such an appropriation. A I R 1931 Sind 73, Rel. on.

Where, therefore, the accused who was convicted under S. 15(b), Madras General Sales-tax Act, was sentenced to pay fine and the amount of tax due from him was also specified with a direction for its recovery as if it were a fine and the accused paid a sum of money making it clear that the payment was in respect of the fine;

Held, that the accused was entitled to make the appropriation. 1955 Mad W N 344 : (1955) 6 S T C 712 : (1955) 2 Mad L J 425 : 1955 Cri L J 1362 : AIR 1955 Mad 599 (599) (Pr 2).

——S. 64 — Procedure and Powers — Sentence in default of payment of fine — Order to run concurrently with substantive sentence — Revision to High Court dismissed in limine — Reference to High Court —Power to correct illegality—High Court has power to correct illegality. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 438. 1958 Cri L J 80 : AIR 1958 Pat 35 (DB).

——S. 64—Rajasthan Municipalities Act (38 of 1959), Ss. 265(2), 170(11) — Conviction under S. 170(11) — Sentence to pay fine and in lieu of it, to serve simple imprisonment — Jurisdiction with respect to imposition of sentence of imprisonment—Rajasthan Municipalities Act prescribing special mode under S. 265(2) for realisation of fine—General law under Penal Code and Criminal P. C. held could not apply — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 33. See Municipalities — Rajasthan Municipalities Act (38 of 1959), S. 265(2). AIR 1966 Raj 238.

——Ss. 64 and 70 — Imprisonment in default of payment of fine—Accused is not liberated from payment of fine—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 35).

Imposition of sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine—Jurisdiction of trial Court is permissive—Imprisonment in default of payment of fine does not liberate accused from his liability to pay fine — Such imprisonment is imposed as punishment for non-payment — It does not serve as discharge of fine—Accused not having means to pay fine — It can be recovered from property acquired by him subsequently within period specified—It can be recovered even after his death. 1953 Ker L T 28 : 1953 Cri L J 1265 : I L R (1952) Trav-Co 1006 : A I R 1953 Trav-Co 233 (234) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Ss. 64 and 70—Imprisonment in default of payment of fine — Heavy fine where accused is unable to pay should not be imposed. 1953 Ker L T 28: 1953 Cri L J 1265 : I L R (1952) Trav Co 1006 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 233 (234) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 64 — Sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine — Substantive sentence of imprisonment for other offence — Both sentences to run concurrently — Order is illegal—S. 64, Penal Code, must be read with S. 35, Criminal P. C. — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 35). 1953 Ker L T 28 : ILR (1952) Trav-Co 1006 : 1953 Cri L J 1265 : A I R 1953 Trav-Co 233 (234) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

SECTION 65

——S. 65—Sentence of fine with alternative term of imprisonment — Alternative sentence exceeding the maximum limit prescribed — Mistake can be rectified under S. 561-A. Criminal P. C. 1960 Ker L T 356 : 1960 Ker L J 443 : 1960 Mad L J (Cri) 269 : (1960) 1 Ker L R 794 : 1960 Cri L J 1212 (1) : A I R 1960 Ker 285 (285) (Pr 1) (DB)

——S. 65 — Suggestion that the accused may have been possibly drunk, without any evidence in its support, cannot affect the nature of the crime. 1962 Raj L W 434 : I L R (1962) 12 Raj 481.

SECTION 67

● ——S. 67—Sentence of fine or in default imprisonment – Validity.

Even though S. 65 of the Bihar Waqfs Act does not provide for any imprisonment in default of payment of fine the sentence of imprisonment in default is valid under S. 33 of the Criminal P. C. read with Ss. 40 and 67 of the Penal Code. 1957 Cri L J 1023 : AIR 1957 S C 645.

——S. 67—It is true that there is no specific provision in the Bengal Municipal Act by which a sentence of imprisonment in default of fine may be imposed— But the Bengal Act is a local Act and S. 26 of the Bengal General Clauses Act attracts the provisions of S. 67 of the Penal Code and S. 26 read along with Ss. 67 and 42 of the Penal Code make the position plain that a Court is entitled to pass a defaulting sentence of simple imprisonment in a case under the Bengal Municipal Act. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 500. (1958) 62 Cal W N 812.

——S 67—Conviction under S. 46, Hazaribagh District Board Bye-Laws — Sentence of fine — Rigorous imprisonment in lieu of is illegal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 40. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 108.

——S. 67 — Bihar Prevention of Food Adulteration Act (5 of 1948), Ss. 9 (2) (e) and 27 — Contravention of S. 9 (2) (e)—Sentence in default of fine.

Under the Bihar Act first offences of contravention of s. 9 (2) (e) of that Act can be punished with a sentence of fine only. Hence in view of S. 67 of Penal Code only simple imprisonment can be ordered for the default of payment of fine imposed in cases of first offences under S. 9 (2) (e) of the Bihar Act. 51 Cri L J 1136 : AIR 1950 Pat 301 (Pt D).

SECTION 69

——Ss. 69 and 64 — Sentences of imprisonment in default of fines—If can run concurrently— Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 35 and 398 (2).

It is not competent for the Court to direct that sentences of imprisonment imposed for default in payment of fines should run concurrently such order is illegal ; such direction can only be given in respect of substantive sentence of imprisonment or transportation and not to imprisonments in default of fines. 1950 All L J 447 : 1950 All W R (HC) 479 : 1950 All Cri Cas 156 : A I R 1950 All 625 (625) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

SECTION 70

● ——S 70—Applicability—S. 70 applies to recovery of fine imposed by Panchayati Adalat under U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947.

In the U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 there is no provision prescribing a period of limitation or providing for the non-applicability of S. 70 of the Penal Code to sentences of fine passed by the Panchayat Adalats. As a matter of fact S. 94 of the Act provides that if there is difficulty in the recovery of a fine the Sub-divisional Magistrate shall recover it as if it was a fine imposed by himself which supports the contention of the accused that the period of limitation as provided in S 70 of the Penal Code is not made inapplicable to convictions by Panchayati Adalats. Hence, it cannot be held that the period of limitation provided by S. 70 of the Penal Code for recovery of fine is inapplicable to the recovery of fines imposed by Panchayati Adalats. Palakdhari Singh v. State of U. P., 1962 All L J 551 : 1962 All W R (HC) 470 : 1962 All Cr R 279 : (1962) 2 Ker L R 548 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 256 : (1965) 2 S C J 201 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 522: 1962 S C D 673: 1962 Supp (2) S C R 650 : ILR (1962) 2 All 651 : AIR 1962 S C 1145 (1146) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

● ——S. 70—Limitation for recovery of fine — Starting point of limitation.

The language of S. 70 prescribes the terminus a quo to be the date of 'passing of the sentence' by Court which passes such order. The filing of appeal or revision does not, unless specifically ordered arrest the operation of the order of passing of the sentence of conviction. Hence the limitation starts from the date of conviction by the trial Court and not from the date of dismissal of Revision by the High Court. Palakdhari Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (1965) 2 S C J 201 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 522 : 1962 S C D 673 : 1962 Supp (2) S C R 650 : I L R (1962) 2 All 651 : 1962 All L J 551 : 1962 All W R (HC) 470 : 1962 All Cri R 279 : (1962) Ker L R 548 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 256 : A I R 1962 S C 1145 (1146) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——S. 70—Applicability — Conviction and sentence by Court Martial—Order of sentence sent to Judicial Magistrate for recovery of fine — Recovery of fine will be governed by period of limitation prescribed in S. 70 — Scope and object of Ss. 69 and 174. Army Act.

There is nothing in S. 69 of the Army Act which relates to the recovery of the fine awarded by a Court Martial. All that S. 69 provides is to empower the Court Martial to take cognizance of and try civil offences as if they were offences under the Act.

Section which speaks about realisation of fine awarded by a Court Martial is S. 174 of the Army Act. That section creates a fiction that when a copy of the sentence of fine awarded by Court Martial is sent to any Magistrate in India, he gets jurisdiction to recover the amount of fine as if the sentence of fine awarded by the Court Martial is a sentence imposed by the Magistrate himself Thus the powers of the Magistrate to recover the fine awarded by the Court Martial are co-extensive with the powers of the Magistrate to realise the fine imposed by him. Therefore the powers of the Magistrate to realise the fine are subject to the limitations imposed by S. 70 of Penal Code. 64 Bom L R 440 : 1962 Nag LJ 515 : I L R (1962) Bom 523 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 152 : A I R 1963 Bom 21 (23) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 70 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 386 — Levy of fine — Procedure to be followed is as provided in

S. 386, Criminal P. C.—Word "levy"- Interpretation of — It means "to enforce execution" and not "to realise."

Section 70 or any other provision of the Penal Code does not prescribe the procedure by which the fine imposed has to be levied. The section only speaks of the period of limitation within which the fine imposed has to be levied. The procedure relating to the realisation of fine is provided in S. 386, Criminal P.C. and the rules framed thereunder.

The Legislature in using the expression "levy" in S. 70 did not prescribe an outside limit within which the entire process, commencing from attachment of the property and ending with conversion thereof in cash by sale has to be completed. To hold so may result in tempting convicts to resort to questionable methods for preventing sale of their attached properties by protracting the proceedings.

It is true that the expression 'levy' in Ss.68 and 69 has been used in the sense 'realise'. But then the subject-matter of those sections is totally different than the subject-matter of S. 70. The meaning of the expression 'levy' in S. 70 is to seize for the purposes of collecting the fine or to enforce an execution for a certain sum. A I R 1943 Pesh 56 and A I R 1941 Bom 158, Disting. 64 Bom L R 440 : 1962 Nag L J 515 : I L R (1962) Bom 523 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 152 : A I R 1963 Bom 21 (23 to 25) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 8, 9) (DB).

——S. 70 — Process for recovery of fine against property of deceased — Person in possession resisting process on ground that property did not belong to deceased — Claim rejected — His remedy is not by way of revision but by a civil suit against Government.

Where a process for recovery of a fine is issued under S. 70, against property belonging to the deceased, the person in possession of the property may show that the property did not belong to the deceased person but if his claim is rejected by the Court issuing the process, his remedy is not by way of revision but by a civil suit against the Government for declaration that no right belonging to the deceased person exists in the property. 51 Cri L J 643 : AIR 1950 Kutch 20 (20) (Pr 4).

——S. 70—Applicability—Offender having undergone imprisonment in default of payment of fine—Warrant for recovery of fine issued while offender undergoing sentence — Execution—Warrant cannot be executed unless special reasons are shown. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 386 (1) (b). 1964 (1) Cri L J 418 : A I R 1964 Mys 64.

——S. 70 — Ancestral land left by deceased convict governed by customary law — If liable in hands of reversioners for fine imposed on him.

The ancestral landed property left by a deceased convict governed by customary law is not liable in the hands of his reversioners in respect of the amount of fine imposed upon the deceased convict.

It follows that if on realisation of the fine the ancestral property of the convict is put to sale what is transferred to the Government or rather to the purchaser through the Government, are the personal rights of the convict in the property and nothing which he could not have assigned away. 4 Punj Re 1913 (FB) and 18 Punj Re 1908 (FB), Rel. on. I L R (1955) Pepsu 688 : 1955 Cr L J 1625 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 170 (171) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 70, 64 — Imprisonment in default of payment of fine—Accused is not liberated from payment of fine —(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 35) See Penal Code (1860), S. 64. 1953 Cri L J 1265 : A I R 1953 Trav-Co 233 (DB).

——Ss. 70, 64—Imprisonment in default of payment of fine —Heavy fine where accused is unable to pay should not be imposed. See Penal Code (1860). S. 64. 1953 Cri L J 1265 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 233 (DB).

SECTION 71

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 71.)

1. Scope.
2. Offence made up of parts— Para. (1).
3. Offence falling under two or more separate definitions—Para. (2).
4. Several acts when combined constituting different offence—Para. (3).
5. Cases where separate sentences can be passed.

1. Scope.

——S. 71—Disappearance of evidence in respect of two offences committed by same act—There are two offences under S. 201 by same act — S. 71 does not apply. See Penal Code (1860), S. 201. 1965 (2) Cr L J 426 : AIR 1965 S C 1413.

——S. 71—Accused charged under Ss. 457 and 380 —Offences under Ss. 457 and 380 do not fall under S. 71—Conviction under both sections not illegal. Udai Bhan v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1962 S C D 527 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 209 : 1962 Supp (2) S C R 830 : 1962 Mad W N 419 : (1963) 1 S C J 454 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 251 : 1962 All Cri R 291 : 1962 All W R (HC) 512 ; I L R (1962) 2 All 522 : (1952) 2 Andh L T 502 : AIR 1962 S C 1116 (1118) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——S. 71—Applicability and scope.

Section 71, I. P. Code is not applicable to a case where the charge is only under one offence. It also does not restrict the extent of punishment to the lower limit provided for either of the two offences. It merely protects an accused against the multiplicity of punishment and if his act falls within two or more separate definitions of any law in force, it limits the punishment to the maximum term which could be awarded to him for any single offence. S. 71, I. P. Code is not a bar to punishing a public servant under S. 409, I. P. Code, to more than seven years, on the ground that for such conduct which could lead to a charge both under S. 409, I. P. Code, and under S. 5 (1) (c) of Act (2 of 1947). the offender will be punished within the lower limit provided for either of the two offences. 1953 All L J 534; AIR 1954 All 80; 1954 Cr L J 96, Overruled. Om Prakash v. State; 1955 All L J 224 : 1955 Cri L J 754 : A I R 1955 All 275 (283) (Pt D) (Pr 35) (FB).

——S. 71—Scope—S. 71 provides that where anything which is an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being by which offences are defined or punished, the offender shall not be punished with a more severe punishment than the Court which tries him could award for any one of such offences. For such conduct which could lead to a charge both under S. 409, I. P. Code and under S. 5 (1) (c) of Act 2 of 1947 the offender will be punished within the lower limit provided for either of the two offences. 1954 Cri L J 96 : AIR 1954 All 80 (80, 81) (Pr 8) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1955 All 275 (FB).]

——S. 71—Scope.

Section 71 prohibits punishment for and not conviction under two offences—Sentences made to run concurrently—There is no double punishment. 1953 All W R (H C) 389 : 1953 Cr L J 1729 . AIR 1953 All 749 (750) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

——S. 71 — Scope —Separate sentences—No mention whether sentences were concurrent or consecutive— Sentences are consecutive — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 35). 1953 Cr L J 1222 : AIR 1953 All 510 (511) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——S. 71 — Conviction for more offences than one—Punishment—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 35.

If a Court convicts a person under two offences, it cannot refuse to pass a sentence under either of them It may be obliged to pass one sentence, but that sentence must cover both the offences of which he has been convicted: AIR 1950 All 436, Dissent 1950 All L J 444 : 1950 All W R (HC) 466 : 1950 All Cri Cas 148 : AIR 1950 All 610 (610) (Pt B) (Pr 1).

——S. 71—Scope of—Section does not apply where act constituting offence falls under two or more enactments—Such case is governed by S. 26 of General Clauses Act (1897). (1965) 6 Guj L R 226 : I L R (1965) Guj 201.

——S. 71 — Trivendrum City Municipal Act (4 of 1116 M. E.), S. 295 (1)—Filing of separate cases for omission to take license for each of articles—S. 71, Penal Code is not contravened—There is no ground for consolidation of several cases See Municipalities —Trivendrum City Municipal Act (4 of 1116 M. E.), S. 295 (1). AIR 1955 NUC (Trav Co) 1913.

2. Offence made up of parts—Para (1).

■ ——S. 71—Distinct offence—Meaning of—Offences to be distinct must not be inter-related—Contract to supply wood to Government—Money obtained from Government on various bills at different times in pursuance of conspiracy entered into between various accused — Held single charge under S. 420, Penal Code, did not contravene S. 233 as object of conspiracy was not to obtain diverse amount but to obtain entire contract money from Government. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1963 (2) Cri L J 529 : AIR 1963 S C 1620.

——Ss. 71, 34, 304, 460 — Charges and conviction under Ss. 460 and 304 — Charge and conviction of accused under S. 460, I. P. Code for lurking house-breaking by night along with others and voluntarily causing death —Separate conviction of accused under S. 304, Part II read with S. 34 cannot stand — Criminal P. C (1898), S. 235. 52 Cri L J 390 (1) : AIR 1951 Assam 60 (DB).

——S. 71—Opium Act (1 of 1878), S. 9 (a) and (c)—Accused importing opium by carrying it himself — Conviction for two separate offences, one under S. 9 (a) for possession and other under S. 9 (c) for importing, and imposing two separate sentences are not justified—(Evidence in fact not establishing offence under S. 9 (c) but only under S. 9 (a)—Conviction under S. 9 (a) upheld and that under S. 9 (c) set aside) —Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235. See Opium Act (1 of 1878), S 9 (a) and (c). 51 Cri L J 240 : AIR 1950 Assam 5 (DB).

——S. 71 — Bombay Prohibition Act (25 of 1949), S. 85 (1). Cls. (1) and (2) — Offence under—Proof of drinking of prohibited liquor not necessary—Separate sentences.

Where two offences arise out of the same incident it would be proper to impose only one sentence. Separate sentences are not required — (Criminal P. C. (1898). S 35). 1956 Cri L J 584 : AIR 1956 Bom 279 (279, 280) (Prs 2, 4) (DB).

——S. 71, Illus. (a)—Several blows struck — One or more proving fatal— Charge under S. 304 and under S. 323 is not legal—Separate charge under S. 323 is uncalled for. See Criminal P. C. 1898), S. 235. 1959 Cri L J 1331 : AIR 1959 Ker 372 (DB).

——S. 71—Scope — Offences under S. 9 (a) and (b), Opium Act—Single sentence— Offences under S. 9 (a) and (b), Opium Act are such that the offence of transporting opium would involve the offence of possessing the same —S. 71, Part I applies and single sentence cannot be objected to. 1955 Cri L J 815 : AIR 1955 Madh Bha 80.

——S. 71 — Scope — Punishment for offence—Additional punishment for the acts constituting the offence—Legality.

When an unlawful act is committed and certain consequences follow from it in the usual course and the person concerned is punished in respect of such consequences he cannot be punished over again, that is to say, additionally for the act which produced those consequences. 67 Mad L W 893 : (1954) 2 M L J 765 : 1954 Mad W N 747 : 1955 Cri L J 1267: A I R 1955 Mad 548 (549) (Pr 3).

—— S. 71 — Scope — Act punishable under S. 121, Motor Vehicles Act — As a result of the Act, accused convicted under S. 304-A, I. P. Code, for rash and negligent act—He cannot be punished again under S. 121, Motor Vehicles Act. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 35. 1955 Cri L J 1267 : AIR 1955 Mad 548.

——Ss. 71, 143 and 447 — Unlawful assembly — Common object to commit trespass — Criminal trespass committed — Conviction under Ss. 143 and 447 both—Not illegal.

There is nothing wrong in convicting and sentencing a person separately under Ss. 143 and 447, Penal Code. Paragraph 1 of S. 71 deals with a case where there are several parts to an offence, of which any of the parts may itself amount to an offence. But the offences under Ss. 143 and 447, Penal Code are not of that category.

Criminal trespass committed by the members of the unlawful assembly cannot be said to be a part of the offence of being a member of the unlawful assembly. Criminal trespass need not have been committed actually to constitute an offence under S. 143, even though the common object of the assembly may have been to commit criminal trespass. Hence S. 71 would not enter into the picture at all. 8 Cal W N 305, Disting ; A I R 1925 Cal 1015 and 54 Cal W N (2 D R) 311 and A I R 1939 Sind 76, Relied on. 1961 (1) Cri L J 618 : A I R 1962 Manipur 23 (23, 24) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6).

——S. 71 — Accused convicted under S. 332, Penal Code read with S. 149 — A further conviction under S. 323 read with S. 140 becomes unnecessary. 1962 (2) Cri L J 147 (Manipur).

——S. 71—Conviction for robbery and theft on same facts—Legality.

Robbery is an aggravated form of theft. When the accused are convicted of an offence of robbery in respect of the articles removed from the house of a person they cannot also be convicted of an offence punishable under S. 380 of the Penal Code for having committed theft of them. 36 Mys L J 278 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 341 : I L R (1957) Mys 177 : 1958 Cri L J 1489 : A I R 1958 Mys 150 (183) (Pt O) (Pr 41) (DB).

——Ss. 71, 279 and 338 — Conviction for offences under Ss. 279 and 338—Proper sentence — Separate sentence for each offence not invalid.

When two distinct offences are committed sentences passed under both offences cannot be said to be illegal. But the measure of punishment would be as is laid down under S. 71. Thus where an accused is convicted under S. 279 and S. 338, Penal Code and is sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for one month on each count and a fine of Rs. 500 on both counts, the sentences passed cannot be said to be contrary to the provisions of S. 71. However, looking to the circumstances of the case that both the offences were committed in the same transaction, it would be proper that both the sentences are allowed to run concurrently and the fine is reduced to Rs. 125 under each count. 1961 Raj L W 404.

——Ss. 71, 201 and 302 — Conviction and punishment under S. 201 and S. 302 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 35, 236).

There is no legal bar to a person being convicted both of murder and of the offence under S. 201 and the proper course for the trial Court in a case where the evidence warrants it will be to enter a conviction for both the offences but not to award any sentence for the accessory offence. 29 Coch L R 120, Affirmed; A I R 1953 S C 131, Rel. on. 1953 Ker L T 403 : 1953 Cri L J 1613 : I L R (1953) Trav Co 514 : A I R 1953 Trav-Co 402 (407) (Pt D) (Pr 28) (DB).

——S. 71—Sentence—Accused sentenced under S. 302 for causing death of a pregnant woman — Even if a separate conviction under S 316 is not objectionable, separate punishment therefor offends S 71. See Penal Code (1860), S. 316. 1953 Cri L J 1551 : A I R 1953 Trav-Co 374.

3. Offence falling under two or more separate definitions—Para. (2).

——S. 71 — Scope of — Offences punishable under Ss. 147 and 323/149, Penal Code.

If the case is governed by the first paragraph of the section, sentence can be awarded in respect of one offence only. But if the case falls under paragraph 2 or 3 of the section, sentences may be awarded in respect of both offences, but the aggregate of such sentences should not be more than what could be awarded under any one of the two offences. Where what is proved against the accused persons is that they were members of an unlawful assembly of which the common object was to give a beating to another person and it is not proved that they themselves caused hurt to any one, their act constitutes two separate offences, viz. those punishable under Ss. 147 and 323/149. Therefore, their case falls under paragraph 2 of S. 71. Consequently sentences can be awarded to them under both sections provided the aggregate sentence does not exceed the limit which is prescribed in respect of one of them. 14 A L J R 738, Rel. on ; 16 Cal 442. Dissent. 1951 R D (H C) 267 : 1951 All W R (H C) 597 : A I R 1952 All 92 (93) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

●——Ss. 71, 279, 337, 338—Offence under S. 279 and Ss. 337 and 338 are distinct — Conviction and sentences — Madh B L R 1952 (Cri) 302 : Madh B L J 1952 H C R 459, Overruled—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233).

Offences under Ss. 279 and 337 committed in same transaction — Offences are distinct and so conviction for both offences is legal but assessment of punishment will be governed by S. 71. 1956 Cri L J 624 : A I R 1956 Madh Bha 141 (FB).

——S. 71 — Crossing of trains at railway station—Omission to discharge personal responsibility cast on Assistant Station Master by rules — Act directly contributing to train collision — Conviction under S. 101 and S. 304-A, Penal Code held proper — Single sentence passed for both offences — Particular offence for which sentence was passed not indicated—Lower Courts' order modified. See Railways Act (1890), S. 101. I L R (1962) Cut 60.

——S. 71, Paras. (2) and (3) — Accused found guilty under Ss. 201 and 435 — Offences arising out of one set of facts—Removal of evidence of murder primary object—Mischief by fire only incidental — Limit of punishment—Sentence of 7 years under each section, ordered to run consecutively, held illegal.

The accused were prosecuted under S. 201 and S. 435. They were sentenced to 7 years (maximum substantive sentence provided) under each of those sections and the sentences were ordered to run consecutively. From the circumstantial evidence it was clear that the same set of facts gave rise to two distinct offences. The primary object of the appellants was to remove the evidence of murder. Mischief by fire was only incidental.

Held, that the offences committed in the case fell within the second or the third paragraph of S. 71. That being so, the accused could not be inflicted with a more severe punishment than could be awarded for any one of such offences Hence the substantive sentences imposed under Ss. 201 and 435 must be modified to run concurrently. A I R 1958 S C 935, Rel. on. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 41 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 81 : 40 Mys L J 504 : I L R (1961) Mys 524 : A I R 1962 Mys 138 (139) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

4. Several acts when combined constituting different offence — Para. (3).

——S. 71 — Scope and effect — Bombay Prohibition Act, Ss. 65 (b), 65 (f) and 66 (b)—Convictions under—Sentence—Separate sentences—Legality of.

Although separate sentences can legally be passed at the same trial, so long as aggregated punishment awarded does not exceed the maximum which can be inflicted for any of one of those offences, ordinarily one sentence alone should be passed. Paras. 1 and 3 of S. 71 will apply. A I R 1951 Bom 244 (DB).

5. Cases where separate sentences can be passed.

●——S. 71 — Opium Act (1878), Ss. 9 (a), 9 (b) — Conviction under both — Separate sentence for each offence—Maximum limit—Criminal P.C. (1898), S. 35.

The maximum sentence which could have been imposed for any of those offences is one year, the sentence of 3 months imprisonment imposed under each count does not contravene S. 71. 1958 Cri L J 1432 : A I R 1958 S C 935.

●——S. 71 — Separate convictions under S. 147 and S. 323, read with S. 149 — Separate sentences — Legality—Scope of S. 71, Indian Penal Code.

Per Malik C. J. and Mukerji J.: (Desai J. Dissenting) where an unlawful assembly has used force or violence, it becomes guilty of rioting under S. 146 and can be convicted and punished under S. 147, I. P. C. If however as a result of the use of that force or violence simple hurt is caused every member of the unlawful assembly can also be convicted and sentenced under S. 323 read with S. 149, I. P. C. Where, therefore, the accused are charged with an offence under S. 147 and an offence under S. 323 read with S. 149, provided the offences are proved, the accused can be convicted under both the sections 147 and 323/149 and also can be separately sentenced under the two sections. 1955 Cri L J 671 : A I R 1955 All 232 (FB).

——Ss. 71, 147, 149 and 325—Scope—Separate sentence—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 35).

An accused can be punished separately for the offences of Ss. 147 and 323, or 324 or 325 or 326, Penal Code, read with S. 149, Penal Code.

Applicability and scope of S. 71 fully discussed. 1953 Cri L J 1222 : A I R 1953 All 510 (515, 520) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 23).

——Ss 71, 147, 149—Sentence—Separate sentences—Legality.

The imposition of two separate sentences, one for rioting and the other for substantive offence read with S. 149, Penal Code, is illegal as it offends the provisions of S. 71 of the Penal Code. 1958 Andh L T 109.

——S. 71—Separate sentences.

When facts in a given case constitute an offence falling either under one section or another and charges are framed against the accused for both the offences, separate sentences are not permissible as it falls under S. 71. AIR 1955 N U C (Andh Pra) 6009.

——Ss. 71, 147, 143, 149, 325 — Separate convictions and sentences — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 35, 235).

Where several acts committed by an unlawful assembly of five persons, when combined, constituted two different offences, one under S. 147 and another under S. 325/149, Penal Code and they were convicted therefore, the offenders were not under S. 71, Penal Code, liable to be punished with the punishment for more than one of such offences, for, the accused cannot be punished twice for the same acts 8 All 121; 16 Cal 442 (FB), Foll; 7 All 29; 9 All 645; 17 Bom 260 (FB), Disting. 1955 Cri L J 1033 : A I R 1955 Bhopal 9 (14) (Pt E) (Prs 19, 20, 22).

——S. 71 — Companies Act (1913), Ss. 76 and 133 — Ss. 76 and 133 create two distinct offences — The former offence may give rise to the latter offence or even independently of it — Hence there is no case of the accused being prosecuted twice for the same offence and put in double jeopardy. 1953 Cri L J 1062 : AIR 1953 Mad 558.

——Ss. 71, 395, 342 — Offence of wrongful confinement in course of dacoity — Offences are distinct — S. 71 not applicable — Separate sentences must be imposed — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 258 (2), 309 (2). 1962 (1) Cri L J 168 : A I R 1962 Manipur 7 (10) (Pt C) (Pr 19).

——S. 71—Member of unlawful assembly—Constructive liability—Separate sentence.

Where a member of an unlawful assembly or of an assembly guilty of rioting incurs constructive liability for a distinct offence committed by one of the members of the assembly, it will not be proper to pass separate sentences for rioting and for the offence for which constructive liability was incurred by the accused. If, on the other hand, it is not a case of constructive liability but is a case where a person has been convicted of rioting and also of a distinct offence committed by him there can be separate convictions under S. 149, Penal Code, and the distinct offence committed by the accused concerned and separate sentence also can be passed. Case Law discussed. 1952 Cri L J 1592 : 1952 Ker L T 704 : ILR (1952) Trav Co 133 : A I R 1952 Trav-Co 459 (463) (Pt F) (Pr 15) (DB).

SECTION 75

——S. 75—Applicability:— Previous convict — Minimum imprisonment.

There is no minimum imprisonment prescribed for a previous convict. A previous convict can be given imprisonment for a term of one year or even less. Section 75 applies only when a person is sought to be punished with imprisonment exceeding the maximum imprisonment provided for the offence. 1956 All L J 611 : 1956 All W R (HC) 735 : 1957 Cri L J 275.

——S. 75—Previous conviction—Particulars of, when to be stated.

Facts about the previous conviction have to be mentioned in the charge only when it is intended to punish the accused with imprisonment exceeding the maximum punishment provided for the offence by invoking the provisions of S. 75. If a Magistrate does not wish to use the powers under S. 75 the particulars of the previous conviction need not be given in the charge. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221 (7). 1957 Cri L J 275 (All).

——S. 75 — Burden of proof—Previous conviction — Onus.

It is for the accused to prove that he was not a previous convict and deserved to be treated as first offender. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221 (7). 1957 Cri L J 275 (All).

——S. 75—Scope — Enhanced punishment for every subsequent offence—Imposition of—Punishment for prior offence need not be for three years or upwards.

The accused was charge-sheeted under S. 379, Penal Code, for theft and also under S. 75, Penal Code (for enhanced punishment) by reason of a previous conviction and sentence of 9 months' imprisonment suffered by him under Ss. 457 and 380, Penal Code. The Magistrate without framing a charge under S. 75, convicted the accused only under S. 379, on the ground that the previous conviction had resulted only in a sentence of 9 months' imprisonment but not three years 'the minimum that is required for enhancement of punishment . . . . . under S. 75, Penal Code, relying on the decision in (1950) A L T 851 :

Held, what S. 75, Penal Code, contemplates is that; where a person who has been previously convicted of an offence punishable under Chap. XII or Chap. XVII with imprisonment of either description for a term of three years or upwards, is once again found guilty of a similar offence, he shall be liable to enhanced punishment which may extend to imprisonment for life or to imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years. Section 75 is concerned with a previous conviction for a similar offence but it does not postulate that in respect of the previous conviction, the punishment imposed should have been one of not less than three years. All that it posits is that, the previous conviction should have been in respect of an offence punishable with a term of imprisonment not that the offender should have been actually punished with such a term of imprisonment. AIR 1960 Andh Pra 490, Disapproved. 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 566 : (1963) 2 Andh L T 449 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 508 : (1963) 2 Andh W R 361: ILR (1964) Andh Pra 1292.

——S. 75—Applicability—Sentence awarded under previous conviction for two months only—Effect.

When it is required that the accused should be severely dealt with because of previous conviction, there must be a specific charge under S. 75, Penal Code. However where the previous sentence awarded is only two months, the previous conviction cannot be proved against him or any evidence allowed to be adduced thereof, even where he is charged under S. 75, unless the Court comes to the conclusion that the offence with which he has been charged has been proved. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221 (7). 1960 Cri L J 1302 : A I R 1960 Andh Pra 490.

——S. 75 — Duty of Court — Committal — It is not obligatory to commit accused to Sessions in all cases under S. 75, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 348. 1955 Cri L J 1235 : AIR 1955 Andhra 190.

——S. 75—Enhanced sentence—Previous conviction —If enhanced sentence must be awarded.

The principle of S. 75 is that if the previous sentence borne by the accused had no effect on him, a more severe sentence should be awarded. But it does not follow as a rigid and inflexible rule that in all cases of previous convictions, an enhanced sentence should be awarded. It is good as a rule of thumb but the circumstances of each case should be taken into account in inflicting punishment. It is certainly open to a Magistrate to award a sentence less than that given on a previous occasion if the circumstances of the case warrant it. AIR 1935 Mad 231, Rel. on. 1955 Andh W R 265 : 1955 Andh L T (Cri) 107 : 1955 Cri L J 1235 : AIR 1955 Andhra 190 (192) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——S. 75—Judgment—Previous convictions—List to be appended — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 348).

Clearly the number of previous convictions is a circumstance to be taken into consideration in determining the sentence. Moreover, the Criminal Rules of Practice require that Magistrates and Judges should append to their judgments a list of previous convictions. It is therefore essential that Magistrates and Judges set out in a tabular form all the previous convictions at the end of the judgment. AIR 1943 Mad 418, Approved. 1955 Andh L T (Cri) 107 : 1955 Andh W R 265 : 1955 Cri L J 1235 : AIR 1955 Andhra 190 (192) (Pt C) (Pr 12).

——S. 75 — Procedure — Charge under, when to be framed — Incorrect proceeding not prejudicing accused—(Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 221 (7) and 255-A).

It is not correct to say that additional charge under S. 75, Penal Code, should be framed after recording conviction of the accused — The additional charge under S. 75, I. P. Code, has to be framed with the main charge — This is clear from the provisions of Ss. 221 (7) read with S. 255-A, Cr. P. Code — What is required is that evidence in proof of previous conviction be led only after a judgmant recording conviction is pronounced — Where the trial Court heard evidence after he concluded that the accused was guilty it is an incorrect procedure.

Defect in procedure held did not, however, prejudice the accused. AIR 1944 Lah 25 (FB), Ref. 1953 Cri L J 96 : AIR 1953 Kutch 1 (2) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——S. 75—Charge—Necessity—Charge under S. 447—Previous conviction not under Chaps. 12 and 17 of Penal Code but under Sections of Kutch Penal Code corresponding to Ss. 323 and 186, I. P. Code — Additional charge under S. 75, held improper when it was not intended to exceed limits of punishment. 1953 Cri L J 95 : AIR 1955 Kutch 1 (2) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——S. 75 — Object and scope — Previous conviction can be taken into account in determining sentence, even though additional charge under S. 75 could not be framed — Considerations when such conviction should be taken into account stated. AIR 1929 Mad 306; AIR 1928 Rang 200, Rel. on. 1953 Cri L J 96 : AIR 1953 Kutch 1 (2) (Pt E) (Pr 7).

——S. 75—Proof of previous conviction—Questioning accused under S. 342. Cr, P. C.—Propriety—(Cr. P. C. (1898), Ss. 342 and 511).

A Magistrate is not justified in questioning the accused under S. 342, Cr. P. C., about the previous conviction when there was no evidence against him on that point. S 511, Cr. P. C., is quite explicit and clear on the point and says that for the purpose of S. 75, I. P. Code, a previous conviction must be proved in accordance with law. 1956 Madh B L J 434 : 1957 Cri L J 448 (Madh B).

——S. 75—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 348—Scope.

S. 348, Cr. P. C. has been enacted in order to aid the requirements of S. 75, I. P. C. The object really is that an old offender should be tried by a person who could inflict such adequate punishment as the circumstances of the case may demand. 1957 Cri L J 1403 (1) : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 213 (Pt E).

——S. 75 — Previous convictions are not relevant except in cases where the application of S. 75, I. P. C. is sought by the prosecution. See Criminal P. C. (1898). S. 221 (7). AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 932.

——S. 75—It is improper for the Magistrate to question the accused about his previous conviction when examining him under S. 342, Cr. P. Code. Proper procedure stated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 342. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 1114.

——S. 75 — Evidence of previous conviction — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 1).

Search slip cannot be said to be judicial evidence of the previous convictions. 1953 Cri L J 1431 : AIR 1953 Punj 217 (218) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——S. 75 — Proof of previous conviction—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 342).

Proof of previous convictions must be given in the proper manner required by the Evidence Act before the provisions of S. 75 of I. P. Code can be invoked. When the accused has not been proved to have been a habitual offender, S. 75 cannot be applied merely on an admission made under S. 342, Cr. P. C. by the accused when there is no proof of his previous conviction. 1953 Cri L J 1431 : AIR 1953 Punj 217 (218) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

SECTION 76

——Ss. 76 to 106, Chap. 4 (General) and S. 304-A—Mens rea.

The concept of 'mens rea', and the descriptions given of the state of mind in section 304-A, Penal Code, are far more helpful than the notion of degrees of negligence in defining and explaining that degree of negligence or rashness which distinguishes a criminally culpable wrong from a tort, involving a civil liability only; one is almost compelled to say that criminal negligence or rashnees is one which requires a particular "mens rea". Difficulty in reading words such as "grossly" or "highly", before words "rash" or "negligent" in S. 304-A is that such qualifying words could easily have been used by the legislature but are not there. Applying a well-recognised principle of interpretation the absence of such qualifying words must be deemed to be intentional. But, applying an equally well-recognized principle, the requirements of mens rea can be read into a provision creating a criminal offence and proceed to specify what this means with reference to a particular provision. It is, therefore, preferred to conceive of criminal rashnees or negligence in terms of the required mens rea. It is now an essential part of the doctrine of mense rea that even offences created or defined by statute must rest on the assumption that a mens rea is contemplated by them, unless the offence is one of those "statutory offences", which either by the force of express words of the statute or by a necessary implication, exclude the assumption. The test of guilt is that of knowledge and consciousness on the part of the malefactor that hurt or damage is likely to result from what he does; his criminality consists in the wilfully incurring the risk of causing loss or suffering to others. The principle of exemption from criminal liability in respect of a hurtful consequence is that of bona fide ignorance of the connection existing between the mere mechanical act and its consequence. In applying this fundamental doctrine of our criminal jurisprudence to an offence defined in a statute, when it is applicable as it is to all offences under the Penal Code, one has to assume that there is a mens rea for the offence and then to proceed, by scanning the words of the statute, to discover it. One cannot, by resorting to it, alter the statutory definition. It enables the Court to discover the meaning of the statutory provision and not to travel outside it. AIR 1947 P C 135, Rel. on; ILR (1946) 2 Cal 127, Dissent. from. 1964 All W R (HC) 134 : 1964 All Cri R 118 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 524 : AIR 1965 All 196 (200, 201) (Pt B) (Prs 17, 18, 19).

——Ss. 76 and 79 — Applicability—Police officer in attempting to re-arrest escaped thief firing at him but hitting and killing another person.

Where a suspected thief who has been arrested escapes and the Police officer finding that he is not in position to apprehend him fires at him but in so doing hits another person and kills him, he cannot plead justification either under S. 76 or S. 79. 1955 Cri L J 905 : AIR 1955 All 379 (381) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 76—Murder by soldier — Plea of obedience to order of superior—When not available.

Obedience of an unlawful order of his superior does not exonerate the soldier who commits a murder as a consequence of such order See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 300. AIR 1950 East Punj 321 (DB).

——(Ss 76 to 95), Chap. 4 (General) — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105—Burden of proof on accused to prove that case falls under exception—Burden sufficiently discharged if accused satisfies court of probability of what he is to establish — Proof beyond reasonable doubt not necessary—Defamation—Exceptions—Mere creation of doubt regarding truth of statement not sufficient to prove exception. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1964 (2) Cri L J 549 : AIR 1964 Ker 277.

——(Ss. 76 to 106), Chap. 4 (General)—Mens rea — Criminal liability of persen for criminal acts of servant, agent or independent contractor.

Comparison with position of servant or agent—M. P. Land Revenue Code (1954), S. 228 (7) — Penalty under — Mens rea not ingredient — Mining lease — Illegal extraction by independent contractor employed by lessee—Lessee not criminally liable under S. 228 (7). 1965 (1) Cri L J 301 : AIR 1965 Madh Pra 66 (DB).

SECTION 79

——S. 79—Benefit of S. 132, Criminal P. C.—What accused is required to prove — To show this is not to prove requirements of S. 79, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 132. 1964 (1) Cri L J 161 : AIR 1964 S C 269.

——S. 79 — Bar of limitation under S. 53, Madras District Police Act — Protection of when available—Act done or intended to be done under provisions of Police Act or any other law — What amounts to—Torture by police during investigation of persons suspected of crime—Protection of bar of limitation under S 53 not available. See Madras District Police Act, (1859), S. 53. 1964 (1) Cri L J 16 : AIR 1964 S C 33.

——S. 79—Prosecution under a valid penal statute—Defence that accused was engaged in asserting a fundamental right — Not valid — (Constitution of India, Part III (Gen)—Criminal Trial—Defence.

The fact that a person is engaged in asserting a fundamental right affords no defence to a charge of having contravened a valid penal statute while so engaged, Dalbir Singh v. State of Punjab, 1962 (2) Cri L J 247 : AIR 1962 S C 1106 (1110) (Pr 14).

——S. 79—Applicability — Arrest of person without warrant or order of Magistrate—Arrested person filing complaint under S. 342, Penal Code, for unlawful arrest and detention — Policemen pleading that they were justified by law in arresting the complainant—No mistake of fact or good faith pleaded or made out—S. 79, held had no application. 1963 All W R (HC) 760 : 1963 All Cri R 460 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 413 : AIR 1965 All 161 (166) (Pt F) (Pr 16).

——Ss. 79, 30, 44, 52 and 477—Good faith—'Valuable security' — What constitutes—Offence of destruction of valuable security—Essentials — Suit for malicious prosecution—Application filed by defendant admitting that complaint filed by him was false and agreeing to pay damages to plaintiff — Court not accepting it as part of record but returning it to defendant for reconsideration in consultation with his counsel—Defendant tearing off application outside Court in good faith—Defendant held not guilty of any offence — Application held not a valuable security. See Penal Code (1860), S. 30. 1963 (1) Cri L J 279 : AIR 1963 All 131.

—S. 79 — Mistake of law — Act done on basis of Full Bench decision — Decision not accepted as laying down correct law—Offence—Nature of.

The I. P. Code, does not exempt an act done under a mistake of law from the operation of the penal law but, it is obvious that if a person accepts the decision of a Full Bench of the High Court in the State (from which no appeal has been preferred to the Supreme Court) as a guide to his conduct, he commits nothing more than a technical offence if that view is later not accepted as laying down the correct law. 1955 Cri L J 1025 : AIR 1955 All 397 (399) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

Kashmir Universal Library
Accession No.

——S. 79—Applicability—Police officer in attempting to rearrest escaped thief firing at him but hitting and killing another person. He cannot plead justification either under S. 76 or S. 79. 1955 Cri L J 905 : AIR 1955 All 379 (DB).

——S. 79—Though under the Essential Supplies Act the burden of proving that the business was being carried on under a lawful permit or licence is on the person who carries on the business, where there are ample grounds for the accused under the misapprehension of the fact with regard to the validity of the licence and the undertaking to renew the licence was given at a time when the department was well aware that the accused was carrying on the business for some time even without a valid licence, it was held that the accused was entitled to the benefit of S. 79. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 5505.

——Ss 79, 300 and 76 — Murder by soldier—Plea of obedience to order of superior, when not available.

Obedience of an unlawful order of his superior does not exonerate the soldier who commits a murder as a consequence of such order 52 Pun L R 331 : ILR (1950) Punj 354 : AIR 1950 East Punj 321 (Pt A) (DB).

——Ss. 79 and 427—Scope of — Cutting off of overhanging branches of tree in neighbour's land — Offence.

A person is entitled to cut off those portions of the tree in neighbour's land which overhang his land. It does not, by virtue of S. 79 of the Penal Code, amount to an offence of mischief punishable under S. 427. 1956 Ker L T 369 : 1957 Cri L J 166.

——S. 79—Ignorance of law—If can be pleaded.

Ignorance of the law will not excuse from the consequence of guilt any person who has capacity to understand the law. Mistake of law, however, normally relates to mistake as to accused's rights under the law to do a particular act or pursue a particular course of conduct. The Courts are not at all concerned with the legality or otherwise of the rights under which the accused purported to act. The only question that the Courts have to decide in such cases is, whether the claim of right was honestly and bona fide held by the accused. This question will essentially be one of fact. In such cases, it is the good faith of the accused and not the right itself which requires adjudication. In this sense, a mistake of law can, to a certain extent, be a defence to a criminal charge. 1956 Madh B L J 674 : (1956) Madh B L R (Cr) 182: ILR (1956) Madh B 374 : 1956 Cri L J 1327 : AIR 1956 Madh B 241 (243) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 79—Mistake of fact—Accused held entitled to benefit of S. 79. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 5360.

——S. 79—Accused in delusion killed his own son believing him to be tiger—Held there was mistake of fact—Accused was protected by S. 79.

Where an accused, in a moment of delusion, considered that his own son to whom he was attached, was a tiger and he accordingly assailed him with an axe, thinking by reason of a mistake of fact that he was justified in destroying the deceased whom he did not regard to be a human being but a dangerous animal

Held, that the accused was protected by S. 79, Penal Code. AIR 1926 Lah 554 and AIR 1943 Pat 64, Rel. on. 1952 Nag L J 350 : 1952 Cri L J 1212 : ILR (1952) Nag 348 : AIR 1952 Nag 282 (283) (Prs 7, 9) (DB).

—Ss. 79, 52—'Good faith'—Standard of care and attention—Human being believed to be ghost and attacked—Accused held protected.

Good faith requires due care and attention but there can be no general standard of care and attention applicable to all persons and under all circumstances. The question of good faith must be considered with reference to the position of the accused and the circumstances under which he acts. The law does not expect the same standard of care and attention from all persons regardless of the position they occupy.

Where from the circumstances under which the apparition appeared before the accused it would be reasonably inferred that he believed, in good faith, that he was attacking a ghost and not a human being, he was protected by S. 79, Penal Code, and the mere fact that had he exercised extra care and attention the incident might have been averted was no ground for denying him that protection : 31 Bom 293 and 12 Bom 377 and AIR 1940 Rang 129, Relied on. (1959) I O J D 680 : I L R (1960) Cut 22 : 26 Cut L T 238 : 1960 Cri L J 1349 : A I R 1960 Orissa 161 (163) (Prs 7, 9) (DB).

—S. 79—"Mistake of fact"—Meaning of — Burden of proof—Mistake of law — Error of mixed question of law and fact—Effect of.

"Mistake of law" ordinarily means mistake as to the existence or otherwise of any law on a relevant subject as well as mistake as to what the law is. But an error of a mixed question of law and fact is treated as a mistake of fact. Where an act is prima facie innocent and proper, unless certain circumstances co-exist, then ignorance of such circumstances is an answer to the charge. The state of mind of the accused must amount to absolute ignorance of the existence of the circumstances which alters the character of the act or to a belief in its non-existence. The burden is on the accused to satisfy that the conditions that could exonerate them existed at the time when the offence was committed. When there is absolutely no reason to believe that the mental state of absolute ignorance of the existence of circumstances altering the character of the act or the belief in its non-existence existed at the material time, the accused cannot be held to be "not guilty". 15 Cut L T 12 : ILR (1950) Cut 75 : 52 Cri L J 837 : AIR 1951 Orissa 284 (289, 290) (Pt E) (Prs 20, 23) (DB).

—S. 79 — Burden of proof — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

The accused has to satisfy that the conditions that could exonerate him existed at the time when the offence was committed. A I R 1951 Orissa 284 (290) (Pt G) (Pr 26) (DB).

SECTION 80

—S. 80 — Misdirection — Omission to refer to statutory presumption under S. 105, Evidence Act and to explain ingredients of S. 80, Penal Code—Verdict of jury vitiated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1962 (1) Cri L J 521 : AIR 1962 S C 605.

—Ss. 80, 87 and 304A — Accused and deceased friends—Former inviting latter for wrestling bout—Whilst wrestling deceased receiving accidental injury on his skull resulting in death — No foul play by accused—Case falls under Ss. 80 and 87—Accused held committed no offence.

The accused and the deceased were friends and were fond of wrestling. The accused invited the deceased for wrestling bout. They went to akhara and wrestled there. Whilst wrestling the deceased was thrown and his head came in contact accidentally with the hard edge of the adjoining Chabutra which resulted in the fracture of the skull and death. The accused was tried under S, 304, Penal Code, but was convicted under S. 304A :

Held that when the accused and the deceased agreed to wrestle with each other there was an implied consent on the part of each to suffer accidental injuries. As the injury was caused accidentally and without any criminal intention and as there was no proof of any foul play on the part of the accused his act did not amount to any offence by reason of Ss. 80 and 87, Penal Code : AIR 1927 Lah 880 (2); AIR 1931 Lah 54 and 3 Bom L R 678, Ref. 1949 All W R (HC) 476: 1949 All Cri Cas 1171 : 51 Cri L J 402: AIR 1950 All 95 (96) (Pr 7).

—Ss. 80, 321 and 322—Offence of hurt—Intention or knowledge essential—Accident.

The accused swept the instruments kept on the shelf with his hand in order to cause a rattle and frighten the boy and send him away and in a sleepy state dislodged a hammer which hit the boy standing below the shelf and caused the fracture leading to his immediate death. In the circumstances,

Held : This is clearly a case of an accident within the scope of S. 80 of the Indian Penal Code and no offence is involved. Even if there was some slight negligence on the part of the accused a claim in damages only may be sustained. S. 321 and the specific Explanation to S. 322, Indian Penal Code, make it clear that either the ingredient of intention or that of knowledge must be essentially present in order to constitute the offence of hurt. (1962) I M L J 161 : 1962 All Cr R 341 : 1962 All W R (Sup) 12, 1962 Mad L J Cri 174 : 75 Mad L W 162.

—Ss. 80, 304-A—Death caused by shooting under a mistaken but bona fide belief that object aimed at was wild animal—No offence is committed. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 304A, 1952 Cri L J 1191 : AIR 1952 Nag 268 (DB).

—S. 80—Defence that there was no real intention to kill and it was by chance that injury inflicted happened to be on vulnerable part—Defence does not take case out of offence of murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1965 (2) Cri L J 127 : AIR 1965 Punj 291 (DB).

SECTION 81

—S. 81—Criminal trial—Elements of mens rea in offence—Penal Code (1860), S. 40.

It is a general principle of criminal law that guilty intention is necessary ingredient of a crime. The Legislature may by using express language or by implication, exclude an element of mens rea in any particular crime but unless such exclusion is deducible from the express language of the statute or by implication, mens rea forms a necessary ingredient. 1956 Cri L J 1156 : AIR 1956 All 610 (DB).

—Ss. 81, 87 and 88—Complainant tried by panchayat with his consent for alleged offence— Complainant's face blackened and paraded and given shoe-beating in pursuance of panchayayat's decision — Offence.

Ordinarily a self-constituted Panchayat has no right to try an offence alleged to have been committed by a person and order his face to be blackened and the person paraded through the village and given shoe-beating. In ordinary circumstances, such a conduct would not be tolerated and the persons responsible for it would be dealt with according to law. But when the accused persons acted bona fide, in calling a Panchayat without any criminal intent, in order to save the complainant from more serious consequences, resulting from his own indecent behaviour towards a girl with his consent to abide by the decision of the Panchayat obtained in writing and for his benefit, the position is entirely different. In such a case the action of the accused in enforcing the decision of the panchayat cannot be held to be an offence. ('51) 52 Cri L J 179 : A I R 1951 All 500 (501) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——S. 81—Applicability—Conditions.

Section 81 comes into play when the person confining another has a genuine and reasonable apprehension that to allow the other to remain at large will endanger the person and property of others. So, in order to attract S. 81 it should be shown that the act complained of was done in good faith in order to prevent or avoid harm to the person or property of others. 46 Mad 605, Rel. on. (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 474 : (1957) 2 Andhra W R 201 : 1959 Cri L J 167 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 102 (103) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

SECTION 82

——Ss. 82, 83—Applicability—Minor over 12 years—Can be guilty under S. 408. 1959 All W R (H C) 116 : 1959 All Cr R 127 : 1959 Cr L J 1264 : AIR 1959 All 693 (699) (Pr 2).

SECTION 83

——S. 83—Applicability.

What S. 83, Penal Code, contemplates is that the child should not know the natural and physical consequences of his conduct.

When, however, the accused picked up his knife and advanced towards the deceased with a threatening gesture, saying that he would cut him to bits, and did actually cut him, his entire action can only lead to one inference, namely, that he did what he intended to do and that he knew all the time that a blow inflicted with a kathi would effectuate his intention, and, therefore, the accused would be guilty under S. 302, Penal Code. 16 Cut L T 102 : ILR (1950) Kutch 293 : AIR 1950 Orissa 261 (262) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 83—Offence under S. 457 — Conviction and sentence of boy of ten years.

In such a case the Magistrate should take into consideration whether the boy is of sufficient maturity of understanding to be able to realise the nature of his act within S. 83 and while sentencing him consider the provisions of S. 31 of the Reformatory Schools Act and the rules thereunder under which the youthful offender who is below the age of 13 has to be sentenced to five years' detention in the Reformatory School. See Reformatory Schools Act (1897), S. 8. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 1330.

SECTION 84

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 84.)

1. Plea of insanity — Absence of motive.
   - (A) Condition of mind before and after commission of crime.
   - (B) How far constitutes good defence.
2. "Incapable of knowing the nature of the Act".
3. "What is either wrong or contrary to law."
4. Proof of insanity—Legal and medical.
   - (A) Burden of proof.
     See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.
   - (B) Burden of proof—Crucial point of time.
   - (C) Unsoundness of mind.
5. Drunkenness.
6. Occasional or recurring insanity.
7. Somnambulism.
8. Unsoundness of mind not covered by S. 84—How far relevant for ascertaining intention.
9. Unsoundness of mind not covered by S. 84—Punishment.
10. Criminal responsibility of deaf and dumb.

1. Plea of insanity—Absence of motive.
   - (A) Condition of mind before and after commission of crime.
   - (B) How far constitutes good defence.

1. Plea of insanity — Absence of motive.

——Ss. 84, 300, 302—Inability to prove — The mere fact that the prosecution is unable to prove motive beyond any reasonable doubt is no reason for holding that there was no motive for it. Nor is the absence of motive any reason for holding that the plea of insanity has been established — See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. AIR 1951 Assam 79 (DB).

——Ss. 84 and 302—Murder—Absence of motive.

Absence of a motive can be no ground to throw out the prosecution story of murder of a child by its father, but in the peculiar circumstances of a case the absence of the motive can be used as one of the circumstances proving the insanity of the accused as contemplated by S. 84, Penal Code. 1956 Madh B L J (Bh) 134 : 1956 Cr L J 1291 : A I R 1956 Bhopal 57 (59) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——S. 84 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 297, 303, 470, 471—Trial by jury—Plea of insanity—Procedure to be followed in obtaining jury's verdict stated—Action under S. 471 when can be taken—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1961 (2) Cri L J 202 : AIR 1961 Cal 436 (DB).

——S. 84—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297 — Charge to jury — Misdirection — Plea of insanity—What Judge should tell the jury while dealing with S. 84, Penal Code, explained — Omissions such as omission to explain S. 84 or tell the jury that burden of proof required of the accused to establish plea is less than that required at the hands of prosecution in proving case beyond reasonable doubt, held amounted to grave misdirections which vitiated jury's verdict and brought about a failure of justice—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1961 (2) Cri L J 202 : AIR 1961 Cal 436 (DB).

——S. 84 — Insanity — Legal and medical—Distinction in — Nature and extent of unsoundenss of mind required for legal insanity.

The test of legal insanity as distinct from medical insanity is that the nature and extent of unsoundness of mind must reach such a stage where the cognitive faculty of the mind would be so materially affected as would make the offender incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he is doing what is wrong or contrary to law. Further, one must look outside the act itself for the evidence as to how much the accused knew about it. Apart from the act, there must be some clear and distinct proof of mental delusion or intellectual aberration existing previously or at the time of the perpetration of the crime. The Court is only concerned with the state of mind of the accused at the time of the act and the antecedent and subsequent conduct of the man is relevant only to show what the state of the mind was at the time when the act was committed. 23 Cal 604; AIR 1949 Cal 182; AIR 1960 Guj 1; 10 Bom 512, Rel. on. (1964) 5 Guj L R 474 : ILR (1964) Guj 324.

—S. 84 — Scope — Inference of insanity — Relevant facts.

Held, that the accused was labouring under the influence of an insane delusion that his wife had done him injury and was responsible for depriving him of his liberty. The previous insanity of the accused and this persistent delusion of his wife having done him some wrong established conclusively that the accused who was in other respects completely and utterly insane and who had 'glimmering knowledge' of the nature and consequence of his act in striking his wife with an axe was absolutely incapable of realising that it was wrong or contrary to law. 1956 Madh B L J 1275 : 1957 Cri L J 370 : AIR 1957 Madh B 104 (107) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

—S. 84 — Insanity — Nature of insanity required to escape punishment — Absence of motive — Not enough to get exemption of insanity.

To attract the provisions of S. 84 it must appear from the evidence that at the time when the said offence was committed, the accused was not mentally in a position to understand the nature and the consequences of the act and that what he was doing was either wrong or contrary to law. Mere absence of motive coupled with atrocious nature of the crime is not enough. 1956 Madh B L R (Cri) 295: 1956 Madh B L J 1152.

—S. 84 — Insanity — Uncontrollable anger—Effect — Sentence — Extenuating fact — Multiple murders within short time on uncontrollable impulse.

It would be a most dangerous doctrine to lay down that because a man has committed multiple murders within a very short time on uncontrollable impulse, he, though not insane enough to exempt him from criminal liability, was at the time of murders suffering from mental derangement of some sort so as to entitle him to indulgent consideration in the matter of sentence. Clearly the atrocity of crime, the multiplicity of murders or the mode of perpetrating the crime cannot constitute an extenuating fact for passing the lesser sentence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 4528 (DB).

—S. 84 — Insanity — What amounts to — Nature of evidence — Absence of motive is not enough — Mere eccentricity is no insanity — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 105 and 35). AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 2993 (DB).

—S. 84 — Determination of criminal responsibility — More progressive attitude has to be adopted. 1959 M P L J 344 : 1959 M P C 289 : 1959 Cri L J 844 : 1959 Jab L J 386 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 259 (260) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

—Ss. 84, 302 and 309 — Applicability — 'Insanity' — Murder by woman of children and attempt to commit suicide by drowning — Accused in strained circumstances and suffering from fits of mental depression — Offence — Sentence — Remission — Criminal Procedure Code (5 of 1898), S. 401 — Applicability. (1960) 1 M L J 332 : 1960 M L J (Cr) 242 : 1960 All W R (Sup) 7 : 1960 All Cr R 78.

—S. 84 — Uncontrollable impulse is no defence. 1951 Mad W N Cr 263: 1951 Mad W N 843 : 1951-2 Mad L J 593 : 1952 Cri L J 625 : AIR 1952 Mad 289 (290) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

—S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Questions to be considered.

When a plea of insanity is raised under S. 84, the Court has to consider two issues : (1) whether the accused has established that at the time of committing the act he was of unsound mind; (2) if he were of unsound mind, whether he has established that the unsoundness of mind was of a degree and nature to satisfy the tests laid down by the section. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 451.

—S. 84 — Unsoundness of mind — Facts to be proved.

Accused has first to show that he was at the time the act was committed of unsound mind. This is a matter of inference from his acts at or before the time of the incident, and from such other evidence relating to his mental history or to the mental history of his relations as might be available. Secondly that the unsoundness of mind is of the kind that is required under S. 84, Penal Code.

A person may be unsound in mind in some respect and may still know very well the nature of his act like murder and also that doing of such an act was wrong AIR 1947 Pat 222, Foll. 1952 Raj L W 138 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 800.

—S. 84 — Duty of Court — No plea of insanity — Court, if can investigate question of insanity.

Where from the behaviour of the accused the Sessions Judge suspected the insanity of the accused, though there is no suggestion of the insanity by the counsel for the accused the Judge would be justified in eliciting the information by questioning the witnesses and whether the plea was taken by the accused or not, if the evidence discloses the insanity of the accused at the material time then it has to be considered in weighing the criminality of the accused and in adjudging whether he was responsible for the crime or not. 1955 Cri L J 1628 : 8 Sau L R 269 : AIR 1955 Sau 105 (106) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

—S. 84 — Insanity — What is.

While considering whether the accused was insane when he committed the act, a fit of insanity which the accused had ten years before the act is irrelevant. 1955 Cri L J 1628 : 8 Sau L R 269 : AIR 1955 Sau 105 (106) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

—S. 84 — Insanity — Requirements stated — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105). AIR 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 1456 (DB).

—S. 84 — Insanity — What is — Benefit.

When all the witnesses belonging to the village have stated that the accused is known as a "Pagla" (Lunatic) though actually he may not be so, a conclusion may be drawn that the accused has certainly some derangement in his brain—although not to the extent that he can be called of unsound mind and therefore deserving of the benefit of S. 84. 1954 Cri L J 154 : AIR 1953 Tripura 9 (9) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

1 (A). Condition of mind before and after commission of crime.

—S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Condition of accused antecedent and subsequent to commission of crime — Evidence Act (1872), S. 14.

The condition of the accused antecedent and subsequent to the commission of the crime is relevant only in so far as it might assist the Court in coming to a conclusion as to the mental capacity at the time when the accused struck the fatal blow. It is not per se enough to establish that the case is covered by S. 84. ('50) ILR (1950) 2 Assam 423 : AIR 1951 Assam 79 (81) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

—S. 84 — Scope — Test of insanity — Relevancy of antecedent or subsequent conduct.

Section 84 lays down the legal test of responsibility in cases of alleged unsoundness of mind, and it is by that test, as distinguished from the medical test, that the criminality of an act is to be determined.

The antecedent and subsequent conduct of the man is relevant only to show the state of his mind at the time when the act was committed. In other words, so far as S. 84 is concerned, the Court is only concerned with the state of mind of the accused at the time of the Act. The nature and the extent of the unsoundness of mind required must reach that stage as would make the offender incapable of knowing the nature of his act or that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law. 1960 Cri L J 1200 : (1960) 1 Guj H C R 32 : (1960) 1 Guj L R 27 : AIR 1960 Guj 1 (2, 4) (Prs 3, 7) (DB).

——S. 84 — Previous insanity — Effect of — Presumption.

In all cases where previous insanity is proved or admitted, a presumption of sanity at the time of the commission of the act would be greatly weakened and considerations whether there was deliberation and preparation for the act, whether it was done in a manner which showed a desire to concealment, whether after the crime, the offender showed consciousness of guilt, and made efforts to avoid detection, whether after his arrest, he offered false excuses and made false statements, become very relevant. 1956 Madh B L J 1275 : 1957 Cri L J 370 : AIR 1957 Madh B 104 (106) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 84 — Tests to ascertain state of accused's mind.

Speaking generally, the pattern of the crime, the circumstances under which it has been committed, the manner and method of its execution, the behaviour of the murderer before and after the commission of the crime furnish some of the important clues to ascertain whether by reason of unsoundness of mind the accused was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law. 1959 M P L J 344 : 1959 M P C 289 : 1959 Cri L J 844 : 1959 Jab L J 386 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 259 (261) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 84 and 300 — Deliberate and premeditated murder — Preparation for burying dead body in house — Plea of insanity failed. 1959 M P L J 344 : 1959 M P C 289 : 1959 Cri L J 844 : 1959 Jab L J 385 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 259 (263) (Pt D) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 84—Benefit under — Crucial point of time.

The crucial point of time for deciding whether the benefit of S. 84 should be given or not is the material time when the offence takes place. In coming to that conclusion, no doubt, the Court has to take into consideration the relevant circumstances like the behaviour of the accused before the commission of the offence and after the commission of the offence. The non-exhibition of feelings and the absence of secrecy on the part of the accused are only some of the relevant circumstances which have to be considered along with the other circumstances of the case and by themselves they do not make out sanity or insantty. ('51) 64 Mad L W 820 : 1951 Mad W N 755 (2) : 1951 Mad W N Cr 223 (2) : 1951-2 Mad L J 356 : 1952 Cri L J 351 : ILR (1952) Mad 479 : AIR 1952 Mad 174 (174) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

1 (B). How far constitutes good defence.

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — When can be availed of by accused.

What S. 84 lays down is not that the accused claiming protection under it should not know an act to be right or wrong, but that the accused should be incapable of knowing whether the act done by him is right or wrong. What is protected is an inherent or organic incapacity, and not a wrong or erroneous belief which might be the result of a perverted potentiality. 'Legal insanity is not the same thing as medical insanity and a case that falls within the latter category need not necessarily fall within the former. Further, the case where a murderer is struck with an insane delusion is different from the case of a man suffering from organic insanity. AIR 1949 Cal 182, Dissented from; AIR 1923 All 327 (2), Disting. ILR (1959)2 All 216 : 1959 All L J 287 : 1959 All W R (HC) 268 : 1959 All Cr R 238 : 1959 Cri L J 1033 : AIR 1959 All 534 (536) (Prs 11 to 13) (DB).

——S. 84 — Insanity as defence.

Unsoundness excusable under section must be such as to render accused incapable of knowing either the nature of the act or that what is being done is either wrong or contrary to law. State of mind of the accused at the time of committing the act and not anterior or posterior to it is relevant. In case of periodic insanity condition of mind of the accused has to be judged by circumstances surrounding the act, previous history of the accused and medical opinion.

Consciousness of the act does not necessarily imply that the accused was capable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 5636 (DB).

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity—When good defence.

Tek Chand, J. — It is not every impairment of mental processes or any deviation from the recognised standards, that will earn for the accused the verdict of not guilty, in the sense that mens rea is absent. The test that law insists upon is the 'right and wrong test' of Macnaughten Rules as recognised in S. 84 of the Penal Code. This test has been accepted in India as a correct guide for determining the guilt or innocence of the person who pleads insanity as a defence. 1958 Cri L J 555 : 59 Punj L R 597 : ILR (1957) Punj 1914 : AIR 1958 Punj 104 (110) (Pt B) (Pr 24) (DB).

——S. 84 — Insanity how far constitutes good defence stated. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 533 (DB).

——S. 84 — Defence of insanity — Accused appearing in full possession of his senses — Defence under S. 84 not put forward by mouth — This held did not debar him from availing himself of defence put forward in defence evidence and in arguments. AIR 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 1456 (DB).

2. "Incapable of knowing the nature of the act".

● ——S. 84 — Case of homicide — Plea of insanity — Burden of proof. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 101. 1964 (2) Cri L J 472 : AIR 1964 S C 1563.

■ ——S. 84—Plea of insanity—Proof — Circumstances which preceded, attended and followed the crime to be considered.

When a plea of legal insanity is set up, the Court has to consider whether at the time of commission of the offence the accused, by reason of unsoundness of the mind, was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law. The crucial point of time for ascertaining the state of mind of the accused is the time when the offence was committed. Whether the accused was in such a state of mind as to be entitled to the benefit of S. 84 of the Penal Code can only be established from the circumstances which preceeded, attended and followed the crime.

(Held, entire conduct of the accused from the time he killed his wife upto the time the sessions proceedings commenced was inconsistent with the fact that he had a fit of insanity when he killed his wife). Dahyabhai Chhaganbhai Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, (1964) 1 S C W R 831 : (1964) 7 SCR 361 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 773 : 1964 Mad W N 538 : (1965) 2 S C J 531 : 1965 All W R (H C) 740 : 1965 All Cri R 501 : (1964) 5 Guj L R 911 : 1965 S C D 44 : 1964 (2) Crs L J 472 : AIR 1964 S C 1563 (1569 to 1571) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 14).

——Ss. 84 and 302 — Insanity—Every abnormality of mind does not come under exception—Murder case—Defence that accused was victim of hallucination — His conduct showing that he knew nature of his act—Held that he was not insane.

It is not every abnormality of mind or reason that brings a case within the exception in S. 84. Mental disorder is not to be inferred from the mere fact that a pereon has committed an abnormal crime or has acted from a motive which has no basis in reason or fact. Nor can it be presumed that because the accused committed what most people would regard as a senseless act that he has all along been insane.

The accused, a mendicant was very much attached to a temple elephant. The elephant fell ill and the accused took it very much to his heart. He used to weep and sometimes even refuse food out of sorrow. The deceased was his fellow mendicant. Both used to sleep in the verandah of a shop. At the dead of night the accused killed his fellow mendicant under the obsession that a human sacrifice would save the life of the elephant. There was no evidence whatsoever of any mental disorder either before or after the commission of the act.

Held (i) that there was no reason whatsoever to doubt the accused's sanity at the time of his trial and therefore there was no need for the Sessions Court to proceed under S. 465, Cr. P. C.

(ii) that whatever be the obsession or hallucination under which the accused laboured, it certainly did not so deprive him of his reason as to make him incapable of knowing the nature of his act or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law. His very conduct in seeking a convenient opportunity at dead of night when the deceased was asleep for killing him, then secreting the body while preserving the head (presumably for some sacrificial ceremony). next removing the blood-stains on the verandah and pledging P. W. 1 to secrecy, and then, washing his clothes and the chopper used by him before putting it in its usual place, proclaimed that he knew very well what he was about and that what he was doing was wrong and contrary to law. Even his own statement that he killed the deceased in order to save the life of the elephant, showed that he knew very well the nature of his act. Hence he was not insane. AIR 1941 Cal 129; AIR 1954 Trav Co. 435, Disting. 1957 Ker L J 845.

——Ss. 84 and 302 — "Incapable of knowing the nature of act"—Proof of insanity—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 105).

If an accused is found to be insane prior to an occurrence as well as subsequent to the occurrence, that is not enough for giving him the benefit of S. 84, unless it is also established that he was insane at the time of committing the offence itself.

The quantum of proof required under S. 105 of Evidence Act relating to the burden of proving the case within the exception, is not proof beyond reasonable doubt and all that the accused may do is to make out a prima facie case. The burden of proof in the matter rests upon the accused; it is not so onerous as the burden which rests upon the prosecution. The burden is discharged if the accused establishes facts and circumstances which may lead to a reasonable inference that at the time of the commission of the offence the accused was of unsound mind, the unsoundness of his mind being of the nature or extent mentioned in S. 84. AIR 1961 Pat 355; AIR 1964 S C 1963, Rel. on. (1965) ILR 44 Pat 899 (DB).

3. "What is either wrong or contrary to law."

■ ——S. 84 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 417, 423 — Appeal against acquittal—Nothing on the record of trial Court to show that at the moment of the act the accused was incapable of knowing that what he was doing was wrong or contrary to law—Held that refusal to interfere with acquittal by the High Court could not be justified under any rule as to impelling reasons for interference even assuming the existence of such a rule — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 417. 1961 (2) Cri L J 43 : AIR 1961 S C 998.

——Ss. 84 and 300—Madness is a question of fact—Held, on facts and circumstances of the case that the accused was really of unsound mind at the time of occurrence.

The question as to whether the accused was mad at the time of occurrence so as to attract the application of S. 84, Penal Code, is a question of fact to be decided on merits of each case and on the facts of that case. AIR 1961 S C 998; AIR 1959 Mad 239; AIR 1937 Lah 486, Foll.

The mere fact that the accused was in sound state of mind when the Medical Officer examined him about a month after the occurrence and when trial was held or some months after occurrence does not mean that the accused must have been of sound mind at the time of occurrence.

Held, on facts and circumstances of the case that the accused was really of unsound mind at the time of attacking the deceased, his wife and was by reason of unsoundness of mind incapable of knowing that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law and was therefore entitled to the benefit of S. 84, Penal Code. 1965 (1) Cri L J 138 : AIR 1965 Andh Pra 28 (31, 32) (Prs 18, 23, 28).

——S. 84 —Applicability—Legal insanity—Only unsoundness of mind materially impairing its cognitive faculties is ground of exemption under S 84.

It is not every sort of mental instability or abnormality that can be termed legal insanity. It is only unsoundness of mind which materially impairs its cognitive faculties that could form a ground of exemption from criminal responsibility.

Held that the evidence did not reveal that the accused suffered from any mental defect, if it could be so termed, other than being subject to moods and being possessed of a highly suspicious nature. When the accused killed the person he suspected after having made public his intention to kill him, it was clear that the accused knew what he was doing. His declaration on former occassions that he would do away with the deceased was a strong circumstance which would indicate that he committed the crime consciously. The ferocity of the attack might signify nothing more than the depth of hatred and anger he bore against his victim. His conduct in immediately surrendering himself to the police was indicative of his realisation that what he had done was contrary to law. The case was not covered by S. 84. 1959 Ker L R 1345 : 1959 Ker L J 138.

——S. 84 — Insanity — Nature of — Law as to.

The principle underlying the section is substantially based on the well-known Macnaughten Rules. For the purposes of the criminal law, the emphasis is on unsoundness of mind which incapacitates the person from knowing the nature of the act or that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law.

The Penal Code contemplates as grounds of exemption from criminal responsibility, two completely different mental conditions arising from unsoundness of mind, viz., an incapacity : (1) To know the nature of the act and (2) To know that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law. Of these, the first seems to refer to the offender's consciousness of the bearing of his act on those who are affected by it; the second, on his consciousness of its relation to himself. Each species of consciousness is ordinarily present to the mind of a normally sane person. Either, or both, or neither may be absent from the mind of one who is mentally diseased. The absence of both, or either, relieves the offender from liability to punishment. Every criminal when he commits a crime has an instinctive dread of the consequences. To a normal man the sanction provided by the Criminal law acts as a deterrent, 'influencing, guiding and controlling his conduct'. 1959 Jab L J 505 : 1959 M P C 240 : 1959 M P L J 336 : 1959 Cri L J 718 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 203 (205, 208) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 14, 19, 20, 22, 23) (DB).

——S. 84 — Accused murdering girl of seven years in broad day-light — Plea of unsoundness of mind— Unsoundness of mind at the time of actual act of offence, necessary — Fact, that accused did not run away from scene, not indicative of insanity — Nor does it indicate incapability of knowing nature of act or that what he was doing was wrong or contrary to law : AIR 1961 S C 998, Rel. on. (1964) 1 Mad L J 156 : 1964 M L J (Cri.) 153 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 683 : AIR 1964 Mad 526 (527) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——S. 84 — Construction — 'What is either wrong or contrary to law'.

The statement of the prisoner may suggest that he was capable of knowing the nature of his act but that does not suggest that he was capable of knowing that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law. 1955 Cri L J 825 : AIR 1955 Pat 209 (214) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——S. 84 — Insanity — What amounts to.

The legal conception of insanity is different from the medical conception. In the former case it has further to be proved that the insanity is of such a degree that, because of it, the man is incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that what he is doing is wrong or contrary to law. 1953 Cri L J 1859 : ILR (1953) Patiala 254 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 4 (6) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 84 — Burden of proof.

To get the benefit of S. 84, Indian Penal Code, it is for the accused to prove that at the time of committing the act his cognitive faculties were impaired to such an extent that he was incapable of knowing the nature of his act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law. But to find out the state of the mind of the accused, a Court need not look for such a plea having been raised by him or the evidence examined by him in defence. It may equally rely on what is elicited from the prosecution witnesses as well as on the circumstantial evidence consisting of his condition antecedent and subsequent to the commission of the crime and also on surrounding circumstances including an absence of any motive.

Thus, where the prosecution case itself is that the accused was not only insane but was violent too, and for that reason he was constantly kept in chains for more than two weeks preceding the incident, that once having been released he assailed his own mother without rhyme or reason, that he did not take food for full one week, but threw it away to dogs and crows and had no sleep during the period, that he not only lost affection for his near and dear ones but got into the delusion that they were all after his life, that on the fateful day he somehow got himself released and all of a sudden speared his own uncle who was quite affectionate to him, without any motive at all and did not try to run away or escape thereafter.

Held, that the accused committed the offence without realising the nature of the act or knowing that what he was doing was contrary to law and hence was entitled to the protection of S. 84, Indian Penal Code. 1953 Cri L J 1859 : ILR (1953) Patiala 254: AIR 1954 Pepsu 4 (6) (Pt B) (Prs 8 to 10) (DB).

——S. 84 — Defence under — What accused has to establish stated.

Accused must establish that at the time of committing the act he was of unsound mind. Secondly, the unsoundness of mind was of a degree and nature to satisfy one of the knowledgeable tests laid down by the section. Whether or not an accused at the time he committed the act, was of unsound mind is a matter of inference from his previous and contemporaneous acts, statements and demeanour and from any other relevant evidence as to insanity in his ancestors or relations, as to particular illness affecting the mind and from any medical evidence that may be tendered. Mere eccentricity is not enough, there must be evidence to show that at the material time the accused was suffering from some definite or recognisable form of mental disease. There is a clear distinction between "medical insanity" and "legal insanity" and the Courts are only concerned with the legal and not with the medical view of the question. The Court may rely not only on the defence evidence but also on what is elicited from the prosecution witnesses, as well as on circumstantial evidence. The best evidence would be of his behaviour before or after the incident or of what he did and said when he was captured. The fact that immediately after the incident when people tried to capture him he resisted and grappled with them, is enough to draw an inference that he knew that he had done something which was wrong or unlawful and consequently he did not like to be captured. Mere absence of motive does not justify the conclusion that the accused was of unsound mind. Case law referred. 1953 Cri L J 382 : ILR (1952) Pepsu 451 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 17 (18, 19) (Pt B) (Pr 67) (DB).

4. Proof of insanity — Legal and medical.

(A) Burden of proof.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

(B) Burden of proof — Crucial point of time.

(C) Unsoundness of mind.

4. Proof of insanity — Legal and medical.

● ——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Proof — Accused giving many stabs to kill unarmed and undefended woman.

Many sane men give more than the necessary stabs to their victims. The number of blows given might perhaps reflect his vengeful mood or his determination to see that the victim had no escape. One does not count his strokes when he commits murder. This does not necessarily prove that the accused was doing the act under some hallucination. Dahyabhai Chhaganbhai Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, (1964) 1 S C W R 831 : (1964) 7 S C R 361 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 773 : 1964 Mad W N 538 : (1965) 2 S C J 531 : 1965 All W R (H C) 740 : 1965 All Cri R 501 : (1964) 5 Guj L R 911 : 1965 S C D 44 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 472 : AIR 1964 S C 1563 (1572) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

● ——S. 84 — Case of homicide — Plea of insanity — Burden of proof.

It is fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that an accused is presumed to be innocent and, therefore, the burden lies on the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. The prosecution, therefore, in a case of homicide shall prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused caused death with the requisite intention described in S. 299 of the Penal Code. This general burden never shifts and it always rests on the prosecution. But, under S. 105 of the Evidence Act, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within the exception lies on the accused ; and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. Under S. 105 of the Evidence Act, read with the definition of 'shall presume' in S. 4 thereof, the Court shall regard the absence of such circumstances as proved unless, after considering the matters before it, it believes that the said circumstances existed or their existence was so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that they did exist. To put it in other words, the accused will have to rebut the presumption that such circumstances did not exist, by placing material before the Court sufficient to make it consider the existence of the said circumstances so probable that a prudent man would act upon them. The accused has to satisfy the standard of a 'prudent man'. If the material placed before the Court, such as, oral and documentary evidence, presumptions, admissions or even the prosecution evidence, satisfies the test of 'prudent man', the accused will have discharged his burden. The doctrine of burden of proof in the context of the plea of insanity may be stated in the following propositions : (1) The prosecution must prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused had committed the offence with the requisite mens rea : and the burden of proving that always rests on the prosecution from the beginning to the end of the trial. (2) There is a rebuttable presumption that the accused was not insane, when he committed the crime, in the sense laid down by S. 84 of the Penal Code : the accused may rebut it by placing before the Court all the relevant evidence — oral, documentary or circumstantial, but the burden of proof upon him is no higher than that rests upon a party to civil proceedings ; (3) Even if the accused was not able to establish conclusively that he was insane at the time he committed the offence, the evidence placed before the Court by the accused or by the prosecution may raise a reasonable doubt in the mind of the Court as regards one or more of the ingredients of the offence, including mens rea of the accused and in that case the Court would be entitled to acquit the accused on the ground that the general burden of proof resting on the prosecution was not discharged : AIR 1962 S C 605 ; AIR 1955 Pat 209 and (1878) 4 Couper 70, Rel. on ; A I R 1956 Nag 187, Overruled. Dahyabhai Chhaganbhai Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, 1964 (2) Cri L J 472 : (1964) 1 S C W R 831 : (1964) 5 Guj L R 911 : 1965 S C D 44 : AIR 1964 S C 1563.

——S. 84—Proof of insanity.

The person who is accused of murder can get the benefit of S. 84, I. P. Code, only if there is satisfactory evidence on the record in proof of the fact that he was of unsound mind at the time of the commission of the offence and was therefore incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law. The evidence of the prosecution witnesses that the accused in the past had acted in such a manner which indicated that he was not behaving like a sane man, itself will not be of any help to the accused in availing himself of the benefit of that section. 1958 All L J 253 : 1958 All W R (HC) 277 : 1958 All Cr R 225 : I L R (1958) 2 All 867.

——S. 84—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 — Appreciation of evidence — Prosecution witnesses supporting defence when most of the prosecution witnesses make a statement favourable to the accused, it is wrong to discard their statement on a mere supposition that they may be helping the accused. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. AIR 1956 Bhopal 57.

——S. 84—Evidence Act (1 of 1872), S. 3 — Evidence —Appreciation of—Insanity—Proof. I L R (1963) 1 Ker 76.

——S. 84—Legal and medical insanity — Distinction —S. 84 when applies.

There is clear distinction between medical and legal insanity. The Courts are concerned with the legal and not with the medical view of the question. A man may be suffering from some form of insanity in the sense in which the term is used by medical man but may not be suffering from unsoundness of mind as is described in S. 84. If the facts of a particular case show that the accused knew that he had done something wrong, it did not matter how, though he might be insane from the medical point of view he could not be exonerated under S. 84, I. P. Code.

Further, if the evidence shows that the accused was conscious of the nature of the act he must be presumed to have been conscious of its criminality. 10 Bom 512, Rel. on. 1960 Ker L T 1116 : 1960 Ker L J 1375 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 356 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 135 (140, 141) (Pt F) (Prs 39, 45) (DB) (Ker).

——S. 84—Proof of insanity.

It would be dangerous to hold that, because a monstrous crime like murder is committed for no apparent reason and for no proved motive, the offender must have been insane at the time, and that without any proof whatsoever of prior insanity. No inference of insanity can be drawn from the circumstance that, after having stabbed his wife and child, the accused made no attempt to escape or shield himself from justice, but proceeded to inflict injuries on himself and submit to fate. That is often the conduct of a perfectly sane man, who acting under some impulse, commits so monstrous a crime. 1957 Ker L J 765 : 1958 Cri L J 513 : 1957 Ker L T 761 : AIR 1958 Ker 80 (81) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——S. 84—Proof of insanity—There must be substantial evidence that accused at the time of committing act did not know its nature and that what he was doing was either wrong or contrary to law—Absence of motive coupled with atrocious nature of crime is not enough — Killing of wife by husband who loved her without apparent motive -Act atrocious in nature — Eccentric conduct extending over period of one month — Plea of insanity held not made out — Case recommended for action under S. 401, Criminal P. C. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 2092 (DB).

——S. 84—Essentials—Proof of insanity—Onus.

It is necessary for the application of S. 84, I. P. C. to show that (a) the accused was insane (b) that he was insane at the time when he did the act and not merely before or after the act; and (c) that as a result of the unsoundness of the mind he was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was really wrong or contrary to law. There is no rule that once insane always insane or that now sane, he must have been sane before. The burden of proof under S. 84, I. P. Code, is on the accused. Queer behaviour will not amount to insanity contemplated under S. 84, I. P. Code. Similarly, inadequacy of motive standing by itself is no proof of insanity. 1960 Mad W N 238 : 1960 Cri L J 930 : 1960 All W R (Supp) 18 : 1960 All Cr R 208 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 550 : A I R 1960 Mad 316 (317) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 84—Burden of proof—Test of insanity.

A person is presumed to be sane, possessed of understanding as to what is right or wrong, to have sense enough to anticipate what will or may happen in certain cases. That is the rule, and the burden of proving the exception is on those who rely on it. Exemption from liability is provided for in the Code when the persons concerned are of the exceptional class.

From the mere fact of the accused being subject to periodic fits, the interval and the intensity of which are left uncertain, it is difficult to assume or infer anything more than that the mind is enteebled and that his intellectual power is impaired.

The test is whether cognitive faculties of the mind are so impaired as to make the offender incapable of knowing that what he is doing is wrong. The atrocity of the crime and absence of motive are not the criterion to constitute unsoundness of mind and are only some of the features ordinarily associated with it. (1843) 10 Cl and F 200, Rel. on. ILR (1956) Mys 414 : 35 Mys L J 76 : 1957 Cri L J 985 : A I R 1957 Mys 68 (69) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——S. 84 — Proof of insanity — Legal and medical test.

Test which distinguishes legal from medical insanity is, whether the unsoundness of mind was of a degree and nature to satisfy the Court that by reason thereof the accused was incapable of knowing the nature of his act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law.

(Held : that there was no legal insanity when the accused committed the crime). AIR 1948 Nag 20 (2). Foll. 1953 Nag L J 231 : 1953 Cri L J 1357 : A I R 1953 Nag 255 (256) (Prs 8, 10) (DB).

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Absence of motive— Consideration of —If there was no motive and the crime was completely motiveless then that circumstance can be taken into account along with the evidence of prior insanity. See Penal Code (1860), S. 40. 1957 Cri L J 875 : A I R 1957 Orissa 168 (DB).

——S. 84—Proof of insanity—Medical evidence.

It is the duty of the medical expert who is called to prove insanity of the prisoner at the time of the commission of the offence, but who is sane at the time of the trial, to offer to keep the prisoner under his observation. He cannot base his opinion on the summary of evidence at the trial, supplied to him. A medical man, conversant with the disease of insanity, who has never seen the prisoner before the trial but who is present at the whole trial, cannot in strictness be asked his opinion as to the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the commission of the crime or his opinion whether the prisoner was conscious, at the time of doing the act that he was acting contrary to law or whether he was labouring under a delusion at the time or whether by reason of any disease affecting the mind the accused was incapable or prevented from controlling his conduct.

These are questions for the jury to decide, and the questions are not mere questions upon a matter of science. There is distinction between appreciation of facts and an expression of opinion on questions of science. The opinion of a medical man on the state of the mind of the accused at the time of the commission of the murder is merely relevant as being helpful. It is for the Judge or the Judge and the jury, as the case may be, to give a decision of these matters, and the function of the medical witness is to assist, not to supersede the Judge. AIR 1949 Nag 66, Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 1628 : 8 Sau L R 269 : A I R 1955 Sau 105 (109) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 84 — Proof of insanity — Accused suffering from epileptic fits murdering his father — Burden of proof.

Where in a trial of accused for murdering his father the accused pleads unsoundness of mind by reason of epileptic fits, he must establish that at the time and moment when the act was being committed he was in such a state of mind that his cognitive faculties had been so impaired that he did not know what he was doing nor did he know any distinction, between right and wrong. Where the evidence adduced fails to establish that the accused when he committed the offence was of unsound mind, he cannot take the advantage of S. 84 and would be guilty under S. 302. ('51) 53 P L R 15 : A I R 1951 Simla 302 (303) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 84—Proof of insanity—Doctors who had treated accused should be examined. A I R 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 1456 (DB).

4 (A). Burden of proof.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

——S. 84 — Insanity — Burden of proof — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 465—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

There is a distinction, between incapacity at the time of doing the act charged and incapacity at the time of trial. While both are induced by unsoundness of mind, the former is substantive which excuses the offence under S. 84, Penal Code; the latter affects procedure and merely postpones the trial under S. 465 of the Criminal P. C.

Incapacity continuing from the time of doing the act, as much as incapacity supervening thereafter and persisting at the time of trial, will only result in postponement of the proceedings. But if there is no present incapacity, the trial takes place at which the plea of incapacity at the time of doing the act charged becomes a relevant plea, the proof of which lies on the defence under S. 105 of the Evidence Act. As soon as it appeared to the Judge that the accused is incapable by reason of unsoundness of mind to make his defence, it becomes his duty to act at once under S. 405, Criminal P. C. 1961 All Cr R 315 : 1961 All W R (Supp) 62 : 65 Cal W N 290 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 811 (Cal).

——S. 84 — Proof of insanity — Burden of proof lies on accused — Discharge of burden — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

Where a plea of insanity is taken by the accused charged with an offence under S. 302, Penal Code, the burden is on the accused to establish affirmatively such defence and the same cannot be held to be discharged merely by reason of the fact that the explanation offered by the accused is reasonable and probable. It must further be shown that the explanation is a true one, i. e., so probable that a prudent man ought in the circumstances to have accepted it. AIR 1962 S C 605 ; (1935) A C 462 , 65 Bom L R 332, Rel. on. (1964) 5 Guj L R 474 : ILR (1964) Guj 324.

——Ss. 84 and 300 — Plea of insanity — Nature and burden of proof —Evidence Act (1 of 1872), S. 105.

It is true that the prosecution in a case of homicide shall prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused caused the death with the requisite intention described in the section. This general burden never shifts and it always rests on prosecution. But S. 84 being an exception under S. 105 of the Evidence Act the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within the said exception lies on the accused and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. It is no doubt not so onerous as the burden of proof resting upon the prosecution to prove the fact that the accused committed the act with which he is charged. The burden in cases in which the accused has to prove insanity may fairly be stated as not being higher than the burden which rests on a plaintiff or defendant in civil proceedings. In civil cases the preponderance of probability may constitute sufficient ground for a verdict. If on a consideration of the prosecution evidence and the evidence led by the accused the Court comes to the conclusion that there was probability of the accused being legally insane at the time of the Commission of the crime he would be entitled to be acquitted on the ground of insanity. 1965 Ker L T 263 : (1965) M L J (Cri) 387.

—— S. 84—Plea of insanity—Burden of proof—Nature and extent of proof—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

If unsoundness of mind is urged as a ground of exemption from liability, it is for the person who seeks the exemption to prove it. The accused cannot get the benefit of S. 84 by merely creating a reasonable doubt in the mind of the Court about the existence of circumstances bringing his case within the exception.

The burden of proof resting on the accused to prove the insanity is no doubt not so onerous as the burden of proof resting upon the prosecution to prove the fact that the accused committed the act with which he is charged. Therefore if on a consideration of the prosecution evidence and the evidence led by the accused the Court comes to the conclusion that there was a probability of the accused being legally insane at the time of the commission of the crime he would be entitled to be acquitted on the ground of insanity. AIR 1941 All 402 (FB), Disting. 1960 Ker L T 1116 : 1960 Ker L J 1375 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 356 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 135 (140) (Pt E) (Prs 36, 37) (DB) (Ker).

——S. 84—Insanity — Proof'— (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105).

Per Khan, J.: — It is not every person who is mentally diseased, ipso facto is exempted from criminal responsibility. Any person who seeks the benefit of S. 84, Penal Code, must prove that at the time of committing the act he was labouring under such defect of reason as not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing.

Per Shiv Dayal, J.: — A person is presumed to be responsible for his acts and the natural consequence thereof unless he affirmatively proves that he is entitled to exemption from criminal liability. One of the exceptions is provided in S. 84 of the Penal Code.

In order that benefit may be given to an accused under this section, it is not sufficient to show that he was of unsound mind before the commission of the crime or that he became so afterwards. It must be established by the defence that, firstly, he was incapable of knowing the nature of his act or that he was doing that was either wrong or contrary to law and, secondly that such unsoundness of mind existed at the time of doing the act. If either of these two elements is not positively proved, no benefit can be given under S. 84.

It is settled law that a distinction must be drawn between legal insanity and medical insanity. Whatever may be the controversy about the McNaughten Rules, S. 84 of the Penal Code is very clear and it requires that degree of infirmity of the mind which renders a person incapable of knowing the nature of his act. 1960 Cri L J 480 : 1960 Jab L J 391 : 1960 M P L J 691 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 102 (103, 104) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 14, 15) (DB).

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Burden of proof — Standard of proof required — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105).

Section 105, Evidence Act, together with illustration (a) to that section makes it clear that the burden of proving that the accused is entitled to the benefit of S. 84, Penal Code, is on the accused. The standard of proof required from the accused is that there should be preponderance of probability showing that at the time when the offence was committed the accused by reason of his unsoundness of mind was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what is either wrong or contrary to law. Where the evidence showed that accused was subject to getting epileptic fits but there was nothing abnormal in his behaviour it was held that he could not claim the benefit of S. 84.

Per K. S. Hegde, J. — The burden placed on an accused taking the plea of insanity is in the nature of the burden placed on a party in a civil litigation. AIR 1959 Madh Pra 203 and AIR 1956 Nag 187, Rel. on; AIR 1955 Pat 209, Criticised. 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 986 : 37 Mys L J 786 : ILR (1959) Mys 644 : 1960 Cri L J 373 : AIR 1960 Mys 48 (51) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 84 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 — Plea of insanity — Burden of proof — Burden on accused is not discharged by merely creating doubt about his sanity — A I R 1955 Pat 209, Dissented from. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1956 Cri L J 756 : AIR 1956 Nag 187 (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1964 S C 1563]

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Standard of proof — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

The accused is not called upon to prove the ingredients of the provisions of S. 84, Penal Code, beyond all reasonable doubt in order to get an order of acquittal. If on a review of the entire evidence the Court entertains a reasonable doubt about the guilt of the accused, he is entitled to an acquittal in the case, on the cardinal principle of criminal justice which has not been affected by the special provisions of S. 105, Evidence Act. AIR 1937 Pat 263 and AIR 1928 Pat 363, Disting.; AIR 1937 Rang 83 (FB) and AIR 1948 Pat 294, Foll. 23 Cut L T 203 : 1957 Cri L J 875 : ILR (1957) Cut 408 : AIR 1957 Orissa 163 (171) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 84, 302 — Plea of unsoundness — Burden of proof — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

In order to succeed in a plea of insanity, the accused has to establish, firstly, that at the time of committing the offence he was of unsound mind, and, secondly, that the unsoundness of mind was of such a degree that he was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that what he was doing was either wrong or contrary to law. The burden of proof in this matter rests upon the defence. It is not enough for the defence to rely upon a mere possibility that the accused may have been of unsound mind at the time when he committed the offence. The absence of motive is not sufficient indication of legal insanity, but this is an important factor which must be taken into consideration, along with the other facts and circumstances which have been established, for the purpose of determining the true state of the accused's mental condition at the time when the crime was committed. 1961 All W R (Sup) 49 : 1961 All Cr R 302 : 1961 Pat L R 9 : 1961 BLJR 185 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 357 : AIR 1961 Pat 355 (357 to 359) (Prs 9, 13, 17, 22) (DB).

——S. 84—Burden of proof—Evidence Act, S. 105.

It lies on the prosecution to prove the charge against the prisoner beyond reasonable doubt. 1935 A C 462, Rel. on.

The law in S. 105 of the Evidence Act provides the prosecution with an additional support to establish its case beyond reasonable doubt but with an option to the defence to deprive the prosecution of this additional support and then to make it stand exclusively on the strength of its own evidence leaving the presumption provided under S. 105 out of consideration.

Section 105 in substance lays down three propositions; firstly that the prosecution case shall be judged on the presumption that no exception existed, secondly, that presumption is rebuttable and thirdly, that the fact, if any, sufficient to rebut that presumption has to be proved by the defence. That being so, the moment that presumption is rebutted by the defence, the onus under S. 105 has to be taken as discharged. The defence has not to prove affirmatively beyond reasonable doubt that the prisoner was of unsound mind and that by reason of unsoundness of mind was incapable of knowing the nature of the act. The defence has only to demolish the aforesaid presumption laid down against the prisoner under S. 105 and not to prove beyond reasonable doubt the opposite of that presumption. (1936) 2 All E R 1138 and AIR 1941 All 402 (FB). Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 825 : AIR 1955 Pat 209 (212, 213) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——S. 84—Burden of proof — Evidence — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

The burden of proving the plea of insanity rests on the accused and that onus can be discharged by producing evidence as to his conduct shortly prior to the offence and his conduct at the time or immediately afterwards, and by evidence of his mental condition and other relevant facts.

There is a difference between medical insanity and legal insanity and it is only insanity which exonerates the accused from the crime. There can be no legal insanity unless the cognitive faculties of the accused are, as a result of unsoundness of mind, so completely impaired as to render him incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that what he is doing is wrong or contrary to law.

There can be no general rule and the only proper course to adopt is to decide each case on its own peculiar facts. 1955 Cri L J 1628 : 8 Sau L R 269 : AIR 1955 Sau 105 (107, 109) (Pt D) (Prs 7, 11) (DB).

——S. 84—Plea of insanity—Onus — Nature of proof required—Burden held not discharged — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 105 and 8.

Where in a murder charge, the accused pleads insanity at the time the murder was committed, the onus is on him to establish it, within the meaning of S. 84, Penal Code. To judge the state of his mind at the time the act is committed, his behaviour after the act is committed would be very relevant. The mere fact that there is apparent absence of motive is not by itself sufficient to establish legal insanity. The law requires proof of incapacity to realise the nature of the act. Where a man's mind or his faculties of retiocination are sufficiently clear to apprehend what he is doing he must always be presumed to intend the consequences of the action he takes. It is not mere eccentricity or singularity of manner that will suffice to establish plea of insanity. In the absence of proof in the affirmative of his insanity the mere probability of his being insane at the time of the murder perpetrated by him, would not be enough to absolve him of the criminal liability for it.

After dealing fatal injuries to his wife the accused was rebuked by his father, whereupon being conscious of his crime and the serious consequences it would involve him into, he put on his coat having a valet in its pocket containing money, and a gold ring and then absconded. He was found after some days at Junagadh loitering about near a Picture house at night by a Police Officer. The accused successfully managed to reach Junagadh far away from his town. It was in evidence of the father, that the accused had been to Junagadh once before for "Satsang." He therefore seemed to have consciously directed his footsteps towards that place. On being questioned by the Police Officer he gave his name and address. His conduct was certainly not that of a demented person aimlessly wandering. It was in evidence that the accused was attending 3 or 4 days previous to crime to sowing operations in the field all alone. The accused was no doubt eccentric in his behaviour and was in the habit of beating his wife. The evidence of near relatives on the question of insanity was found exaggerated :

Held, that there was no proof that the accused was at the time of the crime by reason of unsoundness of mind incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that it was either wrong or contrary to law. (1951) 4 Sau L R 82 : 52 Cri L J 369 : AIR 1951 Sau 19 (19 to 22) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 16) (DB).

4 (B). Burden of proof—Crucial point of time.

● ——S. 84—Burden of proof—Burden of proving offence lies on prosecution—Where necessary, it has to prove intention—But where plea of insanity is invoked by accused it is for him to establish that fact. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. (1965) 3 SCR 194 : 1965 SCD 953 : (1965) 4 Law Rep 97 : (1965) 2 SCWR 777 : 1966 Cri L J 63 : AIR 1966 SC 1.

● ——S. 84—Unsoundness of mind—Burden of proof.

The burden of proof that the mental condition of the accused was, at the crucial point of time, such as is described by S. 84 lies on the accused who claims the benefit of this exemption. State of Madhya Pradesh v. Ahmadulla, 1961 (2) Cri L J 43 : 1961 Mad W N 278 : 1961 SCD 293 : (1961) 3 SCR 583 : 1961 All Cr R 251 : (1961) 2 SCJ 197 : 1961 Jab L J 1060 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 480 : (1961) All W R (HC) 463 : (1961) 1 Ker L R 389: AIR 1961 SC 998 (999) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

● ——Ss. 84, 300, 302 — Unsoundness of mind — Epileptic insanity.

The crucial point of time at which the unsoundness of mind as defined in S. 84 has to be established is when the act was committed.

The accused bore illwill to the deceased and the act was committed at dead of night the accused taking a torch with him, access to the house of the deceased being obtained by scaling over a wall.

Held, that it was a crime committed not in a sudden mood of insanity but one that was preceded by careful planning and exhibiting cool calculation in execution and directed against a person who was considered to be the enemy. 14 Cr App. Rep 48, Rel. on. State of Madhya Pradesh v. Ahmadulla, (1961) 1 Ker L R 389 : 1961 Mad W N 278 : 1961 SCD 293 : (1961) 3 S C R 583 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 43 : 1961 All Cr R 251 : (1961) 2 SCJ 197 : 1961 Jab L J 1060 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 480: 1961 All W R (HC) 463 : AIR 1961 SC 998 (998, 999, 1001) (Pt B) (Prs 2, 8).

——S. 84—Burden of proof — Every form of insanity is not recognised by law — Burden to prove insanity is on defence — It has to be shown that at time of committing offence, accused was by reason of unsoundness of mind incapable of knowing nature of act or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law—Nothing short of this will bring case within legal insanity — Minor aberrations of mind are not recognised — Insanity during trial does not indicate that he was insane when he committed offence — It may raise suspicion but is no proof. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 856 (DB).

——S. 84 — Burden of proof — Evidence of insanity before occurrence — Not sufficient — Nor is inadequacy of motive conclusive evidence of insanity.

The burden of proof that the mental condition of the accused was, at the crucial point of time such as is described by S. 84 lies on the accused who claims the benefit of the exemption. The evidence of the defence witnesses showing that the accused was exhibiting signs of insanity before the occurrence would not be sufficient to bring the case within the exception contained in S. 84.

Inadequacy of motive is not a matter which is conclusive evidence of insanity. The circumstances of an act being apparently motiveless is not a ground from which the existence of a powerful and irresistible influence of homicidal tendency can be safely inferred. The law recognises nothing but incapacity to realise the nature of the act presumes that where a man's mind or faculties of ratiocination are sufficiently clear to apprehend what he is doing, he must always be presumed to intend the consequences of the action he takes.

In considering the plea of insanity the antecedent and the subsequent conduct of the man are no doubt, relevant to show what was the state of the mind of the accused at the time the act was committed, but the state of the mind at the time of doing the act is the chief thing to be taken into consideration.

In a murder case, the evidence was that the accused after fatally stabbing the deceased constable, stabbed another constable who had come to apprehend him and chased him for some distance but then retraced and ran away from the scene. He travelled in bus and when he was about to get into the railway station, the driver of Police Jeep who was following him arrested him. The accused attempted to stab him which was warded off. There was also evidence that blood stains found on his shirt, were removed by him with lime :

Held, that all these actions indicate that the accused had known that what he had done was wrong or contrary to law and that he had taken steps to conceal the crime. In the circumstances the plea of insanity was rightly rejected : 14 Cr App Rep 48; AIR 1961 SC 998, Foll. (1963) 1 Ker L R 47.

——S. 84 –Plea of insanity –Burden of proof.

When a plea of insanity is raised under S. 84, I. P. Code, the Court has to consider two questions. Firstly whether the accused has shown that at the time of committing the act he was of unsound mind. Secondly, if he was of unsound mind, whether he has established that the unsoundness of mind was of a degree and nature to satisfy one of the knowledge tests laid down by S. 84. The crucial point of time in deciding whether the benefit of S. 84 should be given or not is the time when the offence took place. The burden of proving the existence of circumstances for bringing his case within the exception under S. 84 is on the accused. This must be proved affirmatively. The accused cannot get the benefit of S. 84 by merely creating a reasonable doubt in the mind of the Court about the existence of circumstances which bring his case within the exception. AIR 1941 All 402, Diss. 1956 Madh B L J 1274 : 1957 Cri L J 370 : AIR 1957 Madh B 104 (105) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 84—Insanity—Plea of - Onus.

The law presumes every one to be of sound mind until the contrary is proved, and the burden of proving that he was not criminally responsible for the crime by reason of his 'unsoundness of mind' is on the accused. Even in cases where a person subject to attack of insanity has lucid intervals, the law presumes the offence to have been committed in a lucid interval. The accused would therefore, be better advised when setting up the plea of 'unsoundness of mind' to specify the type of disorder because mental disorders have now been fairly well classified and their essential characteristics described in some detail in medical text books, which makes it easier to appearance the evidence bearing on the point in record. 1959 M P L J 344 : 1959 M P C 289 : 1959 Cri L J 844 : 1959 Jab L J 386 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 259 (261) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 84—Insanity—Plea of—Onus.

All persons who have reached the age of discretion are presumed to be sane, and criminally responsible, and in cases where person subject to attacks of insanity has lucid intervals, the law presumes the offence of such person to have been committed in a lucid interval, unless it appears to have been committed in the time of his distemper. It lies on the accused to prove that he was insane at the time of the commission of an offence, so as not to be liable to punishment as a sane person. AIR 1955 Pat 209, Dissented from. AIR 1956 Nag 187, Relied on. 1959 Jab L J 505 : 1959 M P C 240 : 1959 M P L J 336 : 1959 Cr L J 718 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 203 (205) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 84—Plea of insanity—Burden of proof.

A plea under S. 84 of the Indian Penal Code implies an admission on the part of the accused that the acts for which he was prosecuted were done by him.

Where in a trial for murder of his wife and two children, the accused totally denies his guilt but at the same time sets up a plea of insanity, the accused has got to establish that while he killed his wife and children, by reason of unsoundness of mind, he was incapable of knowing the nature of his acts. The burden of establishing this plea is fairly and squarely on the accused. AIR 1960 Mys 48, Rel. on. 1961 (2) Cr L J 250 : 39 Mys L J 288 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 313 : ILR (1961) Mys 286.

——S. 84—Murder—Accused charged with — Plea of unsoundness of mind set up—Burden lies heavily on him to prove unsoundness — He must prove that he was totally deprived of his understanding and memory —Held, accused failed to discharge burden of proof. See Penal Code (1860) S. 302. 1963 (1) Cri L J 213 : AIR 1963 Orissa 33 (DB).

4 (C). Unsoundness of mind.

——S. 84—Insanity — Burden of proof—Conduct of accused—Moody or pensive state of mind or eccentricity or character of crime — Sufficiency. It would certainly be dangerous to a defence of insanity upon arguments merely derived from the character of the crime. 1960 All L J 74 : 1960 Cr L J 768 : AIR 1960 All 333 (335) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——S. 84 –Absence of proof of motive does not necessarily lead to inference of insanity of accused— Cognitive faculties of accused not shown to have been affected—Defence of insanity not available.

The accused who was prosecuted for murder of his wife and two of his three daughters aged 6 years and 6 months pleaded insanity as defence. Although the evidence of witnesses showed that he had given to the witnesses two motives that he had suspicion about character of his wife and that he felt that he was possessed or some deity and that impelled him to commit the murder, it was argued for the defence that motive was not proved.

Held, that even assuming that no motive was proved, it was not correct to say that failure of the proof of motive must lead to an inference that the person was insane. The remarks of Bramwell B. in 175 E. R. 898, quoted in ILR 1948 Nag 711 at page 733 were Rel. on.

It could not be accepted that because the accused committed the murders of his wife and two of his three daughters that fact itself should result in an inference of insanity. This would only mean that the perpetration of crimes was to be excused by their very atrocity. ILR 1948 Nag 711 (729), Rel. on.

To establish the defence of insanity it must prove that at the time of committing the act, the accused was labouring under such a defect of reason or from disease of mind as not to know the nature or quality of the act he was doing, or if he did know it that he did not know that he was doing what was wrong. The facts did not show that the cognitive faculties of the accused were affected. A mere irresistible impulse or hallucination would not attract S. 84, I. P. C. 1963 Mah L J (Notes) 24.

——S. 84—Applicability.

In order that S. 84 may come into play it has to be established that an accused is of unsound mind and his faculties are so impaired that he did not know the nature of the act done by him or that what he is doing is either wrong or contrary to law.

Every person who is mentally diseased is not ipso facto exempted from criminal responsibility. 1961 (2) Cri L J 475 (Him Pra).

——S. 84 — Principle — Essential conditions for applicability of section.

S. 84 embodies the fundamental maxim of criminal law — 'Actus non facit reum nisi mens sit rea' (An act does not constitute guilt unless done with a guilty intention). In order to constitute crime, the intent and act must concur, but in the case of insane persons, no culpability is fastened on them as they have no free will (furiosi nullo voluntas est).

It is necessary for the application of S. 84, I. P. C., to show (1) that the accused was of unsound mind; (2) that he was of unsound mind at the time he did the act and not merely before or after the act; and (3) as a result of unsoundness of mind he was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law. 1960 Ker L T 1116 : 1960 Ker L J 1375 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 356 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 135 (140) (Pt D) (Pr 34) (DB) (Ker).

S. 84 — Applicability — Unsoundness of mind— Effect on guilt.

Where an accused had stabbed his wife and child for no apparent reason and then tried to commit suicide by causing injuries on his neck and abdomen.

Held, that in absence of evidence of the state of mind of the accused at the actual time of the commission of the offence, the mere alleged physical weakness, which made the accused moody and silent and at times affected his mind is not sufficient to bring his case within the provisions of S. 84. The presumption of sanity remains unweakened by any evidence of earlier insanity. 1957 Ker L J 765 : 1958 Cri L J 513 : 1957 Ker L T 761 : AIR 1958 Ker 80 (81)(Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 84 and 302 — Offence under S. 302 — Plea of insanity — Mere establishing that some time prior to occurrence accused suffered from derangement of mind, will not be sufficient to bring case under exemption — Burden lies on accused to prove mental condition, at crucial point of time, such as described under S 84—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

It was established beyond reasonable doubt by the evidence on record that the accused who had been denied, by his father on the day of occurrence, an immediate partition and also denied funds for starting some business and who had a grouse against his stepmother in whose favour his father had transferred valuable lands, had committed murder of his father by cutting the deceased with an aruval. A plea of exemption under S. 84 was raised on behalf of the accused. The Sessions Judge remarked that the accused looked a little saturnine but was certainly sane. It was found on evidence that about several months back of the occurrence the accused was in a demented condition. The evidence was not clear as to what was the mental condition of the accused during the period of dementia. The evidence did not show that at any time immediately preceding the occurrence, the accused was of unsound mind, and there was also nothing on record to show that the subsequent mental history of the accused was anything not normal. The evidence made it clear that the accused perfectly understood what he was about.

Held that the accused had deliberately committed the murder knowing what he was about and that he was doing wrong. Hence he was not entitled to the benefit of the exemption provided in S. 84.

Merely establishing that sometime prior to the occurrence the accused had suffered from the derangement of mind and that even subsequently he had behaved in a strange manner or had been taciturn, moody or saturnine would not be sufficient to bring his case under exemption. To attract the provisions of S. 84, it must be established that the person, at the time of doing the act, was by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law, and that he was labouring under such a defect of reason as not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing or if he did know it, that he did not know he was doing what was wrong. The burden of proof that the mental condition of the accused at the crucial point of time was such as is described by S. 84, lay on the accused who claimed the benefit of this exemption. AIR 1961 S C 998 and ILR 23 Cal 604, Followed. 1964 Mad W N 442 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 44 : (1965) 2 Mad L J 489 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 878 : ILR (1965) 1 Mad 76 : AIR 1965 Mad 283 (285, 286) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——S. 84 — What amounts to.

A moody and pensive temperament and at the highest some eccentricity and abnormality of behaviour, does not in the least indicate an unsoundness of mind. 1955 Cri L J 1628 : 8 Sau L R 269 : AIR 1955 Sau 105 (106) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

5. Drunkenness.

——Ss. 84, 85 and 86 — Applicability — Drunkenness how far an excuse for commission of offence.

Voluntary drunkenness is no excuse for the commission of a crime. If a man knew what the natural consequences of his acts were, he must be presumed to have intended to cause them. Section 85 deals with the question of the knowledge possessed by an accused person of the time he commits the offence and leaves quite open the question of intention. On the question as to how far drunkenness is an excuse for a crime, the proper test is that laid down in the case 1920 A C 479.

There is a distinction between the defence of insanity in the true sense caused by excessive drunkenness and the defence of drunkenness which produces a condition such that the drunken man's mind becomes incapable of forming a specific intention. If actual insanity in fact supervenes as the result of alcoholic excess, it furnishes as complete an answer to a criminal charge as insanity induced by any other cause. But in cases falling short of insanity, evidence of drunkenness which merely establishes that the mind of the accused was so affected by drink that he more readily gave way to some violent passion does not rebut the presumption that man intends the natural consequences of his acts. Russell on Crime p. 63, 10th Edn. and AIR 1956 S C 488, Rel. on. 1957 All L J 572 : 1957 All W R (H C) 494 : 1957 Cri L J 1056 : AIR 1957 All 667 (670) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

6. Occasional or recurring insanity.

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Temporary insanity — Presumption of law—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

The law presumes every person at the age of discretion to be sane unless the contrary is proved; and even if a lunatic has lucid intervals, the law presumes the offence of such person to have been committed in a lucid interval, until it has been proved that it was committed during a state of derangement. It would be most dangerous to admit a defence of insanity upon arguments merely derived from the character of the crime. The mere fact that it was attended with uncommon ferocity could alone not suffice for the inference that the accused had a deranged mind. ('50) ILR (1950) 2 Assam 423: AIR 1951 Assam 79 (81) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 84 and 300 — Accused killing mother during period of epileptic insanity — Act is saved by S. 84.

The accused was subject to periodic epileptic fits from his childhood and symptoms of an impending epileptic seizure were seen on the day he killed his aged mother. The evidence showed that three weapons, namely, a bill-book, a wooden reaper and a stick of firewood were used in the attack, that the assault continued for some time, that the accused's reply to the deceased plea not to kill his old mother was that she deserved something more than mere killing and that the accused made no attempt whatsoever either to conceal his crime or the scape from the scene. It was suggested that the accused's occasional quarrels with his mother over the quality of food which she served him constituted motive for the crime.

Held, that it would be puerile to hold that an occasional quarrel over the quality of meals would motivate a mature man to hack to death his old and defenceless mother. The complete absence of motive or provocation, the nature and multiplicity of the weapons used, the duration of attack the maniacal fury with which the attack was delivered and his subsequent conduct were all indications that the accused was acting under some insane impulse, and therefore his act was saved by S. 84 from constituting the offence. 1959 Ker L J 855 : 1959 Ker L R 864 : 1959 Ker L T 864: 1960 Cri L J 73 : 1959 Mad L J (Cri) 883 : AIR 1960 Ker 24 (26, 27) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

—S. 84 — Scope — Sentence—Mental condition of accused — Mental delusion — Temporary insanity — Effect.

The accused laboured under a strong delusion of unfaithfulness of his wife. The brooding over the character of his wife took the form of a kind of temporary insanity. Disturbed by the thoughts about the unchastity of his wife, during the night of occurrence, the accused caused her death by throwing nitric acid upon her. The Medical evidence showed that he was capable of knowing what he was doing and had ordinary concept of right and wrong. Held, that the accused was guilty under S. 302. But this was not a fit case for the extreme penalty provided for the offence. (Death sentence reduced in appeal to transportation for life). See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1958 Cri L J 555 : AIR 1958 Punj 104 (DB).

7. Somnambulism.

——Ss. 84 and 302—Applicability — Mother killing child and attempting suicide—Unsoundness of mind —Somnambulism — If good plea in defence.

Where a mother killed her child by throwing it into a well and attempted to suicide by throwing herself into the same well and a plea of somnambulism was set up in defence.

Held, Somnambulism is the unconscious state known as sleep-walking and might constitute a good ground for exemption from criminal liability if it could be established that the act was done while in that state of mind. Somnambulism; if proved, will constitute that unsoundness of mind attracting the application of S. 84. (1959) 1 M L J 125 : 1959 M L J (Cr) 147 : 1959 Cr L J 724 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 57 : 1959 All Cr R 229 : 1959 Mad W N 49 : AIR 1959 Mad 239 (240, 241, 243, 244, 245) (Prs 8, 9, 10, 12, 14 to 17) (DB).

8. Unsoundness of mind not covered by S. 84 — How far relevant for ascertaining intention.

——S. 84 — Plea of insanity — Burden of proof — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

The burden of proving the plea of insanity is on the accused. He has to establish that by reason of the unsoundness of mind he was incapable of knowing the nature of the act and could not realise that what he was doing was wrong or contrary to law. A disease or derangement of the mind, which materially impairs or leads to a temporary suspension of the cognitive faculty at the time of the offence can alone form the basis of exemption if the nature and the extent of the unsoundness of mind reaches a stage when it is not possible for the person concerned to distinguish between right and wrong. ('50) I L R (1950) 2 Assam 423 : AIR 1951 Assam 79 (81) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 84 — Applicability — Unbalanced mind.

Where a person is not insane but is unbalanced and excited, and probably is in some kind of obsession or hallucination, S. 84 cannot be invoked in his favour as he cannot be said to be not knowing the nature of act or that he was doing a wrong act while cutting the neck of a person. 63 Mad L W 442 : 1950 Mad W N 335 : 51 Cri L J 1329 : (1950) 1 Mad L J 813 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 91 : AIR 1950 Mad 576 (576) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

9. Unsoundness of mind not covered by S. 84 — Punishment

——S. 84 — Insanity — What amounts to — Accused working himself up into state of great fury —Accused dominated by violent impulse, resulting in some kind of mental derangement — Abnormal conduct due to intensity of anger — Plea of insanity cannot be sustained. AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 2852 (DB).

——Ss. 84 and 302 — Offence of murder — Accused making extra-judicial confessions — Weapon used in committing offence discovered at his instance — Held, his conviction was proper — Accused also could not take benefits of S. 84.

The accused immediately after killing his wife made a confession to his son and daughter. The confession consisted of a single line that the applicant had killed the mother of the chidren. He made similar confessions, to his brother-in-law and other persons. Another piece of evidence, which connected the accused with the crime, was the discovery from a bush, at his instance of a Takwa with which he killed, his wife. The takwa was stained with human blood. The motive for the crime was that the accused suspected his wife's loyalty and he believed even to the extent that she attempted to poison him, so that she could live with his own younger brother thereafter. The accused also claimed the benefit of S. 84 and denied his confessions.

Held, that the accused had failed to prove that he was of unsound mind at the time of committing the crime and was incapable of knowing the nature of his act. He was not therefore entitled to the benefit of S. 84 and was rightly convicted under S. 302 The extra-judicial confessions made by the accused were voluntarily made and could be used along with other evidence for convicting the accused. AIR 1959 S C 902, Rel. on.

Unless the contrary is proved, every man is presumed to be sane and to possess a sufficient degree of reason to be responsible for his acts. There was no evidence to show that the accused had ever suffered from any attack of insanity. From the evidence that the accused had asked his wife to accompany him to the jungle, he had taken a Takwa with him, and after committing the crime, he had concealed the Takwa in a bush, the inference was that the accused was conscious that he had committed an act which was wrong or contrary to law and that the blood-stained Takwa would furnish a clue to the commission of the unlawful act. AIR 1961 S C 998 and AIR 1959 Madh Pra 259 and AIR 1917 Pat 503 and AIR 1918 Pat 179 (S B), Rel. on. It could not be concluded, from the mere fact that the accused did not abscond after the commission of the crime and made open confession of his guilt to several persons, that he was of unsound mind and was incapable of knowing the nature of his act. 1965(2) Cri L J 765 :

AIR 1965 Him Pra 68 (70, 71) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 20, 23, 24).

——S. 84 — Presumption under S. 105, Evidence Act — Insanity — Burden of proof — Accused killed his wife and severed her head — Admission — Death sentence confirmed. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1957 Mad L J (Cri) 803 (Ker).

——S. 84 — Though insanity at the time of murder is not legally proved still, previous mental derangement has to be taken into consideration. In such cases, policy of High Courts has been to inflict the lesser punishment of transportation for life. 1956 M B L R (Cri) 258 : 1956 M B L J 1008.

——Ss. 84, 302 — Multiple murders — Accused not insane—No motive—Sentence—(Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 401 and 367) — In cases of multiple murders, where an accused is clearly not insane in the sense that he did not know what he was doing, and clearly knew what he was about, the courts cannot take upon themselves the responsibility of recommending for a comparatively short period of imprisonment, to a man who has once been a victim to homicidal frenzy and expose innocent persons to a similar attack after his release from prison. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 302. 1953 Cri L J 625 : AIR 1952 Mad 289 (DB).

——Ss. 84, 302 — Death caused on account of anger due to hunger — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 401.

Where the accused stated that he caused the death of four children on account of anger caused by hunger :

Held, that as the accused ran to the police station surrendered himself and produced the weapon with which the crime was committed, he fully knew that he was committing homicide and also knew that the act was both wrong and contrary to law. Hence S. 84 did not apply. (Under the circumstances, however, the death sentence was reduced to transportation for life and accused was recommended under S. 401, Criminal P. C.). 63 Mad L W 300 : (1950) 1 Mad L J 465 : 1950 Mad W N 339: 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 95 : 51 Cri L J 1491 : AIR 1950 Mad 592 (592, 593) (Prs 2, 3, 4) (DB).

——S. 84 — Sentence — Accused cutting neck of a person by aruval—Though not insane, accused proved to be unbalanced and excited — Accused held not in normal mind — Death sentence reduced to that of transportation for life. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 302. 51 Cri L J 1329 : AIR 1950 Mad 576 (DB).

——S. 84—Proof of insanity.

To establish the plea of insanity under S. 84 the accused has to show that he was of unsound mind at the time of the commission of the act and that by reason of this unsoundness of the mind he was incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that what he was doing was either wrong or contrary to law. It is not enough to prove mere mental derangement or what is termed as medical insanity.

History of the accused before the offence and his conduct during and after the offence are sure criteria for judging his mental state.

Where all that was established was that the accused was suffering from insomnia which might have brought about nervousness of mind and the conduct of the accused after killing his wife in running away when a hue and cry was raised: and his discarding of blood-stained clothes and attempt to remove blood stains from his body by rubbing it out by earth;

Held, that this left no doubt that whether the accused was mentally weak or not at the time of committing the murder he fully understood the nature of his act and that therefore his plea of insanity could not stand. 1955 Cri L J 63 : 7 Sau L R 40 : AIR 1955 Sau 13 (14, 15) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 7).

10. Criminal responsibility of deaf and dumb.

——Ss. 84 and 302 — Criminal responsibility of deaf and dumb —Charge under S. 302—Accused cannot be exempted from punishment merely because he is deaf and dumb—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 341. (1960) 2 Ker L R 206.

——S. 84 — Accused congenitally deaf and dumb, murdering his father—Incapability of understanding nature of act—Evidence of conduct before and after murder—Accused held not guilty. A I R 1953 Orissa 30 (31) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

SECTION 85

——S. 85—Scope—Drunkenness how far an excuse for commission of offence.

Drunkenness makes no difference to the knowledge with which a man is credited and if a man knew what the natural consequences of his acts were, he must be presumed to have intended to cause them—S. 85 deals with the question of the knowledge possessed by an accused person of the time he commits the offence and leaves quite open the question of intention. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1957 Cri L J 1056 : AIR 1957 All 667 (DB).

——S. 85—Plea of intoxication — When available — Accused drinking liquor at persuasion of his father to alleviate pain —Effect.

In order to bring a case within S. 85, Penal Code, the thing which intoxicated the person should have been administered to him without his knowledge or against his will. The expression without his knowledge simply means in ignorance of the fact that what is being administered to him is or contains or is mixed with an intoxicant. An act which is against the 'will' must be an act which the performer performed not out of his own conscious volition but on compulsion by some outside agency by overpowering or paralysing his will by overt physical acts. Normal persuasion acting as an incentive has never been considered as an adequate excuse. Where the accused drank liquor at the persuasion of his father to alleviate his pain, it cannot be said that the administration of liquor to him was against his will and, therefore, he could not claim any benefit under S. 85, Penal Code. 1960 M P C 316 : 1960 Cri L J 1093 (2) : 1960 M P L J 615: 1960 Jab L J 652: AIR 1960 Madh Pra 242 (243, 244) (Prs 7, 9, 11) (DB).

——Ss. 85, 86, 300—Scope of—Drunkenness—When proper defence.

The state of intoxication envisaged in S. 86 is not in any way different from that contemplated in the preceding section. Both Ss. 85 and 86, Penal Code, lay down the law relating to drunkenness as bearing on the wrongful acts committed by persons; the difference between the two sections being with regard to consequences depending upon whether the drunkenness is involuntary or voluntary. The absence of qualifying words in S. 86 cannot lead to the inference that even if the insobriety is not such as to impair the reason of the offender the requisite intent cannot be presumed.

It is an ordinary rule that every man is presumed to intend the consequences of his acts but this presumption can be rebutted by showing that the person concerned could not have formed the intent by reason of his drunkenness. It is only in cases where it is proved that the prisoner was in such a condition of drunkenness that his reason was "dethroned" and was incapable of forming any intention, that the defence of drunkenness would be available. A I R 1926 Lah 232; A I R 1926 Lah 428; A I R 1934 Rang 361 and A I R 1953 Mad 827, Rel. on; 1920 A C 479, Expl.

Held, on facts that the offence committed by the appellant was one of murder and his voluntary drunkenness did not avail him to reduce the offence to one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. 1954 Cri L J 672 : 1953 Mad W N 941 : A I R 1954 Mad 523 (526, 527) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 17, 20).

——Ss. 85, 86 and 300 — Intoxicated person killing another by repeated stab wounds — Requisite knowledge and intention can be presumed—Offence cannot be reduced to one under S. 304 — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 14).

A person, who gets into a state of intoxication voluntarily, is presumed to have the same knowledge he would have had if he had not been intoxicated. When the state of intoxication is such as to make him incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law, he can only be punished on the basis of knowledge and not of a particular intention. The words "state of intoxication" in S. 86 can only mean intoxication, which renders a person incapable of knowing the nature of the act in question or that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law when he commits it. It would be extremely dangerous to extend the protection under S. 86 to persons, who commit serious offences under the influence of liquor in varying stages and differentiate culpability in their favour as opposed to similar offences by perfectly sober persons.

Intention, of course, in many cases, is an inference from knowledge. As an intoxicated man is assumed to have the knowledge, he must, in the generality of cases, be assumed to have had the intention. But there may be cases in which a person by reason of intoxication may, under certain circumstances, be incapable of knowing the nature of a particular act he commits or that it is either wrong or contrary to law, although his stage of intoxication may not be such as to render him incapable of knowing the nature of all his acts. In such cases, in determining the quality of the offence, evidence may be necessary of a specific state of mind, which must be found as a fact and not assumed. It is only in such cases, which are rare, that S. 86 can be invoked by a person in some stage of intoxication to mitigate culpability, and to limit it to knowledge without inference of criminal intention, where the offence with which he is charged, such as murder, requires proof of a specific intention.

A man, who keeps on stabbing a person in vital parts, must clearly be presumed to know the consequences of his acts and it is not open to him to plead that he was so drunk at the time as not to know or intend what he was doing. Such a defence based on the distinction between knowledge and intention in S. 86, Penal Code cannot be put forward to reduce the offence to one under S. 304, Penal Code. (1909) 1 K B 895; 33 Mad 479, Rel. on. ('52) 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 88 : 1952 Mad W N 384 : 1952-1 Mad L J 772 : 1953 Cri L J 1587 : A I R 1953 Mad 827 (828, 829) (Prs 5, 7, 8) (DB).

——S. 85—Voluntary drunkenness.

Voluntary drunkenness is no excuse for the commission of a crime. In such a case the Court will not attach any importance to the fact that the accused was drunk and will draw the natural inferences which follows from the acts of the accused. 1951 Raj L W 386 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 526 (DB).

SECTION 86

■——S. 86—Scope—Offence committed under intoxication—Knowledge and intention—Inference of.

While the first part of the section speaks of intent or knowledge, the latter part deals only with knowledge and a certain element of doubt in interpretation may possibly be felt by reason of this omission. So far as knowledge is concerned the Court must attribute to the intoxicated man the same knowledge as if he was quite sober. But so far as intent or intention is concerned, the Court must gather it from the attending general circumstances of the case paying due regard to the degree of intoxication. Was the man beside his mind altogether for the time being? If so it would not be possible to fix him with the requisite intention. But if he had not gone so deep in drinking, and from the facts it could be found that he knew what he was about the Court can apply the rule that a man is presumed to intend the natural consequences of his act or acts. Basdev v. State of Pepsu, 1956 Mad W N 858 : 1956 S C J 554 : 1956 Cri L J 919 (2) : 1956 Andh L T 593 : 1956 S C A 695 : 1956 S C C 276 : 1956 Nag L J 711 : 1956 All L J 666 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 118 : 58 Punj L R 569: 1956 S C R 363 : 1956 M P L J 151 : AIR 1956 S C 488 (489, 490) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

●——Ss. 86, 300, 302 and 304 (Part II) — Applicability—Murder under influence of drink—No evidence to show accused's incapacity to form requisite intention—Offence.

The appellant, a retired military Jamadar, was charged with the murder of a young boy aged about 15 or 16. Both of them and others of the same village went to attend a wedding in another village. All of them went to the house of the bride to take the midday meal on the 12th March, 1954. Some had settled down in their seats and some had not. The appellant who was very drunk and intoxicated asked the young boy to step aside a little so that he may occupy a convenient seat. But he did not move. The appellant whipped out a pistol and shot the boy in the abdomen. The injury proved fatal. It was found that although the accused was under the influence of drink, he was not so much under its influence that his mind was so obscured by the drink that there was incapacity in him to form the required intention.

Held, that the offence was not reduced from murder to culpable homicide not amounting to murder under the second part of S. 304 of the Indian Penal Code by reason of the provisions of S. 86 of the Code. Basdeo v. State of Pepsu, 1956 Mad W N 858 : 1956 S C R 363 : 1956 M P L J 151 : 1956 Cr L J 919 (2) : 1956 S C J 554 : 1956 Andh L T 593 : 1956 S C A 695 : 1956 S C C 276 : 1956 Nag L J 711 : 1956 All L J 666 : 1956 All W R (Supp) 118 : 58 Punj L R 569 : AIR 1956 S C 488 (492) (Pt C) (Pr 16).

——S. 86—Scope—Drunkenness how far an excuse for commission of offence.

Voluntary drunkenness is no excuse for the commission of a crime. On the question as to how far drunkenness is an excuse for a crime, the proper test is that laid down in the case of Director of Public Prosecutions v. Beard, 1920 A C 479. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1957 Cri L J 1056 : AIR 1957 All 667 (DB).

——Ss. 86 and 300—Offence of murder—Defence of drunkenness, when available.

It is only in cases where it is proved that the prisoner was in such a condition of drunkenness that his reason was 'dethroned and was incapable of forming any intention, that the defence of drunkenness would be available.' The degree of intoxication is the criterion. If the man was beside his mind altogether for the time being it would not be possible to fix him with the requisite intention. AIR 1956 S C 488 and AIR 1954 Mad 528, Rel. on.

Held, on facts that as the accused though drunk had not gone so 'deep in drinking' as not to know what he was about. It was not possible to reduce the offence from murder to one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder because of the accused's voluntary drunkenness. 1959 Ker L R 614 : 1950 Ker L J 623 : 1959 Ker L T 634.

——S. 86—Scope of — Drunkenness — When proper defence. Every man is presumed to intend the consequencess of his acts but this presumption can be rebutted by showing that the person concerned could not have found the intent by reason of his drunkenness. It is only in cases where it is proved that the accused was in such a condition of drunkenness that his reason was dethroned and was incapable of forming any intention, that defence of drunkenness would be available. See Penal Code (1860), S. 85. 55 Cr L J 672 : AIR 1954 Mad 523 (DB).

——Ss. 86, 85 and 300 — Intoxicated person killing another by repeated stab wounds — Requisite knowledge and intention can be presumed - Offence cannot be reduced to one under S. 304—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 14). See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 85. 1952-1 Mad L J 772 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 88 : 1952 Mad W N 384 : 1953 Cri L J 1587 : AIR 1953 Mad 827 (DB).

——S. 86—Plea of drunkenness as defence when available to accused.

The act done by a person in a state of intoxication would become an offence unless it is shown that the thing which intoxicated him was administered to him without his knowledge or against his will. In other words, if a man drinks and commits an offence, then he would be guilty of the offence charged against him. The law imputes to a person who is drunk the same knowledge as he would have had if he had not been intoxicated, unless the state of intoxication has been brought about without his knowledge or against his will. (1960) 38 Mys L J 603.

——Ss. 86, 300, 304—Offence by drunken person—Presumption as to guilty intention—Law discussed.

The omission of any reference to 'intent'' in the second part of S. 86 though it is expressly referred to in the first part was deliberate. The result is that though by virtue of the said section at Court may presume guilty knowledge, the Court cannot presume guilty intention in judging the nature of the offence committed by a drunken person. But the guilty intention which is the ingredient of several offences in the Penal Code is obviously not capable of direct proof and is generally inferred from the proved facts and circumstances of each case. There is the general presumption that every man intended the natural consequences of his act. Intention may ordinarily be inferred from knowledge and if guilty knowledge can be presumed by virtue of S. 86, I. P. Code, it necessarily follows that guilty intention may also be reasonably inferred unless there are some other facts and circumstances to repel such an inference.

Where a drunken person commits an offence, there will be no presumption of guilty intention under S. 86, I. P. Code and such intention must be proved like any other fact in issue. But the Court may, after presuming the necessary guilty knowledge from that section on the assumption that he committed the act while in a sober condition, infer the guilty intention also if the other proved facts and circumstances justify the same. There may be different degrees of intoxication and if the evidence merely shows that the accused more readily gave way to violent passion because or his drunken condition it may be reasonably inferred that he intended the natural consequences of his acts. If, however, the evidence shows that he was in such a state of intoxication as to be incapable of forming the specific intent, drunkenness may be ground for altering the nature of the offence.

The accused who was drunk demanded food and drink, then quarrelled with his father, who called him a glutter, dragged him down and tried to throttle him. At that time he had no weapon in his hand. When his brother intervened and separated the two his father tried to assault him but his brother again intervened. Then the accused ran to a place about 32 cubits away, pulled out a heavy wooden post which had been fixed to a fence and gave a terrific blow on the head of his father and ran away ;

Held, that these acts indicated much deliberation on his part and they were incompatible with the alternative theory that due to his intoxicated condition he was incapable of forming the specific intent necessary for the commission of the crime. When he gave such a blow he intended to cause such an injury as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death and his action would come within clause '3rdly' of S. 300, I. P. Code.

Held also that it could not be said that the accused was in such a state of intoxication as to be incapable of forming any intent at all. Therefore the accused was also guilty of murder under clause '2ndly' of S. 300, I. P. C. 52 Cri L J 1136 : AIR 1951 Orissa 354 (355 to 357) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 12, 13, 14, 19, 20) (DB).

——S. 86—Drunken man—Presumption of intention—Proof of incapacity to form intent.

Even a drunken man is presumed to intend the natural consequences of his act, unless he proves incapacity in himself to form the intent necessary to constitute the crime and the fact that his mind was merely affected by drink that he readily gave way to some violent passion provides him no defence. 17 Ind Cas 800 (L B) (F B) and 1920 A C 479, Foll. 1955 Cr L J 1621 : I L R (1955) Pepsu 646 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 165 (167) (Pt A) (Pr 21) (DB).

——S. 86—Drunkenness—Presumption of intention.

Evidence of drunkenness falling short of a proved incapacity in the accused to form the intent necessary to constitute the crime, and merely establishing that his mind was affected by drink, so that he more readily gave way to some violent passion; does not rebut the presumption that a man intends the natural consequences of his acts. 1920 A C 479, Relied on. 56 Punj L R 339 : 1955 Cri L J 305 : AIR 1955 Punj 13 (15, 16) (Pt A) (Prs 27, 42) (DB).

——Ss. 86, 300 & 302—Death caused by gun shot by person intoxicated—Punishment.

It is not even necessary to aim the gun at any particular person in order to bring the case under the fourth clause to S. 300, provides the nature of the act is such that it is so imminently dangerous that any man should know that it will, in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death. Unless it can be proved that the person shooting is such a crack-shot that his aiming at a particular part of the body would result in an injury there and nowhere else in an ordinary case shooting with a gun must be held to be such an imminently dangerous act that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death and the case would be covered by the fourth clause to S. 300.

Where the evidence is that the accused took aim and shots struck near about the umbilicus and that the accused was intoxicated it cannot be predicated that his intention was to hit the deceased so carefully that it might not cause death.

If there is no evidence of motive and the accused was certainly drunk at that time ends of justice would be met by awarding the lesser penalty of transportation for life. AIR 1935 Cal 580, Dissent., AIR 1917 Lah 226; AIR 1930 Pat 168, Rel. on. 1952 Raj L W 145 : 1953 Cri L J 434: I L R (1951) 1 Raj 727: AIR 1953 Raj 40 (41, 42) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Ss. 86 and 302—Intoxication—Sentence.

Drunkenness will not certainly be a ground for palliation where there is premeditation or where the self intoxication is with the intention of priming himself for a quarrel, during which a murder is committed, by the accused. If the attack is a premeditated one the mere fact that the accused had taken some liquor should not be regarded as a sufficient reason for not imposing the penalty of death. Where however the accused did not get himself intoxicated in order to strengthen himself in any quarrel with deceased and the meeting with the deceased was purely accidental and the attack a sudden one and without a motive, the lesser sentence of transportation for life is the proper one. I L R (1953) Trav-Co 659.

SECTION 87

——Ss. 87, 81 and 88 — Complainant committing indecent assault on girl — Members of girl's community assembling with lathis in front of complainant's house and taking threatening attitude — Matter referred to Panchayat—Complainant giving consent in writing — Face of complainant blackened and complainant paraded and given shoe beating in pursuance of Panchayat's decision — Action of accused held bona fide and for benefit of complainant to avert greater harm —No offence held committed by person responsible for such acts. See Penal Code (1860), S. 81. 52 Cri L J 179 : AIR 1951 All 500.

——Ss. 87, 80 and 304A — Accused and deceased friends — Former inviting latter for wrestling bout— Whilst wrestling deceased receiving accidental injury on his skull resulting in death—No foul play by accused — Case falls under Ss. 80 and 87—Accused held committed no offence. 51 Cri L J 402 : AIR 1950 All 95 (96) (Pr 7).

SECTION 88

——Ss. 88, 81, 87 —Complainant committing indecent assault on girl — Members of girl's community assembling with lathis in front of complainant's house and taking threatening attitude — Matter referred to Panchayat—Complainant giving consent in writing— Face of complainant blackened and complainant paraded and given shoe beating in pursuance of Panchayat's decision — Action of accused held bona fide for benefit of complainant to avert greater harm—No offence held committed by person responsible for such acts. See Penal Code (1860), S. 81. 52 Cri L J 179 : AIR 1951 All 500.

——S. 88 — Teacher administering corporal punishment to student aged 13 years. exceeding limits prescribed by Board of Secondary Education — Teacher still held entitled to benefit of exception under S. 88—Educational Institutions—Teacher and Pupil.

A complainant who was a student aged 13 years was found to have stolen a book of another student in the school. The petitioner who was the Head Master of the school beat him with a cane and also gave him some fists and blows. While administering the corporal punishment, the petitioner exceeded the limits prescribed by the Board of Secondary Education. From the medical evidence it appeared that there were 5 ecchymosis but all of them were of minor nature. One tooth was found loose and that could have been caused by some blow.

Held, that the petitioner was entitled to the benefit of the exception contained in S. 88 of Penal Code and, therefore, had not committed any offence under S. 323 of Penal Code and therefore had not committed any offence under S. 323 of Penal Code. From the facts it could not be said that the beating was intended to cause death. Even from the medical report it could not be said that the action of the petitioner was mala fide, not in good faith. The motive for the beating was very relevant for determining if it was in good faith. There was no doubt that the petitioner's move was to correct the complainant for his future good and to maintain discipline in the school.

Corporal punishment, according to the circular of the Board of Secondary Education was to be administered because the petitioner exceeded the limits prescribed by to inflict pain only without any bodily injury. But by merely the administrative circular of the Board of Secondary Education, it could not be said that the petitioner had deprived himself of the protection given to him under S. 88 of Penal Code, because the circular of the Board of Secondary Education could not and did not override the provisions of Penal Code. The mere fact that he exceeded the limits prescribed by the circular of the Board of Secondary Education does not prove that the petitioner did not act in good faith.

When a boy was sent by his parent or guardian to a school, the parent or the guardian must be said to have an implied consent to his being under the discipline and control of the School authorities and to the infliction of such reasonable punishment as might be necessary for the purpose of school discipline or for correcting him. Then again when a boy over 12 years of age himself went to a school it should be presumed that he gave an implied consent to subject himself to the discipline and control of the school authorities and to receive such reasonable and moderate corporal punishment as might be necessary for his correction or for maintaining school discipline. Under S. 90 of Penal Code consent could be given by a child not under 12 years of age. The action of the petitioner in administering corporal punishment to the complainant was therefore, covered by S. 88 of Penal Code. (1860) 2 F and F 202 and (1893) 1 Q B 465 and AIR 1926 Rang 107 and AIR 1922 Mad 200 and AIR 1949 Bom 226, Rel. on. 68 Cal W N 1081 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 24 : AIR 1965 Cal 32 (33) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

——S. 88 —Treatment by medical practitioner—Consent and good faith under S. 88—What amounts to— Applicabiilty of section.

No doubt, when a patient puts himself under the treatment of a medical practitioner qualified or otherwise he gives an implied consent to suffer the harm and to take the risk but where the medical practitioner so called, is not qualified or begins to apply a medicine which no man in his senses would dare to apply, the consent is not a consent obtained in good faith. Good faith always implies diligence and caution. If a person sets out to be a doctor without knowing anything of the job, and tries to do the best he could under the circumstances, still he would be acting in bad faith.

Similarly, when a person administers quantities of a poison or a drug known to everybody and to him particularly after his experience as a deadly poison, pretending to treat his patient, there is no good faith at all. The two elements of consent on the part of the patient and of good faith on the part of the medical practitioner are interdependent and nobody can claim the benefit of this exception under S. 88, Penal Code., without good faith. 1963 (1) Cri L J 296 : 1963 M P L J 839 : 1963 Jab L J 959 : A I R 1963 Madh Pra 102 (105) (Pt C) (Pr 32) (DB).

——Ss. 88 and 89 — Punishment to a student for mischief by his teacher is not an offence punishable under Penal Code — Action is protected under S. 89, Penal Code.

Held, on facts that there was no proof of want of care and caution. In the case, the doctor's theory in fact did not fit in with the testimony of eye-witnesses. Notifications prohibiting corporal punishment by the school teacher was not also placed on record and the Court could not take judicial notice of them till they were proved in the manner provided for or under S. 78 of the Evidence Act. 1954 N L J 434 and AIR 1956 M B 138, Foll. Being merely executive instructions they could not overrule the clear provisions of Ss. 88 and 89 of the Penal Code. There could not be any doubt that Ss. 88 and 89 directly applied to the case and the principle of S. 89 of the Penal Code would be available even to a case of a child above the age of 12 years as that of the student in the case. AIR 1922 Mad 200, AIR 1949 Bom 226 and AIR 1962 Mad 216, Foll. The principle which applied both in India and in England was that when a child was sent by his parent or guardian to a school, the parent or guardian must be held to have given an implied consent to its being under the discipline and control of the school authority and to the infliction of such reasonable punishment as might be necessary for purposes of a school discipline and for correcting the child. If the beating had been brutal or the punishment had been administered in a reckless manner without having due care and caution to the safety of the student the teacher could not claim the benefit of protection under S. 88 of the Penal Code, (1938) 3 All E R 517, Dist. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 172.

——Ss. 88, 89—Applicability — School teacher administering corporal punishment to pupil — Teacher's right to benefit of exceptions under Ss. 88 and 89 will depend on nature and severity of punishment inflicted.

Where a teacher exceeds the authority and inflicts such harm to the pupil as may be considered to be unreasonable and immoderate, he would naturally lose the benefit of the exceptions in the form of Ss. 88 and 89. Whether he is entitled to the benefit of the exceptions or not in a given case will depend upon the particular nature, extent and severity of the punishment inflicted. The principle of S. 89 would be available even to a case of a child above the age of 12 years. AIR 1922 Mad 200 : 42 M L J 460 and AIR 1949 Bom 226, Rel. on. 1961 Mad W N 710 : 1962 All Cri R 72 : 1962 All W R (Sup) 27 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 727 : AIR 1962 Mad 216 (218) (Prs 5, 6).

SECTION 89

——Ss. 89 and 88—Punishment to a student for mischief by his teacher is not an offence punishable under Penal Code — Action is protected under S. 89, Penal Code. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 88. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 172.

——Ss. 89, 88—Applicability — School teacher administering corporal punishment to pupil — Teacher's right to benefit of exceptions under Ss. 88 and 89 will depend on nature and severity of punishment inflicted. See Penal Code (1860), S. 88. 1962 (1) Cri L J 727 : AIR 1962 Mad 216.

SECTION 90

——Ss. 90, 378, 410—Theft—Consent, meaning of — Delivery of goods mentioned in railway luggage ticket — Persons taking delivery not entitled to do so — Delivery by Railway clerk under misconception that persons taking delivery were entitled to take it —Ingredients of 'thett' established — Persons found in possession of such goods soon after delivery can be presumed to be in possession of stolen property — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Illus. (a).

A consent given on a misrepresentation of facts is one given under a misconception of facts within the meaning of S. 90, and would not be a valid consent as contemplated under the Penal Code. Where delivery of the goods mentioned in a luggage ticket issued on a passenger ticket by the railway is normally given by the luggage clerk to the bearer on the mere production of the luggage ticket and delivery of such goods was taken from the luggage clerk on production of the luggage ticket by some persons who had no right to those goods and were not entitled to take delivery of the same, it is clear that the luggage clerk, who was in possession of the goods on behalf of the real owner, agreed to deliver the goods against the luggage ticket under a misconception of facts, viz., the persons taking delivery were entitled to take it, and there could be no doubt that the persons taking delivery knew that the railway clerk consented to give delivery under such misconception of facts. Thus, all the ingredients required for a theft are established and the accused found in possession of such goods soon after the theft was committed, i.e., soon after the delivery of the goods in question was taken from the luggage clerk, must be presumed to be in possession of stolen property, under Illus. (a) of S. 114, Evidence Act. ILR 36 Mad 453 and AIR 1916 Lah 414 and AIR 1930 Rang 114 and ILR 1 Bom 610, Rel. on. 64 Bom L R 788 : 1963 Mah L J 157 : ILR (1962) Bom 735 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 573 : AIR 1963 Bom 74 (77, 78) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——Ss. 90, 300, Exception 5, 302 and 304 (Part I) — Applicability — Wife agreeing to suffer death at the hand of husband—Husband killing wife—Offence — Sentence—Ss. 300, Excep. 5, 302 and 304.

The accused was a student of Class X. He had failed at the annual examination for three years in succession. His wife, aged 19, was a literate woman. The accused was very much upset at these failures and took his last failure so much to heart that he decided to end his life and informed the wife of his decision. His wife asked him to first kill her and then kill himself. In accordance with the fact the accused killed his wife and was arrested before he could kill himself.

Held, that the deceased did not give consent under fear of injury of under a misconception of fact and, therefore, the accused was guilty under S. 304, first part, and not under S. 302. Held, further that, in the circumstances of the case, a lenient view of the case should be taken and the accused should be sentenced to 5 years' rigorous imprisonment. 1958 B L J R 60 : 1958 All W R (Sup) 61 : 1958 All L J (Rev) 56: 1958 Cri L J 548 : 1958 All Cri R 207 : AIR 1958 Pat 190 (193) (Pt C) (Pr 14) (DB).

SECTION 93

——Ss. 93, 97, 103, 104, 302, 304 Part 1 — Accused exercising right, attacked by prosecution party — Accused have right of private defence — Exceeding the right — Death caused — Offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. (1962) 2 Ker L R 466 : 1962 Ker L T 868.

SECTION 94

——S. 94 — Applicability — Intention — Statement made in Court — Accused acting under compulsion —Liability for offence.

To base a conviction of the accused solely on his statement in court the statement has to be accepted as a whole. Where the only statements which can go against the accused in his statements before the Sessions Court were that he awakened the deceased of the asking of A. But he did not know A's purpose and that he accompanied the deceased and A to a grove and there being threatened by others who were there held the life of the deceased while one of these others killed him: Held that the statement was insufficient to hold that the accused committed the murder of the deceased. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 342. 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

——S. 94—Applicability—Intention — Accused member of unlawful assembly under duress—If can be convicted of rioting—He would be protected by S. 94. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1957 Cri L J 344: AIR 1957 All 184 (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

——S. 94—Intention—Offence under S. 201—Circumstances indicating continuance of effect of original threat — Effect. Accused cannot be convicted of offence under S. 201, Penal Code although he did not state that threat was again at the time of carrying the dead body. 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (Pt F) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

——S. 94—Cancellation of permit — Effect.

Where the owner of a Motor Vehicle is prosecuted under S. 123 of the Motor Vehicles Act, he is prosecuted for an offence whereas an action is taken against the permit holder under S. 60 of the Act if involves only the departmental control. The suspension or revocation of the conditions of permit does not amount to a punishment for an offence. There is no question of the petitioner being entitled to the benefits of the exceptions provided for under S. 94, Penal Code. See Motor Vehicles Act (4 of 1939), S. 60. (1957) 2 Andh W R 296 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 507.

——Ss. 94, 477A — Falsification of accounts by clerk under President's order—Fear whether defence.

The law allows fear as a reason for acquittal in cases of offences only if there is fear of instant death or instant grievous hurt. The plea is not available to a clerk who alleges to have committed the offence under S. 477A, Penal Code, under the orders of the President of the Society if there is no such fear. (1951) 1 Mad L J 691 : 52 Cri L J 1093 : 1951 Mad W N 384 : 1951 Mad W N (Cri) 112 : 64 Mad L W 445 : AIR 1951 Mad 894 (895) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

SECTION 95

——S. 95—Order under Epidemic Diseases Act (1897), S. 2 preventing entry of pilgrims from outside flocking in Mela area unless they had got inoculated against cholera—Order not making inoculation compulsory for inhabitants of area but authorising competent authority to ask inhabitants to get themselves inoculated or leave area only in exceptional cases—Health Officer preventing entry of accused, inhabitant of area, unless he got himself inoculated—Accussed pushing officer and entering in area—Prosecution not showing that accused was asked not to remain in area without getting inoculated as intended by order — No offence — Assuming it to be offence, accused is protected under S. 95. See Penal Code (1860), S. 353. 1965 All Cri R 85 : 1965 All W R (HC) 69.

——S. 95 — Technical breach of provisions of Drugs Rules—Court should quash criminal proceedings. See Drugs Rules (1957), R. 1. 1964 All W R (HC) 345.

——S. 95 — Applicability — Offence under S. 504 — Offence held did not attract application of S. 95. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 274 : 1955 Cri L J 1318 : A I R 1955 Assam 211 (213) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 95—Applicability—Principle of S. 95—Words causing no harm—S. 504.

One of the first principles of law is de minimis non cural lex. This has found expression in S. 95, Penal Code. Intercourse in civilised society will come to an end if for certain words uttered a person found himself exposed to all the trouble and worry of a criminal trial.

Held, that an acquittal of the accused in a complaint under S. 506, Penal Code, for the words ..... meaning "you are telling a lie" was fully justified by S. 95, Penal Code. 1954 Cri L J 800 : A I R 1954 Cal 288 (288) (Pr 3).

——S. 95—Interruption at public meeting — No allegation of common injury, danger or annoyance caused to public — Prosecution for offence under S. 290 quashed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 290. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 185 : 1961 Ker L J 96 : 1961 Ker L T 100 : (1961) 1 Ker L R 205.

——S. 95 — Applicability — Theft of cheque of no value. See Penal Code (1860), S. 379. 1955 Cri L J 816 : A I R 1955 Mad 264.

——Ss. 95, 341 — Wrongful restraint—It is doubtful whether, without physical obstruction, by mere words, a person commits offence under S. 341 — Even if it is considered offence S. 95 applies. See Penal Code (1860), S. 341. 52 Cri L J 716 (1) : A I R 1951 Mad 759.

——S. 95—Advocate uttering insulting words against witness in cross-examination—Court stopping further cross-examination — Enmity between Advocate and witness — Held, case was not covered by S. 95 but Advocate could be validly convicted under S. 504. See Penal Code (1860), S. 504. 1964 (2) Cri L J 692 : A I R 1964 Mys 285 (DB).

——S. 95—Applicability.

Section has no application unless the act in question amounts to an offence under the Code. 1953 Nag L J 357 : 1953 Cri L J 801 : I L R (1953) Nag 639 : A I R 1953 Nag 141 (142) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 95—Push on neck if punishable as hurt—Held, assuming that push was no hurt, accused would still be punishable under S. 353. (1965) 31 Cut L T 851.

——Ss. 95 and 161—Railway servant demanding and accepting bakshis of 8 annas for service rendered — Provisions of Penal Code (1860), do not apply. See Railway Establishment Code, Vol. I, R. 1701, Para 2 (1). A I R 1964 Orissa 253 (DB).

SECTIONS 96 TO 106

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), Ss. 96 to 106.)

1. Right of private defence — S. 96.
(A) Both parties determined to fight.
(B) Plea of.
See also Note 8 (G).
(C) Onus.
See also Note 8 (E) and Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.
2. Private defence of body — S. 97.
(A) "Body of any other person."
(B) Right, when not available.
3. Private defence of property.
(A) Right, when not available.
(B) Defence of other people's property.
(C) Trespasser in possession.
See Note 3.
4. Right of private defence against act of person of unsound mind or of person under misapprehension—S. 98.
5. Right of private defence against act of public servant—S. 99.
(A) Explanation 1 to S. 99.
(B) Act of public servant without jurisdiction.
6. Extent to which right may be exercised.
See also Note 8.
7. Time to have recourse to protection of public authorities.
See also Note 6.

8. Right of private defence of body when extends to causing death or any other harm—S. 100.
See also Note 6.
(A) No apprehension of death — Illustrative cases.
(B) Assault with intention of gratifying unnatural lust.
(C) Assault with intention of kidnapping or abduction.
(D) Plea of.
See also Note 1 (B).
(E) Onus.
See also Note 1 (C).
9. Right of defence of body, when extends to causing harm other than death or grievous hurt — S. 101.
10. Commencement and continuance of right of private defence of body—S. 102.
See also Notes 6 and 8.
11. Right of private defence of property when extends to causing death—S. 103.
See also Note 8.
12. Right of private defence of property, when extends to causing harm other than death or grievous hurt—S. 104.
See also Note 6.
13. Commencement and continuance of right of private defence of property — S. 105.

1. Right of private defence—S. 96.

(A) Both parties determined to fight.

(B) Plea of.
See also Note 8 (G).

(C) Onus.
See also Note 8 (E) and Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

1. Right of private defence—S. 96.

——Ss. 96, 141, 146—Vindication of rights by use of force—If a party is forced to maintain or defend his rights, it cannot be said that he was determined to vindicate his right by show or use of force. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 51 Cri L J 1057 : AIR 1950 F C 80.

——S. 96—Arms Act (1959), S. 19 (f) — Person using gun of his father to ward off imminent and serious danger to his life—Plea of self-defence—Conviction under S. 19 (f) not proper.

Where a person who was faced with a real and serious danger to his life and property fired from the gun of his father and thereby successfully warded off that danger he is completely protected under S. 96, I. P. C., and his conviction under S. 19 (f) of the Arms Act cannot be sustained. 1964 All W R (HC) 385 : 1964 All Cr R 263.

●——S. 96 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 59, 46 — Dacoits have no right to shoot private persons in self-defence who are chasing them in an attempt to arrest them. See Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 59, 46. AIR 1951 All 3 (FB).

——S. 96 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297—Misdirection regarding right of private defence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1957 Cri L J 51 : AIR 1957 Cal 18 (DB).

——Ss. 96-106, 302 and 97—Right of private defence—Object and effect of.

The right of private defence has been provided for self-protection. Therefore, if by exercise of this right a person escapes death or grievous hurt it cannot be said that he had no apprehension that such a consequence would follow even if he did not act in self-defence, other circumstances have also to be considered. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 119.

——Ss 97 and 99 — Applicability discussed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 332. 1961 (2) Cri L J 504 (Manipur).

——Ss. 97, 99—Premeditated attack—What constitutes—Merely taking precaution is different from premeditation. (1961) 3 O J D 26 : 27 Cut L T 337.

——Ss. 96 and 504—Scope—Abuses and right of private defence—There is no provision in the Penal Code where an accused person can be excused for insulting out burst of abuses in the exercise of the alleged right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 504. 1959 Cri L J 1096 : AIR 1959 Orissa 155 (157) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——S. 99 — Right of private defence against mere threat.

Mere threat, not carried out, and later completely abandoned, followed by retracing of steps by the threatener would not justify an assault from the person threatened, as he must have been convinced that the person threatening did not mean to carry out the empty threat. Such a course is no longer necessary for his defence. ('51) 17 Cut L T 220 : AIR 1952 Orissa 37 (40) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 96, 106, Pre. — Private defence of person and property—Interpretation—Use of English precedents not to be permitted : Observations of Ross J., in AIR 1926 Pat 433, Dissented from. See Penal Code (1860), Preamble. 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (DB).

——S. 96 — Deceased constructing Bhuskar on his own land — Accused asking to stop construction which deceased refused — Accused then demolishing nad belonging to deceased—Deceased protesting—Accused then striking a bhala blow on chest of deceased—Held, that accused being aggressor had no right of private defence. 51 Cri L J 331 : (LR 28 Pat 762 : AIR 1950 Pat 44 (45) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 96—Right of private defence — No apprehension to accused of any injury—No right of private defence. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 494.

1 (A). Both parties determined to fight.

●——S. 96—Applicability — Free fight—Unlawful assembly—S. 141.

A free fight is "when both sides mean to fight from the start, go out to fight and there is a pitched battle. The question of who attacks and who defends in such a fight is wholly immaterial and depends on the tactics adopted by the rival commanders."

Held, that there could be no question of a free fight when there was a clear finding of the High Court that Anjaninandan's party were the aggressors. Having regard to the finding reached by the High Court that the riot took place at the narrow path as a result of the dispute about the Nepali pilgrim and the further fact that Gajanand's party received more numerous injuries one of which was fatal; it was obvious that Gajanand's party could not be said to have constituted an unlawful assembly. Gajanand's party was engaged in the peaceful pursuit of worship at their own takhat and was busy attending to the Puja for the Nepali pilgrim. At that point of time they were not members of an unlawful assembly. There was no material to justify the conclusion that they became members of the unlawful assembly at any time thereafter.

It was the party of Anjaninandan who left their place and came to Gajanand's takhat; presumably raising a dispute over the offerings made by the Nepali pilgrim. They came armed with deadly weapons and one of them inflicted a severe blow on one Sukkhu on Gajanand's side which resulted in his death and others received as many as 27 serious injuries. In these circumstances it was not possible to suggest that both parties were pre-determined for a trial of strength and had a free fight. Gajanand's party were the worst sufferers and though they also inflicted injuries on the other side; they did so in the exercise of their right of self defence. AIR 1931 Lah 513, Approved. Gajanand v. State of U. P., 1954 Cri L J 1746 : AIR 1954 S C 695 (698) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99—Question of aggression.

The number of injuries is not always a safe criterion for determining the question of aggression. 1959 Cri L J 1258 : AIR 1959 All 690 (692) (Pt B) (Pr 16) (DB).

——S. 96—Right of private defence—Free fight.

There could be no question of a free fight when there was a clear finding of the Sessions Judge, that it was complainant's party which had been the aggressor. The right to take water on the date of occurrence vested in the accused and he was in the enjoyment of that right. He went there armed with a rifle on having been apprehensive of the fact that the other party would reach there with arms and reinforcement; he was perfectly justified to wait there in readiness to defend his property or the right from the expected aggression from the other side. It was not a case where the enjoyment of a right was not to be protected or defended; nor was it a case where the accused and his party men could be said to have gone to the spot to measure their strength, and the protection of property or right was a mere pretext. A I R 1954 S C 695, Foll. 1958 Cri L J 129 : A I R 1958 All 90 (95) (Pt C) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Ss. 96, 149, 304 — Applicability — Both parties determine to fight —No right of private defence. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2713.

——Ss. 96, 34, 147, 304, Part II and 325 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105—Dispute over possession of land — Fight —One party receiving grievous injuries resulting in death of one person — Party of accused receiving minor injuries —Plea that accused party was attacked not established—Assembly held not unlawful—Right of private defence did not arise — Absence of premeditation — Conviction under S. 304 held not maintainable. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 52 Cri L J 209 : A I R 1951 Assam 48 (DB).

——S. 96—Free fight—Right of private defence.

In a free fight where both parties intend to attack each other there would be no right of private defence. (1960) 1 Guj H C R 134 : (1960) 1 Guj L R 157 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 54 (2) : A I R 1961 Guj 8 (10) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 96—Applicability—Aggressive party — Who is —Unpreparedness for attack is the best proof of non-aggressiveness. 1960 Ker L T 965.

——Ss. 97, 100—Scope — Right of private defence—Two parties involved in fight — Court must ascertain who started it and who gave the first blow — The party meeting the aggression must be deemed to have acted in self-defence. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3351.

——S. 96 — Party of deceased aggressors — Accused stabbing deceased merely to defend himself —No pre-planned scheme of fighting the other party made by party of accused — Doctrine of free fight will not apply. A I R 1954 S C 695, Rel. on. 1963 Mad W N 698 : (1964) 1 Mad L J 41 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri.) 47 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 425 : A I R 1964 Mad 418 (420) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 97 — Dispute as to land — Both sides going armed—Free fight — Injuries received by both parties —Accused having ample time to have recourse to public authorities — Cannot exercise right of private defence of property. A I R 1948 Pat 294, Foll. 1959 B L J R 92.

——S. 99 — Deliberate fight in assertion of rival claims — No right of private defence can be claimed. A I R 1935 N U C (Pat) 2498.

——S. 96 — Right of private defence — Two parties arming themselves for a fight to enforce their supposed right of possession to field — Fight started in presence of police and despite their attempts to prevent it and telling parties not to fight — No crop on land nor any urgency about ploughing the field—Both parties held were in the wrong in fighting and both were unlawful assemblies — There was no right of private defence on the part of either. A I R 1951 Pat 473 (477) (Pt E) (Pr 17) (DB).

——S. 96—Free fight—What is—Free fight between the parties—None of them can claim right of private defence—Exception.

If two enemies, each shown to be determined to injure the other, meet suddenly and go to fight, it will be hardly proper to dispute the existence of a free fight and to assume right of private defence for both the parties. It must be remembered that the right of private defence is one of defence and not one of punishment or retaliation. While the grant of the right is intended to discourage cowardice and meek submission to aggression it cannot be extended to encourage private warfare and to substitute for the decision of the Courts the decision by the use of weapons. 1963 Raj L W 436 and A I R 1931 Lah 513 and A I R 1954 S C 695, Ref. to; A I R 1957 S C 469 and A I R 1935 All 438 and A I R 1934 Lah 512 and A I R 1943 Mad 492, Rel. on. A more appropriate test to determine whether a fight is a free one or not, is that both the parties should voluntarily enter into a fight and there should be a mutual intent to harm each other. A desire to fight and a mutual intent to harm each other will easily be entertained at the spur of the moment and the resulting fight will certainly be a free fight. Cases may arise where in the case of a sudden fight between two persons one of them may decline from a further fight and retreat as far as he can with safety and then faced with a dangerous situation causing reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt, recourses to violence, he can certainly claim the right of private defence. But the contention that a sudden and unpremeditated fight can never be a free fight cannot be accepted. Held, on facts of the case, that the fight between the parties was free and none of them could claim right of private defence. 1965 Raj L W 60 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 476 : I L R (1965) 15 Raj 174 : A I R 1965 Raj 74 (76, 77, 78) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8, 12, 19).

1 (B). Plea of.

See also Note 8 (G).

——S. 96—Right of self-defence—Right need not be specifically pleaded—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

Even though the plea of self-defence may not have been taken by the accused specifically, it is open to the Court, if on a proper appraisal of the evidence, it comes to the conclusion that the injury caused by the accused was inflicted at a time when he was having reasonable apprehension of a grievous injury being caused to him by the deceased to give him the benefit of doubt : A I R 1928 Cal 700 held not good law in view of later decisions. A I R 1930 Cal 442 and A I R 1941 All 402 (FB) and A I R 1960 Ker 258 and A I R 1960 All 223 and 1964 All W R (H C) 629 and Cri Appeal No. 843 of 1964 dated 22nd January 1965 (All L.B.), Rel. on. 1965 All L J 977 : 1965 All W R (H C) 711 : 1965 All Cr R 486 : 1966 Cri L J

503 : I L R (1965) 2 All 530 : A I R 1966 All 244 (246) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

—Ss. 98, 99 — Private defence — Plea of—Duty of Court—Onus.

The right of private defence must not be assumed. The party claiming the right of private defence has to establish that claim. Where it is a definite case of the accused persons that they were chased and beaten by the men of the opposite party and accused persons raise the plea of private defence the court is bound to decide the question of private defence. It is not necessary for the accused to produce witnesses in defence for making out a case of private defence. It is possible for the defence to make out a case of private defence from the circumstances of the case. AIR 1957 S C 469, Applied.

Held, on evidence that there was a reasonable apprehension of the accused receiving grievous hurts as a result of the attack by the men of the opposite party. The right of private defence of person, therefore, extended to the voluntary causing of death. The accused or any of them could not be convicted for any offence. 1960 All W R (HC) 173 : 1960 All Cri R 131 : 1960 All L J 234.

—S. 96 — Plea of exercise of right of private defence of person or property — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105).

It is now well settled that in taking a plea of exercise of the right of private defence of person or property an accused person need not take it specifically or in so many terms nor need he adduce any evidence on his own behalf for substantiating such a plea He may elicit such facts and circumstances from the cross-examination of prosecution witnesses as may support this plea and utilise them in meeting the case of the prosecution. 1956 All W R (Sup) 10 : 60 Cal W N 114.

—S. 96—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297 — Misdirection — Murder trial — Failure to direct regarding accused's right of private defence of person under S. 100, Penal Code—Effect stated—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1952 Cri L J 1267 : AIR 1952 Assam 148 (DB).

—S. 96 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297 — Misdirection — Plea of private defence—Raising of—Accused repudiating complicity in crime — Evidence and circumstances showing that such plea could properly be raised Duty of Sessions Judge - Omission to explain to jury Exception II to S 300, Penal Code and law of private defence is misdirection — See Criminal P C. (1898) S. 297. 1962 (1) Cri L J 137 : AIR 1962 Cal 85 (DB).

—S 96 — Applicability — Plea of right of private defence is not available to accused pleading alibi. 55 Cri L J 774 : AIR 1954 Cal 258 (268) (Pt C) (Pr 33) (DB).

—S. 96—Plea of private defence—Who can take — Onus Evidence Act (1872), S 105.

A plea of the right of private defence can be taken by a person who admits the act charged against him, but pleads an excuse. If a person, however, states that he had not done the act at all, it is difficult to see how at the same time the question of a right of private defence would arise. Whether or not an accused person, taking a plea of the right of private defence, is to prove it in the same manner as the prosecution is required to prove its case or whether a lower standard of proof would suffice the accused must, at least, make a case out of which a plea of the right of private defence might arise.

It is true that an accused person taking the plea of the right of private defence is not required to call evidence but can establish that plea by reference to circumstances transpiring from the prosecution evidence itself. But the question in such a case would be a question of assessing the true effect of the prosecution evidence and not a question of the accused discharging any burden 1952 Cri L J 1427 : AIR 1952 Cal 621 (624) (Pt A) Prs 8, 9) (DB).

—S. 96 - Criminal P. C. (1898), S 297 Defence that accused not responsible for killing — No question of right of private defence arises — Direction to jury to consider question of right of private defence in alternative - See Criminal P C. (1898), S. 297. 51 Cri L J 1581 : AIR 1951 Cal 212 (DB).

—S. 96—Plea of self-defence.

Although the accused has not raised a plea of self-defence at all it is open to him to plead self-defence, in case there is evidence on record brought out either in examination of witnesses or their cross-examination or in any other shape or form, to support such a plea. (1962) 3 Guj L R 152 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 717 : AIR 1962 Guj 203 (207) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

—S 96 —Plea not raised in statement under S. 342 Criminal P. C — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 342).

Even though the accused has not stated in his statement under S. 342 Criminal P. C., that his act was in exercise of his right of private defence, he would be entitled to this defence provided it can be established from the evidence on record. ILR (1956) Hyd 148.

—S. 96 — Plea of self-defence — Accused totally denying having hit deceased.

Even where the accused in their statements totally deny having hit and killed the deceased, if there is sufficient evidence to show that their actions come under self-defence, they cannot be denied the benefit of this privilege. 1952 Cri L J 572 : AIR 1952 Hyd 55 (57) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

—S. 97—Right of self-defence—Need not be specifically pleaded — Plea can be established from prosecution evidence. AIR 1960 Ker 258 (259) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

—S. 96 — Accused not pleading private defence — Evidence disclosing exercising of the right—Accused is entitled to its benefit — See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1959 Ker L J 1313.

—S 99—Prosecution evidence insufficient — Right of accused to make out case of private defence — Express plea of private defence not taken — Accused is not precluded from making out such defence on basis of prosecution evidence itself — But this does not mean that prosecution can succeed even if the evidence is insufficient to prove the case. See Criminal P C. (1898), S. 367. 1958 Cri L J 509 : AIR 1958 Ker 74 (DB).

—S. 96 — Right of private defence — Accused not specifically pleading right of self-defence — Court should not conclude that the plea was not available to accused to any degree. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1957 Cri L J 635 : AIR 1957 Ker 53 (DB).

—S. 96—Private defence - No specific plea—Facts proved making out defence—Effect.

Though the accused may deny having beaten the complainant he may not specifically plead any exception (i. e.) private defence. But if the proved circumstances make out an explanation he is entitled to an acquittal. AIR 1951 Kut 11 (11) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

—S. 96 — Surrounding circumstances rendering it likely that accused might have acted in exercise of his right of private defence—Omission on part of prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused would normally be treated as a circumstance favourable to the defence. 1960 Jab L J 755 : 1960

M P L J 1235 : 1960 M P C 754 : I L R (1961) Madh Pra 573.

——S. 100—Plea of self-defence — Duty of Court.

If the plea of self-defence is taken, the duty of the Court is to show in its judgment the circumstance in which the right is said to have been exercised. Merely saying that the accused has exceeded the right of self defence without showing the circumstances in which he acted is not proper. 1958 Jab L J 257.

——S. 96 — Right of self-defence — Specific plea — Necessity.

Plea of right of self-defence need not be taken specifically, but there should be circumstances to raise such an inference or even reasonable doubt in favour of the accused that they might have in fact acted in exercise of their right of private defence. (1958) 2 Andh W R 627 : 1958 M L J (Cr) 942.

——S. 97—Plea of private defence — Accused pleading alibi—Plea if available.

A plea of self-defence is inconsistent with the express plea of alibi raised by the accused However if on the material placed on record, the plea of private defence could be made out consistent with the provisions of S. 105, Evidence Act, there is no justification for denying the benefit of it to the accused. 1961 (1) Cr L J 403 : 38 Mys L J 995 : ILR (1960) Mys 126 : A I R 1961 Mys 74 (80) (Pt C) (Pr 50) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 149 — Common plea of self-defence by five or more accused—Effect of.

The plea of self-defence means that the harm which the accused had inflicted on the alleged aggressors is not an offence because the circumstances entitled them to exercise the right of self-defence. If, therefore the plea of self-defence fails, the harm so caused would undoubtedly be a punishable offence. If, in addition, five or more accused have acted in concert in the purported exercise of the right of self-defence to which they were not entitled, there is no escape from the conclusion that they together constituted an unlawful assembly with the common object of committing the offence constituted by the harm inflicted by them Such an admission is implicit in the plea of self-defence. 1960 Cr L J 1472 : 38 Mys L J 701 : 1961 Mad L J (Cri) 374 ; I L R (1960) Mys 668 : AIR 1960 Mys 294 (295) (Pt A) (Pr 24) (DB).

——S. 96—Plea of private defence not taken in trial Court—This will not prevent High Court in appeal from giving benefit of such defence to the accused if evidence supports it. ILR (1951) Mys 445 : A I R 1952 Mys 10 (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 96—Accused denying attack cannot claim right of private defence. A I R 1954 Nag 126 (127) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——S. 96—Private defence—Absence of plea—Question can be gone into from proved facts.

The question of right of private defence can be examined from proved facts of a case even though the accused had failed to take any specific plea to that effect. (1963) 29 Cut L T 488.

——S. 96—Private defence— Reasonable doubt as to existence of—Accused cannot get benefit—Plea must fail.

If there is reasonable doubt of the existence of private defence the plea must fail.

The deceased who was running away with the split bamboo was being pursued by the accused with a wooden pole in hand. When the accused shouted that he would kill the deceased, the latter turned round and gave a stroke on the head of the accused with the split bamboo whereafter the accused gave a stroke on the head of the deceased with the pole as a result of which the deceased fell down, and while he was trying to get up the accused gave further 2 or 3 blows on the head which resulted in the death of the deceased. It was suggested that there was a quarrel in the house of the deceased and the accused pleaded right of private defence.

Held, that whatever might have happened inside the house the accused had no right to pursue the deceased who was running away. He sought an attack on himself by his own threatened attack on the deceased. The deceased had clearly therefore right of private defence to protect his own body subject to the restrictions contained in S. 99, I. P. C. The deceased caused only simple injuries and the right, which he had extended to causing any harm other than death. The assault by the deceased on the accused was therefore protected by right of private defence of his body and is not an offence. The deceased having committed no offence by assault on the accused, the accused had no right of private defence. (1963) 29 Cut L T 200.

——S. 96 — Right of private defence — It need not be pleaded specifically—Accused can take advantage of prosecution evidence.

The accused persons need not specifically plead right of private defence. The defence can build any case out of the prosecution. Thus if from the prosecution story such a right of private defence can be made out the accused are not precluded from doing so. AIR 1942 Mad 295, AIR 1960 T C 12, Foll.

Held that in the circumstances of this case there was no right of private defence of property or person and it did not arise even from the prosecution evidence. (1962) 4 Ori J D 323 : 1 East L R 231.

——S. 96—Right of private defence — On review of all evidence Court left in reasonable doubt whether the circumstances brought the case within any of the general exceptions—Accused is entitled to benefit of doubt Court having reasonable doubt as to whether accused were entitled to right of private defence of person — Accused is entitled to the benefit of such doubt See Criminal P C (1898), S. 367. A I R 1955 N U C (Punj) 4926 (DB).

——S. 97 — Reasonable doubt whether accused is entitled to benefit of right of private defence or not—Accused is entitled to get benefit of right. 1963 Raj L W 436 : ILR (1963) 13 Raj 789.

——S. 97 — Right of private defence not pleaded by accused —They can still rely on prosecution evidence to establish right. 1963 Raj L W 436 : ILR (1962) 13 Raj 789.

——S. 96— Plea of private defence —Accused should come out with defence squarely at earliest opportunity —If evidence of prosecution itself shows that accused had such right accused would be given benefit of doubt. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 295.

——S. 96—Private defence —Plea of.

An accused person can under certain circumstances be allowed the benefit of the plea of self-defence on the basis of prosecution evidence itself whether or not he has specifically taken that plea at the trial. 52 Cri L J 1034 : A I R 1951 Raj 129 (130) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 97—Benefit of doubt —Self-defence — Criminal P. C. (1898) S. 367.

Where the prosecution party were armed with sticks only while at least one of the accused persons was armed with an axe there was no necessity for the use of axe and no benefit of doubt can be given on the ground of want of evidence as to who commenced the fight. The accused using the axe cannot be said to be acting in self-defence also. 3 Sau L R 59 : AIR 1950 Sau 11 (11, 12) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 96—Plea of right of private defence—It should be seen whether accused had been aggressor.

In a case where the accused pleads the right of private defence it is the duty of the Court to see whether the accused had been the aggressor. An act done in the exercise of the right of private defence is not an offence and does not, therefore, give rise to any right of private defence in return. A I R 1917 Low Bur 12 (1), Rel on. 1955 Ker L T 638 : 1956 Cr L J 276 : A I R 1956 T C 89 (89, 90) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Ss 96 and 300, Exception 2 — Defence of right of self-defence —Accused letting in no evidence can raise it.

Even if the accused lets in no evidence he is entitled to raise the plea of self-defence provided that can be compelled out from the prosecution evidence. 51 Cri L J 653 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 12 (13) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

1 (C). Onus.

See also Note 8 (E) and Evidence Act (1872), S 105.

—— S. 96 — Pleas of self-defence — Onus on whom indicated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1961 (1) Cri L J 15 : AIR 1961 All 38 (DB)

—— S. 96 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 — Plea of private defence — Onus—Evidence — Held no question of right of private defence arose on facts of the case. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. (1962) 2 Andh L T 291.

——S. 96 — Onus — Burden to prove exception — Accused need only create reasonable doubt — Burden is not the same as on prosecution. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 55 Cri L J 774 : AIR 1954 Cal 258 (DB).

——S. 96 — Right of self-defence — Burden of proof.

Though the accused has not actually pleaded self-defence it is open to him to show from the prosecution evidence itself that the accused had caused the fatal wound under such circumstances as gave him the right of private defence. The burden of proving the right of private defence is on the accused. If he fails to establish it, he would be criminally responsible for the injury caused by him to the deceased. (1961) 2 Gui L R 168 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 57 : AIR 1961 Guj 11 (15) (Pt D) (Prs 22, 23) (DB).

—— S. 96 — Right of self-defence — Duration of.

In order that the right of private defence may be established, it is not sufficient for the accused merely to establish that the right had commenced. He must also further establish that the right had not ended. In other words, in order that the right of private defence may be held to have been established, it is necessary for the defence to prove that reasonable apprehension which had been created in the mind of the accused as a result of the act of the aggressor, had continued at the time when the impugned injury was caused. 1961 (1) Cri L J 57 : (1961) 2 Gui L R 168: AIR 1961 Guj 11 (15) (Pt E) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Ss. 99 and 100 — Right of private defence of person — Burden of proof.

When an accused relies on the Exceptions relating to the right of private defence of person, it is for him to show the circumstances under which he was entitled to exercise the right of private defence to the extent claimed by him and also to show that the circumstances were not such as to lead one to the inference that he had exceeded the right of private defence. (1960) 1 Guj L R 151 : (1961) 2 Guj H C R 10 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 813 (Guj).

——Ss. 96, 97 and 100 — Accused putting up plea of right of private defence — Accused having injuries on his body — Necessity in such cases to find out who is aggressor — Prosecution eye-witnesses found unreliable — Failure of prosecution to call and examine material witness - Doubt whether defence is not probable and true — Benefit of doubt to be given to accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. 1965 (1) Cri L J 173 : AIR 1965 Ker 44 (DB).

——S. 96 — Plea of justification — Such plea raised by accused in his statement under S 342, Criminal P C. — Burden of proof is on accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1964 (2) Cri L J 297 : AIR 1964 Ker 222.

——S. 96 — Private defence — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 - Scope and extent of presumption under — Plea that case falls under general or special exceptions in Indian Penal Code Burden is on the accused — Standard of proof required. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1961 Ker L J 58.

——S. 96 — Burden of proof — Self defence, plea of — Onus is on accused—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 105) — (Penal Code (1860), S. 300). AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 1557 (DB).

——S. 96 — Burden of proof — Plea of self-defence—Onus is on accused and is heavy. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 1265.

——Ss. 97 and 302 — Burden of proof — Reasonable doubt arising on evidence and statement under S 342, Criminal P. C. — Benefit of doubt. AIR 1949 Nag 163. Foll. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 101.

——S. 100 — Plea of self defence — Burden lies on accused to prove circumstances to establish his case — To discharge burden it is sufficient if he makes out a prima facie case — Prosecution evidence leaving accused's guilt in doubt Court must give benefit of doubt to accused and acquit him even though he does not prove beyond reasonable doubt the existence of such circumstances See Evidence Act (1872), S. 106. 1964 (2) Cri L J 425 : AIR 1964 Mad 418 (DB).

——S 97 — Self-defence — Burden of proof.

Though the plea of self defence need not be specifically pleaded but can be spelt out or supported on the strength of the material on record, under S. 105 of the Evidence Act, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances entitling the accused to the right of self-defence is upon the accused and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. It is therefore, for the accused to place necessary material on record either by themselves adducing positive evidence or by eliciting necessary facts from the witnesses examined for the prosecution 1960 Cri L J 1472 38 Mys L J 701 : 1961 Mad L J (Cri) 374 : ILR (1960) Mys 668 : AIR 1960 Mys 294 (296) (Pt B) (Pr 26) (DB).

——S 96 — Plea of right of private defence.

Where a plea of right of private defence has been raised or pleaded by the accused it is for the accused to adduce evidence in support of such plea. (1960) 38 Mys L J 603.

—S. 97 — Right of private defence of property — Onus to prove is on accused — Nature of proof required — Making out prima facie case of exception— Meaning of - Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

Though under S 105, Evidence Act, the onus is on the accused to prove the existence of circumstances bringing his case within any of the general exceptions, it is well settled that the burden on the accused is not of the same nature as one on the prosecution to establish existence of the offence beyond reasonable doubt The nature of the burden on the accused to bring his case within the general exceptions is analogous to that resting on the plaintiff in civil cases.

The juristic principle in civil matter is that the preponderance of probability is the basis of success It is also well accepted that the accused need not prove the general exception by adducing positive evidence. The same can be established through the prosecution evidence also. If from the entire evidence on record it is probable that the defence version may be true, they are entitled to a verdict in their favour even though the truth of the version might not have been proved beyond reasonable doubt. The dictum therefore, 'that the accused need merely make out a prima facie case' means nothing else other than that a preponderance of probability is to be established by the accused as in civil cases. 1964 (2) Cri L J 696 : AIR 1964 Orissa 262 (265) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 96, 97, 350, Exception 2 — Right of private defence — Standard of proof necessary to establish right

The determination of the question whether there exists the alleged right of private defence is always a question of fact. It is always the accepted principle that the standard of proof necessary on the part of the prosecution to establish the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt is not what is required of the accused persons to establish their plea under any of the general exceptions of the Penal Code. But if the Court, after review of the entire evidence on record, finds that the plea is a plausible theory and if the Court entertains a reasonable doubt in its mind as to the guilt of the accused, the accused is entitled to the benefit even though the accused person has not been able to fully establish his plea of self-defence or any other plea under the general exceptions in the Penal Code. There are two important facts in every criminal trial that weigh heavily in favour of an accused person, one is that the accused is entitled to the benefit of every reasonable doubt and the other, an off-shoot of the same principle, that when an accused person offers a reasonale explanation of his conduct, that, even though he cannot prove his assertions they should ordinarily be accepted unless the circumstances indicate that they are false. AIR 1956 S C 217, Foll. 29 Cut L T 15 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 700 (Orissa)

——S. 96—Plea of exception—Evidence adduced failing to establish plea—Plea taken along with prosecution evidence—Evidence as a whole creating reasonable doubt as to guilt of accused—Accused is entitled to acquittal. See Evidence Act (18 2), S. 105. 1964 (1) Cr L J 346 : AIR 1964 Pat 138 (DB).

——S. 96—Burden of proof — Plea of private defence —Accused must prove it — He can take advantage of such right if it can be estabilised from prosecution evidence itself — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105). AIR 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 3280 (DB).

——S. 96—Onus — Prosecution case disclosing doubt —Accused is entitled to its benefit even though he has not raised specifically the defence under exception. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 267.

2. Private defence of body—S. 97.

(A) "Body of any other person."

(B) Right when not available.

2. Private defence of body—S. 97.

——S. 97 — Applicability—Accused threatening deceased.

The law does not confer a right of self-defence on a man who goes and seeks an attack on himself by his own threatened attack on another, an attack which was likely to end in the death of that other. The right of self defence conferred by the law or preserved by the law for an individual is a very narrow and circumscribed right and can be taken advantage of only when the circumstances fully justify the exercise of such a right 1958 All Cri R 5 : I L R (1957) 1 All 43 : 1958 All W R (H C) 5 : 1957 C L J 498 : A I R 1957 All 317 (318) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss 96, 97 and 141 Private defence of body and property — Unlawful assembly— Case on facts. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3285 (DB).

——S. 97—Applicability — Trespasser—Right of private defence of body.

Even if a person is a trespasser and has wrongfully cultivated a certain portion of a field of which he was bound in law to deliver possession to another person, the latter person has no right to take law into his own hands and beat the former in order to dispossess him from the field If the latter person is an aggressor there is no doubt that the former person, though a trespasser, has a right of self-defence. 1953 All W R (HC) 424 : 1953 All L J 605 : 1954 Cri L J 54 : AIR 1954 All 35 (37) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Ss. 97, 99, 100 — Private defence of body—Persistent assault with stick on accused—Person assaulted striking knife blow to ward off danger — Held, right of private defence not exceeded. 52 Cri L J 1246 : AIR 1951 Bhopal 2 (4) (Pr 8).

——Ss. 100, 97 — Right of private defence—Two parties involved in fight — Court must ascertain who started it and who gave the first blow — The party meeting the aggression must be deemed to have acted in self-defence. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-Bha) 3351

——Ss 97, 302 and 307 — Right of private defence—Object and effect of.

The right of private defence has been provided for self-protection. Therefore, if by exercise of this right a person escapes death or grievous hurt it cannot be said that he had no apprehension that such a consequence would follow even if he did not act in self-defence. Other circumstances have also to be considered. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 119.

——Ss. 97, 96, 106, Pre — Private defence of person and property — Interpretation—Use of English precedents not to be permitted; Observations of Ross J., in AIR 1928 Pat 433, Dissented from — See Penal Code 1860), Preamble. 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (DB).

2(A). "Body of any other person."

——Ss. 96, 97, 99 — Prosecution party being aggressors — Accused party has right of private defence — Extent of right depends upon attitude of prosecution party.

If the prosecution party has assembled with the object of chastising the accused it would not be unlawful for any person to go to the aid of the accused to rescue him. But the degree of force to be used would depend upon the temper, disposition and determination of the prosecution party. If the accused persons without any provocation or cause fired at the deceased and injured other persons certainly their acts cannot in any view be justified and they would be guilty of riot attempt to murder and hurt, whether grievous or otherwise. ILR (1959) Andh Pra 797.

——S. 97 — Right of private defence of body—Right may be exercised to defend body of other person also.

For the exercise of right of private defence by a person, it is not necessary that the person himself must have been the target of assault. Though he himself may not be the target of assault, he has a right of private defence of the body of another under the law. (1964) 6 O J D 177 : 30 Cut L T 468.

——Ss. 97, 304 Part I, 302, 324—Exceeding right of private defence — Attack by B followed by tussle with deceased — Deceased gripping his armed hand in order to save himself — Fatal stab attack by A while tussle still going on — Conviction of A under S. 304, Part I—If proper.

When the deceased was proceeding homewards, the two accused A and B approached him, the second accused B spoke some challenging words and then attempted to stab him. But the deceased gripped the hand that held the knife and a tussle ensued. While the tussle was going on and the deceased was still holding the armed hand of B the first accused A stabbed the deceased fatally. During the tussle some minor injuries were sustained by the deceased from the knife in the hand of B. A also sustained some minor injuries. The Sessions Judge found that A had a right of private defence but he exceeded it and convicted him under S. 304, Part I, while B was convicted under S. 324.

Held, that the offence disclosed against A was clearly one of murder punishable under S. 302, as he had no right of private defence at all. When B himself had no right of private defence as against the deceased, a third party like A had no right to go to his succour and in such an attempt inflict fatal injuries on the deceased

In order that S. 97 should be applicable, first of all there should be an attempt to commit an offence against the person who claims to have acted in self-defence or against third party for the alleged purpose of saving whom, he acted. Here the deceased was himself exercising his right of private defence and there was no attempt to commit any offence by him as against A or B. Thus the accused cannot invoke S. 97, I. P. C., in support of their action.

As regards B clearly an attempt to commit an offence under S. 324 has been made out. ILR (1956) T C 615.

2 (B). Right when not available.

——S. 96 — Illegal seizure of cattle purporting to be under S. 10, Cattle Trespass Act — Does not amount to theft — Owner of cattle has no right to use force to rescue them—Persons seizing cattle held committed no offence in resisting attack by owner's party with arms and lathis. See Cattle-Trespass Act (1871), S. 10. 1965 (2) Cri L J 18 : AIR 1965 S C 926.

——S. 96—Initial firing by accused—Police firing in self-defence—Each of accused again firing in self-defence—Each of accused again firing towards police —Initial firing held was with common intention to overpower police -Firing by police held did not give accused right to act in self defence — Accused held could be convicted under S. 307. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34 1963 All W R (HC) 743.

——S. 97 (1) — Applicability — Private defence of person — Wife dragged forcibly out of her father's place by her husband against her will — Accused going to her rescue and stabbing husband with knife resulting in death—Offence Plea of private defence of person held not available. See Penal Code (1860), S. 100(6). 1957 Cri L J 1195 : AIR 1957 All 714(DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1960 S C 67.]

——S. 97 — Right of self-defence—When not available.

Where the deceased, who had a lathi with him, on hearing the alarm raised by his cousins who were being beaten by the accused on a chabutra, ran towards the chabutra to help his cousin and when he came close to the chabutra, the accused who were on the chabutra attacked him with lathis and felled him down on the ground and the deceased died shortly afterwards.

Held, that the accused had no right of self-defence, because they themselves were the aggressors; and it could not be argued that because the accused had already finished the beating and the cousins were lying injured over the chabutra therefore the deceased had no right to go there with lathi. (1957) All W R (H C) 526.

——Ss. 98, 103—Right of private defence of property —No right of defence against lawful act of self-defence — Attempt to house trespass at night — Intruders not disclosing identity in spite of repeated challenges from inmates — House-owner hitting one of intruders with arrow — Accused (other intruder) not entitled to any right of self-defence. See Penal Code (1860 S. 103. 1962 (1) Cri L J 717 : AIR 1962 Guj 203 (DB).

——S. 97 — Private defence of body—Accused waylaying deceased and challenging him — Deceased striking accused with stick — Accused hitting deceased with lethal weapon and causing death — Accused held had no right of private defence.

Where the accused who was carrying a lethal weapon waylaid the deceased and challenged him saying why he had taken false oath, and on being thus accosted by the accused the deceased struck the accused with his stick and then the accused hit the deceased in return and thereby caused his death :

Held that the accused not being within his right in standing up to the deceased could not claim a right of private defence. 51 Cri L J 749 : AIR 1950 Kutch 30 (32) (Pt C) (Pr 16).

——S. 100 — Accused himself making aggressive assault and inviting trouble — He has no right of private defence.

When there is no evidence on record to suggest that before the assault on the opposite party was opened by the accused, any of them made an attempt to use either the bows and arrows or the knives, and, in fact it was the accused who invited the trouble and began an unwarranted and aggressive assault, that action cannot be said to have been done in exercise of right of private defence of person. (1965) 7 Orissa J D 198 : 31 Cut L T 804 : ILR (1965) Cut 369.

——S. 97 — Private defence of body — Parties exchanging blows—Aggressor party cannot claim right of self-defence. 1964 (2) Cri L J 567 : AIR 1964 Orissa 251 (253) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——S. 97 — "Against any offence affecting human body".

The matter of hurling of abuses by a woman at her enemy on an exciting occasion as that on an adult sitting naked in front of her for the purpose of easing is not serious enough to justify a reasonable man to proceed to commit criminal trespass with the object of assaulting a young widow after breaking into her house. ('51) 17 Cut L T 220: AIR 1952 Orissa 37 (41) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S 97 — Private defence — Right of — Extent — Altercation between A and B — B calling C—C giving lathi blow to A who leaving B, grappling with C—D A's brother, giving lathi blows to C as a result of which C dies—Held, even assuming that D had right to defend his brother's person, there was no occasion for D to intervene and give the blows to C in defence. 51 Cri L J 844 : AIR 1950 Raj 10 (13) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

3. Private defence of property.

(A) Right when not available.

(B) Defence of other people's property.

(C) Trespasser in possession.

See Note 3.

3. Private defence of property.

——S. 97 — Applicability — Forcible possession by rank trespasser—Right of private defence against true owner.

Before an accused person can set up the plea of defence of property in answer to a charge of homicide, he must prove that he had a right of property which had to be defended. S. 97, will not come to the aid of a trespasser, after he has turned out the rightful occupier by force. A trespasser who is in peaceful and settled possession of the property in dispute is entitled to defend his right of possession against physical attack. But a trespasser does not acquire this right from his own act of trespass or taking forcible possession. A trespasser acquires the right to defend his possession against physical attack only if he has come to it by the acquiescence, express or implied, of the rightful owner and his possession has become peaceful and settled. The question of lapse of time becomes relevant only if the rightful owner or occupier sits quiet and does nothing to assert his rights even after knowing that the trespasser is in possession of his property. AIR 1949 All 274 and AIR 1949 Lah 128 and AIR 1928 Pat 124 and 1884) 51 L T 746, Relied on; AIR 1949 All 564, Distinguished.

A person does not lose his right to regain his property from a trespasser merely because, before taking any action, he informed the guardians of law and order of what was taking place under their regime. This cannot be interpreted as acquiescence on his part. The law permits citizens to defend their property but does not insist, as a condition of the exercise of this right, that it should be exercised behind the back of the authorities. 1960 All Cr R 399 : 1960 All L J 782 : 1960 All W R (H C) 607 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 15 : AIR 1961 All 38 (41 to 43) (Pt E) (Prs 21, 23, 25, 27) (DB).

——S. 97 — Private defence of property — Accused taking loaded bullock-carts through fields in which crops were standing — Right of field owners. 1959 Cri L J 1258 : AIR 1959 All 690 (691, 692) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——S. 97 - Deceased's father stating that his holding and that of accused were joint—Statement is slender basis to support right of private defence. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4169 (DB).

——S. 97 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297 — Explaining law of defence of property to the Jury — Duty of Judge pointed out. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1953 Cri L J 1377 : AIR 1953 Cal 602 (DB).

——S. 99 - Decree for possession of a plot, in favour of a member of accused's party — Accused's party going there to fence it out stopped by complainants —Free fight resulting and one of complainant's party killed by gun shot. Accused held did not exceed his right of self defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1955 Cri L J 1179 : AIR 1955 J & K 9 (DB).

——S. 97—Private defence of property — Right does not extend to enforce or vindicate right to possession of property.

In the exercise of the right of private defence in respect of property it must be established that the accused was in physical possession of the property so that he was entitled to resist or repel aggression in order to maintain that right. No person is however entitled to vindicate his right to possession of any property by resorting to criminal force. 1963 (2) Cri L J 570 : 1963 Jab L J 889 : ILR (1964) Madh Pra 419.

——S. 97—Decree-holders trying to secure possession of a house not included in decree— Accused forcibly resisting decree-holders to take possession — Accused entitled to defend his right to property. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 219.

——S. 97 — Applicability — Private defence of property — Obstruction by servient owner — Rights of dominant owner indicated. See Easements Act (1882), S. 24. 1958 Cri L J 1316 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 341.

——S. 97—Dispute concerning right to usufruct of trees—Right of private defence when available.

Where in a case arising out of a dispute concerning the right to the usufruct of certain mango trees, the accused claims the right of private defence, it is necessary to decide whether the right to the usufruct belongs exclusively to the accused. It has to be investigated and decided whether the other party committed any act which is an offence against body or property of the type described in S. 97, against which the section confers upon the accused a right of private defence. 1961 (1) Cri L J 403 : 38 Mys L J 995 : ILR (1960) Mys 1126 : AIR 1961 Mys 74 (81) (Pt E) (Pr 52) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 300, Exception 2 — Private defence of property — Right when not available.

Where a land dispute has led to a mutual assault between the rival parties, resulting in deaths of some of the members of the prosecution party and simple and grievous hurts to others and the defence party claims a right of private defence, location of the place of assault and sequence of events, are the two vital considerations for fixing culpability.

Where it is evident that the incident was a continuous one and in different stages, and the place of fatal assaults was 400' from the place of the origin of the trouble, the distance between the two places is a circumstance against the plea of private defence. 29 Cut L T 15 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 700 (Orissa).

——Ss. 96, 97 and 104 — Deceased in possession of disputed land sowing bangi variety of paddy 4 or 5 days prior to occurrence— Accused, claiming to have purchased land coming for first time on date of occurrence and starting ploughing land and not heeding to protests by deceased — Deceased giving blow with lathi on head of accused causing simple injury —Accused dealing fatal blow to deceased thereafter —Right of private defence of property held available to deceased — Accused held not to have right of private defence of person. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. (1963) 29 Cut L T 245.

——Ss 97 and 96—There is nothing in Ss. 96 to 106 which lend support to the view that a person entitled to exercise the right of private defence of property cannot exercise it until he has failed after taking other reasonable steps to avoid causing harm to the assailant. AIR 1959 Pat 22, Rel. on. 25 Cut L T 500 : ILR (1959) Cut 453.

——S. 97 —Right of private defence of property and possession — Assault on persons in peaceful possession of property — If gives rise to exercise of right.

B party was established to be in possession of certain plot of land. M party trespassed on the land and ploughed it. A case of criminal trespass was started and an order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. prohibiting M party from entering upon the land was passed. On the date of occurrence B party went to the field for the purpose of removing the Mung crop and carrying it to their house. They went there with carts and Bahungis. When they were in the act of removing the crop, the M party went there armed with lathis and one person of the B party who was on the land at some place was injured. In the fight, six persons of the M party were injured and one of them died later on. On being charged with an offence under S. 147 and S. 323, B party pleaded right of private defence of property and person.

Held, that a claim of right on the part of the M party did not in any way militate against the actual possession of the B party. (2) that under these circumstances, the explanation offered by the accused that they acted in exercise of the right of private defence of property and person was a reasonable explanation and it was made out even on the basis of the prosecution evidence. AIR 1945 Pat 283, Rel. on. (1958) 24 Cut L T 332.

——S. 97 — Applicability — Right of private defence —Test of—Considerations.

In order to determine whether the accused acted in exercise of the right of private defence of property and person, it is absolutely necessary to find out who started the assault first.

Where in a murder trial the defence was that it was the police party who initiated the attack.

Held, that it was the position in which the lathis, the rifles and the revolvers were held at the time of the march by the police that had to be looked into in determining whether the accused had any right of private defence. 23 Cut L T 88 : 1957 Cri L J 769 : AIR 1957 Orissa 130 (137) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——S. 97— Attack in desperation — Right of self-defence.

Where the aggressors were the police party and the accused who were 9 in number began the attack in desperation, finding 51 persons of the police party advancing against them with loaded rifles; revolvers and lathis;

Held, that the attack by the accused, in the circumstances, was in protection of their bodies and property. 23 Cut L T 88 : 1957 Cri L J 769 : AIR 1957 Orissa 130 (139) (Pt D) (Pr 18).

——Ss. 96, 97 - Person informed that party of accused were invading his property by cutting away bamboos —Person is entitled to go suitably armed to the spot and object and if he is attacked, to defend himself by use of weapons. (1964) ILR 43 Pat 156.

——S. 97 — Private defence of person and property — Interpretation — Use of English precedents not to be permitted : Observations of Ross J., in AIR 1926 Pat 433, Dissented from. See Penal Code (1860), Preamble. 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (DB).

——S. 97 — Applicability — Both parties armed — One party in actual possession — Effect.

If neither party can be held to be in actual possession of the property in dispute and if both parties go armed to have a trial of strength, then neither party can be held to have acted in exercise of the right of private defence irrespective of whether one or the other party was the aggressor or the first to attack. If, however, a party is held to be in actual possession, it cannot be deprived of its right of private defence of property simply because it goes armed to defend its property after seeing the other party committing, or on feeling a reasonable apprehension that the other party would commit any of the offences referred to in the second clause of S. 97 of the Penal Code. The right has undoubtedly to be exercised within the limits and subject to the restrictions prescribed in the Penal Code. For instance, it cannot be exercised if there is time to take recourse to the protection of public authorities. 1957 B L J R 756 : 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (26) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

——S. 97 — Private defence of body—Conditions.

There is nothing in Ss. 96 to 106 of the Penal Code which can lend support to the view that a person entitled to exercise right of private defence cannot exercise it until he has failed after taking other reasonable steps to avoid causing harm to his assailant. 1957 B L J R 756 : 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (28) (Pt F) (Pr 27) (DB).

——S. 97 — Private defence of property.

A person in actual and peaceful possession of property is entitled to maintain that possession even by use of force if necessary. The question whether he had or had not the right to possession is immaterial.

On the other hand, the possession which a trespasser is entitled to defend against a rightful owner, must be a settled possession extending over a sufficiently long period indicative of acquiescence on the part of the true owner. A casual act of possession or mere entry on a vacant part of the land cannot have the effect of interrupting the possession of the rightful owner. He cannot therefore claim right of defence of property. ILR (1955) Pepsu 665 : 1955 Cri L J 1617 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 162 (165) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 96 and 97 — Trespasser in possession of field for about two months — Right of private defence.

When once a person has taken possession of, cultivated and sown the field and remained in possession of it for a couple of months, another person even though he was the owner is not entitled to take the law into his own hands and use force in ousting the former person. He had ample time to have recourse to the protection of public authorities. Instead of having it, if he goes to the field and uproots the crop there he is himself liable for committing criminal trespass and mischief, and will not, therefore, be entitled to the right of private defence of property. In such a case the latter person having been an aggressor and the former person, whose crop was being uprooted having no time to have recourse to the protection of the public authorities the former person even if he was a trespasser had a right to defend the property and himself. AIR 1927 Lah 705 and AIR 1954 All 35, Relied on. 1959 All W R (Sup) 52 : 1959 All Cr R 196 : 1959 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1959 Punj 570 (571) (Prs 6, 8, 9).

——Ss 97 and 378 — Seizure of cattle not trespassing on land with intention to impound without owner's consent, is theft as wrongful loss is caused to the owner — Owner has right of private defence of property.

The taking away of the cattle, which have not trespassed and have not caused damage to the crops, to the cattle pound, without the consent of the owner, would amount to theft even though the person taking them may not have the intention of having any wrongful gain to himself. Such taking away would be dishonest because it would mean deprivation of cattle to the owner and consequently wrongful loss to him. That being so, the owner has a right of private defence of property : AIR 1959 Raj 124 and AIR 1963 Orissa 52 and AIR 1946 Nag 221 and AIR 1947 Lah 380 and AIR 1963 S C 1094, Rel. on; AIR 1943 Oudh 280, Dissent from. 1964 Raj L W 627 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 476 : ILR (1964) 14 Raj 1149 : AIR 1965 Raj 72 (73) (Pr 7)

——Ss. 97, 100 149 — Private defence of person and property — Land dispute — Clash between rival parties — Member of one party exceeding right of private defence — Constructive liability of other members of that party under S. 149.

Where in criminal case arising out of a land dispute which has led to a clash between two rival parties, it is found that the accused party had the right of private defence of property and person, the fact that one of its members has exceeded the right of private defence does not turn it into an unlawful assembly and make the member exceeding the right of private defence a member of an unlawful assembly, and he can only be convicted and punished for the individual act which he himself has done in excess of the right of private defence. The other members of the accused party, therefore, could not be constructively held liable under S. 149, Penal Code, if any of them exceeded the right of private defence. AIR 1924 Pat 388, Dissent from; 39 Cal 896. Foll. 1962 Raj L W 657 : ILR (1962) 12 Raj 553 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 712.

——S. 97 — Possession of land — Defence of against trespasser — Rightful owners of land do not lose their possession particularly on an open piece of land merely because of a single act of trespass. See Penal Code (1860), S. 441. 1958 Cri L J 222 : AIR 1958 Raj 52 (DB).

——Ss. 97 and 99 — Party claiming possession attacked by party in possession — Determination to fight — Self-defence, plea of whether available, discussed. See Penal Code 1860), S. 141. 1958 Raj L W 505.

——Ss. 96, 97 and 100 — Accused in lawful possession of his field — Deceased and his party a king accused not to plough his field — Upon accused's refusal to comply, deceased aiming a lathi blow at accused — Accused picking up a lathi lying on spot and giving only one blow to the deceased resulting in his death — Accused held was protected by right of private defence of person as well as property. Case law referred. 1953 Raj L W 116 : AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1372.

——Ss. 97 and 441 — Private defence of property — Attack by trespassers.

A mere trespasser cannot, by the very act of trespass; immediately and without acquiescence, give himself what the law understood by possession against the person whom he elects and drive him to produce his title.

Where the accused were attacked by the trespassers and they had no time to approach the public authorities the trespassers could not convert their criminal trespass into 'possession' so as to drive the accused to prove their title and they are entitled to use force to ward off the attack which was delivered on them by the trespassers. 7 Sau L R 142 : 1955 Cri L J 77 : AIR 1954 Sau 156 (158) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 425 and 429 — To constitute offence of mischief existence of requisite knowledge or intention to cause wrongful loss is essential — Buffalo trespassing on field of accused — Accused assisting his daughter in driving it away — Accused throwing stone at buffalo and hitting it while it was in his field — Death of buffalo — Held, no offence of mischief — Accused held within his right to protect property from trespass. 1953 Cri L J 1350 : AIR 1953 Sau 158 (159) (Pr 2).

——Ss. 97, 323, 326 — Accused party having dao and lathis and complainant's party having lathis with them — Fight taking place in the field of one of the accused — Held, that by inflicting injuries by means of dao and lathis the accused must be held to have known or to have reason to believe that they were likely to cause hurt to the other side — But the same took place in the course of fight between two parties in which some of the accused also got injured — Again as occurrence took place on the land of accused where party of complainant had entered accused had right of private defence of property and they could not be convicted under Ss. 323 and 326. 1964 (2) Cri L J 213 : AIR 1964 Tripura 45 (48) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

3(A). Right when not available.

——S. 97—Cultivatory possession—Person uprooting crop sown by person in cultivatory possession and sowing his own crop cannot claim right of private defence. 1960 All Cr R 399 : 1960 All L J 782 : 1960 All W R (HC) 607: 1961 (1) Cri L J 15: AIR 1961 All 38 (42) (Pt F) (Pr 24) (DB).

——S. 97—Trespasser in possession of land — Possession not acquiesced in by true owner — True owner regaining possession in absence of trespasser - Trespasser has no right of private defence. 1960 All Cr R 399 : 1960 All L J 782 1960 All W R H C) 607: 1961 (1) Cri L J 15 : AIR 1961 All 38 (44) (Pt G) (Prs 33, 34) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 326/149 and 304 (1)—Deceased ploughing field of accused — On show of force by accused deceased stepping out and retreating — Deceased caught hold of by neck and speared—No right of private defence of property—No question of excessive exercise of right—Accused stabbing with spear guilty under S. 304 (1)—All guilty under S. 326/149. A I R 1956 S C 654, Relied on. 1960 All Cr R 399 : 1960 All L J 782 : 1960 All W R (H C) 607 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 15 : AIR 1961 All 38 (45) (Pt H) (Prs 38, 39) (DB).

——S. 97 — Applicability — Accused aggressor—No right of defence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 154. 1959 All L J 340 : ILR (1959) 1 All 499.

——S. 97—Applicability - Right of private defence to property—When available—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145).

When in a proceeding under S. 145, Criminal P. C., an ex parte order of possession is made in favour of A then merely because the order of the Magistrate in favour of A is ex parte, it cannot be said it has no legal effect and that one of the parties to the proceedings can ignore it and beat A when she went to cultivate the disputed land in pursuance of this order. The party has no right of private defence of property. The proper course for such a party is to have that order set aside. 1958 All L J 193 : 1958 All W R (HC) 105 : 1958 Cri L J 710 : ILR (1958) 1 All 306 : 1958 All Cr R 190 : A I R 1958 All 432 (435) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 97—Private defence of property — Accused claiming title and dissuading deceased and his son from digging manure pit—Altercation and abuses—Accused leaving and immediately returning with spear and lathis and assaulting deceased and his son who were unarmed—Accused held had no right of private defence of property—If they had, they exceeded it. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3537 (DB).

——S. 97—Applicability.

The right of private defence only arises against acts which constitute an offence except in certain specified circumstances. The right of private defence of person extends to acts which amount to an offence affecting the body of the person exercising the right of the body of any other person The right of private defence of property covers cases of acts which are offences falling, under the definition of 'theft' 'robery' 'mischief' or 'criminal trespass' or an attempt to commit any of these.

Where the judgment-debtor offered resistance to the decree-holder who was ploughing the land of which he had obtained delivery of possession in execution of a decree, even if the judgment-debtor had cultivated the fields for a short time after the delivery of possession he has no right of private defence against the decree-holder. 1953 All W R (H C) 381 : 1953 All L J 430 : 1954 Cri L J 26 : A I R 1954 All 39 (41, 42) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 14, 15) (DB).

——Ss. 96, 147, 425, 339—Accused claiming right of easement to pass over inner courtyards of complainant's house through gap in complainant's boundary wall—Right disputed by complainant — Complainant trying to close gap—Complainant's act does not amount to mischief or wrongful restrain — No right of private defence arises in favour of accused party Accused party using criminal force to prevent closing of gap are guilty of rioting. 1963 (1) Cri L J 46 : AIR 1963 Cal 3 (5) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——S. 97—Complainant entering into land of accused to effect repairs to fence serving as boundary between lands of parties without intention to annoy, intimidate or insult accused—Act does not amount to criminal trespass so as to give accused right to inflict injury on complainant. See Penal Code (1860), S. 441. ILR (1964) Cut 706.

——Ss. 97 and 96—Right of private defence — Complainant in possession of disputed land—Accused party assaulting and injuring complainant party on disputed land — Complainant's son dying due to injuries on head — Accused party being aggressors, right of private defence of person and of property held not available to them.

Where the complainant was in possession of the disputed land, and the accused persons, armed with lathis, after committing aggression upon the land, assaulted and injured complainant party and killed complainant's son.

Held, that accused persons being aggressors had no right of private defence of person or property. Even in a case of disputed possession where neither party can be held, to be in actual possession of the disputed property, if both parties go armed with lathis for a trial of strength, then neither party can be held to have acted in exercise of his right of private defence irrespective of whether one or the other was the aggressor. Similarly, if a party is found to be in actual possession, he cannot be deprived of his right of private defence of property merely because he goes armed to defend his property. No doubt, the exercise of such right is subject to the limitation prescribed by the Penal Code, such as, if there is time enough to take recourse to protection of public authorities, etc. (1964) 30 Cut L T 556.

——Ss 96, 97, 378—Illegal seizure of cattle—There is right of private defence of property.

If a person knowing that the cattle of another person have not damaged his crops seizes them and drives them towards the pound his intention is obviously to compel the owner of the animals to incur some expenditure in releasing them from the pound and also to deprive the owner temporarily, at any rate, of the use of the animals. Illegal seizure of cattle with a view to impound them is theft because though the person who has seized the animals had no intention to cause wrongful gain to himself nevertheless his intention was to cause wrongful loss to the owner of the animals In such a case the owner of the cattle has a right to exercise the right of private defence of property in rescuing them. The position may, however, differ if the seizure of the cattle, though not justified was due to bona fide mistake. In such an event, no offence of theft may be said to have been committed by their being driven to the pound because the necessary criminal intention and knowledge are wanting In such a case there is no right of private defence against such seizure. A I R 1946 Nag 221 and AIR 1959 Raj 124 and AIR 1949 All 180, Rel. on; AIR 1943 Oudh 280 and 24 Suth W R Cr 7 and 1881 All W N 158, Dissented from. 28 Cut L T 613: 1963 (1) Cri L J 308 : I L R (1962) Cut 781 : A I R 1963 Orissa 52 (53) (Prs 3, 4, 5).

——Ss 96 and 97—Applicability—Private defence of property — Doubt as to party's actual possession — Effect.

There is nothing in Ss. 96 to 106 of the Penal Code which can lend support to the view that a person entitled to exercise the right of private defence of property cannot exercise it until he has failed after taking other reasonable steps to avoid causing harm to the assailant. AIR 1959 Pat 22, Rel. on.

But where there is a real doubt whether the land over the possession of which there is a quarrel between two parties resulting in committal of offences, belonged to one party or the other, then if either party uses force, that will amount to enforcing a right (S. 141, fourth) and there will be no right of private defence of property AIR 1940 Lah 523, Rel. on; 25 Cut L T 358 : 16 Cut L T 59, Disting. (1959) 25 Cut L T 500 : ILR (1959) Cut 453.

——S. 97 — Where there is a real doubt whether the land over the possession of which there is a quarrel between two parties resulting in committal of offences, belonged to one party or the other, then if either party uses force, that will amount to enforcing a right (S. 141, fourth) and there will be no right of private defence of property. (1959) 25 Cut L T 500.

——S. 97 —Right of private defence of property.

Where the lands in dispute were in the possession of the opposite party who had grown the crops and the accused came to reap the paddy with the help of a large armed mob to enforce their supposed right and claim over the produce and a riot followed :

Held, that the accused could not claim any right of private defence 1957 Cri L J 644 : ILR (1957) Cut 275 : A I R 1957 Orissa 117 (120) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 99 — Right of private defence — Stray act of trespass Trespasser cannot plead right of private defence against rightful owner. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 2498.

——S. 97 (2)—'Possession'—Stray act of tying cattle on land in possession of another—Right of private defence.

A stray act of tying cattle cannot be said to have given legal possession to a person who ties his cattle upon the land in possession of another. When there is an open piece of land, the person in possession does not very much mind that his neighbour has tied his cattle upon the land in possession of another. In order to defend such stray possession of his, a person is not entitled to use force with the person in rightful possession. Even supposing that the stray acts of the tethering of cattle might be taken to be as those of possession, the right to defend one's property arises only in the circumstances given in S. 97 (2), I. P. Code. Such a right comes into being to defend the property against any act which is an offence falling under the definition of theft, robbery, mischief of criminal trespass. Where the deceased had simply gone to the land and had protested against the action of the accused tying the cattle this act of his comes neither within the definition of theft, nor of robbery nor of mischief, nor of criminal trespass. 1959 Raj L W 35.

——S 96—Applicability—Person in aggressor party assaulting person in other party—Such person cannot claim right of private defence. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 5301 (DB).

——S. 97—Private defence of property—Right of private defence — Accused persons trespassing into complainant's land and picking up quarrel over canal unauthorisedly dug by them on the land— Accused held could not be deemed to be in possession of the land—Accused held were aggressors and had no right of private defence. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4102 (DB).

3 (B). Defence of other people's property.

—S 97—Right of private defence—Extent of.

It is not the law that the right of private defence is open only to the person whose land or person is attacked by any aggressor The right of private defence is open to any one against an attack on the land or person of even some one else. Thus where the accused had joined another person in defending the latter's land and person, they were also protected by the law of private defence. 1960 B L J R 526

3 (C). Trespasser in possession.

See Note 3.

4. Right of private defence against act of person of unsound mind or of person under misapprehension - S. 98.

—Ss. 98 and 34 — Applicability—Private defence of property—Persons doing lawful act.

Held, that since identity of the cows had not been established the accused must get the benefit of doubt. S. 98 makes it clear that a person does not lose the right of defence of property merely because the opposite party is under misapprehension. The accused could not be blamed for the use of reasonable force for rescuing their cattle. Since the opposing party consisted of as many as four persons, a little violence was permissible The accused could not be blamed for causing simple and grievous hurts. It appeared that some one from the four accused exceeded the right of private defence All the four accused were at first lawfully exercising the right of private defence. They were not committing any illegal acts. In order to attract S. 34, I. P. C criminal act has to be done by number of persons. If a number of persons are doing a lawful act, S. 34, I. P. Code, has no application. So although one accused was responsible for causing Musafi's death unlawfully, other accused could not be held responsible on the principle of S. 34, I. P. Code. The result was none of the accused would be convicted of any offence: AIR 1949 All 180, Dist. 1959 All W R (H C) 10: 1959 All Cr R 60: 1959 All L J 207: 1959 Cr L J 1394: AIR 1959 All 790 (791, 792) (Prs 8, 11 to 15).

—Ss. 103, 98 — Right of private defence of property—No right of defence against lawful act of self-defence - Attempt to house trespass at night—Intruders not disclosing identity in spite of repeated challenges from inmates—House owner hitting one of intruders with arrow—Accused (other intruder) not entitled to any right of self-defence.

Held, on facts that the deceased was justified in acting in self-defence in attacking the intruders and was within the limits of the law in the exercise of the same. The right of self-defence is not dependent on the actual criminality of the person resisted; it depends solely on the wrongful, or apparently, character of the act attempted If the apprehension is real and reasonable, it makes no difference that it is mistaken. There cannot be any right of defence against an act which is itself an act of lawful self-defence. (1962) 3 Guj L R 152: 1962 (1) Cr L J 717: AIR 1962 Guj 203 (206, 207) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 20, 21) (DB).

—Ss. 97, 100—Accused in sleep caught in vicious grip by mad man — In confusion accused getting hold of a chopper and causing death of mad man—Accused held had right of self-defence.

The accused was frightened out of sleep by a well nourished mad man of 45, who pounced upon him and held him in a vicious grip, and he apprehended danger to life and used the weapon that he could pick up (i. e. a chopper) in his half awakened mood to repel the onslaught of a thief or a murderer. The standard of the easy-chair critic or the cool bystander was not to be used and the weighing of the right of self-defence in golden scales was not to be indulged in The dangerous situation in which the accused was placed at that untimely hour when a sturdy man had pounced on him and held him in a vicious grip should be the deciding factor and not the number of injuries the accused had inflicted The conviction under S. 304 was bad. 1959 Ker L R 339.

5. Right of private defence against act of public servant—S. 99.

(A) Explanation 1 to S. 99.

(B) Act of public servant without jurisdiction.

5. Right of private defence against act of public servant—S. 99.

—Ss 99 and 332—Arrest made in good faith under colour of office Resistance to arrest—Warrant of arrest illegal—Effect of—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 108

Where there is an order of a competent Magistrate to arrest a person, a police officer cannot be said to have acted without jurisdiction in arresting that person. Assuming that the warrant of arrest was defective or irregular, then at the most it would be a case of his exceeding the jurisdiction and not of acting absolutely without jurisdiction. Hence in executing such a warrant of arrest if the police officer acts in good faith colore officii, there is no right of private defence against his act. The only effect of the illegality of the warrant would be that the police officer cannot be said to have been acting in the discharge of his duty within the meaning of S 332. Penal Code, and consequently if the person to be arrested resists it or being arrested escapes from custody, he and others who help him commit no offence But if in addition they do other acts which are cirminal, they are certainly responsible for them. Case law ref.

In this case it was held that the warrant of arrest of the woman who was alleged to have been wrongfully confined was issued under S. 100 and not under S. 552, Criminal P. C. and that all the accused who were proved to have taken part in assaulting the police officer snatching and tearing the warrant and rescuing the woman from his custody were rightly convicted under Ss. 147, 332, 225B and 379, Penal Code. 52 Cri L J 912 (2): 1951 All W R (H C) 458: 1951 All Cri R 109: 1952 All L J 39: AIR 1951 All 637 (638 to 640) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 7, 11).

—S. 99—Warrant issued — Endorsement at foot of warrant not filled in due to oversight—Resistance—No right of private defence - Omission of endorsement will not make the apprehension unlawful—Case would fall within S. 99—See Punjab Village Panchayat Act (as applied to Himachal Pradesh), S. 33. 1954 Cri L J 1472: AIR 1954 Him Pra 68.

—S. 99—Principle of section

Section 99 rests partly on the probability that the acts of a public servant will be lawful in which case resistance must necessarily be unlawful; partly on the theory that resistance is unnecessary since the law will set right what has been wrongly done in its name, and, lastly, on the ground that it is good for society that a public servant should be protected in the execution of his duty even where he is in error. 1953 Mad W N 558: 66 Mad L W 361 1953 Cri L J 1730: AIR 1953 Mad 936 (937) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

—Ss 99, 323— Applicability — Police officer asking accused to surrender as there was warrant of arrest against him — Accused refusing to come out of his house—Police officer acting in belief that it was his duty to arrest accused though warrant was not valid —Right of private defence does not extend to kicking police officer or beating him with stick—Accused held guilty under S. 323, Penal Code 1953 Nag L J 351 : 1953 Cri L J 1569 : A I R 1953 Nag 292 (295) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

—S. 99—Forest guard, acting in good faith, causing seizure of forest-produce — Right of private defence cannot be claimed by assaultees. See Penal Code (1860), S. 332. (1965) 31 Cut L T 851.

—S. 99, Cl. 3 — Protection of public authorities — Extent of.

Protection of public authorities referred to in S. 99, Penal Code, must mean such protection as can preserve the status quo. 1964 (2) Cri L J 696 : AIR 1964 Orissa 262 (265) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

—Ss. 97, 99 and 100 —Applicability — Actual commission of offence if necessary to give rise to right of private defence.

It is not necessary that there should be an actual commission of the offence in order to give rise to the right of private defence. It is enough if the accused apprehends that such an offence is contemplated and that it is likely to be committed if the right of private defence is not exercised. Even assuming that the march by the police party was a lawful one and that the Police party never intended to cause grievous hurt or death, the accused are justified by law to exercise the right of private defence if they were under a bona fide impression, though mistaken, that the march amounted to an assault causing an apprehension that otherwise death or grievous hurt would be the result. A I R 1933 Pat 144 and A I R 1954 All 39 and I A I R 1920 U B 35 and I L R 21 Mad 249, Not followed. 23 Cut LT 88: 1957 Cr L J 769:AIR 1957 Orissa 130 (149, 150) (Pt P) (Prs 43, 44) (DB).

—Ss. 97, 98, 353, 332, 323—Obstructing public servant in discharge of his duties — Ingredients of offence — Proof — Accused alleged assaulting Police Officer who wanted to search his (accused's) house for stolen articles under powers conferred by S. 165 (1) (3) and (5) of Criminal P. C., 1898 — Search contravening S. 165, Criminal P. C., being illegal, conviction of accused under Ss. 353 and 332, Penal Code, not maintainable—In view of illegality of search and right of accused to private defence of person conviction of accused could not be even altered to one under S. 323, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 353. (1964) (2) Cri L J 571: AIR 1964 Pat 493.

—S. 99 - Applicability — Assault on public servant acting in good faith and under colour of his office — No right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 353. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 1592.

—S 99—Bona fide acts of public servants — Police keeping accused in lock-up openly and without attempt at secrecy—Superior immediately informed—Case registered against accused - No apprehension that death or grievous hurt would be caused—Police held acted in good faith — No representation made against police to public authorities — Attack on police party resulting in death and injury to police is not bona fide exercise of private defence — (Trav. Penal Code (1 of 1074), S. 89). A I R 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 538 (DB).

—S 99 — Offence under S. 33 (1) (a) is cognisable offence — Person arrested for offence under S. 33 (1) (a) can be released on his executing bond to appear before Magistrate — Offence is not non-bailable — Private person like Plantation watcher can arrest person committing offence under S. 33 (1) (a) — Plantation watcher is forest officer within meaning of S. 2 (2), Forest Act and has power to arrest without warrant person committing offence under S. 33 (1) (a) —Person arrested has no right of private defence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 59. 1963 (1) Cri L J 558 (Tripura).

5 (A). Explanation 1 to S. 99.

—S. 99—"Not strictly justifiable in law."

The words "not strictly justifiable in law" are not intended to cure the want of jurisdiction but only an erroneous exercise of it. When the error affects the procedure rather than the principle, it would be covered by the clause. Explanation (1) goes with this paragraph and it is intended to protect persons who may have acted in ignorance of the fact that the person they were dealing with was a public servant. 1953 Mad W N 558 : 66 Mad L W 361 : 1953 Cri L J 1730: AIR 1953 Mad 936 (938) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

—Ss. 99, Explanation 1, 300 Exception 2, 302—Public servant not acting strictly in accordance with law in arresting accused — Public servant not known to accused — Accused held had initially right of private defence against such public servant—Accused causing death of public servant who was helpless by giving him several Choora blows — Exception 2 of S. 300 did not apply - Accused was guilty under S. 302 — As accused could not be expected to make balanced judgment sentence of imprisonment for the life would meet ends of justice. 1960 Cr L J 271 : A I R 1960 Pat 62 (64, 65) (Prs 21, 23, 25, 26, 28, 29) (DB).

5(B). Act of public servant without jurisdiction.

● —S. 99, Cl. (ii) — Protection under — Extends even to acts which will not be strictly justifiable by law (Obiter). Kanwar Singh v. Delhi Administration, 1965 Cur L J 366 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 1 : (1965) 1 S C W R 896.: (1965) 2 S C J 115 : 1965 S C D 630 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 435 (1964) 1 SCR 7 : AIR 1965 S C 871 (874) (Pt E) (Pt 11).

● —S. 99, Cl. (ii) — Seizure of stray animals by raiding party possessing authority under S. 418 (1), Delhi Municipal Corporation Act — Accused resisting cattle-catching and inflicting injuries on raiding party—Held since raiding party's act was fully justifiable by law, accused were not entitled to claim right of private defence of property — Judgment and order of Punjab High Court in Criminal Revn. No. 337-D of 1962 dated 19th November, 1962 (Punj.). Affirmed. Kanwar Singh v. Delhi Administration, 1965 (2) Cri L J 1 : (1965) 1 S C W R 896 : (1965 2 S C J 115 : 1965 S C D 630 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 435 : (1965) 1 S C R 7 : 1965 Cur L J 366 : AIR 1965 S C 871 (874) (Pt F) (Pr 11).

—Ss. 97, 99 — Seizure of account books by public officer illegally but in good faith — Aggrieved party has no right of private defence — Limitation laid down in S. 99 must be observed. 1964 All W R (HC) 128 : 1964 All Cr R 107 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 582 : AIR 1965 All 543 (545) (Pt B) (Pr 25).

—Ss. 97, 99, 147, 143, 323 — Illegal attachment of of property — Judgment-debtor is not entitled to take it from the enclosure, where the sapurdar had kept it — There is no right of self-defence. See Penal Code (1860) S. 147. 1960 Cri L J 1040 AIR 1960 All 453.

—Ss. 97 and 99—Scope—Person resisting unlawful arrest of another, is protected. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2782.

—Ss. 99, 147 and 353—Seizure of account books—Seizure not authorised by Law — Accused retrieving books forcibly—Force used not more than necessary — No injury caused - Accused held had right of private defence—No offence committed.

The Assistant Commercial Tax Officer proceeded to the premises of a mill accompanied by some other officials and on seeing the accused hastily taking away account books unceremoniously seized the books from the accused. The accused with the help of some persons retrieved the books in an equally unceremonious manner. It appeared that force was not used in excess of what was barely necessary for recovering, and no injury was caused to the Tax Officer.

Held that since the seizure was not proved to be authorised by law and was not done after due observance of any formalities it could not be said that the accused had no right of private defence in view of S. 99, Penal Code or that they committed any offence. (1960) 11 S T C 850: A I R 1960 Andh Pra 110 (111) (Prs 2, 3).

——Ss 97 and 99—Applicability — Police Constables taking accused who were behaving in disorderly manner to dispensary for medical examination — Constables having no legal authority to require accused to submit to medical examination—Arrest and detention did not deprive accused of their right which was unconnected with their confinement - On the way accused who were being dragged, in resisting the constables, giving blows to constable and making good their escape — Accused held acted within their right under S. 97 —Right of private defence See Penal Code (1860), S. 352 1959 Cri L J 825 : A I R 1959 Bom 284 (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99 and 353 — Conviction under S. 353 — Public servant must be acting in discharge of his duties —If he was acting under order which was bad and illegal, then even if he might have been himself unaware of the illegality, that does not make any difference — Held that accused had right under S. 97 to resist seizure of the goods under distress warrant which was bad as certain steps were not taken, issued by the Panchayat but executed by the secretary of the Panchayat — Inasmuch as the orders were ultra vires, there was no room for the operation of either the first or the second clause of S. 99 — Accused held did not exceed the right of private defence — (Panchayats — Bombay Village Panchayats Act (6 of 1933), Rules under, R. 13). A I R 1956 Bom 580 (581, 582) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7).

——Ss. 99 and 332 — Police Sub-Inspector acting in discharge of his duty as public servant in executing order of his superior—Fact that Order of superior was without proper authorisation in that behalf by State Government does not affect good faith of sub-Inspector when order is prima facie proper — Resistance to execution of order by accused and causing hurt to sub-Inspector — Accused held not protected by right of private defence under S. 99 —Conviction of accused under S. 332 held was proper.

The accused, a head constable of police was dismissed from service but he continued to stay in the quarters provided for him. On 25-5-1954 the D. S. P. issued a notice to him to vacate the premises occupied by him within 7 days from the receipt of the notice and if he failed to do so action under S 31 Bombay Police Act, 1951 would be taken against him. In spite of the service of this notice the accused failed to comply with it. An application of the accused for permission to stay in the quarters till 10-8-1954 was rejected by the D. S. P.

By an order D/- 29 7.1954 the D S. P. directed a particular sub-Inspector to take legal action against the accused and to report the result within 7 days. Pursuant to this order when the Sub Inspector went to the premises of the accused to execute the order D/- 29 7.1954 the accused refused to vacate the premises and offered resistance to the executions of the order and caused injury to the Sub-Inspector. The accused was prosecuted and convicted on a charge under S. 332, I. P. C.

Held (1), that when the Sub-Inspector who was bound to execute the order of D S P. went to execute the order of D S. P. dated 29.7-1954 he was acting in the discharge of his duty as a public servant and the mere fact that the order was defective for want of authorisation of the D. S. P. by the State Government under S 5(2) could not assist the accused in his defence that he was justified in resisting the execution of the order 18 All 246 and 40 All 28, Dist.

That the Sub-Inspector was acting in good faith under colour of his office when he went to the premises of the accused to execute the order of the D S. P. dated 29.7 1954 which was prima facie proper. The Sub-Inspector was not expected to consult legal opinion as to the soundness or legality of that order. Hence the accused had no right of private defence under S. 99, I. P. C., which was not attracted to the circumstances of the case The accused was therefore rightly convicted under S 332, I. P. C. ILR (1956) Bom 661.

——Ss 99, 224 and 302 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 54 (1) and 56 (1) — Special powers under S 56 cannot override general powers of arrest without warrant—Police constable arresting suspected thief without warrant on his own initiative under S. 54 (1) — Arrest is lawful even if S. 56 is not complied with —Suspected thief escaping from custody by causing death of constable — Held guilty of offences under Ss. 224 and 302, I P C —Causing of death not justified in view of S. 99, I. P. Code.

Held on facts, (i) that in the circumstances of the case the deceased constable had purported to act under S 54 (1) on his own initiative and not under S. 56 (1) Cr. P Code. The special powers under S. 56, Cr. P. Code, cannot override the general powers of arrest without warrant in the cases provided for in S 54 of the Code. The fact that the deceased constable had been deputed under S. 56 to arrest the accused did not take away from him his powers of arrest in his discretion under S. 54 of the Code, if the exigencies of the situation so required The deceased constable had acted under S 54 (1), Cr. P. Code and the arrest was therefore perfectly legal. There was also submission to custody under S. 46 and hence the accused was guilty under S. 224 I P C. 1981 Ker L T 577 and AIR 1924 Mad 555, Dist; AIR 1926 Pat 424 and AIR 1937 Bom 56 and AIR 1960 Orissa 33. Rel. on; (ii) that even otherwise the legality of the arrest did not affect the legality of the conviction under S. 302, I. P. C. in view of S 99 I. P. Code. The words "colour of his officer" in S 99 refer to irregular as distinguished from illegal acts. The arrest having been made in good faith and under colour of his office by the deceased constable, there was no right of private defence even if, the arrest might not be strictly justifiable by law. 1963 Ker L J 78 Foll. 1964 (2) Cri L J 34 : AIR 1964 Ker 185 (Pt A) (Prs 6, 9, 10) (DB).

——Ss. 99, 302 and 353—Principle and applicability of S. 99 — Warrant of arrest endorsed to constable not by name but by designation — Constable in uniform while executing warrant Constable held acted in good faith under colour of office Accused sought to be arrested held had no right of private defence —Accused assaulting constable and stabbing other constable resulting in his death—Accused held guilty under Ss. 302 and 353.

Section 99 applies to cases where there is jurisdiction to do an act, but that jurisdiction has been in some respects exercised wrongly. The words 'under colour of office' refer to irregular as distinguished from illegal acts. They show that the act was within the jurisdiction but that the jurisdiction had been exercised irregularly or on insufficient grounds. The protection in favour of public servants rests partly on the probability that their acts will be lawful; in which case resistance must necessarily be unlawful; partly on the theory that resistance is unnecessary since the law will set right what has been wrongly done in its name; and lastly on the ground that it is good for society that public servants should be protected in the execution of their duty when they are in error.

The Sub-Inspector of Police to whom the warrant was issued endorsed it to a constable not by his name as required by S. 79, Cr. P. Code but only noting his number in the warrant. The constable was in uniform while executing the warrant. The surety for the accused had already told the accused that a warrant had been issued by the Court for his apprehension and that he should appear in Court and not create trouble for the surety. The constable appraised the accused of the contents of the warrant thereby satisfying the provisions of S. 80 of the Cr. P. Code and caught his hand thereby showing that he was under arrest. The accused assaulted the constable and where the other constable, deputed to assist the former, tried to prevent further harm being done, the accused stabbed him resulting in his death:

Held, that the constable executing the warrant was acting in good faith under colour of his office and therefore, although the warrant was not strictly legal the accused had no right of private defence and was guilty under Ss. 302 and 353. 8 All 293 and AIR 1922 Oudh 224 and AIR 1936 Rang 119 and ILR (1956) Bom 661 and AIR 1953 Mad 936, Rel. on; AIR 1960 Andh Pra 110 and AIR 1960 Pat 232 and AIR 1953 Nag 292 and AIR 1959 Bom 284, Distinguished. 1963 Ker L J 76: ILR (1963) 1 Ker 220: (1964) 1 Cri L J 592 (Ker).

——S. 99—Person detained — Detention not authorised by S. 59, Cr. P. C. — Person detained has right of private defence—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 59).

Under S. 59 of the Criminal P. C. the right of arrest given to a private person is confined to cases where a non-bailable and cognisable offence has been committed. An offence under S. 447, I. P. C., though cognizable is non-bailable.

Where the person alleged to have committed an offence under S. 447 is detained, the detention being not authorised by S. 59, the person detained has a right of private defence and is entitled to use force to escape from wrongful confinement. (Person held exceeded the right). 1959 Ker L J 818: 1959 Ker L R 641.

——S. 99—'Colour of office"

The words 'colour" of office refer to irregular distinguished from illegal acts. They show that the act was within the jurisdiction but that the jurisdiction had been exercised irregularly or on insufficient grounds 1953 Mad W N 558: 66 Mad L W 361: 1953 Cri L J 1730: AIR 1953 Mad 936 (938) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Ss. 99, 97—Decree against a member of undivided joint family — Process server illegally attaching entire cattle belonging to family and persisting to remove them — Held, family members had right of private defence and could use minimum force against the attaching party.

A decree for recovery of possession of certain land and for recovery of certain amount was passed against the sole judgment debtor. The judgment-debtor and his sons were all members of an undivided joint family. The warrant of attachment mentioned the attachment of the debtor's share of the cattle. In execution of the decree, the process server hurriedly attached the entire cattle belonging to the family in the absence of the members of the family. He did not make any inquiry whether the entire cattle belonged to the judgment-debtor or they also belonged to his sons. When the cattle were being taken away the members of the family came on the scene of occurrence, demanded the cattle and protested that they would not allow the cattle to be taken away. There was a fight between the attaching party and the family members and in that melee many persons were injured on both side. The members of the family were prosecuted for forming an unlawful assembly, committing the offence of rioting and for assaulting the decree-holder, who accompanied with the process server.

Held, in the circumstances of the case that the accused had the right of private defence because the illegal attachment and actual removal of the entire cattle caused reasonable apprehension of danger to the property in the mind of the accused. A I R 1947 Pat 232, Rel. on.

It was never intended that a man would submit to the deprivation of property in his possession without exercising any right of self defence and trust to recover it by the tedious operation of a case in the Civil Court with all the weight of possession, onus of proof etc. against him. A party is under no obligation to retire from his field on the appearance of an attacking party on the scene and intent upon using violence, and in such a case S. 99, Penal Code is no bar to the accused persons getting benefit of the right of private defence of property.

The process-server had no right to seize the share of the sons of the judgment-debtor in the cattle and in doing so he would not be acting in good faith under the colour of his office. The protection afforded by S. 99 disappeared; the accused would be within their rights to resist the attachment of the entire cattle.

Even if the warrant of attachment were otherwise valid, the property belonging to a joint family could not be seized in execution of the warrant against one of them; as the attaching party persisted in their illegal attachment and removal, the accused could use minimum force to prevent such attachment and removal and their conviction would be bad. The accused persons could get the protection by recourse to public authorities only if there was time enough for them to get police help at the time of occurrence. But the police station being 12 miles away it could not be said that after knowing that the attaching party had already attached and removed their entire cattle illegally, and that the attaching party were in fact driving the cattle, the accused persons could take the recourse to public authorities. ILR (1964) Cut 766.

——Ss. 99 and 52 — 'Acting contrary to law and without jurisdiction' and 'acting in a way not strictly justifiable by law' — Distinction — Good faith in criminal law and in civil law.

There is a distinction between 'acting contrary to law and without jurisdiction' and 'acting in a way not strictly justifiable by law'. Good faith in criminal law is different from 'good faith' as understood in civil law. If an act is not done with due care and and attention, it cannot be said to be done in good faith as far as criminal law is concerned.

Held, that not only the police were not with legal authority either to arrest or to effect a search but also did not act in good faith as was required by law and their action was wholly without jurisdiction. Therefore, the action of the police was such as to give rise to a right of private defence on the part of the inmates of the Math under S. 99. 23 Cut L T 88: 1957 Cri L J 769: A I R 1957 Orissa 130 (145 to 147) (Pt O) (Prs 40, 41).

——S. 97—Search illegal — Still accused can be held guilty under S. 47 (a), Bihar and Orissa Excise Act, 1915. See Bihar and Orissa Excise Act (2 of 1915), S. 47 (a). 1962 B L J R 344.

——Ss. 99, 97 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 499, 514, Sch. 5, Form 42—Bond in favour of King Emperor is not bond in favour of Government. Same cannot be forfeited—Distress warrant for enforcing forfeiture is illegal — Attachment of cattle under illegal distress warrant — Accused have right of private defence.

See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 499. 1960 Cri L J 636 : A I R 1960 Pat 232.

——S. 99 — Bihar and Orrisa Public Demands Recovery Act (1914), S. 7 — Execution of certificate by arrest of certificate debtor — Notice under S. 7, is necessary — Without such notice certificate officer cannot execute the certificate S. 99 does not help the officer. See Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (4 of 1914), S. 7. 1953 Cri L J 1681 : A I R 1953 Pat 313.

——S. 99 — Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (1914), Ss 47, 4 and Sch. II, Rule 54 1)— Execution of certificate by arrest of certificate debtor cannot be bad if certificate holder has deposited subsistence allowance in Court — Provision is mandatory — No subsistence allowance deposited — Arrest is illegal — S. 99 does not help the officer carrying out the arrest. See Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (1914), S. 47. 1953 Cri L J 1681 : A I R 1953 Pat 313.

——S 99 — The words 'strictly justifiable by law' in S. 99 show that the section does not contemplate a case of initial want of jurisdiction — If there was no jurisdiction to issue the warrant of arrest or to make arrest, S. 99 cannot be of any help to the public servant. 1953 B L J R 364 : 1953 Cri L J 1681 : AIR 1953 Pat 313 (315) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——S. 99—Scope — Prosecution under S. 332, Penal Code — Non-compliance with S 165 — Accused held justified in resisting search in exercise of right of private defence of property. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 165. 1964 Cur L J 160 : 66 Pun L R 569.

——S. 99 — Assistant Sub-Inspector of Police of Punjab State coming with staff to village in Rajasthan for investigation of case in Punjab — Searches and seizure of properties of accused by Assistant Sub-Inspector held to be without jurisdiction — Police party held not to have acted in good faith — Right of private defence held, however, not available to accused under circumstances of the case — Offence under S. 395 held not proved — Conviction under Ss. 332 and 333 upheld. See Penal Code (1860), S. 52. 1964 Raj L W 126.

——Ss. 97, 99 — Illegal warrant of attachment — Resistance—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 24 (2).

While O. 21, R. 24, Civil P. C, lays down that the warrant is to be delivered to the proper officer for execution, it contemplates that the name of such officer, whether by his personal name or by designation, should be entered in the warrant. Where not only the name of the process-server is not mentioned but the name of the Nazir whether personally or by virtue of his office is also not mentioned such a warrant is illegal. The act of executing such a warrant clearly lacks due care and attention. The words "though that act may not be strictly justifiable by law" in S. 99, Penal Code, only protect defect in minor particulars but do not cover cases where the person executing the warrant was not authorized to act The resistance to the execution of the warrant in such a case is covered by the plea of right of private defence of property. 1951 Raj L W 131 : I I R (1951) 1 Raj 86 : A I R 1951 Raj 105 (106, 107) (Prs 4, 5).

6. Extent to which right may be exercised.

See also Note 8.

■ ——Ss. 99, 100, 302 — Right of private defence—Extent of.

Under S 100, if the person claiming the right of private defence has to face assailants who can be reasonably apprehended to cause grievious hurt to him, it would be open to him to defend himself by causing the death of the assailant.

Where an individual citizen or his property is faced with a danger and immediate aid from the State machinery is not readily available, the individual citizen is entitled to protect himself and his property. That being so, it is a necessary corollary to the doctrine of private defence that the violence which the citizen defending himself or his property is entitled to use must not be unduly disproportionate to the injury which is to be averted or which is reasonably apprehended and should not exceed its ligitimate purpose. The exercise of the right of private defence must never be vindictive or malicious.

In judging the conduct of a person who proves that he had a right of private defence, allowance has necessarily to be made for his feelings at the relevant time. It is no doubt true that in striking a decisive blow, he must not use more force than appears to be reasonably necessary. The law of private defence does not require that the person assaulted or facing an apprehension of an assault must run away for safety. As soon as the cause for the reasonable apprehension has disappeared and the threat has either been destroyed or has been put to rout, there can be no occasion to exercise the right of private defence. If the danger is continuing, the right is there ; if the danger of the apprehension about it has ceased to exist there is no longer the right of private defence.

The victims who belonged to the party of aggressors were at a fairly long distance from the appellants when they were shot dead by the appellants. The aggressors had already started running away and there was no danger either to the property or to the bodies of the appellants.

Held, that the appellants were guilty of murder and could not invoke the right of private defence.

It was for the party pleading self-defence to prove the circumstances giving rise to the exercise of the right of self-defence, and this right could not be said to be proved as soon as the conclusion is reached that at the relevant time there was no threat either to the persons of the appellants or the persons or property of their companions Jai Dev v State of Punjab, (1963) 3 S C R 489 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 478 : (1964) 2 S C J 272 1963 S C D 66 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 495 : 1964 All Cri R 170 : 1963 A I W R (H C) 338 : A I R 1963 S C 612 (617, 619, 620) (Pt A) (Prs 11 to 13, 19, 20).

——S. 104 — Harm should be such as should be helpful in defending property. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 4157.

——S 99—Extent of right of private defence.

Where the total number of injuries on the side of the complainant are somewhat more than those on the side of the accused persons, the injuries, by themselves, do not necessarily prove that the accused were the aggressors and had exceeded their right of self-defence When lathis, tabar and other sharpedged weapons are being used by both the parties in the fight, it is very difficult for any side to weigh the strokes that are inflicted by him and to inflict injuries only up to a certain limit and no more 1953 All W R (H C) 424 : 1953 All L J 605 : 1954 Cri L J 54 : A I R 1954 All 35 (37) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Ss. 99, 103, 300. Exception 2, 304—Applicability —Cattle of deceased grazing on preserved grass of accused—Accused rounding up cattle to take them to cattle pound — Deceased forcibly taking away cattle from possession of accused Deceased though armed with lathi not using it — Accused hitting deceased with lathi on head — Deceased dying as result of injury—Accused held exceeded right of self-defence —Act covered by Exception (2) of S. 300—Conviction should be under S. 304, Part I and not Part II. 1951 All

W R (H C) 477 : 1951 All L J 464 : 1951 All Cri Cas 116 : 1953 Cri L J 1275 : A I R 1953 All 555 (556) (Pt A) (Prs 5 to 10, 12).

——Ss 96 and 99 — Scope — Right of self-defence — When justified — Extent of the right — Question if force used was more than was necessary — Consideration.

A was raising a wall on his own land and there was no invasion of B's rights. B demolished part of the wall built and a free fight ensued in which A and his son received minor injuries while B received greater number of injuries and grievous injury too. B complained to a Magistrate and A was convicted under Ss 308 and 323, Penal Code, his son was also convicted but was given the benefit of being a first offender On appeal A's conviction under S. 308 was altered to one under S. 325 and sentences were also reduced. The matter was taken in revision.

Held i a man is attacked he would be justified if he holds his ground and delivers a counter attack provided the injury he inflicts is not out of all proportion to the injury he was threatened with.

When two parties begin to use lathis or blunt weapons one by way of attack the other by way of defence it is impossible to count the blows or to expect equal number of blows would be given in retaliation.

In the light of the facts the accused was not bound to go to the thana and seek police help. He was certainly entitled to exercise the right of private defence of his property and the argument based on the number of injuries inflicted by him and the number received by him or the weight of the blows dealt by him to be heavier than what was received, to hold him to have exceeded his right is not correct. The law is not based on theory of retaliation. The blows dealt on him but also the blows that might have been dealt by the attackers, the further injuries he might have received have also to be considered to see if the right of private defence is exceeded in any case. In the instant case the accused has not exceeded and he is entitled to be acquitted. 31 Cri L J 654, Ref. 1952 All L J 609 : 1953 Cri L J 725 : 1953 All W R (H C) 204 : A I R 1953 All 338 (339) (Prs 4 to 6).

——S. 99 read with Ss 34, 144, 146, 148, 324 — Rioting and unlawful assembly — Private defence — Dispute regarding possession — Use of force by accused as lawful owner of land to vacate trespass resulting in injuries — Conviction of accused for rioting and unlawful assembly — Validity. See Penal Code (1860), S. 144. I L R (1965) Andh Pra 193 (DB).

——Ss. 96, 97, 99 — Prosecution party being aggressors — Accused party has right of private defence — Extent of right depends upon attitude of prosecution party.

If the prosecution party has assembled with the object of chastising the accused it would not be unlawful for any person to go to the aid of the accused to rescue him But the degree of force to be used would depend upon the temper, disposition and determination of the prosecution party. If the accussed persons without any provocation or cause fired at the deceased and injured other persons certainly their acts cannot in any view be justified and they would be guilty of riot attempt to murder and hurt, whether grievous or otherwise I L R (1959) Andh Pra 797.

——Ss. 96, 97, 99, 100, 102, 300, Exception 2 and S 304 (Part II) Right of private defence of body — Nature and extent of — Exceeding right — Question of fact.

A man who is attacked is perfectly justified in the eye of law if he delivers a counter attack to his assailant, provided always that the injury which he inflicts in self defence is not out of proportion to the injury with which he is threatened. I L R 28 Mad 454; A I R 1930 Lah 93. Rel. on. The only consideration that should weigh in such cases is whether the person threatened with danger or injury has not exceeded the limits fixed by law. This of course depends upon reasonable apprehension of danger to the person under the particular circumstances of the case. The weapon used, the manner of using it the nature of assault and the other surrounding circumstances will be taken into account for this purpose. No doubt, a man acting under an apprehension of death or grievous injury is not bound to modulate his defence step by step according to the attack before there is reason to believe that the attack is over. But it is always necessary that the apprehension of such injury must be natural or probable. Certainly the law does not permit an injury which is out of all proportion to the danger.

Held, on facts of the case that the accused had exceeded the right of self-defence of his body and therefore he was entitled only to the benefit of Exception 2 to S. 300. He was therefore rightly convicted under S. 304, Part 2. (1957) 1 Andh W R 181.

——S. 100—Right of private defence — Defence of body — In the face of danger it is not reasonable to expect accused to measure force of his blows or to succeed in avoiding vital part of the body. AIR 1954 Assam 56 (DB).

——Ss 96, 100 and 300—Scope of — Right of private defence.

Section 96, Penal Code, lays down that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence. Section 96 gives a right to every person to defend his body and the body of another person against any offence affecting human body. Section 100, Penal Code, gives a right of private defence of body, to the voluntary causing of death or any other harm to the assailant if the assault reasonably causes the apprehension of death or grievous hurt. But if the accused exceeds his right and kills his assailant though he could have caused lesser injury, the general exception may not apply In that event, the case is likely to fall under Exception 2 to S. 300, Penal Code. 1952 Cri L J 1366 : A I R 1952 Bhopal 25 (28 to 31) (Pt J) (Prs 28, 42, 45).

——S. 100—Applicability—Right of private defence of person or body — Causing of death — When justified — Apprehension of danger — Test.

A person who is assaulted is not bound to modulate the defence step by step according to the attack before there is reason to believe that the attack is over. Where the attack assumes a dangerous form every allowance has to be made for one who with the instinct of self preservation strong upon him pursues his defence a bit further than to a cool bystander would seem absolutely necessary. The question in such cases is not whether there was an actually continuing danger, but if there was any reasonable apprehension of such danger. It is only against a danger present and imminent that the right of private defence avails. AIR 1925 Nag 270, Applied and Foll; A I R 1925 Lah 514; A I R 1933 Oudh 63 : 29 Cri L J 755, Rel. on. 52 Cri L J 1246 : A I R 1951 Bhopal 2 (4) (Pr 8).

——Ss. 99 and 326 — Held, on facts that the accused had a right to private defence of property but that in inflicting the injuries he exceeded the right and thus he committed an offence under S. 326. 58 Cal W N 279 : 1954 Cri L J 774 : AIR 1954 Cal 258 (270, 271) (Pt H) (Prs 52, 53) (DB).

——S. 99—Right of private defence — If exceeded—Accused threatened by crowd—Shot fired by accused entering back of complainant's leg.

Where the accused has clearly established his right of private defence, the fact that a shot fired by him entered the back of the leg of the complainant cannot by itself show that the right was exceeded. When firing at the crowd some of whom were advancing and some were retreating a shot may very well hit one of the retreating persons. That would not indicate that the person threatened by the crowd was exceeding his right of private defence. Again the complainant may have just turned away at the very moment that the shot was fired thus causing the bullet to enter the back of his leg. Prior to that he may have been advancing towards the accused. 1952 Cri L J 579 : AIR 1952 Cal 217 (217, 218) (Pr 2).

——Ss. 97, 99 and 304, Part I — Right of private defence of one's body — Principles applicable — Extent of right—Test as to when right is exceeded—Accused must have acted under instinct of self-preservation and not out of malice or anger.

The central point which must be borne in mind is that the right of private defence continues only so long as a reasonable apprehension of the danger persists. The important point which has got to be determined is as to whether in the circumstances in which the accused was placed, the apprehension had persisted in his mind, when he inflicted a particular injury or injuries, that his life was in danger and whether, under the circumstances in which he was placed, that apprehension was a reasonable one. One of the tests which may be safely and usefully applied would be to discover whether the accused was still acting under the instinct of self-preservation or whether other feelings such as those of anger, malice and reprisals had intervened. In the former case, the accused would be entitled to right of private defence, but not in the latter cases.

Held, on facts that though in case of one of the three fatal injuries, the accused might be held to have acted in self-defence, he was acting out of malice and anger and feeling of retribution and, therefore, had exceeded the right of private defence. Consequently, his conviction under S. 304, Part I, Penal Code, was justified. (1961) 2 Guj L R 70 : (1961) (1) Cri L J 653 (Guj).

——Ss. 97, 99 and 104—Trespass — Owner has right of private defence subject to limitation in S. 99 — Right not exceeded—Trespasser has no right to cause injury to owner. AIR 1954 All 35, Disting. (1961) 2 Guj H C R 42 : (1961) 2 Guj L R 274 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 649 (Guj).

——Ss. 99, 34, 96, 97, 323, 326, 304 — Deceased, old man, damaging field of accused and raising his kalsa to strike one of the accused persons — Accused held had right of private defence of person and property—Accused however lost this right by using excessive force and causing death of deceased — Though accused had common intention only to belabour deceased and not to cause his death they must have known that injuries caused were likely to cause death of the deceased — Accused were guilty under S. 304, Part II read with S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1965 (2) Cri LJ 499 (2): AIR 1965 Him Pra 49.

——Ss. 97 and 99—Applicability—Decree for possession of a plot, in favour of a member of accused's party — Accused party going there to fence it but stopped by complainants—Free fight resulting and one of complainant's party killed by gun shot — Right of self-defence.

A decree for possession was passed in favour of a member of the accused's party and possession having been already given to him, the accused's party went to the plot to fence it. The complainant's party stopped them as a result of which free fight took place and several persons on both sides were injured. A member of the complainant's party was killed by a gun shot from the accused;

Held, (1) that the accused had a right of private defence and he had not exceeded it. It would not be fair to expect of an accused under such circumstances to weight in golden scales the amount of force to be used by him. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 1353, Rel. on.

(2) that it could not be argued that the accused should have approached the police before taking the law into their own hand. AIR 1934 All 829, Rel. on.

(3) that from the fact that death had taken place in the complainant's party it could not be said that the accused persons were the aggressors. AIR 1954 All 35, Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 1179 : A I R 1955 J & K 9 (10, 11) (Prs 6, 7, 9) (DB).

——Ss. 96, 99, 100—Right of self-defence — Nature and extent of.

The right of self-defence is a high-prized gift granted to the citzens to protect themselves by effective self-resistance against unlawful aggression. No man is expected to fly away when he is attacked. He can fight back and when he apprehends death or grievous hurt he can see that his adversary is vanquished without modulating his defence step by step. Faced with a dangerous adversary, no man can possibly act with a detached reflection and under such circumstances if he travels a little beyond the limit, the law protects him and hence Courts should not place more restrictions on him than the law demands. 1964 (2) Cri L J 297 : I L R (1963) 1 Ker 458 : 1963 Ker LT 450 : (1963) 1 Ker L R 468 : AIR 1964 Ker 222 (225) (Pt E) (Pr 8).

——S. 97—Right of private defence of body—When arises.

It is not necessary nor does the law require that the accused should wait till he receives a grievous injury for the purpose of exercising his right of private defence In considering whether the accused is entitled to exercise the right of private defence, one has to place himself in the position of the accused in the midst of circumstances in which the accused stood and then form an opinion whether under the peculiar circumstances the accused had not the apprehension of such injuries to his body as would entitle him to exercise his right. 1960 Ker L T 387 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 281 : 1960 Ker L J 579 : 1960 Cri L J 1088 : AIR 1960 Ker 258 (259) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 99 – Applicability—Using motor vehicle against a man standing before it—If justified.

Held, that in the circumstances disclosed by the evidence in the case, it was atrocious for anybody to think of using a heavy and mechanically propelled vehicle like a jeep as a means or weapon to exercise the right of private defence even it any existed, and to uphold the plea would be set at naught the limitations imposed by S. 90. 1957 Ker L T 720 : 1957 Ker L J 673 : ILR (1957) Ker 781 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 662 : 1958 Cri L J 33 : AIR 1958 Ker 8 (12) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 96—Circumstances showing that accused had reason to apprehend some danger to his body at hands of deceased and his brother — Accused in drunken state — Fatal stab wound by accused inflicted — No intention to cause more harm than was necessary for purpose of defence—Offence held one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. AIR 1957 Ker 53 (DB).

——Ss. 99, 97—Right of private defence, if exceeded—Decision—Considerations involved.:

The question whether the accused has exceeded his right of private defence does not necessarily depend on the seriousness of the injuries sustained by the aggressor but must largely depend on the dangerous nature of the situation in which the accused had to save himself. Where, therefore, a stronger and stouter adversary, whose criminal antecedents are known to the accused, attacks him and during the grapple between the two which ensues, the aggressor has his hands at the throat of the accused, and being reasonably apprehended by fear of death or grievous hurt to himself the accused uses his knife twice against his dangerous adversary, it cannot be said that in thus using the knife the accused had exceeded his right of private defence even though one of the two injuries inflicted by the accused proved fatal. 1957 Ker L J 602.

——S. 100—Right of private defence of body — Accused, deceased and some others playing cards — Verbal altercations leading to blows — Deceased aggressor and beating accused—Accused caught hold by friend of deceased — Accused severely beaten, getting exhausted and falling down—Deceased again attacking—Accused taking out knife and stabbing deceased fearing death at hands of deceased and attempting to run away — Friend of deceased following accused—Fearing renewal of attack accused using knife and wounding the friend—Accused held acted in self-defence in both cases and that in doing so he did not exceed his right. 1957 Ker L J 413.

——S. 99—Right of private defence of body—Extent of.

The right of private defence of the body extends under the restrictions mentioned in S. 99 to the voluntary causing of death or any other harm to the assailant if the offence which occasions the exercise of the right be an assault as may reasonably cause the apprehension that death or grievous hurt will otherwise be the consequence of such assault. Whether the apprehension was reasonable is always a question of fact to be determined by the surrounding circumstances. The test in such a case is not whether there was any actual danger but whether there was reasonable apprehension that such danger existed. At the same time it must be borne in mind that a man acting under apprehension of death or grievous hurt cannot be expected to judge too nicely the situation and modulate his defence step by step. And where the assault has assumed a dangerous form every allowance must be made for one, who with instincts of self-preservation strong upon him, pursues his defence a little further than to a perfectly cool by-stander would seem absolutely necessary. Madh BLR 1954 Cr 112 : Madh BLJ 1954 HCR 908: 1955 Cri L J 471: AIR 1955 Madh B 34 (36) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99 and 302, Excep. 2—Right of private defence of property—Extent of—Accused employed to guard cotton stocked in courtyard hiding himself in courtyard with gun and knife to detect thief—Thief entering courtyard to steal cotton—Accused firing gun and later inflicting several injuries with knife on the thief—Accused held acted in the right of private defence of property but exceeded it—Accused held guilty under S. 304. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3011 (DB).

——Ss. 96, 97—Girl removed forcibly by her husband and companions against her will—People interested in rescuing her, are entitled to use minimum force in rescuing her.

Where a girl was being carried away by her husband and his companions forcibly against her will those who attempted to rescue her were entitled to use sufficient force to achieve that purpose. If in doing so they inflicted some injuries they could well claim the benefit of the plea of the right of private defence, provided limitations imposed by S. 99 were not transgressed. Those interested in rescuing her could not be reasonably expected to wait till the matter had been reported to the Police and action taken by the public authorities. The fact that the woman was being carried away by force by her own husband, would not affect the right conferred by S. 97, Penal Code.

While using minimum force in rescuing the girl, if accidentally a stone hits some one of the captors on the head and unfortunately results in an injury to the base of the skull, it could be said that the person who threw the stone exceeded his right of private defence 1953 Cri L J 1185 : AIR 1953 Madh Bha 182 (183, 184) (Prs 10, 12, 13) (DB).

——Ss. 97 and 100—Decree-holders trying to secure possession of a house not included in decree—Accused forcibly resisting decree holders to take possession—Accused entitled to defend his right to property.

Held, on facts, that there was no satisfactory evidence to show that the decree-holders and the process server were acting within the scope of the authority of the warrant for delivery of possession. It could not be denied on the facts of the case that there was an invasion of property either actual or threatened which justified the exercise of the right of private defence because otherwise the offence of criminal trespass or house trespass would have been committed. A person had a right subject to restriction in S. 99 to defend property against any act amounting to criminal trespass. (1912) 13 Cri L J 764, Foll. The decree-holders had failed to show that they went to obtain possession of the house in the lawful exercise of the right conferred on them by decree. 1963 MPLJ (Notes) 219.

——Ss. 99, 104, 105, 333 and 326—Criminal trespass and mischief upon Government forest—Right of forest guard to prevent—Extent—Accused cutting timber from Government forest—Seizing of axe from accused held did not exceed necessity—Accused not entitled to claim private defence. 1962 Jab L J 857 : 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 318.

——Ss. 97 and 99—Deceased attacking accused with a dagger first—Accused snatching dagger and causing injuries—Deceased succumbing to injuries — Act of accused covered by right of private defence and right not exceeded. 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 227.

——Ss. 99, 100 and 304 — Right of private defence—Limits.

Merely because the stab given by the accused is a little deeper than the one caused by the deceased it cannot be said that the accused is guilty of exceeding his right of private defence. It is not correct to say that a person apprehending danger to life or grievous hurt should inflict an injury of the same nature to the assailant as was caused to him. Under S. 100, Penal Code, the killing of an assailant is justified when the victim of the assault apprehends either death or grievous hurt. The only restriction imposed is that the person exercising the right should not use more force than is reasonably necessary and should not inflict an injury out of all proportion to the injury with which he was threatened. Where the assailant is killed by the victim exercising his right of private defence a conviction of the victim under S. 304, Penal Code, is not justified and he is entitled to an acquittal. (1953) 1 M L J 69 : 1953 Mad W N 12 : 1953 Mad W N (Cri) 4 : 55 Cri L J 387 : AIR 1954 Mad 319 (319, 320) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——S. 99 — Applicability discussed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 332. 1961 (2) Cri L J 504 (Manipur).

——Ss. 97, 141, 148, 149 and 326 — Accused more than 4 armed with deadly weapons trying to enforce their disputed right to usufruct of mango trees — Incident resulting in simple injuries and grievous hurt resulting in death of person — No physical resistance encountered by accused — Accused guilty of offence — No right of private defence. 1961 (1) Cri L J 403 : 38 Mys L J 995 : ILR (1960) Mys 1126 : AIR 1961 Mys 74 (83) (Pt F) (Pr 56) (DB).

——Ss. 99, 96 — Extent of the right of private defence.

The right of private defence under S. 96 is clearly qualified under S. 99 which lays down that right of private defence in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary for the purpose of defence. If merely during the course of a slight hand-to-hand scuffle with an unarmed person the accused pulled out his knife and stabbed the deceased it is very difficult to accept that he did so in the exercise of his right of private defence so as to afford him the benefit of S. 96. ILR (1951) Mys 445 : AIR 1952 Mys 10 (11, 12) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——Ss. 96 and 99 — Right of private defence — Extent of — Right is qualified by S. 99 — If merely during the course of a hand-to-hand scuffle between unarmed person (the accused and the deceased) the accused pulled out his "gupti" and stabbed the deceased, it is very difficult to accept that he did so in the exercise of his right of private defence. AIR 1954 Nag 126 (128) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Ss. 97 and 99 — Defence of property and person — Right is available only subject to exception provided under S. 99 — No material on record to show that S. 99 does not apply to the case — Claim to right of private defence is not sustainable. (1965) 31 Cut L T 576 : ILR (1965) Cut 229.

——Ss. 99, 141, 147, 148, 149 — Unlawful assembly —Dispute between complainant's party and accused's party over right to cut embankment of irrigation tank in village — Riot — Complainant's party unarmed, while accused's party fully armed with some deadly weapons — Assault by accused party resulting in deaths of members of complainant's party. held constituted unlawful assembly — Common object — Proof — Offence committed by members of accused party.

Held on facts, (i) that even if the complainant's party had no right to cut the embankment to release the accumulated water, being unarmed they did not enforce that right or supposed right by means of criminal force or show of criminal force. That party, therefore, did not constitute an unlawful assembly. (ii) The accused party clearly constituted an unlawful assembly since they by means of criminal force wanted to enforce a right or supposed right. Those members of the accused party, who were armed with deadly weapons, were punishable under S. 148. The other members of the accused party carrying only lathis, were punishable under S. 147. ILR (1952) Cut 219, Rel on. (iii) Where several persons assaulted the deceased, the common object can be collected from the nature of the assembly and of the arms used by them and from the behaviour of the assembly at or before the scene of occurrence. The common object is an inference of fact to be deduced from the circumstances of each case. The circumstances of the case established the existence of the common object as being one of murder. From the circumstances, it was also clear that the members of the unlawful assembly knew it to be likely that murder would be committed in prosecution of the common object. Each of the accused therefore was liable to be convicted under S. 302/149, Penal Code. 1964 (1) Cri L J 114 (Ori) and AIR 1959 S C 572, Rel. on. (iv) The commission of an overt act is no doubt evidence of the fact that the accused was the member of an unlawful assembly. Whether a person is a member of the unlawful assembly or not is a pure question of fact to be determined on the assessment of evidence. (1963) 5 O J D 155 : 29 Cut L T 383: 1964 (1) Cri L J 117 (Orissa).

——S. 96 — Complainant's bullock damaging straw of accused — Accused has a right to impound it and apply force, in exercise of right of private defence, to remove obstruction caused by complainant — Mere number of injuries caused to complainant will not lead to the conclusion that the right of private defence was exceeded when the other evidence shows that some of the injuries were caused by the accused and remaining ones do not support that conclusion. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 297.

——S. 99 — Exceeding right of private defence — Question of fact — Accused having reasonable apprehension of getting grievous hurt from deceased dealing two knife blows in quick succession each of which sufficient to cause death in ordinary course of nature — Right of private defence held not exceeded.

Whether the accused has exceeded his right of private defence, is a question which depend upon the facts of each case. It is difficult to lay down any general proposition except to keep in mind what has been laid down under S. 99 that no more harm should be inflicted than is necessary for self-defence.

Where the accused who had reasonable apprehension of getting a grievous hurt from the deceased gave two knife blows on the deceased in quick succession in self defence and each blow was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

Held that the accused had not, in the circumstances, exceeded the right of private defence and could not be held guilty of any offence. AIR 1952 S C 165, Ref. to. (1963) 29 Cut L T 488.

——Ss. 96 and 99 — Right of defence of person — Extent of — Right held not exceeded.

As a result of quarrel and altercation the accused gave a blow to the nephew of the deceased who thereafter ran home. After an appreciable time the deceased came with a lathi and gave a severe blow on the head of the accused. The accused in turn gave two or three blows on the head of the deceased causing a fracture of the skull and ultimately in his death.

Held that the deceased had no justification to continue a quarrel which had already terminated and to assault the accused; and so long as the deceased had a weapon with him the accused had a reasonable apprehension that further assault on him may take place. With such an injury on his head there was a reasonable apprehension of grievours hurt and the accused was entitled to give severe blows on the head of the deceased with a view to disable him, though unfortunately the man died subsequently. The doctor who held the post-mortem examination on the corpse of the deceased certified that the deceased could have survived and the injury though grievous was not always fatal. In these circumstances the accused cannot be said to have exceeded the right of private defence of person conferred on him by law. (1962) 4 O J D 369 : 29 Cut L T 33 : 1963 All Cri R 85 : 1963 All W R (Sup) 32 : 29 Cut L T 33.

——Ss. 99, 148 — Case of rioting — Right of private defence of property — When can be claimed.

The right of private defence under S. 99 of Penal Code is an answer to a charge of rioting; but there can be no right of private defence when the riot is premeditated on both sides, unless object of the assembly is shown to have been to repel forcible and criminal aggression. The right of private defence can be exercised only in special circumstances and with the restrictions imposed by that section. The important considerations which always arise in order to determine whether the action of the accused is covered by the right of private defence are, firstly, what is the nature of the apprehended danger and secondly, whether there was time to have recourse to the police authorities, always remembering that where both parties are determined to fight and go up to the land fully armed in full expectation of an armed conflict to have a trial of strength, the right of private defence disappears. The right is available only against an offence and not against a lawful act. In a case of right of private defence of property it should be clear from the evidence that the party exercising the right he claims is in possession of that right and that he is entitled to resist or repel aggression in order to maintain that right. It is only when these facts are proved that he can be said to be maintaining his right. A gathering of persons assembled to maintain the status quo may equally be unlawful if the defence of the right can only be effected by enforcing it through the use of force. The right is strictly confined only to acts against an offence and not against what may be a civil trespass.

If a person prefers to use force in order to protect his property when he can, for the protection of such property, easily have recourse to the public authorities, his use of force is made punishable by the Indian Penal Code, no matter what the intention of the person may be. The law says that he must not use force in such cases but should invoke the aid of the tribunals charged with enforcement of the law. (1962) 28 Cut L T 548.

——Ss. 97, 99—Right of private defence — Extent of.

There can be no right of private defence where the riot is premediated on both sides. The right of private defence can be exercised only in special circumstances and with the restrictions imposed by S. 99. The important considerations which always arise in order to determine whether the action of the accused is covered by the right of private defence are, firstly, what is the nature of the apprehended danger, secondly, whether there was time to have recourse to the police authorities. It is lawful for a person, who has seen an invasion of his rights, to go to the spot and object; it is also lawful for such person if the opposite party is armed, to take suitable weapon for his defence. (1961) 3 Orissa J D 26 : 27 Cut L T 367.

——Ss. 99, 300, Excep. 2— Private defence of body— When exceeded.

Held, that though a case of self-defence was made out in the evidence still the blow which caused the death being on a vital part of the body when the deceased was armed only with a lathi was a case of exceeding the right of private defence, and that the appellant was guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder as the case fell under S. 300, Exception 2, Penal Code. 1958 Cri L J 785 : 24 Cut L T 350 : AIR 1958 Orissa 113 (161) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 96 and 97—Right of private defence of body —Extent of — Causing death— Right when exceeded stated. See Penal Code, Ss. 146 and 147. (1958) 24 Cut L T 215.

——Ss. 99, 101, 304 — Exceeding right of private defence—Punishment.

The second blow of axe given by the accused on the frontal aspect of the arm at a time when the deceased had been completely disabled may be said to be one not protected by the right of private defence. This however, would not make her liable to be convicted under S. 304. ('51) 17 Cut L T 220 : AIR 1952 Orissa 37 (42) (Pt G) (Pr 11).

——Ss. 99, 96—Person informed that party of accused were invading his property by cutting away bamboos —Person is entitled to go suitably armed to the spot and object and if he is attacked, to defend himself by use of weapons. AIR 1936 Pat 622, Relied on. (1964) I L R 43 Pat 156.

——Ss. 99, 97, 103 — Private defence of property — One party in actual possession — Both parties armed —Simultaneous attack — Member of party in actual possession causing fatal injury to member of opposite party—Right of private defence of person or property held not exceeded. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (DB).

——S. 99—Private defence of person and property — Interpretation—Use of English precedents not to be permitted: Observations of Ross J., in AIR 1926 Pat 433, Dissented from. See Penal Code (1860), Preamble. 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (DB).

——S. 99 — Unlawful seizure of cattle — Hurt could be caused in rescue of cattle in exercise of right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 1869.

——S. 100 — Right of private defence — When exceeded stated. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 456 (DB).

——Ss. 99 and 100—Right of private defence—When exceeded indicated—Case on facts. AIR 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 456 (DB).

——S. 103 — Right of private defence of property is restricted by general provisions which apply to every kind of right of private defence mentioned in S. 99 which lays down, inter alia, that the right in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary to inflict for the purpose of defence. ('51) 3 Pepsu L R 620 (DB).

——Ss. 100 and 97—Private defence of property and body — Accused lawfully ploughing land—Deceased starting fight deliberately preventing accused from lawfully exercising his right — Accused held had right of private defence — Killing deceased held no offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 1353 (DB).

——S. 99—Unlawful assembly — Accused gathering in force, defending his possession — Accused within their right in peacefully occupying the field in dispute where it is lying vacant and preparing it for cultivation — They are entitled to resist by force any attempt by rival claimants to prevent them from doing so — In doing so the accused cannot be said to constitute unlawful assembly—Accused are entitled to use force as a defence against criminal trespass and are entitled to cause any harm short of death — Right held was not exceeded, since although no grievous injury was caused to any of these accused, the voluntary causing of death was justified. 1954 Cri L J 1518 : AIR 1954 Punj 232 (234, 235) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 11) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99 — Right of private defence of person and property — Principles — Degree of force to be used in exercise of right — Feelings of person attacked at time of occurrence are to be considered — Recourse to public authorities not possible or useful— Right is not lost.

Where an individual citizen or his property is faced with a danger and immediate aid from the State machinery is not available, the individual citizen is entitled to protect himself and his property but the violence which the citizen defending himself is entitled to use must not be unduly disproportionate to the injury which is to be averted or which is reasonably appehended and should not exceed its legitimate purpose. AIR 1963 S C 612, Foll. The exercise of right of private defence must never be vindictive or malicious, In judging the conduct of a person who proves that he had a right of private defence, allowance has necessarily to be made for his feelings at the relevant time. Right of private defence is subject to the provisions in S. 99. 1963 Raj L W 436 : I L R (1963) 13 Raj 789.

——S. 97—Applicabiiity—Right of private defence of property—When exceeded indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1959 Cri L J 770 : AIR 1959 Raj 124.

——S. 97 — Applicability — Fight for possession of land — One of complaints party dying — Right of private defence held was not exceeded by accused. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1958 Cri L J 222 : AIR 1958 Raj 52 (DB).

——Ss. 96, 97 and 100 — Accused in lawful possession of his field — Deceased and his party asking accused not to plough his field — Upon accused's refusal to comply deceased aiming a lathi blow at accused — Accused picking up a lathi lying on spot and giving only one blow to the deceased resulting in his death — Accused held was protected by right of private defence of person as well as property. 1953 Raj L W 116 : AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1372.

——S. 99 — Extent to which right of private defence may be exercised — No opportunity to accused to have recourse to public authorities at dead of night when deceased was trying to get into the house of the accused and menacing the safety and honour of the women folk of the household—Accused's right of private defence extended even to causing of death. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 496.

——Ss. 99 and 104 — Right of private defence — Extent to which may be exercised—Plea of self defence, when available.

Four boys of tender ages had taken their cattle for grazing outside their village. The cattle strayed into the adjoining field of the accused and actually mounted the heap of fodder and were committing mischief. The accused attempted to drive out the cattle and to take them to the pound. The boys intervened and scuffle ensued. The accused were armed and the boys received injuries in the scuffle. The question was whether the accused acted in the exercise of their right of private defence.

Held, that the cattle were admittedly trespassing into the appellants' field and causing damage and they had an undoubted right of taking measures to protect their fodder and this right extended under S. 104, I. P. Code, to causing injuries to the boys short of death. But this right is subject to the restrictions contained in S. 99. The material para. of that section enacts that the right of private defence in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary to inflict for the purpose of defence. The harm which the appellants caused was the assault on the boys. If it was shown that an occasion for the assault had arisen, the Court would not be justified in nicely balancing the amount of force necessary to repeal the trespass and mischief. The appellants could not justly be expected to measure out the attack proportionate to the needs of the occasion and even if they used more force than was strictly necessary, they would be entitled to claim the benefit of the exception. At the same time if the circumstances of the case show that the occasion to use force had not arisen at all, the use of any force was unjustified, and the assault on the boys would lose its justification and the plea of the right of private defence could not avail the appellants.

As the evidence in the case showed that the accused were not attacked by the boys, they had no right to use force. Moreover the boys were of tender age, whereas the accused were stalwart young men 25 to 30 and were also armed. Under these circumstances the accused could not have any justification for beating the boys and the plea of self-defence was not open for them. 1956 Cri L J 1439 : AIR 1956 Sau 107 (108, 109) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 323, 324 — Right of private defence of property—Extent of.

A was in possession of certain property as mortgagee from B. In dispute between A and B as to possession, the Mamlatdar held A to be in possession and referred B to Civil Court. Subsequently while A was sowing the field. B, his wife C and relatione D and E,entered the field and tried to stop the sowing. C caught the reins of A's bullocks. A thereupon snatched a spade and caused an injury to C. E thereupon went near A who gave him three blows on his head by the blunt side of the spade. A was tried under S. 323 for causing hurt to C and under S. 324 for causing hurt to E but was acquitted in appeal in respect of offence against C. In revision against the order :

Held, that even though B and other male members of the party did not use actual force against A, A's right to eject them by force was in no way affected thereby and A could use force against every one of them to the same extent as against C, as they had committed a criminal trespass.

(2) That the distinction between tha cases of C and E on the ground that C had used force while E did not, was not well founded. The injuries to both of them had been caused in the course of the same trespass committed with the same common object, and considering the number of trespassers and the fact that only simple hurt was caused to C and E it could not be said that the accused had exceeded his right of private defence. A was therefore acquitted also in respect of E's injury. 1955 Cri L J 27 : 7 Sau L R 53 : AIR 1955 Sau 2 (3) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Ss. 99 and 100 — Right of private defence after disarming of deceased.

The question whether the accused had the right of private defence is in every case essentially a question of fact to be decided according to the circumstances of each case and decided cases are not of much help except as indicating generally the principles which should be borne in mind in deciding the question. It cannot be said that in every case the accused cannot claim the right of private defence of person, the moment the deceased is disarmed. 8 Sau L R 1 : 1955 Cri L J 23 : AIR 1955 Sau 1 (2) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 97—Private defence of body is legal—Accused having justifiable reasons to apprehend that deceased would cause grievous hurt to him—Accused stating to witnesses immediately on spot that he had struck deceased in self-defence — Only one fatal injury on head — Accused held did not exceed right of private defence. ('52) 5 Sau L R 17 : 1954 Cri L J 552 : AIR 1954 Sau 34 (34) (Pr 2) (DB).

7. Time to have recourse to protection of public authorities.

See also Note 6.

——Ss. 99, 104—Applicability—Party having time to have recourse to public authorities—There is no right of private defence. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4157.

——S. 99—Extent of right—Limitations—Principle of —Right of self-defence held should be restricted — Accused anticipating resistance going to spot prepared to meet force by force—They cannot claim right of private defence of property—Accused should have approached public authorities for protection of their property. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 2100 (DB).

——Ss. 99, Cl. 3, 105 — Right of private defence of property—When commences — Sufficient time to approach public authority for protection — Right of private defence is lost.

On reading the third clause of S. 99 with the first clause of S. 105, it is clear that the right of private defence of property commences not when the actual danger to the property commences but when there is reasonable apprehension of danger. This is based on sound principle as the apprehension of danger is to be followed by an approach to the public authorities for protection. If the apprehension of danger has actually commenced and if the person can have recourse to the public authorities before an actual injury is caused to the property or right, he must do so, or else he will lose his right of private defence. This contingency usually arises when one has got definite information about the other side proceeding towards the land in dispute and the public authorities are within such a reach that one could inform them before actual damage to the property is done: AIR 1949 All 274 Rel. on. 1964 (2) Cr L J 696 : A I R 1964 Orissa 262 (265) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 99—Accused in peaceful possession of disputed field—Attempt at trespassing by rival claimants — Nearest police station 10 miles away—It cannot be said that accused are not entitled to gather a force in the field in order to protect their right rather than have recourse to the public authorities. 1954 Cri L J 1518 : AIR 1954 Punj 232 (234, 235) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 10) (DB).

——S. 99—Private defence of property — Recourse to public authorities—Other party cutting off water supplied by Govt.—Recourse cannot be had to force to settle dispute, under right of private defence of property — Proper course is to have recourse to public authorities. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1250 (DB).

8. Right of private defence of body when extends to causing death or any other harm—S. 100.

See also Note 6.

(A) No apprehension of death— Illustrative cases.

(B) Assault with intention of gratifying unnatural lust.

(C) Assault with intention of kidnapping or abduction.

(D) Plea of.

See also Note 1 (B).

(E) Onus.

See alse Note 1 (C).

8. Right of private defence of body when extends to causing death or any other harm—S. 100.

See also Note 6.

● ——Ss. 99, 100—Right of private defence—Accused being strangulated – Right extends to causing death of assailant—Plea of self-defence—Onus — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101-104, 105.

There can be no doubt that if a person reasonably apprehends that his assailant is attempting to strangulate him, exercise of the right of defence of person extends even to causing death of the assailant.

The plea of self-defence has to be considered as a composite plea. It is not open to the Court to investigate whether the accused could have reasonably apprehended such injury to himself as justified him in causing the death of the assailant. Where a person accused of committing an offence sets up at his trial a plea that he is protected by one of the exceptions, general or special, in the Penal Code, or any other law defining the offence, the burden of proving the exception undoubtedly lies upon him. But this burden is only undertaken by the accused if the prosecution case establishes that in the absence of such a plea he would be guilty of the offence charged. Where the prosecution case did not by reliable evidence establish affirmatively that the accused had done any act which rendered him liable for the offence of murder, but his responsibility if any, arose only out of the plea raised by him, if the plea amounted to a confession of guilt the Court could convict him relying upon that plea, but if it amounts to admission of facts and raised a plea of justification, the Court could not proceed to deal with the case as if the admission of facts which were not part of the prosecution case was true, and the evidence did not warrant the plea of justification. Narain Singh v. State of Punjab, 1963 All Cri R 107 : 1963 All W R (H C) 165; 1963 All L J 330 : (1963) 1 S C W R 29 : (1963) 2 S C J 324 : 1963 B L J R 294 : 1963 S C D 297; 65 Pun L J 561: 1963 M P L J (Cri) 447 : (1963) 1 S C W R 29: (1963) 3 S C R 678 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 730 (733) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (SC).

● ——Ss. 97, 99 and 100 & 102 — Right of private defence of body—Extent.

A communal riot broke out between some Sindhi refugees resident in the town and the local Muslims. The shops of the accused and his brother ran into each other and formed two sides of a rectangle, the accused's house facing North and the brother's house facing East. Each shop opened out on to a road. The mob approached accused's locality and broke into the portion of the building facing East in which his brother's shop was situate and looted it. There was a hole in the wall between the two portion of the building in which these two shops were situate and his brother's family got into accused's portion of the building through this hole and took refuge there. The accused's mother then told the accused that the crowd had burst into his (appellant's) shop and was looting it. The crowd was beating the doors of the accused's shop with their lathis. A shot was then fired by the accused as also a second shot, and that caused the death of one Sindhi and injured three others, also Sindhis — Held that the accused had no time to have recourse to the authorities. The mob or crowd had already broken into one part of the building and was actually beating on the doors of the other part. It was also evident that the accused had reasonable grounds for apprehending that either death or grievous hurt would be caused either to himself or his family. The circumstances in which he was placed were amply sufficient to give him a right of private defence of the body even to the extent of causing death. These things cannot be weighed in too fine a set of scales or in golden scales. Actual looting of the accused's shop was not necessary before the right could arise. The accused did not use more force than was necessary. Amjad Khan v. State, 1952 S C J 227 : 1952 Mad W N 409 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 113 : 1952 All L J 317 : 54 Pun L R 252 : (1952) 2 Mad L J 97 : 1952 S C R 567 : (1952) S C A 412 : 1952 Cri L J 848 : 65 Mad L W 426 : AIR 1952 S C 165 (166, 167) (Prs 9 to 11).

——S. 97—Right of private defence—When arises.

The question of the accrual of the right of private defence to a person does not depend upon an injury being caused to him. Where the facts and circumstances of the particular case indicate that, the accused could have had a reasonable apprehension in his mind of a grievous injury being caused to him. then the right of self-defence was available to him. 1965 All L J 977 : 1965 All W R (H C) 711 : 1965 All Cri R 486 : 1966 Cri L J 503 : ILR (1965) 2 All 850 : AIR 1966 All 244 (247) (Pt A) (Pr 17) (DB).

——S. 100—Applicability—'Reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt'—Test.

Four persons armed with sticks and bichuvas came to the place where the two accused were sitting. They were drunk and one of them started the fight by hitting one of the accused. Another person of the party used a knife against the other accused. Thereupon the accused inflicted injuries to the four persons which resulted in death of three of them.

Held, that the circumstances fully justified the accused to entertain a reasonable apprehension that death or grievous hurt was likely to be caused to him unless he himself dealt with the persons in the exercise of his right of private defence. He was therefore entitled to acquittal. 1956 Mad W N 729 : (1957) All W R (Sup) 17 (Mad).

——Ss. 97, 100, 300, Exception (2) — Scuffle between accused and deceased and his supporters — Deceased aggressor — Deceased and his supporters unarmed—Right of private defence, extent of; available to accused—Accused stabbing deceased, held exceeded the right.

On evidence as it stood it could not be said with any degree of certainty that the injuries of the accused were due to the relations of the deceased having beaten him before the accused stabbed the deceased, but on consideration of the evidence and all the circumstances, there was no doubt that the deceased was the aggressor, who questioned the accused, caught his hair and exchanged blows with him and the relations of the deceased who happened to be nearer by at the time went against the accused with a view to support the deceased and that the accused had reason to apprehend that the deceased and his relatives would make common cause and might handle him. It was in evidence that none out of the deceased and his relatives was armed with any weapon.

Held, that though a right of private defence of the body accrued to the accused under the first clause of S. 97 during his scuffle with the deceased, he had no reason to apprehend an assault of any of the descriptions in S. 100 and the right ceased when his scuffle with the deceased terminated. Although the accused acted in the exercise of his right of private defence of the body, he exceeded that right and came under Exception (2) to S. 300. 8 Ind Cas 1088 (Mad). Rel. on; AIR 1952 Raj 158; 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 272 (Ker), Distinguished. Catching a person's tuft of hair by way of assault does not amount to grave and sudden provocation in all circumstances. There was mutual provocation and the provocation to the accused was not so grave as to bring his act of stabbing the deceased within exception 1 to S. 300. 1946 A C 588 and AIR 1928 Mad 136, Distinguished; AIR 1962 S C 605 (630), Applied. (1965) 2 Andh W R 145 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 440 (Andh Pra).

——Ss. 96, 100, 300 Exceptions 1, 2 and 4 and 304—Right of private defence — Defence of body — In the face of danger it is not reasonable to expect accused to measure force of his blows or to succeed in avoiding vital part of the body. AIR 1954 Assam 56 (56, 57) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Ss. 99, 100 and 300—Right of private defence—Right held not exceeded.

If the accused exceeds his right of private defence and kills his assailant though he could have caused lesser injury, the general exception may not apply. In that event the case is likely to fall under exception 2 to Section 300, Penal Code. But even if the accused were to cause more harm than is absolutely necessary in repelling the attack it cannot be said that he exceeded the right given to him by law.

Held, case fell under S. 100 and not under S. 300, Exception 2. 1952 Cri L J 1366 : AIR 1952 Bhopal 25 (29 to 31) (Pt J) (Prs 28, 42, 45).

——Ss. 97, 99, 100 — Private defence of body — Persistent assault with stick on accused — Person assaulted striking knife blow to ward off danger.

The deceased, taking up the most unreasonable attitude, actually picked up a stick and started and persisted in assaulting the accused with it. The accused had done his best to save himself from the deceased but the latter pursued him and still persisted in beating him. The accused received about 10 or 15 blows and yet his assailant continued the beating in spite of the protests of the bystanders. The deceased also threatened him with death.

Held, that there was no doubt that the accused had a very reasonable apprehension of at least a grievous hurt being caused to him, if not his death and therefore, his act of giving a blow of knife to the accused to save himself resulting in the death of the deceased was justified. The accused had not exceeded his right of private defence of his person and therefore, he cannot be said to have committed any offence. AIR 1925 Nag 260, Applied. 52 Cri L J 1239 : AIR 1951 Bhopal 2 (4) (Pr 8).

——S. 100—Private defence—Apprehension of death due to witch-craft—Apprehension unreasonable.

The law does not recognise the possibility of encompassing death by witch-craft or causing any harm by witch-craft The apprehension in the mind of accused that the death may be caused due to witch-craft is unreasonable and therefore it cannot confer any right of private defence on the accused person, unless he apprehends physical violence from his opponent. (1962) 3 Guj L J 503 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 431 : AIR 1963 Guj 78 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 97— Right of private defence—Accused when may counter-attack ending in death.

Where the facts show that his adversary was using such a weapon, the use of which would cause death, the accused is entitled to defend himself and in defending himself if he happens to kill the adversary he cannot be held guilty of murder. If the accused apprehending immediate danger to his life thinks that it is only if he made a counter-attack that he could save his life and make the attack he is entitled to do so. The question in such cases whether the act of the accused was commensurate with and proportionate to the attack of the opponent is to be determined having regard to the particular facts and circumstances of the case. 1953 Cri L J 1141 : ILR (1952) Hyd 52 : A I R 1953 Hyd 207 (207, 208) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99, 300, Exception II, Ss. 302, 304, 328 — Applicability — Accused 2 related to accused 1 — Accused tree-climbers by caste and having choppers in their hands—Deceased not armed—Deceased purposely destroying maize crop of accused No. 1 and showing threatening gestures — Accused 2 giving fatal blow with his chopper on shoulder of deceased and accused 1 causing heavy injuries on other parts of body of deceased — Held, accused being tree-climbers no adverse inference could be drawn from existence of choppers in their hands — Deceased being in the aggressive, accused had right of private defence — Accused 2 exceeded that right in causing death of the deceased—Act of accused 2 came within Exception II to S. 300—Accused 2 guilty not under S. 302 but under first part of S. 304 in view of seriousness of injury—Accused 1 also exceeded his right of private defence in inflicting serious cuts to deceased and was guilty under S. 327. 1960 Ker L T 207.

——Ss. 100, 300—Infuriated persons trespassing into accused's house — Accused placed in dangerous situation — Apprehension of death or serious injury — Trespassers not armed with dangerous weapons — Accused held entitled to right of private defence.

Death or grievous hurt can be caused without the aid of dangerous weapons when more persons than one are bent upon causing it. The dangerous situation in which the accused persons were placed and not the use of dangerous weapons is the deciding factor. If a person is surrounded by 3 or 4 infuriated persons who assault him, apprehension of death or grievous hurt can very well be there. The standard of the cool by-stander is not to be used, and the weighing of the right self-defence in "golden scales" is not to be resorted to. Those who trespass into other persons' houses and man-handle the occupants, should have a fear that courts will be hesitant to place undue restrictions on the very valuable right of self-resistance against unlawful aggression. (Accused held did not exceed right of private defence). 1959 Ker L J 1313 : 1959 Ker L T 796.

- Ss. 99, 100 and 300 — Right of private defence of body—Accused, deceased and some others playing cards — Verbal altercations leading to blows — Deceased aggressor and beating accused — Accused caught hold of by friend of deceased — Accused severely beaten, getting exhausted and falling down — Deceased again attacking — Accused taking out knife and stabbing deceased fearing death at hands of deceased and attempting to run away — Friend of deceased following accused — Fearing renewal of attack accused using knife and wounding the friend — Accused held acted in self-defence in both cases and that in doing so he did not exceed his right. 1957 Ker L J 413 : 1957 Ker L T 500.

——Ss. 99 and 100 — Right of private defence — Causing death — Test to be applied — Circumstances, sufficient for apprehension.

In determining whether the accused had acted in exercise of the right of private defence in causing death of the aggressor, the test to be applied is not what a perfectly cool by-stander would think absolutely necessary, but whether there was reasonable apprehension of danger to the life on the part of the accused having regard to all the circumstances. In the excitement of the moment an average man is not expected to weigh in golden scales the means that he should adopt in order to save himself when he finds himself attacked by the aggressor with a dangerous weapon.

In a murder case it was established that the deceased was known in the village as a dangerous man and that he was suspected of being a murderer. He had not only carried away the wife of the accused but had also inflicted damage to his property and had beaten him in the past, that the accused was always afraid of him, that at the material time the assault was commenced by the deceased and that he was the aggressor, that he first struck a blow to the accused with the palia and after that weapon was snatched from his hands continued to beat him with a stick.

Held, that there existed circumstances which gave rise to reasonable apprehension in the mind of the accused that death or at least grievous hurt would be caused to him at the hands of the aggressor unless he was overpowered and prevented from doing so. The case of the accused was thus covered by S. 100, I. P. Code and he was justified in inflicting injuries to the deceased which resulted in his death. Held, further, that considering that the deceased had commenced the assault with a palia first and had continued to beat the accused with a stick later on, and though injured he was still able to walk some distance; it could not be held that the accused had acted cruelly or had exceeded the right of private defence. Madh B L R 1956 (Cr) 457.

——Ss. 99, 100 — "Reasonable apprehension" — Interpretation of — Law does not require person to modulate his defence in golden scale — Tests of reasonable apprehension, indicated. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 2100 (DB).

——S. 97 — Right of private defence of body—When exceeded.

Where in a murder charge, faced with a situation where the deceased was an aggressor and was armed with a ballam, which he could have used as such, even though his first stroke was with the handle part of it, the accused could have a reasonable apprehension of danger to his life and was therefore justified in exercising his right of private defence in completely disabling his adversary. If in that attempt he happened to inflict the injury with a little more force than absolutely necessary he could not be held liable. The law makes every allowance to a person who apprehends a reasonable danger to his life from his adversary, and with intent of self-preservation strong upon him pursues his defence a little further than what to a perfectly bystander may seem absolutely necessary : (1895) 158 U S 550 and AIR 1952 S C 165 Rel. on. 1961 M P L J 71 : 1961 M P C 31 : 1961 Jab L J 343 : 1961 (2) Cr L J 346 : I L R (1961) Madh Pra 149 : AIR 1961 Madh Pra 241 (244) (Pt B) (Pr 24) (DB).

——S. 99 - Apprehension to cause death or grievious hurt based on reasonable grounds — Right of self-defence can be exercised. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 145.

——S. 96 — Right of private defence by shooting — When arises.

If the deceased had lifted his lathi to deal a blow at the accused and if he had apprehended that the blow would cause grievous hurt or death, then the accused would be justified in shooting at the deceased. But where it is not possible to assume that the accused had any reasonable apprehension in his mind, that on the mere raising of the lathi, if at all raised, the lathi would fall on him, or for the matter of that on his sons, in the absence of a reasonable apprehension he cannot be said to have been justified in shooting 1957 Jab L J 321 : 1957 M P C 461 : 1957 Cr L J 1138 : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 153 (156) (Pt E) (Pr 17).

——Ss. 100, 103, 325, 335 — Right of self-defence of property or person — When arises — Causing of grievous hurt on grave and sudden provocation. 1958 Jab L J 257.

——S. 100 (1) and (2) Firstly and secondly — Aggression by party of deceased—Accused beaten by sticks and in fear of grievous hurt stabbing deceased — Accused cannot be held to have exceeded right of private defence and be convicted for any offence.

Where the party of the deceased assumed the role of aggressors and beat the party of the accused and further threatened to cause grievous injury and the accused in such a situation prompted by instinct of self-preservation and acting purely in self-defence stabbed the deceased to death, he cannot be convicted for any offence as his case comes under either of the clause (1) or (2) of S. 100. From the fact that the party of the accused were beaten with sticks and were further threatened to be beaten by sticks alone, it cannot be said that the accused in stabbing the deceased had exceeded the right of private defence.

No hard and fast rule can be laid down to determine the amount of harm which is legally justifiable or permissible in law under the exercise of the right of private defence. Individual cases have to be considered on their own facts. Section 100 does not require as a condition precedent that grievous hurt must be actually caused by the assailant for the right of private defence to come into play. The Section only provides that the person claiming such right must be under a bona fide apprehension or fear that death or grievous hurt would otherwise be the consequence of the threatened assault, if he does not defend himself. If the party of the accused is attacked by a party of men armed with sticks and the accused having no alternative but to defend himself to the best of his ability, retaliates, he clearly acts in private defence, although in doing so he may inflict an injury which may prove fatal. 1963 Mad W N 698 : (1964)

1 Mad L J 41 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 47 : 1964 (2) Cr L J 425 : A I R 1964 Mad 418 (420, 421) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 10, 15) (DB).

——S. 100 — Reasonable apprehension of death — Right of private defence to the extent of causing death.

A used to have frequent quarrels with his wife. B the son used to vindicate the cause of his mother. On the date of occurrence, A quarrelled with his wife and then chased B (his son) with knife saying all the time that he would first kill his son B and then the wife. Thus pursued B turned round and dealt a few blows to A with an axe which he was holding. This resulted in the instantaneous death of A :

Held, that the knife which A had in his hands while chasing B was a deadly weapon capable of causing death. When evidently there was reasonable apprehension in the mind of B that he was going to be killed by his chasing father A and when A had approached B while chasing with a knife all the while shouting that he would kill B, the latter had the right of private defence of the body even to the extent of causing A's death. (1963) 29 Cut L T 464.

——Ss. 96, 100 and 304 — Private defence as to person—Extent of—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 59.

An attempt to commit burglary at the house of the accused having been made the accused armed with a lathi chased the burglar to a distance of about 100' to 150' kept from the house. The burglar who was armed with an axe tried to assault the accused whereupon the latter with a view to save his own life, gave a blow with his lathi as a result of which the Tangi fell down on the ground. Apprehending further assault, the accused inflicted some more blows with the tangi on the burglar which ultimately resulted in his death. The incident occurred on a very dark night and it was not possible for the accused to know whether his blow fell on any vital part of the deceased burglar. The evidence of the doctor showed that there were 11 injuries only one of which could have been caused by the axe, the rest being caused by a fall. The accused who was convicted under S. 304, I. P. C. pleaded right of private defence.

Held, (i) that as the burglary was attempted to be committed in the very presence of the accused and in his own house the accused had the right of arrest of the culprit. AIR 1948 All 103, Rel. on.

(ii) that the accused under the circumstances had reasonable apprehension that either death or grievous hurt would be the inevitable result unless he took a bold stand and retaliated the burglar with his own weapon. The circumstances in which he was placed were amply sufficient to give him the right of private defence of his person even to the extent of causing death. It could not be said that the accused had exceeded his right of private defence in any manner whatsoever in giving the blows on the burglar which had resulted in his death. (1962) 28 Cut L T 515 : ILR (1962) Cut 891.

——S. 100—Scope—Private defence of body—Causing death — Right, when exceeded indicated. See Penal Code, Ss. 146 and 147. (1958) 24 Cut L T 215.

——Ss. 100 and 302—Deceased giving lathi blow to accused—Accused snatching lathi from deceased and giving blows on head of deceased — Deceased dying — Accused held not guilty under S. 302. AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 6106 (DB).

——S. 100—Assault—Nature of.

The assault referred to does not mean the assault, if any already committed but it is the assault of which an apprehension can reasonably be caused and that assault must be one which would amount to an offence. The right is a defensive one. It is granted to a citizen to be exercised for the purpose of preventing an offence affecting his body being committed. It is not a right of retaliation against the completed offence of assault. ('51) 17 Cut L T 220 : AIR 1952 Orissa 37 (39) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Ss. 100, 101—Reasonable apprehension of danger to life.

If after commission of an assault of a simple or grievous nature there is in any case no further apprehension of assault occasion for exercise of the right private defence of the body should not arise. At the same time the possibility of infliction of further assault likely to cause grievous bodily injury cannot as a rule be ruled out on the mere ground that the injury or the injuries already inflicted are simple.

Where a person charged with murder asserts that she killed in self-defence her state of mind at the time of the killing becomes material, and an important element in determining her justification for her belief in impending attack by the deceased. The reputation of the deceased for a violent dangerous or turbulent disposition is thus a circumstance which would cause such a belief. The previous relationship between the deceased and the accused and the deceased's aggressive temperament and disposition shown in his conduct of trespassing into the accused's house in order to assault her while she was retracing her steps must go a great way to cause belief in the accused in an impending danger to life accompanied with little chance of escape. ('51) 17 Cut L T 220 : A I R 1952 Orissa 37 (39) (Pt C) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Ss. 100, 304 — Murderous attack — Right of private defence.

An accused is perfectly justified in resisting an aggressive murderous attack on him by taking the weapon from out of the deceased and inflicting injuries on him to the extent that may be required according to his assessment of the circumstances at the time for the purpose of preventing any further assault on himself by the deceased. If in the course of it he kills the originally aggressive person, S. 100 completely protects it. ('50) 16 Cut L T 227 : 52 Cri L J 685 : AIR 1951 Orissa 245 (247) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 100 — Private defence of person and property —Interpretation — Use of English precedents not to be permitted : Observations of Ross J., in AIR 1928 Pat 433, Dissented from. See Penal Code (1860), Preamble. 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (DB).

——S. 100—Secondly.

Sudden altercation between accused and deceased —Deceased twice attempting to hit with a 'salang' on head of accused—Accused warding off blows with arrow in his hand — Accused hitting deceased with arrow when latter was in act of hitting third time — Accused is protected by right of private defence as there was reasonable apprehension that deceased would cause grievous hurt to him : A I R 1929 Lah 443 and AIR 1934 Lah 995, Rel. on. 3 Pepsu L R 90 : 1953 Cri L J 884 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 66 (68) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 99 and 100—Right of private defence—Question if right was exceeded — Question of fact — Reasonable apprehension of grievous hurt—Test of reasonableness.

Whether a person has exceeded his right of private defence or not is a question of fact and in determining this question all the surrounding circumstances have to be considered. When a person acts under an apprehension he cannot be expected to judge too nicely the force of his own blows. A person with an instinct of self-preservation strong upon him may pursue his defence a little further than what may be absolutely necessary, judged from the point of view of cool by-stander. Reasonable apprehension however, has to be judged from the point of view of the person faced with danger. Where, therefore, the unarmed respondents, who had climbed the roof of, their house to protect their property, were suddenly attacked and injuries were inflicted on them on the forehead and temple.

Held, that the circumstances were likely to cause a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the respondents that at least grievous hurt would be the result of the assault on them and that they were held justified in inflicting fatal injuries on the attackers. (1965) 67 Pun L R: 948.

——Ss. 100 and 300, Excep. 2 — Applicability—Conditions.

Four cardinal conditions must have existed before the taking of the life of a person is justified on the plea of self-defence. Firstly, the accused must be free from fault in bringing about the encounter; secondly, there must be present an impending peril to life or of great bodily harm, either real or so apparent as to create honest belief of an existing necessity; thirdly, there must be no safe or reasonable mode of escape by retreat; and fourthly, there must have been a necessity for taking life. The law of right of private defence as contained in S. 100 of the Penal Code is not different.

Held, that the previous conduct of the accused, his amorous relations with the witness, his unconcealed jealousy and pronounced repugnance of the deceased whom he considered to be his rival and whom he strongly suspected to be pursuing his intrigue with her, his surprise visit at night after having armed himself with a Chhura, his suspicion of the witness's being with another, his persistent refusal to enter the house unless she had lighted a lamp to enable him to see if there was anybody with her in the house, and on seeing the deceased his having plunged the chhura 16 times into his body without having received a single scratch or any other injury on his person, were facts which left one under no doubt that the accused had come with a premeditated intention to commit aggression if necessary. The attack on the deceased was fierce, murderous and unrelenting, without there being a semblance of belief far less well grounded foundation, that the accused would be attacked by the deceased. The killing in the circumstances could neither be excused nor extenuated on the plea of self-defence. The case of the accused could not be brought under Exception 2 to S. 300 of the Penal Code. I L R (1959) Punj 1473 : 1959 Cr L J 901 : 61 Punj L R 632 : 1959 All Cr R 356 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 90 : AIR 1959 Punj 332 (337, 338) (Pt B) (Prs 22 to 25) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99, 100 — Exceeding right of private defence—Causing death.

The pursuing party consisting of 60 to 70 persons were fully armed with 'Kulharis' and 'Kirpans', etc. They were all brandishing their weapons. One of them who was ahead of the party was armed with a 'kulhari'. On reaching the accused the pursuit party surrounded them. One of the accused's party was attacked and injured with sharpedged weapons and was killed on the spot. One of the accused was found to have received eight injuries when he was arrested.

Held, that under the circumstances it could not be said that the accused did not have reasonable apprehension that he was likely to be killed by the members of the pursuit party. He was therefore justified in defending himself. He gave only one blow with his spear which unfortunately proved fatal. In the circumstances it could not be said that the accused exceeded their right of private defence. ILR (1956) Punj 119 : 1956 Cri L J 654 : AIR 1956 Punj 122 (124) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 97 and 100—Scope — private defence of property and body—Accused lawfully ploughing land — Deceased starting fight deliberately preventing accused from lawfully exercising his right — Accused held had right of private defence—Killing deceased held no offence. AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 1353 (DB).

——Ss. 100 and 300, Exception 2—Applicability—Plea of self-defence—When not available.

It is an accepted proposition of law that a person cannot avail himself of the plea of self-defence in a case of homicide when he was himself the aggressor and wilfully brought on himself, without legal excuse the necessity for killing. It would be strange indeed if a person who provokes an attack, brings on a combat and then slays his assailant were to take shelter behind the plea of self-defence in justification of the blow which he struck during the encounter. 52 Cri L J 1517 : I L R (1951) Punj 202 : 53 P L R 284 : AIR 1951 Punj 137 (140) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 100—Right of private defence of person—Use of lathi.

If a person is saving himself or another and uses a lathi for that purpose, he is bound to cause at least simple hurt to the assailant and if he is held to have exceeded his right of private defence merely because he caused simple hurt to the assailant, there would really be no right of private defence left. 1952 Raj L W 1 (DB).

——S. 100 — Right of private defence of person — Reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt.

Where the accused acting in defence of his master, who had already been hit with a pharsi on the head by the deceased who was going to strike a second blow to the master, dealt a severe blow with a lathi on the deceased's head, resulting in his death.

Held that the accused had the right of private defence of person and had the right to cause even death under S. 100, and should be acquitted.

It is not possible in a fight like this in the heat of the moment to measure the weight of the blows and the mere fact that a particular blow happened to be harder than another would not take away the right of private defence of person, provided that the person defending himself or another had not acted in such a way as would show that more blows were given than were necessary for the purpose. 1952 Raj L W 1 (DB).

——S. 100—Apprehension of death or grievous hurt —Quarrel between father of accused and deceased — Deceased pressing father's testicles and others beating him—Accused stabbing deceased to save father—Accused held acted in right of private defence. AIR 1955 NUC (Sau) 530 (DB).

——Ss. 99, 100 and 102 — Right of self-defence — Extent.

In order that a person may avail himself of the right of self-defence to the extent of causing death, it must be proved that the assault by the other side was such as may reasonably cause apprehension of death or grievous hurt and the right ceases when such apprehension ceases.

Held that in the circumstances of the case there was no such apprehension, in any case after the deceased had fallen down and that there was absolutely no justification for dealing so many blows with the deliberate intention of killing. ('51) 4 Sau L R 249 (DB).

——S. 100 — Held, that the deceased was the aggressor. He had fired his gun on the accused. It was a muzzle loader and would take time to fill it with powder and cartridges. The accused persons in excitement could not be expected to weigh the pros and cons with balanced minds. They might have apprehended that the gun would be used against them or their adherents as it was used against their brother. So they belaboured the deceased in the exercise of their right of private defence of bodies. ('50) 3 Sau L R 31.

——S. 100 — Quarrel between D and A while playing cards — D hitting A on face with wood plank — About 20 days after incident D going out with lighted torch—A accosting him on way—D inflicting injury on A with torch — Burn more than skin deep, on right side of chest — A in consequence inflicting injury on abdomen by sharp instrument by giving a deep thrust—Injury fatal — Held that there was apprehension in mind of A that D would cause grievous hurt—A held was justified in causing death. AIR 1952 Trav-Co 449 (449) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

8 (A). No apprehension of death— Illustrative cases.

——S. 100 — Applicability—Victim felled on ground — Accused overpowering him by sitting on his chest — No apprehension to accused of grievous hurt or death — Accused striking victim with stone on vital part of body—Injury caused ultimately proving fatal — Accused held did not strike deceased in exercise of right of private defence of his person. 1953 Cri LJ 217 : A I R 1953 Bhopal 1 (3) (Pt C) (Prs 16, 17).

——S. 97—Private defence of body.

Defence that deceased was fired at when he was attacking or was about to attack assailant — Medical evidence that gun shot had hit at back of deceased's neck — Nature of wounds and extent of dispersion showing distance between the two as 8 to 10 yards — Right of defence of body, held could not be, accepted. 1955 Cri L J 1617 : I L R (1955) Pepsu 665 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 162 (164) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 100 — Accused pointing pistol on deceased with intention to fire — Deceased pouncing on accused with drawn sword — Deceased held had right of private defence to the extent of causing death of accused — Accused firing — Accused cannot claim right of private defence.

If a person has reasonable apprehension of grievous hurt or death at the hands of his opponent, by virtue of the right of private defence of the body, he can go to the length of causing his opponent's death. Where the accused took out his pistol and pointed towards the deceased evidently with the intention of firing upon him, deceased must be considered to have had a genuine apprehension that the accused was going to fire upon him and the result must naturally be his death. So he would have every right to protect himself by pouncing upon the accused with a sword even though in doing so he might kill him. His case would fall within the purview of S. 100, Penal Code and since whatever he did, he did in the exercise of the rights of private defence, he would be committing no offence. In such a case because it was the accused who had set the ball rolling he could not invoke the right of private defence of his body and shoot the deceased who had pounced upon him with a drawn sword for the simple reason that such right did not accrue to him. ('50) 2 Pepsu L R 489 (DB).

——Ss. 96, 100—Apprehension of grievous hurt.

Where the deceased was empty handed and all that he was doing at the time the accused fired upon him was that he was attempting to relieve another accused of his gun so that he might not use it against the party of deceased, it cannot be said that the accused had any reasonable apprehension of any serious harm to the other accused at the hands of deceased and consequently the accused can have no justification for shooting the deceased. ('50) 2 Pepsu L R 288 (DB).

8 (B). Assault with intention of gratifying unnatural lust.

——S. 100 (4) — Creditor not allowing debtor boy to go till he pays money — No evidence to show creditor's intention to commit unnatural offence — Clause (4) does not apply.

A, a creditor, made a demand on a boy B to repay his debt of Rs. 300 at 9 P. M. on coming out of a cinema house. There was some altercation in which C intervened and stabbed A who died soon after. C pleaded right of private defence under cl. (4) of S. 100, Penal Code. There was no evidence of any intention in the mind of A to commit unnatural offence on B. The general evidence showed that both A and C were men of bad character.

Held, that A's demand of money from B and telling that he would not allow B to go till his money was paid did not amount to an assault and that there being no evidence of A's intention to commit unnatural offence on that particular occasion, cl. (4) did not apply so as to give C any right of private defence. 1949 All W R (HC) 458 : 1949 All Cri R 114 : 51 Cri L J 385 : ILR (1950) All 960 : A I R 1950 All 91 (92) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 99 and 100 — Attempt to commit unnatural offence against offender — Injuries inflicted on and consequent death of victim—Right of private defence pleaded—More harm caused than necessary—No right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300, Except 2. 1962 (1) Cri L J 324 : A I R 1962 Guj 39 (DB).

8 (C). Assault with intention of kidnapping or abduction.

——S. 100, Fifthly — Clause fifthly is available in case of abduction as defined in S. 362.

The view that the word 'abducting' used in the fifth clause of S. 100 of the Penal Code refers to such abducting as is as offence under that Code and not merely to the act of abduction as defined in S. 362 thereof is not correct. On a plain reading of clause fifthly of S. 100, there does not seem to be any reason for holding that the word 'abducting' used in the clause means anything more than what is defined as 'abduction' in S. 362. All that the clause requires is that there should be an assault which is in an offence against the human body and that assault should be with the intention of abducting, and whenever these elements are present the clause will be applicable. AIR 1948 All 205, Overruled.

Where the appellant's sister was being abducted from her father's house by her husband, and there was an assault on her and she was being compelled by force to go away from her father's place :

Held, that the appellant had the right of private defence of the body of his sister against an assault with the intention of abducting her by force and that right extended to the causing of death. A I R 1957 All 714, Reserved. 1961 S C D 63 : 62 Pun L R 530 : 1959 Mad W N (SC) 76 : 1959 All L J 884 : 1960 S C J 26 : 1960 Cri L J 154 : 1960 M P C 1 : 1960 B L J R 26 : (1960) 1 M L J (SC) 21 : (1960) 1 Andh W R (SC) 21 : 1960 Pat L R (SC) 13 : (1960) 1 S C R 646 : ILR (1959) 2 All 633 : A I R 1960 S C 67 (68, 69) (Prs 5, 6).

——S. 100 (5)—Fifthly—Applicability—'Abducting' —Meaning—Wife dragged forcibly by husband from her father's house against her will—Person trying to rescue and killing husband—Plea of private defence.

The word 'abducting' used in Cl. (5) of S. 100 refers to such abducting as is an offence under the Penal Code and not merely to the act of abduction as defined in S. 362. A I R 1948 All 205, Foll; A I R 1953 Madh B 182, Dissent from. Where the husband (deceased) forcibly dragged out his wife against her will from the house of her father, the conduct of the husband amounts to abduction simpliciter but is not an offence. Consequently, any person coming to her rescue and causing the husband's death in that attempt cannot claim any right of private defence. 1958 All L J 175 : 1958 All Cri R 213 : 1958 All W R (HC) 255 : 1957 Cri L J 1195 : A I R 1957 All 714 (716) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1960 S C 67].

——S. 100 — Attackers raiding house during night to carry away daughter of owner — Right of private defence extends to voluntary causing death. 1959 Cri L J 42 : AIR 1959 J & K 5 (7) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 100 — Husband assaulting wife to abduct her from her father's house—Wife inflicting injuries with knife resulting in his death — If exceeds right of self-defence.

According to the prosecution the accused was married to one G, lived with him for a few months, and then went to live with her father. One day G went with some of his friends to fetch her back. The accused's father refused to send her and even closed the door of the house. G forced open the door and put his arms around the waist of the accused with a view to carry her away, whereupon the accused inflicted two or three injuries with a knife on the neck of G as a result of which G died. The accused denied that she was married to G and pleaded that she inflicted the injuries on him in self-defence because G was trying to abduct her by force.

Held, that the question whether the accused was married to G or not was of little importance in considering whether the defence under S. 100, Penal Code, was available to her. That was because, she being a major was free to refuse to go with G, whether he was her husband or not, and G's attempt to take her away by force was an unlawful act. Section 100, Penal Code, would justify the use of force by a person who was assaulted with a view to abduction even if the force used by him were to result in death, provided of course it was necessary for that person to use that much force. The accused did not exceed her right of self-defence in the circumstances of the case. Bearing in mind the fact that the only other inmate of the house, her father, was already put under restraint by the companions of G, it was natural for the accused to think that the only way in which she could prevent her abduction was to incapacitate G from carrying out his purpose. It might be that she could have stopped after inflicting one injury, but placed as she was, it was certainly difficult for her to judge whether what she had done was enough to serve her object; i.e., prevent her abduction. That accounted for her inflicting more than one injury on G's neck. ILR (1951) Nag 508 : 5 A I Cr D 374 : 1951 Nag L J 252 : A I R 1951 Nag 349 (349) (Pr 5).

——Ss. 100, 97 and 102—Reasonable apprehension — Facts held sufficient to come to conclusion that deceased intended at least to cause grievous hurt to members of accused's family or to kidnap his daughter and at any rate there was a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the accused that the deceased might do so—This finding held enough to afford a right of private defence to the accused. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 496.

8. (D) Plea of.

See also Note 1 (B).

—— S. 100 — Reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt— Plea is available to person who is not actually injured, but who in defence of father and brother exercises right of defence. A I R 1955 N U C (Mad) 1227.

8 (E). Onus.

See also Note 1 (C).

——Ss. 96 and 100—Plea of private defence—If can be established from prosecution evidence—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 5)—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367).

Where in a trial for murder the accused admits the incident but puts forward the plea of private defence it is vitally important to elucidate the exact circumstances under which the accused acted, in the particular manner he did. It is well accepted that where the defence has not brought forward any evidence of its own, the case of private defence can still be spelled out from the circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence.

Where the prosecution witnesses in their examination in chief support the prosecution that the incident took place but in their cross-examination support the defence plea by admitting the existence of circumstances which according to accused caused him apprehension of death or grievous hurt without going back on their statements in examination in chief it would be difficult to determine which part of their evidence is true and which false and there would be no justification in accepting only those portions which support the prosecution while discarding anything that supports the defence. 1959 Ker L J 1083 : 1959 Ker L T 1101 : 1960 Cri L J 589 : A I R 1960 Ker 142 (143) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 100 and 302—Plea of self-defence — Duty of Court and the prosecution — Benefit of doubt to be given to accused—Evidence Act, S. 105.

In a case where the accused does not deny the act but puts forward the definite plea of private defence there should be reliable and unimpeachable evidence of the circumstances under which the incident took place. It is the duty of the prosecution not to suppress any facts favourable to the accused and not to indulge in embellishments and additions with a view to depriving the accused of his right of private defence, and it is the paramount duty of the Court to sift and scan the evidence carefully with a view to finding out the circumstances under which the accused had to use the weapon. The fact that the deceased was not armed with dangerous weapon is no ground to find that the accused could not have apprehended death or grievous hurt. Even if the accused has not succeeded in conclusively establishing that his version of the incident is the true one, that cannot justify the rejection of his plea in a case, where the prosecution evidence itself is such as to raise a reasonable doubt in the mind of the court that the occurrence might have taken place in the manner pleaded by the accused. 1960 Ker L T 362 : 1960 Ker L J 597 : 1960 Mad L J Cri 272.

——S. 99 — Causing of grievous hurt — Plea of self-defence — Onus of proof. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1955 Cri L J 852 : A I R 1955 Trav Co 104 (DB).

9. Right of defence of body when extends to causing harm other than death or grievous hurt—S. 101.

——Ss. 101 and 324 — Aggressor in warding off stabbing attack from accused sustaining injuries on hand—Injuries trivial—Accused held could not be convicted under S. 324.

Accused 1 and 2 caused injuries to the hand of P. W. 1. The injuries were caused when P. W. 1 tried to ward off stabbing by accused 2, P. W. 1 was found to be the aggressor :

Held, that under S. 101, Indian Penal Code, the 2nd accused's right of private defence extended to the voluntary causing of any harm other than death. So the 2nd accused's conviction under S. 324, Indian Penal Code, could not be supported. 1959 K L T 606: 1959 Ker L R 588 : 1959 Ker L T 716 : 1959 Mad L J (Cri) 647 : ILR (1959) Ker 718.

——S. 101 — Exceeding right of private defence — Deceased completely disabled—Axe blow on frontal aspect of arm after disablement of accused cannot be protected by right of private defence. A I R 1952 Orissa 37 (DB).

——S. 101 — Use of sharp-edged weapon.

Even if the right available to the accused is one prescribed in S. 101, she would be justified in using an axe and assaulting the deceased with a view to cause grievous hurt. The mere circumstance that she used a sharp-edged weapon as an axe and selected head as the site of injury might not be enough to hold that she exceeded right of private defence. She must exercise the right to avert the peril to her life by completely disabling or disarming the assailant. So long as the assailant's hands with the stout lathi are free to inflict assault on her the apprehension of grievous hurt could not be averted. In all probability the head or upper part of the body would be the only portions open to attack which also could be interrupted by the deceased using the lathi in his hand. In unequal fight of the kind the weaker's instinct is to lose no opportunity and to leave no stone unturned to avert the peril to life. ('51) 17 Cut L T 220 : AIR 1952 Orissa 37 (41) (Pt F) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 101 and 300, Excep. II ; 302 and 304, Part 1 —Applicability—Accused molesting wife of deceased — On complaint by wife deceased and his father going to house of accused probably armed to remonstrate him—Accused killing deceased by causing him injuries with barcha blows — Circumstances showing that accused did have an apprehension of danger though not reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt — Although right of private defence to the extent of killing deceased may not be proved, case fell under S. 101 and therefore came within Exception 2 to S. 300 — Accused held guilty under S. 304, Part 1 and not under S. 302. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 4939 (DB).

10. Commencement and continuance of right of private defence of body — S. 102.

See also Notes 6 and 8.

——S. 102 — Right of private defence — The mere fact that the accused persons were following the deceased with dangerous weapons would justify him in attacking them. It is not necessary that he should wait until he himself is attacked. (1961) 1 Cri L J 54 (2) : AIR 1961 Guj 8 (10) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 99 —Accused with gun shot injuring deceased in thigh who was armed with big penknife—Deceased turning away—Accused firing second shot on back and killing deceased — Second shot held could not be said to have been fired in self-defence : AIR 1929 Mad 748, Distinguished. 1953 Cri L J 961; ILR (1952) Mys 94 : AIR 1953 Mys 45 (46) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 97—Right of private defence of body—When and how long available.

The right of private defence of the body commences as soon as a reasonable apprehension of danger to the body arises from an attempt or threat to commit the offence though the offence may not have been committed and it continues as long as such apprehension of danger to the body continues. (1962) 4 Orissa J D 17.

——S. 102 — Accused assaulted by another person delivering blows to that person in self-defence — Other person falling down and becoming incapable of causing any harm as a result of the blows — As there can be no further apprehension on the part of accused of receiving injuries from the other he exceeds his right of private defence in continuing to inflict injuries to him after his falling down : AIR 1934 Lah 748 ; AIR 1941 Lah 45 and AIR 1957 Punj 306, Rel. on. (1964) 66 Punj L R 281.

——S. 102 — Applicability—Arms snatched away—Deceased starting running away but attacked — Private defence.

Where although the deceased started the attack he was soon disarmed and one out of the two accused picked up the gandasi which was in the hands of the deceased and thus both of the accused became armed with weapons one with the gandasi and the other with a kirpan, there could be no right of private defence in such a case particularly when the deceased had started running away from the place : AIR 1939 Lah 393, Disting. 59 Punj L R 61 : 1957 All W R (Sup) 30 : 1957 Cri L J 1453 : AIR 1957 Punj 306 (307) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99, 100 and 102 — Right of private defence — Extent of.

The cattle of deceased had trespassed into the field of the accused and thereupon there was an exchange of abuses between them. While the exchange of abuses was going on deceased gave a lathi blow on the person of the accused. The accused happened to have a sword with him and struck the deceased with the sword in return. The first blow was stopped by the deceased on his lathi and then the accused gave a second blow on the left leg of the deceased with the result that the deceased fell down injured. Thereafter the accused did not give any other blow to the deceased and went away. The latter died in the hospital on the next day.

Held, that obviously when the deceased hit at the accused with a lathi right of private defence of person arose in favour of the latter. The assault was of such a nature that the accused could have an apprehension that at least grievous hurt would be the consequence of such assault if he did not defend himself. He was, therefore, entitled to hit back in defence of his own person and even to cause the death of the assailant. It could not be said that there was time to have recourse to the protection of the public authorities or that the right of private defence was exceeded and more harm than was necessary was caused to the deceased. The place of attack clearly showed that the intention of the accused was to disable the deceased who was still armed with the lathi. The apprehension that had arisen in the mind of the accused must still have continued, for the deceased was still in possession of the lathi. So, long, therefore, as the deceased had a lathi in his hand, the accused could repeat the attack which he had already made on the accused under the circumstances the second blow given by the accused was also justified. 1952 Raj L W 136 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 796 : 1952 Cri LJ 1252 : AIR 1952 Raj 158 (158) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——S. 100 — Held, that in the circumstances of the case there was no apprehension of death or grievous hurt, in any case after the deceased had fallen down and that there was absolutely no justification for dealing them so many blows with the deliberate intention of killing them. ('51) 4 Sau L R 249 (DB).

11. Right of private defence of property when extends to causing death — S. 103.

See also Note 8.

● ——Ss. 103 and 300, Exception 2—Deceased peacefully cutting crops — Accused claiming the crops attacking the deceased in furtherance of common intention and killing them — Exception 2 to S. 300 does not apply to the case of accused.

The deceased, none of whom was in possession of any dangerous weapon, were harvesting the crops on a plot of land with peaceful intention under the protection of police. The accused who claimed the crops did not approach the authorities for redress although they had time to do so but attacked the deceased with guns and other dangerous weapons and shot them down from close range with the common intention of killing them after sending away by a ruse the constables who had accompanied the deceased to the field.

Held, that Exception 2 to S. 300 would not apply to the case, as on the facts of the case it could not be said that the accused had shot at the deceased without premeditation and without the intention of doing more harm, than was necessary for the purpose of private defence. The conditions laid down in S. 103 were not satisfied in the case and hence the accused had no right of private defence of property extending to the causing of the death of the deceased. The acts of the deceased did not amount to robbery mentioned by that section as in the circumstances disclosed in the case it cannot be held that there was any reasonable apprehension on the part of the accused that they would be killed or hurt by the deceased.

Section 103 of the Penal Code is subject to S. 99 thereof. Under S. 99, there is no right of private defence in cases in which there is time to have recourse to the protection of public authorities, and the right of private defence in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary to inflict for the purpose of defence. The accused knew beforehand that the deceased had gone to the field to cut the crop. They could have gone to the police station to inform the proper authority of the intentions of the deceased and asked for police protection. They did not do so. Instead they deployed the constables who had accompanied the accused on a false pretext. Secondly it was not necessary for the accused, in the circumstances in which they were placed to use their guns immediately on coming to the field to shoot to kill. The deceased had no arms and they were cutting the crop under the protection of the police, indicating thereby their peaceful intentions. Shooting at close range without warning would certainly be causing more harm than was necessary, in the circumstances of the case, to inflict for the purpose of private defence. Gurdatta Mal v. State of U. P., 1964 S C D 792 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 242 : 1964 Mad W N 563 : (1965) 2 S C J 550 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 785 : ILR (1964) 2 All 632 : AIR 1965 S C 257 (263, 264) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14, 15).

● ——Ss. 99, 97 and 103 — Section 97 is subject to S. 99.

The right of private defence of property which is set out in S. 97 is subject to the provisions of S. 99, where the owner fixes live naked electric wire of high voltage across passage to his latrine to dissuade trespassers and no warning that the wire was live one was given and the trespasser gets a shock and some time later dies, the owner is guilty of offence under S. 304A. The type of injury caused by the trap laid by the owner cannot be brought within scope of S. 99 nor of course of S. 103, Charubin Gregory v. State of Bihar, (1963) 2 Ker L J 331: 1963 Cur L J S C 123 : 1963 -2 S C W R 419 : 1963 S C D 991 : 1964 M P L J 360 : 1964 Mah L J 503: (1964) 2 S C A 198: 1964 (1) Cri L J 138 : 1964 B L J R 193: 1964 Ker L T 656 : 1964 M L J (Cri) 236 : (1964) 1 S C J 415 : AIR 1964 S C 205 (206) (Pr 6).

——Ss. 99 and 103 — Private defence of property — Causing death — When justified.

Under S. 103 the right of private defence of property extends under the restrictions mentioned in S. 99 to the voluntary causing of death or any other harm to the wrong-doer if the offence; the committing of which or the attempting to commit which, occasions the exercise of the right, be an offence of robbery or of theft under such circumstances as may reasonably cause apprehension that death or grievous hurt will be the consequence if such right of private defence is not exercised. 1958 All W R (HC) 622 : 1958 All L J 511 : 1958 All Cr R 415 : 1959 Cri L J 413 : AIR 1959 All 233 (235) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 103, Fourthly — Applicability — Husband entering house of father-in-law and forcibly dragging out wife — Accused going to rescue — Right of private defence of property.

It is not every sort of house-trespass which under Cl. (4) of S. 103 gives the extended right. Such right is conferred in the case of house trespass only when the house trespass is committed under such circumstances as may reasonably cause apprehension that death or grievous hurt will be the consequence if such right of private defence is not exercised.

Where a person entered the house of his father-in-law and forcibly dragged out his wife against her will, S. 103, Cl. (4) will not be available to any person who went to her rescue and caused the death of the husband in that attempt. 1958 All L J 175 : 1958 All W R (HC) 255 : 1958 All Cr R 213 : 1957 Cri L J 1195 : AIR 1957 All 714 (716) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 S C 67].

——S. 103 — Extent of private defence.

Under S. 103 of the Penal Code, a person was entitled to prevent a robbery and if necessary even to cause injuries to the extent of causing death. But the extent of harm to be caused in defending one's property depends on the circumstances of each case. Unnecessary harm is not permitted to be caused in the exercise of the right of self-defence. 1951 A W R (HC) 477 : 1951 A L J 464 : 1951 All Cri Cas 116 : 1953 Cri L J 1275 : AIR 1953 All 555 (556) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9, 10, 12).

——Ss. 103, 147, 148, 304, 323 and 325 — Applicability — Dispute as to land — Suits under S. 180 of U. P. Tenancy Act — Decrees in favour of P and his party man T — Dakhal-dehani also in their favour — Surgarcane crop on the land —Fight over cutting of crop—P and his party on one side and the defendants in the suit, K and his party on the other — Death of one of K's party — Grievous injuries on one of P's party — P's party protected by law of private defence. 1952 A L J 431 : 54 Cri L J 717 : AIR 1953 All 327 (328, 329) (Prs 9, 10).

——Ss. 97, 93, 103, 104, 302, 304, Part 1 — Accused exercising right, attacked by prosecution party — Accused have right of private defence — Exceeding the right — Death caused — Offence.

Where when the accused in the exercise of their right were trying to abate the nuisance caused by a dam set up by the prosecution party across a water channal, which they had no right to erect, the accused were attacked by the prosecution party :

Held, that the accused had a right of private defence.

The right, however, extended to voluntary causing death only if conditions mentioned in S. 103 existed. Where there were no such conditions, the right would be subject to limitations contained in S. 104 and it did not extend to causing death but only to the voluntary causing to the wrong doer of any harm other than death. In causing death the right of private defence would be exceeded and the act would fall under exception 2 to S. 300 (Conviction altered from 302, Penal Code to one under S. 304, Part 1). 1962 Ker L T 868 : (1962) 2 Ker L R 466.

——S. 103 — Right of self-defence of property or person — When arises — Causing of grievous hurt on grave and sudden provocation. 1958 Jab L J 257.

——Ss. 97, 99, 103, 104—Private defence of property and person—Extent of.

The accused were in possession of the land and while they were ploughing the land, the deceased entered the land and started a quarrel about the right of the accused to plough the land. As the deceased did not pay heed to the protest of the accused, one of the accused gave the murderous strokes on both the deceased with the axe and the deceased were indiscriminately assaulted, even though they fell down by the first stroke on each of them till they were dead.

Held, that in the circumstances the assults were not necessary to be inflicted for the purpose of private defence of person and as the offences committed by the deceased were only criminal trespass and mischief the right of private defence of property under Ss. 103 and 104 did not extend to the voluntary causing of death. The exercise of right of private defence of property is itself subject to restrictions mentioned in S. 99 which prescribes that the right of private defence in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary to inflict for the purpose of defence. Under S. 104 the accused were entitled to cause any harm to the wrongdoer other than death. 1965 (1) Cri L J 744 : AIR 1965 Orissa 99 (101) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Ss. 103, 97, and 99—Private defence of body and property — Beginning and extent of right—It may extent to voluntarily causing of death of aggressor.

The right of private defence of property arises as soon as there is a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property. The person entitled to exercise that right can act before actual harm is done. The right of private defence of body or property extends to the voluntarily causing of death. In trying to defend these rights the defender and his people cannot see whether their assault will only result in simple hurt to or death of any of the aggressors. AIR 1945 Pat 283; AIR 1959 Pat 22; (1960) B L J R 75, Rel. on. 1961 B L J R 824.

——Ss. 99, 100 and 103—Right of private defence — When extends to voluntary causing of death.

Held, that in the circumstances the accused had a right of private defence of person and property and they had not exceeded that right in causing the death of a person belonging to the prosecution party. 1960 B L J R 75.

——Ss. 97, 99, 103 — Private defence of property — One party in actual possession — Both parties armed — Simultaneous attack — Member of party in actual possession causing fatal injury to member of opposite party — Right of private defence of person or property held not exceeded. 1957 B L J R 756 : 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (27, 28, 30) (Pt D) (Prs 23, 25, 26, 40) (DB).

——Ss. 99 and 103—Right of private defence of property — Extent of.

The exercise of the right of private defence of property is restricted by the general provisions which apply to every kind of right of private defence mentioned in S. 99 which lays down, inter alia, that the right in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary to inflict for the purpose of defence. ('51) 3 Pepsu L R 620 (DB).

——Ss. 103, 104 and 300, Exception 2—Scope of the right of private defence of property—Causing death.

The right of private defence, under S. 103, Penal Code, in the case of theft extends to voluntarily causing death provided there are such circumstances as may reasonably cause apprehension that death or grievous hurt will be the consequence if such right of private defence is not exercised. Where there are no such circumstances the right of private defence of property, if any, would come under S. 104 which does not extend to the voluntary causing of death but extends subject to the restrictions mentioned under S. 99 to the voluntarily causing to the wrongdoer any harm other than death. Where in causing death the right of private defence is exceeded, unless the case is brought within the exception 2 to S. 300, Penal Code, the accused will be guilty of murder, provided of course that the usual conditions required by S. 300 are complied with. 3 Sau L R 184 : 5 A I Cr D 117 : AIR 1951 Sau 1 (3,15) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 12) (DB).

12. Right of private defence of property when extends to causing harm other than death or grievous hurt — S. 104.

See also Note 6.

——S. 104 — Deceased entering appellant's house at night in prosecution of his intrigue with appellants' daughter — Assault by appellant and his companions — Injuries caused leading to death — Appellant held acted in lawful exercise of his right of private defence and committed offence — Viewing the matter from another angle, the deceased committed house trespass which gave the appellant a right of defending his house property — Section 104 applied thereby giving the appellant as well as his companions right of causing some harm other than death — But since death was caused the case became one where the right of private defence was exceeded. I L R (1960) 2 All 235.

——Ss. 97 and 104 — Extent of right under — Minor injuries to aggressor—Inference.

Where the complainant's own examination showed that he was the aggressor and the accused therefore had the right of defence of property and the injuries caused were few and mere scratches and bruises :

Held, that it could not be said that the accused exceeded the right of private defence. 1957 Cri L J 1426 : AIR 1957 Manipur 34 (35) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——S. 104—Extent of right — Causing minor injuries to aggressor. 1957 Cri L J 1426 : AIR 1957 Manipur 34.

——S. 104—Unlawful seizure of cattle — Hurt could be caused in rescue in exercise of right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 1869.

——Ss. 104, 141, Cl. 4, 97—'To enforce right' — Encroachment by complainant on common way—Right of common user of way recognised by Court — Accused party asserting right by criminal force—Use of criminal force — Use of criminal force is for enforcement and not for defending right — Accused party constitutes unlawful assembly and right of self-defence under S. 104 cannot be claimed. 36 Cal 865 and AIR 1961 Mys 74, Disting. 66 Punj L R 706 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 209 : AIR 1965 Punj 90 (92, 93) (Pt A) (Prs 9 to 11) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 100 and 104—Private defence of body—Case on facts—Held that an attack by lathis must in every case lead to reasonable apprehension that grievous hurt might be caused if no steps were taken to defend the person attacked — Helpers of the person attacked were also entitled to maintain the former's right of private defence of property — When to the right of private defence of property was added the further right of private defence of person, there could no question of exceeding that right—Right of private defence arose against all the members of the assembly attacking the accused. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1044 (DB).

13. Commencement and continuance of right of private defence of property—S. 105.

● —S. 105 — Right of private defence of property against criminal trespass — Appellants forcibly taking loaded carts through the field belonging to H—Right of H to defend property continues till appellants leave the field.

Where the appellants forcibly took two carts loaded with sugarcane through the filed of H in which there were standing crops, in transporting the sugarcane to the public passage running by the side of H's field so long as they were inside the field, the trespass had not come to an end and H had the right to prevent the appellants from continuing to commit the criminal trespass for whatever short distance they had still to cover before reaching the public pathway. It is true that the appellants' party had to get out of the field and that this they could not have done without committing further criminal trespass. But it does not follow that this difficult position in which the party found itself gave them any right for insisting that they must continue the criminal trespass. They had to abide by the direction of H, whatever be the degree of patience required in case they were not allowed to move in any direction in order to leave the field. 1961 S C D 672 : 1961 Mad W N 530 : (1962) 1 S C R 601 : 1961 B L J R 707 : 1961 All L J 587 : 1961 All W R (HC) 506 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 711 : 1961 M P C 720 : 1961 All Cri R 293 : (1961) 2 S C J 586 : (1961) M L J (Cri) 667 : A I R 1961 S C 1541 (1542) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——S. 105—Recapture of stolen property—Right of defence of property.

Recapture of the stolen or plundered property while it is in the course of being carried away is authorised in view of S. 105, Penal Code, for the taking and retaking is one transaction. But when the offence has been committed and the property removed, a recapture after an interval of time by the owner or by other persons on his behalf however, justifiable cannot be deemed an exercise of the right of defence of property. The recovery which S. 105, Penal Code contemplates is a recovery either immediate or made before the offender has reached his final retreat. 1958 All W R (HC) 622 : 1958 All L J 511 : 1958 All Cr R 415 : 1959 Cri L J 413 : A I R 1959 All 233 (235) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Ss. 105, 97 and 99 — Commencement of right—Exercise of right not on property threatened—Permissibility.

All that is required to give rise to the right of private defence is that a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property should commence. It has always to be found out in the particular circumstances of each case whether in those ciruumstances the person who claims the benefit of the right of private defence had a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property. If the question is answered in the affirmative the right exists; and it is not necessary that the offence or an attempt should actually have been committed.

Where a body of persons (the complainant's party) armed with lathis and accompanied with bullocks and a plough were going with the avowed object of upturning the crop which had previously been sown by the opposite party, there could be no doubt about their intention and their act, if completed, would have amounted to mischief and criminal trespass. When there was no time for having recourse to lawful authorities because the police station was far away, the restriction imposed by section 99 does not come into play and the opposite party has a right to protect their property. The mere circumstance that the property was situate at a distance of 6 or 7 furlongs from the place at which the parties met did not prevent the right of the opposite party from coming into existence. Even if a person who is claiming the right of defence of property happens to be placed at some distance from the property, he can exercise that right provided he finds that damage to property will accrue if the right is not exercised. Therefore, the right of private defence of property could, in the circumstances of the case, be exercised at the place where the two parties met. The right of private defence of property however did not extend to the causing of any one's death, and the opposite party could only commit any offence short of death in their attempt to save the property, by preventing the complainant from proceeding towards the property. 1954 Cr L J 1710 : A I R 1954 All 771 (772, 773) (Pt A) (Prs 6 to 8) (DB).

——S. 105—Accused arrested and danger to property averted—No right of private defence of property can be claimed. AIR 1951 Kutch 11 (12) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Ss. 104, 105, 99, 333 and 326 — Criminal trespass and mischief upon Government forest — Right of forest guard to prevent — Extent — Accused cutting timber from Government forest—Seizing of axe from accused held did not exceed necessity— Accused not entitled to claim private defence.

A forest guard has a right of private defence available to him in preventing commission of criminal trespass or mischief on Government property. That right commences as soon as a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property commences and continues as long as the offender continues in the commission of criminal trespass or mischief.

A forest guard in trying to prevent the accused from cutting timber in the Government forest seized his axe and in the scuffle that ensued accused inflicted certain blows. Accused who was convicted under Ss. 333 and 326, I P. C., pleaded private defence contending inter alia that the right of forest guard extended only to seizing of timber.

Held, that the forest guard had by virtue of his office the right to protect the property of the Government and had the right of private defence in respect of Government property. Seizing the axe in the circumstances could not be said to be in excess of what was necessary and accused could not claim any private defence. 1962 Jab L J 857 : 1962 M P L J (Notes) 318 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 95.

——Ss. 105, 302, 300, Exception 2 — Deceased committing theft at house of accused and running away with stolen goods — Accused chasing and assaulting deceased — Death of deceased—Right of private defence of property held continued upto time of assault but did not extend to causing death—Case held did not fall under Exception 2 to S. 300, since deceased was assaulted indiscriminately after he had fallen down—Onus to prove that case fell under Exception was on accused — Accused held guilty under S. 302—Evidence Act (1872), S 105.

Where the deceased who had committed theft at the house of the accused was chased by the accused and his men while he was carrying the stolen articles in a wrapper to a distance of about 546 feet into a jungle and there assaulted with sticks as a result of which the deceased died of shock and haemorrhage.

Held, that the right of private defence of property had commenced, when the deceased was carrying away the property of the accused and this right continued upto the time when the deceased was assaulted in the jungle, as the offender had not effected his retreat with the property or the property had not been recovered. The continuance of such right is integrally connected with the time factor. There was no lapse of time between the theft and the effort on the part of the accused to recover the property before the offender effected his retreat. But since at the time of the assault the deceased was wholly defenceless and was carrying no arms and there was complete absence of circumstances as might reasonably cause apprehension that death or grievous hurt would be the consequence, the right of private defence of property, which the accused had, did not extend to causing death of the deceased—Held, further that assuming that the killing was without premeditation, the accused could not be said to have no intention of doing more harm than it was necessary for the purpose of such defence. The intention had to be gathered from the acts preceding and subsequent to the assault. The fact that after the first blow was given by accused on the head, the deceased fell down and all other injuries were caused on him indiscriminately thereafter, showed the intention of causing more harm than was necessary for the purpose of defence. This also showed the absence of good faith. Exception 2 to section 300, I. P. Code had therefore no application as the element of good faith and absence of intention of doing more harm than was necessary for the purpose had not been established. The onus of proving these elements was on the accused under s. 105, Evidence Act, and the Court would presume the absence of such circumstances. The accused therefore was guilty under section 302, I. P. Code. (1965) 31 Cut L T 265.

——Ss. 105, 99, Cl. 3 — Right of private defence of property—When commences stated — Sufficient time to approach public authority for protection— Right of private defence is lost. 1964 (2) Cri L J 696 : AIR 1964 Orissa 262 (DB).

——Ss. 104, 105 — Right of private defence of property—Nature of — Principles as to exercise of right before actual harm and as to extension of right stated.

The law as to the right of private defence is well settled. It is not the law that the rightful owner in peaceful possession of property must run away, if there is an actual invasion of his right and an attempt on his person. The person in possession of property is entitled to defend himself and his property by force and to collect such numbers and such arms as are necessary for that purpose, if he sees an actual invasion of his rights, which invasion amounts to an offence under the Penal Code, and when there is no time to get police help. It is lawful for a person, who has seen an invasion of his rights, to go to the spot and object. It is also lawful for such persons, if the opposite party is armed, to take suitable weapons for his defence. The right of private defence of property arises as soon as there is a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property. The person entitled to exercise that right can act before actual harm is done.

It is not a right of retaliation and hence he need not wait until the aggressor has started committing the offence which occasions the exercise of his right of private defence. In such a case the right of private defence of body or property extends to the voluntarily causing of death. It is obvious that in trying to defend these rights the appellant and his people could not be expected to weigh the blows inflicted by them on the aggressors in golden scales; and, therefore, they cannot, at the time of resisting the attack, see whether their assault will only result in simple hurt to or death of any of the aggressors. AIR 1945 Pat 283; AIR 1959 Pat 22; 1960 B L J R 75, Ref. 1961 B L J R 824.

——Ss. 97 and 105—Scope—Right of private defence of property and person—When arises—Actual damage to property—Necessity.

In order to give rise to the right of private defence of property it is not necessary that any of the offences mentioned in the second clause of S. 97 should have been actually committed. As laid down in S. 105, I. P. C., the right of private defence of property commences when a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property commences. It is the reasonable apprehension of danger to the property arising out of either commission or attempt to commit, the offences mentioned in S 97 that gives a person the right to defend his property. If a person is already in possession of his property, he alone has the right to go upon the land and carry with him such arms and such men, as he deems necessary to defend his property. There is no right of private defence in a case in which there is time to have recourse to the protection of public authorities. AIR 1959 Pat 22; 35 Cal 368; AIR 1945 Pat 283 and AIR 1938 Pat 518, Rel. on.

Held, that when the members of the prosecution party went armed and were bent upon stopping the harvesting and causing criminal trespass and mischief, the appellants, at that stage, could not have abandoned their property and left the place for seeking the help of public authorities. AIR 1959 Pat 22, Rel. on.

The appellants had no doubt a right of private defence of property. They also had a right of private defence of person. 1960 B L J R 75.

——S. 105 — Private defence of property — Commencement of.

The right of private defence of property arises as soon as there is a reasonable apprehension of danger to the property. The person entitled to exercise that right can act before actual harm is done. It is not a right of retaliation and hence he need not wait until the aggressor has started committing the offence which occasions the exercise of his right of private defence. AIR 1952 Orissa 37, Rel. on. 1957 B L J R 756 : 1959 Cri L J 71 : AIR 1959 Pat 22 (28) (Pt C) (Pr 24) (DB).

——S. 105—Scope—Right of private defence of property against criminal trespass—Duration.

The deceased entered the house of the accused with the intention of outraging the modesty of wife of the accused. The accused beat him with a stick as a result of which the deceased fell down but the accused continued to beat him even after the deceased fell down.

Held, that whatever intention the deceased entertained at the time of entering the house, it had disappeared and he continued on the premises not because he intended to commit an offence but because he was physically unable to get out. After the deceased fell down the accused's right of private defence came to an end. 1956 Cri L J 1234 : AIR 1956 Sau 77 (80) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Ss 103, 300, Exception 2 and S. 100 — Though the right of private defence against theft continues till the offender has effected his retreat with the property or till it has been recovered, where the thief has been felled down by a blow with an axe and his lying prostrate with the stolen property thrown on the ground, it cannot be said that the right of private defence extends to inflicting further blows on the thief of which he dies subsequently. In such a case the case of the accused neither falls under S. 103 nor under Exception 2 to S. 300, Penal Code, to reduce the offence to one of culpable homicide. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300, Exception 2. AIR 1951 Sau 1 (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 97, 99, 104 and 105—Right of private defence of property—Extent of.

Trespass on property to steal crops—Right of private defence of property begins—Accused need not run to police or public authorities to seek redress—Accused cannot be expected to judge his act by the cool standard of a passer by — Death caused — No intention to cause death or to cause such bodily injury as is likely to cause death could be attributed --Offence held amounted to culpable homicide not amounting to murder 1953 Ker L T 31 : 1953 Cri L J 1394 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 340 (342, 343) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8, 10) (DB).

SECTION 107

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 107).

1. Scope.
2. Instigation.
3. Conspiracy.
4. "Intentionally aids by act."
5. Illegal omission.

1. Scope.

——Ss. 107 and 120-A—Distinction between offence of abetment by conspiracy and offence of criminal conspiracy — Sanction under S. 196-A for offence of abetment by conspiracy is not necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898). S. 196-A. 1962 (1) Cri L J 770 : AIR 1962 S C 876.

——S. 107 — Abetment of contravention of Order — Mens rea not required. See Imports & Exports (Control) Act (1947), S. 5. 1962 (2) Cri L J 472 : AIR 1962 Bom 243 (DB).

——S. 107—Abetment—What constitutes.

Section 107 defines abetment. It is well known that an act of abetment may take place in one of three ways: (1) Instigation, (2) Conspiracy, or (3) Intentional aid. 60 Bom L R 428 : ILR (1958) Bom 700 : 1960 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1960 Bom 393 (393) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——S. 107—Scope.

In order that there may be abetment, there must be either instigation or intentional aiding or engaging in a conspiracy as laid down in S. 107, I. P. C. General advice is far too vague an expression to prove abetment under the Indian Penal Code. 52 Cri L J 1480 : ILR (1953) 1 Cal 81 : AIR 1951 Cal 581 (584) (Pt D) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 107 and 109—Bribery, abetment of

When considering whether giver of a bribe is guilty of abetment the definition of abetment given in S. 107, Penal Code, must be construed along with Illus. (a) to S. 109. ILR (1952) Cut 364 : 1952 Cri L J 1393 : AIR 1952 Orissa 267 (270) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

2. Instigation.

——S. 107, 'Firstly'—Instigation — Proof of —Actual words need not be proved.

There is no doubt that there has to be a reasonable certainty in regard to the meaning of the words used by the inciter in order to judge whether or not there was an incitement, but it is not necessary in law to prove the actual words used for the incitement. 1957 All W R (H C) 169 : 1957 All L J 459 : 1957 Cr L J 337 : AIR 1957 All 177 (182) (Pt E) (Pr 26) (DB).

——S. 107—Abetment — Offer to pay bribe to public servant without actually producing money amounts to offence under S. 165-A—Offer, what amounts to.

Illustration (a) to S. 116 makes it clear that the offer of the bribe would amount to an abetment under S. 116, Penal Code and would necessarily constitute an offence under S. 165A. The definition of the word 'instigation' as defined in S. 107 leads to the same result. 56 Bom L R 1021 : 1955 Cri L J 181 : AIR 1955 Bom 61 (62) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 107—Abetment, what constitutes.

Under S. 107, Penal Code it is the instigation to the commission of the act itself which constitutes the offence that is regarded as abetment. To ask a person as a mere threat to fire a gun without intending that he should really fire it, is not to instigate him to fire the gun. The threat would become instigation only if it is found that in the event of the threat having no effect, the gun should in fact be fired. 1953 Cri L J 995: AIR 1953 Madh B 155 (156) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 107 and 108 — Wilful misrepresentation of a fact would amount to abetment of an act.

The appellant, a businessman, loaded only 54 bags instead of 251 in the railway wagon and arranged them in such a way that it would not be possible on a superficial check to detect short loading. He represented to the Railway staff that the wagon was ready for scaling which impliedly meant that the wagon had been loaded as per details in his declaration—the forwarding note—and having obtained the railway receipt showing the wagon containing 251 whereas to his knowledge it contained only 54 bags. He sold the contents of the wagon representing them to be 251 bags.

Held, that the above mentioned circumstances and conduct of the appellant would justify the conclusion that he wilfully misrepresented to the railway staff that the wagon was loaded according to declaration made by him in the forwarding note. The wilful misrepresentation in view of Explanation (i) of S. 107, Penal Code, would amount to instigation and as such would constitute abetment of the act of preparing incorrect records by a railway servant. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 246.

——S. 107 — 'Instigation' — Accused aiding widow to commit Sati—S. 306.

Where the accused were members of the crowd who had joined the funeral procession, from the house of the deceased to the cremation ground, while the widow of the deceased was walking in front of the procession with an intention to commit Sati and they were shouting 'Sati-Mata-ki-Jai' and as the procession proceeded, about 100 or 150 of the crowd surrounded the police in order to make it impossible for them to prevent her from committing Sati and ultimately the funeral pyre was set on fire with the widow sitting on it:

Held, that all those persons who joined that procession were aiding the widow in committing Sati. S 306, Penal Code, provides punishment for abetment of suicide. One of the ways of abetment in S. 107 is intentionally doing of any act or illegal omission; abetment also includes instigation. Those people who were in that procession, including the accused, were throughout intentionally aiding the widow in her decision to commit suicide by taking her with bier to the cremation ground. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 143 : 1958 Raj L W 19 : 1958 Cri L J 967 : AIR 1958 Raj 169 (171) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

3. Conspiracy.

——S. 107—Secondly—Conspiracy.

The term "abetment" as defined in S. 107 includes a case of conspiracy provided an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy. 1951 R D (H C) 48.

——S. 107, Secondly—Abetmet by conspiracy.

Abetment by conspiracy as set forth in Cl. (2) of S. 107, Penal Code is not established by proof of association together, nor by mere suspicion of guilt. Close association and friendship are relevant only if they tend to show any concert or preparation with regard to the particular crime designed. 1961 Mad

L J (Cr) 280 : 1961 All W R (Sup) 9 : 1961 All Cr R 146 : (1961) 1 M L J 379.

——Ss. 107 (2) and 405 — Abetment of breach of trust by conspiracy — Proof — Conviction — Interference in revision — Criminal Procedure Code (V of 1898), S. 439.

Where the abetment was a form of abetment by conspiracy as set forth in Cl. (2) of S. 107 of the Penal Code, any charge of conspiracy is not established merely by proof of association together nor by mere suspicion of guilt.

Where the record is itself not capable of sustaining a conviction and the conscience of the Court is roused to the extent of compelling the Court to find that the accused ought not to have been convicted upon the evidence, interference in revision would be warranted. 1961 All W R (Sup) 9 : 1961 All Cr R 146 : (1961) 1 M L J 379 : 1961 M L J (Cr) 280 (Mad).

——Ss. 107, 120B—Offence committed in pursuance of conspiracy — Charge of conspiracy is irrelevant - Conspiracy amounts to abetment — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235. See Penal Code (1860), S. 120B. 1960 Cri L J 1360 : AIR 1960 Pat 459 (DB).

——Ss. 107, 120-A— Abetment by conspiracy — Evidence.

It is very difficult to obtain direct evidence of conspiracy which is generally inferred from certain criminal acts of parties, accused, done in pursuance of an apparent criminal purpose in common between them. In order to constitute the offence of abetment by conspiracy there must be a combining together of two or more persons in the conspiracy and an act, or illegal omission must take place in pursuance of that conspicary, and in order to the doing of that thing when parties concert together, and have a common object, the act of one of the parties done in furtherance of the common object and in pursuance of the concerted plan, is the act of the whole. 52 Cri L J 646 : AIR 1951 Raj 89 (91) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

4. "Intentionally aids by act."

●——Ss. 107 and 165-A — Abetment — Forms of — Commission of offence unnecessary — Offence of bribery — Acquittal of accused charged with — Conviction of abettor.

According to S. 107, a person abets the doing of a thing when he instigates any person to do a thing or engages with one or more other person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing or intentionally aids, by any act or illegal omission the doing of that thing. In either of the first two cases it is immaterial for the conviction of the abettor whether the person instigated commits the offence or not or the persons conspiring together actually carry out the objects of the conspiracy.

In the case of abetment by aid a person can be said to abet by aiding only when by the commission of an act he intends to facilitate the commission of the offence and does not facilitate the commission thereof. Therefore, where a person is charged with abetment by aid of an offence under S. 161 and the person charged with the offence is acquitted on the ground that he had not committed the offence no question of intentionally aiding by any act or omission of the commission of that offence arises. Therefore whether the acquittal is right or wrong the conviction of the abettor also cannot be allowed to stand in the circumstances : 1953 S C J 532 : AIR 1953 S C 364, Distinguished. Faguna Kanta Nath v. State of Assam. 1959 Cri L J 917; 1961 Mad W N 188 : 1959 Mad L J (Cri) 365 : 1959 S C J 643 : 1959 All Cr R 261 : 1959 Pat L R (SC) 60 : 1959 All W R (HC) 310 : 61 Punj L R 655 : (1959) 2 M L J (SC) 18 : (1959) 2 Andh W R (SC) 18 : (1959) Supp 2 S C R 1 : AIR 1959 SC 673 (675, 676) (Prs 5, 6).

——Ss. 107, 116 and 108—Presence of accused either with Bhala or spear on the scene of occurrence of marpit and their participation in the marpit proved — Even if they have not actually applied their weapons, they are vicariously responsible for the injuries caused to the complainant party. See Penal Code (1860), S. 116. 1965 (1) Cri L J 267: AIR 1965 All 120.

——S. 107—Applicability — Statement made in Court by accused that he assisted murderers under compulsion—Offence—Held that the accused was not guilty of abetment. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 342. 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

——S. 107—Person joining another in commission of crime.

If a person joins another in the commission of a crime by which he is to benefit and which it would not be possible to commit but for his aid, he is guilty of the commission of the crime. AIR 1950 All 639 (643) (Pt F) (Prs 28, 38).

——S. 107—Abetment — Proof.

A woman was found guilty under S. 5 (a) of the Assam Opium Prohibition Act for illegal possession of opium recovered from her person and her husband was found guilty of abetment. All that was found against him was that he was the husband of the woman and was with her when the opium was recovered from her person. Held that it would not be correct to infer from the fact of relationship that there was instigation or conspiracy between the two or there was an intentional aid by any act or omission on the part of the husband and so there was no case of abetment. AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 3305.

——S. 107—Intentional aid — Mere presence at commission of crime — Sufficiency.

Mere presence at the commission of a crime even with the awareness that a crime was being committed is not in itself an intentional aid. 60 Bom L R 428 : I L R (1958) Bom 700; 1960 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1960 Bom 393 (394) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Ss. 107 and 494—Merely allowing one's premises to be used for the purpose of the marriage does not prove abetment of bigamous marriage. I L R 6 Bom 128, Foll. 60 Bom L R 428 : ILR (1958) Bom 700 : 1960 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1960 Bom 393 (395) (Pt D) (Pr 13).

——Ss. 107, Explanation 2 and 494 — Holding of 'Antarpat' by accused — Offence.

Where the 'antarpat' was held by the accused and it was done with the full knowledge that the marriage was void marriage, the act of the accused falls within the purview of Explanation 2 to S. 107 even though the act of holding the 'antarpat' was done prior to the performance of the marriage as the Explanation 2 to S. 107 states that an act of abetment may take place prior to the commission of the offence. In order that Explanation 2 to S. 107 may apply, it is necessary to determine whether an aid was given and whether with that aid the act or the offence was committed. 60 Bom L R 428 : ILR (1958) Bom 700 : 1960 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1960 Bom 393 (395) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

——S. 107 — Abetment — What is — Cheating by cheque — Offence complete on handing over of cheque — Subsequent endorsement on cheque not abetment.

An abetment is an instigation to a person to act in a certain way or aid some other in doing of an act, which is an offence. It is a preparatory act and connotes active complicity on the part of the abettor at a point of time prior to the actual commission of the offence.

The act of cheating by issuing a cheque knowingly to a person impersonating the person whom it ought to have been given is complete when the cheque is handed over to the alleged person. A subsequent act of mere endorsement on that cheque does not and cannot amount to an abetment without any proof of conspiracy between the person issuing the cheque and the endorser. 1956 M B L R (Cri) 444.

——Ss. 107, 109, Illustration (a) and 161 — Person giving bribe to a public servant — If accomplice — Evidence if requires corroboration.

Section 107, Penal Code, says that a person who intentionally aids the doing of a thing is an abettor. Illustration (a) to S. 109 shows that a person who has offered a bribe to a public servant which that public servant has accepted is an abettor in respect of the offence under S. 161. It has been accepted by all the Courts that the voluntary giver of a bribe to gain some advantage is an abettor and hence an accomplice. But an intentional act which is otherwise an offence ceases to be such under S. 94, Penal Code, only if it is done under compulsion or threats of such a nature which at the time of the commission causes reasonable apprehension of death. Compulsion or threat under other circumstances does not operate to absolve an offence.

Evidence Act, S. 114, Illustration (b) shows that a Court may presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars and S. 133 shows that an accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person and a conviction based on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice is not illegal. It follows that while normally it would be unfare to act on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice whether in a particular case it is to be accepte1 without corroboration or not would depend on a comprehensive consideration of the accomplice's evidence. The rule requiring corroboration is a rule of practice and prudence and has come to be treated as almost a rule of law.

As regards the nature of corroboration that is required a review of the case-law on the question leads to the following conclusion. The giver of the bribe is in law an abettor of the offence and therefore an accomplice irrespective of whether the giving was voluntary or in response to a demand accompanied by threat or fear. But in the latter case, i e., of bribe-giving under threats whether the evidence of accomplice is safe to be acted upon depends on circumstances. In the first place one must be satisfied that the story of threats is itself reliable and not the outcome of a conspiracy to involve a strict officer in trouble or is motivated by some other personal malice. If on being so satisfied the Court considers the sole testimony of accomplice is safe to be acted upon a conviction can be based thereon. In such a case even if corroboration is considered desirable, a less strict standard of corroborative evidence may be accepted, as for instance reliable evidence, of previous statements and the like. (Case-law discussed.) I L R (1952) Cut 109 : 1952 Cri L J 1533 : A I R 1952 Orissa 289 (298) (Pt E) (Pr 32) (DB).

——Ss. 107, 116, 161—Abetment—Sentence.

If an offer of bribe is made on the invitation of a public servant such offer would still be 'intentional aid' which is one of the ingredients of abetment under S. 107. Though the actual amount of bribe is first mentioned by the public servant, a Sub-Inspector, that cannot in any way exonerate the other party from having first suggested monetary consideration for the Sub-Inspector dropping the case against a third person. His conduct in bringing the money and giving it to the Sub-Inspector would amount to 'intentional aid' and would, as such, constitute abetment. There seems to be no justification for treating the abettor leniently, especially when the abettor is not a simple-minded villager but a Marwari merchant of Cuttack town who wanted to take advantage of his previous acquaintance with the Sub-Inspector. For such an offender a sentence of fine is merely a flea-bite and a substantive sentence of imprisonment alone would serve as a real deterrent. AIR 1933 All 513 Rel. on. 17 Cut L T 160 : 1952 Cri L J 941 : AIR 1952 Orissa 180 (181) (Prs 4 to 6) (DB).

——Ss. 107, 114, 338 and 279—Principal offender or abettor—Driver of lorry carrying passengers allowing minor to drive lorry with full knowledge that minor did not know driving — Rash and negligent driving by minor resulting in grievous hurt — Driver sitting by the side of minor — Driver is liable as principal offender under S. 114 as he was the person who was driving through the hand and instrumentality of minor. See Penal Code (1860), S. 114. 52 Cri L J 930 : AIR 1951 Punj 418 (DB).

——Ss. 107, 302—Abetment of murder—Two accused catching deceased—Third giving fatal blow—Former not guilty of abetment of murder. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 5754 (DB).

——Ss. 107, Expln. 2, 114—Applicability — A facilitating stabbing by B by holding victim's hands — A aids commission of offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 114. 1955 Cri L J 1535 : A I R 1955 Trav-Co 266 (DB).

——S. 107, Explanation 2 — Accused A holding deceased within his grip — Accused B coming with open penknife and dealing fatal blow to deceased—Accused A not making statement that he did not notice accused B approaching deceased with open penknife and aiming blow at him — Accused A held guilty.

Where after accused A had held the deceased within his grip, accused B came towards the deceased with an open pen-knife and gave him a fatal blow and accused A did not state that he did not notice accused B's approach or the latter aiming the blow at the deceased:

Held, that no doubt the prosecution had to establish the positive fact of the complicity of accused A but it need not necessarily be by direct testimony. It could also be by circumstantial evidence. In evaluating such evidence the silence of accused A on the matter was a relevant factor to be taken into account. His act or conduct in keeping the deceased within his grip while the stab was dealt by accused B was irreconcilable with any other hypothesis than that of his guilt. 1949 Ker L T 66 : 51 Cri L J 988 : 1949 Trav-Co L R 74 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 41 (45) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 107—Presence at place of occurrence when amounts to abetment stated.

Mere presence cannot be taken as amounting to abetment unless it be the person whose presence is considered to aid the commission of the offence is a person in authority. 51 Cri L J 648 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 9 (10) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

5. Illegal omission.

——S. 107—Scope.

The relations between the deceased and his wife were not happy and the wife had an illegal connection with the accused. Although the wife knew that the accused was waiting for an opportunity to ambush and murder her husband, she told him that her husband intended to go to a particular Sadhu on a particular day.

Held, that in the circumstances the conduct of the wife in not warning her husband though certainly open to censure did not amount to abetment of murder committed by the accused. 1955 Cri L J 679 : AIR 1955 Him Pra 15 (19) (Pt D) (Pr 25).

——Ss. 107, 109, 409 and 406 — Abetment of misappropriation — When it is found that accused had collected amounts to knowledge of P and same had not been checked by P with reference to receipts and relative registers which P was bound to do under duties of his service, inference is irresistible that P omitted to do so to aid misappropriation committed by accused. Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 —Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. 1966 Mad L W (Cri) 217 : 1964 Mad W N 356.

——S. 107—Mere omission, does not amount to abetment — Servant put in charge of writing accounts — Non-making of accounts, is not abetment. See Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act (1946), S. 8. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 5970 (DB).

SECTION 108

——Ss. 108, 116, 107 — Presence of accused either with Bhala or spear on the scene of occurrence of marpit and their participation in the marpit proved— Even if they have not actually applied their weapons, they are vicariously responsible for the injuries caused to the complainant party. See Penal Code (1860), S. 116. 1965 (1) Cri L J 267 : AIR 1965 All 120.

——S. 108 — License in Form B under U. P. Foodgrains Order issued to firm—Non-compliance with conditions of licence—Liability of servants—It cannot be said that every servant of the firm which holds a licence in Form B is required to comply with the conditions of the licence held by the firm. Therefore where the master who according to the conditions of the licence issued to him is liable to maintain accounts in a certain form has failed to comply with those conditions, his employees or servants cannot be held guilty for abetment of the offence or for the substantive offence. AIR 1955 N UC (All) 3521 (DB).

——S. 108 — Principal not chargeable—Abettor can be proceeded against.

In law the fact that the principal cannot be brought to trial does not prevent a charge of abetment against the abettor. (1952) 22 Com Cas 175 : 56 Cal W N 594 : 1952 Cri L J 1480 : I L R (1954) 1 Cal 403 : AIR 1952 Cal 759 (760) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

——S. 108, Expln. 3—Scope.

According to Expln. 3 of S. 108 it is necessary that the person abetted should have committed the offence and been punished. 1956 Cr L J 229 : Madh B L R 1955 Cr 500: AIR 1956 Madh B 65 (66) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——S. 108—Wilful misrepresentation of a fact would amount to abetment of an act. See Penal Code (1860), S. 107. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 246.

——S. 108. Explns. (2) and (4) — Abetment of abetment is offence, though the second abetment is ineffective—Accused approaching doctor for poison for murdering mistress — Doctor refusing—Accused is guilty of offence under S. 302 read with S. 116, Penal Code. (1950) 2 Mad L J 201 : 63 Mad L W 835 : 1950 Mad W N 723 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 247 : I L R (1951) Mad 626 : AIR 1950 Mad 827 (830) (Pr 16).

——S. 108, Explanations 4 and 165-A—Abetment of offence under S. 165-A.

In view of Explanation 4 to S. 108 there can be abetment of the offence punishable under S. 165-A. 56 Punj L R 298 : 1954 Cr L J 1503 : AIR 1954 Punj 228 (230) (Pt A) (Prs 17, 18).

SECTION 109

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 109.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. Sections 109 and 114.
3. Sections 109 and 120B.
4. Evidence
5. Illustrative cases.
6. Offences under special or local law.
7. Charge and conviction.

1. Scope and applicability.

——Ss. 109, 94—Necessity, how far excuse for criminal act—Persons in order to avoid molestation giving bribe to public servant are guilty under S. 109 — They cannot take plea of duress. See Penal Code (1860), S. 94. 1950 Nag L J 435 : I L R (1950) Nag 229 : 51 Cri L J 285 : AIR 1950 Nag 1.

——S. 109, Illus. (a) — Persons paying illegal gratification to public servant on demand can be convicted under S. 109.

Persons paying illegal gratification to a public servant are guilty under S. 109, of committing an offence of abetment of offence of taking bribe by public servant, even if the gratification is given upon a demand by such public servant: A I R 1933 All 513, Rel. on; Observations in "Law of Crimes" by Ratanlal, 17th Edn. on p. 385, Disapproved. 1950 Nag L J 435 : I L R (1950) Nag 229 : 51 Cri L J 235: AIR 1950 Nag 1 (5) (Pt C) (Prs 23, 24).

——S. 109 — Applicability—Condition—Accused not participating in actual commission of crime but only in primary stages — Can be convicted under S. 109 but not under S. 34, See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1961 (2) Cr L J 266 (Pat).

——Ss. 109, 120-A and 120-B—Applicability—Nature of offence.

——Section 120-B applies where any other crime has not been actually committed. Where the matter has gone beyond the stage of mere conspiracy and offences are alleged to have been actually committed in pursuance thereof, Sections 120-A and 120-B are wholly irrelevant. Conspiracy is one form of abetment and where an offence is alleged to have been committed by more than two persons, such of them as actually took part in the commission should be charged with the substantive offence, while those who are alleged to have abetted it by conspiracy should be charged with the offence of abetment under S. 109, Indian Penal Code. AIR 1938 Mad 130, Rel. on., AIR 1938 Sind 108 and AIR 1936 Mad 317, Disting. 1956 Raj L W 234 : 1957 Cr L J 234 (235) (Pr 8) (Raj).

——Ss. 109, 146, 147 — Abetment of offence of rioting.

Considering the definition in S. 109, I. P. Code strictly, the instigation must have reference to the thing that was done and not to the thing that was likely to have been done by the person who is instigated. It is only if this condition is fulfilled that a person can be guilty of abetment by instigation.

Where the common object of an assembly was to march in a Jatha or procession from the office of a Union from the vicinity of which the procession started, and proceed without stopping up to a certain place, breaking the conditions imposed upon the residents of the locality in the proclamation promulgated by the District Magistrate, and the accused was found to have instigated the members of that assembly to use force or violence for over-coming any resistance offered by the Army or by the Police with the object of making them break up and desist from taking the procession, the offence committed by the accused is abetment by instigation of rioting.

If there is no evidence to support a finding that the throwing of stones at the members of the Police party at the point at which the unlawful assembly launched a joint attack upon the Police was specifically instigated by the accused, he cannot be held liable for abetment of all the acts of violence or of the individual acts of violence done by the unlawful assembly 1952 Ker L T 737 : 1953 Cri U J 1273 : ILR 1952 Trav-Co 547 : AIR 1953 Trav Co 251 (252) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 109, Explanation—Instigation—What is.

A person is said to instigate another to an act when he actively suggests or stimulates him to the act by any means or language direct or indirect whether it takes the form of express solicitation or of hints, insinuation or encouragement. It is not necessary that express and direct words should be used to indicate what exactly should be done by the persons to whom directions are given, AIR 1923 Bom 44 Rel. on. 1952 Ker L T 737 : 1953 Cri L J 1273 : I L R (1952) Trav-Co 547 : A I R 1953 Trav Co 251 (252) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

2. Sections 109 and 114.

——Ss. 109 and 114 — Applicability and relative scope and distinction—Principles and test.

Section 114 of the Indian Penal Code is only brought into operation when circumstances amounting to abetment of a particular crime have first been proved, and then the presence of the accused at the commission of that crime is proved in addition. The real test to see whether or not the section is applicable lies in its words; 'who if absent would be liable to be punished as an abettor.' Abetment, to come under this section, must be one which is minor to the commission of the offence and complete by itself and not an abetment which is done immediately before or at the time of the commission of the offence, for, in the latter case, the abettor would not have committed the abetment if he had not been present and would not, therefore, have been liable to punishment as an abettor. When a person is present and abets another to commit an offence then S. 114 of the Indian Penal Code will not be applicable to the case. Active abetment at the time of the committing of the offence is covered by S. 109 of the Indian Penal Code and S. 114 of the Indian Penal Code is clearly intended for an abetment previous to the actual commission of the crime; any time, that is before the first steps have been taken to commit it. 1958 All W R (H C) 159 : 1958 All Cr R 153 : 1958 All L J 82.

3. Sections 109 and 120B.

——Ss. 109, 120-B and 121—Expression 'moral delinquency'—Scope of—Conviction under S. 120-B read with S. 109 or S. 121, Penal Code—Offences held involved — 'Moral delinquency' — See Panchayats—Madras Village Panchayats Act (10 of 1950), S. 16 (1). (1964) 2 Mad L J 426.

4. Evidence.

——S. 109—Evidence of abetment — Corroboration held not sufficient — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 133)—(Ajmer Land and Revenue Regulation (II of 1877), S. 3). AIR 1955 N U C (Ajmer) 324.

——Ss. 109 and 366-A—Corroboration to the version of prosecutrix is a rule of caution and not rule of law—Corroboration might be even by circumstantial evidence.

Held, that a girl who was victim of an outrageous act could not generally speaking be considered to be an accomplice though the rule of prudence might require that the evidence of a prosecutrix should be corroborated before a conviction could be based upon it. The corroboration need not be by direct evidence. It could as well be by circumstantial evidence. The rule of corroboration was really a rule of caution and not a rule of law, Corroboration in the case was to be found by the fact of seizure of a shwal belonging to the appellant from the possession of the prosecutrix after she reached Satna where her cousin rescued her. The other factors in support of her version were that she had entrusted some ornaments to the appellant, she was on visiting terms with the appellant and the other accused was introduced to her by the appellant. AIR 1952 S C 54 and AIR 1958 S C 143, Rel. on. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 230.

——S. 109—Accused forging thumb impression of payee on money order—Money not received by payee—Burden of proof.

It is for the accused to prove that he did pay the amount covered by the money order to the payee and that the impression on that voucher is that of the payee. If he fails to do that he will be liable under S. 467 read with S. 109 Indian Penal Code. 1957 Cri L J 73 (2): AIR 1957 Mad 47.

——S. 109 — Identification of accused by voice—Accused close relation of identifier— Identification can be relied on—See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. (1961) 3 Orissa J D 110.

——S. 109—Evidence Act (1872), S. 133 — Agent for prosecution — Evidence of —Value of— Necessity of corroboration—See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. AIR 1952 Orissa 267 (DB).

5. Illustrative cases.

——S. 109—Abetting offence under S. 436—Person charged of committing offence acquitted—Conviction of accused charged of abetting the offence—Legality —Evidence of witnesses in one respect not believed—Evidence in other respects believed — Propriety—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 5)—Credibility of witness —(Falsus in uno falsus in omnibus).

The accused was a member of an unlawful assembly, the common object of which was to attack a certain hut and commit assault on remonstrance. The accused was found to have given orders to one B, a member of the unlawful assembly to set fire to the hut. The hut was set fire to and burnt. Accused was charged among other counts under S. 436 read with S. 109 of the Penal Code. B was charged under S. 436. B was acquitted of this charge because the evidence of the witnesses. that B had set fire to the hut was not believed. But their evidence that the accused had ordered to set fire to the hut and the hut was actually burnt by one of the members of the unlawful assembly was believed and on it the accused was convicted under S. 436 read with S. 109.

Held that there was no violation of any rule of law in not accepting the evidence of the witnesses in so far as they said that B set fire to the hut and accepting it in so far as they said that it was the accused who ordered to set fire to the hut; Held, further, that the hut was set on fire by one of the members of the unlawful assembly and it was in consequence of the orders given by the accused and therefore the conviction of the accused under S. 436 read with S. 109 was not illegal. Gullu Sah v. State of Bihar. 1958 All L J 716 : 1958 All W R (H C) 766 : 1958 M L J (Cr) 970 : 1958 All Cr R 523 : 1958 M P C 670 : 1958 B L J R 762 : 1958 S C J 1257 : 36 Mys L J 728 : 1958 Mad W N (S C) 129 : I L R 37 Pat 1122 : 1958 Cri L J 1352 : AIR 1958 S C 813, (815, 816) (Prs 5, 9).

——Ss. 109, 420 and 109—A falsely representing himself to be a big sugar merchant entering into bogus transaction with B and extracting money from him — C, a close acquaintance of A, accompanying him (A) to settle the transaction and allowing himself to pass as munim of A – C held was guilty of abetment of offence of cheating — See Penal Code (1860), S. 420. AIR 1952 Ajmer 60.

——Ss. 109, 147, 299, 300, 302, 304 and 34—Four accused armed with lathis and one with spear—Common object of beating deceased—One member, being struck by deceased, becoming incapable of taking further part—Rest beating deceased causing several injuries resulting in death—Offences committed by accused stated.

Held that the member who was struck by deceased was guilty of the offence under S. 304, Part II read with S. 109 – See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 51 Cri L J 1133 . AIR 1950 All 418 (DB).

——S. 109—Distribute — Meaning of—Sale of drugs by manufacturer at Calcutta intended for transportation to Nasik — Drugs found not according to standard specified in Act—Manufacturers at Calcutta held distributed drugs at Nasik and further abetted offence committed by dealer at Nasik — Ss. 179 and 180, Criminal P. C. held were applicable — Manufacturers held could be tried at Nasik. See Drugs Act (1940), S. 18 (a). 1962 (1) Cri L J 16 : A I R 1962 Bom 21.

——S. 109—Rescuing requires overt act—Mere instigation to escape would make it only an abetment of offence of escape. See Penal Code (1860), S. 225. 1961 (2) Cri L J 774 : AIR 1961 Ker 331 (DB).

——S. 109 — Abettor — Accomplice—Person paying bribe under compulsion and with a view to assist detection of crime — Not an abettor. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1957 Cri L J 1127 : AIR 1957 Ker 134 (DB).

——S. 109 — Accused holding deceased permitting principal offender to stab victim—Accused are guilty of abetment of culpable homicide. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304. 51 Cri L J 392 : AIR 1950 Kutch 5.

——S. 109—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 198, 4 (1) (b) — Abetment of offence under S. 494, I. P. C. — S. 198 applies—Deposition is not a complaint—AIR 1916 All 307 and 20 Cal 483, Dissented from. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 198. 1955 Cri L J 1359 : A I R 1955 Madh Bha 176.

——Ss. 109, 165-A, 193, 214 — Criminal Procedure Code, S. 195-B — Municipal employees attesting Panchanama of seizure of 'Ganja'—Attesting is not as municipal employees but as witnesses — Defence trying to win over attesting witnesses and constable who seized 'ganja'—Offence punishable under Ss. 109 and 193, Indian Penal Code—S. 214, Indian Penal Code is inapplicable — Prosecution can be on complaint by Court where case pending — Trial is vitiated. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 11.

——Ss. 109, 406 — Main offence not established — Effect on abettor.

Where A is charged with an offence under S. 406 and B with an offence under S. 406 read with S. 109, I. P. C. and if the accused A is not found guilty of the offence under S. 406, B cannot be held to be guilty of having abetted the same. 1957 M P C 334 : 1957 Jab L J 706.

——S. 109 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), Ss. 5 (1) (c) and 5 (2) —Payment of Money order by village postmaster to wrong person — Acknowledgment purporting to be of addressee obtained and attested by witness — Addressee, the Postmaster and attesting witnesses each beloging to different villages —Post office situated in another village — Absence of evidence that addressee often came to Post Office—Plea of mistaken identity by Postmaster — Incriminating statements in departmental enquiry not sufficient to prove charge — Postmaster not guilty under S 471, I. P. Code or under S. 5 (1) (c) read with S. 5 (2) of Prevention of Corruption Act — Attestation of acknowledgment stated to be on representation of Postmaster — Attesting witness not guilty of charge under Ss. 467/109, I. P. Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 471. (1962) 4 O J D 4.

——S. 109—Scope—Application praying for lodging of complaint under S. 209 or 193, I. P. C. or both read with S 109 — Lodging of a complaint under S. 209, I. P. C. read with S 109, I. P. C not prohibited. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. ILR (1962) 2 Punj 504.

——S. 109 — Abettor of offence under S. 388, Penal Code, can be tried with principal offender at place where principal offence was committed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239 (b). (1962) 64 Punj L R 193.

——S. 109 — A, along with others charged of rape under S. 376, Penal Code — Offence of rape established against other accused but not against A — A can be convicted under S. 109, when charge under substantive offence gave full notice to A of circumstances alleged against him, though abetment is not a minor offence — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 236, 237).

Where the case is covered by Ss. 236 and 237 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the accused has notice of all the facts which go to make up the charge of abetment, he can be convicted of the charge of abetment, even though the charge framed against him was only of substantive offence. Where the evidence as to the charge of abetment of the offence of rape was all before the Court in the statement of the girl, on which evidence the accused could have been charged of an offence under S. 376 read with S. 109 for abetting the offence of rape by other accused, the accused can be convicted under S. 376 read with S 109. Case law reviewed. 1952 Raj L W 95 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 871 : 1952 Cri L J 1136 : AIR 1952 Raj 123 (128) (Pt E) (Prs 31, 32) (DB).

——S. 109 — Mewar Hoarding and Profiteering Prevention Act (1 of 1944), Ss. 4, 2 and 6—Employee in a shop is not 'dealer' within meaning of term in S. 4 and as defined in S. 2 but he can be guilty of abetment of offence under S. 6 by virtue of S. 109, Penal Code. 1951 Raj L W 403 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 546 (DB).

——Ss. 109, 441, 447, 425 & 426—Criminal trespass and mischief—Intention—Abetment.

The complainant and the accused owned adjoining houses. The complainant's roof was higher than the accused and projected its eaves over it. The accused raised her roof and she employed workmen to do the job under the supervision of her maternal Uncle. In the process of raising the roof the complainant's eaves were cut. The rain water from the complainant's roof could no longer be discharged because the accused had raised the height of her roof and therefore she got her workmen to construct a drain on the complainant's wall by plastering mobhias (broad Indian tiles) on the complainant's wall to carry away rain water.

Held that on instructing her maternal uncle to raise the roof which necessitated the cutting of the complainant's eaves and entering upon his property the accused must be deemed to have intended to cause annoyance and wrong loss to the complainant and therefore to have abetted the offences of criminal trespass and mischief. The accused could not be convicted as the principal offender but as an abettor only under Ss. 447 and 426 read with S. 109, I. P. C. 5 Sau L R 82 : 1953 Cri L J 881 : A I R 1953 Sau 81 (81) (Pt C) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

6. Offences under special or local law.

——S. 109—Offence of transfer of high denomination Government currency notes—Abetment of—Whether punishable.

The abetment of an infraction of any provision of any special law would also amount to an offence as defined in S. 40, Penal Code and be punishable. See High Denomination Bank Notes (Denomination) Ordinance (1946), S. 7. AIR 1955 N U C (Bom) 4493 (DB).

——S. 109 — Opium Act (1898), S. 9 — Abetment of offence under S. 9 is offence under S. 109, Penal Code—See Opium Act (1898), S 9. A I R 1952 Madh Bha 17.

7. Charge and conviction.

● ——S. 109—Charges for two distinct offences based on same evidence—Acquittal of one of the offences—Conviction in respect of other offence on same evidence—Validity.

An item of evidence may corroborate charges for more offences than one but acquittal of the accused for one of such offences will not render that item of evidence inadmissible in assessing the criminality of the accused for another offence corroborated thereby. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 403. (1964) 1 S C J 7: 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 1 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 733 (SC).

● ——S. 109—Accused acting under common intention and common conspiracy — Conviction and sentence—Concurrent finding—Effect.

The concurrent finding that a particular accused is guilty of criminal conspiracy along with the other for the commission of the offences is not open to challenge in the appeal before the Supreme Court under Art. 136. See Penal Code (1860), S. 364. 1957 Cri L J 559 : AIR 1957 S C 381.

■ ——S. 109 — Applicability — Conviction under S. 165 for offence committed in 1948—Conviction not valid — Appellate Court can alter finding—Accused may be convicted under S. 161 read with S. 109, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423 (1) (b). 1957 Cri L J 695 : A I R 1957 All 388.

[Reversed on another point in A I R 1960 S C 409.]

——S. 109—Charge—Alteration of—Accused charged with S. 165-A, Penal Code—Necessary facts mentioned in charge — Charge could be changed into, under S. 161 read with S. 109, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1957 Cri L J 695 : AIR 1957 All 388.

[Reversed on another point in A I R 1960 S C 409.]

——S. 109'— Charge for abetment — Conviction for principal offence—Legality—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236.

Under the direction of a person who was also present at the spot several others forcibly removed a lady from a lorry and carried her away. The person who directed the abduction, was charged under S. 366 read with S. 109, Penal Code while the others were charged for the principal offence. The jury found all of them guilty for the minor offence of wrongful restraint under S. 341 for which they were convicted. Upon the accused charged with abetment alone, objecting to the conviction on the ground that he ought to have been convicted under S. 341 read with S. 109, Penal Code.

Held, that the objection was only technical and that the jury were not wrong in having taken the view that he also was a participator in the offence of wrongful restraint in view of the fact of his presence at the spot directing the forcible removal of the lady. 52 Cri L J 189 : A I R 1951 All 504 (507) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

——S. 109—Offence of abetment not alleged in complaint — Still Court can frame charge at later stage if offence is disclosed—No prejudice is caused to accused. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221. 1962 (1) Cri L J 16 : A I R 1962 Bom 21.

● ——S. 109 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-A — Offence of abetment of forgery by conspiracy—Sanction under S. 196-A not required — Forgery committed — Charge of abetment of forgery is legal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-A. 1961 (1) Cri L J 204 : A I R 1961 Cal 461 (FB).

——S. 109 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236 — Charge for substantive offences—Conviction for abetment — Hyderabad Penal Code, Ss. 66, 71, 330, 380.

Where the accused was charged with substantive offences of dacoity and house breaking under Ss. 395 and 445 read with S. 114 but the challan did not mention the nature of help given by the accused to the others or the part he himself played, no charge of abetment can be brought against him and so merely on account of his presence on the scene of occurence, he cannot be held guilty either of the abetment or of the commitment itself of any of the crimes. Even if it were proved that he abetted the commission of these offences, he cannot be convicted of abetment in the alternative as he was not charged as an abettor but substantially as the principal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236. A I R 1952 Hyd 25 (DB).

——Ss. 109 and 302 — Death penalty imposed on principal offender — Sentence to be passed against abettor — Powers of appellate Court — (Constitution of India, Art. 134 (1) (a)).

Where the death penalty has been imposed on the principal offender and there is no ground to show any differentiation between him and the accused who abetted the murder, the normal sentence for a conviction for murder has to be passed against the latter. Even if his acquittal by the trial Court and the difference of opinion as to his guilt between the Judges of the Division Bench might weigh the Executive Government to commute the death sentence, if passed, that cannot influence the Court to pass the lesser sentence prescribed by law. Besides, to impose the lesser penalty would be to deprive the accused of the benefit of an appeal which he would of right get under Art. 134 (1) (a) of the Constitution in case he is condemned to death. 1959 Ker L T 167 : 1959 Ker L J 221 : ILR (1959) Ker 319.

——Ss. 109, 111, 114, 304, Part II and 323 — Applicability — Sudden quarrel — Abettor present on spot instigating another co-accused to beat deceased — Latter giving heavy blow on head of deceased with log of wood lying nearby resulting in his death — Injury sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Abettor held guilty under S. 323/109, Penal Code and not under S. 304, Part II/114, Penal Code—Principal accused held guilty under S. 304, Part II. 1962 Jab L J 427 : 1961 M P L J (Notes) 205 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 435 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 91 (92) (Prs 5, 6).

——S. 109—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 198—Abetment of offence under S. 494, Penal Code—Section applies.

No express provision having been made by the Penal Code for the punishment of the abetment of an offence punishable under S 494, such abetment is punishable with punishment provided for the offence falling under S. 494 by reason of Ss. 109 and 114. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 198. AIR 1952 Mad 193 (DB).

——S. 109 — Abetment — The date of the abetment was stated in the charge to be that of offence or about that time while evidence was let into make out that the investigation was 10 days before; Held, that there would be no room for the objection that divergence concerning the time is a vital defect sufficient to entitle the accused to an acquittal irrespective of the evidence if it was stated in the charge that the accused abetted the commission of the offence between any two dates within which the one referred to by witness falls. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 222. 1954 Cri L J 905 : A I R 1954 Mys 81 (DB).

——S. 109 — Accused charged with main offence only — Conviction for abetment — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237).

It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule that a conviction for abetment cannot be made in a case where the accused is charged with the main offence only, and no separate charge has been framed under S. 109. If the accused had notice of the facts, which constituted abetment, although the charge was one for the main offence and if there has been no prejudice to the accused by the omission to frame a separate charge for abetment he can be convicted for abetment even though the charge for the main offence fails. 21 Cut L T 296 : 1955 Cri L J 1373 : A I R 1955 Orissa 156 (158) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 109 — Offence of abetment is not confined to offences under Code. 1951 Raj L W 403 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 546 (DB).

——Ss. 109, 34, 149 and 302 — Section 109 if can be invoked when accused are charged under S. 149 and S. 302/34.

Where the acts of abetment alleged against accused 2 to 6 were that they prevented the deceased from escaping from the scene of occurrence while accused, was inflicting fatal injuries it is not necessary to call in aid S. 109 where the accused 2 to 6 are actually charged under S. 149 and S. 302 read with S. 34. The act of abetment that falls under S. 34 is committed at the time the offence itself is committed and in the case of a riot there is no need to base a conviction on the ground of abetment. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav Co 230 (DB).

——Ss. 109, 34 and 149 — Charge and conviction — Duty of Court—(Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss 221, and 367).

A mere mention of the relevant sections in the charges to which accused persons are called upon to plead or when entering convictions against them will not satisfy the conscience of an appellate Court that the lower Court has applied its mind to the question whether the elements attracting the application of the rules relating to constructive liability for crimes are present in the case nor would such mere mention of the sections clothe accused persons with proper notice of the crimes for which they are sought to be made constructively liable. These remarks apply with equal force to a charge relating to the abetment of the offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : A I R 1956 Trav Co 230 (DB).

——Ss 109, 148, 149, 341 and 302/34 — Charges under — Leaving out S. 149 in relation to charge of murder held was a serious omission as it would keep the door open for guilty man to escape. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : A I R 1956 Trav Co 230 (DB).

SECTION 110

——Ss. 110, 463, 464 — A writing out petition for withdrawal of certain appeal on advice of B who had been employed as tadbirkar to look after the appeal by the appellant — Petition not signed by B but bearing endorsement in his handwriting and signed by him to the effect that he had authority to file this petition and that he was handing it over to the lawyer — Application signed by pleader and filed — B's authority to file petition not proved — Endorsement on petition consistent with B's belief that he had such authority — B held could not be convicted of abetment of forgery. See Penal Code (1860), S. 465. 52 Cri L J 1480 : AIR 1951 Cal 581 (DB).

SECTION 111

——Ss. 111, 112 and 113 — Person abetting another in commission of offence—Principal offender making offence aggravated — Abettor's liability.

Sections 111, 112 and 113 make it abundantly clear that if a person abets another in the commission of an offence and the principal goes further thereafter and does something more which has a different result from that intended by the abettor and makes the offence an aggravated one, the abettor is liable for the consequences of the acts of his principal. 1957 Cri L J 815: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 231 (234) (Pt C) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Ss. 111, 109, 114, 304, Part II and 323 — Applicability — Sudden quarrel — Abettor present on spot instigating another co-accused to beat deceased — Latter giving heavy blow on head of deceased with log of wood lying nearby resulting in his death — Injury sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Abettor held guilty under S. 323/109, Penal Code and not under S. 304, Part II/114, Penal Code—Principal accused held guilty under S. 304, Part II. See Penal Code (1860), S. 109. 1962 (1) Cri L J 435 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 91.

SECTION 112

——Ss. 112, 111 and 113 — Person abetting another in commission of offence — Principal offender going further and making offence aggravated one—Abettor is liable for the consequences of acts of principal offender. See Penal Code (1860), S. 111. 1957 Cri L J 815 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 231 (DB).

SECTION 113

——Ss. 113, 111, 112 — Person abetting another in commission of offence — Principal offender going further and making offence aggravated one—Abettor is liable for the consequences of acts of principal offender See Penal Code (1860), S. 111. 1957 Cri L J 815 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 231 (DB).

SECTION 114

● ——S. 114 — Common intention — Instigation — Presumption under S. 114 — Actual presence plus prior abetment can mean nothing else but participation — That is the irrebuttable presumption raised by S. 114 and brings the case under S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 341 : AIR 1956 S C 177.

● ——S. 114 — Scope — Absence of charge under—Effect.

Per Chandrashekhar Aiyer, Jagannadhadas and Imam JJ.—Sections 34, 114 and 149 provide for criminal liability viewed from different angles as regards actual participants, accessories and men attracted by a common object or common intention and the charge is a rolled up one involving the direct liability and the constructive liability. In such a situation the absence of charge under one or other of the various heads of criminal liability for the offence cannot be said to be fatal by itself. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 291 : AIR 1956 S C 116.

● ——Ss. 114 and 201 — Procedure and Practice.

Section 201 is not restricted to the case of a person who screens the actual offender; it can be applied even to a person guilty of the main offence, though as a matter of practice a Court will not convict a person both of the main offence and under S. 201. Where the border line between abetment of the offence and giving false information to screen the offender is rather thin, it is prudent to err on the safe side, and hold the accused guilty only of an offence under S. 201, Penal Code. The acquittal of the main offence is no legal impediment to the accused's conviction under S. 201 : AIR 1925 P C 130, Ref. Kalawati v. State of H. P., 1953 S C J 144: 1953 Mad W N 219 : 1953 S C R 660 : 1953 Cri L J 668 : 1953 All W R (Sup) 52 : 1953 S C R 546 : AIR 1953 S C 131 (135) (Pt D) (Prs 21, 22).

——Ss. 114, 376 — Abetment of rape.

One of the accused standing with open knife at the time of offence of rape was committed by the other accused — Former held guilty under S. 376/114. 1953 Cri L J 1196 : AIR 1953 Ajmer 12 (14) (Pt C) (Prs 14, 16).

——S. 114 — Applicability and relative scope and distinction — Principles and test stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 109. 1958 All W R (HC) 159 : 1958 All Cr R 153 : 1958 All LJ 82.

——S. 114 — Accused charged with offence under Ss. 302 and 114 — Confession of co-accused stating that accused threw torch light and lifted mosquito net of deceased's bed to enable him to kill deceased— Evidence-apart from statements in confession of co-accused proving acts such as silencing eye witness when informed that deceased was lying on floor and other accused was seen running away — Accused subsequently spreading false story as to cause of deceased's death — Accused, held, was present at the time of commission of crime within intendment of S. 114, Penal Code. AIR 1952 Him Pra 81 (95) (Pt G) (Pr 43).

——S. 114 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236—Charge for substantive offences — Conviction for abetment — Hyderabad Penal Code, Ss. 66, 71, 330, 380.

Where the accused was charged with substantive offences of dacoity and house breaking under Ss. 395 and 445 read with S. 114 but the challan did not mention the nature of help given by the accused to the others or the part he himself played, no charge of abetment can be brought against him and so merely on account of his presence on the scene of occurrence, he cannot be held guilty either of the abetment or of the commitment itself of any of the crimes. Even if it were proved that he abetted the commission of these offences, he cannot be convicted of abetment in the alternative as he was not charged as an abettor but substantially as the principal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236. AIR 1952 Hyd 25 (DB).

——S. 114 — Applicability.

In order to bring a case within S. 114, Penal Code, the abetment must be complete, apart from the presence of the abettor, in other words, the act of abetment must have taken place at a time prior to the actual commission of the offence and it is only when the abettor happens to be present at the time of the commission of the offence itself, that the operation of S. 114 would be attracted. AIR 1915 Cal 545 and AIR 1927 Mad 1115 and AIR 1932 Lah 483 and ILR 27 Cal 566, Rel. on. 1963 Ker L T 222 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 491 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 375 (377) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (Ker).

——S. 114 — Person charged with principal offence read with S. 114, Penal Code — Facts proved disclosing principal offence—Conviction for principal offence not bad even in absence of proof of previous abetment — Imperfection in charge curable under S. 537. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1962 Ker L J 384.

——S. 114 — Misdescription in warrant — Resistance to arrest is not offence — Burden lies on prosecution to establish identity of accused with person described in warrant — Aiding escape from illegal arrest is also not an offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 225-B. 1961 Ker L T 612.

——S. 114—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 198, 4 (1) (h)—Abetment of offence under S. 494, I. P. C. — S. 198 applies — Deposition is not a complaint — AIR 1916 All 307 and 20 Cal 483, Dissented from. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 198. 1955 Cri L J 1359 : AIR 1955 Madh Bha 176.

——S. 114 — Accused charged with abetment — Conviction for principal offence — Accused charged with principal offence—Conviction for abetment.

It is not illegal to convict an accused of the principal offence although he is charged with abetment thereof. Similarly the accused charged with abetment of an offence can be convicted of having committed the principal offence by recourse to S. 34. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3335 (DB).

——Ss. 114, 109, 111, 304, Part II and 323. — Applicability — Sudden quarrel — Abettor present on spot instigating another co-accused to beat deceased — Latter giving heavy blow on head of deceased with log of wood lying nearby resulting in his death — Injury sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Abettor held guilty under S. 323/109, I. P. C. and not under S. 304, Part II/114, I. P. C. — Principal accused held guilty under S. 304, Part II. See Penal Code (1860), S. 109. 1962 (1) Cri L J 435 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 91.

——Ss. 114 and 34 — Scope — Mere presence of a person at the time of commission of offence by confederates — Not sufficient to bring under S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 491.

——S. 114—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 198 - Abetment of offence under S. 494, Penal Code - Section applies. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 198. AIR 1952 Mad 193 (DB).

——Ss. 114, 107, 338 and 279—Principal offender or abettor—Driver of lorry carrying passengers allowing minor to drive lorry with full knowledge that minor did not know driving — Rash and negligent driving by minor resulting in grievous hurt — Driver sitting by the side of minor — Driver is liable as principal offender. AIR 1951 Punj 418 (418, 419) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Ss. 114, 107, Expln. II —Applicability —A facilitating stabbing by B by holding victim's hands — A aids commission of offence.

S. 114 applies to a case where a person abets the commission of an offence, some time before it takes place and happens to be present at the time when the offence is committed. It is not applicable to a case where the abetment is at the time when the offence takes place and the abettor helps in the commission. When a person who abets the commission of an offence is present and helps in the commission of the offence he is guilty of the offence and not merely of abetment except in a few cases like rape or bigamy.

Where A facilitates the stabbing of C by B holding C's hands while B stabbed C, A must be deemed to have aided the commission of the offence within the meaning of Expln. 2 to S. 107, I. P. Code. 1955 Ker L T 417 : ILR (1955) Trav-Co 510 : 1955 Cri L J 1535 : AIR 1955 T-C 266 (267) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

SECTION 116

——S. 116 —Scope —Offence under —S. 165-A — After the Criminal Law Amendment Act inserted S. 165-A into the Code abetment of an offence under S. 161 is no longer an offence under S. 161/116. See Public Safety — West Bengal Criminal Law (Amendment Special Courts) Act (21 of 1949) (as amended by W. B. Act 12 of 1952 and W. B. Act 15 of 1953), S. 4 and Schedule. 1959 Cri L J 98 : A I R 1959 S C 8.

——Ss. 116, 161 — Criminal Procedure Code (1898), Ss. 162, 172 — Prosecution for offence under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code — Prosecution story altogether unnatural and illogical — Copies of statements of witnesses recorded by police during investigation not supplied even though requested by accused—Recovery of currency notes not mentioned in General Diary—Accused given benefit of doubt and acquitted. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 51 Cri L J 1301 : AIR 1950 Ajmer 44.

——Ss. 116, 107 and 108—Presence of accused either with Bhala or spear on the scene of occurrence of marpit and their participation in the marpit proved —Even if they have not actually applied their weapons, they are vicariously responsible for the injuries caused to the complainant party. 1963 All Cr R 370 : 1963 All W R (H C) 639 : 1963 All L J 966 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 267 : AIR 1965 All 120 (121) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

——S. 116 — Offence of offering bribe must be severely punished. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 1954 Cri L J 459 : AIR 1954 All 223.

——Ss. 116 and 161 — Receiving bribe on behalf of public servant — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 238, 237, 423 and 439.

Where a police constable engages with another person that the latter should pay money as a bribe to the Sub-Inspector and that the constable should receive it on behalf of the Sub-Inspector as a reward for the Sub-Inspector's releasing the other person on bail and receives the money for paying it to the Sub-Inspector, the constable is not guilty under S. 161, Penal Code but is guilty under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code. If in such a case the accused is charged and convicted under S. 161 by the trial Court the High Court in revision cannot alter the conviction to one for abetment but must send the case back for re-trial. 51 Cri L J 1073 : 1950 All L J 750 : AIR 1950 All 412 (412, 414) (Prs 4, 10).

——S. 116 — Offer to pay bribe to public servant without actually producing money amounts to offence under S. 165-A — Offer, what amounts to — It would amount to an abetment under S. 116 and would necessarily constitute an offence under S. 165-A. 1955 Cri L J 181 : A I R 1955 Bom 61 (DB).

——Ss. 116, 161 — Bribe offered to public servant — Public servant not in position to do act, or show favour or render service.

If the intention or object with which money is offered to a public servant is to induce him to perform an official act or show favour in the exercise of his official functions or render any service with any public servant, the offence punishable under S. 161 read with S. 116 would be complete and it is immaterial whether the public servant is or is not in a position to do the act or show favour for doing, showing or rendering which the bribe is offered to him. 1952 Cri L J 1572 : AIR 1952 Bom 435 (DB).

——Ss. 116, 161 — "As a motive or reward" — Abetment.

Even though the public servant may not have been in a position to do the official act in question, the accused is guilty of the offence punishable under S. 161, read with S. 116, as soon as he offered gratification to him as a motive or reward for doing it. Case law referred. 1952 Cri L J 107 : AIR 1952 Him Pra 1 (3) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Ss. 116, 161—Bribe giver—Punishment.

As between the taker and the giver of the bribe the latter is by far the worse of the two. And the suppression of the crime is called for with a stronger hand. AIR 1929 Mad 756, Rel. on. 1952 Cri L J 107 : AIR 1952 Him Pra 1 (3) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——S. 116 — Offer of bribe — Offence committed in 1950 — Conviction under S. 165-A, Penal Cade — Legality of — Alteration of conviction to one under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code.

Held, (1) that in view of the provisions of Art. 20 of the Constitution the accused could not be convicted under S. 165-A, I. P. C. which was incorporated in the Penal Code on 28-7-1952 for a bribe said to have been offered on 16-1-1950 (2) that as the accused could not be tried by the Special Judge for an offence under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code, the High Court could not find him guilty of that offence in appeal. The conviction and sentence imposed must be quashed. 1954 Cri L J 872 : AIR 1954 Madh B 83 (84) (Prs 3, 7).

——Ss. 116, 108, Explns. (2) and (4) — Abetment of abetment is offence, though the second abetment is ineffective — Accused approaching doctor for poison for murdering mistress—Doctor refusing—Accused is guilty of offence under S. 302 read with S. 116, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 108. A I R 1950 Mad 827.

——Ss. 116, 165 (A), 161—Person offering bribe can only be prosecuted under S. 165 (A) and not under S. 161 read with S. 116—(Interpretation of Statutes—Repeal of earlier by later). See Penal Code (1860), S. 165 (A). 1956 Cri L J 249 : A I R 1956 Manipur 9.

——Ss. 116, 107, 161—Abetment—Sentence.

If an offer of bribe is made on the invitation of a public servant such offer would be "intentional aid" which is one of the ingredients of abetment under S. 107. There seems to be no justification for treating the abettor leniently especially when that abettor is not a simple minded villager but a Marwari merchant of cuttack who wanted to take advantage of his previous acquaintance with the Sub-Inspector. 1952 Cri L J 941 : A I R 1952 Orissa 180 (DB).

——Ss. 116, 161—Offence under S. 161 — Essentials of.

The fact that the public servant is functus officio when money is offered to him as a bribe would not by itself and as a matter of law be sufficient to negative the offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. A I R 1952 Orissa 73 (DB).

——Ss. 116 and 161—Abetment.

Where a person acted only as a agent of a public servant in accepting a bribe and the amount paid was also meant for the latter and the favour that was to be done to the complainant in lieu of the remuneration was to be done by the public servant himself in the exercise of his official functions:

Held that the person could only be charged for abetment under S. 116 and not under S. 161. ('51) 3 Pepsu L R 652.

——S. 116—Abetment of bribery—Sentence.

Offences of bribery on abetment of bribery rarely come to light and where such an offence is proved beyond all reasonable doubt, the perpetrators thereof must be visited with deterrent punishment. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 1957 Cri L J 96 : A I R 1957 Raj 1.

——Ss. 116, 161 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 4 (1) (f) and Sch. 2 — Under any law for the 'time being in force'—Offence under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code is cognizable by reason of S. 3, Prevention of Corruption Act—(Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 3). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 4 (1) (f). A I R 1955 NUC (Raj) 4672.

——Ss. 116, 161 — Applicability — Person to whom gratification is paid need not be in position of influencing superior authority—Person paying such gratification is guilty under S. 161 read with S. 116. A I R 1955 N U C (Sau) 4690.

SECTION 117

——Ss. 117, 143 and 188 — Applicability.

Where the order promulgated under S. 144, Criminal P. C. did not specifically prohibit the making of speeches but merely prohibited assembly of five or more persons, processions or shouting of slogans in public places.

Held, that the speeches made by the two accused which were merely exhortations that the struggle of satyagraha should be continued and jails should be filled did not constitute an exhortation to defy the order and therefore, did not constitute an offence under S. 188 and much less an offence under S. 117 read with S. 188, Penal Code. But the speech made by the third accused in which he used the words that S. 144, Criminal P. C., which was illegally applied should be violated, constituted an offence under S. 188, Penal Code.

Held further that as the persons assembled were more than five and the instigation was obviously to resist not only the order under S. 144 but to overawe Government or the public servants who were engaged in the task of maintaining law and order all the three accused were guilty of offences under S. 117 read with S. 143, Penal Code. 1957 Nag L J 63.

SECTION 119

——S. 119 — Scope — Charge under S. 409, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 119.

Where the facts constituting an offence under S. 119 were neither stated in the charge-sheet nor was the accused at any time put on notice of the same. Held, that the charge under S. 409 of Penal Code being disproved against him, he could not be taken by surprise for an offence under S. 119 and the conviction without charge was against law. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. (1957) Mad L J (Cri) 509 : (1957) 2 Andh W R 298.

SECTIONS 120-A AND 120-B

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), Ss. 120A and 120B.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. "Criminal conspiracy".
3. Abetment by conspiracy and criminal conspiracy —Distinction.
4. Charge.
5. Proof of conspiracy.
6. Sanction for prosecution.
7. Place of trial.
8. Conviction and sentence.
9. Conviction of single person.

1. Scope and applicability.

●——Ss. 120-A, 120-B — Scope — Accused charged with having conspired to do certain illegal acts— They can be held guilty under S. 120-B even if for individual offences all of them may not be liable.

It is not an ingredient of the offence under S. 120-A that all the parties should agree to do a single illegal act. It may comprise the commission of a number of acts. Where the accused are charged with having conspired to do three categories of illegal acts, the mere fact that all of them could not be convicted separately in respect of each of the offences has no relevancy in considering the question whether the offence of conspiracy has been committed. They can all be held guilty of the offence of conspiracy to do illegal acts, though for individual offences all of them may not be liable. Major E. G. Barsay v. State of Bombay, (1962) 1 S C A 106 : (1962) 1 S C J 231: 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 153 : (1962) 2 S C R 195 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 828 : A I R 1961 S C 1762 (1778) (Pt I) (Pr 31).

●——S. 120-B — Distinction between English and Indian Law —(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423).

The rule of English law as to the acquittal of an alleged conspirator following from the acquittal of the other when the conspiracy was said to be only between the two and in a joint trial of both is based upon a rule of practice and procedure, namely, that repugnancy or contradiction on the face of the record is a ground for annulling a conviction. But such a repugnancy is not by itself a sufficient ground for quashing a conviction in India where the matter is governed by statutory law both as to the offence and the procedure for bringing the offender to justice. In India there is no provision in the statutory law justifying an interference with a conviction on the ground of repugnancy in the record. That is not to say that the Court is to shut its eyes to the inconsistency in convicting one person of the offence of conspiracy on the same evidence on which the other alleged conspirator had been acquitted. Bimbadhar v. State of Orissa, 1956 Cri L J 831 : 1956 Mad W N 473 : 1956 S C J 441 : 1956 Pat L R (SC) 178 : 1956 S C R 206 : 1956 S C A 857 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 89 : 22 Cut L T 276 : ILR (1956) Cut 409 : (1956) 2 Mad L J (SC) 13 : A I R 1956 S C 469 (474) (Pt E) (Pr 11).

——S. 120-A — Scope:— Gift of offence consists in agreement between parties —Proof of conspiracy.

A conspiracy consists not merely in the intention of two or more, but in the agreement of two or more to do an unlawful act, or to do a lawful act by unlawful means. So long as a design rests in intention only, it is not indictable. When two agree to carry it into effect the very plot is an act in itself and the act of each of the parties, promise against promise, actus contra actum capable of being enforced, if lawful, is punishable if for a criminal object or for the use of criminal means.

The gist of the offence of conspiracy lies not in doing the act or effecting the purpose for which the conspiracy is formed, nor in attempting to do any of the acts nor in inducing others to do them but in the forming of the scheme or agreement between the parties. The factum of the criminal agreement should not be confounded with its proof. So far as proof goes conspiracy is a matter of inference deduced from certain criminal acts of the parties accused, done in pursuance of an apparent criminal purpose common between them. (1962) 1 Andh L T 57 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 546 (554) (Pt G) (Pr 58) (AP).

——S. 120-B — Conspiracy outside India — Jurisdiction to try offence of conspiracy by Indian Courts —Offences being objects of conspiracy committed in India — Conspiracy being continuous — Parties to conspiracy continue to be liable.

Before Ss. 120-A and 120-B were added to the Penal Code conspiracy to commit offences was not punishable. On the amendment of the Penal Code, by addition of Ss. 120-A and 120-B the legislature brought the law in India in line with the English law and made conspiracy itself punishable as a distinct offence apart from the object of conspiracy which, if carried out would itself amount to an offence. It is no doubt true that the offence of criminal conspiracy is complete as soon as an agreement is made between the conspirators but S. 120-B does not limit its operation to those who are parties to the agreement at the moment of its formation but is also applicable to those who continue to be parties during the entire period during which the conspiracy continues. By its very language, S. 120-B must apply to those who are members of the conspiracy during its continuance and it is intended to be treated as a continuous offence.

It is not that merely because the objects with which the conspiracy was entered into were achieved and actual offences committed there could be no prosecution for conspiracy itself. From S. 120-B it is clear, that if the persons were parties to a conspiracy during its continuance when all of them were in India, they committed the offence in Indian territory the Courts in India have jurisdiction to try the offence under the section. 65 Bom L R 864 : I L R (1963) Bom 800 : (1964) Mah L J 95 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 648 : AIR 1964 Bom 133 (134 to 136) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 8, 9) (DB).

——S. 120-B—After examination of several prosecution witnesses State filing second case separately against same accused persons under same sections for same offences committed in pursuance of same conspiracy — Accused cannot be tried twice over in two cases for same offence of conspiracy permissible under S. 120-B. See Constitution of India, Art. 20 (2). 1965 (2) Cri L J 351 : AIR 1965 Cal 457.

——S. 120-B—Prosecution under Ss. 120-B, 420, 467 and 471, I. P. C. — State filing Second Case against same accused under same sections — There may not be any bar to trial of more than three offences as the same trial by virtue of S. 235, Criminal P. C. but separate trials may also be continued if no prejudice is caused to accused by separate trials. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235. 1965 (2) Cri L J 351 : AIR 1965 Cal 457.

——S. 120-B — After 1913 criminal conspiracy is a separate offence by itself whether or not any offence is committed in pursuance of it. 52 Cri L J 561 : AIR 1951 Vindh-Pra 17 (33) (Pt J) (Pr 107).

——Ss. 120-A and 489-C— Conspiracy to utter forged notes—Different accused joining at different stages—Conspiracy can still be one — Some persons joining conspiracy afterwards — They will be members of same conspiracy. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3583.

——S. 120-B — Criminal conspiracy — Essentials — Proof.

The essence of a Criminal conspiracy is an agreement between two or more persons for one of the unlawful purposes specified in S. 120-A. The formulation of the agreement may be established either by direct evidence or by inference from other facts which are proved. It need not be formed at the same time as between all the parties to the conspiracy. But there should be a consensus or a meeting of the minds and each person alleged to be a party to the conspiracy must be proved to have shared the criminal intention. For substantiating the charge under S. 120-B, I. P. C. evidence is necessary, proving that accused joined the conspiracy and shared the criminal intention, which might have been possibly entertained by one of them alone. 1959 Andh L T 562.

——Ss. 120-A, 300—Conspiracy — Murder— Justification.

Persons suffering from social disabilities and living in difficult conditions should not commit crimes like murder. The fact that the survey measurement was unfavourable to the Mahars or Harijans and that some of them thought that the introduction of a Gram Panchayat was not beneficial to them is hardly a reason for forming a criminal conspiracy and to carry out the object of the conspiracy by committing a murder. ILR (1958) Bom 1092 : 59 Bom L R 244 : 1957 Cr L J 1107 : A I R 1957 Bom 226 (231) (Pt F) (Pr 16) (DB).

——S. 120-A —Proof—Characteristics of conspiracy.

Privacy and secrecy are more characteristic of a conspiracy than a loud discussion in an elevated place open to public view in the garden of a stranger. 1954 Cr L J 905 : I L R (1953) Mys 625 : A I R 1954 Mys 81 (83) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

● ——S. 120-A — Whether conspiracy is established is a question of fact which has to be determined on evidence—Per Bhandari J. Nathu Ram V. Godse v. Rex. ILR (1956) Punj 499 (FB).

2. "Criminal conspiracy".

● ——Ss. 120-A; 120-B—It is not necessary that each member of a conspiracy must know all the details of the conspiracy. R. K. Dalmia v. Delhi Administration (1963) 1 S C R 253 : (1962) 32 Com Cas 699 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 805 : A I R 1962 S C 1821 (1874) (Pt S) (Pr 317).

● ——S. 120-B — Substantive offences not committed—Effect.

The offence of criminal conspiracy consists in the very agreement between two or more persons to commit a criminal offence irrespective of the further consideration whether or not those offences have actually been committed. The very fact of the conspiracy constitutes the offence and it is immaterial whether anything has been done in pursuance of the unlawful agreement. Bimbadhar Pradhan v. State of Orissa, 1956 S C J 441 : 1956 Mad W N 473 : 1956 S C R 206 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 89 : 1956 S C A 857 : (1956) 2 M L J (S C) 13 : ILR (1956) Cut 409 : 1956 Cr L J 831 : 22 Cut L T 276 : A I R 1956 S C 469 (474) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Ss. 120-A, 120-B and 420 — Essence of criminal conspiracy—Conspiracy to cheat.

The essence of criminal conspiracy is an agreement to do an illegal act for instance commit cheating. Such an agreement can be proved either by direct evidence or by circumstantial evidence or by both. It is not necessary that there should be express proof of the agreement. The agreement can be inferred. Proved acts of cheating by various persons belonging to one group at various times at various places by the same devices would furnish strong evidence of the existence of a conspiracy to cheat as also of the membership of those persons of the conspiracy. 1960 All L J 33 : 1960 Cr L J 188 : 1960 All W R (HC) 67 : 1960 All Cr R 84 : AIR 1960 All 103 (109) (Pt B) (Pr 25) (DB).

3. Abetment by conspiracy and criminal conspiracy—Distinction.

●——S. 120-A—(Per S. K. Das, J.) — Distinction between offence of abetment by conspiracy and offence of criminal conspiracy — Sanction under S. 196-A, Criminal P. C. for offence of abetment by conspiracy is not necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-A. 1962 (1) Cri L J 770 : AIR 1962 S C 876.

4. Charge.

●——S. 120-B — Criminal conspiracy — Charge — Framing of—Actual commission of offences in pursuance of conspiracy—Charge for conspiracy in addition to charges for other offences can also be framed —Cumbersome charge — Objection to, not taken at proper time—Effect—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 225 and 239.

The view that it is not permissible to frame a charge of conspiracy when the matter has proceeded beyond the stage of conspiracy and that in pursuance of it offences have actually been committed, cannot be accepted as correct. AIR 1961 S C 1241, Foll. The offence of conspiracy is an entirely independent offence and though other offences are committed in pursuance of the conspiracy the liability of the conspirators for the conspiracy itself cannot disappear. Section 120-B which makes criminal conspiracy punishable was added by the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1913 (8 of 1913) along with S. 120-A.

In framing a charge for conspiracy, the offences actually committed should not be mentioned in the charge. But the mere mention of such offences in the charge will not necessarily vitiate the charge. In the present case it was held that even assuming that the charge was cumbersome, in the absence of any objection by the accused at the proper time and in the absence of any material from which prejudice to accused could be inferred, the accused was precluded by S. 225, Criminal P. C., from complaining about it after their conviction by the trial Court. State of Andhra Pradesh v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, (1964) S C A 38 : (1964) 3 S C R 297 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 671 : AIR 1963 S C 1850 (1864 to 1866) (Pt C) (Prs 34, 39, 40).

●——S. 120-B — Distinct offence — Meaning of — Offences to be distinct must not be inter-related—Contract to supply wood to Government—Money obtained from Government on various bills at different times in pursuance of conspiracy entered into between various accused — Held, single charge under S. 420, Penal Code did not contravene S. 235 as object of conspiracy was not to obtain diverse amounts but to obtain entire contract money from Government. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1963 (2) Cri L J 529 : AIR 1963 SC 1620.

●——S. 120-B—Charge of criminal conspiracy under S. 120-B read with Ss. 467, 468, 471 and 420-B, Penal Code. Reference to sections of Penal Code made merely to indicate objects of conspiracy—Charge held was not a jumbled one—Accused fully undertaking implication of charge and not raising any objection to it at any stage—Objection regarding charge not entertained by Supreme Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 225. 1963 (1) Cri L J 623 : A I R 1963 S C 666.

● ——S. 120-B—Criminal P. C, (1898), Ss. 222 (2), 235, 537 — Charge contravening proviso to S. 222 (2) Defect held did not cause prejudice to accused—Trial not vitiated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 222 (2). 1962 (2) Cri L J 259 : AIR 1962 S C 1153.

●——Ss. 120-B, 420—Charge — Single conspiracy to cheat members of public — Several persons joining—Several transactions spread over several years — Single trial — Legality — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235).

Where the charge, as framed, discloses one single conspiracy, although spread over several years, there is only one object of the conspiracy, and that is to cheat members of the public, the fact in the course of years others joined the conspiracy or that several incidents of cheating took place in pursuance of the conspiracy does not change the conspiracy and does not split up a single conspiracy into several conspiracies.

Held, on facts that as the instances of cheating were in pursuance of one conspiracy and were parts of the same transaction, there was no misjoinder of charges. AIR 1936 Bom 154 and (1910) 20 M L J 220. Disting. 1957 Cri L J 422 : A I R 1957 S C 340 (344) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Ss. 120-B, 409 and 380—Applicability — Accused can be tried and punished under S. 120-B even when charge under Ss. 409 and 380 cannot be made out. 1958 All L J 690 : 1958 All W R (HC) 748 : 1958 All Cr R 504 : 1959 Cri L J 18 : AIR 1959 All 75 (77) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8).

——Ss. 120A, 120B and 489C—Charge under Ss. 120B and 489C—There is no illegality. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3583.

——S. 120-B — Particulars of charge of conspiracy—Particulars sufficient to give the accused notice of matter with which he is charged are sufficient. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 222. 1964 (1) Cri L J 648 : AIR 1964 Bom 133 (DB).

——S. 120-A—Ingredients of offence stated—Charge—Frame and contents of—Six Persons of whom three are public servants tried together by Special Judge for offence under S. 5 (1) (c) and (d), Prevention of Corruption Act—Criminal Conspiracy forming one of heads of charges — Charge held not illegal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 255. 1958 Cri L J 1144 : AIR 1958 Bom 354 (DB).

——S. 120-B—Criminal conspiracy to commit certain offences—Prosecution not bound to include all acts of conspirators in charge—Splitting of conspiracy into two cases commenced one after other—Validity of first trial not affected. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239. 1953 Cri L J 806 : A I R 1953 Bom 177 (DB).

——Ss. 120-B, 395—Charge of conspiracy to commit dacoity—There is nothing artificial in combination—Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 235.

Dacoity as defined in S. 391 undoubtedly implies conjoint action. It is only when such action takes place that an offence is committed, but there may well be a stage where there is only an agreement to commit the offence, that agreement is itself punishable under S. 120-B of the Penal Code. To say that a charge under S. 120-B/395 of the Code is artificial is to ignore the essential fact that a conspiracy to commit dacoity is different from dacoity. It may well be that, five men merely conspire to commit a dacoity. If there is proof of the agreement, the offence of conspiracy is complete. That being so, there is nothing artificial in the combination implied in the charge of conspiracy to commit dacoity. 1965 (2) Cri L J 718 : AIR 1965 Cal 598 (605) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

——S. 120-B—Procedure—Framing of charge — Evidence adduced to be considered cumulatively — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 254.

The testimony of certain prosecution witnesses without more, is sufficient to pass the prima facie standard to enable the charge of conspiracy being framed. When such evidence is supported by documentary evidence, the whole evidence, taken together; provides sufficient justification in its cumulative effect to frame charge for conspiracy, though the Magistrate may have committed an error in considering each item of evidence individually. 1965 (2) Cri L J 443 (445) (Pt B) (Pr 20) (Cal).

——S. 120-B—General charge of conspiracy with charges for specific offences committed in pursuance of conspiracy—Acquittal in respect of general charge—Conviction in respect of specific charges still legal—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 235 and 239.

When there is a general charge of conspiracy framed under S. 120-B/409 and the prosecution case is that the specific offences under S. 409/109, were committed by one or other accused in pursuance of the conspiracy, it is usual to mention in the subsidiary charges that the specific offence was committed in pursuance of the conspiracy, but when the main charge of general conspiracy fails the conviction of one or more of the accused in respect of one or more of the specific charges is still quite legal. A I R 1960 S C 661, Rel. on, 1963 (1) Cri L J 156: AIR 1963 Cal 64 (67) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

● ——S. 120-A—Offence of abetment of forgery by conspiracy — Sanction under S. 196-A Criminal P. C. not required—Forgery committed — Charge of abetment of forgery is legal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-A. 1961 (1) Cri L J 204 : A I R 1961 Cal 461 (FB).

——S. 120-B — Charge of conspiracy—Two or three persons conspiring generally to commit offence of cheating in particular way and in pursuance of such conspiracy, cheating different peoples at different times in that particular way — There is only one offence of conspiracy to cheat—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233). AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 2944 (DB).

——S. 120-B — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 233, 253 — Distinct offences — What are — Offences under Ss. 120B and 420, Penal Code are distinct offences committed in course of same transaction—If person accused of the offences is charged under S. 420, it can be said that he is impliedly discharged of offence of conspiracy under S. 120B. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. AIR 1954 Kutch 33.

——S. 120-B — Framing of charge — Whether in a particular case a charge for an offence be not framed on ground that it is unnecessary redundant or superfluous is a matter for Magistrate framing charge to consider — Question will depend in each case on nature of offence alleged and prima facie shown to have been committed — Held that there was nothing illegal in framing a charge under S. 120-B. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 254. 1954 Cri L J 1086: AIR 1954 Kutch 33.

——S. 120-B—Charge.

Criminal conspiracy, defined in S. 120-A and made punishable under S. 120.B, is a new substantive offence introduced by Chapter VI-A in the Criminal Law of India. It follows that where it was alleged and prima facie shown that an offence of criminal conspiracy was committed, a charge under that section could be framed. If in pursuance of the said criminal conspiracy, offences were committed, there is nothing in the Code of Criminal Procedure which prohibits framing of charges for those offences along with the charge for criminal conspiracy. Charge for other offences may be for commission of substantive offence by one or more of the conspirators and abetment by others. There is nothing illegal in framing a charge of criminal conspiracy against certain person and at the same time, framing charges of other offences; substantively or by abetment, alleged to have been committed in pursuance of the conspiracy. AIR 1938 Mad 130, Dissented from. 1953 Cri L J 17: AIR 1953 Kutch 54 (55, 56) (Prs 6, 8).

——Ss. 120A and 120B — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239 — Charge under S 120-A and S. 120-B, Penal Code — Joinder of charges — Effect of S. 239, Criminal P. C. and Ss. 120A and 120B, I. P. C. is to open out an unlimited avenue for masses of charges being framed against persons in a joint trial on a mere accusation of conspiracy. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239. AIR 1952 Mad 727 (DB).

——S. 120-B — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439—Retrial — Several persons connected with Bank charged under S. 120-B read with Ss. 409 and 477-A, I. P. C. — Protracted trial for 2½ years — Joinder of charges in way impossible to try — Retrial ordered after splitting up charges. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. AIR 1952 Mad 727 (DB).

——Ss. 120-B. 489-B, 489-C—Trafficking in counterfeit currency notes in pursuance of conspiracy — Consideration parts played by different conspirators irrelevant in considering charge under S. 489.B read with S. 120.B—Conviction under S. 489-B—Conviction under S. 489-C redundant.

Where trafficking in counterfeit currency notes was done in pursuance of a conspiracy; the fact that several conspirators placed different rules is wholly irrelevant in considering charge under S. 489-B read with S. 120-B. Each one is responsible for the acts of the other conspirators as well. The Court should not have separated the several incidents and considered them in isolation. The conviction of any of the accused under S. 489-C is redundant in view of the fact that they had been convicted under S. 489-B. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 695: 1962 (2) Cri L J 765: 40 Mys L J 494: ILR (1961) Mys 482: AIR 1962 Mys 275 (278) (Pt C) (Pr 33) (DB).

——Ss. 120-B and 107 — Offence committed in pursuance of conspiracy — Charge of conspiracy — Conspiracy — If abetment — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235.

Where an offence which is alleged to the object of the conspiracy is actually committed, the charges of criminal conspiracy under S. 120 B is irrelevant. In such a case the conspiracy amounts to abetment: AIR 1936 Pat 346, Foll. AIR 1938 Mad 130, Rel. on: AIR 1938 Bom 481, Not foll. 1660 B L J R 565: 1960 Cri L J 1360: AIR 1960 Pat 459 (468) (Pt D) (Pr 32) (DB).

——S. 120-B—Act not illegal—No charge for conspiracy — Question of conspiracy held not relevant. See Cotton Cloth and Yarn (Transmission By Post) Prohibition Order (1946), Cl. 3. 1959 Cri L J 636: AIR 1959 Pat 207 (DB).

● ——Ss. 120-A, 120.B — Criminal conspiracy to commit offence—Offence committed — Accused can be charged and convicted for both, offence of criminal conspiracy and the offence committed in pursuance of the conspiracy.

Per Achhru Ram J. :— Offence of criminal conspiracy to commit an offence and the offence committed in pursuance of that conspiracy are two quite distinct offences and the accused can be charged with both. The offence of criminal conspiracy is not wiped out when either some act or illegal omission has taken place in pursuance of that agreement so as to bring the case within purview of clause secondly of S. 107 or when the offence, the committal of which is the object of the conspiracy, is committed.

Though the accused can be legally charged for both the offences, the Court will exercise wide discretion in refraining from convicting the accused on the charge of conspiracy when they are found guilty of the offence itself. It will, in any case, refrain from passing a separate sentence for conspiracy. Nathu Ram V. Godse v. Rex, ILR (1956) Punj 499 (FB).

——S. 120-B — Accused merely present at meetings of accused persons—No overt act on his part shown—Framing of charge under S. 120-A, is not warranted. 1964 (2) Cri L J 209: AIR 1964 Tripura 41 (45) (Pt D) (Pr 17).

5. Proof of conspiracy.

● ——S. 120-A—Proof of criminal conspiracy—Scope and applicablity of S. 10, Evidence Act.

There is no difference between the mode of proof of the offence of conspiracy and that of any other offence: it can be established by direct evidence or by circumstantial evidence. But S. 10 of the Evidence Act introduces the doctrine of agency and if the conditions laid down therein are satisfied, the act done by one is admissible against the co-conspirators. But this section will come into play only when the Court is satisfied that there is reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired together to commit an offence or an actionable wrong, that is to say, there should be a prima facie evidence that a person was a party to the conspiracy before his acts can be used against his co-conspirators. Once such a reasonable ground exists, anything said, done or written by one of the conspirators in reference to the common intention, after the said intention was entertained, is relevant against the others, not only for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy but also for proving that the other person was a party to it. The evidentiary value of the said acts is limited by two circumstances, namely, that the acts shall be in reference to their common intention and in respect of a period after such intention was entertained by any one of them. The expression "in reference to their common intention" in S. 10, is very comprehensive and is designedly used to give it a wider scope than the words "in furtherance of" in the English law, with the result, anything said, done or written by a co conspirator, after the conspiracy was formed, will be evidence against the other before he entered the field of conspiracy or after he left it. Another important limitation implicit in the language is indicated by the expressed scope of its relevancy. Anything so said, done or written is a relevant fact only as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it. It can only be used for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy or that the other person was a party to it. It cannot be used in favour of the other party or for the purpose of showing that such a person was not a party to the conspiracy. Bhagwan Swarup Lal Bishan Lal v. State of Maharashtra, (1964) 3 S C R 378 : (1964) 2 S C J 771 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 608 : AIR 1965 S C 682 (686) (Pt E) (Pr 8).

● ——Ss. 120-B 420, 193, 24, 25—Prosecution under Ss. 420, 193 and 120-B, Penal Code—Charge of conspiracy not proved — Absence of criminal intent — Reasonable explanation by accused — Accused held entitled to benefit of doubt — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367). See Penal Code (1860), S. 420. 1957 Cri L J 583 : AIR 1957 SC 466.

● ——S. 120-B—Proof—Approver's evidence — Corroboration—Necessity—Charge of conspiracy to cheat —If a specific instance of cheating was proved beyond doubt against any of the accused that would furnish best corroboration of offence of conspiracy. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1957 Cri L J 422 : AIR 1957 SC 340.

■ ——S. 120-B—Proof—Offence under S. 120-B held not proved. Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V. P., 1954 S C J 362 : 1954 SCR 1098 : 1954 Cri L J 910 : 1954 S C A 1316 : A I R 1954 S C 322 (329) (Pt K) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

● ——Ss. 120-B and 34 — Filing of conspiracy — Evidence as to conspiracy under S. 120-B, having been rejected, the same evidence cannot be used for finding a common intention under S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1953 Cri L J 1772 : AIR 1953 SC 420.

——S. 120-B — Conspiracy — Proof of — Filling of certain form by bank clerk—It does not show that he was privy to conspiracy. AIR 1955 NUC (Ajmer) 771.

——S. 120-A, Proviso—Overt act is not necessary — Proviso applies to cases where agreement is not to commit offence—Mere agreement to commit offence can be punished. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3583.

——Ss. 120-A and 489-C—Persons charged of criminal conspiracy—Proof of their meeting together and deciding to commit illegal act is not necessary—This can be decided with reference to acts done by each of them. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3583.

——S. 120-B—Conspiracy—Evidence of—Legitimate inference from proved circumstances can be drawn. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 166 (DB).

——S. 120-B—Criminal conspiracy—Proof.

In a criminal conspiracy, what is to be proved is agreement and common design. It is true that this proof need not be by direct evidence and that existence of a conspiracy may even be a matter of inference deduced from criminal acts done in pursuance of a common criminal purpose. But, unless a detailed and specific proof against each of the accused that they participated in a particular design to do a particular thing has been established, there can be no conviction under S. 120 B. (1957) 2 Andhra W R 156: (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 421 : 1957 Cri L J 1091 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 758 (766) (Pt H) (Pr 20) (DB).

——S. 120-A—Criminal conspiracy — Proof — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 3).

In considering the question of criminal conspiracy it is not always possible to give affirmative evidence about the date of the formation of the criminal conspiracy, about the persons who took part in the formation of the conspiracy, about the object which the conspirators set before themselves as the object of conspiracy and about the manner in which the object of conspiracy is to be carried out. All this is necessarily a matter of inference. 31 Bom L R 515 and AIR 1936 Cal 73, Rel. on. ILR (1958) Bom 1092 : 59 Bom L R 244 : 1957 Cri L J 1107 : AIR 1957 Bom 226 (229) (Pt A) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 120-B—Proof of conspiracy.

The gist of the offence of conspiracy is the agreement itself where the object of the agreement is to do an illegal act. Express proof of agreement is rarely available and may not even be necessary. Agreement can be inferred from overt acts and conduct. If it is proved that the persons charged pursued by their acts the same object, one performing one part and the other performing another part, with a view to attaining the object they were pursuing, the inference of conspiracy will be justified. Indeed where the agreement is to commit an offence no overt act need be proved. Overt acts raise a presumption of agreement, knowledge of the purpose of conspiracy, and properly looked at, they evidence the existence of a concerted intention. It is true, conspiracy in many cases is a matter of inference largely from the facts and circumstances established in the case. But where overt acts, are committed in pursuace of a conspiracy, those acts form part of the same transaction :which embraces the conspiracy and the acts under it. Thus the requirement of proof, where conspiracy has for its object commission of an offence, is merely proof of bare engagement or association. 1965 (2) Cri L J 713 : AIR 1965 Cal 598 (607) (Pt E) (Pr 30).

——S. 120-A—Conspiracy—Agreement need not be proved by direct evidence—Overt acts in pursuance of agreement enough to infer participation — But overt act must by itself prove participation.

An agreement which is alleged to be a criminal conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence and it often happens that participation in overt acts in pursuance of the alleged agreement provides good grounds for the inference of participation in the agreement itself. Where the only overt act was the issue of a cheque towards the payment of the price of shares, it was held that such an overt act by itself would not be sufficient material for inferring that there was participation in a criminal conspiracy. 69 Cal W N 292 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 26 : AIR 1965 Cal 38 (41) (Pt E) (Pr 10).

——Ss. 120-B, 420 — Evidence — Sale of drugs in bottles containing false statements as to the brand etc.—There must be evidence that the buyers were induced to buy drug by the misrepresentation in the label. See Penal Code (1860), S. 420. 1959 Cri L J 829 : AIR 1959 Cal 427 (DB).

——Ss. 120-A and 120-B—Proof of conspiracy.

To substantiate a charge of conspiracy the prosecution must prove the agreement between two or more persons to do an unlawful act or a lawful act by unlawful means. Such agreement may be proved by direct evidence or inferred from other proved facts. But the inference of fact may be drawn only when the circumstances are such as to be incapable of any other reasonable interpretation. The law requires specific proof against each of the conspirators participating in a particulur design to do a particular criminal thing. The object of the conspiracy must be proved as laid down. 1954 Cri L J 979 : AIR 1954 Cal 373 (374) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Ss. 120-A and 34—Inference of common intention —When conspiracy is disproved common intention cannot be inferred on the same evidence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 887 : AIR 1953 Hyd 99 (DB).

——S. 120-A — Conspiracy can be inferred from circumstantial evidence — Accused pursuing by similar acts same object by same means — One performing one part of act, the other another part to complete it in attainment of object—Conspiracy can be inferred.

The essence of criminal conspiracy is an agreement to do an illegal act. Direct evidence in proof of conspiracy is seldom available and even when available, it will be tainted being that of an accomplice and would require corroboration. Generally, conspiracy is a matter of inference by circumstantial evidence. From the acts and conduct of the parties agreement could be inferred. For instance, if it can be proved that the accused pursued by similar acts the same object, often by the same means, one performing one part of the act and the other another part of the same act, so as to complete it with a view to the attainment of the object they were pursuing, the Court will be at perfect liberty to conclude that they had conspired together to effect that object. 1962 Ker L J 881 : ILR (1962) 2 Ker 362 : (1962) 2 Lab L J 301 : 1962 Ker L T 690 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 675 (683) (Pt N) (Pr 72) (Ker) (DB).

——S. 120-B — Criminal conspiracy — Evidence and proof — Cannot be proved by evidence raising mere suspicion of guilt.

A conspiracy cannot be established by mere proof of association of a person with guilty persons, nor by evidence raising a mere suspicion of guilt; for suspicion and conjecture, however strong or reasonable, cannot supersede or take the place of legal proof.

Thus where beyond the doubtful record of a dying declaration about a conversation which might never have occurred, there was no other evidence to connect the accused with the crime, such as his presence at the spot and hour, or shortly before the occurrence or of any letter or message, or of any material object acquired by him to further the conspiracy.

Held that there being no adequate legal evidence to connect the accused with the crime he was entitled to acquittal upon the benefit of doubt. 1960 All Cr R 396: 1960 All W R (Suppl) 58: 1960 M W N 535.

——S. 120-B—Proof of conspiracy.

Direct evidence is seldom available to prove a conspiracy. In such cases the guilt of the accused, has to be inferred from facts and circumstances proved before the Court. 1957 Mad W N 495.

——S. 121-A—Evidence Act (1872), S. 10 — Conspiracy—Proof of—It is always difficult to secure outside and independent evidence — It is to be proved by circumstances—Conspiracy can be proved by conduct of accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 10. A I R 1952 Manipur 4.

——S. 120-A—Conspiracy—Proof—Every conspirator need not be present at every stage of conspiracy.

It is not the law that every conspirator must be present at every stage of the conspiracy. If the conspirator concerned had agreed to the common design and had not resiled from that agreement, it can be presumed that he continued to be a party to the conspiracy. AIR 1957 SC 340, Rel. on. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 695 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 765 : 40 Mys L J 494 : ILR (1961) Mys 482: AIR 1962 Mys 275 (278) (Pt B) (Pr 32) (DB).

——S. 120-B — Conspiracy — Common intention — Persons acting in concert by virtue of common intention and of criminal conspiracy —Their activities cannot normally be brought out in evidence by direct evidence because they are done in privacy—It is only from members of family or from persons intimately connected with those persons or from their associates that evidence of conspiracy can be gathered. 1958 Cri L J 1489: AIR 1958 Mys 150 (DB).

——S. 120-B—Conspiracy—Proof.

To sustain a charge under S. 120-B, one of the essential ingredients that the prosecution should establish is that there was an agreement between one or more persons to do an illegal act or a legal act by illegal means. There can be no conspiracy without an agreement in this behalf. Direct evidence in proof of conspiracy is seldom available and even when available it will be tainted, being that of an accomplice and requires corroboration.

Generally conspiracy is a matter of inference to be deduced from the criminal acts committed by the accused. Acts and declarations of conspirators in furtherance of the common design or anything said or done or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention and the evidence of conduct of the accused and the surrounding circumstances, both before and after the commission of the offence, may be given in evidence to support the offence of conspiracy. I L R (1955) Mys 644 : 1956 Cri L J 633 : A I R 1956 Mys 46 (47) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——S. 120-B—Charge of conspiracy to commit series of crimes — Proof of agreement is sufficient for conviction — Proof of overt act not essential — Proof of overt act how for establishes agreement.

In order to establish the charge of conspiracy the prosecution has to prove an agreement between the persons charged to do an illegal act. Where the conspiracy alleged is one to commit a series of crimes, mere proof of such an agreement between the accused is sufficient to sustain a conviction and no overt act need be proved. Proof of overt acts is not necessary but if some of them were concerned in the overt acts that would go a long way to establish that the agreement was in fact made by them. 1961 B L J R 411 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 677: AIR 1961 Pat 451 (459) (Pt E) (Pr 24) (DB).

——S. 120-B — Conspiracy to commit crime — Evidence of accused being a member merely consisting of commission of offence by others — Not sufficient for conviction.

The offence of a conspiracy to commit a crime is a different offence from the crime because the conspiracy precedes the commission of the crime and is complete before the crime is attempted or completed. A crime attempted or completed does not require the element of conspiracy as one of its ingredients. A I R 1958 S C 119, Rel. on.

Where the evidence against the accused of his being a member of the conspiracy merely consists of the commission of the offences themselves by others, it cannot be said that the charge of conspiracy has been proved against him. 1961 B L J R 411: 1961 (2) Cri L J 677 : A I R 1961 Pat 451 (459) (Pt F) (Pr 25) (DB).

——S. 120-B — Evidence of conspiracy — Direct evidence of conspiracy is rarely available and existence of conspiracy has always to be deduced from circumstances of the case — But where the circumstances are such as may at the most create a suspicion, they cannot amount to proof of conspiracy — Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. (1965) Punj L R (Supp) 437.

●——Ss. 120-A, 120-B—Conspiracy, proof of—It has to be inferred from circumstantial evidence.

Per Achhruram J.: Conspiracy can seldom, if even be proved by means of direct evidence and has almost invariably to be inferred from circumstantial evidence consisting generally of evidence as to the conduct of the parties on certain occasions and in relation to certain matters. (1702) W M B L 301; 7 R R 551; (1881) 5 Cox C C 505; (1868) L R 3 H L 306; I L R 37 Cal 467; A I R 1933 Lah 977; A I R 1945 Nag 163, Rel. on. Nature of circumstantial evidence indicated. Nathu Ram V. Godse v. Rex, I L R (1956) Punj 499 (FB).

●——S. 120-A—Criminal conspiracy—Proof—English Law—Statement by conspirator is admissible against other conspirators, if it has been made in reference to common intention — It is not necessary that it should have been made in furtherance of common intention. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 10. ILR (1956) Punj 499 (FB).

●——Ss. 120-A, 120-B — Agreement to commit offence need only be proved—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 223 — Plan of design formed by the conspirators need not be alleged.

Per Achhru Ram J. : The offence of criminal conspiracy consists merely in the agreement to commit any illegal act and is complete as soon as the agreement is reached. In order to justify conviction for the offence of criminal conspiracy, it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove anything more than the agreement. If the agreement is proved, the accused are liable to be punished even though they may not yet have formed or even considered any plan or design for achievement of their common object. Therefore the indictment for criminal conspiracy need not allege or indicate plan or design formed by the alleged conspirators for carrying out the object of the conspiracy nor need it even allege that any plan or design has been formed. Nathu Ram V. Godse v. Rex, I L R (1956) Punj 499 (FB).

——S. 120-A—Abetment by conspiracy—Evidence.

There must be combining together of two or more persons in conspiracy and an act or illegal omission must take place in pursuance of that conspiracy. See Penal Code (1860), S. 107. 52 Cri L J 646 : AIR 1951 Raj 89 (DB).

——S. 120-B—Proof of conspiracy.

It is not always possible to give direct evidence about conspiracy. It can be inferred from the circumstances proved. If, at dead of night a number of people entered a house armed with deadly weapons such as guns, lances, choppers and explosives, it cannot be with any legitimate object. The weapons themselves being of dangerous nature if there is any evidence to show that the accused persons had the use of one or the other of the weapons in inflicting injuries on the deceased and the members of his family, it is easy to infer that they proceeded to the scene with the common object that was to be achieved by the use of such dangerous weapons.

(General principles regarding proof of conspiracy laid down). 1954 Ker L T 683 : 1955 Cr L J 996 : AIR 1955 Trav Co 117 (118) (Pr 3) (DB).

6. Sanction for prosecution.

●——S. 120-B—Prosecution of public servant on charges of conspiracy and bribery — Sanction under S. 197, Cri. P. C. not necessary, See Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 197. 1954 Cri L J 1161 : AIR 1954 S C 455.

——Ss. 120-B, 420, 466 and 467 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S, 196-A — Charge of conspiracy to commit offences mentioned in Ss. 420, 466 and 467 under S. 120-B, Penal Code—Offences under Ss. 466 and 467 being non-cognizable the consent contemplated by S. 196-A (2) and not by S. 196-A (1), Criminal P.C. is prerequisite for taking cognizance—S. 196-A being not applicable to a case of criminal conspiracy to commit offence under S. 420, Courts are competent to take cognizance without any sanction or consent. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-A. (1958) 2 Andh W R 523: (1958) M L J (Cri) 882 : ILR (1958) Andh Pra 791.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1241.],

——Ss. 120-B and 420 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197 (1) — (Rajasthan States) Covenant. Art. 17 — Offence by public servants against Government under S. 420 or S. 120-B read with S. 420, Penal Code — Sanction held necessary, See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197 (1). AIR 1950 Raj 51.

——S. 120-B — Sanction to prosecute — Criminal conspiracy — Attack on police party — Police Sub-Inspector murdered —Incomplete charge-sheet without any sanction—Proper sanction obtained before final charge-sheet—Requirement of S. 196-A, Criminal P. C. held duly comolied with. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-A. 1955 Cri L J 414 : AIR 1955 Trav.Co 33 (DB).

7. Place of trial.

●——Ss. 120-B and 420 — Prevention of Corruption Act (2 of 1947), S. 5 (1) (d) read with S. 5 (2) — Conviction under—Trial before one Special Judge but proceedings and conviction by another Special Judge—Competency of—Criminal P. C. (5 of 1898), S. 350 — Applicability — Criminal Law Amendment Acts (46 of 1952) and (2 of 1956).

Section 8 (3) of the Criminal Law Amendment Act (46 of 1952) did not contemplate that S. 350 of the Criminal P. C. (5 of 1898) becomes applicable to proceedings before a Special Judge. The amendment made in the Criminal Law Amendment Act by Act 2 of 1956 by which S. 3 (a) was added to it making the provisions of S. 350 of the Code applicable to a trial by Special Judge has no retrospective effect. Thus where a trial commenced before a Special Judge was continued before another Special Judge who convicted the accused the conviction cannot be upheld as the subsequent proceedings before another Judge are not competent. Krishanlal Dhawan v. Delhi Administration, 1962 S C D 565 : (1962) 2 Ker L R 313 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 460 : (1963) 2 S C J 350.

●——S. 120-B—Overt acts committed in pursuance of conspiracy—Place of trial Court having jurisdiction to try offence of conspiracy has also jurisdiction to try offence constituted by overt acts which are committed in pursuance of conspiracy, beyond its jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 180. 1962 (2) Cri L J 805 : AIR 1962 S C 1821.

●——S. 120-B—Scope—Prosecution—Maintainability of—Conviction of offence under S. 167 (8), Sea Customs Act — Subsequent trial for conspiracy, if barred — Collector of customs acts judicially under S. 167 (8). See Constitution of India, Art. 20 (2). 1958 Cri L J 260 : AIR 1958 S C 119.

——S. 120-B — Offence of criminal conspiracy committed at different places—Place of trial—Accused can be tried at any place where object of conspiracy was carried out. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 182. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3583.

——S. 120-B—Jurisdiction—Place of trial — Conspiracy outside Kerala—Consequences in Kerala—Deception begun in Kerala but completed outside— Charge of conspiracy to commmit offence under S. 5 (2),

Prevention of Corruption Act could be tried by Special Judge for Kerala within whose jurisdiction that latter offence was committed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 177. 1959 Cri L J 1172: AIR 1959 Ker 311.

——S. 120-B—Applicability—Conspiracy in one State—Offence in pursuance thereof committed in another State—Place of trial — Charge against accused not merely one of S. 120-B, but of abetment of so many offences—Courts of the State where the offences abetted by the accused were alleged to have been committed had by virtue of illustration (a) to S. 180. Criminal P. C., jurisdiction to inquire into matter. See Penal Code (1860), S. 109. 1957 Cri L J 234 (Raj).

——S. 120-B — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 182—Uncertainty as to local area in which offence of criminal conspiracy is committed — S. 182, Criminal P. C. would come into operation. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 182. AIR 1956 Vind Pra 30.

8. Conviction and sentence.

● ——Ss. 120-B, 409— Accused being chief person to carry out main work of conspiracy—Fact that he made no profit for himself out of impugned transactions, that he was 59 years old and had already been ten days in jail held not sufficient for reducing sentence to the period already undergone. R. K. Dalmia v. Delhi Administration, (1963) 1 S C R 253 : (1962) 32 Com Cas 699 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 805 : AIR 1962 S C 1821 (1878) (Pt Z) (Pr 340).

● ——S. 120-B — Accused acting under common intention and common conspiracy — Conviction and sentence—Concurrent finding not open to challenge in appeal before Supreme Court. See Penal Code (1860), S. 364. 1957 Cri L J 559 : AIR 1957 S C 381.

——Ss. 120-B, 366—Procedure.

Though an accused is acquitted of a charge under S. 366, Penal Code, there is no bar in law for her being convicted on a charge of conspiracy to commit an offence of kidnapping. A I R 1952 Cal 831 (834) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——S. 120-B — Charge of conspiracy to commit offences under Ss. 471/467 and 420—Actual commission of offences under Ss. 471/467 and 420 in pursuance of conspiracy proved — Matter goes beyond stage of conspiracy — Conviction of accused under S. 120-B is unnecessary. 1961 B L J R 411 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 677 : A I R 1961 Pat 451 (460) (Pt G) (Pr 26) (DB).

——S. 120-B — Accused in pursuance of conspiracy, inciting police constables to desert their posts and withhold their services and rise in mutiny — Charge of conspiracy to commit offence under S. 3, Police (Incitement to Disaffection) Act, 1922—Accused held guilty and could be sentenced to 6 months R I. 52 Cri L J 462 : ILR 30 Pat 152 : AIR 1951 Pat 60 (67) (Pt D) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Ss. 120-B, 148, 149, 396, 302, 324, 332 and 427 — Assault on police party in pursuance of criminal conspiracy — Murder of Inspector and fatal injuries on others—Conviction upheld.

Where, in pursuance of the criminal conspiracy, the accused and their friends formed together into an unlawful assembly having the common object of assaulting and murdering a Police Inspector and the police constables who had come to their place and in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly they all ambushed the police party springing upon them from both sides of a lane as they were proceeding through it and throwing stones at them and also cutting and stabbing and beating the Inspector and the police constables, with deadly weapons such as choppers, knives, daggers, stones, slings and sticks, as the result of which the Inspector and a constable died on the spot and other persons died in the hospital :

Held, (i) that all the accused were guilty of the offences punishable under S. 120-B, I. P. Code and all of them except the 13th accused were also guilty of the offences punishable under S. 148, I. P. Code.

(ii) that 1st accused was clearly liable under S. 302, I. P. Code for the murder of the Inspector and other persons.

(iii) that every one of the accused was constructively liable under S. 149, I. P. Code for the offences committed by the other members of the unlawful assembly, that is to say, all of them were liable under S. 149, I. P. Code read with Ss. 302, 307, 324, 326 and 332, I. P. Code. 1954 Ker L T 567 : 1955 Cri L J 414 : A I R 1955 Trav-Co 33 (41) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

9. Conviction of single person.

● ——S. 120-B—Conviction of single person—(Cr. P. Code (1898), Ss. 222, 225, 537).

Where the only persons alleged to have been guilty of the offence of conspiracy were the persons placed on trial and there was no allegation nor any evidence forthcoming that any other persons were, though not placed on trial, concerned with the crime, it was essential to bring the charge of conspiracy home to the accused person or persons to prove that there was agreement to commit an offence between two or more persons. As a person cannot be convicted of conspiring with himself to commit an offence his conviction could not be sustained. But where on the findings of the Courts below, apart from the persons placed on trial, there was the approver who implicated himself equally with the other accused persons and a number of other prosecution witnesses as having been privy to the conspiracy the conviction of one only is not illegal.

Section 222, Criminal P. C. which requires the particulars of the offence to be stated does not in terms further require that in an offence like conspiracy the names of the co-conspirators should also be mentioned. But it is always advisable to give those particulars also in order to give a reasonable notice to the accused that he has been charged with having conspired with so and so (persons named), as also persons unnamed to commit a certain offence. If the charge under S. 120-B has added the words "and other persons known or unknown", there would be no ground for a grievance on the part of the accused. But even if the charge does not specifically mention the name of the approver as having been one of the conspirators, S. 225, Criminal P. C will cure the defect if the accused is not misled or the charge has not occasioned a failure of justice. Further, S. 537, Criminal P. C. will apply and if though the other accused had been acquitted by the trial Court and though he was the only accused in the High Court he did not raise the points with reference to the alleged illegality or irregularity in the charge before the lower Court, under the Explanation to that section, it cannot be urged that the omission in the charge has occasioned a failure of justice. Bhim bahadur Pradhan v. State of Orissa, 1956 Mad W N 473 : 1956 S C R 206 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 89 : 1956 S C A 857 : (1956) 2 M L J (SC) 13 : ILR (1956) Cut 409 : 1956 S C J 441 : 1956 Cri L J 831 : 22 Cut L T 276 : A I R 1956 S C 469 (472, 473) (Pt A) (Prs 7 to 9).

● ——S. 120-B — Conviction of single accused — Evidence and proof (Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 367). —

It is not essential that more than one person should be convicted of the offence of criminal conspiracy. It is enough if the Court is in a position to find that two or more persons were actually concerned in the criminal conspiracy. If the Courts below had come to the distinct finding that the evidence led on behalf of the prosecution was unreliable then certainly no conviction could have been based on such evidence and all the accused would have been equally entitled to acquittal. But it cannot be held that the accused having been acquitted by the trial Court, the particular accused should not have been convicted because the evidence against all of them was the same, when the Court is not satisfied that the acquittal of the other accused persons was entirely correct. Bhimbahadur Pradhan v. State of Orissa, 1956 Mad W N 473: 1956 S C R 206: 1956 All W R (Sup) 89: 1956 S C A 857: (1956) 2 M L J (SC) 13: I L R (1956) Cut 409: 1956 S C J 441: 1956 Cri L J 831: 22 Cut L T 276: A I R 1956 S C 469 (475) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

■ —Ss. 120-A, 120-B—Conviction of one person for conspiracy.

By the terms of the definition of criminal conspiracy itself, there ought to be two or more persons who must be parties to an agreement and it is trite to say that one person alone can never be held guilty of criminal conspiracy for the simple reason that one cannot conspire with one-self. If, therefore, 4 named individuals were charged with having committed the offence under S. 120-B, Penal Code and if three out of these 4 were acquitted of the charge, the remaining one accused could never be held guilty of the offence of criminal conspiracy. AIR 1916 All 141 and A I R 1924 Cal 809, Approved. Topandas v. State of Bombay, P L D 1956 S C (India) 215: 1956 Mad W N 208: 1956 Pat L R (SC) 46: 58 Bom L R 492: 1956 All W R (Sup) 24: (1955) 2 S C R 881: (1956) 1 M L J (SC) 60: 1956 All L J 161: 1956 S C J 86: 1956 Nag L J 204: 1956 S C A 74: 1956 Cri L J 138: 58 Pun L R 178: 1956 B L J R 139: A I R 1956 S C 33 (34, 35) (Prs 6, 14).

—S. 120-B — Accused 1 and 2 charged under S. 120-B read with S. 302 — Accused 1 given benefit of doubt and acquitted — Charge against accused 2 could not stand by itself in view of acquittal of sole remaining accused to connect accused 2 with such conspiracy — Accused 2 held must be acquitted though he was tool or instrument of some other designing persons. 1960 All Cr R 396: 1960 All W R (Sup) 58: 1960 M W N 535.

SECTION 121

—S. 121—"Waging war"—Meaning — Words and phrases.

The expression "waging war" in S. 121 can only mean "waging war in the manner usual in war." In other words in order to support a conviction on such a charge, it is not enough to show that the persons charged have contrived to obtain possession of an armoury and have when called upon to surrender, it used the rifles and ammunition so obtained against the King's troops. It must also be shown that the seizure of the armoury was part and parcel of a planned operation and that their intention in resisting the troops of the King was to overwhelm and defeat these troops and then to go on and crush any further opposition with which they might meet until either the leaders of the movement succeeded in obtaining possession of the machinery of Government or until those in possession of it yielded to the demands of their leaders. 52 Cri L J 462: ILR 30 Pat 152: AIR 1951 Pat 60 (63) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

—S. 121—Scope — Society against capitalism and private ownership and for establishment of socialist State—No use of force or violence—Offence.

It is the fundamental right of every citizen to have his own political theories and ideas and to propagate them and work for their establishment so long as he does not seek to do so by force and violence or contravene any provision of law.

Thus, where the pledge of a society amounts only to an undertaking to propagate the political faith that capitalism and private ownership are dangerous to the advancement of Society and work to bring about the end of capitalism and private ownership and the establishment of a socialist state for which others are already working under the lead of the working classes:

Held, (i) that it was open to the members of the society to achieve these objects by all peaceful means, ceaselessly fighting public opinion that might be against them and opposing those who desired the continuance of the existing order of Society and the present Government.

(ii) that it would also be legitimate to presume that they desired a change in the existing Government so that they could carry out their programme and policy. But from these it did not follow that the society desired to bring about the change by force and violence.

(iii) that the mere use of the words 'fight' and 'war' in their pledge did not necessarily mean that the society planned to achieve its object by force and violence. 1954 Ker L T 567: 1955 Cri L J 414: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 33 (37) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

—S. 121 — Applicability—Attack on police party and murder of Inspector—Offence.

Where all that is established by the prosecution is that some of the persons of a locality, who happened to belong to a society pledged against capitalism and private ownership, opposed certain person when he came to fish in certain tank in pursuance of his kuthakapattom lease and that, while the Inspector of Police was camping at the place with a party of policemen to enquire into his complaint about the matter, a large body of persons attacked the police party and murdered some of them.

Held, that it was not sufficient to show that Government's authority or prerogative was raised or called in question, and that it was impossible to hold that there had been a conspiracy to wage war against the Raj Pramukh or that there were the necessary elements in the case to constitute the offence of waging war against the Raj Pramukh. (The distinction between a riot by a mob and general rising or insurrection pointed out). AIR 1944 Pat 58, Rel. on. 1954 Ker L T 567: 1955 Cri L J 414: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 33 (37) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

SECTION 121-A

—S. 121-A—Evidence.

The mere fact, that a person had, at one time, been involved in a rebellion, would not necessarily warrant the inference, that he had organised conspiracy, to shield another from legal punishment. 1957 Cri L J 1254: AIR 1957 Him Pra 52 (58) (Pt I) (Pr 34).

—S. 121-A—Scope—Conspires to overawe—Meaning—(Words and Phrases).

The words "conspires to overawe by means of criminal force or the show of criminal force the Central Government or any Provincial Government" clearly embrace not merely a conspiracy to raise a general insurrection, but also a conspiracy to overawe the Central Government or any Provincial Government by the organisation of a serious riot or a large and tumultuous unlawful assembly.

The word "overawe" clearly imports more than the creation of apprehension or alarm or even perhaps fear. It appears to me to connote the creation of a situation in which the members of the Central or the Provincial Government feel themselves compelled to choose between yielding to force or exposing themselves or members of the public to a very serious danger. It is not necessary that the danger should be a danger of assassination or of bodily injury to themselves. The danger might well be a danger to public property or to the safety of members of the general public.

As the section stands, in certain circumstances persons who organise a strike among policemen or certain other public or Municipal employees might render themselves liable to prosecution under it. Clearly. however, persons do not commit this crime unless it was part and parcel of their plans to overawe the Central or the Provincial Government by criminal force or show of criminal force.

Where a large number of police havildars and constables conspired to withhold their services with the object of compelling the Provincial Government to yield to their demands and the conspirators seized the armouries and took possession of the arms and ammunition but remained peacefully in the police lines and did nothing to intimidate the general body of citizens, but, took steps to ensure that the working of the treasury should not be interrupted.

Held, that it could not fairly be said that there was any such show of criminal force as was contemplated by S. 121-A. 52 Cri L J 462 : ILR 30 Pat 152 : AIR 1951 Pat 60 (64, 65, 67) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15, 16, 22) (DB).

——S. 121-A—Conspiracy—Proof.

It is not usual for a prosecution for conspiracy to be instituted unless the Public Prosecutor is in a position to put into the witness box one or more persons who have, at one time or another, been parties to the conspiracy and also to produce documentary evidence in the shape of letters or communications which have passed between some of the conspirators, showing what exactly they intended to do and how they intended to do it. 52 Cri L J 462 : ILR 30 Pat 152 : AIR 1951 Pat 60 (66) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

SECTION 124-A

■ ——Ss. 124-A and 505 — Constitutionality — Gist of the offences — Freedom of speech and expression — Restrictions on, imposed by impugned provisions come within permissible limits under Art. 19 (2) of the Constitution — Interpretation of Statutes — Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (a) and (2). AIR 1959 All 101 (FB), Reversed.

The provisions of Ss. 124-A and 505, Penal Code, are not unconstitutional as being violative of the fundamental right of freedom of speech and expression under Art. 19 (1) (a) of the Constitution. The restrictions imposed by the impugned provisions cannot but be said to be in the interest of public order and within the ambit of permissible legislative interference with that fundamental right. AIR 1959 All 101 (FB), Reversed.

The explanations appended to the main body of S. 124-A make it clear that criticism of public measures or comment on Government action, however strongly worded would be within reasonable limits and would be consistent with the fundamental right of freedom of speech and expression. It is only when the words have the intention of creating public disorder or disturbance of law and order that the law steps in to prevent such activities in the interest of public order. So construed the section strikes the correct balance between individual fundamental rights and the interest of public order. The provisions of the sections should be so construed as to limit their application to acts involving intention or tendency to create disorder, or disturbance of law and order, or incitement to violence : AIR 1955 S C 661 and AIR 1957 S C 628, Foll. Each one of the constituent elements of the offence under S. 505 has reference to and a direct effect on, the security of the State or public order. Hence, these provisions would not exceed the bounds of reasonable restrictions on the right of freedom of speech and expression. Clause (2) of Art. 19 clearly saves the section from the vice of unconstitutionality. AIR 1959 All 101 (FB), Reversed; AIR 1947 P C 82 and 22 Bom 112, Overruled; AIR 1942 F C 22, Approved, Kedar Nath Sinha v. State of Bihar, 1962 (2) Cri L J 103 : (1962) 2 S C A 162 : 1962 Supp (2) S C R 769 : 1962 B L J R 636 : 1962 Mad W N 500 : (1963) 1 S C J 18 : (1963) 1 Mad L J (S C) 40 : (1963) 1 Andh W R (S C) 40 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 25 : ILR 41 Pat 984 : AIR 1962 S C 955 (968 to 970) (Prs 26, 28, 29).

■ ——S. 124-A — Scope — Freedom of speech — Restriction on, imposed by S. 124 A — Restriction is not in interest of public order — It is also not reasonable — Section 124-A is void. See Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (a). 1959 Cri L J 128 : AIR 1959 All 101 (FB).

[Reversed in AIR 1962 S C 955.]

■ ——S. 124-A — 'State' includes Government — 'Government' — Meaning of, as contemplated by constitution, stated — Exciting a feeling of hatred, contempt, or disaffection towards a person holding the office of President or a Governor or a minister is not exciting such a feeling towards Government and is not punishable under S. 124-A. See Constitution of India. Art. 19 (2). 1959 Cri L J 128 : AIR 1959 All 101 (FB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1962 S C 955.]

——S. 124-A — Ingredient's — Government—Meaning.

In order to sustain a conviction under S. 124-A, it must be proved (a) that the accused spoke the words in question, (b) that he thereby brought or attempted to bring into hatred or contempt or excite or attempted to excite disaffection, and (c) that such disaffection was towards the Government established by law in India. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 247 : 1963 Jab L J 915 : ILR (1962) Madh Pra 449.

——S. 124-A — Press and Registration of Books Act (1867), S. 4 — Declarant in jail long before and at the time of publication of objectionable article — No control over press — He cannot be convicted for publication of article. See Press and Registration of Books Act (25 of 1867), S. 4. 52 Cri L J 713 : AIR 1951 Mad 714.

——S. 124-A — Charge of sedition — Case of minor importance — Magistrate conversant with language and competent to inflict punishment — Committal to sessions is not expedient. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 206. 51 Cri L J 765 : AIR 1950 Mad 364.

——S. 124-A — Validity — Entire S. 124-A cannot be deemed to be ultra vires — Only the portion which seeks to impose restriction on exciting mere disaffection or attempts to cause disaffection is ultra vires. See Constitution of India, Art. 19 (2). 1955 Cri L J 184 : AIR 1955 Manipur 9.

——S. 124-A — Practice and procedure — Prosecution under S. 124-A, Penal Code in Manipur State — No special provision made in Manipur State Courts Act regarding sanction — Provision of S. 196 should govern cases of prosecution under S. 124-A, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196. 1955 Cri L J 184 : AIR 1955 Manipur 9.

——S. 124-A — Scope — Creation of disorder not necessary.

Sedition embraces all those practices, whether by word, deed or writing, which are calculated to disturb the tranquility of State and lead ignorant persons to endeavour to subvert the Government and the law of the country. Section 124-A of the Code thus clearly shows that sedition does not necessarily involve any creation of disorder. 1955 Cri L J 184 : AIR 1955 Manipur 9 (13) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

—— Ss. 124-A and 153-A — Hatred or contempt.

The accused were stated to have distributed at a meeting three leaflets which contained the statements that ranks of "Mayangs" had come into the State of Manipur and that outsiders were suppressing the people and that the Government had been placed in the hands of two refugees while every other State was enjoying self-Government.

A general criticism of certain officer or officers could not be deemed to be a criticism of Government established by law and order in British India and as it was not shown by the prosecution conclusively that the word 'Mayang' defined any particular class of people the accused could not be deemed to be guilty under Ss. 124-A and 153-A, Penal Code, simply because they used the word 'Mayang' in the leaflets. The pamphlets did not show that the accused ever brought or attempted to bring the Government established by law in India into hatred and contempt and that they did anything to disturb the security of the State or public order. Further even if any non-violent movement was to be started by other groups and it was to be started by some members of the public, the accused could not legally be deemed to be guilty either under S. 124-A or under S. 153-A, Penal Code. 1955 Cri L J 184 : AIR 1955 Manipur 9 (15, 16) (Pt E) (Prs 23, 25).

——Ss. 124-A and 153-A — Validity — Provisions are not rendered void on ground that they are inconsistent with fundamental right of freedom of speech and expression guaranteed to all citizens of India under Art. 19 (1) (a), Constitution of India. See Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (a). 1954 Cri L J 758 : AIR 1954 Pat 254 (DB).

—— Ss. 124-A and 153-A—Scope.

The speeches made must be considered as a whole and in a fair, free and liberal spirit, not dwelling too much upon isolated passages or upon a strong expression used here and there; in other words, an attempt should be made to gather the general effect of the speeches as a whole. The intention of the speaker in using the words complained of is relevant; but the intention must be gathered from the language used, as also from the whole of the circumstances in which the speeches were made including the audience to whom they were addressed. 1954 Cri L J 758 : I L R 32 Pat 1104 : 1954 B L J R 99 : AIR 1954 Pat 254 (260) (Pt D) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Ss. 124-A, 153-A—Applicability.

The general effect of the speeches was that the Adibasi Mahasabha wanted a separate State or region called Jharkhand with a separate administration for the Adibasis; and in giving reasons for such a claim or demand criticisms were made of certain administrative and legislative measures of the Government of Bihar.

Held, that our Constitution contained provisions for the formation of new States, alteration of the boundaries of existing States, etc., and an agitation for the formation of a new State did not necessarily come within the mischief of Ss. 124-A and 153-A. The agitation was not based on an incitement to violence or attempts to bring the existing Government into hatred or contempt, etc., though some of the criticisms were ill-informed and couched in crude and impolite language. 1954 Cri L J 758 : ILR 32 Pat 1104 : 1954 B L J R 99 : AIR 1954 Pat 254 (260) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

—— Ss. 124-A, 153-A—Criticism of Government.

In a democratic country criticisms of Governmental measures and administrative action are to some extent unavoidable; they are made for the purpose of enlisting popular support, and in considering the effect of such criticisms no serious notice ought to be taken of crude, blundering attempts or of rhetorical exaggerations by which nobody is likely to be impressed. With the change of times, the effect of criticisms also changes; what was damaging contempt or hatred of a bureaucratic Government is not so of a popular Government—a Government which can neither afford to be hyper-sensitive, nor impervious to criticism. 1954 Cri L J 758; ILR 32 Pat 1104: 1954 B L J R 99 : AIR 1954 Pat 254 (261) (Pt E) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Ss. 124-A and 153-A — Validity—Constitution of India, Arts. 19 and 372—Adaptation of Laws Order, 1950.

Both Ss. 124 A and 153-A, I. P. Code, have become void as providing unwarranted restriction on the freedom of speech and expression guaranteed by Art. 19 of the Constitution.

As the continuance of law is made expressly subject to provisions of the Constitution other than Art. 395, Art. 372 of the Constitution can be of no assistance to the continuing validity of S. 124-A or any other section of the Penal Code.

Paragraph 28 of the Adaptation of Laws Order, 1950 does not give to the Courts authority to remodel the law so as to make good what otherwise would become void under the Constitution. 52 Cr L J 449 : 5 A I Cr D 245 : 53 P L R 22 : I L R (1951) Punj 193 : AIR 1951 Punj 27 (29, 30) (Pt C) (Prs 13 & 15) (DB).

● ——S. 124-A — Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1) (b), (d) and (h) — Provisions must be liberally interpreted in favour of subject—Incitement to violence or disorder is not essential for offence of sedition — Reasonable criticism of Government not leading to hatred, contempt or disaffection, is permissible. See Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1) (b) (d) and (h). 51 Cri L J 725 : AIR 1950 East Punj 150 (SB).

● ——S. 124-A, Expls. II and III — Right to criticise Government—Limits, pointed out—Travancore News-Papers Act (5 of 1101), S. 5 (i) — Travancore Penal Code, S. 117, Expls. II and III. See Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1), Expls. II and III. 51 Cri L J 1536 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 83 (FB).

● ——S. 124-A — Distinction between section 4 (1), Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), and S. 124-A, Penal Code, pointed out—Travancore Newspapers Act (5 of 1101), S. 5 (i)—Travancore Penal Code, S. 117, See Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1). 51 Cri L J 1536 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 83 (FB).

● ——S. 124-A —Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1) (d) — Incitement to people to rebellion, not necessary to bring publication within section — Travancore Newspapers Act (5 of 1101), S. 5 (i) — Travancore Penal Code, S. 117. See Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1) (d). 51 Cri L J 1536 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 83 (FB).

● ——S. 124-A—Article attempting to lower Minister in public estimation is libellous of Minister but not seditions of Government. See Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1) (d). 51 Cri L J 1536 : AIR 1950 TC 83 (FB).

● ——S. 124-A — Attack on Ministry, is attack on Government, for purposes of sedition under Travancore Newspapers Act (5 of 1101), S. 5 (i) (a) and Travancore Penal Code, S. 117. See Press (Emergency Powers) Act (1931), S. 4 (1) (d). 51 Cri L J 1536 : AIR 1950 T C 83 (FB).

SECTION 129

—S. 129 — Expression while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty—Interpretation of — Question substantially one of fact — Act complained must be directly concerned with official duties—Duty of Magistrate in determining question of sanction pointed out. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197. 1963 (2) Cri L J 573 (Pat).

SECTION 141

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 141.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. "Unlawful assembly."
3. Common object.
4. Common object and same or similar object—Distinction.
5. Clauses fourth and fifth.
6. Charge.
7. Explanation.

1. Scope and applicability.

—S. 141 — Applicability — Members resisting attacks in self-defence—Offence.

If an assembly of persons resisted an attack upon them, the action of such members of the assembly in defending their persons and properties could take away its character as an unlawful assembly. 1961 All W R (Sup) 245 : 1961 All Cr R 161 : 65 Cal W N 645.

—Ss. 141, 147—Prosecutian of five or more named persons — Court entertaining doubt about presence of some reducing number of remaining persons below five — No conviction of latter under S. 147. ILR (1960) Bom 626 : 62 Bom L R 514 : 1960 Nag L J 362 : 1960 All W R (Sup) 45 : 1960 All Cr R 267 : 1960 Cri L J 1571 : ILR (1960) Bom 626 : AIR 1960 Bom 515 (515) (Pr 2).

● —Ss. 141, 299 and 34—Applicability — Question of applicability of S. 34 may also come up for consideration in proper cases and so also question of applicability of S. 141 when five or more persons form an unlawful assembly with common object and intention of committing murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1954 Cri L J 454 : AIR 1954 Hyd 54 (FB).

—S. 141 — Hyderabad Penal Code — Ss. 119 and 123 and 124—Applicability — Conditions of conviction for rioting—Essentials to be proved.

Before a person could be held guilty of rioting under S. 123 or 124, Hyderabad Penal Code, it is essential that he should have been a member of an unlawful assembly as defined in S. 119 of that Code. It must further be proved that force or intimidation was employed in furtherance of a common object, which common object must be an unlawful object.

Where the common object charged in the charge-sheet is a conspiracy to take revenge, and the challan mentions the common object of the assembly to be bringing to book persons who dared assault and insult a peon of the Irrigation Department of the Government of the State and snatched Government property from him, the object mentioned must be held to be not only unobjectionable but laudable when the charge does not mention or specify how the object was unlawful and in what way the party could be said to be an unlawful assembly. AIR 1952 Hyd 25 (27) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

—S. 141 — Liability of leader — Accredited leader of party not exerting his power of influence to stop the unlawful acts—It may be said that as leader and a person of authority, the constructive liability is enlarged enough to embrace him, under doctrine of common objective in cases of unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 52 Cri L J 1123 : AIR 1951 Hyd 97 (DB).

—Ss. 141, 149, 302—Unlawful assembly—Common object — Carrying of weapons — Conviction under S. 149 read with S. 302 held justified. AIR 1956 S C 513 has no application. 1964 (1) Cri L J 198 : AIR 1964 Madh Pra 30 (40) (Pt F) (Prs 41, 42, 43) (DB).

—Ss. 141, 146, 147 and 148 — Burden of proof — Duty of Court — Principles to be observed.

The fundamental principles which a Court of law will have to observe in convicting the accused in cases of mammoth rioting are :

Firstly, notwithstanding the large number of rioters or of the persons put up in Court for rioting and the consequent difficulty for the prosecution to name the specific act attributed to each of the accused, the Court must see to it that all the ingredients required for unlawful assembly and rioting are strictly proved by the prosecution before convicting that particular accused. The fact that there was a thousand rioters, and 122 accused before the Sessions Judge, will not take away from the prosecution even an iota of the responsibility of proving them. Just as the culprits in undetected crimes escape punishment, unproved persons also must be unhesitatingly acquitted.

Secondly, spectators, wayfarers, etc., attracted to the scene of the rioting by curiosity, as generally happens in the countryside when a riot or affray is going on should not be, by reason of their mere presence at the scene and with the rioters, held to be members of the unlawful assembly or rioters.

Thirdly it will be very unsafe, in the case of such large mobs of rioters to rely on the evidence of a single witness speaking to the presence of an accused in the mob for convicting him, especially when no overt act of violence or shouting of slogan, or organising the mob or giving orders to it or marching in procession with it, or other similar thing is proved against him.

The fourth principle to be observed in such cases is that where there are such acute factions one based agrarian disputes and troubles, another on political wrangling and rivalry and third on caste division, or the division of the haves and the have-nots, the greatest care must be exercised before believing the evidence of a particular witness belonging to one of these factions against an accused of the opposite views. This principle becomes of special importance when there are no overt acts, etc., proved.

The fifth principle to be observed is that mere followers in rioting deserve a much more lenient sentence than leaders.

Once the prosecution has proved against an accused his marching along with the rioters, it is the duty of that accused to show that though he was found marching with the rioters he was with the group not with any unlawful common object of committing rioting, but only out of curiosity. If he fails to prove that, he is liable to be convicted under S. 147 of the Penal Code. (1951) 2 M L J 446 : 1951 Mad W N 829 : 1951 Mad W N (Cri) 249 : ILR (1952) Mad 728 : 53 Cri L J 583 : ILR (1952) Mad 728 : AIR 1952 Mad 267 (269, 270) (Pt B) (Prs 6 to 10).

—S. 141—Scope and object of.

The object of S. 141 is to prevent resort to criminal force by five or more persons to do any of the acts set out in the section. Cl. (4) lays down that an assembly of five or more persons is an unlawful assembly if their common object is to take or obtain possession of any property or to deprive any person of the enjoyment of a right of way or of the use of water or other incorporeal right of which he is in possession or enjoyment or to enforce any right or supposed right by means of criminal force.

No person is entitled to vindicate his right to possession of any property by resort to criminal force. That right is subject to the limitations in Ss. 96 to 106. When there is an actual invasion of one's property or person and there is no time to seek the aid of public authorities the right of private defence is available and that right extends also to S. 141, Penal Code. It would depend on the circumstances of each case in order to determine the question as to whether five or more persons having a common object joined together and committed a particular crime. In all these cases it should be clear from the evidence that the party exercising the right he claims is in possession of that right and that he is entitled to resist or repel aggression in order to maintain that right.

In the case of incorporeal rights such as for instance a right of way, a right to use water, etc., no one is in possession of it except during the actual moment when he is peacefully exercising it. The right to use the water arises only when the water is actually made available which again vests in Government who as the controlling authority regulates the flow and the use of the water from a tank. Any attempt to vindicate such a right by the use of force must necessarily be an attempt to "enforce a right or supposed right" within the meaning of Cl. (4) of S. 141, Penal Code, and not an act to maintain an existing right of peaceful possession. ILR (1952) Cut 219.

——S. 141 — Applicability — Processionists uttering provocative slogans and afterwards resorting to pelting of stones, removal of trellis and burning it —Effect.

The processionists were in an agitated mood, and they were uttering slogans which were provocative. But such denunciatory exhortations or similar singsong declarations by a tumultuous crowd ordinarily are not likely to inspire terror. Not being satisfied by a demonstration outside the Police Post for nearly two hours, they resorted to pelting of stones which actually injured a number of members of the police force and they also removed the trellis and burnt it.

Held, that this act of the crowd brought their conduct within the four corners of S. 141, first and third clauses. 62 Punj L R 37 : 1960 Cri L J 646 : AIR 1960 Punj 271 (274) (Pt A) (Pr 39).

—— S, 141—Constructive liability.

Simply because certain persons are present in a crowd at the time of a riot by certain members of their community, it cannot be said that these also who used no violence, were guilty of the riot. 1957 Cri L J 1187 : AIR 1957 Raj 331 (336) (Pt G) (Pr 17).

2. "Unlawful assembly".

●——Ss. 141, 149—Unlawful assembly — Whether person is member of unlawful assembly — Tests.

That the mere presence in an assembly does not make a person, who is present, a member of an unlawful assembly unless it is shown that he had done something or omitted to do something which would make him a member of an unlawful assembly, or unless the case falls under S. 142, I. P. C., cannot be read as laying down a general proposition of law that unless an overt act is proved against a person who is alleged to be a member of an unlawful assembly, it cannot be said that he is a member of such an unlawful assembly. What has to be proved against a person who is alleged to be a member of an unlawful assembly is that he was one of the persons constituting the assembly and he entertained along with the other members of the assembly the common object as defined by S. 141, I. P. C. The crucial question to determine is whether the assembly consisted of five or more persons and whether the said persons entertained one or more of the common objects as specified by S. 141. While determining this question, it becomes relevant to consider whether the assembly consisted of some persons who were merely passive witnesses. In fact, S. 149 makes it clear that if an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object, every person who, at the time of the committing of that offence, is a member of the same assembly; is guilty of that offence; and that emphatically brings out the principle that the punishment prescribed by S. 149 is in a sense vicarious and does not always proceed on the basis that the offence has been actually committed by every member of the unlawful assembly. Masalti v. State of U.P., 1964 S C D 980: (1965) 1 Andh L T 19 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 226 : 1964 Mad W N 588 : (1965) 1 S C J 605 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 312 : (1964) 8 S C R 133 : I L R (1964) 2 All 694 : AIR 1965 S C 202 (210) (Pt G) (Pr 17).

●——Ss. 141 and 149—Unlawful assembly—Constitution of—Conviction of less than five—Actual number of assailants' party consisting of five or more persons —Party is unlawful assembly though only three are convicted. Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, 1963 1 S C J 298: (1963) Mad L J (Cri) 175 : 1962 All Cri R 23 : 1962 All W R (H C) 16 : 1962) 2 S C R 395 : 1961 (2) Cr L J 853 : AIR 1961 S C 1787 (1789) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

●——Ss. 141, 142 and 146 — Mere presence of person does not make him member of unlawful assembly — Evidence required, nature of.

It is well settled that mere presence in an assembly does not make such a person a member of an unlawful assembly unless it is shown that he had done something or omitted to do something which would make him a member of an unlawful assembly, or unless the case falls under S. 142, Indian Penal Code. If members of the family of the appellants and other residents of the village assembled, all such persons could not be condemned ipso facto as being members of that unlawful assembly. It is necessary therefore for the prosecution to lead evidence pointing to the conclusion that all the appellants had done or been committing some overt act in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly. The omnibus evidence in general terms to the effect that all these persons and many more were the miscreants and were armed with deadly weapons, like guns, spears, pharsas, axes, lathis, etc., naturally has to be very closely scrutinised in order to eliminate all chances of false or mistaken implication.

Their Lordships examined the case of each individual accused to satisfy themselves that mere spectators who had not joined the assembly and who were unaware of its motive had not been branded as members of the unlawful assembly which committed the dastardly crimes. Baladin v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1956 Cri L J 345 : AIR 1956 S C 181 (189) (Pt E) (Pr 19).

●——S. 141—Applicability—Free fight — Unlawful assembly.

Held, that, having regard to finding reached by High Court that riot took place at narrow path as a result of dispute about Nepali pilgrim and further fact that G's party received more numerous injuries one of which was fatal, it was obivious that G's party could be said to have constituted unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 96. 1954 Cri L J 1746 : AIR 1954 S C 695.

——S. 141 — Applicability — Object of assembly to loot house of a person and cause damage to property — Assembly is unlawful assembly. 1953 All W R (H C) 389 : 1953 Cri L J 1729 : AIR 1953 All 749 (750) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——S. 141 — Unlawful assembly of five persons with common object of beating victim — They splitting themselves in two parties for trapping victim — They still form unlawful assembly. 1950 All L J 246 : 51 Cri L J 1133 : 1950 All W R (H C) 376 : I L R (1951) 2 All 141 : AIR 1950 All 418 (419) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 141 and 147 —Applicability—Number being less than five.

To constitute the offence of rioting there should be at least five persons and force should be used in prosecution of the common object. If the number is less than five there could be no unlawful assembly and consequently no rioting. If it is proved that besides the persons found guilty, there were other persons unidentified the position is different. But when it is alleged that a particular number of persons took part in the rioting and the prosecution could not establish that five or more than five persons out of them took part in the crime, the charge under S. 147, Penal Code can not be sustained. Case Law discussed. AIR 1955 N U C (Andh Pra) 2042.

● —S. 141 — Unlawful assembly.

The formation of an unlawful assembly is not to be assumed merely because 5 or more persons meet at a particular place and shortly afterwords some offence or offences are committed. I L R (1951) 3 Assam 96 (DB).

——S. 141 — Evidence — Mere presence at the time of offence not sufficient — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 114).

The mere fact that a person resides in the same street or his mere presence at the time when the offence of rioting is committed, is not sufficient to show that he was a member of the unlawful assembly, which committed the offence, 1956 Cri L J 1066 : AIR 1956 Bom 609 (611) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 141 — Common object must be established. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3407 (DB).

——Ss. 141, 142 and 146—Applicability — Rioting — Conviction cannot be sustained unless it is proved that there was unlawful assembly, and force was used and an offence committed—Mere assembly of persons is not unlawful assembly. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 1322.

——S. 141—Unlawful assembly—What constitutes — Proof—Nature of—Test regarding, laid down. 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : 38 Mys L J 1039 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 55 : I L R (1960) Mys 1238 : A I R 1961 Mys 57 (61) (Pt B) (Prs 25, 32) (DB).

——Ss. 141, 149—Free fight between two groups — Whether accused constructively responsible for acts of others.

If there is a free fight between the party of the accused and the party of the deceased none of the accused can be held constructively responsible for the acts of others. Each one must be held responsible for his own act. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 355 : 39 Mys L J 481 : ILR (1961) Mys 605.

——S. 141—Unlawful assembly — Test for determination.

If more than five persons group together with the determination to vindicate their right or supposed right by unlawful force, they could be designated an unlawful assembly. No conspiracy or preconcerted meditation need always be proved to constitute an unlawful assembly and the test is whether the common object could reasonably be inferred from direct as well as circumstantial evidence including the conduct of parties. It is not the nature of the right but the criminality involved in the determination of using force and the actions otherwise than in due course of law that determine the nature of an assembly. Even though the Muslims may have a right to prohibit the playing of music before a mosque they cannot enforce such prohibition by using criminal force and attacking the processionists which beyond doubt constitute an offence of rioting. No question of self-defence arises. The common object is not to protect a right, but to enforce the same. They therefore constitute an unlawful assembly to enforce their right or supposed right. 3 Mys L J 237 : 2 Mys C Cr 194 : 18 Mys C C R 146, Rel. on. ('51) 55 Mys H C R 317.

——S. 141—Unlawful assembly — Quarrel between two persons—Others taking sides later—It would not form unlawful assembly unless they had a preconcerted plan for prosecution of common object—In absence of proof conviction under S. 147 set aside. 1957 M P C 138 : 1957 M P L J 111 : I L R (1956) Nag 899.

——S. 141—'Unlawful assembly'—Magistrate declaring assembly unlawful and asking it to disperse — Failure to disperse — Offence.

After an assembly is declared unlawful and asked to disperse, failure to do so is a sufficient indication of a behaviour from which it can justifiably be concluded that the persons assembled were members of unlawful assembly. When an authorised person like a Magistrate commands an assembly to disperse after declaring it to be unlawful, persons who are voluntarily and deliberately remaining there in disobedience to the proclamation, cannot be held to be neutrals or curiosity smitten spectator. 62 Punj L R 37 : 1960 Cri L J 646 : AIR 1960 Punj 271 (274) (Pt C) (Pr 41).

——Ss. 141 and 99 — Unlawful assembly — Applicability — Accused gathering in force, defending his possession.

If the party of the accused are within their rights in peaceably occupying the field in dispute when it is lying vacant and preparing it for cultivation they are entitled to resist by force any attempt by the rival claimants to the land to prevent them from doing so and in doing so the accused cannot be said to constitute unlawful assembly. It is no offence for a person who is acting within his rights to make preparations for resisting an invasion of those rights.

And where the nearest police station is more than 10 miles from the field, it cannot be said that the accused are not entitled to gather a force in the field in order to protect their rights rather than have recourse to the public authorities.

The accused are entitled to use force as a defence against criminal trespass by the opposite party in the field, and even if the offence against which they are protecting themselves are only criminal trespass they are entitled under the law to cause any harm short of death. 56 Punj L R 252 : 1954 Cri L J 1518 : I L R (1955) Punj 80 : AIR 1954 Punj 232 (234, 235) (Pt B) (Prs 8 to 11) (DB).

——S. 141—Essence of offence—Active participation in actual violence — Necessity.

Active participation in actual violence is not necessary; persons who by words or by signs or otherwise encourage violence are equally members of the unlawful assembly. ILR (1960) 10 Raj 1200 : 1960 Raj L W 565 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 155 : AIR 1961 Raj 24 (27) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——S. 141 — Applicability — Minimum number required — Use of criminal force — Inference.

For an unlawful assembly, the minimum number required is five. Thus where the evidence showed that eight persons were armed with lathis which they wielded and belaboured the deceased and when others went to the rescue of the victim they were also beaten :

Held, that there was no doubt that force or violence was used at the time of the occurrence. The fact that no external or internal injuries were found on the person of the deceased at the time of the post mortem examination would not make the story about the belabouring of the deceased a mere myth. 1957 Cri L J 1187 : AIR 1957 Raj 331 (335) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——Ss. 141 and 146 — Applicability — There should be definite finding that number of persons was five or more than five. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 5017.

——Ss. 141 and 142 — Scope — Unlawful assembly— Spectators in the assembly are not guilty of rioting or of being members of unlawful assembly. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1080 (DB).

3. Common object.

——S. 141—Common object — Unlawful assembly— Object.

Complainant and his party going armed with lathis pharsa and gandasa to field in dispute with intention of harvesting crop sown by accused G and meeting any resistance that might be offered to them in their wrongful act — Subsequently accused G and his party going to field which was in G's possession and protesting against wrongful act of complainant's party and stating that crop would not be allowed to be taken by them—Fighting arising between two parties resulting in death of one person and injuries to five persons on complainant's side and injuries to three persons on side of accused—Held it could not be said that accused formed an unlawful assembly when their object was to save their property. See Penal Code (1860), S. 96. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3285 (DB).

——Ss. 141, 147 — Common object — Change over— Evidence.

Change over of the common object could only be established by evidence of the conduct of the details connected with the movement in the activity of the assembly. 1958 Andh L T 856.

——S. 141 — Common object—Specific offences not proved — Common object if should be found to be non-existent.

Merely because the specific offences with which members of an unlawful assembly are charged are are not proved it does not mean that the common object of the unlawful assembly should be found to be non-existent. The acquittal based on the absence of proof regarding the overt acts attributed to an individual offender does not mean that the unlawful assembly was not animated by a common object to commit some offences. AIR 1955 N U C (Andh-Pra) 6009.

——S. 141 (4)—Common object.

Where a civil Court has declared the right of way with respect to a path in favour of the accused and against the complainant, the accused cannot be said to have the common object as described in S. 141 (4) if they debar the complainant any access to the pathway. ILR (1953) 5 Assam 191 : 1954 Cri L J 358 : AIR 1954 Assam 57 (57) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Ss. 141, 143, 441 and 447 — Common object— Unlawful assembly with intent to commit criminal trespass—Intention—Proof.

Where the gravamen of the two charges under Ss. 143 and 447, Penal Code of which the accused were convicted, was that the accused formed themselves into an unlawful assembly with the common object of committing criminal trespass and actually committed criminal trespass by entering upon the land of the complainant by constructing huts thereon it is essentially necessary to see whether the evidence establishes the ingredients of S. 441, Penal Code.

In order to constitute an offence of criminal trespass under the first part of S. 441 there must be entry upon property in possession of another with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy the person in possession of the property.

It is necessary in a case of this kind to examine the evidence relative to the state of mind of the person who is alleged to have committed the offence, and it would be utterly wrong to rely on the result. The resultant annoyance or insult felt by the complainant is a wholly irrelevant consideration in a charge under S. 441.

If the evidence is insufficient to prove the substantive charge of criminal trespass it will be extremely difficult to hold that the accused were members of an unlawful assembly the only common object of which was to commit the offence of criminal trespass; as an abstract proposition of law it might not be inconceivable that some persons might form themselves into an unlawful assembly for the purpose of committing an offence of criminal trespass although no actual offence of trespass was committed; but then that would be a position very much divorced from the realities of the situation. 1955 Cri L J 1338 : I L R (1957) 1 Cal 518 : AIR 1955 Cal 515 (516) (Prs 9 to 11, 13).

——S. 141 — Common object — Unlawful assembly beating deceased —Another batch joining it and beating deceased — Members of the second batch can be said to have joined unlawful assembly with the same common intention. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 2931 (DB).

——S. 141 — 'Common object' — How to be determined.

The common object has to be determined with reference to the evidence in each particular case. The nature of the weapons used or the injury inflicted may be a guide in deciding the common object, but it is not decisive. No hard and fast rule can be laid down. 1960 Ker L T 965.

——S. 141—Common object—Proof.

It is not possible for the prosecution to prove what was in the minds of the persons assembled. That can only be inferred by the subsequent conduct of the assembly. It is not necessary to prove that there was a previous concert regarding the common object. The common object can be even after the original assembly was formed.

When the Magistrate asked the crowd to disperse they refused and continued to be there and began to pelt stones and create obstruction and cause mischief.

Held, that the assembly had the common object mentioned in section 141, first, third, fourth and fifth. 1962 (2) Cr L J 147 (154) (Pt D) (Pr 30) (Manipur).

——S. 141—Proof of common object.

Existence of a common unlawful object is a requisite for an unlawful assembly under the Code and unless there is proof of an agreement amongst persons to do anything or a plan to carry out a design, and if this is not possible unless it is shown that an inference in support of it can reasonably be drawn from the relations, acts and conducts of the parties, persons cannot be constructively made liable for other's acts.

From the mere fact of all or some of the accused being found at the scene of the occurrence at the time when the deceased was injured, it cannot be inferred that they were members of an unlawful assembly. Nor is it reasonable to assume from the acts themselves that the persons present had a common object to commit them and that they were committed in pursuance of a common object. AIR 1923 Mad 369 (2), Rel. on.

Where it is stated in the judgment that the attack was not pre-concerted and there was no arrangement by accused to meet at the spot to murder the deceased, the accused cannot have been members of an unlawful assembly if no other object suggested. 32 Mys L J 83 : I L R (1953) Mys 69 : 1953 Cri L J 1001 : 1953 All W R (Sup) 78 : A I R 1953 Mys 41 (42) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 141—Common object—Proof.

In order to prove common object it is necessary to establish a connection between those who take active part in a riot and those who merely utter some words intended to provide encouragement. This can only be done by showing that the former became aware of what the latter said. 1951 Nag L J 163 : 52 Cri L J 813 : ILR (1951) Nag 45 : AIR 1951 Nag 47 (1) (47) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——S. 141—Common object.

To constitute an unlawful assembly, the common object of the assembly must be an immediate one to be carried into effect forthwith. If a certain number of people meet merely to arrange a plan for some future action, on an uncertain event taking place, it cannot be said that they had assembled to carry out some plan forthwith. There should be some present and immediate purpose of carrying into effect the common object. If five or more persons meet for deliberations only or to arrange some plans for future action which may be brought into effect individually and not necessarily jointly, that would not constitute an unlawful assembly. A I R 1925 Rang 326, Rel. on. AIR 1954 Pat 194 (195) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 141 — 'Common object' — What constitutes—Inference—Factors to be considered.

If a few individuals were to take it into their head to damage the trellis or to throw brickbats on members of the police force, their individual action could not be confused with the common object of the persons composing the assembly. In order to determine common object of the assembly, circumstances of the case, the attitude and deportment of the persons assembled very often furnish key to their mental bent. A person who encourages, or promotes, or takes part in rioting, whether by words, signs or gestures, or even by wearing the badge or ensign of the rioters becomes a rioter, for in this case all are deemed principals. On the other hand, a mere presence without encouragement is not enough to establish criminality. 62 Punj L R 37 : 1960 Cr L J 646 : AIR 1960 Punj 271 (274) (Pt B) (Pr 40).

——S. 141 — Common object — Time of forming unlawful intent—Relevancy.

It is not necessary that the intention or the purpose which is necessary to render an assembly an unlawful one, need not come into existence at the outset. The time of forming an unlawful intent is not material. An assembly which at its commencement or even for some time thereafter is lawful, may subsequently become unlawful, or even riotous. To constitute a riot, the original intention need not be riotous. The unlawfulness of an assembly depends on its behaviour, purpose for which it meets, the manner in which it expresses itself, and the means which are used by its members to consummate the common object, though the actual consummation of its purpose is not essential and it may remain unexecuted. 62 Punj L R 37 : 1960 Cri L J 646 : AIR 1960 Punj 271 (275) (Pt D) (Pr 42).

——Ss. 141, 148, 149 and 302 — Rioting — Conditions — Common object — Beating with sharp weapons resulting in death—Liability of members.

After a quarrel at village J with A's wife and son the accused persons, six in number and armed with various weapons started together towards another village where A had gone. A, having been informed of the incident at J, also started towards J, with some of his relations. On the way the head of the accused party threw a challenge to A and began beating him. Other accused persons also followed suit and caused injuries to A and his men of whom one died immediately.

Held, (i) that the conduct of the accused proved that they had come with the common object of belabouring A and anybody who came to intervene on his behalf. (ii) that it was certainly an unlawful common object and the assembly was therefore an unlawful assembly. As violence was committed, the offence fell under S. 148, Penal Code. (iii) that at any rate this unlawful common object had developed when one of the accused threw out a challenge to A and soon indulged in beating him and the other accused persons also followed suit and gave beating to A and other members of his party. (iv) that numerous bodily injuries resulting in death of one were deliberately caused indiscriminately without caring for the consequences. As however it was doubtful as to which of the accused actually caused the fatal injury, any one of them could not be convicted under S. 302 pure and simple. But since four persons took part in beating the deceased they could be held guilty of offence under S. 302 by virtue of S. 149, Penal Code. (v) that S. 149 applies not only to offences actually committed in pursuance of the common object but also to offences that members of the assembly know are likely to be committed. AIR 1956 S C 513 and AIR 1956 S C 241, Relied on. 1958 Cr L J 1232 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 997 : AIR 1958 Raj 226 (232 to 235) (Pt B) (Prs 20, 21, 24, 25, 27) DB).

——S. 141 — 'Common object'.

Where the evidence on record showed that there was bad blood between the Ahirs of the village and the Chamars who claimed to break banjar, that the accused came armed with lathis and began belabouring the deceased and his son who wanted to rescue his father and that the Ahirs out-numbered the Chamars :

Held, that there was common object of teaching the Chamars a lesson for the audacity to claim to break the banjar and the accused were rightly convicted under S. 147, Penal Code. They might also having been convicted at least under S. 323, Penal Code read with S. 149, Penal Code but simply because they have not been so convicted, it does not mean that they should be acquitted of the offence of rioting also. 1957 Cri L J 1187 : AIR 1957 Raj 331 (336) (Pt F) (Pr 16).

——Ss. 141 and 142—Unlawful assembly—Evidence.

Villagers numbering about 1200 men gathering to consider and deliberate ways and means to check menace from nearby settlement of criminal tribes — Police officers also invited to gathering — Villagers coming with sticks — Few members advocating use of violence while majority opposing it — These facts held did not make the assembly an unlawful one — So long as the meeting was at stage of deliberation it could not be said that they had any common object in their view — In order to find out the common object of an unlawful assembly at the beginning; it is not a legitimate method to take the actual offence committed by certain persons in the course of riot at the later stage and to infer therefrom that such activities were originally part of the common object of the whole assembly. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1080 (DB).

——S. 141—Common object.

The only ingredient necessary is that the object should be common to the persons who composed the assembly, that is to say, they should all be aware of it and concur in it. There must also be some present and immediate purpose of carrying into effect the common object.

The common object of the unlawful assembly has to be considered with reference to what transpired on the date of the occurrence. 1953 Cri L J 1301 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 275 (277, 280) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 15) (DB).

4. Common object and same or similar object — Distinction.

——S. 141 — Scope — Common object and similar object — Distinction pointed out. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1960 Cri L J 1329 : AIR 1960 Guj 13 (DB).

——S. 141 — Common object — Same object.

The same object is not necessarily a common object, but it becomes so only when it is known to and shared by all having it. 1951 Nag L J 163 : I L R (1951) Nag 45 : AIR 1951 Nag 47 (1) (47) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

5. Clauses fourth and fifth.

——Ss. 141, 146 and 96 — Vindication of rights by use of force.

If a party is forced to maintain or defend his rights it cannot be said that he was determined to vindicate his rights by show or use of force. Kapildas Singh v. The King, 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 83 : 1950 Raj L W 62 : 1950 Mad W N 327 : 63 Mad L W 501 : ILR 29 Pat 391 : 51 Cri L J 1057 : 1949 F C R 834 : 1950 S C J 143 : 52 Bom L R 512 : AIR 1950 F C 80 (81) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Ss. 141, 97, 148, 149 and 326 — Accused more than 4 armed with deadly weapons trying to enforce their disputed right to usufruct of mango trees — Incident resulting in simple injuries and grievous hurt resulting in death of person — No physical resistance encountered by accused—Offence of which accused were guilty — Accused held not entitled to Right of private defence — Accused held constituted themselves into unlawful assembly and every one of them would be guilty not only under S. 148 but also under S. 326 read with S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1961 (1) Cri L J 403 : AIR 1961 Mys 74 (DB).

——S. 141, Cl. 4 — 'Enforce any right or supposed right'—Meaning of—Act done in defending or maintaining right already in enjoyment of person — Not covered by Cl. (4).

The use of the terms 'any right' or 'supposed right, in S. 141, Cl. (4) does not indicate any difference or distinction in the application of the section depending upon the actual existence of a right and the supposed existence of that right. Whether that right exists or is merely supposed to exist, the essence of the fourth clause of S. 141 is the use or show of criminal force to enforce that right. The expression 'enforce a right' implies the existence of two persons —the person who enforces it and the person against whom it is enforced. Such a situation can arise when the property over which, or the subject in respect of which, the right is sought to be enforced, is not in the possession of the person trying to enforce that right. The import of the phrase used in the section, relates to an act done in furtherance of any right or claim of right and not to an act done in defending or maintaining the right already in the enjoyment of the person. 1961 (1) Cri L J 403 : 38 Mys L J 995 : ILR (1960) Mys 1126 : AIR 1961 Mys 74 (81) (Pt D) (Pr 52) (DB).

——S. 141 (fifthly), 142, 143, 148 — 'Unlawful assembly'—Ingredients.

An agreement reached between the Hindus and Muslims of a place whereby the Muslims agreed not to object to processions being taken out with music in front of a mosque on a high-way on occasions of national festivals cannot have the effect of a decree of Court or an award of arbitrators defining and declaring the rights of the parties. 38 Mys L J 293 and A I R 1925 P C 36 and A I R 1944 P C 33, Rel. on.

Such an agreement will not give any right to the members of the Muslim Community to prevent the processionists to proceed along the mosque on the public highway with music. By such obstruction the persons would constitute themselves an unlawful assembly within the meaning of S. 141 (fifthly). 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : 38 Mys L J 1039 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 55 : ILR (1960) Mys 1238 : A I R 1961 Mys 57 (61) (Pt A) (Prs 21, 22) (DB).

——Ss. 141, 149, 341—Applicability — Accused preventing processionists from proceeding along mosque on public high-way with music—Accused held guilty under S. 341 read with S. 149 — But in view of the general nature of the incident itself and in view of the fact that the accused would be liable to punishment by virtue of S. 149 held it will be more proper and more logical not to record a separate conviction against these accused in respect of individual acts under S. 341. 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : 38 Mys L J 1039: 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 55 : ILR (1960) Mys 1238 : AIR 1961 Mys 57 (62) (Pt C) (Pr 39) (DB).

——Ss. 141, Fourth and fifth — 'Enforcing right' — What amounts to.

Where the Civil Court decree had declared the right of the accused party to erect a bund on the junction of two plots, and there was nothing to prevent them from doing so, it cannot be said that the action of the accused in going to the spot to erect a bund was illegal. There could be no question of their enforcing any right within the meaning of Cl. (4) or (5) of S. 141, Penal Code. 1959 Pat L R 12 : 1959 B L J R 272.

——S. 141, Fourth and fifth — 'To enforce any right or supposed right' in Cl. (4)—Assault with a view to defend one's right in property—Offence.

When people go to defend their rights, that cannot be described as enforcing any right or supposed right. In the Cl. (5) of S. 141, Penal Code, nothing has been mentioned about defending one's right. In other words, if a person defends his right it is not considered to be illegal for the purposes of unlawful assembly. Where a person is forced to maintain or defend his right, he cannot, when charged with an offence under S. 147, Penal Code, be said to have committed any illegal act. There is a difference between 'forced to maintain or defend' any right and 'to enforce any right or supposed right. What S. 141, Penal Code, prohibits is enforcing any right or supposed right and not maintaining or defending one's right. The common object of the assembly may be to assault. But every assault is not illegal. If the assault takes place in order to defend one's right or maintain one's right, then such an assault by itself cannot be said to be illegal. A I R 1950 F C 80, Rel. on. 1957 B L J R 442 : 1957 Pat L R 156 : 1958 Cri L J 1215 : A I R 1958 Pat 492 (493) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——S. 141 — Party claiming possession attacked by party in possession—Determination to fight—Offence —Plea of self-defence—Sustainability—Ss. 97, 98 and 99. 1958 Raj L W 505.

6. Charge.

——S. 141 — Charge against five persons — Three of them acquitted charge against remaining accused will not fail if the Court on evidence before it comes to conclusion that there were other members of unlawful assembly and the number was more than five. See Penal Code (1860), S. 143. 1965 (2) Cri L J 613 : A I R 1965 Assam 86.

—Ss. 141, 143, 153A and 228—Unlawful assembly — Common object — Charge not suifficient to give notice to accused of alleged common object — Conviction under S. 143, Penal Code cannot stand.

Under S. 141, the common object must be one of those mentioned in that section. Disturbance of Court's word or public tranquillity may be covered by third common object mentioned in S. 141 namely to commit any mischief or criminal trespass or other offence. Mere disturbance of court's work does not amount to an offence under S. 228 nor does mere disturbance of public tranquillity amount to an offence under S. 153A. Where it was merely the trial Court's inference that the common object of the accused persons was to commit offences under Ss. 153A and 228 but the charges were not framed in such a manner as to give sufficient notice to them that their common object was to commit those offences, nor was there any evidence that such was their common object the charges must be held defective and conviction under S. 143 cannot stand. 1956 B L J R 652.

7. Explanation.

● —S. 141, Explanation — Assembly lawful at inception—Common object—S. 34.

An assembly which was lawful when it assembled can become unlawful subsequently. That is the Explanation to S. 141. Previous concert is not necessary. The common object required by S. 141, differs from the common intention required by S. 34 in this respect.

An assembly which was lawful at its inception held became unlawful the moment one of them called on others to assault a member of the other party and they in response to his invitation, started to chase the member of the other party who was running away. Moti Das v. State of Bihar, 1954 Cri L J 1706 : A I R 1954 S C 657 (659) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7).

—S. 141 — Applicability — Persons assembled in exercise of right of private defence of property — Assembly does not become unlawful. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1954 Cri L J 1710 : AIR 1954 All 771 (DB).

—S. 141, Explanation—Common object—Evidence of premeditation or preparation is not necessary to impute a common object to the members of an unlawful assembly. 1955 Andh W R 813 : 1956 Cri L J 198 : 1955 Andh L T (Cri) 277 : A I R 1956 Andh 53 (53) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

—S. 141, Explanation—Assembly becoming unlawful—Determination of exact time when accused was observed in it is difficult—If specific acts are attributed and proved against accused, there is no difficulty. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3862 (DB).

—Ss. 141 and 147 — Assembly lawful in its inception—Other party found to be aggressor — Assembly does not become unlawful by repelling attacks by other party. A I R 1952 Madh Bha 205 (206) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 4).

—Ss. 141, 146—Expressions "common object" and "assembly"—Meaning—For "common object" there must be pre-concerted plan—"Assembly" in Explanation contemplates assembly of 5 or more persons.

It is true that common object, which denotes a privity of minds, may be formed instantaneously. But there must be some facts to denote a pre-concerted plan. Otherwise, each one of the participants in the quarrel would be deemed to be acting independently without any united mind. In such a case, even if they may individually have the same object, it would not be a case of a common object. The word "assembly" in the explanation to S. 141 appears to be an assembly as contemplated by the first part of the section, that is an assembly of five or more persons. If there are not 5 or more persons initially, and others join later, it would not form an unlawful assembly unless they had a pre-concerted plan for prosecution of a common object. A I R 1955 S C 216, Rel. on. 1957 M P C 138 : 1957 M P L J 111 : I L R (1956) Nag 899.

—S. 141, Explanation—An assembly lawful in the beginning if may become unlawful at a later stage—Conviction in such a case when proper.

An assembly lawful in the beginning may become unlawful at a later stage and the common object which may not have been present in the initial stage may be formed at a later stage. In all such cases the question whether the conviction is proper or not would turn upon whether the charge laid against the accused gave sufficient notice of the facts constituting the offence. I L R (1952) Cut 219.

SECTION 142

● —Ss. 142, 141, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148 and 149—Unlawful assembly—Whether person is member of unlawful assembly — Tests indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1965 (1) Cri L J 226 : AIR 1965 S C 202.

● —Ss. 142, 141 and 146—Mere presence of person, does not make him member of unlawful assembly—Evidence required, nature of indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1956 Cri L J 345 : AIR 1956 S C 131.

—S. 142—"Continues"—Means physical presence as member of unlawful assembly. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 166 (DB).

—S. 142 — Withdrawal from unlawful assembly — Indications.

Withdrawal of a member from the unlawful assembly can be either actual and voluntary, which would be if he removes himself from the assembly and goes away, clearly indicating that he is adverse to taking any further part in the incident. If a member of an unlawful assembly is not able to walk away like this and has perforce to remain on the spot either because he is so injured that he cannot remove himself or because he is held up by others, he may still continue to be a member of the unlawful assembly if he shares the common object of the assembly subsequent to his being made helpless. He can, however, in such a position disavow his share in the common object by expressions, leaving no doubt that he did not share the object any more. If he is also unable to express himself in this respect, it would be fair to presume that he was incapable of both taking part and of sharing the objects of the unlawful assembly and that he had withdrawn himself from the unlawful assembly. 1950 All L J 246 : 51 Cri L J 1133 : 1950 All W R (HC) 376 : I L R (1951) 2 All 141 : AIR 1950 All 418 (420) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

—Ss. 142, 141, 146—Rioting—Conviction cannot be sustained unless it is proved that there was unlawful assembly, and force was used and an offence committed — Mere assembly of persons is not unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 1322.

—Ss. 142, 141 (fifthly), 143, 148 — Unlawful assembly—What constitutes—Hindu Muslim factions—Agreement as to right to take procession with music in front of mosque on public highway — Such an agreement will not give any right to members of the Muslim Community to prevent processionists to proceed along the mosque on public highway with music —By such obstruction the persons would constitute themselves an unlawful assembly within meaning of S. 141 (fifthly). See Penal Code (1860), S. 141 (fifthly). 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : AIR 1961 Mys 57 (DB).

——Ss. 142 and 149—Applicability — Mere presence of person in assembly does not make him member of unlawful assembly—Evidence required—Nature of.

Mere presence in an assembly does not make a person a member of an unlawful assembly unless it is shown that he had done something or omitted to do something which would make him a member of an unlawful assembly. It is therefore necessary for the prosecution to lead evidence pointing to the conclusion that all the accused had done or been committing some overt act in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly. The omnibus evidence in general terms to the effect that all these persons and many more were the miscreants and were armed with deadly weapons, like guns, spears, axes, lathis, has to be very closely scrutinised in order to eliminate all chances of false or mistaken implication. 1956 Cri L J 345 : AIR 1956 S C 181, Rel. on. 28 Cut L T 435 : I L R (1962) Cut 661 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 114 (Orissa).

—— Ss. 142 and 147—Applicability—'Member of unlawful assembly'—Who is.

Where the entry of the police party into a Math for search of arms and arrest of some inmates of the Math was not authorised by law, the police party cannot be held to have acted in due discharge of their duties and under process of law and consequently resistance to their action to attempt to arrest or to seize the property cannot be an illegal act so as to make the members resisting members of an unlawful assembly. 23 Cut L T 88 : 1957 Cri L J 769 : AIR 1957 Orissa 130 (145) (Pt L) (Pr 39) (DB).

——S. 142—Member of unlawful assembly — Spectators in the assembly are not guilty of rioting or of being members of unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1080 (DB).

——Ss. 142 and 141—Unlawful assembly—Evidence.

Villagers numbering about 1200 men gathering to consider and deliberate ways and means to check menace from nearby settlement of criminal tribes—Police officers also invited to gathering — Villagers coming with sticks—Few members advocating use of violence while majority opposing it—These facts held did not make the assembly an unlawful one—So long as the meeting was at stage of deliberation it could not be said that they had any common object in their view — In order to find out the common object of an unlawful assembly at the beginning, it is not a legitimate method to take the actual offence committed by certain persons in the course of riot at the later stage and to infer therefrom that such activities were originally part of the common object of the whole assembly. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1080.

—— S. 142 — Offences committed by unlawful assembly — Mere presence of accused — Constructive liability.

The accused cannot be held liable on the ground of constructive responsibility for offence committed by members of unlawful assembly merely because he was found at the scenes where the offences were committed his mere presence may be as an onlooker and there is no jurisdiction for saddling him with constructive liability. 1951 Ker L T 451 : 1954 Cri L J 684 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 253 (254) (Pr 1) (DB).

SECTION 143

——Ss. 143, 147, 323, 97, 99 — Illegal attachment of property — Judgment-debtor is not entitled to take it from the enclosure, where the sapurdar had kept it—There is no right of self-defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1960 Cri L J 1040 : A I R 1960 All 453.

——S. 143 — Accused jointly tried by Magistrate for offences under Ss. 143, 447 and 506, Penal Code — Case cannot be said to be cognizable by a Panchayati Adalat unless all the offences were cognizable by it — Offence under S. 143, Penal Code, not being cognizable by it, S. 55 did not apply and therefore tried by Magistrate was not illegal. See Panchayats—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 55. AIR 1952 All 431.

——S. 143—Conviction for being members of unlawful assembly—Common object must be set out in the charge and proved beyond reasonable doubt. 1958 Andh L T 856.

——Ss. 143, 141 and 149 — Charge against five persons—Three of them acquitted—Whether charge against remaining accused fails.

Where five persons are charged under S. 143/147, I. P. C. and two of them are convicted still the charge will not fail if the Court on the evidence before it comes to the conclusion that there were other members of the unlawful assembly and the number was more than five. AIR 1963 S C 174, Foll. ILR (1963) 15 Assam 461 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 613 : AIR 1965 Assam 86 (87) (Pr 4).

——S. 143—Separate conviction and sentences.

Held, that the act of using force or violence essential to convert the offence under S. 143 into an offence under S. 147 itself converted the offence under S. 143 into that under S. 325/149 — As two offences under S. 147 and S. 325/149 were held to have been committed by same acts, accused were not liable to be punished with punishment for more than one of such offences. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1955 Cri L J 1033 : AIR 1955 Bhopal 9.

——S. 143 — Complaint in respect of offences under S. 117 read with Ss. 143 and 188, Penal Code — Compliance — Held, that the endorsement of District Magistrate at bottom of complaint contained all ingredients of S. 4 (1) (h), Criminal P. C.—Hence it was sufficient compliance of S. 195 (1) (a), Criminal P. C. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1957 Nag L J 63.

——S. 143—Applicability — Persons assembled more than five—Instigation to resist not only order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. but to overawe Government or public servants engaged in task of maintaining law and order — Held, that all the three accused were guilty of under S. 117 read with S. 143, I. P. C. See Penal Code (1860), S. 117. 1957 Nag L J 63.

——S. 143—Attack by persons not recognised—Trial and conviction—Considerations.

It is undoubtedly true that if an attack is made by persons who are not recognised there is often a chance of somebody who did not take part in the assault being falsely implicated. The decision whether an accused person has been falsely implicated or not has to be made by the Court on careful scrutiny of the evidence and on a consideration of all the circumstances. 63 Cal W N 454 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 72 : 1959 All Cri R 338 : 1959 Cri L J 318 : ILR (1960) 1 Cal 13 : AIR 1959 Cal 176 (177) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 143 — Ten persons charged — Six acquitted—Remaining four—If can be convicted.

Where the accused charged under S. 143 were 10 in number, and the charge which they were called upon to meet mentioned only 10 named persons as having been members of the unlawful assembly, and six of the accused were acquitted, the remaining four cannot be said to have been members of an unlawful assembly and their conviction under S. 143 cannot stand. The fact that the prosecution evidence showed that there were many more persons than the 10 mentioned in the charge who participated in the crime is immaterial. 1958 All W R (Sup) 98 : 1958 All Cr R 326 : 62 Cal W N 500.

——Ss. 143, 141, 441 and 447 — Offence under first part of S. 141 — Essentials to be proved — Intention must be proved — Charges under Ss. 143 and 447 — Evidence must establish ingredients of S. 441 — Evidence of state of mind has to be examined — Annoyance or insult felt by complainant is wholly irrelevant consideration in charge under S. 441. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1955 Cri L J 1338 : AIR 1955 Cal 515.

——S. 143—Charge under—Basis of—Annoyance to policemen — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 210 and S. 254).

Causing of annoyance to policemen cannot be made the foundation of a charge of unlawful assembly under S. 143, Penal Code. When there is no allegation that the petitioners had formed themselves into a procession or assembly of five or more persons or that they were holding a meeting or doing anything which the terms of the order made under S. 144, Criminal P. C. forbade, the charge under S. 143, Penal Code cannot be maintained. 59 Cal W N 999 : ILR (1957) 2 Cal 351 : 1955 Cri L J 1336 : AIR 1955 Cal 513 (513) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

——Ss. 143, 426 — Persons more than five, moving about in demonstration and shouting slogans—English signboards—Some of them tarring the boards and writing new legends on them — Those who do not actually do this but only stood by and formed a part of demonstrating assembly held also guilty under S. 143 read with S. 426 — Boards suffer decrease in utility by substituting English legends — Utility for the purposes of S. 425 is utility as conceived by the owner and not utility as conceived by the accused. 1961 Jab L J 1243 : 1962 M P L J 822 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 692 (Madh Pra).

——Ss. 143, 71 and 447 — Unlawful assembly — Common object to commit criminal trespass - Criminal trespass committed — Conviction under Ss. 143 and 447 both — Not illegal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1962 (1) Cri L J 618 : AIR 1962 Manipur 23.

——Ss. 143 and 188 — Conviction — Validity order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Disobedience of — Shouting of slogans causing annoyance to Magistrate and police going to preserve law and order — Conviction under S. 188 valid.

Held, on evidence (i) that the conviction under S. 143 on the ground that the petitioners were members of the unlawful assembly of more than 5 was wrong, as they were arrested only for shouting slogans and the first petitioner in particular for delivering the speech; (ii) that there was a disobedience of order duly promulgated by the District Magistrate; (iii) that the Magistrate and the police were engaged in their legitimate duties and if in the midst of such duties annoyance was caused to them by such disobedience of lawful order on the part of the petitioners it would certainly come within the purview of S. 188, I. P. Code. The conviction of the petitioners under S. 188, I. P. Code was therefore quite correct. AIR 1960 Assam 20, Dist. 1962 (1) Cri L J 827 (Manipur).

——Ss. 143, 145, 188—Constitution of India, Art. 226 —Habeas corpus—Petitioners holding meeting peacefully in order to vindicate their public right under Manipur State Constitution Act — Order on analogy of S. 144, Criminal P. C., passed — Order held illegal —Detention for offences under Ss. 143. 145 and 188 —Detention held illegal — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144). See Constitution of India, Art. 226. 1955 Cri L J 1603 : AIR 1955 Manipur 41.

——S. 143—Scope—Unlawful assembly — Ascertainment of members constituting it—Acquitted persons must be omitted—Less than five persons when can be convicted under S. 149 stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. (1965) 1 Law Rep 714 : 1966 Cri L J 223 (Mys).

——Ss. 143, 141 (fifthly), 142, 148 — Unlawful assembly—What constitutes—Hindu Muslim factions — Agreement as to right to take procession with music in front of mosque on public highway — Such an agreement will not give any right to members of the Muslim Community to prevent processionists to proceed along the mosque on public highway with music—By such obstruction the persons would constitute themselves an unlawful assembly within the meaning of S. 141 (fifthly). See Penal Code (1860), S. 141 (fifthly). 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : AIR 1961 Mys 57 (DB).

——S. 143—Unlawful assembly—Test for determination indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. (1950) 55 Mys H C R 317.

——S. 143 — Prosecution under S. 143 for preventing complainant from catching fish from tank taken by him on lease, permitted to be withdrawn as the tank the only source of drinking water to persons in locality — Held there was proper exercise of discretion on part of trial Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 494. 1961 (1) Cri L J 693 (Orissa).

——Ss. 143 and 379 — Removal of crops — Question for consideration.

In a prosecution under Ss. 143 and 379 for removing the paddy crops from the land possession of which was in dispute, the main question for consideration by a criminal Court is whether the prosecution has established beyond reasonable doubt that the complainant had raised the crops on the disputed land.

Where both the lower Courts believed, the prosecution evidence and disbelieved the defence evidence the High Court will not interfere with the concurrent findings on the question as to who grew the crops on the disputed land. ILR (1956) Cut 241 : 22 Cut L T 247 : 1956 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1956 Orissa 212 (213) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Ss. 143 and 379 — Evidence — Dishonest intention not proved—Accused entitled to benefit of doubt — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 290, 367) — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3, 5, 14 and 15).

Where in a trial of 34 persons under Ss. 143 and 379, Penal Code on allegations that they formed an unlawful assembly with a common object of committing theft and committed theft by cutting and removing paddy crops from the lands, it was found that the possession of lands was in dispute and that accused 15 to 34 being labourers merely obeyed the orders of accused 1 and that there was no evidence to show that they were aware of any previous quarrel and of the person who grew the crops, nor was there evidence to show that they had gone to the fields with dishonest intention.

Held, that accused 15 to 34 were entitled to the benefit of doubt. ILR (1956) Cut 241 : 22 Cut L T 247 : 1956 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1956 Orissa 212 (214) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Ss. 143, 296 — Unlawful assembly with common object of disturbing a religious gathering — Case of each accused not considered individually — High Court remanding case for fresh disposal according to law. 1961 B L J R 347.

——Ss, 143, 141, 153-A and 228—Unlawful assembly — Common object — Charge not sufficient to give notice to accused of alleged common object — Conviction under S. 143, Penal Code cannot stand. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1956 B L J R 652.

——S. 143 — Applicability — Conviction of accused set aside under S. 186, Penal Code for want of complaint under S. 195 (1) (a), Criminal P. C. — He can be convicted under S. 143, Penal Code without such complaint. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1960 Cri L J 987 : AIR 1960 Punj 356.

——S. 143 — Sentence.

When the attitude of the accused, convicted under S. 143, Penal Code was that of truculence at the time of the commission of the offence and of recalcitrance during the trial, the sentence of two months' imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 50, on each accused cannot be deemed excessive. 62 Punj L R 73 : 1960 Cri L J 987 : AIR 1960 Punj 356 (357) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——S. 143 — Charge under Ss. 143 and 447, Penal Code and S. 24, Cattle Trespass Act — Conviction under S. 426, Penal Code held bad — Case not covered by S. 238 (2). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 238 (1). 1963 (2) Cri L J 112 (Tripura).

SECTION 144

——Ss. 144, 146, 148, 324, 99 read with S. 34 — Rioting and Unlawful assembly — Private defence — Dispute regarding possession — Use of force by accused as lawful owner of land to vacate trespass resulting in injuries — Conviction of accused for rioting and unlawful assembly — Validity.

Where the victims committed trespass on the land in possession of accused, and the latter used force, to eject the trespasser which resulted in injuries to the victims, one of whom died later due to a different cause, and the accused were convicted for rioting and unlawful assembly on the grounds that there was no standing crop on the land which could have been disturbed by the trespassers and the accused could have approached the authorities for ejecting the trespassers.

Held, that the accused were as lawful owners of land, only maintaining their possession and not enforcing any right. They had the right to eject the trespassers from the land. Though no crop was standing on the land, the accused had to maintain their lawful possession and could use force to eject the trespassers since it was not possible to get the help of authorities in time. Further, the death of deceased was not due any injuries received during the fight but due to different cause, as proved by medical evidence. Hence, the accused had the right to use force to eject the trespassers to maintain their possession and the force used by them was not excessive and hence, they could not be convicted for the offences. 1931 Mad W N 646; 1934 Mad W N 43; 1935 Mad W N 1116; 1942 Mad W N 42; AIR 1917 Mad 662 (2); AIR 1934 All 826; AIR 1938 Lah 60; AIR 1930 Lah 314; AIR 1945 Pat 283; AIR 1938 Pat 518; AIR 1963 S C 612; 1935 A C 462; AIR 1937 Rang 83; AIR 1941 All 402; AIR 1962 S C 605, Rel. on. ILR (1965) Andh Pra 193 (DB).

——S. 144 — Charge under — Failure to mention common object in charge vitiates trial. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 223. 1957 Cri L J 146 (Orissa).

——Ss. 144 and 379 — Removal of crops by five accused from land belonging to complainant — No clear finding as to who had sown the crops — Accused held entitled to a benefit of doubt. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 3264.

SECTION 145

——Ss. 145, 143, 188—Constitution of India, Art. 226 —Habeas Corpus—Petitioners holding meeting peacefully in order to vindicate their public right under Manipur State Constitution Act — Order on analogy S. 144, Criminal P. C., passed — Order held illegal — Detention for offences under Ss. 143, 145 and 188 — Detention held illegal—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144) — See Constitution of India, Art. 226. 1955 Cri L J 1603 : AIR 1955 Manipur 41.

——Ss. 145, 188 — Trial for offences under — Non-compliance with S. 195, Criminal P. C., in respect of offences under S. 188 — Conviction under S. 188 set aside — Conviction under S. 145 held did not stand — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. ILR (1950) Cut 545 : 17 Cut L T 80 : AIR 1951 Orissa 84 (86) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

SECTION 146

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 146.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. "Force or violence".
3. "Common object".
4. Private defence.
   See Penal Code (1860), S. 147.
5. Conviction of less than five persons.
   See Penal Code (1860), S. 147.
6. Evidence.
7. Finding as to number of persons necessary.
8. Cases and counter cases.

1. Scope and applicability.

——Ss. 146 and 147—Offence—Nature and gravity of—Test—Nature of injuries inflicted — If conclusive—Shouting of Mahatma Gandhi-ki-jai if justifies or provokes wanton and brutal attack.

In considering whether an incident is a fracas or a serious riot the seriousness of the occurrence is not to be judged by the nature of the injuries inflicted but by the way they were inflicted in utter disregard of the administration and the forces of law and order. Nor could a serious and unprovoked attack be minimised or justified on the ground that the shouting by people of Mahatma Gandhi-ki-jai was the cause of or provoked the assault or attack. Such shouting cannot be considered to be a provocation. 52 Cri L J 1123 : AIR 1951 Hyd 97.

——Ss. 146 and 148—Charge of rioting with deadly weapons against several persons — Necessity of considering case of each accused separately pointed out —Mere presence at scene of occurrence not sufficient — Mere carrying of weapons by some — Inference against those who were unarmed that they were all members of unlawful assembly, cannot be drawn — Some overt act indicating participation has to be proved. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 3801.

——S. 146 — Insured motor car meeting accident causing death of a boy—Crowd of persons including deceased's relations and sympathisers surrounding car and burning it — Held, that loss was caused by riot and since that risk was expressly excepted by the policy of insurance, the Insurance Company was not liable—'Riot' and 'Civil commotion' what amounts to — See Insurance. AIR 1965 Madh Pra 32 (DB).

——Ss. 146, 109 and 147 — Abetment of offence of rioting — Instigation must have reference to the thing that was done and not to the thing that was likely to have been done by the person who is instigated — Common object of the assembly to march in procession breaking the conditions imposed by the Magistrate — Accused found to have instigated the members of that assembly to use force for over coming any resistance offered by army or by police with the object of making them break up — The offence committed by the accused is abetment by instigation of rioting—See Penal Code (1860), S. 109. 1953 Cri L J 1273 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 251 (DB).

——S. 146 — Person in arrest of police—Rescuing—Conviction for rioting.

The unlawful assembly gathered and developed into a mob of rioters with the object of rescuing the 2nd accused from the custody of the Police officers who had effected his arrest. His cry for assistance led to the formation of the unlawful assembly which subsequently developed into a riot.

Held, that the 2nd accused was not a member of that assembly and consequently merely because their object was to rescue the 2nd accused from the custody of the Police Officer who had arrested him, he could not be made liable for rioting. 1952 Cri L J 1592 : 1952 Ker L T 704 : ILR (1952) Trav-Co 133 : AIR 1952 Trav-Co 459 (463) (Pt D) (Pr 13) (DB).

2. "Force or violence".

● ——S. 146—Vindication of rights by use of force—If a party is forced to maintain or defend his rights it cannot be said that he was determined to vindicate his rights by show or use of force — See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 51 Cri L J 1057 : A I R 1950 F C 80.

● ——S. 146 — "Force or violence" — Meaning.

While the word 'force' has been defined in S. 349, the word 'violence' has not been defined in the Code. 'Violence' must therefore be understood in its ordinary sense. 'Violence' is a word of wider import than 'force' and includes force used against inanimate objects also. Sundar Singh v. State, 1955 Cri L J 671 : 1955 All L J 293 : 1955 All W R (H C) 316 : ILR (1955) 1 All 472 : AIR 1955 All 232 (233) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (FB).

——Ss. 146 and 349—Essentials of offence—Damage to property.

To constitute offence of rioting there should be either "force" or 'violence' — Force must be against human being and not against inanimate object — Motion caused to inanimate object without affecting human being—There is no force within meaning of S. 349 — 'Violence' however, is not confined to human being — Damage caused to property by unlawful assembly without any harm to any person — It is violence and rioting : AIR 1923 Mad 606 and 40 Cal 367, Rel. on. 1953 All W R (H C) 389 : 1953 Cri L J 1729 : AIR 1953 All 749 (750) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 10).

3. "Common object".

——Ss. 146, 147, 323, 149, 300, 302, 304 and 34 — Rescue of cattle lawfully taken to pound — Injury—Death—Offence—Common object—(Cattle Trespass Act (1871), S. 24).

Where the evidence was that the six accused formed an unlawful assembly and used force in executing their common object, namely, the release of the cattle and inflicted injuries to the persons lawfully taking the cattle to the pound, whatever was done by each one of the accused was in furtherance of the common intention of all. The accused were guilty of the offences under Ss. 147 and 323, Indian Penal Code, read with Ss. 149 and 34, Indian Penal Code.

Where one of the persons injuried seriously on the head died within a few hours :

Held, that in the circumstances of the case the third para. to S. 300 applied and also that none of the exceptions applied. Therefore the act of killing amounted to murder under S. 302 and not an offence under S. 304. Held, further that as the evidence showed that all the six accused arrived together at the scene of occurrence armed with lathis with the joint object namely to have the cattle released by force the fact that some of the cattle belonged to one group and the others to the other group among them made no difference. 1958 Cri L J 588 : AIR 1958 All 348 (350, 351) (Prs 5, 10, 11) (DB).

——Ss. 146, 147 and 94 — Applicability—Common object — Absence of — Effect.

Although it appears from the accused's statement in the Sessions Court that there were more than five persons the accused cannot be said to be a member of the unlawful assembly when he had no common object with them to commit an offence. Further when his presence in the assembly was due to duress he would be protected by S. 94. 1957 All L J 20 : 1957 All W R (H C) 86 : 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (188) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

——S. 146 — Essentials of offence — Finding as to common object is necessary. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 3301 (DB).

——Ss. 140 and 141 — Expressions "common object" —and "assembly"—Meaning — For "common object" there must be pre-concerted plan — "Assembly" in Explanation contemplates assembly of 5 or more persons. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. ILR (1956) Nag 899 : 1957 M P C 138 : 1957 M P L J 111.

——S. 146—Charge — Failure to frame—Prejudice—Strict adherence to S. 362 (4), Cr. P. C. and not framing a charge would result in prejudice to the accused —Magistrate stating that charges under Ss. 147, 337, 427 and 149 were framed did not state in the charge what exactly the common object was—Held in the circumstances, it could not be said that the accused were not prejudiced at all — As the conviction under S. 147 failed for the failure to mention the common object, the conviction under S. 149 did not arise as a conviction under S. 149 is dependent upon conviction under S. 147. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 362 (4). 1954 Cri L J 1254 : AIR 1954 Mad 785.

——S. 146 and 147—Common object—Proof — Mere presence not sufficient.

Mere presence of a person along with members of an unlawful assembly is not sufficient to support a finding that he had the common object of the unlawful assembly, even for the purpose of conviction under S. 147. There must be other evidence direct or circumstantial to justify a finding that he had the common object. 1954 Cri L J 632 : 34 Mys L J 13 : ILR (1953) Mys 690 : AIR 1954 Mys 75 (78) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Ss. 146 and 147—Ingredients of offence—Essentials to be proved.

In order to prove successfully a charge under S. 147, it is incumbent upon the prosecution to show that there was use of some force or violence by an unlawful assembly or by any member thereof, and secondly, such force or violence should have been used in prosecution of the common object of such assembly. Where the common object of the assemblage of the appellants was to take forcible possession of the house and lands in occupation of others by using criminal force, the essential ingredients of the section are complied with and the conviction of the appellants under S. 147, is proper. ILR (1957) Cut 642.

——Ss. 146, 149 — Common object — Some accused persons merely present at place of assault with lathis in hand—Not actually joining in assault — Common object of assault held not shared by them. 1965 (1) Cri L J 73 : AIR 1965 Pat 45 (47) (Pt A) (Pr 14).

—S. 146—Charge — Omission to mention common object in charge does not vitiate the trial or render the conviction bad and it is necessary to see in each case whether or not the accused had been misled by the omission — Prejudice to accused—Test to determine would be to see whether the accused had no notice during the trial of the case of the prosecutions as to the common object so as to enable them to meet it in their defence and in cross-examination. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 223. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 2194 (DB).

4. Private defence.

See Penal Code (1860), S. 147.

5. Conviction of less than five persons.

See Penal Code (1860), S. 147.

6. Evidence.

■ — Ss. 146, 141 and 142 — Mere presence of person, does not make him member of unlawful assembly —Evidence required, nature of. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1956 Cri L J 345 : AIR 1956 S C 181.

——Ss. 146, 147 — Conviction of less than five persons.

Satisfactory evidence that more than five persons took part in abduction and criminal trespass—All persons are members of unlawful assembly—Conviction of only three of them under S. 147 is legal. AIR 1954 All 249 (251) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——Ss. 146 and 147—Rioting—Evidence.

A number of accused involved—Charge of rioting—Main issue is of identification—Appellate Court should analyse the evidence against each accused and consider his case in the light of the points made by the defence—Otherwise grave injustice is likely to occur. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1958 Andh L T 740.

——S. 146—Conviction.

Failure of the prosecution to establish that there was an unlawful assembly, that force was used and an offence committed—Conviction for rioting cannot be sustained—A mere assembly gathering of persons is not unlawful though some of its members may apply force to commit an offence—From the mere fact that all or some of the accused being found at the scene of occurrence at the time when the complainant was injured, it cannot be inferred that they were members of an unlawful assembly—Nor is it reasonable to assume from the acts themselves that the persons present had a common object to commit them and these were committed in pursuance of a common object. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 1322.

——S. 146—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367—Appreciation of evidence—Riot cases — Discrepancies in evidence natural—Value to be given—Duty of Court — Broad possibilities have got to be considered — Court must also consider the defence put forward by the accused and its validity by testing the prosecution version. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1958 Cri L J 385 : AIR 1958 Mad 127.

——Ss. 146, 147 — Mammoth rioting involving large number of persons—Evidence and proof—Principles to be borne in mind by Court.

In a case of rioting involving a large number of accused the Court should bear in mind the following five fundamental principles.

(i) Notwithstanding the large number of the rioters or of the persons put up in Court for rioting and the consequent difficulty for the prosecution to name the specific acts attributed to such of the accused, the Court must see to it that all the ingredients required for unlawful assembly and rioting are strictly proved by the prosecution before convicting that particular accused.

(ii) Spectators, Wayfarers etc., attracted to the scene of the rioting by curiosity as generally happens in the country-side when a riot or affray is going on, should not be, by reason of their mere presence at the scene of rioting and with the rioters, held to be members of the unlawful assembly or rioters. But, of course, if they are proved to have marched with the rioters for a long distance, when the rioters were shouting tell-tale slogans and pelting stones, it will be for them to prove their innocence under S. 106 of the Indian Evidence Act

(iii) It will be very unsafe, in the case of such large mobs of rioters to rely on the evidence of a single witness speaking to the presence of an accused in that mob for convicting him, especially, when no overt act of violence or shouting of slogan, or organising the mob, or giving orders to it, or marching in procession with it, or other similar thing is proved against him. In a big riot, by hundreds of persons, it is very easy even to mistake one person for another, and implicate honestly really innocent persons, and even to mistake persons seen elsewhere as having been seen there. An ordinary rule of caution and prudence will require that an accused identified only by one witness, and not proved to have done overt act etc., as described above, should be acquitted, by giving him the benefit of the doubt.

(iv) Where there are such acute factions, one based on agrarian disputes and troubles, another on political wrangling and rivalry, and a third on caste division or the division of the haves and the havenots, the greatest care must be exercised before believing the evidence of a particular witness belonging to one of these factions against an accused of the opposite views. This principle becomes of special importance when there are no overt acts etc., proved, and when there are only one or two witnesses speaking to the presence of the accused among the rioters, and they belong to the classes or factions opposed to the accused.

(v) Mere followers in rioting deserve a much more lenient sentence than leaders who mislead them into such violent acts by emotional appeals, slogans and cries. 1951-2 Mad L J 446 : 1951 Mad W N 829 : 1951 Mad W N Cr 249 : 1952 Cri L J 583 : ILR (1952) Mad 728 : AIR 1952 Mad 267 (269, 270) (Pt B) (Prs 6 to 10).

——S. 146—Essentials of offence.

To sustain a charge of rioting, the prosecution has to establish that there was an unlawful assembly, that force or violence was employed and that an offence was committed.

When what operated as the proximate and substantial cause for the assault and the persons concerned in it are not free from doubt, the charge of rioting cannot be taken to be satisfactorily substantiated. 32 Mys L J 83 : I L R (1953) Mys 69 : 1953 Cri L J 1001 : 1953 All W R (Sup) 78 : A I R 1953 Mys 41 (42) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——S. 146—Applicability —Evidence.

For the offence of riot it is sufficient if it is proved against an individual that he remained in an unlawful assembly after he was aware that the assembly was unlawful. He would also be liable for an offence committed by any member of that unlawful assembly provided the said offence was committed in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, or was such, as the members of that assembly knew was likely to be committed.

Thus where the object of the unlawful assembly from the very beginning was to use criminal force against police officers, even if there is no direct evidence as to the person or persons responsible for the injuries found on a police officer who subsequently dies of those injuries, each one of the members of the assembly is liable for the offence committed by their comrades. 1953 Cri L J 1301 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 275 (278) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

7. Finding as to number of persons necessary.

——S. 146 Conviction—Basis of — Definite finding as to number of persons.

Any Court which convicts the accused before it for an offence of riot should record a definite finding that the number was five or more than five and not that there were a number of persons who took part in the riot. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 5017.

S. Cases and counter-cases.

●—S. 146 — Determined fight.

Where one party complains that three persons received gun-shot injuries and the other complains that one or two persons received a few simple injuries the occurrence cannot be regarded as being in the nature of a determined battle between two armed mobs, in which the desire to fight and attack each other becomes a more important objective of the opposing mobs than the cause or subject-matter of the fight. Kapildeo Singh v. The King, 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 83 : 1950 Raj L W 62 : 1950 Mad W N 327 : 63 Mad L W 501 : ILR 29 Pat 391 : 51 Cri L J 1057 : 1949 F C R 834 : 1950 S C J 143 : 52 Bom L R 512 : AIR 1950 F C 30 (81) (Pt E) (Pr 10).

——S. 146—Case and counter-case—Duty of Court—It cannot coin out third version of its own. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 4845.

——S. 146 — Evidence — Case and counter-case — Injuries on body of accused is a relevant consideration in finding out who were aggressors — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 7). AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 4845.

——S. 146—Conviction—Basis of — Complaint and counter-complaint—Tests to determine culpability of accused.

Where there is a riot committed by two factions in a locality and complaint and counter-complaint are made, the High Courts have laid down four tests to fix the culpability of the accused, viz., first whether they had a motive to share the common object and be present at the unlawful assembly and participate in the facts of violence therein; secondly whether they committed the acts proved by well corroborated evidence and which would establish affirmatively their common object, presence and participation; thirdly whether the names of these persons have been mentioned at the earliest instance; and finally the exonerating pleas of these persons and how far they can be acted upon. 55 Cri L J 610 : 1954 Mad W N 41 : (1953) 2 Mad L J 425 : AIR 1954 Mad 442 (453) (Pt D) (Pr 39).

——Ss. 146 and 147—Evidence — Free fight between two parties—Cross cases — No evidence as to what actually happened and how injuries were received — Accused in neither case can be convicted. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4103.

SECTION 147

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 147.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. Conviction and sentence.
3. Conviction under—Necessaary ingredients to be proved.
4. Charge.
5. Conviction also under another section and separate sentences.

   See also Penal Code (1860), S. 148.
6. Conviction of less than five persons.
7. Right of private defence.
8. Sections 147 and 148.

1. Scope and applicability.

——Ss. 147 and 148—Offence not actually committed—Object of the accused to be judged by—Appreciation of surrounding circumstances and conduct of accused —Benefit of doubt — Intention to commit dacoity could not be inferred from the circumstances but the purpose for which they assembled was certainly unlawful as the possession of arms and ammunition by the accused was not consistent with peaceful assembly and the accused could be convicted under S. 147 and S. 148. See Penal Code (1860), S. 402. 1962 (1) Cri L J 3 : AIR 1962 All 13.

——Ss. 147, 146, 323, 149, 300, 302, 304 and 34—Unlawful acts - Rescue of cattle being lawfully taken to pound — Injury caused in commission of common object by an assembly of six persons—Whatever was done by each of the accused was in furtherance of common intention of all—The accused were guilty of an offence under S. 24, Cattle Trespass Act and Sections 147 and 323, I. P. C. read with S. 149 and 349, I. P. C.—(Cattle Trespass Act (1871), S. 24). See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1958 Cri L J 558 : AIR 1958 All 348 (DB).

——S. 147—Applicability — Number being less than five. There could be no unlawful assembly and no rioting—Prosecution could not prove that five or more persons out of the alleged large number of persons took part in the crime the charge under S. 147, Penal Code cannot be sustained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. AIR 1955 N U C (Andhra) 2042.

——Ss. 147, 141 — Prosecution under S. 147 of five or more named persons - Court entertaining doubt about presence of some of the persons reducing the number of the remaining persons below five—Conviction of latter not maintainable. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1960 Cri L J 1571 : AIR 1960 Bom 515.

——S. 147—Unlawful assembly — Purpose of crowd only to demonstrate with black flags—Offence.

The purpose of a crowd was only to demonstrate with black flags and this was not an unlawful purpose. There is complete lack of evidence to show that there was a common object to commit any offence or illegal act by the crowd and in the absence of such common object any act even if committed by one of the crowd, could not make the others liable. 1960 Ker L T 948 : (1961) Mad L J (Cr) 45 (Ker) : 1961 (1) Cri L J 661 (Ker).

——S. 147—Charge under S. 147 against 12 persons constituting only members of unlawful assembly—Acquittal of nine — Remaining three cannot be convicted under S. 147.

Where the definite case for the prosecution was that the members of the unlawful assembly were accused 1 to 12 only and nine of them were properly acquitted, the remaining three cannot be guilty of an offence under S. 147. Case law Ref. 1959 Ker L R 1124.

——S. 147 — Scope—Offence under—Case on facts—Accused were tried under S. 147, Penal Code on the allegation that in order to prevent the complainants from tilling their lands, they attacked them jointly—It was not established that the complainants were in prior peaceful possession of the field in dispute. It was doubtful whether the complainants or the accused were in prior peaceful possession — Held, that the accused were entitled to acquittal because the accused would have to be taken actually presumptively to have gone to maintain possession and would not be held to form an unlawful assembly. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 2408.

——S. 147—Hindu religious procession with music passing mosque on highway—Attack by Mahomedan crowd in vindication of supposed right of stopping music — They are guilty of being members of an unlawful assembly and rioting, punishable under S. 143 and 147, I. P. Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. (1950) 55 Mys H C R 317.

——S. 147 — Applicability—Riot—Seventy or eighty persons assembled out of which twelve tried and convicted—In appeal nine acquitted—S. 148, applies. ILR (1959) Cut 111.

——S. 147—Conviction under—Common object with regard to at least five persons must be established.

The common object of assaulting, established with regard to four persons cannot be used to justify a conviction for rioting under S. 147 and a common object must be established which is common to at least five persons. Where apart from finding four accused persons guilty of other offences, there is no specific finding with regard to any overt act having been committed by these four persons aiding with others the common object the unlawful assembly is not established against them and they will not be legally liable for an ofience under S. 147 of the Penal Code. 1963 B L J R 332.

——S. 147—Applicability — Seizure of land by force under claim of right is not justified—Right should be got established by a suit in civil Court. A I R 1955 NUC (Pat) 5699.

——Ss. 147, 141—Criminal force—Extent of.

It is not necessary for an offence under S. 147, I. P. Code, that force or violence should be used to such an extent that death or grievous injury might be caused. For an offence under S. 147, I. P. Code, force or violence to whatever extent used, would be sufficient if it is used by all or some of the members of an unlawful assembly. 1957 Cri L J 1187 : A I R 1957 Raj 331 (335) (Pt E) (Pr 14).

2. Conviction and sentence.

——Ss 147 and 148—Sentence—Considerations.

The assemblage of 30 or 40 lathials at a place where the peaceable reaping of paddy is supposed to be in progress indicates an intention to use force; and where the complainant, who felt himself aggrieved, did not take the law into his own hands but had recourse to the authorities and sought and obtained the assistance of those in local charge of the forces of law and order, to attack such an unarmed man peaceably registering a protest in the very manner contemplated by law, does not call for an exercise of leniency. Moti Das v. State of Bihar, 1954 Cri L J 1706 : AIR 1954 S C 657 (659) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

—— S. 147—Sentence—Reduction.

Where the accused who had lost their jobs, were trying to ventilate their grievances but not in a lawful way and they were sentenced of the offence of rioting and, in revision, their conviction was upheld two years after the occurrence ;

Held, that the interests of justice did not require that they should be sent back to jail to serve the unexpired portion of the sentence and, therefore, the sentence passed should be reduced to the period of imprisonment already undergone by them. 1958 Andh L T 740.

——S. 147 - Charge of rioting - Common object charged not proved - Conviction not maintainable on basis of ancillary common object.

Where the primary common object as mentioned in the charge of rioting fails, it would not be proper to maintain a conviction on that charge by observing that, in any case the common object of assaulting the complainant and his men was established. If the primary common object fails, there should be no conviction on basis of the ancillary common object. AIR 1936 Cal 428, Rel. on. 1963 (1) Cri L J 46 : AIR 1963 Cal 3 (4) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——Ss. 147, 427—Applicability—Dispute about land Actual physical possession not proved—Conviction—Legality.

In cases of disputes about land, the most material consideration is the question of actual physical possession. Documentary evidence of title of recent date cannot afford a safe basis for the purpose of finding persons guilty of charges under Ss. 147 and 427, I. P. Code relating to possession of such lands.

Where the only act of possession alleged by the complainant party was that the land was cultivated three or four days prior to the date of the occurrence such a single, casual act of possession cannot be safely relied upon as furnishing a firm foundation for a finding of possession and unless actual possession has been clearly established, it is impossible to hold that the charges of rioting or of mischief could be brought home to the other party, who also claim to be in continuous possession of the land, as in such cases, the possibility of their acting in bona fide belief that that they had a right of possession cannot be excluded. ILR (1957) 1 Cal 510 : 1955 Cri L J 1247 : AIR 1955 Cal 474 (475) (Prs 7, 8).

——S. 147—Scope—Trial under Ss. 448, 147 and 341—Acquittal under Ss. 147 and 341—It means that the elements necessary to constitute offence charged have not been proved by the evidence called—It would be speculations of the worst type to hold that although the evidence fell short of the proof of rioting or of wrongful restraint, the intent to commit some unnamed offence survived the acquittals. Such speculations could never be indulged in administering criminal law. See Penal Code (1860), S. 448. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 5921.

——S. 147—Applicability—Only two men mentioned in F. I. R. to have assaulted but F. I. R. mentioning that there were other persons along with accused—Charge of rioting based on what was found in police report—Conviction under S. 147—Decision held did not require interference in revision. AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 2898.

——S. 147—Evidence—Child witness—Offence under S. 308 read with Ss. 143 and 147 - Accused charged for an offence under S. 302 read with Ss. 149 and 147, I. P. Code—A boy of 12 or 13 years of age the only eye-witness— Discrepncies in his statement recorded before the committing magistrate and before the Sessions Judge—Such witness could not be relied upon for convicting all the accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 118. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3097 (DB).

——Ss. 147, 149 and 325—Charge under Ss. 325, 147 and 149 against several accused — Conviction of all under S. 147—Sentence—Court would not be justified in imposing a most serious punishment on one of the accused if there is nothing in the evidence to show that he had assaulted anybody or had taken a prominent part in the occurrence — Criminal P. C. (1898). S. 32. AIR 1952 Madh B 205 (206) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Ss. 147 and 160—Two parties fighting on open space between houses of locality — Want of proof of common object—Facts disclosing minor offence on public place—Conviction under S. 147 set aside and altered into one under S. 160. See Penal Code (1860), S. 160. 1957 MPC 138.

——S. 147—Both sides indulging in stone throwing—Persons from both sides injured — Death of one — It is difficult to fasten guilt on particular accused for injury caused to deceased—Accused convicted of rioting and acquitted of other charges — Sentence reduced to one already undergone. 1952 Mad W N (Cr) 18 : 1952 Mad W N 69 : 65 Mad L W 146 : 1952-1 Mad L J 244 : 1953 Cri L J 1898 : ILR (1952) Mad 562 : AIR 1954 Mad 15 (17) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 147, 146 — Mammoth rioting involving large number of persons — Evidence and proof—Principles to be borne in mind by Court stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146, 1952 Cri L J 583 : AIR 1952 Mad 267.

——S. 147—Mammoth rioting—Merely because some rioters have received gun shot wounds at the hands of police they cannot be presumed to have been more aggressive than others. 1951-2 Mad L J 446 : 1951 Mad W N 829 : 1951 Mad W N (Cr) 249 : 1952 Cri L J 583 : ILR (1952) Mad 728 : AIR 1952 Mad 267 (271) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——S. 147—Common object — Proof—Mere presence not sufficient. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1954 Cri L J 632 : AIR 1954 Mys 75 (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 379—Appellants cutting and forcibly removing standing crops from disputed land — Finding that complainant was in possession of land and had grown crops on it at material time — Appellants' conviction under Ss. 147 and 379 maintained. (1964) 6 O J D 140: 30 Cut L T 446: 1965 (2) Cri L J 393 : AIR 1965 Orissa 166 (168) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 147 — Accused not mentioned in F. I. R. as one of assailants of deceased — Held it was good ground for not convicting him under S. 302/149— His presence and participation in riot well established —His conviction under S. 147 held well justified. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302/149. ILR (1952) Cut 219.

——Ss. 147, 148, 326/149, 302 — Rioting — Common object to assault deceased not established — One of accused guilty of murder and convicted under S. 302 —Others held could not be convicted under Ss. 147, 148 and 326/149. 51 Cri L J 331 : ILR 28 Pat 762 : AIR 1950 Pat 44 (48) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 147—Evidence — Conviction — Free fight between two parties with rifles and sharp instruments— Persons on both sides killed and injured — Both parties filing cross cases— Evidence did not establish what actually had happened when the two parties met and how men of each party came to receive the injuries — Accused in neither of the cases could be convicted. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4103.

——Ss. 147 and 447—Applicability — Accused numbering more than 50 going in company of Court's officer to take delivery of field under order of Court —Scuffle—Offence.

Where the accused (more than 50) accompanied by an officer of Court go to the field for effecting delivery of possession to the accused as per order of the Court and a scuffle ensue: between them and the complainant, the accused cannot be said to have formed an unlawful assembly as they went to the field for a lawful purpose. And as there is no criminal intent to commit any offence, etc, there is no criminal trespass in such a case. The accused are, therefore, entitled to be acquitted of the charges under Ss. 147 and 447, Penal Code. 1960 Cri L J 1665 : AIR 1960 Tripura 43 (43) (Pr 3).

3. Conviction under—Necessary ingredients to be proved.

——S. 147 — Applicability — Murder by several accused — Deceased sending buffaloes in B's field for grazing — Attitude of deceased leading to sudden quarrel—Several accused armed with 'luhangis' and 'lathis' arriving at the spot and assaulting deceased, causing injuries on the head of deceased who dies soon after — No enmity which might have prompted the murder established—Medical report stating that first injury was grievous which caused his death — Held, that in the circumstances it could not be held that all the accused were there assembled with the common object or with the common intention of murdering deceased. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 8097 (DB).

——S. 147—Common object.

Although it appears from the accused's statement in the Sessions Court that there were more than five persons, the accused cannot be said to be a member of the unlawful assembly when he had no common object with them to commit an offence. Further where his presence in the assembly was due to duress he would be protected by S. 94. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (DB).

——S. 147 — Common object — Change over — Evidence.

Change over of common object could only be established by evidence of the conduct of details connected with the movement in the activity of the assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1958 Andh L T 856.

——S. 147 — Conviction — Failure to consider case against each of several accused— Legality of conviction. (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367) 1958 Andh L T 559.

——S 147—For offence of rioting at least five persons and use of force essential — If less than five persons, no offence of rioting — Allegation of a particular number of persons participating in the rioting — Prosecution unable to establish that five or more than five persons took part in the crime—Change under S. 197 cannot be sustained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. AIR 1955 N U C (Andhra) 2042.

——S. 147—Applicability — Common object— Proof —Necessity.

In order to sustain a conviction under S. 147, it is essential that the person forming the unlawful assembly should be animated by a common object and in the absence of a clear finding to that effect the conviction cannot be sustained.

The mere presence in an assembly does not make such a person a member of an unlawful assembly unless it is shown that he had done something or omitted to do something which would make him a member of an unlawful assembly, or unless the case falls under S. 142 of the Penal Code. It is necessary for the prosecution to lead evidence pointing to the conclusion that all the accused had done or been committing some overt act in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly. The omnibus evidence in general terms to the effect that all these persons and many more were the miscreants and were armed with deadly weapons, like guns, spears, pharsas, axes, lathis, etc., naturally has to be very closely scrutinised in order to eliminate all chances of false or mistaken implication. AIR 1956 S C 181, Rel. on. (1959) 1 O J D 460 : 25 Cut L T 433.

——Ss. 147 and 146—Ingredients of offence.

Essentials to be proved (i) use of force or violence by an unlawful assembly or by any member thereof— (ii) use of violence in pursuance of common object of the assembly — Where essentials are complied with, conviction under S. 147 is proper. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. ILR (1957) Cut 642

——S. 147 — Unlawful assembly — Necessary ingredients to be proved.

Where a party goes to a spot armed, that by itself is no offence. If a fight takes place and then assault, then only those will be liable who actually take part in the assault, and not those who happen to be present there, because mere presence in the circumstances cannot show that those who were present had shared the common object of the unlawful assembly. In such a case it has further to be shown that those present also did some overt act from which it can reasonably be inferred that they shared the common object of the assembly, namely, to assault. 1957 B L J R 442 : 1958

Cri L J 1215 : 1957 Pat L R 156 : AIR 1958 Pat 492 (494) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Ss. 147 and 149 — Common object and acts done in prosecution must be definitely found and not merely left to conjecture or inference from other facts found in the judgment. There should also be a finding as to whether the acts done were committed for the prosecution of the common object of the assembly or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object, or even as to when the assembly came into being. See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (DB).

4. Charge.

——Ss. 147, 148 — Essentials.

For a charge under Ss. 147 and 148, there need not be a prior meeting of minds, of the accused and it is enough that each accused had the same object in view and their number was five or more and that they acted as an assembly to achieve that object The commonness of purpose is an inference of fact which courts of fact are entitled to make. AIR 1956 S C 513, Foll. 1962 (1) Cri L J 394 : AIR 1962 Andh Pra 166 (170) (Pt C) (Pr 39) (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 328 — Applicability — Absence of charge under S. 147 — Effect — Conviction.

In the absence of a charge under S. 147, Penal Code, it is only the persons who caused the injuries that can be punished for their individual acts. It cannot be said in such a case that it is not necessary to establish that any particular accused person inflicted the injuries or caused hurt to the complainant and that it is sufficient to show that they were present there. (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 474 : (1957) 2 Andh W R 201 : 1959 Cri L J 167 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 102 (103) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——S. 147 — Accused charged with common object of terrorising local administration by taking recourse to violent methods—Local administration acts through its agents — Object to terrorise agents of law and order held to be aimed at local administration—Charge under S. 147, held not vague. 1965 (1) Cri L J 160 : AIR 1965 Cal 89 (94) (Pt F) (Pr 31) (DB).

——S. 147 — Charge under S. 326/34 against some of accused only, is legal even when there was no charge under S. 326/149 against all accused. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239. 55 Cri L J 963 : AIR 1954 Cal 362 (DB).

——S. 147 — Charge — Failure to frame—In spite of S. 362 (4), Criminal P. C., the Magistrate must frame a charge because strict adherence to S. 362 (4), Criminal P. C. would result in prejudice to the accused — Held, on facts that it could not be said that the accused were not prejudiced at all by failure to mention the common object in the charge which is an essential element in the offence of rioting — Conviction under S. 147 failed for failure to mention charge — Question of conviction under S. 149 did not arise as that was dependent upon conviction under S. 147. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 362 (4). 1954 Cri L J 1254 : AIR 1954 Mad 785.

——Ss. 147, 323 — Charge under — Conviction under S. 323 — Legality.

Charge under S. 147 — No evidence that a particular accused's act was responsible for the hurt — No one can be convicted under S. 323. (1954) 1 Mad L J 497 : 1954 Mad W N 124 : 1954 Cri L J 1254 : AIR 1954 Mad 785 (788) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——S. 147 — Charge under — Statement of common object — Necessity — Effect of omission — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 225).

It is incumbent upon the Magistrate to specify the common object of the unlawful assembly in the charge itself under S. 147, Penal Code. Mere statement of the common object to commit rioting would not be sufficient in law to indicate as to what really their common object was. The Magistrate should have mentioned one of the objects as the common object as enumerated in S. 141, Penal Code.23 Cut L T 88 : 1957 Cri L J 988 : AIR 1957 Orissa 190 (191) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 147 — Charge — Error or omission in—Effect — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 225, 537).

Where the only common object alleged in the charge under S. 147, Penal Code, was to assault the members of the opposite party and to enforce the supposed right and claim over the produce of the disputed fields, whereas in the judgment of the Additional Sessions Judge, it was found that the common object of the assembly was to commit the offence of criminal trespass and theft of the paddy of the opposite party and also for assaulting them if they offered resistance, that finding is not vitiated on the ground that in the charge the common object was not stated to be to commit theft and criminal trespass, AIR 1956 S C 116, Foll. 1957 Cri L J 644 : ILR (1957) Cut 275 : AIR 1957 Orissa 117 (120) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Ss 147, 323, 324/34 — Convictions under Ss. 324 and 324/34 altered by appellate Court into convictions under Ss. 324 and 323/34 in spite of acceptance by trial Court of compromise in respect of offences under S. 323 — Compromise can be given effect to even in revision against appellate order and charges under S. 323 and S. 323/34 must fail — Because of compromise charge under S. 147 also fails when the common object of unlawful assembly was to assault — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 345. 1964 (2) Cri L J 111 (Pat).

——Ss. 147, 148, 149 and 304 — Charge — There can be conviction under S. 304 read with S. 149 without there being substantive charge either under S. 147 or S. 148. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 1308.

——Ss. 147 and 325 — Charge under S. 147, Penal Code fallen through — No reference in the charge to the furtherance of a common intention nor to the specific act of any of the accused — Conviction of some only under S. 325, Penal Code, cannot be sustained, particularly where the prosecution story is unsatisfactory and unreliable. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 225. 52 Cri L J 1024 : AIR 1951 Raj 135.

5. Conviction also under another section and separate sentences.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 148.

● ——Ss. 147, 149, 323, 71 — Conviction — Separate convictions under S. 147 and S. 323 read with S. 149 — Separate sentences — Legality.

Per Malik, C. J. and Mukerji, J. (Desai, J.; dissenting) — Where an unlawful assemply has used force or violence, it becomes guilty of rioting under S. 146 and can be convicted and punished under S. 147, Penal Code. If, however, as a result of the use of that force or violence simple hurt is caused, every member of the unlawful assembly can also be convicted and sentenced under S. 323 read with S. 149, Penal Code. An offence under S. 147 need have no ingredient which is common to S. 323, nor for an offence under S. 323 there need be any ingredient which constitutes an offence under S. 147. Both are separate offences for which separate convictions and separate sentences can be awarded. No difference can be made between a case where one blow is given by a member of an unlawful assembly and a case where more than one blow is given by a member thereof, and the restrictions given in S. 71 will not apply to such a case. ——

Per Desai, J. — It cannot be held that the punishment that can be inflicted on a member of an unlawful assembly for the offence of Ss. 147 and 323, Penal Code, is in no circumstances subject to the restrictions imposed by the second or third part of S. 71 and that it is irrelevant to consider whether only one blow was given by a member of an unlawful assembly or more than one.

An offence of S. 147 can be committed even if an offence of S. 323 is not committed and vice versa. It does not, however, follow that the punishments for the two offences can never be governed by the third part of S. 71. If an offence of S. 147 is committed without an offence of S. 323 being committed at the same time and subsequently an offence of S. 323 is committed the punishments for the two will certainly not be governed by S. 71; for example where two blows are dealt. But if an offence of S. 147 is committed just because a member commits an offence of S. 323, the position is altered completely.

A single act with a definite beginning and a definite end and impelled by a single impulse cannot be split up into two acts like this. There is only one act done when one blow is given. AIR 1953 All 315 : 1953 Cri L J 711, Overruled. Sundar Singh v. The State, 1955 Cri L J 671 : 1955 All L J 293 : 1955 All W R (H C) 316 : ILR (1955) 1 All 472 : AIR 1955 All 232 (234, 235) (Pt A) (Prs 5 to 7, 12, 13) (FB).

——Ss. 147, 149 and 325—Conviction and sentence—Offence under S. 147 is complete when member of unlawful assembly uses force or violence — If other offences are committed each member becomes liable, if same is done in furtherance of common object — — S. 149 is not substantive offence—It only declares liability — Conviction under S. 147 and S. 325 read with S. 149 will not be unlawful. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3523.

——Ss 147 and 353—Criminal P. C,. S. 233 — Different offences — Conviction for each offence is not illegal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2683.

——S. 147 — Simultaneous conviction under S. 147 and S. 323 read with S. 149, I. P. Code — Legality is valid as there is a vital distinction between a conviction under S. 147 and a conviction under S. 323 read with S. 149. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1954 Cri L J 1450 : AIR 1954 All 689.

——Ss. 147, 323 and 326—Conviction—Legality of.

There is nothing illegal in conviction both under Ss. 147 and 323 or 326. AIR 1926 All 225; 24 All L J 178; AIR 1933 All 819; 34 Cri L J 1099; AIR 1952 All 92; 7 All 757 (FB ; 41 Cal 836, Foll. 1953 All L J 408 : 1953 All W R (HC) 399 : 1953 Cri L J 1677 : AIR 1953 All 726 (728) (Pt B) (Pr 14).

——Ss. 147, 71, 149 and 325 — Scope and applicability of S. 71 — Separate sentence—An accused can be punished separately for the offences of Ss. 147 and 323 or 324 or 325 or 326 I. P. C. read with S. 149, I. P. C. (Criminal P. C (1898), S. 35). See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1953 Cri L J 1222 : AIR 1953 All 510.

——Ss. 147, 149 and 323 — Convictions under S. 147 and under S. 353 read with S. 323 — No individual act under S. 323—Legality of conviction.

Where the accused are convicted both under S. 147 and S. 323 read with S. 149, I. P. C. and none of them is convicted for himself causing any injury under S. 323, I. P. C. but only for the act of some members of an unlawful assembly of which they were members, their conviction under S. 323 read with S. 149, I. P. C. cannot stand as the conviction under S. 147, I. P. C. depends also on the same facts and they cannot be punished twice over in respect of facts which constitute one offence. AIR 1940 Nag 120, Rel. on. 1952 All L J 392 : 1953 Cri L J 711 : AIR 1953 All 315 (316) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

[Overruled in AIR 1955 All 232.]

——Ss. 147, 149 and 325—Conviction—Five persons tried on charge of offences under S. 147 and S. 325 read with S. 149 — Acquittal of two in appeal—Sentence under S. 147 maintained against remaining three—Legality.

Five accused were charged with offences under S. 147 and S. 325 read with S. 34, Penal Code and were tried and convicted for offences under S. 147 and S. 325 read with S. 34, Penal Code; on appeal the Sessions Judge acquitted two of them and maintained the conviction and sentence of the other three; they applied in revision to the High Court.

Held : Their conviction under S. 147, Penal Code cannot stand in the absence of evidence that there were other persons who participated in the assault along with them.

In view of the evidence in the case and the findings arrived at by the trial Court it was open to alteration of the conviction and sentence under S. 325 read with S. 34, Penal Code, where it did not cause any prejudice to the accused. AIR 1948 All 162, Rel. on. 1952 All Cri R 113 : 1952 All L J 436 : 1952 All W R (HC) 362 : 1952 Cri L J 1737 : AIR 1952 All 941 (942) (Prs 3, 4).

——Ss, 147, 149, 295 and 297—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535 (1) — Charge under S. 295/149, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 297/149, Penal Code—Circumstances of case such that accused could be convicted under S. 147, Penal Code even in absence of charge—Mere absence of conviction under S. 147, Penal Code is no ground for setting aside their conviction where there has been no failure of justice. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535 (1). AIR 1952 All 878.

——Ss. 147 and 71 — Scope of—Offences punishable under Ss. 147 and 323/491, Penal Code. Fact that accused persons were members of an unlawful assembly of which the common object was to give a beating to another person and if is not proved that they had caused hurt to any one, their act constitutes two offences punishable under S. 147 and S. 323/149 — Case falls under S. 71 (2). Aggregate sentence should not exceed the limit which is prescribed in respect of one of them. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. AIR 1952 All 92.

——Ss. 147, 323 — Conviction under another section.

A person who actually causes hurt and is also a member of an unlawful assembly can be convicted of committing riot under S. 147 and of causing hurt under S. 323. ILR 7 All 757, Rel. on. 1951 R D (HC) 267 : 1951 All W R (HC) 597 : AIR 1952 All 92 (92) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Ss. 147, 299, 300, 302, 304, 109 and 34 — Four accused armed with lathis and one with spear—Common object of beating deceased—One member, being struck by deceased, becoming incapable of taking further part—Rest beating deceased causing several injuries resulting in death — Offences committed by accused stated.

Due to old enmity, five accused, four armed with lathis and one with a spear, intended to give beating to the deceased. With this intention they attacked the deceased. One of the accused, A, aimed a first lathi blow at the deceased who avoided it and succeeded in striking a lathi at 'A'. A fell down and could not take any further part in the incident on account of the injuries he received. The rest of the accused then beat the deceased with lathis and spear as a result of which the deceased received as many as 29 injuries including seven incised and three contused wounds on the head and died instantaneously. As to what offences were made against the accused including A :

Held that (1) the accused formed an unlawful assembly with the common intention of giving beating to the deceased. They further did commit the offence of rioting the moment 'A' attacked the deceased;

(2) the accused, other than A, were guilty under S. 302 read with S. 34.

(3) A was guilty of the offence under S. 304, Part II read with S. 109. 1950 All L J 246 : 51 Cri L J 1133 : 1950 All W R (HC) 376 : ILR (1951) 2 All 141 : AIR 1950 All 418 (419 to 421) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 9, 12) (DB).

——Ss. 147, 148, 149 and 325 — Sentences—Accused sentenced for offences under Ss. 149 and 325—Separate sentences under Ss. 147 and 148, not legal. AIR 1934 Mad 388, Rel. on. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

——S. 147—Sentence—Separate sentences—One for offence under S. 147 and other for substantive offence read with S. 149 — Not legal, as it offends the provisions of S. 71. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1958 Andhra L T 109.

——Ss. 147, 379—Charge under both sections—Common object of offences under Ss. 147 and 379 same—There should be no separate sentences. AIR 1955 NUC (Assam) 2850.

——S. 147—Conviction — Offences under S. 147 and another offence under S. 325/149, I. P. C. held to be committed by the same act and the accused convicted therefor—The offenders were not liable to be punished for more than one such offences for the accused cannot be punished twice for the same act. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1955 Cri L J 1033 : AIR 1955 Bhopal 9.

——Ss. 147, 302, 34 and 149 — Several accused charged under S. 302/149, charge under S. 147, I. P. C. not established — Conviction of the accused under S. 302 read with S. 34 permissible provided no prejudice results therefrom and the facts are such that the accused could have been charged alternatively under S. 149 or S. 34, I. P. C. Such a situation might arise only when the common intention is co-extensive with the common object and does not go beyond the common object. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1965 (1) Cri L J 160 : A I R 1965 Cal 89 (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 149'— Offence under—Deceased persons not having injuries in such a manner or in such circumstances as would indicate anything like grim determinations on the part of assailants to endanger their lives—Held that all the accused persons could be held as members of unlawful assembly whose common object was at least to cause hurt—That they could be aware of possibility of grievous hurt but not of killing any person — That the case fell under S. 325 read with S. 149, besides under S. 325 read with Ss. 149 and 147 — Offence under S. 323 being minor form of offence to the offence under S. 325, conviction under S. 323 was superfluous. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1964 (1) Cri L J 185 : A I R 1964 Madh Pra 182 (DB).

——S. 147 — Accused charged under Ss. 147 and 302/34 — Conviction under Ss. 147 and 325/34 legal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. A I R 1955 N U C (Mad) 3941.

——S. 147—Complaint under Ss. 147 and 380 against three accused but summoned under Ss. 380 and 323 — Participation of other accused in occurrence was not proved — Charge under S. 380 also not fully established — Prosecution evidence regarding assault was quite convincing as there were no material discrepancies in statements—Charges under Ss. 147 and 380 must fail but accused can be held guilty of the minor offence under S. 323 for their individual acts of assault. See Penal Code (1860), S. 323. 1965 B L J R 278.

6. Conviction of less than five persons.

——Ss. 147, 146 — Conviction of less than five persons.

The identity of the persons comprising the assembly is a matter relating to the determination of the guilt of the individual accused, and even when it is possible to convict less than five persons only, S. 147 still applies if upon the evidence in the case the Court is able to hold that the person or persons who have been found guilty were members of an assembly of five or more persons, known or unknown, identified or unidentified. 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 83 : 1950 Raj L W 62 : 1950 Mad W N 327 : 63 Mad L W 501 : ILR 29 Pat 391 : 51 Cri L J 1057 : 1949 F C R 834 : 1950 S C J 143 : 52 Bom L R 512 : A I R 1950 F C 80 (81) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——S. 147 — Conviction of less than five persons — Satisfactory evidence that more than five persons took part in abduction and criminal trespass — All persons are members of unlawful assembly —Conviction of only three of them under S. 147 is legal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. AIR 1954 All 249.

——S. 146 and S. 147—Applicability—Riot—Seventy or eighty persons assembled — Out of which twelve tried and convicted — In appeal nine acquitted — S. 147 applies.

A number of unknown and unidentified persons were stated to have taken part in the rioting. The evidence showed that 70 or 80 persons had assembled at the place of occurrence. Out of these 70 or 80 only 12 were named and sent up for trial before the Magistrate who convicted them and sentenced each to rigorous imprisonment for three months under section 147—The Sessions Judge on appeal, however, acquitted them all except the three petitioners. The rest nine of the accused persons were acquitted.

Held on the evidence that there were about 70 or 80 persons who had participated in the alleged occurrence out of which 12 were sent up for trial and that S. 147 applied. A I R 1950 F C 80, Rel. on. A I R 1939 Mad 392; A I R 1939 Lah 416; A I R 1952 All 941; A I R 1945 All 31, Disting. I L R (1959) Cut 111.

——S. 147 — Evidence — Finding that more than five persons formed into unlawful assembly and committed riot — It is immaterial that only two persons happen to be convicted while others are acquitted. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 2194 (DB).

7. Right of private defence.

——Ss. 147, 143, 323, 97, 99 — Illegal attachment of property—Judgment-debtor is not entitled to form an unlawful assembly along with his men and go to the enclosure with the common object of taking away the attached property by force from the enclosure where the sapurdar had kept it — If they use force with this common object they commit an offence under S. 147 — No right of self-defence. 1959 All L J 781 : 1959 All W R (HC) 637 : 1960 All Cr R 1 : 1960 Cri L J 1040 : ILR (1960) 1 All 53 : A I R 1960 All 453 (455) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Ss. 147, 146, 141, 149, 34, 304, 323 and 325 — Applicability—Private defence.

Persons who are asserting their right of private defence of property are doing a perfectly legitimate act and the assembly is not an unlawful assembly. Consequently the provisions of section 149, I. P. Code cannot be invoked so as to make every one of those persons vicariously liable for the acts of their comrades. If any one of them exceeds that right and gives a blow which causes death that is his individual act and he alone would be liable for the consequences thereof. If there is no evidence whatsoever to fix the identity of the individual who delivered that blow the result would be that no one of those persons could be convicted of an offence under S. 304.

Similarly as regards the grievous hurt and simple hurt caused, apart from the fact that the causing of them is legitimate in the exercise of the right of private defence, in the absence of evidence as to who caused the hurts, there can be no presumption that the lathi wielded by every one of the appellants must have necessarily struck one or the other of the injured persons on the complainant's side. As those who did not hit any one committed no offence, every one is entitled to the benefit of doubt.

Section 34 also will not apply because there was no pre-arranged plan. 1954 Cri L J 1710: AIR 1954 All 771 (773) (Pt B) (Prs 9 to 11) (DB).

——Ss. 147, 103, 148, 304, 323 and 325 — Right of private defence of property — Dispute regarding cutting of sugarcane crop — Rioting — Each party charging other as aggressor — Title legally with accused under decree — Accused had right of private defence—(Tenancy Laws — U. P. Tenancy Act (17 of 1939), Ss. 160 (3) and 180). See Penal Code (1860), S. 103. AIR 1953 All 327.

——Ss. 147 and 148—Rioting and unlawful assembly — Private defence — Dispute regarding possession — Use of force by accused as lawful owner of land to vacate trespass resulting in injuries — No time to get the help of authorities in time — Conviction of accused for rioting and unlawful assembly not justified — The accused as lawful owners were only maintaining their possession and not enforcing any right — They had the right to use force to eject the trespassers — Use of force was not excessive. See Penal Code (1860), S. 144. I L R (1965) Andh Pra 193 (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 353 — Seizure of account books — Seizure not authorised by law — Accused retrieving books forcibly—Force used not more than necessary — No injury caused — Accused held had right of private defence — No offence committed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 99. (1960) 11 S T C 850 (Andh Pra).

——Ss. 147, 34, 96, 304, Part II and 325 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 — Dispute over possession of land — Fight — One party receiving grievous injuries resulting in death of one person — Party of accused receiving minor injuries — Plea that accused party was attacked not established — Assembly held not unlawful — Right of private defence did not arise — Absence of premeditation—Conviction under S. 304 held not maintainable. See Penal Pode (1860), S. 34. 52 Cri L J 209 : AIR 1951 Assam 48 (DB).

——S. 147 — Right of easement — Use of criminal force, if offence—Accused claiming right of easement to pass over inner courtyard of complainants' house through gap in complainants' boundary wall — Right disputed by complainant—Complainant trying to close gap — Complainants' act does not amount to mischief or wrongful restraint — No right of private defence arises in favour of accused party — Accused party using criminal force to prevent closing of gap are guilty of rioting. See Penal Code (1860), S. 96. 1963 (1) Cri L J 46 : AIR 1963 Cal 3 (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 141 — Assembly lawful in its inception — Other party found to be aggressor—Assembly does not become unlawful by repelling attacks by other party. See Panal Code (1860), S. 141. AIR 1952 Madh Bha 205.

——S. 147—Applicability — Private defence — Defence of possession of property — No offence.

Once it is established that the accused were actually in possession over the land where the fighting took place and they were ploughing it, and the deceased and his sons went there to take possession forcibly on the basis of certain compromise decree and a judgement and on the basis of the mutation order, the accused would not be guilty of either committing a riot or for causing injuries or even for committing a murder if they merely tried to maintain their possession. Where the other party was found to be the aggressor, the accused cannot be deemed to be guilty under S. 147, I. P. C., if they merely repel attacks by the other party. 1955 Cri L J 705 : AIR 1955 Manipur 21 (27) (Pt B) (Pr 34).

——Ss. 147, 148 and 99— Case of rioting — Right of private defence of property — When can be claimed — The right of private defence under S. 99, I. P. C. is an answer to a charge of rioting: but there can be no right of private defence when the riot is premeditated on both sides, unless the object of the assembly is shown to have been to repel forcible and criminal aggression. The right of private defence can be exercised only in special circumstances and with restrictions imposed by that section. See Penal Code Code (1860), S. 99. (1962) 28 Cut L T 548.

——Ss. 147 and 146 — Applicability — Sections 96. 97 and 100.

Where the evidence did not warrant the conclusion that the accused party had gone prepared for a fight, but that the fight ensued as a result of the prosecution party rushing at them armed with thengas and assault them, it cannot be held that the accused party had the common object of assaulting the prosecution party. The conduct of the accused party in beating some members of the prosecution party which resulted in the death of one of them amounted to an act of exercise of the right of private defence of their person. In the circumstances it cannot also be held that they exceeded that right by causing the death. At any rate when the evidence raises a doubt with regard to that, the accused are entitled to an acquittal. (1958) 24 Cut L T 215.

——S. 147 — Member of unlawful assembly — Unauthorised entry of police party into a math for search of arms and arrest of some inmates — Police party cannot be held to have acted in due discharge of their duties and under process of law — Resistance to police — Not an illegal act to make the resisting members as members of unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 142. 1957 Cri L J 769 : AIR 1957 Orissa 130 (DB).

——Ss. 147, 323, 99 and 104 — Conviction — Legality — Unlawful seizure of cattle — Rescue — If the seizure of the cattle is not proved to be legal, their rescue by the accused also could not be said to have been caused by them as being members of an unlawful assembly in asmuch as the object of rescuing the cattle seized could not be said to be unlawful — No offence — Minor injuries caused to complainant by accused while rescuing cattle illegally seized — No conviction under S. 323, I. P. C., injuries being caused in exercise of right of private defence — (Cattle Trespass Act (1871), Ss. 24 and 10). AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 1869.

——S. 147 — Assistant Sub-Inspector from Punjab State coming with staff to village in Rajasthan for investigation of a case in Punjab — Searches and seizure of properties of accused by Assistant Sub-Inspector held to be without jurisdiction — Police party held not to have acted in good faith — Right of private defence held however not available to accused under circumstances of case — Offence under S. 395 held not proved — Conviction under Ss. 332,

383 upheld. See Penal Code (1860), S. 52. 1964 Raj L W 126.

8. Sections 147 and 148.

——Ss. 147 and 148 — Applicability of ratio of the decision in Boya Husainappa in 1958 Andh L T 109 applies as much to sentence under S. 148, Penal Code as to a sentence under S. 147, Penal Code because both deal with offence of rioting, one with rioting simpliciter and the other with rioting armed with deadly weapones. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1963 (1) Cri L J 415 : AIR 1963 Andh Pra 146 (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 148 — Rioting—Only persons armed with deadly weapons are liable under S. 148—Others not so armed are liable under S. 147. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

——Ss. 147, 148 — Weapons used not shown to be dangerous or deadly—Conviction.

——Muslim crowd originally unarmed attacking Hindu procession in the first instance with stones not shown to be either dangerous or deadly — Later on some bamboo sticks and clubs used—Prosecution not proving that weapons used were either dangerous or likely to cause death — Conviction should be under S. 147 and not under S. 148. AIR 1942 Mad 213, Rel. on. (1950) 55 Mys H C R 317 (DB).

——Ss. 147 and 148—Specific charge under S. 148 along with other offences — Omission to convict accused under that section — Conviction cannot be altered to one under S. 147 in appeal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. AIR 1961 Orissa 29.

——Ss. 147, 148 and 149—Scope and applicability.

Section 148 deals with direct responsibility and a rioter who does not carry a deadly weapon himself cannot be made liable under that section by virtue of S. 149. The appropriate section to apply to him is therefore S. 147. 1956 Ker L T 30 : ILR (1956) Trav-Co 1 : 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (233) (Pt G) (Pt 10) (DB).

SECTION 148

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 148.)

1. Applicability.
2. Conviction and sentence.
3. Deadly weapon.
4. Charge.
5. Conviction under different sections.
   See also Penal Code (1860), S. 147.
6. Proof.
7. Right of private defence.
   See Penal Code (1860), S. 147.
8. Sections 148 and 149.
9. Special Judge under M. B. Public Security Act (19 of 1953)—Jurisdiction to try offences under S. 148.
10. Leave to appeal to Supreme Court.

1. Applicability.

——S. 148 — Rioting — Only persons armed with deadly weapons are liable under S. 148 — Others not so armed are liable under S. 147. I L R (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

——S. 148—Essentials.

For a charge under Ss. 147 and 148 there need not be a prior meeting of minds of the accused and it is enough that each accused had the same object in view and their number was five or more and that they had acted as an assembly to achieve that object. The commonness of purpose is an inference of fact which Courts are entitled to make. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1962 (1) Cri L J 394: A I R 1962 Andh Pra 166 (DB).

——Ss. 148 and 149 — Unlawful assembly — Some accused acquitted—Others can still be convicted.

The argument that convictions under S. 148, and by applying under S. 149, Penal Code, cannot be sustained, in view of the acquittal of the other accused is not acceptable. Notwithstanding the acquittal of some of the accused, if the Court is able to find, that the convicted person and some others, though known or unknown, were members of an unlawful assembly, then the conviction of the known or identified person can stand. A I R 1953 S C 364; AIR 1950 FC 80, Foll. 1959 Ker L J 664: 1959 Ker L T 704.

——S. 148 — Applicability — Member of unlawful assembly not armed with deadly weapon—He cannot be convicted under section—A I R 1942 Mad 420, Not foll. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3862 (DB).

——Ss. 148 and 300—Applicability — A and his companions armed with lathies and dagger trying to take away A's wife from the house of A's father-in-law — A striking his dagger in his daughter's abdomen in scuffle — Death of daughter — Offence committed is under S. 304, Penal Code — There being no evidence to indicate the accused entered the house of his father-in-law with the intention necessary to constitute criminal trespass and that he entered the house after having made a preparation to assault his wife A's conviction under Ss. 452 and 148 must be set aside. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1957 Cri L J 1405 (2): AIR 1957 Madh Pra 217 (DB).

——Ss. 148, 141 (Fifthly), 142, 143 — Unlawful assembly—What constitutes—Hindu Muslim factions — Agreement as to right to take procession with music in front of mosque on public highway — Such agreement does not give any right to the Muslim community to prevent the processionists to proceed along the mosque on the public highway with music —It cannot have the effect of a decree of Court or an award of arbitrators defining and declaring the rights of the parties—Right to use public highway is in the nature of a fundamental right and does not originate in agreement on custom — By obstructing procession the persons would constitute themselves an unlawful assembly within the meaning of S. 141. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141 (Fifthly). 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : AIR 1961 Mys 57 (DB).

——S. 148—Applicability—Essentials of.

Section 148 of the Penal Code can only be employed when the rioters are armed with deadly weapons or with weapons of offence likely to cause death. A person cannot be found guilty unless he actually has a dangerous weapon in his hand. (1950) 55 Mys H C R 317.

——Ss. 148, 147, 326/149, 302 — Rioting — Common object to assault deceased not established—One of the accused guilty of murder and convicted under S. 302 — Others held could not be convicted under Ss 147, 148 and 326/149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 51 Cri L J 331: AIR 1950 Pat 44 (DB).

——Ss. 148, 141, 149 and 302 — Rioting—Conditions to be satisfied — Unlawful common object — Beating with sharp weapons resulting in death — Liability of members—Six persons armed with various weapons—The head of the party challenging A and beating him — Other accused persons also followed suit causing injuries to A and his men one of whom died immediately — Held the persons had come with the common object of belabouring A whch was an unlawful object and the assembly was therefore an unlawful assembly — The offence committed was of riot and the persons being armed with deadly weapons, it fell under S. 148. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1958 Cri L J 1232 : A I R 1958 Raj 226 (DB).

——S. 148—Essentials.

For a conviction under S. 148, Penal Code, it is necessary that each person who is convicted for this offence should be proved to have been armed with deadly weapon at the time of the riot. If only some of them are so armed and others are not, all of them cannot be convicted under S. 148 Penal Code and only those who are proved beyond reasonable doubt to have been armed with deadly weapons can be convicted under S. 148, Penal Code. Where it is not proved as to which, if any of the accused was armed with deadly weapon at the time of the riot, none of them can be convicted under S. 148, Penal Code. 1958 Raj L W 505.

——Ss. 148 and 147—Scope and applicability—S. 148 deals with direct responsibility and a rioter who does not carry a deadly weapon himself cannot be made liable under that section by virtue of S. 149 — The appropriate section to apply is S. 147 See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (DB).

——S. 148 — Assault on police party in pursuance of Criminal conspiracy — Murder of Inspector and fatal injuries on others — Held, all accused were guilty of offences punishable under S. 120-B and all of them except 13th accused were also guilty of offences punishable under S. 148, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 120 B. (1955) Cri L J 414 : A I R 1955 Trav-Co 33 (DB).

2. Conviction and sentence.

——S. 148—Sentence — To attack an unarmed man peaceably registering a protest in the very manner contemplated by law does not call for an exercise of leniency. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1954 Cri L J 1708: A I R 1954 SC 657.

——S. 148 — Charge under Ss. 148, 324, 325 and 326/149 against five accused — Common object not proved and hence accused acquitted under S. 148 and S. 149 — One accused acquitted — Rest convicted for individual acts in absence of specific charges against each of them — Convictions of the accused for the offences under Ss. 325, 324 and 323 could not be sustained as they were not called upon to meet those specific charges. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 All L J 833.

——Ss. 148, 147—Applicability of ratio.

The ratio of the decision in Boya Husainappa, In re, 1958 Andh L T 109, applies as much to a sentence under S. 148, Penal Code, as to a sentence under S. 147, Penal Code, because both deal with the offence of rioting, one with rioting simpliciter and the other with rioting armed with deadly weapons. (1962) 2 Andh L T 303: 1963 (1) Cri L J 415: AIR 1963 Andh Pra 146 (147) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 148 — Rioting — Common object to assault deceased not established — One of accused guilty of murder and convicted under S. 302 — Others held could not be convicted under Ss. 147, 148 and 326/149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 51 Cri L J 331: AIR 1950 Pat 44 (DB).

3. Deadly weapon.

——Ss. 148 and 302 - Stick whether deadly weapon, depends upon its size and weight—Stout male bamboos are deadly weapons—Hallow bamboos are not. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

4. Charge.

——Ss. 148 and 149—Defective charges.

Since the offence of rioting itself requires a specified common object as described in S. 141, Penal Code, it will be a case of defective charges if a Court were to say that the common object was to commit rioting, while framing charges under other sections of the Penal Code read with S. 149 of the Code. 26 Cut L T 111 : (1959) I O J D 699 : (1961) Cri L J 132(2): AIR 1961 Orissa 29 (30) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Ss. 148, 341 and Ss 302/34 and 109 — Charges under—Leaving out S. 149 in relation to charge of murder held was a serious omission as it would keep the door open for guilty men to escape. 1956 Ker L T 30 : ILR (1956) Trav Co 1 : 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav Co 230 (233) (Pt I) (Pr 9) (DB).

5. Conviction under different sections.
See also Penal Code (1860), S. 147.

——Ss 148, 147, 149, 325 — Sentences — Accused sentenced for offences under Ss. 149 and 325—Separate sentences under Ss. 147 and 148, not legal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

——S. 148—Charges against several accused under Ss. 148, 323, 326, 324 and 451 read with S. 149, Penal Code—Acquittal of the accused on charges of unlawful assembly but conviction for specific individual acts under different sections—Absence of separate charges for specific offences in the alternative — Prejudice—Conviction for individual specific offences held proper in the circumstances of the case. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1962 Ker L J 793.

——Ss. 148 and 307—When the accused were convicted under Ss. 307 and 148, it was held unnecessary in the circumstances of the case to convict them for rioting and S. 148, Penal Code — Their conviction under S. 307/149 held sufficient. See Penal Code (1860), S. 307. 1952 Cri L J 1500 : AIR 1952 Manipur 2.

——Ss. 148, 149 and 324—Charge under—Accused acquitted of offence of rioting—Conviction of accused under S. 324 read with S. 149 cannot be sustained.

The accused five in number were prosecuted at the instance of P. W. 1 for offences under Ss. 148, 326, 324 read with S. 149, I. P. C., on the allegation that P. Ws. 1 and 2 were belaboured by the members of unlawful assembly constituted of the accused persons. The accused were acquitted of the offences under S. 148 and S. 326, Penal Code. All the accused were convicted under S 324 read with S. 149 in respect of hurt caused to P. W. 1 and accused 4 alone was convicted under S. 324, Penal Code, in respect of hurt caused to P. W. 2.

Held, that once the accused were acquitted of the offence of rioting under S. 148, Penal Code, the Magistrate could not convict them under S. 324 read with S. 149, Penal Code. The acquittal in respect of the offence of rioting necessarily implied that either there was no unlawful assembly or that the employment of force or violence on P. Ws. 1 and 2 was not in prosecution of the common object of the assembly. But a conviction under S. 149 could be sustained only if an offence was committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly or such as the members of that assembly knew was likely to be committed in prosecution of that object. There was no finding to that effect. The conviction in respect of the offence under S. 149, Penal Code could not therefore be substained. (1965) 1 Law Rep 592 : 1966 Cri L J 150 : AIR 1966 Mys 53 (55) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Ss. 148, 97, 141, 149 and 326—Accused more than 4 armed with deadly weapons trying to enforce their disputed right to usufruct of mango trees—Incident resulting in simple injuries and grievous hurt resulting in death of person—No physical resistance encountered by accused—Offence of which accused were guilty—Accused not entitled to right of private defence — Accused constituted themselves into unlawful assembly and every one of them would be guilty not only of offence punishable under S. 148 but also of offence punishable under S. 326 read with S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1961 (1) Cri L J 403 : AIR 1961 Mys 74 (DB).

——Ss. 148, 149, 341—Sentence — Sentence of two year's rigorous imprisonment awarded in respect of offence under S. 148—Sentence of one month's simple imprisonment awarded in respect of offence under S. 341 read with S. 149—Sentence of fine in respect of latter offence held was uncalled for. 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : 38 Mys L J 1039 i 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 55 : ILR (1960) Mys 1238 : A I R 1961 Mys 57 (62) (Pt D) (Pr 39) (DB).

——Ss. 148 and 147—Specific charge under S. 148 along with other offences—Omission to convict accused under that section—Alteration into conviction under S. 147 in appeal—Legality.

Once a specific charge under S. 148 is framed, (along with other offences), the Magistrate must expressly say whether he convicts or acquits the accused of that offence. The omission of the Magistrate to convict the accused under S. 148, Penal Code must be held to mean that he was acquitted of that charge irrespective of whether this omission was due to oversight or any other reason and the Sessions Judge has in appeal (from the conviction for other offences) no jurisdiction to alter the conviction under S. 148 to one under S. 147, Penal Code as there was no conviction by the trial Magistrate under S. 148 at all. (1959) 1 OJD 699 ; 26 Cut L T 111 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 132 (2) : AIR 1961 Orissa 29 (30) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7).

——S. 148—Charge—There can be conviction under S. 304 read with S. 149, I P.C., without there being a substantive charge either under S. 147 or S. 148, Penal Code—See Penal Code (1860), S, 147. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 1308.

——S. 148—Assistant Sub-Inspector from Punjab State coming with staff to village in Rajasthan for investigation of a case in Punjab—Searches and seizure of properties of accused by Assistant Sub Inspector held to be without jurisdiction—Police party held not to have acted in good faith—Right of private defence, held, however not available to accused under circumstances of the case — Offence under S. 395 held not proved — Convictions under Ss. 332 and 333 upheld. See Penal Code (1860), S. 52. 1964 Raj L W 126.

6. Proof.

——S. 148—Applicability—Charge of rioting with deadly weapons against several persons—Necessity of considering case of each accused separately especially where the prosecution evidence against each of the accused is of a very general character, vague and indefinite—Mere presence at scene of occurrence not sufficient to make them members of that assembly — Overt act of each of the accused, that he was a member of the assembly and showed common object necessary—Mere carrying of weapons by some cannot lead to the conclusion that they and others who were unarmed were all members of the unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3801 (DB).

——S. 148—Travancore Penal Code, S. 140—Unlawful assembly committing riot—Evidence—Examination of—Participating by each one of the accused must be ascertained from evidence.

It is the clear duty of the Judge to examine on the evidence not only whether some particular accused were properly joined as accused but also whether each one of the accused did form a member of the unlawful assembly that committed the riot and the murders attributed to the assembly.

In a case where a motive can be attributed to the witnesses to falsely implicate persons to whom they bore a grudge, it will be unsafe to place any reliance on such witnesses in deciding whether any of the accused did participate in the offence. The Court. should be guided in the matter only by the evidence of such witnesses whose veracity is beyond question. 51 Cri L J 833 : AIR 1950 Trav Co 20 (25) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 148—Travancore Penal Code, S. 140—Unlawful assembly committing riot — Common object—Proof of—Participation in assembly—Doing of overt act in furtherance of common object must be established.

Where number of labourers in certain estate were accused of forming into an unlawful assembly armed with sticks for committing riot and murdering two watchmen of the estate and at the earliest point of time after the occurrence the prosecution appeared to be interested in including among the accused as many of the persons engaged in creating labour trouble in the estate and carrying mischievous propaganda against its management and where out of the 98 persons alleged to have participated in the attack only 28 persons were included in the first information report, out of whom even 10 were later on dropped by the Investigating Inspector and 4 others were included:

Held, that this was a clear indication that the information available to the police either by the statements taken at the inquest or collected otherwise was not definite as to who at all participated in the commission of the crime and that under the circumstances it was unsafe to assume that any of the accused was a member of the unlawful assembly unless it was proved by unimpeachble evidence that he did an overt act in furtherance of what might be called the common object of the unlawful assembly.

Held further, that the common object of the assembly is not to be fixed with reference to what actually happened. It has to be ascertained with reference to the evidence regarding the manner in which the fight started and the broad probabilities arising from all the circumstances relating to how the fight developed. 51 Cri L J 833 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 20 (25) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

7. Right of private defence.

See Penal Code (1860), S. 147.

8. Sections 148 and 149.

——Ss. 148 and 149—Relative scope and distinction.

There is no scope for reading S. 148 along with S. 149. Section 149 contemplates only constructive liability whereas S. 148 deals with direct liability. Being armed with weapon cannot be made to be a constructive liability and one who does not carry weapon himself cannot be convicted under S. 148 by virtue of S. 149.

Held, that this difference ought to have been pointed out to the jury by the Judge and that not having been done. the jury failed to understand the implication of the sections and wrongly returned a verdict of guilty under both these sections read together. The conviction under S 148 read with S. 149 was bad in law and was liable to be set aside. 1955 Cri L J 780 : AIR 1955 Assam 105 (106) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 148 and 149 — Scope of — There can be no conviction under Ss. 148/149.

There can be no conviction under Ss. 148/149. The question of constructive liability under S. 149 does not arise for a conviction under S. 148 because the very definition of the offence of rioting in S. 146, I. P. Code, involves constructive liability. Hence a Magistrate should convict those rioters who are armed with deadly weapons, under S. 148, I. P. Code and those of them who are not armed with deadly weapons, under S. 147, I. P. Code and should not convict any of the accused under S. 148 read with S. 149, Indian Penal Code. 26 Cut L T 111 : (1959) 1 O J D 699 : (1961) 1 Cri L J 132 (2) : AIR 1961 Orissa 29 (30) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

9. Special Judge under M. B. Public Security Act (19 of 1953) — Jurisdiction to try offences under S. 148.

——Ss. 148 and 149 — Jurisdiction — Special Judge under M. B. Act 19 of 1953 has no power to try offences under Ss. 148 and 149, Penal Code. See Public Safety — M. B. Public Security Act (19 of 1953), S. 12. 1957 M P C 74 : 1957 Jab L J 126.

10. Leave to appeal to Supreme Court.

——S. 148 — It is not necessary that in every case when a point of law is raised the matter should be certified as fit for appeal—Held, though the case involved a question of law relating to the legality of conviction under S. 149, I. P. C., where the culprits that could be identified were less than five, it was not a fit case for appeal to the Supreme Court. See Constitution of India, Art. 134 (1) (c). 52 Cri L J 1409 : AIR 1951 Pepsu 152 (DB).

SECTION 149

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 149.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. "Offence"
3. "Any member."
4. "In prosecution of common object".
5. Sections 149 and 34.
See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.
6. "Knew to be likely to be committed."
7. Evidence.
8. "Every person who . . . . . is a member of same assembly."
9. Conviction of less than five.
10. Private defence.
11. Sections 149 and 148.
12. Charge — General.
See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.
13. Charge under S. 149 — Conviction under S. 34.
See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.
14. Charge under S. 34—Conviction under S. 149.
See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.
15. Sentence.
16. Procedure.
17. Leave to appeal to Supreme Court.
18. Sections 149 and 302.
19. Marpit cases.
See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.
20. Alteration of conviction in appeal.

1. Scope and applicability.

——S. 149—Applicability—Conditions.

Section 149, I. P. Code cannot apply unless there is proximity of time and place both between members of an unlawful assembly and the criminal acts of individual members of that assembly, for there obviously cannot be an assembly unless the five or more persons constituting it are at the same place, while S. 149 itself speaks distinctly of 'at the time' of the committing of the offence. 1958 Cri L J 424 : AIR 1958 All 255 (290) (Pt J) (Pr 151) (DB).

——S. 149—Applicability—Commissioner appointed to execute decree for delivery of possession—Obstruction by applicants — Applicants can be convicted under S. 332 read with S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 21. 1957 All L J 268 : I L R (1957) 1 All 187.

——S. 149—Scope—Does not create new offence.

Section 149 does not create a new offence but makes a member of an unlawful assembly vicariously liable for offences committed by others in furtherance of the common object. Sundar Singh v. State, 1955 Cri L J 671 : 1955 All L J 293 : 1955 All W R (H C) 316 : I L R (1955) 1 All 472 : A I R 1955 All 282 (283) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (FB).

——S. 149—Applicability—Essentials.

Section 149, I. P. Code, requires three things primarily—(1) that one should be a member of an unlawful assembly, (2) that in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, an offence should be committed by a member of that unlawful assembly, and (3) that the offence should be of such a nature that the members of that assembly knew the offence to be likely to be committed in prosecution of their common object. If these three elements are satisfied, then only a conviction under S. 149, I. P. Code, may be substantiated, and not otherwise. 1955 Cri L J 1470 : AIR 1955 Assam 226 (228) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 149—Applicability.

Use cannot be made of S. 149 for the purpose of establishing the guilt of the accused constructively except in cases falling under the Penal Code. 1953 Cri L J 692 : AIR 1953 Bhopal 8 (10) (Pt E) (Pr 18).

——S. 149—Applicability—Conditions.

It is not correct to say, when dealing with an offence under S. 149, that all the persons must combine together or help one another at the time of the assault. 62 Cal W N 873 : 1958 All W R (Sup) 139 : 1958 All Cri R 472 : 1959 Cri L J 835 : AIR 1959 Cal 457 (460) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Ss. 149, 34 — Applicability — Pre-requisites for applicability are (1) that act must be done in prosecution of common object (2) or that assembly knew that particular act was likely to be committed in gaining the common object—Each case to be judged on merits. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 70 (DB).

——S. 149 — Applicability — Proof that particular named member of assembly committed offence not necessary.

In order that other members of the assembly can be convicted of an offence, it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that a particular named member of the assembly committed the offence. I L R (1962) Cut 661 : 28 Cut L T 435 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 114 (Orissa).

——S. 149—Applicability—Essentials.

For applicability of S. 149 there need not be a prior meeting of minds. It is enough that each has the same object in view. The elements of S. 149 are : (i) Commission of an offence by any member of an unlawful assembly; (ii) Commission of the offence in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly; and (iii) the offence must be such as the members of the unlawful assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. AIR 1956 S C 513; AIR 1956 S C 731 and 20 Suth W R (Cr) 5, Rel. on.

It was held that the common object of the assembly consisting of five or more persons was to commit offence falling under S. 326, Penal Code. 1957 Cri L J 532 : AIR 1957 Punj 81 (83) (Pt B) (Pr 18) (DB).

2. "Offence".

●——Ss. 149 and 326—Unlawful assembly—Common object to cause grievous hurt—One member only causing death—Liability of others.

Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code is declaratory of the vicarious liability of the members of an unlawfull assembly for acts done in prosecution of the common object of that assembly or for such offences as the members of the unlawful assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object. But members of an unlawful assembly may have a community of object upto a certain point, beyond which they may differ in their objects, and the knowledge possessed by each member of what is likely to be committed in prosecution of their common object may vary not according to the information at his command, but also according to the extent to which he shares the community of object and as a consequence of this the effect of S. 149 of the Indian Penal Code may be different on different members of the same unlawful assembly. Where the common object of the assembly was to cause grievous hurt and death was caused by only one of the members of the assembly for which the other members were not responsible, the conviction of the other members under S. 326 read with S. 149 cannot be held illegal merely because no member of the assembly was proved to have caused grievous hurt to the victims. The offence under S. 326 is in its relation to the offence of murder a minor offence and the language used in S. 149 does not prevent the Court from convicting for that minor offence merely because an aggravated offence is committed. I L R 1 Pat 753 : AIR 1923 Pat 50 : 24 Cri L J 65 and I L R 24 Pat 760 : AIR 1946 Pat 242. Overruled. Sambhu Nath Singh v. State of Bihar, 1960 B L J R 236 : 1960 Cri L J 1144 : AIR 1960 S C 725 (727 to 729) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7, 14, 15).

——Ss. 149, 307 — Some of accused assembled for committing dacoity firing at raiding police party—None, however, injured—All accused held guilty under S. 307 read with S. 149 — See Penal Code (1860), S. 307. AIR 1961 All 452.

——S. 149—Applicability—Liability limited to criminal act intended to be committed—Does not extend to offence likely te be committed — Common intention of accused to do a criminal act must be shown —See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1963 (2) Cri L J 570 (Madh Pra).

——Ss. 149, 323, 324, 326 — Unlawful assembly—Common object to cause grievous hurt—Grievous and simple injuries in prosecution of common object —Conviction for Ss. 323, 324 read with S. 149—Sustainability.

Where the common object of the unlawful assembly armed with deadly weapons was to cause grievous hurt and during the prosecution of that common object some accused caused grievous injuries, some others caused simple injuries with sharp-edged weapons and blunt weapons, and the lower Court had convicted all the accused under Ss. 326, 324 and 323 read along with S. 149:

Held, that their conviction under Ss. 324 and 323 both read with S. 149, cannot be sustained. I L R (1957) Punj 950 : 1957 Cr L J 1307 : AIR 1957 Punj 278 (284) (Pt C) (Pr 39) (DB).

——S. 149 — Common object to give beating—Hurt to several persons and grievous hurt to one—Held offences committed were under Ss. 323 and 325—See Penal Code (1860), S. 323. 1958 Raj L W 505.

—— Ss. 149, 34, 109 and 302—Not necessary to call in aid—Section 109 when accused are charged under S. 149 and S. 302/34—See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (DB).

3. "Any member".

——S. 149—Burden of proof.

As S. 149 stands the ingredients of the offence have to be made out by the prosecution and not by the accused. It has to be proved by the prosecution that at the time of the committing of the offence the accused was a member of the assembly. If once the prosecution has led evidence that the accused was present at the time of the commission of the offence as a member of the mob, it would be for the accused, if he so wishes to give evidence to rebut the prosecution case.

But unless there is some evidence to show that the accused was a member of the unlawful assembly at the time of the commission of the offence, no burden lies upon the defence to prove his innocence. It is for the prosecution to prove every bit of the chain in the guilt of the accused beyond any reasonable doubt. AIR 1924 All 233, Approved; AIR 1934 All 776, Not foll. 1956 Pat L R 440 : 1958 Cri L J 72 : AIR 1958 Pat 12 (16) (Pt A) (Pr 15) (DB).

4. "In prosecution of the common object".

●——Ss. 149 and 302 — 'In prosecution of common object'—Interpretation.

In order that the case may fall under the first part, the offence committed must be connected immediately with the common object of the unlawful assembly of which the accused were members. Even if the offence committed is not in direct prosecution of the common object of the assembly, it may yet fall under S. 149 if it can be held that the offence was such as the members knew was likely to be committed. When people go armed with lethal weapons to take possession of land which is in possession of others, they must have the knowledge that there would be opposition and the extent to which they were prepared to go to accompiish their common object would depend on their conduct as a whole. AIR 1956 S C 731, Distinguished. Tej Singh v. State of U. P. 1959 All Cr R 256 : 1959 M P C 325 : 1959 All W R (HC) 305 : 1959 Pat L R (S C) 45 : 1959 Cri L J 777 : I L R (1959) 2 All 13 : (1959) Supp 1 S C R 952 : 1959 All L J 408 : 1959 B L J R 371 : 1959 S C J 554 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 359 : AIR 1959 S C 572 (576, 577) (Prs 6, 8, 10 to 12).

●——S. 149—Applicability—Common object.

Under section 149, the liability of the other members for the offence committed during the continuance of the occurrence rests upon the fact whether the other members knew beforehand that the offence actually committed was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. Such knowledge may reasonably be collected from the nature of the assembly, arms or behaviour, at or before the scene of action. If such knowledge may not reasonably be attributed to the other members of the assembly then their liability for the offence committed during the occurrence does not arise.

Held, that the accused appellants had only lathis which might possibly account for injuries on the deceased's left arm and left hand but they could not be held liable for murder by invoking the aid of S. 149. According to the evidence only two persons were armed with deadly weapons. Both of them were acquitted and a third, who was alleged to have had a spear, was absconding. No knowledge of the existence of deadly weapons could therefore be ascribed to the appellants, much less they would be used in order to cause death. Accordingly the appellants were not guilty of the offence under S. 302/149, I. P. Code. AIR 1946 Pat 242, Approved. Gajanand v. State of U. P., 1954 Cri L J 1746 : AIR 1954 S C 695 (699) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Ss. 149, 302 — 'In prosecution of the common object of the assembly' — Interpretation of — Not killing but only beating of deceased in contemplation of members of unlawful assembly — Murder of deceased by one member while unlawful assembly was acting in accomplishment of common object—Other members not liable for murder under S. 149.

Under the first part of S. 149 all the members of an unlawful assembly are not liable to punishment for any and every offence committed by one or more members of that assembly, even if that offence be in excess of the known, agreed or intended common object of the unlawful assembly because that offence was committed while the unlawful assembly was acting in the accomplishment of the intended common object.

Where in a murder charge against several persons forming an unlawful assembly the killing of the deceased was not in the contemplation of any other member except one, and their conduct gave a positive indication of their mind only to beat him, it cannot be said that the murder was committed in furtherance of the common object. The other members of the unlawful assembly are not liable to punishment under S. 302 under the first or second part of S. 149. 1962 (1) Cri L J 698 : 1962 All Cr R 229 : 1962 All W R (H C) 419 : AIR 1962 All 272 (276, 277) (Prs 20, 21, 23) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 34 — Charge under — Common object—Proof.

Under S. 149 the liability of the other members for the offence committed during the continuance of the occurrence rests upon the fact whether the other members knew beforehand that the offence actually committed was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. Such knowledge may reasonably be collected from the nature of the assembly, arms or behaviour, at or before the scene of action. If such knowledge may not reasonably be attributed to the other members of the assembly then their liability for the offence committed during the occurrence does not arise. A I R 1954 S C 695 and A I R 1946 Pat 242, Foll.

Where in a charge against a member of the gang of bandits under S. 302 read with S. 149, Penal Code, the evidence showed that the plan of killing the deceased was formed by the gang leader suddenly and was put into execution immediately the other members of the gang cannot be held constructively liable for the murder. 1958 Cri L J 424 : AIR 1958 All 255 (285) (Pt E) (Pr 131) (DB).

——S. 149—One member of unlawful assembly, all of a sudden, striking deceased on head—Blow proving fatal—Act not in furtherance of common object — Other accused cannot be held guilty under S. 304 read with S. 149. 1954 All W R (H C) 45 : 1954 Cri L J 507 : 1954 All L J 237 : A I R 1954 All 249 (251) (Pr A) Pr 10).

——Ss. 149 and 325 — Victim dying as result of assault by several persons with sticks and weapons—It can be presumed that common object was at least to cause grievous hurt—Even accused causing simple injuries are guilty under Ss. 149, 325.

In the case of an assault on a person by about 16 persons with sticks and kattuvas, spear and axe, resulting in his death, it cannot be said, merely because some of the assailants caused only simple injuries to the deceased, that their common object was not likely to have gone beyond causing simple hurts. It may well be that they preferred not to carry out their common object themselves and left it to be performed by another member of their party. They must have naturally known that an attack by about 16 persons with the weapons mentioned above was likely to cause at least hurt which endangered the deceased's life and thereby constituted grievous hurt. The common object of such accused can, therefore, be at least to cause grievious hurt and they are guilty under Ss. 149 and 325. I L R (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

——S. 149 — Scope and applicability — Essentials—Preconcert as to common object not necessary — Offence must either be connected immediately with common object or assembly or the knowledge of members that it was likely to have been committed necessary. A I R 1959 S C 572, Applied. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 86 : (1962) 1 Andh L T 181 : (1962) 1 Andh W R 84.

——S. 149—Common object.

The common object of the assembly was to attack the police party when the accused responded to the order of one S that they should attack the police party and not spare any of them. Before his very eyes, three or four persons were put to death by some of the members of the attacking party and there was nothing to show or suggest that the accused acted in a way to show that his intention was to cease to be a member of that assembly. The accused gave a start to the beating and he himself beat one of the persons on his head with a stick.

Held, that under these circumstances, it could not be said that the jury would be wrong in holding that the accused share the same common object of killing the police which was actually done by the rioters. 54 Cal W N 2 (DR) 214 (Dacca). Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 780 : A I R 1955 Assam 105 (107) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 149—Common object—Evidence of—No direct evidence normally available and like, common intention, has to be gathered from the act which the person commits and the result therefrom. See Penal Code (1860), S. 307. 1955 Cri L J 1033 : A I R 1955 Bhopal 9.

——S. 149—Common object—Importance of.

In fastening constructive liability, the importance of the common object is very great and it is on this basis alone that an accused is punished for the act of his associates.

(Note : The judgment contains an analysis of S. 149 and an exposition of the underlying idea in the words 'common object'). 1953 Cri L J 692 : AIR 1953 Bhopal 8 (10) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——S. 149—Common object—Proof.

If there is a search for the common object or if the common object is changed now and then, according to the conveniences of the prosecution, the prosecution case falls to the ground as it will be difficult without causing some confusion, to switch on from one to the other common object. In any case, law will not permit it. 1953 Cri L J 692 : A I R 1953 Bhopal 8 (11) (Pt F) (Pr 23).

——S. 149—Common object and similar object— Six accused (close relatives) having common motives, attacking deceased surrounding him and causing him numerous injuries—Held it could not be said that object of accused was not common but merely similar. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1960 Cri L J 1329 : AIR 1960 Guj 13 (DB).

——S. 149—Offence under S. 367 read with S. 149—Ingredients to be proved stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 367. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3779 (DB).

——S. 149—Applicability—Murder by several accused —Deceased sending buffaloes in B's field for grazing —Attitude of deceased leading to sudden quarrel— Severel accused armed with 'luhangis' and 'lathis' arriving at the spot and assaulting deceased causing injuries on the head of deceased who dies soon after— No enmity which might have prompted the murder established — Medical report stating that the first injury was grievous which caused his death — Held that in the circumstances it could not be held that all the accused were there assembled with the common object or with the common intention of murdering deceased. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3097 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 302, 325, 323 and 147—More than five persons with only thin lathis in their hands coming together—Some of them beating complainants who were working at their fields - Death of some of the victims—Deceased persons not having injuries in such number or in such circumstances as would indicate anything like grim determination on the part of assailants to endanger their lives — Held, that all the persons could be held as members of unlawful assembly whose common object was at least to cause hurt—That they could be aware of the possibility of grievous hurt but not of killing any person—That the case fell under S. 325 read with S. 149, besides under S. 323 read with with Ss. 149 and 147—That offence under S. 323 being only a minor form of offence under S. 325, conviction under S. 323 was superfluous. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1964 (2) Cri L J 185: AIR 1964 Madh Pra 182 (DB).

——S. 149 — Scope — More than five accused belabouring deceased—Decision as to common object — Factors to be taken into account.

When there is no doubt that all the nine accused persons constituted themselves into an unlawful assembly and that every one of them has acted in some manner or other in furtherance of the common object but there is some difficulty in deciding whether common object was to commit murder or merely to inflict severe injuries the fact that they have chosen to belabour men who have fallen helpless on the ground and cause fractures of ribs and puncture of lungs, is a strong circumstance in favour of imputing to them an intention to kill. It is never possible to state with accuracy who, among the members of the unlawful assembly, inflicted what may be called the fatal blow, and the ultimate consequence, viz., the death of the victim may be the cumulative effect of sevaral blows given by different persons, each of whom might not have intended to kill. 38 Mys L J 701 : 1961 Mad L J (Cri) 374 : ILR (1960) Mys 668: 1960 Cri L J 1472 : AIR 1960 Mys 294 (296) (Pt D) (Pr 31) (DB).

——S. 149—Scope and effect of—'Common object'—Test of.

Section 149, Penal Code, makes every member of an unlawful assembly guilty of an offence which is committed in prosecution of the common object of the assembly. The mere fact that one of the persons was assaulted by one or more members of the assembly at a little distance from the scene of occurrence or in the next street does not preclude the incident from being part of the same transaction committed in prosecution of the common object. (1950) 55 Mys H C R 317.

——Ss. 149 and 302—Common object of unlawful assembly—How to be determined — Held that common object was to commit murder.

The common object of an unlawful assembly can be collected from the nature of the assembly and of the arms used by the members of the assembly and from the behaviour of the assembly at or before the scene or ocurrence.

Held, on facts, that the conclusion was irresistible that the common object of the unlawful assembly was to commit murder. The murder was committed by the members of the unlawful assembly in prosecution of their common object and accordingly all the accused persons were guilty under S. 302/149, Penal Code. I L R (1962) Cut 661 : 28 Cut L T 435 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 114 (Orissa).

——Ss. 149 and 395—Members of unlawful assembly guilty of rioting—Dacoity committed by some at same transaction — Conviction of all for dacoity not legal unless common object of dacoity is made out. 18 Cut L T 188 : 54 Cri L J 123 : A I R 1953 Orissa 1 (3) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 146—Common object—Some accused persons merely present at place of assault with lathis in hand — Not actually joining in assault — Common object of assault held not shared by them, See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1965 (1) Cri L J 73 : A I R 1965 Pat 45.

——S. 149—Scope of—Unlawful assembly—Common object to cause grievous hurt — One member causing death—Other member not vicariously guilty of death. A I R 1960 S C 725, Foll. 66 Punj L R 706 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 209 : A I R 1965 Punj 90 (93) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 300, 302, 307 and 328—Applicability—Assault by several persons armed with dangerous weapons—Death caused by one unidentified member —Common object to murder not established.

Murder and assault are not mutually exclusive; in order to convict for an offence of murder there must either be necessary intention or knowledge. AIR 1947 Pat 27, Rel. on. The words 'in prosecution of the common object' in S. 149 do not mean 'during the prosecution of the common object of the assembly'. The expression means that the offence committed was immediately connected with the common object of the assembly or the act is one which upon the evidence appears to have been done with a view to accomplish the common object attributed to the members of the assembly. AIR 1935 Oudh 52, Rel. on. The words 'in prosecution of the common object' have to be strictly construed as equivalent to 'in order to attain the common object'.

Where a number of persons armed with dangerous weapons lay in wait and one of the members of the assembly caused death, but in the circumstances it could not be found as to who caused the death and the conduct of the accused was such that it could not be said that the common object of the accused persons was to cause murder, but it was only one which fell under S. 326, Penal Code :

Held, that everyone of the accused persons could not be convicted under S. 302 read with S. 149. The proper section under which they could be convicted was S. 326 read with S. 149, and, therefore S. 307, Penal Code did not apply. Held, further that with regard to individual accused persons who caused injuries to persons other than the deceased the conviction could only be for the injuries caused. It could not be said that they would be liable to conviction under S. 307. ILR (1957) Punj 1950 : 1957 Cri L J 1307 : AIR 1957 Punj 278 (281, 283) (Pt A) (Prs 24, 32 to 34) (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 147—Common object and acts done in prosecution—Finding as to—If essential.

It is a common place of the law relating to unlawful assembly and rioting that the common object of an unlawful assembly must be definitely found and not merely left for conjecture or inference from other facts found in the judgment. There should also be a finding as to whether the acts done were committed for the prosecution of the common object of the assembly or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object, or even as to when the assembly came into being. 11 Cal 106 and 22 Cal 276 and 33 Cal 295 and AIR 1924 Lah 667 (2), Rel. on. 1956 Ker L T 30 : I L R (1956) Trav-Co 1 : 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (232) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

5. Sections 149 and 34.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

■ —Ss. 149, 34 — Applicability — Common object and common intention — Distinction — Enmity between different castes in village—Attack by S and G of one caste on persons of another caste at night with gun and sword—Hearing cries of help and gun fire, 30 or 40 villagers armed with deadly weapons rushing to the scene thinking there were thieves—Some of them later joining S and G in beating victims and all those who came to their rescue — Riot resulting in death of certain persons—Offence.

Held, on fact that persons who had come there quite lawfully, in the first instance, thinking there were thieves could well have developed an intention to beat up the thieves instead of helping to apprehend them or defend their properties; and if five or more shared the object and joined in the beating, then the object of each would become, the common object. There is no differnce in principle between this and a case in which the original object was unlawful. The only difference is that a case like this is more difficult to establish and must be scrutinised with greater care. Held, further, that any person who carries a fire arm at that hour of the night and uses it and then continues a fight after an excited crowd has assembled and when at least nine of them rush in to join in the beating after his first shot must know either that somebody is likely to deal a fatal blow or at least that the cumulative effect of blows inflicted by a number of persons armed with lathis is likely to cause death from shock.

The requisite knowledge that somebody would be likely to be killed in a melee could be imputed to all others who joined S and G accused belonging to one caste in beating all those who came to the help of P and C belonging to another caste. Sukha v. State of Rajasthan, 1956 S C R 288 : 1956 Pat L R (SC) 168 : 1956 Cri L J 923 : 1956 S C J 503 : 1956 Andh L T 583 : 1956 S C A 781 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 83 : 1956 S C C 355 : A I R 1956 S C 513 (514, 516, 518, 519) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 11, 29, 30, 33, 35, 36).

●—Ss. 149 and 34—Relative scope and distinction —Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233.

Under S. 149, a specific offence is created. Under this section a person, who is a member of an unlawful assembly is made guilty of the offence committed by another member of the same assembly in the circumstances mentioned in the section, although he had no intention to commit that offence and had done no overt act except his presence in the assembly and sharing the common object of that assembly. When the accused are acquitted of riot and the charge for being members of an unlawful assembly fails, there can be no conviction of any one of them for an offence which he had not himself committed.

Section 149 creates an offence but the punishment must depend on the offence of which the offender is by that section made guilty. The finding that all the members of an unlawful assembly are guilty of the offence committed by one of them in the prosecution of the common object at once subjects all the members to the punishment prescribed for that offence and the relative sentence.

Section 34 does not however create any specific offence. There is a clear distinction between the provisions of Ss. 34 and 149 and the two sections are not to be confused. The principal element in S. 34 is the common intention to commit a crime. In furtherance of the common intention several acts may be done by several persons resulting in the commission of that crime. In such a situation S. 34 provides that each one of them would be liable for that crime in the same manner as if all the acts resulting in that crime had been done by him alone.

Th ere is no question of common intention in S 149. An offence may be committed by a member of an unlawful assembly and the other members will be liable for that offence although there was no common intention between that person and other members of the unlawful assembly to commit that offence provided the conditions laid down in the section are fulfilled. 34 Cal 698 : A I R 1915 Cal 292. Approved. Observations of Lord Sumner in A I R 1925 P C 1, Rel. on; AIR 1925 Mad 7 (FB); I L R 47 Mad 748: AIR 1925 Mad 1 : 25 Cri L J 1297 (FB); I L R 9 All 645 : 1887 All W N 149 and ILR 7 Pat 484 : A I R 1928 Pat 454 : 29 Cri L J 648. Overruled. Nanak Chand v State of Punjab, 1955 S C A 272: 1955 Mad W N 826: 1955 Cri L J 721 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (SC) 141 : 1955 Andh W R (SC) 141 : (1955) 1 S C R 1201 : 1955 All W R (Sup) 54: I L R (1955) Punj 154: 1955 S C J 241: AIR 1955 S C 274 (276 to 278) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 7, 9).

——Ss. 149, 34—Relative and distinction.

The distinction between Ss. 149 and 34 is that while S. 34 speaks of a common intention S. 149 speaks of a common object. AIR 1925 P C 1, Ref. 1954 All W R (HC) 330 : 1954 Cri L J 1424 : A I R 1954 All 680 (681) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 34 — 'Common object' and 'Common intention' — Distinction — Elimination of difference would amount to misdirection tending to mis-application of law—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297.

Section 34 limits itself to the furtherance of the 'common intention' while S. 149 goes further and is more strongly worded than S. 34. The words 'common object' and 'common intention' are not synonymous. They involve a substantial difference and if this difference is sought to be eliminated in charge to the jury, that would amount to a misdirection tending to misapplication of the law in this regard resulting in a wrong verdict. 1965 (1) Cri L J 160 : A I R 1965 Cal 89 (91) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 34 — Correct section to be applied held was S. 149 and not S. 34.

A separate charge was framed under S. 302 read with S. 34 against accused 1 to 10 and 12 and an alternative charge under S. 302 read with S. 149 against all the accused. The common object of the accused was found to be not to kill the deceased but only to cause injuries to him. The accused were convicted under S. 148.

Held, that the correct section to be applied was S. 149 and not S. 34. 1951 Mad W N 861 : 1952 All W R (Sup) 11: 1951 Mad W N (Cri) 281: 1951-2 Mad L J 635 : AIR 1951 Mad 190 (190) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 34—Distinction—Common object alleged to be assaulting—Conviction for murder—Validity.

It is more on the applicability of S. 149 than of S. 34 that the correctness of the conviction of persons who are not the assailants depends. S. 34 cannot be invoked as it has been held to refer to cases in which several persons intend to do an act some do that act and not to cases where several persons intend to do an act and some one or more of them do an entirely different act.

Section 149 may be applicable to cases to which S. 34 does not apply. The essential condition for the operation of either section is that the intention in one case and object in the other should be common and if the act is in excess of or beyond the intention or object of the members they cannot be constructively liable for it. AIR 1925 Cal 913, Ref.

Where the common object specified in the charges is "assaulting the Pariwars" the words cannot be understood as denoting murder though assault may sometimes prove fatal and if the latter part of S 149 imputing knowledge of the offence likely to be committed is not referred to in the charge, there is no jurisdiction for the conviction of all the members of the unlawful assembly for murder, when it is not alleged in the charges that murder was the common object and the evidence did not establish it. AIR 1942 Mad 446, Rel. on. 1954 Cri L J 632 : 34 Mys L J 13 : ILR (1953) Mys 690 : AIR 1954 Mys 75 (77) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 34—Object and intention—Distinction.

There is a difference between object and intention, for, though their object is common the intentions of the several members of an unlawful assembly may differ and indeed may be similar only in respect that they are all unlawful, while the element of participation in action which is the leading feature of S. 34 is replaced in S. 149 by membership of the assembly at the time of the committing of the offence. Both sections deal with combination of persons, who become punishable as sharers in an offence. Thus, they have a certain resemblance and may to some extent overlap. The common object is an inference of fact to be deduced in the circumstances of each case. Intention is the volition of the mind immediately preceding the overt act while object is the end to which effect is directed, the thing aimed at and that which one endeavours to attain or carry on. 1955 Cri L J 721 : AIR 1955 S C 274 and 1956 Cri L J 1365 : AIR 1956 S C 731 and 1960 Cri L J 424 : AIR 1960 S C 289 and 1961 (2) Cri L J 711 : AIR 1961 S C 1541, Rel. on. ILR (1962) Cut 661 : 28 Cut L T 435 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 114 (Orissa).

6. "Knew to be likely to be committed."

——Ss. 149, 300—Common object to murder.

Section 149 applies not only to offences actually committed in pursuance of the common object but also to offences that members of the assembly know are likely to be committed.

Held, that even if it be assumed that the common object was only to rescue the two accused who were in the lock up, it was obvious that the use of violence was implicit in that object. People do not gather together at the dead of night, armed with crackers and choppers and sticks to rescue persons who are guarded by armed police without in ending to use violence in order to overcome the resistance of the guards; and a person would have to be very naive and simple minded if he did not realise that the sentries posted to guard prisoners at night are fully armed and are expected to use their arms should the need arise. It would be impossible on the facts of this case to hold that the members of the assembly did not know that murder was likely to be committed in pursuance of a common object of that kind by a large assembly. Accordingly, even if the common object be not placed as high as murder the conviction on the murder-cum-rioting charge was fully justified. K. C Mathew v. State of Travancore-Cochin, (1956) S C J 213 : 1956 Mad W N 217 : 1956 Cri L J 444 : 1956 S C A 175 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 34 : 1956-1 Mad L J (S C) 130 : 1956 Ker L T 355 : 1956 Andh L T 506 : (1955) 2 S C R 1057 : AIR 1956 S C 241 (245) (Pt D) (Pr 17).

——S. 149 – Second part—Scope.

The word 'knew' implies something much more than mere conjecture or speculation, and it is highly significant that the legislature refrained from incluc-ing in the section some such expression as 'or had reason to believe'; further, the likelihood of the result must be 'in the prosecution of the common object' and not through some other reason. 1959 All W R (HC) 609 : 1959 All Cr R 510 : 1959 Cri L J 419 : ILR (1958) 2 All 426 : AIR 1959 All 255 (258) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——S. 149—Scope—Common intention.

The most important requirement necessary for the application of both the portions of the section is that the act for which each of the members of the assembly can be made liable should be an act which was either actually committed or was in any case likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object of the assembly. The purpose for which the members of the assembly set out or desired to achieve is the object. If the object desired by all the members is the same the knowledge that that is the object which is being pursued is shared by all the members and they are in general agreement as to how it is to be achieved, the object becomes the common object of the assembly. It may be formed at any stage by all or a few members of the assembly and the other members may just join and adopt it. Even if the act is an individual act of one member and it is not actually done in prosecution of the common object all the other members will be liable for it, provided they knew—and positive knowledge is necessary, it is not sufficient to show that they ought to have or might have known or that they had reason to believe that it might happen—that the act was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. The use of the word 'Likely' in the second part of S. 149, I. P. Code, implies something more than a possibility. 1959 All W R (H C) 609 : 1959 All Cr R 510 : 1959 Cri L J 419 : ILR (1958) 2 All 426 : AIR 1959 All 255 (261, 262) (Pt C) (Prs 40 to 42) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 360—Applicability — 'Knew to be likely to be committed' — Meaning—Expression imports at least expectation founded upon facts known to members of assembly that offence of particular kind committed would be committed — It means something more than speculation. AIR 1955 N.U C (Madh B) 70 (DB).

——S. 149—Applicability—Common liability—When arises.

Under S. 149, I. P. Code, the liability of the other members for the offence committed during the continuance of the occurrence rests upon the fact whether other members knew beforehand that the offence actually committed or likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. Such knowledge may reasonably be collected from the nature of the assembly, arms, or behaviour at or before the scene of action. If such kdowledge cannot be reasonably attributed to the other members of the assembly then their liability for offence committed during the occurrence does not arise. AIR 1950 Pat 44, Ref. 1955 Cri L J 705 : AIR 1955 Manipur 21 (28) (Pt C) (Pr 35).

——Ss. 149 and 304 — Knowledge that death was likely to result from use of force—Common object of assembly to result or cause hurt — Indiscriminate blows over body of deceased — Death held to be caused in accomplishing common object—Conviction under Ss. 304/149 valid.

Held, that having regard to the fact that all the appellants took part in the assault and that indiscriminate blows were given on all parts of the body it could not be said the appellants had no knowledge that such merciless assault was likely to cause death. It was clear that the members of the assembly were determined to go to any length even to the length of causing death. The offence actually committed must, therefore, be deemed to have been included within the common object of the assembly. In this view of the case, the conviction of the appellants under S. 304, part two, of the Indian Penal Code was fully justified. AIR 1959 All 690, Rel on.; 20 W R 9; AIR 1936 Pat 481, Dist. 1961 B L J R 855.

7. Evidence.

—S. 149 — Evidence — Trial under S. 307/149 — Common object to fire on police party — Accused found running along with other accused persons — No evidence to show that he actually fired—Evidence held not sfficient to warrant conviction under S. 307/149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 307. AIR 1955 N U C (Ajmer) 2622.

—S. 149 — Applicability — Obstruction to arrest— Not sufficient to hold that persons so resisting were members of unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 332. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2782.

—S. 149 — Evidence — Innocent individuals when become liable under S. 149 stated — Accused charged under S. 149 — It cannot be urged that only evidence of specific parts having been assigned to specific persons should be accepted and acted upon in assessing the guilt of any particular accused and the rest of the evidence should be rejected. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 166 (DB).

—Ss. 149, 302 — Evidence — Question of motive favouring more the defence version rather than prosecution version — Assault taking place in dark and under circumstances when assailants could not have been recognised — Whole prosecution evidence found interested and not reliable — Accused persons named because of enmity — Charges held not proved. See Penal Code (1860), S 302. 1954 All L J 165,

—S. 149 — Number of persons participating in assault — Participation of accused A and B established — Proof that injury was inflicted by them — Other circumstances may be taken into consideration apart from prosecution evidence — Evidence Act (1872), S. 3 — 'Proved.' 1950 All L J 596: 1952 Cri L J 824: AIR 1952 All 453 (454) (Pr 7).

—Ss. 149 and 301 — Section 301 applicable to facts — Section 149 does not apply. See Penal Code (1860), S. 301. 1963 (1) Cri L J 415: AIR 1963 Andh Pra 146 (DB).

—Ss. 149, 302 and 304 — Attack by members of unlawful assembly resulting in death of victim — Medical officer deposing that only two out of 43 injuries had caused death — Prosecution failing to elicit whether the two injuries were sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Only offence under S. 304 is proved and not one under S. 300. See Penal Code (1860), Ss. 302. ILR (1964) Andh Pra 313: 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

—S. 149 — Common object — Direct or res gestae evidence absent — Common object is to be inferred from circumstances such as weapons with which members were armed or their conduct during riot.

In order that an object should be common to the persons composing an unlawful assembly, they should be aware of the object and concur in it. The expression "common object" has reference to a state of mind and in the absence of direct or res gestae evidence, it has to be inferred from the circumstances, such as the weapons with which the members were armed or their conduct during the riot.

Where the two fatal injuries among the several injuries on the person of the deceased as the result of an attack by an unlawful assembly were, in external appearance, merely a contusion, 4 inches x 2 inches and an abrasion, 2 inches x 1 inch respectively and it was only on account of corresponding injury caused to the kidney by one injury and the lung, by the other injury that they proved fatal, it would be far-fetched to presume that the accused knew the internal damage caused by these injuries and therefore ran away after these injuries were caused being satisfied that their common object of causing death was achieved. It cannot therefore be said, under the circumstances mentioned above, that the common object was to cause death or to cause an injury likely to cause death. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313: 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (74, 75) (Pt F) (Pr 19) (Andh Pra).

—Ss. 149, 324, 302 — Common object — Proof of, by course of conduct — Individual acts need not be proved.

Where ten persons lay in wait in a field fully armed with axes, spears and sticks and rushed to the place where the deceased and his father were resting assaulted the father inflicting about nine injuries on him and killed his son, the deceased:

Held, that the course of conduct adopted by the accused clearly showed that they were actuated by the common object of inflicting injuries on the father and of causing the death of the deceased. (2) That in such cases it was not necessary for the prosecution to prove that a particular accused caused a particular injury either to the deceased or to his father and so was guilty under S. 324 or S. 302, Penal Code. Since the offence was under Ss. 302 and 324 read with S. 149 of the Penal Code, it would be enough for the prosecution to prove that as a result of the assault carried out in the field by the members of the unlawful assembly grievous hurt was caused to the father and his son's death was intentionally caused. (1956) Cri L J 389: AIR 1956 Bom 183 (185) (Pt B) (Prs 5 10) (DB).

—S. 149 — Evidence — Child eye-witness of 12 or 13 years — Offence under S. 302 read with Ss. 149 and 147 — Discrepanies in his statements — Witness held could not be relied upon for convicting all accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 118. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3097 (DB).

—Ss. 149, 300, 326—Absence of evidence of doctor or post-mortem certificate — Not possible for Court to infer whether injury in question to skull would have been sufficient in the ordinary course to cause the death — Conviction of accused only for offence of causing grievous injury with deadly weapon, considered safe. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. (1964) 1 Mys L J 393.

—S. 149 — Conviction of person present in riot.

The mere presence of the riotous crowd of supporters of the leader is sufficient to support conviction of the person present. AIR 1943 All 49, Rel. on. ('50) 55 Mys HCR 317 (DB).

—S. 149 — Land dispute leading to mutual assault by rival parties resulting in deaths — Evidence — Appreciation of—Testimony of partisan eye-witnesses when may be accepted stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1963 (1) Cri L J 700 (Orissa).

—S. 149 — It is for prosecution to prove that, at the time of committing of offence, accused was member of assembly—Presence of accused as member of mob at the time of offence proved — It would be for accused to rebut prosecution case — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Illustration (d). AIR 1924 All 233 and AIR 1934 All 766, Rel. on. 1956 Pat L R 440: 1958 Cri L J 72: AIR 1958 Pat 12 (17, 18) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 17) (DB).

8. "Every person who ..... is a member of same assembly."

—S. 149 — Applicability — Accused persons leading their cattle into field of complainants — Complainants when taking cattle to pound intercepted and beaten by accused — One of complainants receiving smashing blow on head by one of accused and dying — All held guilty under S. 302/149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300 (3). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1701 (DB).

—Ss. 149 and 323 — Scope — Liability of member of unlawful assembly.

Where the accused were members of an unlawful assembly having a common object of beating the complainant, the mere fact that they did not take part in actual beating cannot exonerate them of their liability for offence under S. 323, Penal Code, committed by other members of the assembly. They would be guilty under S. 323, when it is proved that they were present in the assembly at the place of occurrence. 1953 All W R (HC) 405 : 1953 All L J 420 : 1953 Cri L J 1796 : AIR 1953 All 778 (779) (Pr 5).

——S. 149 — Person being members of unlawful assembly—Proof.

In order that a person may be a member of an unlawful assembly and be guilty of rioting, it is only necessary to prove affirmatively that there was an unlawful assembly in which, after knowing its unlawful object, the person intentionally continues to remain. If any member commit an act of violence he is guilty of rioting and if any offence is committed by any member in prosecution of the common object, he is constructively guilty of that offence under S. 149, Penal Code. It is not necessary to prove any overt act of violence or any incitement to others on his part. AIR 1950 Kutch 94 (95) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——S. 149—Applicability — Assault on police party in pursuance of criminal conspiracy — Murder of Inspector and fatal injuries on others—Conviction upheld. Every one of accused constructively liable under S. 149 for offences committed by other members of unlawful assembly—All members liable under S. 149 read with Ss. 302, 307, 324, 326 and 332. See Penal Code (1860), S. 120-B. 1955 Cri L J 414 : AIR 1955 Trav Co 33 (DB).

9. Conviction of less than five.

● ——S. 149—Conviction of less than five persons — Circumstances under which Court can conclude that there was unlawful assembly in such cases.

Held, that the judgment of the High Court should be set aside as it had failed to determine questions which it was essential for it to do. It should have fully examined the entire evidence and come to a definite conclusion as to whether there was an unlawful assembly consisting of more than five persons including the appellants and some other persons who were unidentified or not and stated its reasons for coming to such a conclusion. It should then have ascertained the particular acts committed by any member or members of that assembly in furtherance of the common object as also the question whether any of the appellants had participated in the incident. In the light of its findings on these matters the High Court should then have proceeded to consider whether all or any of the appellants could be held liable vicariously for all or any of the acts found to have been committed by the unlawful assembly or any member or members thereof other than those alleged to have been committed by persons whose acquittal has become final. Ram Bilas Singh v. State of Bihar, 1963 B L J R 562 : 1963 All L J 609 : 1963 All W R (HC) 537 : 1963 Cur L J (SC) 48 : 1964 S C D 60 : (1964) 1 S C A 146 : (1963) 1 S C W R 743 : 1963 All Cr R 265 : ILR 42 Pat 396 : (1964) 1 S C R 775 : (1964) 1 Cr L J 573 (SC).

● ——Ss. 149 and 34—Applicability — Five persons charged with substantial offence read with S. 149 and S. 34 — Some acquitted — Conviction of rest under substantial offence read with S. 149 and S. 34 —Propriety of—Different situations considered.

One of the essential ingredients of S. 149 is that the offence must have been committed by any member of an unlawful assembly and S. 141 makes it clear that it is one of the essential conditions of an unlawful assembly that its membership must be five or more.

In dealing with the question as to the applicability of S. 149 in such cases, it is necessary to bear in mind the several categories of cases which come before the Criminal Courts for their decision. If five or more persons are named in the charge as composing an unlawful assembly, and evidence adduced by the prosecution proves those charges against all of them, that is a very clear case where S. 149 can be invoked. It is, however, not necessary that five or more persons must be convicted before a charge under S. 149 can be successfully brought home to any members of the unlawful assembly It may be that less than five persons may be charged and convicted under S. 302/149 if the charge is that the persons before the Court along with others named constituted an unlawful assembly, the other persons so named may not be available for trial along with their companions for the reason, for instance, that they have absconded. In such a case, the fact that less than five persons are before the Court does not make S. 149 inapplicable for the simple reason that both the charge and the evidence seek to prove that the persons before the court and others number more than five in all and as such, they together constitute an unlawful assembly. Similarly, less than five persons may be charged under S. 149 if the prosecution case is that the persons before the Court and others numbering in all more than five composed an unlawful assembly, these others being persons not identified and so not named. In such a case, if evidence shows that the persons before the Court along with unidentified and unnamed assailants or members composed an unlawful assembly, those before the court can be convicted under S. 149 though the un-named and un-identified persons are not traced and charged. Cases may also arise where in the charge, the prosecution names five or more persons and alleges that they constituted an unlawful assembly. In such cases, if both the charge and the evidence are confined to the persons named in the charge and out of the persons so named two or more are acquitted leaving before the court less than five person to be tried, then S. 149 cannot be invoked. Even in such cases it is possible that though the charge names five or more persons as composing an unlawful assembly, evidence may nevertheless show that the unlawful assembly consisted of some other persons as well who were not identified and so not named. In such cases, either the trial court or even the High Court in appeal may be able to come to the conclusion that the acquittal of some of the persons named in the charge and tried will not necessarily displace the charge under S. 149 because along with the two or three persons convicted were others who composed the unlawful assembly but who have not been identified and so have not been named. In such cases, the acuittal of one or more persons named in the charge does not affect the validity of the charge under S. 149 because on the evidence the court of facts is able to reach the conclusion that the persons composing the unlawful assembly nevertheless were five or more than five. It is true that in the last category of cases, the court will have to be very careful in reaching the said conclusion. But there is no legal bar which prevents the court from reaching such a conclusion. The failure to refer in the charge to other members of the unlawful assembly un-named and un-identified may conceivably raise the point as to whether prejudice would be caused to the persons before the court by reason of the fact that the charge did not indicate that un-named persons also were members of the unlawful assembly. But apart from the question of such prejudice which may have to be carefully considered, there is no legal bar preventing the court of facts from holding that though the charge specified only five or more persons, the unlawful assembly in fact consisted of other persons who were not named and identified.

Where five named persons were charged and tried for an offence read with S. 149 and two of them are acquitted, and the membership of the assembly is reduced from five to three, that makes S. 141 inapplicable which inevitably leads to the result that S. 149 cannot be invoked against the remaining members. As soon as two of the five named persons are acquitted, the assembly must be deemed to have been composed of only three persons and that clearly cannot be regarded as an unlawful assembly. AIR 1953 S C 364, AIR 1960 S C 289, Rel. on. AIR 1961 S C 1787, Explained and Approved.

Like S. 149, S. 34 also deals with cases of constructive criminal liability. It provides that where a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone. The essential constituent of the vicarious criminal liability prescribed by S. 34 is the existence of common intention. If the common intention in question animates the accused persons and if the said common intention leads to the commission of the criminal offence charged each of the persons sharing the common intention is constructively liable for the criminal act done by one of them. Just as the combination of persons sharing the same common object is one of the features of an unlawful assembly, so the existence of a combination of persons sharing the same common intention is one of the features of S. 34. In some ways the two sections are similar and in some cases they may overlap. But nevertheless, the common intention which is the basis of S. 34 is different from the common object which is the basis of the composition of an unlawful assembly. Common intention denotes action in concert and necessarily postulates the existence of a pre-arranged plan and that must mean a prior meeting of minds. Cases to which S. 34 can be applied disclose an element of participation in action on the part of all the accused persons. The acts may be different; may vary in their character, but they are all actuated by the same common intention. The common intention required by S. 34 is different from the same intention or similar intention. AIR 1945 P C 118, Rel. on., Mohan Singh v. State of Punjab, 1962 All Cri R 448 : 1663 (1) Cri L J 100 : 1962 S C D 707 : 1962 Mad W N 572 : 1962 All W R (HC) 804 : AIR 1963 S C 174 (178, 180) (Prs 8, 9, 13).

■ ——Ss. 149 and 141—Unlawful assembly—Constitution of — Conviction of less than five — Actual number of assailants' party consisting of five or more persons — Party is unlawful assembly though only three are convicted. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1961 (2) Cri L J 853 : AIR 1961 S C 1787.

■ ——S. 149—Applicability—More than five persons constituting unlawful assembly — Identity of four only established—Effect—Error, omission or irregularity in charge—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537).

Where the finding is that the number of persons who constituted the unlawful assembly was more than five, though the identity of four only was established and the killing was done in prosecution of the common object of the entire unlawful assembly, there can be no serious difficulty in applying S. 149 to such a case. Whether such a finding can be given or not must depend on the facts of each case and on the evidence led. Any mere error, omission or irregularity in the charge will not invalidate the finding as a matter of law in the absence of prejudice to the convicted persons. Bharwad Mepa Dana v. State of Bombay, 1960 Cri L J 424 : 1960 Mad W N 457 : (1960) 1 Ker L R 277 : 62 Bom L R 269 : 1960 S C J 478 : (1960) 2 S C R 172 : (1960) All W R (H C) 258 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 398 : 1960 All Cr R 178 : AIR 1960 S C 289 (293 to 295) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 18).

■ ——S. 149—Scope—Seven accused charged under S. 302, read with S. 149—Five acquitted in appeal—Conviction of two under Ss. 302 and 149, held by the Supreme Court not affected as acquittal of five was wrong. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1954 Cri L J 1668 : AIR 1954 S C 648.

■ ——S. 149—Applicability—Finding that more than five persons were involved — Identification of only two—Effect.

High Court giving clear finding that there were more than five persons in the band of attackers and believing eye-witnesses who identified two of them —The mere fact that only two of them were satisfactorily identified does not weaken the force of the finding that more than five were involved — Use of S. 149 was therefore justified. Nar Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1954 S C J 570 : 1954 Mad W N 741 : (1954) 2 Mad L J 122 : 1954 S C A 642 : 1954 Cri L J 1167 : 1954 All L J 438 : 1954 All W R 457 : (1955) 1 S C R 238 : AIR 1954 S C 457 (459) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

■ ——S. 149—Applicability.

Before S. 149 can be called in aid, the Court must find with certainty that there were at least five persons sharing the common object. A finding that out of seven men in question three "may or may not have been" at the site of offence betrays uncertainty on this vital point and consequently a conviction resting on that uncertain foundation cannot be sustained. Especially in a murder case where the sentence of transportation in no less than four cases has been enhanced to death it is essential that the Judge should give a finding on the point with unerring certainty. Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, (1953) S C J 532 : 1953 Mad W N 642 : 1953 Cri L J 1465 : 1954 S C R 145 : AIR 1953 S C 364 (366) (Pt A) (Prs 19, 20).

■ ——S. 149—Conviction of less than five—Legality.

It is not essential that five persons must always be convicted before S. 149 can be applied. Where it is possible to conclude that though five persons were unquestionably at the place of offence the identity of one or more is in doubt a conviction of the rest with aid of the section would be good. Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, 1953 S C J 532 : 1953 S C A 709 : 1953 Mad W N 642 : 1954 S C R 145 : 1953 Cri L J 1465 : A I R 1953 S C 364 (366) (Pt B) (Pr 20).

——S. 149 — Conviction of less than five when evidence showed that number of people attacking was more than five—Conviction held right under Section 302/149. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2672 (DB).

——S. 149 — Applicability — Conviction of five or more persons not necessary.

In order to sustain a charge under S. 149, it is not necessary that five or more persons should be found guilty. All that has to be proved is that there were five or more persons who committed the offence. 1956 Cri L J 31 : 1955 Andh L T (Cri) 285 : ILR (1955) Andh 666 : 1955 Andh W R 920 : AIR 1956 Andh 26 (30) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——S. 149 — Unlawful assembly — Some accused acquitted — Other can still be convicted. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1959 Ker L J 664.

——Ss. 149, 148 and 302 — Unlawful assembly — Conviction of less than five — Five accused charged as being members of unlawful assembly — Three acquitted on ground that their presence at the time of occurrence was doubtful — No allegation that assembly consisted of unknown persons—Remaining two accused cannot be convicted of any offence calling in aid S. 149. 1961 All Cr R 271 : 1961 All W R (Sup) 39 : 1962 Mad L J Cri 36 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 51 (Mys).

——S. 149 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423 — Appeal from conviction — Powers of appellate Court — Trial under S. 149, I. P. C. — All except one accused acquitted — Appeal by convicted accused — Conviction under S. 149 can be maintained. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423. 1960 Cri L J 1472 : AIR 1960 Mys 294 (DB).

——S. 149 — Unlawful assembly consisting of more than five members having common object of killing the deceased — Conviction of four persons of the assembly under S. 302 read with S. 149 and wrong acquittal of others — Conviction held justified. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. ILR (1963) 42 Pat 293.

——S. 149 — Trial under Ss. 302/149, Penal Code — Conviction of one and acquittal of rest is legal.

In every case where the names of all the persons who are alleged to have formed an unlawful assembly and to have participated in a crime are specifically given, the acquittal of some of them reducing the number of the rest to less than five does not necessarily result in the acquittal of all. There may be a case in which some of the accused are falsely included in place of the real culprits who in fact had not been identified. The Court, while acquitting them who in its opinion appear to have been so implicated, may yet convict under S. 302/149, Penal Code, one more with respect to whose participation there could not possibly be any doubt if further it be of the definite opinion that the number of the participants could not be less than five and they formed an unlawful assembly. Case law discussed. [Editorial Note—For a similar case, See AIR 1951 All 660 (FB), where, however, it was held that the accused could be convicted under S. 34, I. P. C. in such cases.] 52 Cri L J 1409 : 3 Pepsu L R 132 : AIR 1951 Pepsu 152 (152, 153) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 34, 302 — Out of 5 persons 3 convicted and 2 acquitted — In appeal against acquittal Court issuing notice only to one out of two — S. 149, held inapplicable—S. 34, held applied. AIR 1953 S C 364, AIR 1960 S C 289, AIR 1961 S C 1787, Rel. on. (1963) 65 Pun L R 503.

——S. 149—Applicability — Conviction of less than five.

In applying S. 149 the Court must find with certainty that there were at least persons sharing the common object. Where the finding is that four out of the six accused may have been named simply to add to the number of the assailants, the finding betrays uncertainty about the participation of at least five persons in the crime. When in no part of the judgment does the Court come to the conclusion that at least five persons participated in the crime though the identity of one or more was in doubt the case does not come within S. 149. AIR 1950 F C 80; AIR 1953 S C 364, Foll. 1954 Cri L J 752 : 56 Pun L R 43 : ILR (1954) Punj 813 : AIR 1954 Punj 126 (127, 128) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 14) (DB).

——S. 149—Conviction of less than five—No finding that at least five persons participated in the crime—Case does not come under S. 149. ILR (1954) Punj 813 : 56 Pun L R 43 : 1954 Cri L J 752 : AIR 1954 Punj 126 (DB).

10. Private defence.

——S. 149 — Deceased entering appellant's house at night in prosecution of his intrigue with appellant's daughter—Assault by appellant and his companies—Injuries caused leading to death—Injuries held caused in lawful exercise of right of private defence—Appellant, therefore committed no offence—Neither S. 149 nor S. 34 had any application. Held not guilty. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. ILR (1960) 2 All 285.

——S. 149 — Applicability — Both parties determined to fight—No right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 96. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2713.

——S. 149 — Applicability — Persons assembled in exercise of right of private defence of property — Assembly is not unlawful — They are not liable to punishment under section for act of each other. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1954 Cri L J 1710 : A I R 1954 All 771 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 97, 141, 148 and 326 — Accused more than 4 armed with deadly weapons trying to enforce their disputed right to usufruct of mango trees—Incident resulting in simple injuries and grievous hurt resulting in death of person—No physical resistance encountered by accused — No right of private defence — Every one of accused held guilty under S. 148 and also under S. 326/149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1961 (1) Cri L J 403 : A I R 1961 Mys 74 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 97—Common plea of self-defence by five or more accused—Implications of — Failure to establish the plea — Unlawful assembly with common object held constituted. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1960 Cri L J 1472 : AIR 1960 Mys 294 (DB).

——S. 149 — Unlawful assembly — Maintaining or enforcing a right by force would be unlawful unless justified on ground of private defence.

Per Narasimham J. — Any attempt to maintain or enforce one's right by criminal force would be unlawful unless it can be justified as the exercise of right of private defence under Ss. 97 to 99, Penal Code. It would be wholly academic to discuss whether for the purpose of constituting an unlawful assembly there is any material distinction between maintaining a right by criminal force and enforcing a right by criminal force.

Per Panigrahi J. — A reading of Cl. (4) of S. 141, Penal Code, would clearly indicate that no person is entitled to vindicate his right to possession of any property by resort to criminal force. That right is subject to the limitations in the Code itself, in Ss. 96 to 106. The law of private defence rests on the assumption that society undertakes to protect private persons against unlawful attacks against their person or property and that public authorities should, in the first instance, be appealed to for assistance. If the aid of public authorities is not available, the individual whose person or property is attacked can take steps to protect himself, provided he does not inflict more harm than is necessary to repel the attack. The right is available only against an offence and not against a lawful act. In view of this, the contention has sometimes been raised that the Penal Code while conceding the right of less than five persons to defend any attack on their property could not have denied it to five or more persons. But the right arises only when there is an actual invasion of one's property or person and when the assistance of public authorities cannot be obtained. That, of course, does not mean that a man whose property is threatened to be taken away must abandon it. When there is such an actual invasion of one's property or person, and there is no time to seek the aid of public authorities the right of private defence is available and that right extends also to a case covered by S. 141, Penal Code. An assembly of five or more persons gathered to protect a right, apprehending an invasion thereof, may not be an unlawful assembly. But until an invasion of the right actually takes place the right to use force in self defence does not arise. A different consideration will arise when force is used to repel an attack and when the person who uses force exceeds the right of private defence by using more force than is necessary. In such a case the person who uses force may be adjudged guilty and the assembly as such of which he was a member may not be held liable for his individual act if they did not have the common object of using force. In other words, it would depend upon the circumstances of each case, in order to determine the question as to whether five or more persons having a common object joined together and committed a particular crime.

Where the right itself is doubtful and it becomes necessary to resort to force in order to defend it, the provisions of Cl. (4) of S. 141, Penal Code, would be attracted and the assembly gathered for that purpose would clearly be an 'unlawful assembly'. The distinction between 'enforcing a right' and 'maintaining a right' has been the subject-matter of some divergance of opinion among Judges but the distinction, though subtle, ceases to exist if force is required to defend that right. In the case of incorporeal rights, such as, for instance, a right of way, a right to use water, etc., no one is in possession of it except during the actual moment when he is peacefully exercising it. Any attempt to vindicate such a right by the use of force must necessarily be an attempt to 'enforce a right or supposed right' within the meaning of Cl. (4) of S. 141, Penal Code and not an act to maintain an existing right of peaceful possession. The phrase 'enforce a right' applies when the party claiming the right has not got possession over the subject matter of the right, while the phrase 'maintain a right' implies that the party is in possession and is entitled to resist and repel any aggression. In repelling the aggression the right of the party in possession to use force is strictly limited to the exercise of the right of private defence subject of course to the limitations imposed by the Penal Code. It is only a right of defence and not of punishment. ILR (1952) Cut 219.

——S. 149 — Searches and seizure of properties of villagers (accused) by police making investigation found without jurisdiction—Right of private defence however held not available to accused under circumstances of case. See Penal Code (1860), S. 52. 1964 Raj L W 126.

——Ss. 149, 97, 100 — Private defence of person and property—Land dispute—Clash between rival parties —Member of one party exceeding right of private defence —No constructive liability of other members of that party under S. 149 for offence committed by that member. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. 1962 Raj L W 657.

11. Sections 149 and 148.

——Ss. 149, 147, 148, 325 — Sentencees — Accused sentenced for offences under Ss. 149 and 325 — Separate sentences under Ss. 147 and 148 not legal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (Andh Pra).

——S. 149 —Conviction under Ss. 148 and 149 — Bad in law. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1955 Cri L J 780 : AIR 1955 Assam 105 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 148— Acquittal of one accused in a prior and separate trial — No bar to trial and conviction of another who committed same offences along with him and others — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 403. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 14.

——S. 149 — Special Judge under M. B. Public Security Act (19 of 1953), S. 12 — Not empowered to try offences under Ss. 148 and 149, Penal Code. See Public Safety — Madhya Bharat Public Security Act (19 of 1953), S. 12. 1957 Jab L J 126 : 1957 M P C 74.

——Ss. 149 and 148 —Unlawful assembly — Legality of conviction.

Cases where it is proved that an unlawful assembly consisted of more than 5 persons but some of them were not identified must be distinguished from those where the Court is doubtful about the presence of some of the persons mentioned as members of an unlawful assembly and if they are excluded from consideration the remaining members are not 5 or more. In the former case the existence of an unlawful assembly is established though some of its members are not identified. But in the latter case the existence of an unlawful assembly itself is doubtful. An offence under S. 302 read with S. 149, Penal Code, is not an independent offence and a person charged for that offence can in a proper case be convicted either under S. 302 or under S. 302 read with S 34 of the Penal Code. 1962 Mad L J Cri 36 : 1961 All Cri R 271 : 1961 All W R (Sup) 39 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 51 (Mys).

——S. 149 — There can be no conviction under Ss 148/149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1961 (1) Cri L J 132 (2) : AIR 1961 Orissa 29.

——Ss. 149, 147 and 148 — Scope and applicability —Rioter not carrying deadly weapon cannot be made liable under S. 148 by virtue of S 149 — Appropriate section to apply is S. 147. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (DB).

12. Charge — General.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

■ ——S. 149 — Offender accused of offence under S. 302, read with S. 149 — It is not obligatory that a charge under S. 147 or S. 148, should have been framed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302 (1965) 2 S C W R 686 : 1965 B L J R 814 : 1965 S C D 1160 : ILR 45 Pat 896 : 1966 Cri L J 197 : AIR 1966 S C 302.

■ ——Ss. 149 and 34 — Applicability — Five persons charged with substantive offence read with S. 149 and S. 34—Some acquitted—Conviction of rest under substantial offence read with S. 149 and S. 34 — Propriety of — Different situations considered.

One of the essential ingredients of S. 149 is that the offence must have been committed by any member of an unlawful assembly and S. 141 makes it clear that it is one of the essential conditions of an unlawful assembly that its membership must be five or more. If five or more persons are named in the charge as composing an unlawful assembly, and evidence adduced by the prosecution proves those charges against all of them, that is very clear case where S. 149 can be invoked. It may be that less than five persons may be charged and convicted under S. 302/149 if the charge is that the persons before the Court along with others named constituted an unlawful assembly, the other persons so named may not be available for trial along with their companions for the reason, for instance, that they have absconded. In such a case, the fact that less than five persons are before the Court does not make S. 149 inapplicable. Cases may also arise where in the charge, the prosecution names five or more persons and alleges that they constituted an unlawful assembly, and out of the persons so named two or more are acquitted leaving before the Court less than five persons to be tried. Even in such cases, it is possible that the unlawful assembly consisted of some other persons as well who were not identified and so not named. In such cases, either the trial Court or even the High Court in appeal may be able to come to the conclusion that the acquittal of some of the persons named in the charge and tried will not necessarily displace the charge under S. 149 because along with the two or three persons convicted were others who composed the unlawful assembly but who have not been identified. In such cases, the acquittal of one or more persons named in the charge does not affect the validity of the charge under S. 149.

Where five named persons were charged and tried for an offence read with S. 149 and two of them are acquitted, and the membership of the assembly is reduced from five to three that makes S. 141 inapplic-able which inevitably leads to the result that S. 149 cannot be invoked against the remaining members. As soon as two of the five named persons are acquitted, the assembly must be deemed to have been composed of only three persons and that clearly cannot be regarded as an unlawful assembly. AIR 1963 S C 384 and AIR 1960 S C 289, Rel on; AIR AIR 1961 S C 1787, Explained and Approved.

Like S. 149, S. 34 also deals with cases of constructive criminal liability. It provides that where a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone. In some ways the two sections are similar and in some cases they may overlap. But nevertheless the common intention which is the basis of S. 34 is different from the common object which is the basis of the composition of an unlawful assembly. Cases to which S. 34 can be applied disclose an element of participation in action on the part of all the accused persons. The acts may be different, may vary in their character, but they are all actuated by the some common intention. The common intention required by S. 34 is different from the same intention or similar intention. AIR 1945 P C 118, Rel. on. Mohan Singh v. State of Punjab, 1962 Mad W N 572 : (1962) Supp 3 S C R 848 : 1962 S C D 707 : 1962 All W R (H C) 804 : 1962 All Cri R 448 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 100 : AIR 1963 S C 174 (178 to 180) (Prs 8, 9, 13).

●——S. 149—Unlawful assembly — Persons charged with being members of such assembly—Other charges in respect of offences committed by such assembly. Acquittal of some— Effect on prosecution of remaining stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1962 (2) Cri L J 290 : AIR 1962 S C 1211.

●——S. 149—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537—Accused charged under S. 307 read with S. 149, Penal Code — No express statement made in charge with respect to S. 149 — Held defect in charge did not occasion failure of justice. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1961 (1) Cri L J 859 : AIR 1961 S C 803.

●——S 149 — Charge—Accused not charged under S. 149—Supreme Court hearing appeal would require strong reasons to convict accused under S. 149. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 411-A. 1955 Cri L J 572 : AIR 1955 S C 216.

——Ss. 149, 302—Charge under S. 302 — Conviction under S. 302/149—Legality—(Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 236, 237, 537 (b)—Distinct offences).

A man charged under S. 302, Penal Code, cannot be convicted under S. 302/149, Penal Code or vice versa. Whereas a charge under S. 302, Penal Code, fixes the direct individual liability of the cause for a particular murder, S. 149 Penal Code, creates a distinct head of criminal liability which has come to be known as 'constructive liability' and such cases are not covered by Ss. 236 and 237, Criminal P. C. The framing of a specific and distinct charge in respect of every distinct head of criminal liability constituting an offence is the foundation for a conviction and sentence thereof. AIR 1955 S C 419, Foll. Where at the trial the accused was called upon to defend himself against the charge of murder simpliciter and had no opportunity to defend himself against the charge of constructive liability for it, a liability which arises out of different factual considerations altogether, there is manifest danger of miscarriage of justice by applying S. 149, Penal Code in appeal without giving him a chance of being tried afresh on a new charge under that provision of the law. 1958 Cri L J 424 : AIR 1958 All 255 (290) (Pt I) (Pr 151) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 302, 323—Charge against accused under Ss. 302 and 323 read with S. 149, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 302 or S. 323 cannot be maintained —See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1956 Cri L J 1039 : AIR 1956 All 529 (DB).

——S. 149—Charge under S. 304/149, Penal Code — All except one accused acquitted—Remaining accused alone convicted and sentenced under S. 304 (1) — Conviction cannot be maintained. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221. 1956 Cri L J 194 : AIR 1956 All 159.

——Ss. 149 and 295—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537 — Defective charge — Charge framed under S. 295/149, Penal Code — No mention that accused were members of unlawful assembly—Conviction for offence read with S. 149 not vitiated — Defect if any is mere irregularity. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. A I R 1952 All 878.

——Ss. 149, 147, 295 and 297—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535 (1) — Charge under S. 295/149, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 297/149, Penal Code — Circumstances of case such that accused could be convicted under S. 147, Penal Code even in absence of charge— Mere absence of conviction under S. 147, Penal Code is no ground for setting aside their conviction where there has been no failure of justice. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535 (1). AIR 1952 All 878.

——Ss. 149, 143, 141— Charge against five persons — Three of them acquitted — Charge against remaining accused does not necessarily fail if there were other members of unlawful assembly. See Penal Code (1860), S. 143. 1965 (2) Cri L J 613 : AIR 1965 Assam 86.

——S. 149—Charge under S. 326/34 against some of accused only, when there was no charge under S. 326/149 against all accused valid. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239. 1954 Cri L J 963 : A I R 1954 Cal 362 (DB).

——S. 149—Charge — Failure to frame—Prejudice— Essential element of what common object was not stated — Accused held prejudiced. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 362 (4). 1954 Cri L J 1254 : A I R 1954 Mad 785.

——Ss. 149, 148—Charge for rioting and under other sections read with S. 149 — Charge defective. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1961 (1) Cri L J 132 (2) : AIR 1961 Orissa 29.

——Ss. 149, 304—Charge under — Omission to mention that accused had knowledge of likelihood of death being caused—Effect—(Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 225, 537).

Where the charge under S. 304/149 did not mention that the accused had knowledge that death was likely to be caused in prosecution of the common object of the assembly, the omission was not an illegality but an irregularity and was a curable defect. Where the accused were defended by counsel in the trial, it cannot be held that the accused were in any way prejudiced by the omission. AIR 1956 S C 116, Foll. ILR (1957) Cut 275 : 1957 Cri L J 644 : AIR 1957 Orissa 117 (119) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 326 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 225, 233, 537 (a)—Charge for substantive offence under S. 326, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 326/149, Penal Code—Legal - Omission to frame charge under S. 326/149 curable irregularity. See Criminal P. C. (1898) S. 225. 1956 Cri L J 1083 : AIR 1956 Orissa 171 (DB).

——S. 149—Charge—No charge under S. 147 or S. 148 —Conviction under S. 304 read with S. 149 — Valid. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 1308.

—S. 149—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 297, 417 and 423—Misdirection — Verdict of acquittal — Misdirection in charge under S. 149, Penal Code, held in favour of prosecution — Misdirection held did not lead to erroneous verdict. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 449 (DB).

—S. 149—Accused charged generally under Ss. 325, 326 read with S. 149—Charge on particular persons with offences under Ss. 323, 324, 325 and 326 not necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221. 1952 Raj L W 462.

—Ss. 149 and 302 — Accused charged under both sections—Previous charge under S. 147—If necessary.

Before the accused are charged under S. 302 read with S 149, Penal Code, there should be a charge under S. 147, Penal Code, against all of them. 1952 Raj L W 181.

—S. 149—Scope.

While S. 149 creates an offence the punishment for it must depend on the offence of which the offender is by that section made liable. There is, therefore, no meaning in charging a person merely with S. 149. The only purpose such a charge can serve is to create confusion in the minds of the accused persons as to whether they are directly charged with the other offences mentioned or only constructively read with the section. 1956 Ker L T 30 : ILR (1956) Trav-Co 1 : 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (233) (Pt H) (Pr 11) (DB).

—Ss. 149, 148, 341 and Ss. 302/34 and 109 — Charges under — Leaving out S. 149 in relation to charge of murder held was a serious omission as it would keep the door open for guilty man to escape. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (DB).

—S. 149—Conviction for offence read with S. 34 or 149 — No prejudice caused owing to non-mention of those provisions in the charge — Conviction not vitiated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1954 Cri L J 1303 : AIR 1954 Vin Pra 36.

13. Charge under S. 149 — Conviction under S. 34.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

—Ss. 149, 302 and 34—Charge under Ss. 302, read with S. 149—Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34—Valid. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1697 (DB).

● —Ss. 149, 34 — Criminal P. C. (1898) S. 423 (1) (b) — Prosecution of more than five persons for riot and other offence — All except one given benefit of doubt — Remaining accused found guilty of committing offence with others — Conviction of accused under S. 34, I. P. C. — Validity—Power of appellate Court in appeal from conviction.

(i) Where an act is alleged to have been committed by a number of specified persons, five or more in number, in furtherance of the common intention of all of them and they are prosecuted for rioting and for the commission of the alleged act in view of the provisions of S. 149, I. P. C. but the Court acquits all except one accused, gives them the benefit of the doubt but at the same time definitely finding that the accused was associated with some at least of those acquitted persons in the commission of the alleged act and accordingly convicts him of the commission of the alleged act applying S. 34, such conviction is valid : Case law discussed.

(ii) In an appeal by the accused in such a case it is open to the appellate Court to find, there being no Govt. appeal against the acquittal of such acquitted persons, that, although it cannot interfere with such acquittal, such persons or some of them had been wrongly acquitted and had in fact taken part in the commission of the alleged act in association with appellant and on this ground hold that the appellant was rightly convicted. The mere omission of the State Govt. to appeal against an order of acquittal does not, in all cases, give finality to such finding and it can be altered by the High Court under S. 423 (1) (b), Criminal P. C. which does not impose any limitation upon the powers of the Court to alter any finding so long as it does not involve an enhancement of sentence. AIR 1944 All 137 (FB), Foll.

Editorial Note: — With respect, the questions as framed and answered by the Full Bench require a little elucidation. The first question contemplates a case where though there is a definite finding that the convicted person was associated with some at least of the acquitted persons in the commission of the Act it is not clear who exactly these persons were. The second question raises the point whether in upholding the conviction of the accused, the appellate Court can in the absence of an appeal by the Govt. against the acquittal, find that any or more specific person or persons out of the acquitted persons were associated in the crime and were wrongly acquitted. Thus there is a difference in the "finding" (as to the other accused) which is referred to in the two questions. Gulab v. State. 52 Cri L J 924 : 1951 All L J 406 : 1951 All W R (H C) 444 : 1951 All Cri R 94 : I L R (1952) 2 All 726 : AIR 1951 All 660 (660, 663) (Pt A) (Prs 1, 15, 16) (FB).

—Ss. 149 and 34 — Distinction—Accused charged under S. 307 read with S. 149 — Acquittal under S. 307 — Conviction under Ss. 149 and 326 — Convictions held sustainable — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233).

When a person is charged with an offence read with S. 149 he is only put on notice of two facts that he was a member of unlawful assembly, and that an offence was committed in prosecution of the common object or he knew that an offence was likely to be committed. He is therefore called upon to meet only the points mentioned above, and is not called upon to show that he has not committed any individul act. Section 149 creates a distinct offence, at any rate, a distinct head of liability. So a person charged with constructive liability cannot be convicted for a substantive offence. It is not the case with S. 34 which does no purport to create an offence, but only lays down a rule of law. The reason of the rule is that the accused is very much prejudiced when he is convicted for substantive offence without a specific charge because his attention is not focussed on any individual act. But the position is different when a person is charged with an offence read with Penal Code. Overt acts are attributed to the accused and they have opportunities of meeting that case. Consequently, the conviction for the substantive offence does not occasion any prejudice to the accused.

Thus where in a trial under S. 307 read with S. 149 specific act committed by each of the accused persons, the weapon used by each and the injury caused by him were mentioned in the charge and the Sessions Judge while acquitting them under S. 307 convicted them under S. 326 :

Held, that there was no basis for the complaint that any of the accused had in any way been prejudiced by lack of a specific charge for a substantive offence. Hence, the convictions under S. 326 were sustainable. 1956 Andh W R 170 : 1956 Andh L T 438 : 1957 Cri L J 46 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 14 (15, 16) (Prs 11 to 13).

—S. 149 — Original charge under S. 325 read with S. 149 — Conviction under S. 325 read with S. 34 — Not illegal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 325. 1961 (1) Cri L J 625 (Assam).

——Ss. 149, 302, 34 and 147 — Accused charged under S. 302/149 — Conviction of the accused under S. 302 read with S. 34 permissible if no prejudice results. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1965 (1) Cri L J 160 : AIR 1965 Cal 89 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 34 — Charge under S. 149 — Conviction for offence read with S. 34 no doubt not invalid — But notice of precise grant of liability proper. 1957 Ker L T 1230 : 1958 Cri L J 516 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 1 : I L R (1958) Ker 283 : 1958 Ker L J 115 : AIR 1958 Ker 94 (DB).

——S. 149 — Charge under S. 149/302 — Conviction under S. 34/302. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1954 Cri L J 1458 : AIR 1954 Sau 115 (DB).

14. Charge under S. 34—Conviction under S. 149.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

——Ss. 149, 34 and 302 — Rioting with deadly weapons resulting in murders—Charge framed under S. 302 read with S. 34 — No evidence to establish who had participated in attack on deceased—No legal bar to convict accused under S. 302 read with S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1961 (1) Cri L J 42 : AIR 1961 Andh Pra 23 (DB).

——S. 149 — Facts and circumstances warranting framing of charge under S. 34—Charge under S. 149 can be framed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1958 Cri L J 733 : AIR 1958 Andh Pra 380 (DB).

15. Sentence.

——S. 149 — Scope of S. 303 — Person undergoing sentence of imprisonment — Conviction under S. 302/34 or S. 302/149 —Person should be sentenced to death only. See Penal Code (1860), S. 303. 1963 (1) Cri L J 86 : AIR 1963 S C 118.

——S. 149 — Conviction under S. 302/149 — Sentence—Leniency in matter of sentence to some accused is no ground for reducing sentence of death passed against remaining accused. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1957 Cri L J 591 : AIR 1957 S C 474.

——S. 149—Separate convictions under S. 147 and S. 323 read with S. 149 — Separate sentences—Legal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1955 Cri L J 671 : AIR 1955 All 232 (FB).

——S. 149 — Separate convictions under S. 147 and under any other section read with S. 149 — Legal — AIR 1953 All 315, Not foll. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3523.

——S. 149 — Simultaneous conviction under S. 147 and S. 323 read with S 149, Penal Code — Valid. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1954 Cri L J 1450 : AIR 1954 All 689.

——Ss. 149, 71, 147 and 325 — Separate sentences — Accused can be punished separately for offences under Ss. 147 and 323, or S. 324 or 325 or 326 read with S. 149—(Criminal P C (1898), S. 35). See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1953 Cri L J 1222 : AIR 1953 All 510.

——Ss. 149, 147 and 323 — Convictions under S. 147 and under S. 323 read with S. 149 — None convicted for himself causing injury under S. 323—Conviction under S. 323 with S. 149 cannot stand. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 1952 All L J 392 : 1953 Cri L J 711 : AIR 1953 All 315.

[Overruled in AIR 1955 All 232 (FB).]

——S. 149 — Separate sentence for rioting and other for substantive offence read with S. 149—Illegal as it offends S. 71 — Legality. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1958 Andh L T 109.

——S. 149—Sentence—Group of persons, found guilty of murder—Who inflicted fatal blows not established —Lesser punishment when warranted in the case of any accused stated. — Discretion—Accused drunk — Extenuating circumstances. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 56 Cri L J 81 : AIR 1954 Andh 46 (DB).

——S. 149—Two offences one under S. 147 and another under Ss. 325/149 committed by the same acts —Offenders not liable to be punished with the punishment for more than one of such offences. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1955 Cri L J 1033 : AIR 1955 Bhopal 9.

——Ss. 149, 147 and 325 — Charge under, against several accused—Conviction under S. 147—Sentence — More severe punishment on one of the accused held not justified—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32 — See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. AIR 1952 Madh B 205.

——Ss. 149, 141, 341 — Accused preventing processionists from proceeding along mosque on public highway with music — Accused held guilty under S. 341 read with S. 149—But in view of the general nature of the incident itself and in view of the fact that the accused would be liable to punishment by virtue of S. 149 held it will be more proper and more logical not to record a separate conviction against these accused in respect of individual acts under S. 341. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : AIR 1961 Mys 57 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 148, 341 — Sentence — Sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment awarded in respect of offence under S. 148—Sentence of one month's simple imprisonment awarded in respect of offence under S. 341 read with S. 149 — Sentence of fine in respect of latter offence held was uncalled for. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1961 (1) Cri L J 291 : AIR 1961 Mys 57 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 304—Sentence.

Where several accused were tried for an offence under S. 304/149, Penal Code and the Court finding all of them guilty, sentences the appellants to 5 years rigorous imprisonment and others to 3 years' R. I., but states no reasons for imposing a higher sentence on the appellants, the sentence of 5 years' R. I., passed on the appellants was reduced to 3 years' R. I. 1957 Cri L J 644 : ILR (1957) Cut 275 : AIR 1957 Orissa 117 (121) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——Ss. 149, 302—Conviction under—Lesser sentence than life imprisonment is illegal. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1962 Raj L W 448.

16. Procedure.

——Ss. 149, 323, 333 — Procedure for trial—Trial by jury—Legality—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 536).

It is no doubt true that S. 149, Penal Code embodies a rule of vicarious liability. Nevertheless, it is also true that it is by virtue of this section that members of the assembly who have not themselves committed any offence beyond the offence of being members of that assembly are made liable for an offence committed by others. S. 149 therefore creates a specic offence and impliedly provides for punishment of that offence.

Since under U. P. Govt. Notification 2038/VII-B-1583-50, dated 7-3-1951, offences under Chapter VIII, I. P. Code are not to be tried by a jury, an offence under S. 149 is not to be tried by a jury. It is not correct to say that S. 149 refers to some other offence; because when a person is a member of an unlawful assembly, and is convicted of a particular offence by virtue of section 149, he is being convicted under S. 149, though the punishment which will be awarded to him is to be awarded having regard to that other offence for which he is liable. The trial of the offences under S. 323 read with S. 149 and S. 333 read with 149, or to be more accurate of the offences under S. 149 read with S. 323 and of S. 149 read with S. 333 should Question be with the aid of assessors and not by jury.

Where however offences under above sections were tried by a jury instead of with the aid of assessors it remained a trial with the aid of jury, and in view of S. 536 it would not be considered to be illegal. 1954 Cri L J 1494 : 1954 All W R (HC) 930 : AIR 1954 All 670 (682) (FB) (Prs 6, 7, 8) (DB).

—S. 149 — Charge to jury — Misdirection — Common object of unlawful assembly to cause hurt — Victim dying from such hurt — Judge directing jury that homicide is committed in prosecution of common object held amounted to misdirection. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. I L R (1957) 1 Cal 123.

—S. 149 — Large number of accused — Joint trial when proper stated — Different offences committed by groups of persons at different places — No continuity of purpose — No conspiracy — Acts done with similar objects—Not necessarily with common object — Joint trial whether justified stated — Absence of prejudice—Effect. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236 (d). 1964 (2) Cri L J 125 : AIR 1964 Madh Pra 192 (DB).

—S. 149 — M. B. Public Security Act (13 of 1953), S. 14 — Notification under, not including S. 149 in those offences specified as triable by Special Judge — Special Judge not competent to try any of the specified substantive offences read with S. 149. 1957 Cri L J 941 : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 47 (49) (Pr 2).

—S. 149 — Conviction — Trial with assessors — Accused charged under S. 302 and also under S. 302/149 — Omission to ask assessors their opinion on latter charge — Whole trial vitiated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 309 (as before the Amendment Act of 1955). 1953 Cri L J 54 : AIR 1953 Mys 1 (DB).

—Ss. 149, 300 and 325—Applicability and scope—Accused members of unlawful assembly—Accused found not guilty of murder — Conviction under S. 325/149—Permissibility.

It is a well-established principle of law that an accused who is a member of an unlawful assembly is not necessarily guilty of the graver offence committed by any member of an unlawful assembly but that he could be convicted of a lesser offence, provided it is found that he was a member of the unlawful assembly and that such lesser offence was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object of the assembly.

Where the accused were members of an unlawful assembly which started beating the deceased and the assembly was armed with deadly weapons, but the accused were found not guilty of murder:

Held, that the accused must have known that a grievous injury was likely to be caused and they could be constructively held guilty of the offence of causing grievous hurt read with S. 149. 1953 Pat L R 640 : 1953 Cri L J 72 : AIR 1953 Pat 12 (16) (FB) (Pr 15) (DB).

17. Leave to appeal to Supreme Court.

—S. 149—Leave to appeal to Supreme Court—Case involving question of law — Legality of conviction under S. 149 when persons identified were less than five—Case held not fit for grant of leave to appeal to Supreme Court. 52 Cri L J 1409 : 6 Repts L R 132 : AIR 1951 Nagpur 152 (153, 154) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

18. Section 149 and S. 302.

C—Ss. 149, 300, 302—Intention to use violence in prosecution of common object.

Where several persons are armed with lathis and one of them is armed with a hatchet and are agreed to use those weapons in case they are thwarted in the achievement of their object, it is by no means incorrect to conclude that they were prepared to use violence in prosecution of their common object and that they knew that in the prosecution of such common object it was likely that some one may be so injured as to die as a result of those injuries. Where violence is used in prosecution of their common object and one person dies as a result of the injuries inflicted, the offence made out on account of the death caused by the concerted acts of the several accused is the offence of murder. AIR 1959 All 680. Affirmed. Hukam Singh v. State of U. P., 1961 B L J R 707 : 1961 S C D 872 : 1961 Mad W N 530 : (1962) 1 S C R 456 : 1961 All L J 537 : 1961 All W R (H C) 503 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 711 : 1961 M P C 720 : 1961 All Cri R 293 : (1961) 2 S C J 858 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 867 : AIR 1961 S C 1541 (1543) (Pr B) (Pr 8).

D—Ss. 149, 34 and 302—Scope—Common object of unlawful assembly only to administer chastisement to deceased — Charge not mentioning that members of unlawful assembly knew that deceased was likely to be killed in prosecution of that common object—Deceased killed—Members not causing fatal injury held not guilty under S. 302 read with S. 149 or S. 34—See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 1885 : AIR 1956 S C 731.

E—S. 149—Accused charged under S. 302, read with S. 149, Penal Code—He cannot be convicted under S. 302 when he was acquitted of S. 302 read with S. 149—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 231. 1955 Cri L J 721 : AIR 1955 S C 274.

—S. 149 — Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 149 of Penal Code for vicarious liability in committing murder on provocation—Offence cannot be said to involve element of moral turpitude to disqualify candidate under S. 5-A (h), U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947)—See Panchayats—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 5-A (a). 1964 All L J 1115 : 1965 All W R (H C) 25 : 1965 All Cri R 40 : 1 L R (1965) 1 All 230.

—Ss. 149, 302 — Absence of common object of murder—Death caused — Conviction of members of assembly under S. 302 read with S. 149 — Legality.

When the common object of the assembly is not murder but some other unlawful object, and death is caused in the course of the achievement of that object the question that arises is, whether the evidence discloses that in achieving the common object, the members of the assembly were determined to go to any length, even to the length of committing murder:

Held, on facts, that the conviction of the appellants under S. 302 read with S. 149 was correct. 29 Suth. W R Cr 5 and AIR 1959 All 255, Disting. 1959 Cri L J 1255 : AIR 1959 All 695 (698, 699) (Pr C) (Prs 18, 20, 21) (DB).

—Ss. 149 and 302—Murder committed in prosecution of common object of unlawful assembly—Only some members assaulting deceased—All members guilty. 1959 All W R (H C) 375 : 1959 All Cr R 473 : 1959 Cr L J 909 : AIR 1959 All 455 (455) (Pr 1 1) (DB).

—S. 149 — Applicability — Deceased with his men ploughing field—Accused armed with lathis claiming share in field—Deceased and his men refusing to get out—Attack by accused with lathis resulting in death—Accused held liable under S. 302 read with S. 149—See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1955 All W R (H C) 72.

—Ss. 149 and 302—Attack by persons armed with deadly weapon — Death caused — Offence—Persons attacking guilty under S. 302 read with S. 149—See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. AIR 1951 All 865 (DB).

——S. 149—Some members of rioting mob armed with guns—Others armed with lathis and other weapons aware of this fact—Member using gun and killing member of opposite party—Other members are liable for offence committed by member by killing deceased with firing from gun—AIR 1954 S C 695 and AIR 1946 Pat 242, Rel. on. 1962 (1) Cri L J 394 : AIR 1962 Andh Pra 166 (172) (Pt G) (Pr 46) (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 302—Conviction.

An accused cannot be convicted under S. 302, Indian Penal Code, for committing the offence directly, and under S. 302 read with S. 149, Indian Penal Code, at the same time, for committing the offence constructively. If a man does commit an offence directly, there is no question of his committing it constructively, and vice versa. 1955 Cri L J 1470 : AIR 1955 Assam 226 (228) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 149—Charge under S. 302/149 and S. 302—Conviction under S. 302 for murder held not legal as prejudice was caused to accused—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221. 1958 Cri L J 516 : AIR 1958 Ker 94 (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 302—Several accused charged under S. 302 read with S. 149 of murdering deceased—No finding as to whether accused had constituted themselves into an unlawful assembly with the common object of murder and whether murder was committed in prosecution of that common object—Conviction of accused under S. 302 read with S. 149 cannot be sustained—See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 3408 (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 302 — Some members of unlawful assembly running away after inflicting one or two injuries on deceased — Responsibility of such members for death.

Where the persons participating in an assault upon the deceased are members of one unlawful assembly, the mere fact that some of the members of that assembly run away after inflicting one or two injuries each upon the deceased cannot absolve them of the responsibility for the death even though it was not the direct result of the injuries inflicted by any one of them but was the cumulative result of the injuries inflicted by them and other members of the same unlawful assembly. It is impossible to dissociate the act done by one member of an unlawful assembly from the acts of other members of the same assembly if all those acts form part of the same transaction. 1952 Cri L J 1261 : A I R 1952 Madh B 133 (135) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——S. 149 — Unlawful assembly—Common object — Carrying of weapons — Conviction under S. 149 read with S. 302 held justified. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1964 (1) Cri L J 198 : AIR 1964 Madh Pra 30 (DB).

——Ss. 149 and 302—Unlawful assembly—Murder—Circumstances attracting liability of all rioters — Conviction.

It was established from the evidence on record that the accused persons had a motive to do away with the deceased who was harassing some of them and were awaiting, some openly and some concealed for the deceased and others passing on the way. The accused persons were all armed with deadly weapons like aruvals, bichuvas, kutheetis and a gun. In pursuance of the premeditated plan of attack, on sighting these persons, the openly sitting accused and the concealed accused who were whistled for, emerged and set upon the deceased and caused multiple injuries. Accused 1 cut off the head of the deceased. They then marched in a body along with accused 1 and the head was soaked in Kerosene oil and burnt. Other incriminating articles were also got rid of. The accused persons then absconded as a body and were all caught together :

Held that an offence under S. 149 read with S. 302 Indian Penal Code had been brought home affirmatively and satisfactorily. 1959 Mad W N 708.

——Ss. 149, 302—Charge under S. 302/149—No room for doubt that prosecution held accused responsible for murder — Failure to frame specific charge under S. 302 held did not prejudice accused—Omission did not vitiate trial — See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. (1962) 64 Pun L R 338.

——Ss. 149, 141, 148 and 302—Rioting—Beating by four accused with sharp weapons resulting in death—Members could be held guilty under S. 302 by virtue of S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1958 Cri L J 1232 : AIR 1958 Raj 226 (DB).

——S. 149—Common object—Proof of — Question is one of fact — Policemen guarding police station assaulted and killed—Common object of rescuing by force certain persons from lock-up — Knowledge that police party were likely to be killed—One alone sufficient for liability under S. 149 — All members can be convicted under S. 302 read with S. 149. A I R 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 538 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 300—Murder—Constructive liability.

The other members of the mob were not aware of the fact that the 1st accused did have a sharp weapon like a knife or dagger in his possession and that he was going to use it to stab the victim.

Held that there was no constructive liability, in the circumstances, incurred by the other members of the mob for the act of stabbing done by the 1st accused. It was only the first accused that was liable for offence of murder committed by him. 1952 Cri L J 1592 : 1952 Ker L T 704 : ILR (1952) Trav-Co 133 : A I R 1952 Trav-Co 459 (462) (Pt C) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 149 — Seven accused standing at P's door armed with lathis and attacking deceased and his companions when they passed in front of the house and killing him on the spot—Previous enmity between P and deceased established —S. 149 held applicable and all accused held guilty under S. 302 read with S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1954 Cri L J 1303 : AIR 1954 Vin Pra 36.

19. Marpit cases.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

——Ss. 149, 304, Part II — Constructive liability for causing death—Assault by several persons armed with axes — Axes used — Death caused by blow given by one—All other accused taking part are constructively liable under S. 304, Part II read with S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304, (Part II). 1956 Cri L J 1066 : AIR 1956 Bom 609 (DB).

——Ss. 149, 141 — Free fight between two groups—None of accused can be held constructively responsible for acts of others — Each one must be held responsible for his own act. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1962 Mad L J (Cr) 355 : ILR (1961) Mys 605.

——S. 149—Land dispute — Prosecution party trying to take forcible possession—Protest by defence party in possession — Aggression by prosecution party — Attack with lathis by defence party, resulting in fatal injuries—No evidence to prove apprehension of death or grievous hurt to members of defence party—Members of defence party held exceeded right of private defence and were guilty under S. 304, Part 2. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1963 (1) Cri L J 700 (Orissa).

——S. 149 — Maramari cases—Duty of Court.

In cases of mutal 'Maramari' in which both sides receive injuries, and each side alleges that the other was the aggressor it is for the Court to find out which side acted on the aggressive, and if there is distinct evidence that one of the sides must have acted on the aggressive and came with a common intention to fight, the question as to which of the accused inflicted the injuries on the members of the other side and with what weapons does not become material. 52 Cri L J 390 (E) : AIR 1951 Sau 22 (22) (Pr 8) (DB).

20. Alteration of conviction in appeal.

C——Ss. 149, 302, 307 and 34 — Unlawful assembly —"In prosecution of the common object" — Intention to fight and cause injury—Inference in respect of — Constructive liability of all persons in assembly — Assembly of less than five—Attack by such assembly —Conviction under Ss. 302, 307 and 149 can be converted into one under Ss. 302, 307 and 34. Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, 1962 All Cri R 22 : (1962) 1 S C J 293 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 175 : 1962 All W R (HC) 18 : (1962) 2 S C R 695 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 953 : AIR 1961 S C 1787 (1790) (Pr 5) (Pars 14, 15).

C——S. 148 — Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34—Can be altered by High Court to one under S. 320 read with S. 148 — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423. 1958 Cri L J 441 : AIR 1956 S C 239.

——Ss. 148, 34 and 302 — Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 149 — Can be altered in appeal to one under S. 302 read with S. 34—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423 (1) (d). See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1951 Cri L J 638 : AIR 1952 S C 164.

C——Ss. 148, 302 and 34—Conviction under S. 302—Conversion into one under S. 302 read with S. 34 by appellate Court valid. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1097 (DB).

——S. 149—Accused tried for murder with six others who were acquitted—Conviction under S. 149, Penal Code can be converted under S. 34, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 14.

——S. 149—Charge under S. 149 read with S. 302 but no separate charge under S. 302—Conviction—Appeal —Charge under S. 149 not established—Accused not prejudiced in defence by absence of separate charge under S. 302 — Conviction of accused under S. 149 can be converted into conviction under S. 302. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S 535. (1965) 1 Law Rep 714 : 1966 Cri L J 928 (Mys).

——Ss. 149, 302, 34—Murder committed in course of same transaction—Accused persons charged and convicted both under Ss. 302, 149 and S. 302/34—Appeal —Conviction under S. 302/149 upheld and conviction under S. 302/34 found redundant—Conviction under S. 302/34 even if set aside, held would not affect conviction under S. 302/149 — Sentence to be deemed to have been imposed only under S 302/149. Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423—See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1964 (1) Cri L J 426 : AIR 1964 Pat 158 (DB).

SECTION 151

——S. 151 — "Lawfully" commanded or disperse".

The word "lawfully" in S. 151 cannot be construed as having reference only to the authority or competency of the person issuing the command but is to be understood as signifying authority as well as likelihood of disturbance of public peace and if either of these is found lacking, the command cannot be said to be "lawful". The command under the section is not to be sought or issued for placing a party whose right to or possession of a land is seriously and "bona fide" disputed by others in a position of advantage. If the accused persons tried to cut the crops on land claimed as their own or the strength of registered sale deed, they were entitled to do so and their acts would not properly justify the command as it would be the other party interfering with them who had to be directed to leave the place. AIR 1954 Mys 58 (58) (Pr 8).

SECTION 153

——S. 153 — Ingredients of offence under —Trampling over National Flag held an offence under the section.

The ingredients necessary to establish the offence under S. 153 are: (1) That the accused did an act which was illegal; (2) That he thereby gave provocation to any person; (3) That he did this maliguantly or wantonly; (4) That he did this (a) intending that the provocation will cause the offence of rioting to be committed or (b) knowing it to be likely that such provocation will cause the offence of rioting to be committed.

Held, on facts that the act of the accused was a deliberate act for the purpose of insulting the flag, thereby intending to wound the feelings and sentiments of the other persons present. Equally the act done was a wrongful act done without a just cause or excuse and was malignant and wanton within the meaning of S. 153. Further, though the act was neither an offence as defined in S. 40, Penal Code nor was it prohibited by law, it was an illegal act within the meaning of Ss. 43 and 154, Penal Code, because the accused was civilly liable for trespass both to land as well as to goods. 1962 M P L J 44 : 1962 Lab L J 277 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 493 : ILR (1962) Madh Pra 762 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 292 (293, 294) (Pars 6, 11) (DB).

——S. 153 — "Wantonly" — Person killing cow or only does the act wantonly.

"Wantonly" in S. 153 means recklessly, thoughtlessly without regard for right or consequence. Today, it must be recognised that to kill or to slaughter a cow in the open exposed to the view of the public would cause needless offence to a very large body of persons who inhabit this land. A person who so kills or slaughters a cow obviously does so recklessly, thoughtlessly and without regards for the sentiment of those who do not approve of such an act. Such conduct, therefore, amounts to a wanton act. 29 All 369, Rel. on. 1959 Cri L J 449 : AIR 1952 Pat 132 (139) (Pr A) (Pr 4).

——S. 153 — Killing of cow — Act must not only be wanton but it must also be illegal.

If the act is not illegal, however, wanton, however undesirable, however to be deplored the act may have been, there could be no offence committed under S. 153. Where there is no provision of law which would make the killing of a cow an offence, it is impossible to hold that the act of persons in killing a cow in the open is an illegal act, although it may have been wanton and one which was deplorable. 1959 Cri L J 449 : AIR 1952 Pat 132 (139) (Pr B) (Pr 4).

SECTION 153-A

——S. 153-A—Arrest without warrant—Requisite conditions — Person likely to commit breach of public peace and tranquility — His arrest is not justified. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 151. 1965 (1) Cri L J 448 : AIR 1965 All 161.

——S. 153-A (before 1961 amendment) — Classes of citizens — Political party can be one such class — Distorted heading of speech of a member of political party — Presumption as to want of honest intention —Heading can be held to have intended to promote enmity between members of the party as a class against non-members — Interpretation of Statutes — General words — Interpretation of Statutes — Meaning of words.

Section 153-A has been worded generally to apply to all classes of citizens of India and not classes distinguished on grounds of religion, caste or community. When the legislature used general words the Courts of law shall not be justified in restricting their scope. The general words must be given their ordinary meaning and must be made applicable to all classes provided it is possible to place the person in a distinct class or group. The class or group can be based not only on grounds of religion, race, language, caste or community but also on political or economic affiliations. It is, however, necessary that the classes must be distinct and not vague and ordinarily exclusive of each other. But to say that classes must be associated with their origin, race or religion is to narrow down the scope of the term, which has otherwise a general meaning. Before a set of persons can be placed in one class it is necessary that they must be in sufficient number. An individual cannot be placed in a distinct class within the meaning of S. 153 A but his party can.

Hindu Mahasabha is a well-known political party and it commands sufficient membership to justify its being placed in a class for purpose of S. 153-A. The aims and objects of a political party are generally assumed to be those uttered by its leaders in public. Consequently, a speech of a leader can give rise to enmity or hatred between the political body as a whole and non-members. Where the accused publishes a speech of a leader of the Hindu Mahasabha as a news item under distorted heading reading which Muslim will bear enmity with the speaker and his party, the Court would presume that the publication was with dishonest intention. In such a case the accused is not entitled to the protection of the Explanation to S. 153-A. It is an important duty of an editor to give a heading which gives a clear idea of what the article contains. If it is found that the heading is different from what is contained in the article (news item) inference can be drawn from the heading itself. But where the heading does not give a story different from what is contained in the news items, for drawing inferences the news items as a whole must be read. To put it differently, the heading is a part of the news item (articles) but in certain respects heading stands in a category of its own. 1964 All W R (H C) 694 : (1964) All Cr R 501 : 1964 All L J 545.

——S. 153-A — Section is not unconstitutional — Reasonable restriction on exercise of right of speech and expression— Restrictions in relation to incitement of an offence — Promotion of enmity between classes is, in substance, incitement to offence — Restriction imposed on freedom of speech and expression by S. 153-A is reasonable restriction — Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (a), (2). 1964 All W R (HC) 694 : 1964 All Cr R 501 : 1964 All L J 545.

——S. 153-A — Constitutional validity — Not ultra vires Art. 19 (1) (a) of Constitution of India.

The language used in S. 153-A is not of an all-pervading nature and does not suffer from being all-embracing with the result that because of language no one who does not either promote or attempt to promote class hatred and enmity can be convicted. The section is neither too widely worded nor is indefinite.

The section is not ultra vires Art. 19 (1) (a) of the Constitution. The addition of the words "in the interest of public order" in Art. 19 (2) by the First Amendment Act of 1951 makes the ambit of the protection very wide and any provision which has been enacted in the interest of public order would be valid. Therefore if the State has, in the Penal Code, provided a provision which makes either the attempt or the actual commission of an act promoting feelings of enmity and hatred between different classes of the citizens of India punishable, it must be held that the provision is in the interest of public order. It is not necessary that [illegible] may have been designed directly to maintain public order. It would be valid even if it had been enacted in the interest of public order. AIR 1959 All 101 (FB) and AIR 1951 Punj 27 held no longer law in view of S C decisions in AIR 1962 S C 955. 1963 All L J 21 : 1963 All W R (HC) 87 : 1963 All Cr R 80 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 4 : AIR 1963 All 335 (336, 337) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Ss. 153-A and 295-A — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 99-A, 99-D — Scope of S. 99-A —Powers of High Court.

The High Court, in view of the provisions of S. 99-D of the Criminal P. C., is precluded from considering any other point than the question whether in fact the document comes within the mischief of the offence charged. It is evident that the scope of S. 99-A, Criminal P. C. is wider than that of S. 153-A, Penal Code, because the words "or is intended to" have been added to S. 99-A which do not find a place in S. 153-A. "Intention" falls short of "attempt" and has been made in addition an alternative ground under S. 99-A — The legislature contemplates that the words spoken or written which do promote hatred etc., would create sufficient mischief so as to fall within the scope of S. 153-A and that it is not necessary for the State further to establish that the writer had intention to promote such hatred. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1957 Cri L J 912 : AIR 1957 All 538 (SB).

——Ss. 153-A and 295-A — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A—Scope.

If the author has dealt with the subject from a purely scientific or historical point of view avoiding all offensive and abusive language then even if he was wrong in his conclusions the passages might not be open to objection — Again, even if in support of theory he was relying merely on certain customs, habits and practices which are prevailing among some of the Sikhs contrary to the practices laid down in their scriptures he may still be not guilty of an offence under Ss. 153-A and 295-A, Penal Code. But if the remarks are generalised the book ceases to be purely historical and is bound to promote hatred and enmity between the classes which are compared. In such cases the offence may fall within the scope of S. 153-A. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1957 Cri L J 912: AIR 1957 All 538 (SB).

——S. 153-A — Press (Objectionable Matter) Act (1951), S. 3(v) and Expln. 1— Scope and applicability — Promoting feelings of enmity between different sections of people of India. AIR 1954 Ajmer 19, Not foll.

In order to determine whether the impugned article comes within the mischief of S. 3 (v) it is not enough to show that it is likely to promote feelings of enmity between different classes of people but the attending circumstances have to be established by the State Government so that the intention of creating enmity or hatred between the different sections can be inferred. AIR 1952 S C 329, Discussed. See Press (Objectionable Matter) Act, S. 3 (v) and Expln. 1. 1956 Cri L J 1199 : AIR 1956 Hyd 151 (DB).

——S. 153-A — Editorials written in intemperate and slanderous language against a political party and its members—Does not amount to an offence under the section.

Political parties are susceptible of rapid changes in their composition and complexion and therefore they could not be called a 'class of citizen' as contemplated by S. 153-A, Penal Code.

A libellous or slanderous attack in most intemperate language against a political party or its individual members cannot be said to promote feelings of hatred or enmity between different classes of citizens within the meaning of the section. I L R (1956) Hyd 889.

——S. 153-A — Validity of — A reasonable restriction has been imposed in S. 153-A for whosoever promotes or attempts to promote the feelings of enmity or hatred between different classes of citizens of India to the extent of endangering public order cannot be protected by cl. (2) of Art. 19 and so the section can be deemed to be not wholly ultra vires in view of the amended cl. (2) of Art. 19 of the Constitution. See Constitution of India, Art. 19 (2). 1955 Cri L J 184 : AIR 1955 Manipur 9.

——S. 153-A—Hatred or contempt — A general criticism of certain officer or officers could not be deemed to be a criticism of Government established by law and order, and as it was not shown by the prosecution that the word "Mayang" used in the leaflets distributed in the meeting defined any particular class of people, the accused could not be deemed to be guilty under Ss. 124-A and 153-A, simply because they used the word 'Mayang" in the leaflets. See Penal Code (1860), S. 124-A. 1955 Cri L J 184 : A I R 1955 Manipur 9.

——S. 153-A—Proof of sanction — Order authorising Senior Superintendent of Police to make complaint under S. 153-A, Penal Code — Such order signed by Deputy Secretary to Government—Assistant who was acquainted with Deputy Secretary's signature could prove it. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196. 1965 (2) Cri L J 401: AIR 1965 Pat 393.

——S. 153-A, Explanation (as it stood before Amendment of 1961)—Mens rea is main ingredient — Intention how to be ascertained. A I R 1943 Pat 382; A I R 1928 Cal 1133; A I R 1954 Pat 254 and A I R 1920 Cal 478 (SB) Rel. on. 1965 B L J R 613 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 401 : A I R 1965 Pat 393 (396 397) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9, 13, 14).

——S. 153-A—Offence under—Preliminary investigation by police officer under order of District Magistrate—In appropriate case, Investigating officer may arrest accused in course of investigation under authority of warrant—Warrant of arrest issued by Sub-divisional Magistrate to facilitate Inspector's investigation — Sub-divisional Magistrate does not act beyond jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196-B. 1962 (1) Cri L J 62: AIR 1962 Pat 2 (DB).

——Ss. 153-A, 141, 143 and 228—Unlawful assembly —Common object—Charge not sufficient to give notice to accused of alleged common object — Conviction under S. 143, Penal Code cannot stand. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1956 B L J R 652.

——S. 153-A — Validity — The provisions of S. 124-A and 153-A are not rendered void on the ground that they are inconsistent with the fundamental right of freedom of speech and expression guaranteed to all citizens of India under Art. 19 (1) (a) of the Constitution. See Constitution of India. Art. 19 (1) (a). 1954 Cri LJ 758: AIR 1954 Pat 254 (DB).

——S. 153-A—Applicability — The Constitution contains provisions for the formation of new states, alteration of the boundaries of the existing states etc. Any agitation for the formation for a new State did not, therefore, necessarily come within the mischief of Ss. 124-A and 153-A. See Penal Code (1860), S. 124-A. 1954 Cri L J 758; AIR 1954 Pat 254 (DB).

——S. 153-A—Criticism of Government.—In a democratic country criticism of Governmental measures and administrative action are to some extent unavoidable — With the change of times, the effect of criticisms also changes; what was damaging contempt or hatred of a bureaucratic Government is not so of a popular Government, Government which can neither afford to be hyper-sensitive, nor impervious, to criticism. See Penal Code (1860), S. 124-A. 1954 Cri L J 758; AIR 1954 Pat 254 (DB).

——S. 153-A — Validity — Constitution of India, Arts. 19 and 372 — Adaptation of Laws Order, 1950, Para. 28 — The gist of the offence under S. 153-A is the promotion or attempt to promotion of feelings of enmity or hatred between different classes of citizens of India — Though many acts falling under S. 153-A will be acts undermining or tending to overthrow the State there can equally be many acts made punishable by S. 153-A which will not in any way undermine the security of or tend to overthrow the State — Section 153-A has become void as providing an unwarranted restriction on the freedom of speech and expression. See Constitution of India. Art. 19. 53 P L R 22 : I L R (1951) Punj 193; 52 Cri L J 449 : AIR 1951 Punj 27 (DB).

SECTION 159

——S. 159—Affray—Fight is essential.

To constitute an affray there must be a fight and it is not a fight when one side is aggressive and the other side is passive. A fight is a bilateral affair in which both parties should participate. AIR 1937 Oudh 425; AIR 1938 Mad 924, Rel. on. 1952 Cri L J 1282 : 1952 All L J 493 : 1952 All W R (H C) 547 : 1952 All Cri R 146 : AIR 1952 All 788 (794) (Pt D) (Pr 24).

——S. 159—Affray — What constitutes — Fighting necessary.

The word 'fight' connotes a bilateral act in which two parties participate and it will not amount to an affray when the party who is assaulted submits to the assault without resistance. Again, there must be a definite disturbance of the public peace due to the fight in the public place to make the offence 'affray.' AIR 1938 Mad 924 and AIR 1950 Mad 409, Rel. on. 1961 Ker L J 766 : ILR (1961) 2 Ker 363 : 1961 Ker L T 698 : (1961) 2 Ker L R 323 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 339 (Ker).

——S. 159 — Fight essential — Passive submission not enough.

To constitute affray, fight between two sides is essential. Mere passive submission to beating by the other side will not do. Where a person beats another in a public place and the latter submits to the beating without the least retaliation and simply howls in pain, no offence of affray is committed. (1950) 1 Mad L J 106 : 63 Mad L W 209 : 1950 Mad W N 219 : 51 Cri L J 979 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 43 : AIR 1950 Mad 408 (409) (Pr 1).

——Ss. 159, 160—Mere abuses not sufficient.

Mere exchange of abuses at a public place does not amount to an affray. Something more than a mere wordy quarrel is needed before a person can be convicted under S. 160. It would be enough if blows are aimed, whether these prove to be successful or otherwise. AIR 1928 Lah 813 (1); AIR 1937 Oudh 425; AIR 1955 Punj 191, Rel. on; AIR 1926 Lah 412; AIR 1937 Mad 286, Disting. (1963) 65 Punj L R 813.

SECTION 160

——Ss. 160 and 290 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237 — Person charged under S. 160, Penal Code—Doubtful if he can be convicted under S. 290. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1959 Cri L J 1440 : AIR 1959 Mad 513.

——S. 160 — Conviction under — Subsequent trial under S. 323 — Legality — Constitution of India, Art. 20. The test for determining the legality of the trial of a person more than once is whether the offences for which he is tried are distinct from those for which he was previously tried. The facts necessary to make out an offence of hurt being altogether different from those for affray the previous trial and conviction under S. 160, Penal Code are therefore, not impediment to a subsequent case under S. 323, Penal Code filed by one of the parties to that affray. AIR 1955 Mys 138 (139) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Ss 160, 147—Two parties fighting on open space between houses of locality—Want of proof of common object — Facts disclosing minor offence on public place — Conviction under S. 147 set aside and altered into one under S. 160, Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 238. 1957 M P C 138 : 1957 M P L J 111 : I L R (1956) Nag 899.

——Ss. 160 and 159—Mere abuses not sufficient.

Mere exchange of abuses at public place does not amount to an affray. Something more than a mere wordy quarrel is needed before a person can be convicted under S. 160. It would be enough if blows are aimed, whether these prove to be successful or otherwise. (1963) 65 Pun L R 813.

——S. 160—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 498 — Offence under — Bail bond — Amount of.

The nature and seriousness of the offence of which the accused is being tried ought always to be borne in mind by the Court while fixing the amount of bail. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 498. 1960 Cri L J 1498 : AIR 1960 Punj 572.

SECTION 161

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 161).

1. Applicability and scope.
2. Public servant.
3. Procedure.
4. Gratification.
5. Attempt to obtain bribe.
6. Burden of proof.
7. Motive or reward.
8. "Forbearing to do any official act."
9. Official act.
10. "In the exercise of his official functions."
11. Rendering or attempting to render service to person with public servant.
12. Punishment.
13. Abetment.
14. Evidence.
    - (A) Evidence of trap witness.
      - —Magistrate as trap witness.
      - —Evidence of Police Officer laying trap.
      - —Laying of trap — Desirability.
    - (B) Evidence of bribe giver.
    - (C) Recovery of currency notes and marked coins from accused.
    - (D) Presumption under S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act.
    - (E) Accused as defence witness.
15. Sanction.
16. Charge under the section.

1. Applicability and scope.

●——S. 161 — Scope — If repealed by S. 5, Prevention of Corruption Act — Prosecution of accused under S. 409 — Sanction — Art. 14 of the Constitution. The section is not repealed by S. 5 (1) (c), Prevention of Corruption Act and its application is also not barred by Art. 14 of the Constitution. No sanction is necessary to prosecute the public servant as he does not normally act in his capacity as a public servant when committing criminal breach of trust. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5. 1957 Cri L J 575 : AIR 1957 S C 458.

——S. 161 — Offence under by Police Officer — Limitation for prosecution — Special rule of limitation does not apply.

The rule of limitation contained in S. 161 (1) of the Bombay Police Act can apply only if the act complained of was done under colour of duty or in excess of duty imposed or authority conferred on the officer concerned by any provision of the Act or by any other law or by any other rule, order or direction made or given under the Act or under any other law. See Bombay Police Act (22 of 1951), S. 161. 1965 (2) Cri L J 193 : AIR 1965 Bom 124 (DB).

——S. 161 — Scope — Section prohibits punishment for same set of facts under two sections—Trial however not prohibited. See General Clauses Act (1897), S. 26. — 1962 (2) Cri L J 598 : AIR 1962 Bom 263 (DB).

——Ss. 161 and 383 — Distinction.

It is quite conceivable that a public servant may commit extortion by compelling a person put in fear to part with property. But whether in a given case the evidence makes out a charge of extortion or one under S. 161 is a question to be decided upon the facts of each case. 1956 Cri L J 522 : AIR 1956 Cal 116 (117) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

——S. 161 — Panchnama in a corruption case — Admissibility of — When hit by S. 162, Criminal P. C.

In a case under S. 161, Penal Code or S. 5 (1) (d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act an offence thereunder is complete when an illegal gratification is accepted, by an accused person. The panchnama to fall under S. 162 of the Code the statement in question must have the element of communication to a police officer. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 162. 1963 (2) Cri L J 14 : AIR 1963 Guj 145 (DB).

——S. 161—Cognizance of offence under.

Even after the amendment of 1952 in the Prevention of Corruption Act the position regarding an offence under S. 161 and under sub-s. (2) of S. 5 of Prevention of Corruption Act is that it is cognizable so far as officers of the rank of a Deputy Superintendent of Police and above are concerned. But so far as the officers below the rank of D. S. P. are concerned, the said offences are non-cognizable in so far as they cannot investigate them without the permission of a Magistrate of the First Class. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (2). 1957 Cri L J 184 : AIR 1957 Madh B 43 (DB).

——S. 161 —Applicability—Connection between payment and performance of official duty should be established. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 5362.

——S. 161—Applicability—Person taking gratification need not be in position to do service. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 4861.

——S. 161—Scope — Withdrawal of prosecution before charge has been framed—Effect.

Where in a trial for offences under S. 161, I. P C., and S. 5 (1) (a) and S. 5 (1) (d) read with S. 5 (2), Prevention of Corruption Act, the application by the prosecution for withdrawal of charge in respect of the offence under S. 5 (1) (a) was allowed before the charge was framed, even though the order for discharge was not passed, the necessary consequence was that the accused would be deemed to have been discharged so far as that offence was concerned. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 494. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3883.

——S. 161 — Railway Establishment Code, Vol. I, R. 1701, para 2 (1) — Railway servant demanding and accepting bakshis of 8 annas for service rendered — Provisions of Penal Code (1860), do not apply since the Railway Establishment Code, itself prohibits the acceptance of any "gift; gratuity or reward." See Railway Establishment Code, Vol. I, Rule 1701, Para 2 (1) AIR 1964 Orissa 253 (DB).

2. Public servant.

● —S. 161 — Public servant who is — Servant of Road Transport Corporation — Taking bribe — So far as receiving of a bribe is concerned, it cannot be brought within the scope of acting or purporting to act in pursuance of any of the provisions of the Transport Act, or any other law within the meaning of S. 43 of the Act. It cannot be the case of the prosecution that the accused while acting or purporting to act in pursuance of any of the provisions of the Transport Act or any other law would take the money. Therefore he would not be a public servant within the language of S. 43 of the Act. The difficulty has however now been obviated by the amendment of S. 21 of the Penal Code by the addition of the twelfth clause therein. See Penal Code (1860), S. 21 (before Amendment by Act 2 of 1958). 1964 (1) Cri L J 432 : AIR 1964 S C 492.

● —S. 161—Construction—'Public servant.'

There is nothing in the terms of S. 161, requiring that the public servant contemplated therein must be a specified public servant. Mahesh Prosad v. State of V. P. 1955 Cri L J 249 : 1955 Mad W N 240 : 1955 B L J R 98 : 1955 All W R 245 : 1955 All L J 87 : 1955 S C A 65 : 1955 S C J 153 : (1955) 1 M L J (S C) 83 : 1955 Andh W R (S C) 83 : 1955 Nag L J 375 : (1955) 1 S C R 965 : AIR 1955 S C 70 (72) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

—S. 161 — Police constable of particular outpost accepting bribe from man resident of another outpost—Offence under S. 161 is committed.

The mere fact that a constable is posted at a particular police outpost does not make him cease to be a public servant within the meaning of S. 161 when he is dealing with a man resident of another outpost. If the constable acting as a police officer accepts illegal gratification from such person he would be guilty under S. 161. 1949 All W R (HC) 485 : 1949 All Cri Cas 122 : 51 Cri L J 222 : ILR (1950) All 1113 : AIR 1950 All 5 (5) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

—Ss. 161 and 21 — Unpaid candidate in office of Deputy Commissioner assisting some clerk in work connected with duties of arms clerk — He is not public servant. 51 Cri L J 884 : A I R 1950 East Punj 167.

—S. 161 — Applicability — Railway servant, if can be convicted under S. 161 — (Railways Act (1890), S. 137 (1)) — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 2).

Section 161 appears in Chapter IX of the Penal Code, and by virtue of sub-s. (1) of S. 137 of the Indian Railways Act as it stood before the amendment of the year 1955, every railway servant had to be deemed to be a public servant for the purpose of Chapter IX of the Penal Code. Thus the accused, a railway servant, could be tried and convicted of the offence under S. 161 of the Indian Penal Code. (1959) 1 Jab L J 28 : 1957 Ker L J 476 : ILR (1957) Ker 559 : 1957 Mad L J (Cr) 443 : 1957 Cri L J 1127 : 1957 Ker L T 784 : A I R 1957 Ker 134 (138) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

—Ss. 161, 21 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 2 — Public servant — Sar Panch of Gram Panchayat holding an office under the provisions of the M. B. Village Panchayat Act is a public servant. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 2. 1956 Cri L J 227 : AIR 1956 Madh B 51.

—S. 161 — "Public servant" — Member of Gram Panchayat is public servant — Member receiving reward for doing any act mentioned in S. 161—Receipt of payment would amount to receipt of gratification other than his legal remuneration. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4104.

3. Procedure.

● —S. 161—Procedure—Offence exclusively triable by Special Judge—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 526, 531—Applicability — Special Judge having no territorial jurisdiction—Conviction if illegal — The order of the Special Judge, was not to be set aside on the ground of his having no territorial jurisdiction to try the case, when no failure of justice had actually taken place. See Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), S. 7. (1961) 2 Cri L J 811 : AIR 1961 S C 1629.

—S. 161 — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act (1952), Ss. 7, 8 — Offence of bribery triable exclusively by Special Judge — Final report under S. 173, Criminal P. C., can be accepted by District Magistrate — Departmental Inquiry under Para. 486 of Police Regulation is not barred — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (2))—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 173) — (Police Regulation, Regn. 486, Para. 1 (6)). See Criminal Law (Amendment) Act (1952), S. 7. 1960 Cri L J 1290 : AIR 1960 All 618 (DB).

—S. 161 — Procedure — Investigation by Sub-Inspector — Permission by First Class Magistrate — Jurisdiction of Magistrate to try case, if affected — Irregularity — Curability — Held, that this was not the proper approach in the matter — The permission having been granted mechanically and the case having been conducted partly before the so-called permission and partly after, there was an illegality. But the illegality committed in the course of investigation did not affect the competency and the jurisdiction of the Court — Such a defect being an irregularity is curable under S. 537 of Criminal P. C. — But the question of curability under S 537, Criminal P. C., arises where the trial has proceeded to conclusion — But where the trial has not been completed, different considerations would prevail — See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5-A. 1958 Cri L J 764 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 157 (DB).

4. Gratification.

—Ss. 161 and 165A — Expression of a desire to meet the doctor in connection with an autopsy he had performed on dead body of a person alleged to have been murdered—No illegal gratification offered to doctor — Offence under S. 165-A not committed —Essential ingredient is lacking : ILR 55 All 654 and 67 I C 818, Ref. 1964 All Cri R 194 : 1964 All W R (H C) 280.

—S. 161 — 'Gratification' — Meaning of — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4).

The expression 'gratification' is not defined in the Prevention of Corruption Act, and the third paragraph of S. 161 of the Penal Code, states that the word 'gratification' is not restricted to pecuniary gratification, or to gratification estimable in money. The expression 'gratification' must be held to have been used in S. 161, Indian Penal Code, in the sense of anything which gives satisfaction to the recipient. Prima facie, therefore, voluntary acceptance of an amount of money or a valuable thing by a public servant will amount to acceptance of gratification : AIR 1951 All 546, Rel. on. 61 Bom L R 837 : 1959 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1959 Bom 543 (547) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

—S. 161 — Applicability — Offer to pay bribe to public servant without actually producing money amounts to offence under S. 165-A — Offer, what amounts to — See Penal Code (1860), S. 165-A. 58 Cri L J 181 : AIR 1955 Bom 61 (DB).

—S. 161 — Knowledge on the part of the victim.

The gratification must be impressed with the character of being illegal remuneration which is knowingly given as such and knowingly taken as such. If the victim has not the slightest notion that the money or other illegal gratification which passes from him is not taken as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do any official act or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to the victim, then it is indeed difficult to hold that such transaction will amount to an offence described in S. 161. 1956 Cri L J 522 : AIR 1956 Cal 116 (117) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——S. 161 — Gratification—Attitude of modern law towards bribery.

Modern law attaches little importance to terms like Mariada, mamool, etc., but will get into the core of the matter and see what the nature of the payment is and if it is "illegal gratification" or a bribe taken by an officer for doing a favour or abstaining from doing a disfavour it will come within the scope of S. 161, Penal Code. No doubt, some mamools like Pongal, Deepavali, Dasara and Christmas mamool, paid to peons as baksheesh may not come within the term "illegal gratification", or "bribe" as they are not paid for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour in the exercise of official functions : (1949) 2 M L J 443 and AIR 1950 Mad 93, Foll. 1952 Mad W N 220 : 1952 Mad W N (Cr) 45 : (1952) 2 Mad L J 11 : 1952 Cri L J 1245 : AIR 1952 Mad 561 (563) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——S. 161 — Rival contentions to be considered in finding out whether money was accepted as bribe.

The rival versions, one of the prosecution and the other of the accused, in regard to the exact circumstances under which the accused came to be in possession of the currency notes, had to be taken into consideration for the purpose of finding out whether the accused had accepted gratification other than legal remuneration : AIR 1954 S C 322, Foll. 1960 Cri L J 934 : 38 Mys L J 265 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri.) 222 : ILR (1960) Mys 26 : AIR 1960 Mys 111 (123) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

5. Attempt to obtain bribe.

■—Ss. 161, 162 and 165 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d) — Offence under S. 5 (1) (d) and bribery — Distinction between — "Obtains" — Includes acceptance of voluntary offer — (Words and Phrases) — See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d). 1956 Cri L J 837 : AIR 1956 S C 476.

——S. 161—Applicability—Public servant accepting gratification or holding out hopes that he would render service—It is offence. AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 2795.

——S. 161 — Essentials of offence—Even agreement to accept or attempt to obtain illegal gratification is enough. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 4861.

——S. 161 — Offence — What constitutes.

A mere demand or solicitation of gratification by a public servant amounts to an offence under S. 161. 1958 M P C 72 : 1958 All L J (Rev. Sup.) 32 : 1958 Jab L J 162 : 1958 All W R (Sup) 49 : 1958 M P L J 166 : 1958 Cri L J 764 : 1958 All Cri R 184 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 157 (160) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 161—Proof of service or the thing to be done for which bribe is given—Necessity—Not necessary.

When it is proved by the prosecution that the accused has accepted or obtained any gratification (other than legal remuneration), it is not necessary to prove the service (or the thing to be done) for which the gratification was given ; because, under sub-s. (1) of S. 4 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, it should be presumed unless the contrary is proved that the accused accepted or obtained that gratification as a motive or reward such as is mentioned in S. 161, Indian Penal Code. 1960 Cri L J 934 : 38 Mys L J 265 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 222 : ILR (1960) Mys 26 : AIR 1960 Mys 111 (123) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 161 — Construction—"Obtaining or attempting to obtain"—Meaning—Includes threat by public servant — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d).

The words 'obtaining' or 'attempting to obtain' in S. 161, Indian Penal Code, can certainly include threat. The illegal gratification may be obtained by threat, and if that is so done, even then it would come under S. 161 of the Penal Code. The mere fact that the complaint said that the accused by putting the complainant in fear of injury and of threat to implicate him in a criminal case obtained the illegal gratification does not take the offence outside the scope of S. 161, Indian Penal Code, or S. 5 (1) (d) of Act (2 of 1947). 1955 B L J R 183 : 1955 Cri L J 1382 : AIR 1955 Pat 453 (455) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

6. Burden of proof.

——S. 161—Burden of proof — Bribe — Question of fact—Interference in revision—The question whether the bribe had been taken or not is a question of fact and it could not be gone into revision where both the lower Courts have found in favour of the prosecution on this question of fact. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3570.

——S. 161 — Motive — Presumption — Extent of — Effect on burden of proof on accused — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947). S. 4 (1)).

It is one of the essential ingredients of the offence under S. 161, Penal Code, to be established by the prosecution that gratification was accepted or agreed to be accepted or attempted to be obtained as a motive or reward for performing an official act. By S. 4 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, in a trial of a public servant for an offence under S. 161, when it is proved that the public servant has accepted or agreed to accept any gratification or any valuable thing, it is required that the Court shall raise a presumption that he has accepted or agreed to accept the same as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do an official act. By enacting S. 4 (1) the Legislature has not only dispensed with the proof of that ingredient by the prosecution, but has imposed upon the person accused, when it is proved that he has accepted or obtained or agreed to accept or attempted to obtain gratification other than legal remuneration the budren of proving that it was not as a motive or reward that the gratification was obtained.

As the expression 'gratification in' S. 161, Penal Code is used in the primary meaning, the prosecution is required to prove nothing besides the voluntary acceptance by a public servant of a valuable or other thing which satisfied his desires or appetite, before the presamption under S. 4 may arise.

The presumption however is not one which is required to be rebutted by evidence establishing the defence of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. If the person accused show a reasonable preponderance of probability enouh to support a verdict in a civil action, that the gratification was not as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do an official act, the burden may be deemed to be discharged. 61 Bom L R 837 : 1959 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1959 Bom 543 (547, 548) (Prs 15, 16) (DB).

——Ss. 161 and 165 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 — Burden of proof on the prosecution — Standard of proof required — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3, 101 to 103.

Ordinarily, the prosecution would be liable to prove the motive or reward under S. 161, or absence or inadequacy of consideration under S. 165, because such notice or reward or such absence of inadequacy of consideration is part of the very offence under Ss. 161 and 165. But now by reason of S. 4 of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, that presumption will be made against the accused the moment the prosecution proves that the accused accepted or agreed to accept or obtained or attempted to obtain any gratification or valuable thing. This does not mean that the burden of proof on the prosecution to establish the acceptance or the agreement to accept or the obtaining or the agreement to obtain the gratification or the valuable thing is at all displaced by this section. The burden still remains on the prosecution. This proof must be in accordance with the standard of proof laid down by S. 3, Evidence Act. Any other standard of proof by percentage or plausibility cannot be accepted. 52 Cri L J 1116 : AIR 1951 Cal 524 (DB).

——S. 161 — — Burden of proof — Mere fact that defence version is not proved beyond reasonable doubt is not sufficient to convict the accused. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 204.

——S. 161 — Burden of proof — S. 4. Prevention of Corruption Act— Presumption when arises —Shifting of onus to accused.

In order to bring home the charge of bribery against a public servant it is essential to prove that there is (1) acceptance of or attempt to obtain a gratification and (2) as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do any official act etc. The first essential is to be proved by the prosecution. Once that is proved the presumption under S. 4 of the Prevention of Corruption Act arises. It would then be for the accused to prove that he did not receive gratification as a motive or reward for exercising any official favour or disfavour. The accused can discharge the burden on him by evidence which shows the probability of his claim. 1957 Cri L J 541: AIR 1957 Raj 138 (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1960 S C 548].

7. Motive or reward.

● ——S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1) — Indication that public servant was to be approached by accused — No presumption under section can be made. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). 1959 Cri L J 1127 : AIR 1959 S C 847.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 S C 195.]

● ——Ss. 161, 165 and 409 — Proof of offence — Existence of property in excess of official remuneration—Presumption — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5).

Where a person is charged with criminal misconduct and it is seen that he is in possession of property or income which could not have been amassed or earned by the official remuneration which he had obtained, the Court is entitled to come to the conclusion that the amassing of such wealth was due to bribery or corruption and the person is guilty of an offence of criminal misconduct. Such a presumption cannot be drawn in the case of a prosecution under Ss. 161, 165 and 409 of the Penal Code. Om Parkash Gupta v. State of U. P., 1957 Cri L J 575: 1957 S C A 337 : 1957 S C J 289 : 1957 Mad L J (Cr) 237 : 1957 M P C 433 : 1957 All W R (H C) 401 : 1957 B L J R 502 : 1957 All L J 585 : 1957 S C C 214 : 1957 S C R 423 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 645 : ILR (1957) 2 All 468 : AIR 1957 S C 458 (461) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

● ——S. 161—With what motive or as reward for what act, bribe was paid, should be considered.

The essence of an offence under S. 161 of the Penal Code is the obtaining or acceptance, by a public servant, of a gratification other than legal remuneration as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do an official act or for showing or forbearing to show any favour or disfavour to any person or for rendering any service or disservice to him. The first question that requires consideration is, with what motive or as reward for what act was the sum paid as illegal gratification by the complainant and accepted by the accused.

No doubt a public officer has no right to demand any bribe; but when he is hauled up before a criminal Court to answer a charge of having taken illegal gratification, the question whether any motive for payment or acceptance of bribe at all existed is certainly a relevant and a material fact, for consideration. Madan Mohan Singh v. State of U. P., 1954 Cri L J 1656 : AIR 1954 S C 637 (641, 642) (Pt D) (Prs 10, 13).

——S. 161—Motive — Proof of — Necessity.

Under S. 161 of the Penal Code it is necessary to prove that the public servant accepted money as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do any of the things mentioned in the section. So where the mere acceptance of money alone by a patwari is proved and there is no proof of the motive or the reason for it, he cannot be convicted under S. 161, Penal Code. 1950 A L J 703 : 1952 Cri L J 615 : AIR 1952 All 312 (313) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4—Presumption — Motive or reward —Court must presume that accused under circumstances accepted money as motive or reward. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4. 1955 Cri L J 1585 : AIR 1955 Him Pra 51.

——Ss. 161, 116 — "As a motive or reward" — Abetment.

Even though the public servant may not have been in a position to do the official act in question, the accused is guilty of the offence punishable under S. 161, read with S. 116, as soon as he offered gratification to him as a motive or reward for doing it. Case law referred. 1952 Cri L J 107 : AIR 1952 Him Pra 1.

——Ss. 161 and 511 — Scope—Accused charged and tried for bribery — Conviction for attempting to commit bribery — Legality—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 238 (2-A).

Where a charge against the accused under S. 161, Penal Code, is in terms about the actual acceptance of the gratification as motive for forbearing from executing the warrant of arrest, and tearing it away he canot be convicted for the offence of attempting to obtain the gratification, where the Court is dealing with a long and rambling story and happenings in the course of a fortnight all over different localities, so that, when the accused called upon to answer a charge based on one incident he may not be aware of the legal implications of the other incidents—may not, at all events, be considering their importance. Charged with the actual receipt of the gratification, he is at pains to repudiate it and is not giving equal attention, or any attention, to what is supposed to have happened several days or a week earlier. 1961 M P C 778 : 1961 M P L J 721.

8. "Forbearing to do any official act".

——S. 161—Essentials to bring a case under S. 161.

All that is necessary is that the bribe taker was acting in his official capacity and not in a purely private capacity unconnected with his official functions and that he made a representation that he was in a position to do or forbear from doing the alleged official act or that it was within his power or within his official functions to show the alleged favour or disfavour. 53 Bom L R 699, Rel. on.; AIR 1948 P C 156; AIR 1948 P C 128, Expl. and Disting. (1965) 6 Guj L R 958.

9. Official act.

——S. 161 — Acceptance of money as motive or reward for act which is not official — No offence under S. 161. AIR 1952 All 667 (668) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——S. 161—The Official act need not be an act which public servant is obliged to do—Accused a police patil receiving gratification for issuing solvency certificate is guilty of offence under S. 161. (1951) 53 Bom L R 699, Foll. (1956) 58 Bom L R 355.

——S. 161—Offence under—Essentials—Illegal gratification — Acceptance of money must be in exercise of official acts.

The gist of the offence under S. 161 is the nature of the act and if the act complained of is not part of the official duty or conduct of the person, then it does not become an official act and any payment made for such act will not amont to an offence. AIR 1952 Ori 73, Rel. on. (1956) 9 Sau L R 39.

10. "In the exercise of his official functions".

——S. 161—Applicability—Offer of bribe to public servant—Public servant fully performing his duty regarding the case before offer—Showing any favour or rendering any service to accused not possible—Whether offence is committed by offer of bribe. Mahadev Dhanappa v. State of Bombay. (1953) S C J 229 : 1953 S C A 685 : (1953) 1 M L J 615 : 1953 Cri L J 902 : 55 Bom L R 513 : 55 Punj L R 307 : AIR 1953 S C 179 (181) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——S. 161 and 21 — 'Public servant' — ,Medical Officer—Private practice allowed — Acceptance of money from injured person—Offence.

Where the allegation against the accused was that he as a public servant and Medical Officer in charge of a Government Hospital accepted Rs. 100 from an injured person as illegal gratification for showing one of his injuries as grievous in the injury report and it was in evidence that the accused had the right of private practice.

Held, that the fact that the accused was the Medical Officer-in-charge of the hospital and thus a public servant within the meaning of the Penal Code, did not necessarily mean that when he accepted Rs. 100 from the complainant, he did as a motive or reward for doing or forebearing to do any official act or for showing or forbearing to show in the exercise of his official function favour or disfavour to any person. When the right of private practice was given to the accused he, when giving his report was not acting in the discharge of his official duty and consequently he could not be convicted under S. 161. 1956 All W R (H C) 330 : 1956 All L J 466 : 1956 Cri L J 1276 : AIR 1956 All 673 (675) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 161 and 116—Bribe offered to public servant —Public servant not in position to do act, or show favour or render service.

In the case of a person who offers a bribe the mens rea consists in his intention to give a bribe in order that it may induce the public servant to do or not to do something which he would otherwise not do or do. This state of mind of the person, who offers a gratification, has obviously nothing to do with the question whether the public servant, to whom the gratification is offered, is or is not in a position to do or not to do the act, for doing or for not doing which the amount is offered to him. If, therefore, the intention or object with which money is offered to a public servant is to induce him to perform an official act or show favour in the exercise of his official functions or render any service with any public servant, the offence punishable under S. 161 read with S. 116 would be complete, and it is immaterial whether the public servant is or is not actually in a position to do the act or show favour or render service, for doing showing or rendering which the bribe is offered to him. (1941) 23 Lah 402, Rel. on. (1904) 1 A L J 207; (1928) 51 All 467 : I L R 1947 Nag 611 and 52 Bom L R 699, Ref. to. (1952) 21 Bom Cr C 310 : 54 Bom L R 153 : 1952 Cr L J 1572 : ILR (1952) Bom 900: AIR 1952 Bom 435 (435) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——S. 161—Applicability — Public servant receiving bribe for doing official act—Act not within his power to perform — Public servant, if still guilty.

The section does not require that the public servant must himself have the power or must himself be in a position to perform the act or show favour or disfavour, for doing or showing which the bribe has been paid to him. From the last explanation to the section it is clear that it is not necessary in order to constitute an offence under S. 161 that the act for doing which the bribe is given should actually be performed. It is sufficient if a representation is made that it has been or that it will be performed and a public servant, who obtains a bribe by making such representation, will be guilty of the offence punishable under this section, even if he had or has no intention to perform and has not performed or does not actually perform that act. A representation by a person that he has done or that he will do an act impliedly includes a representation that it was or is within his power to do that act. (1904) 1 A L J 207; 51 All 467; AIR 1947 All 444; 23 Lah 402 and AIR 1947 Nag 611, Foll. 53 Bom L R 699 : 21 Bom Cr C 199 : 1952 Cri L J 925 : I L R (1952) Bom 169 : AIR 1952 Bom 58 (61) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Ss. 161, 116—Offence under S. 161 — Essentials of — Fact whether public servant concerned is functus officio if negatives offence.

The fact that the public servant is functus officio when money is offered to him as a bribe would not itself and as a matter of law be sufficient to negative the offence under S. 161. However such fact may have in any particular case an important bearing on the question whether the gratification offered or accepted was intended to be or was believed or held out to be an official act. AIR 1921 Cal 344 and A I R 1929 Mad 756, Dissent. Case law Ref.

The gist of the offence clearly is not that there was at the time an official act to be procured capable of being performed by the taker of the bribe or by another public servant with whom he is intended to exercise his influence but that the extra legal gratification is obtained as a motive or reward for doing official acts, that is for doing what may be or is believed or held out to be official conduct. The stress in the section is not so much on the performance of the official act itself, or on its being capable of performance but on the nature of the act as being official. This is meant to exclude from its purview acts which were totally unconnected with any official conduct and which may be attributable purely to the private capacity of the bribe taker or of the other public servant. The emphasis on the gratification offered being a motive or reward for official conduct (inclusive of that which is believed or held out to be so.) Further the connection between the money and the act sought to be procured as being by way of motive or reward for procuring such act must be clearly established either by direct or circumstantial evidence. Illustration C to S. 161 clearly shows that the inducing of the belief by the taker of the bribe would be quite enough to bring the case within the purview of S. 161 so long as the achievement contemplated is an act of official character if the bribe is a motive or reward for the same. Similarly, the belief in the giver of the bribe would be enough to bring the case under S. 161/116.

Held, on the evidence that the motive of the accused in offering bribe was not established beyond doubt and, therefore, he was not guilty under S. 161/116. Penal Code. 18 Cut L T 19 : 1952 Cri L J 367 : A I R 1952 Orissa 73 (74, 75) (Prs 5, 7, 9) (DB).

——Ss. 161 and 165-A—Applicability—Bribe offered to Head Constable—Head Constable unable to act—Conviction—[Punjab Weights and Measures Act (12 of 1941), Ss. 1 and 37].

Section 161 does not require that the public servant must in fact be in a position to do the official act, favour or service at the time. Therefore even if a Head Constable is not in a position to take action under Ss. 18 and 37 of the Punjab Weights and Measures Act that would not affect the guilt of the accused convicted under S. 165-A. 56 Punj L R 298 : 1954 Cri L J 1503 : A I R 1954 Punj 228 (230) (Pt B) (Prs 20, 21).

——S. 161—Scope— State of mind of person offering gratification—Relevancy.

In a case under S. 161 of the Code, the state of mind of the person who offers 'gratification' has nothing to do with the question whether the public servant to whom illegal gratification is offered is or is not in a position to do or not to do the act or doing or for not doing which the amount is offered to him. 56 Punj L R 298 : 1954 Cri L J 1503 : A I R 1954 Punj 228 (230) (Pt C) (Pr 25).

——Ss. 161, 165-A — Scope.— Offer of bribe after order is passed.

It is not correct to say that if a public servant accepts or is offered bribe after he has passed a particular order no offence of accepting illegal gratification or offering illegal gratification is established. It is however necessary that it should be proved that the offer was made to the public servant for the purpose of getting an official act done by him. AIR 1921 Cal 344 ; A I R 1929 Mad 756 ; A I R 1935 Pesh 26, Dissented from. 1955 Cr L J 992 : 1956 Raj LW 173: I L R (1955) 5 Raj 497 : A I R 1955 Raj 108 (111) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

——Ss. 161, 165-A — Applicabiltty — Public servant powerless to assist accused.

Even if the public servant had no power to assist the accused, the question is not what the public servant could have done but the question is what the accused wanted him to do. Where the accused wanted that the public servant in his official capacity should assist him and for that he made an offer to pay him some cash the accused was clearly guilty of an offence under S. 165-A. AIR 1941 Lah 276 ; AIR 1952 Bom 58, Rel. on. 1955 Cr L J 992 : 1956 Raj L W 173 : ILR (1955) 5 Raj 497 : AIR 1955 Raj 108 (112) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——S. 161—Applicability—Public servant not on duty —If can be convicted.

An accused though not on duty at the time can be convicted under S. 161 when he is found to show favour that he could in the discharge of his official duties. 8 Sau L R 306 : 1955 Cr L J 1633 : A I R 1955 Sau 117 (119) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 161—Applicability.

Businessman paying illegal gratification to Municipal clerk in consideration of his influence with the Municipal Board to obtain favourable decision for the businessman — Businessman held guilty of offence under S. 161 read with S. 116 —It was not necessary that municipal servant should have been in a position to influence Municipal Board when illegal gratification was paid. See Penal Code (1860), S. 116. A I R 1955 N U C (Sau) 4690 (DB).

——S. 161—Applicability — Public servant need not have power to perform act of favour.

Section 161 does not require that the public servant himself must have the power or must himself be in a position to perform the act, to show favour or distavour or to render service or disservice for doing, showing or rendering which the bribe has been paid to him. AIR 1952 Bom 435, Rel. on. 6 Sau L R 216 : 1954 Cr L J 688 : AIR 1954 Sau 62 (63) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

11. Rendering or attempting to render service to person with public servant.

■ ——S. 161 — Applicability — Taking money in order to get job for another person somewhere — Offence.

The mere fact that a person takes money in order to get a job for another person somewhere would not by itself, necessarily be an offence under S. 161 unless all the ingredients of that section are made out. Thus where the charge under S. 161 states that the accused being a public servant,accepted a sum of money from a certain person 'as illegal gratification' as a motive for securing a job for him in the Railway Running Shed the third ingredient of the offence under S. 161 is not charged against the accused for it does not disclose who was the public servant whom the accused would have approached for rendering or attempting to render service to the other person in securing a job for him. State of Ajmer (now Rajasthan) v. Shivjilal. 1959 All Cr R 303 : 37 Mys L J 878 : 1959 Mad W N (SC) 72 : 1959 S C J 911 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 589 : 1959 Cr L J 1127 : 1959 All W R (HC) 376 : (1960) 1 Lab L J 239 : (1961)1 S C A 288 : (1959) Supp 2 S C R 739 : A I R 1959 S C 847 (850) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 S C 195.]

■ ——S. 161, Explanation—Motive.

To constitute an offence under S. 161 it is enough if the public servant who receives the money takes it by holding out that he will render assistance to the giver "with any other public servant" and the giver gives the money under that belief. Mahesh Prasad v. State of U. P., 1955 Cri L J 249 : 1955 B L J R 98 : 1955 All W R (HC) 245 : 1955 Mad W N 240 : 1955 All L J 87 : 1955 S C A 65 : 1955 S C J 153 : (1955) 1 M L J (SC) 83 : (1955) Andh W R (SC) 83 : 1955 Nag L J 375 : (1955) 1 S C R 965 : AIR 1955 S C 70 (71) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (SC).

——S. 161—Evidence and proof.

As far as offence under S. 161, I. P. C. is concerned it must be established that the appellant told the agent that he would render service by approaching, a particular public servant, which is one of the essential ingredients of the offence. It is to the effect that a connection between payment and the performance of the official duty must be established, for proof of guilt under S. 165, Penal Code. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1961 (2) Cri L J 778 : AIR 1961 Mad 482.

——S. 161—Charge silent as to rendering of any service — Effect — Acquittal — (Cr. P. Code (1898), Ss. 221, 223)).

Where one of the main ingredients of S. 161, namely, rendering or attempting to render any service with any public servant is not referred to in the charge under S. 161, is not spoken to by the witnesses and is not mentioned in the complaint, the accused is entitled to acquittal. AIR 1959 S C 847, Foll. 1959 Mad W N 597 : 72 Mad L W 764 : 1960 All W R (Sup) 1 : 1960 Cri L J 363 : (1960) 1 M L J 339 : 1960 All Cr R 41 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 248 : AIR 1960 Mad 141 (142) (Pr 5).

12. Punishment.

■ ——S. 161—Constitution of India, Art. 136—Appeal by special leave—Sentence for offence under S. 161, Penal Code—Practice of Supreme Court.

In a trial for offence under S. 161, Penal Code, the Supreme Court would ordinarily not interfere with the quantum of punishment given by the Courts below, particularly in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 136 of Constitution of India. For a public servant to be guilty of corruption is a very serious matter and the Courts would not took upon it with undue leniency. See Constitution of India, Art. 136. 1960 Cri L J 1380 : AIR 1960 S C 961.

■ ——S. 161—Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d) — Trap laid for detection of offence—Effect on sentence.

There is no warrant for the view that the offences committed in the course of traps are less grave and call for lenient or nominal sentences. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d). 1956 Cri L J 837 : AIR 1956 S C 476.

——Ss. 161 and 116 — Sentence—Offence of offering bribe must be severely punished. 1954 Cri L J 459 : 1953 All W R (HC) 606 : 1953 All L J 660 . AIR 1954 All 223 (224) (Pt E) (Pr 1).

——S. 161—Sentence.

Held, that it could not be said that a severe punishment was not called for as the accused had been trapped into the commission of the offence. But considering that the accused had been dismissed and had forfeited his right to pension and bearing in mind his long record of service, the Court would reduce the fine to Rs. 50 and maintain the sentence of imprisonment till the rising of the Court. 1955 Cri L J 1585 ; AIR 1955 Him Pra 51 (54) (Pt C) (Pr 15).

——Ss. 161, 116—Bribe-giver—Punishment.

As between the taker and giver of the bribe the latter is by far the worse of the two. And suppression of the crime is called for with a stronger hand. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 116. 1952 Cri L J 107 : AIR 1952 Him Pra 1.

——S. 161—Sentence—Accused very low and subordinate officer—Sentence reduced to 1 year R. I. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 4861.

——S. 161—Offences mentioned in S. 5 (1) of Prevention of Corruption Act are same as that in S 161, Penal Code — Separate sentences under S. 5 (2), of Prevention of Corruption Act and S. 161, Penal Code are not legal See Prevention of Corruption Act, (1947), S. 5 (1). 1960 Cri L J 92 : AIR 1960 Mad 27.

——S. 161 — Mysore Prevention of Corruption Act (1948), S. 5 (1) (d) — Sentence — Facts constituting offence under both — Similar sentences of imprisonment and fine under each — Sentences to run concurrently—Propriety.

Where the sentences awarded against the accused are two years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 1000 for the offence under S. 161, Penal Code, and a similar sentence for the offence under S 5 (1) (d) of Prevention of Corruption Act, the direction that these are to run concurrently cannot relieve the accused of the liability for payment of the fine in each case. But when the act constituting the offence and facts relating to it are the same for the purpose of conviction under both the sections, a double sentence of fine is not proper.

Held, on facts that as regards the sentence of imprisonment though in view of the consideration that corruption was a grave and growing evil to be nipped in the bud and when a case was made out against a person holding a responsible position in service, the sentence should be deterrent, the consequences of the conviction on his career at the late stage of his life could not be overlooked. (Period of rigorous imprisonment was limited for each offence to six months, sentences to run concurrently. Sentence of fine of Rs. 1000 with respect to offence under S. 161, Penal Code, alone was maintained,) 1952 Cri L J 919 : 32 Mys L J 1 : ILR (1952) Mys 151 : A I R 1952 Mys 42 (47) (Pt E) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 161, 107, 116—Abetment—Sentence.

If an offer of bribe is made on the invitation of a public servant such offer would still be "intentional aid" which is one of the ingredients of abetment under S. 107. There seems to be no justification for treating the abettor leniently; such an offender should be granted a substantive punishment. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 107. 1952 Cri L J 941 : A I R 1952 Orissa 180 (DB).

——S. 161—Sentence — Clerk taking bribe of Rs. 5—Sentence of three months reduced to period already undergone. A I R 1955 N U C (Pat) 1030.

——S. 161—Sentence—Considerations.

A corrupt official is a menace to the society and, far from helping in the proper functioning of the Government and implementing of the laws, brings the Government and the society at large into disrepute. It is through the agency of the public servants that the policy of the Legislature as well as of the Government is implemented. It is through the public servants that crimes are detected and offenders are brought to book. It is through strictly honest and incorruptible public servants that the welfare of the society can be ensured. If such public servants are open to corruption and coerce the public into paying them illegal gratification the whole structure of the society would be upset and the policy of the Government and of the Legislature, howsoever beneficial it may be, would gravely suffer. A public servant therefore once he is found to be guilty of accepting or obtaining illegal gratification, deserves no soft corner or indulgence from the Courts of law. 1958 Raj L W 596.

——Ss. 161 and 116 — Sentence.

Offences of bribery or abetment of bribery rarely come to light and where such an offence is proved beyond all reasonable doubt, the perpetrators thereof must be visited with deterrent punishment. An assessee who offers bribe to an Income-tax Officer to induce him to tax him leniently is not entitled to any lenient consideration. 1958 Raj L W 561 : 1957 Cri L J 96 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 111 : AIR 1957 Raj 1 (5) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——S. 161 — Sentence—Naib Tahsildar taking bribe of Rs. 200 — Sentence of Rs 1000 held inadequate — Loss of service and other benefits held no consideration — Substantial sentence of imprisonment should be awarded. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1192.

——S. 161 — Sentence — Same act constituting offence under S. 161, Indian Penal Code, and S. 5 (2), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1949 — Separate sentence under each section — Validity.

Under S. 26 of the Saurashtra Acts (Interpretation) Act, 1952, which is on the same lines as S. 26 of the General Clauses Act, the offender is not to be punished twice for the same offence. Separate sentences for the conviction under S 161 of the Code, and S 5 (2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, are therefore, illegal since there is only one act, which constitutes an offence under two enactments — See General Clauses Act (1897), S. 26. 1954 Cri L J 1466 : AIR 1954 Sau 121 (DB).

——S. 161 — Sentence — Fine of Rs. 200 for taking illegal gratification of Rs. 300 is ridiculous—See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (2). 1954 Cri L J 688 : AIR 1954 Sau 62 (DB).

—S. 161 — Bribery case — Delay in investigation and filing charge-sheet — Effect — Delay on part of Police deprecated — Sentence reduced — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 173. 1960 Cri L J 404 : AIR 1960 Tripura 8.

13. Abetment.

● —S. 161 — Accused serving in the very office where appointment is to be made and accepting money for such appointment — Charge against accused in such case need not refer to other public servant with whom service would be rendered.

Where the charge against the accused is under that part of S. 161, which refers to accepting of gratification for rendering any service or disservice to a person with any public servant, the charge should specify the other public servant who is to be approached for rendering service or disservice. At the same time even if the other public servant is not specified in the charge, the trial would not be bad. Where the other public servant is not specified in the charge that would only mean that there is defect in the charge and such a defect would be curable under S. 537 of the Criminal P. C., unless such error or omission or irregularity or misdirection has in fact occasioned a failure of justice. Where, besides the omission to indicate the other public servant in the charge there is nothing in the complaint, in the charge-sheet submitted by the police and in the evidence to show who was the other public servant with whom service or disservice would be rendered by the accused one of the main ingredient of S. 161 is not proved. Where, however, a person is a public servant in the very office where the appointment of the person giving bribe is to be made and takes money in order to get the appointment made there is no further question of the charge or evidence indicating who was the other public servant with whom the service would be rendered. It is not necessary to show whether there was any other public servant who was to be approached where the public servant taking the money is himself in the very office by which the appointment would be made. In such a case the person would be taking money for himself or for any other person in his office in order to do any official act or get it done. It is enough if it is shown that money was paid to a public servant in a particular department by which an order would be made and if it was taken for doing any official act in that department : AIR 1959 S C 847, Disting. 1964 Mad W N 12 : (1964) 4 S C R 299 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 432 : 1964 S C D 228 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1964) 2 S C J 215 : 66 Bom L R 244 : (1963) 2 S C W R 464 : AIR 1964 S C 492 (494, 495) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6).

—S. 161 — Applicability and scope — Wrong conviction under S. 165, Indian Penal Code, for offence committed in 1948—Appellate Court's power to alter finding—Conviction under S. 161 read with S. 169, Indian Penal Code — Legality.

Where the alleged offence of offering bribe has been committed in the year 1948, the accused cannot be convicted under S. 165-A. However the accused can be convicted on the same facts under S. 161 read with S. 109. If it is otherwise permissible, it would be open to the High Court in exercise of its appellate jurisdiction under S. 423, Criminal P. C., to alter the finding as to the accused's liability from one under S. 165-A to that under S. 161/109, Indian Penal Code — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423 (1) (b). 1957 Cri L J 695 : AIR 1957 All 388.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 S C 409.]

—Ss. 161 and 116 — Receiving bribe on behalf of public servant—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 238, 237, 423 and 439.

If a police constable receives bribe on behalf of a Sub-Inspector the constable is not guilty under S. 161 but is guilty under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code—See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 116. 51 Cri L J 1073 : AIR 1950 All 412.

—Ss. 161 165 (A) and 116—Person offering bribe can only be prosecuted under S. 165-A and not under S. 161 read with S. 116 — (Interpretation of Statutes — Repeal of earlier by later) — See Penal Code (1860), S. 165-A. 1956 Cri L J 249 : A I R 1956 Manipur 9.

—Ss. 161 and 116—Abetment — Person accepting bribe acting as agent of public servant — Offence.

Where a person acted only as an agent of a public servant in accepting a bribe and the amount paid was also meant for the latter and the favour that was to be done to the complainant in lieu of the remuneration was to be done by the public servant himself in the exercise of his official functions :

Held, that the person could only be charged for abetment under S. 116 and not under S. 161, Penal Code. ('51) 3 Pepsu L R 652.

—Ss. 161 and 165-A — Essentials of offences — Mere offer to pay money.

The mere fact of the accused asking the Magistrate to take something from him and make an order in his favour was sufficient to constitute an offence of attempt to pay bribe to the Magistrate. It was not necessary that the accused should have placed the cash which he wanted to pay to the Magistrate before the latter. It was enough that the accused had money in his pocket and after requesting the Magistrate to take something from him for making a favourable order, he put his hand in his pocket to take out his money bag which was not empty and contained a sum. AIR 1925 Pat 48 ; AIR 1927 Mad 1011 and 53 M L J 723, Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 992 : 1956 Raj L W 173 : ILR (1955) 5 Raj 497 : AIR 1955 Raj 108 (111) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

—Ss. 161 and 165-A — Accused paying illegal gratification to Food Inspector for giving certificates in respect of ration cards — Accused charged under S. 165-A with having abeted Food Inspector in commission of offence under S. 161 even though the said offence under S. 161 was not committed—Held, that question whether ration cards were true or false had nothing to do with the case—See Penal Code (1860), S. 165-A. 1961 (1) Cri L J 437 : AIR 1961 Tripura 8.

14. Evidence.

(A) Evidence of trap witness.

—Magistrate as trap witness.

—Evidence of Police Officer laying trap.

—Laying of trap—Desirability.

(B) Evidence of bribe giver.

(C) Recovery of currency notes and marked coins from accused.

(D) Presumption under S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act.

(E) Accused as defence witness.

14. Evidence.

● —S. 161 — Evidence — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 133)—When could not be impeached as that of partisan witnesses.

Where the witnesses came on the scene after the whole affair was practically over and a stage had been reached when it was necessary to compare the numbers of the notes which had been recovered from the bedroom of the accused with the numbers of the notes which had been handed over to the person who gave the bribe when the raid was being organised and it was as that stage that they figured in the transaction their evidence certainly could not be impeached as that of partisan witnesses. Shiu Bahadur Singh v. State of Vindh Pradesh. 1954 S C J 362 : 1954 Cri L J 910 : 1954 S C A 1316 : 1954 S C R 1098 : A I R 1954 S C 322 (327) (Pt H) (Pr 12).

——Ss. 161, 116 — Criminal Procedure Code (1898), Ss. 162, 172 — Prosecution for offence under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code—Prosecution story altogether unnatural and illogical—Copies of statements of witnesses recorded by police during investigation not supplied even though requested by accused —Recovery of currency notes not mentioned in general Diary—Accused given benefit of doubt and acquitted. 51 Cri L J 1301 : AIR 1950 Ajmer 44 (45) (Pr 3).

——S. 161—Trap arranged to detect bribery—Different kinds oi traps explained. 1958 Cri L J 586 : AIR 1958 All 334 (DB).

——Ss. 161, 34—Common intention to obtain bribe—Evidence.

Common intention within the meaning of S. 34 implies a pre-arranged plan, and to convict the accused of an offence applying this section, it should be proved that the criminal act was done in concert pursuant to the prearranged plan. It was difficult, if not impossible, to procure direct evidence to prove the intention of an individual and in most cases intention had to be inferred from his act or conduct or other relevant circumstances of the case. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 585: AIR 1956 Bom 287 (DB).

——Ss. 161, 34 — Evidence — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 6, 14).

Where the two accused were being prosecuted under S. 161 read with S. 34, Penal Code, for receiving illegal gratification on 19-11-1954, if the prosecution contended that on 21st October both the accused together went to the society when accused 2 made a demand for money on behalf of both of them, if they further contended that on the 24th October both the accused went again to the Society premises for the same purpose and if, according to the prosecutian, on 13-11-1954 both the accused repeated their visit to the Society premises for the same purpose. it could not be said that the evidence which the prosecution led in respect of the incidents of 21st October 24th October and 13th November was inadmissible. It would be admissible on the point of common intention. 58 Bom L R 90 : 1956 Cri L J 585 : ILR (1956) Bom 343 : AIR 1956 Bom 287 (298) (Pt I) (Pr 21) (DB).

——S. 161—Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 —It is unnatural to expect that the accused would demand a bribe in the presence of a person about whom he was not sure. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4. 1956 Cri L J 227 : A I R 1956 Madh Bha 51.

——S, 161—Evidence of previous acts af taking bribes—Relevancy.

It would not be correct to say that the evidence relating to the previous incidents either formed the foundation for the subsequent incident a question or would be relevant for showing that the taking of the bribe in question had developed through various stages. Nor would it be correct to take the view that the evidence in regard to the previous bribes is in the nature of introductory evidence forming a background to the later incident which alone is the subject-matter of the charge. Evidence in regard to previous incident not mentioned in the charge, has the danger of creating prejudice against the accused, while it is no proof of the particular offence which is the subject-matter of the charge. A I R 1957 S C 458, Foll. 38 Mys L J 265 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 222 : ILR (1960) Mys 26 : 1960 Cri L J 934 : A I R 1960 Mys 111 (116) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence — It is not necessary that there should be the evidence of independent eye-witnesses to the taking of the bribe. It is sufficient even though it is merely circumstantial evidence of connection of the person taking bribe with the crime. AIR 1958 S C 500, Rel. on. 38 Mys L J 265 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 222: ILR (1960) Mys 526: 1960 Cri L J 934 : AIR 1960 Mys 111 (130) (Pt J) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 161—Prosecution witnesses deposing to events prior to the arrest of accused for accepting bribe—Evidence cannot be rejected on the ground that it consisted of statements made in the course of investigation. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 162. 1965 (2) Cri L J 846 : (1964) 66 Pun L R 877.

——S. 161—Evidence — Suspicion against accused—Benefit of doubt should be given—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101-103). AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1192.

——S. 161—Burden of proof—Prosecution alleging specific agreement to take bribe on a particular date —It must prove whole case — Falsity of defence cannot discharge its burden — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 103). AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4361 (DB).

14 (A). Evidence of trap witness.

——S. 161—Proof—Evidence of police witnesses—Corroboration—Necessity and extent of.

It does not seem to be the law that if the money given as bribe is provided by a particular police officer then the evidence of all the witnesses becomes evidence of accomplices and must be looked at with suspicion. As regards corroboration of accomplice witnesses it is not necessary that there should be independent corroboration of every material circumstance. There should be some additional evidence rendering it more probable. The corroboration need not be direct evidence, See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1966 Cri L J 1380 : AIR 1960 S C 961.

——S. 161—Proof—Persons participating in trap—Evidence of—Weight of—Corroboration.

It is difficult to lay down what evidence should be or could be regarded as corroboration. Its nature and extent will always vary with the facts and circumstances of each case and no hard and fast rule can be laid down. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1957 All W R (H C) 167.

——S. 161—Motive for acceptance of money — Evidence of person participaling in trap—Value of motive —When inferred—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 133).

A person who lends himself to be a tool in the hands of the police in a trap may evidently be regarded as a partisan witness and to that extent his evidence requires corroboration. But if from the record it appears that the payment of the amount by such person could not on any other reasonable hypothesis be in satisfaction of some liability of his to the accused, an inference would inevitably arise that the amount was paid to the accused by way of bribe. 61 Bom L R 837 : 1959 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1959 Bom 543 (546) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 161 — Evidence — Complainant's evidence — Corroboration—Necessity.

In a bribery case under S. 161, Penal Code, started against the accused as a result of trap set up against him at the instance of the complainant, the complainant himself is a partisan witness and it is not safe to rely upon his uncorroborated evidence. ILR (1959) Bom 243 : 60 Bom L R 811 : 1959 Cri L J 34 : AIR 1959 Bom 30 (31) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1960 S C 548.]

——S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 5—Credibility of witness—Partisan witness — Panch taking part in laying trap in bribery cases.

It cannot be said that the evidence of every panch witness who takes part in the laying of a trap in cases of bribery can be regarded as evidence of partisan witness. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1956 Cri L J 725 : AIR 1956 Bom 426 (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence—Decoy witness—Evidence of person giving information to police for trapping accused—Value of — Corroboration—Comparison with accomplice evidence—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 133).

Where the accused (public servants) compelled a society, though A, a member of the managing committee of the Society to pay a bribe to them on the threat of adverse report and the accused are trapped by the police with the help of A who gives information to the police, and who gives marked currency notes to the accused, A is not an accomplice. He was a partisan witness. His evidence would, therefore, not be tainted evidence, but it would be interested evidence which would require independent corroboration before acceptance.

It is not tainted evidence in the sense that it is not evidence of a person who had tarnished his hands by the commission of an offence. Not being tainted evidence, it would not suffer from a disability of being unworthy of acceptance without independent corroboration. But being interested evidence, caution requires that there should be corroboration from an independent source before its acceptance. To convict an accused on the tainted evidence of an accomplice is not illegal, but it is imprudent. To convict an accused upon the partisan evidence of a person at whose instance a trap is laid by the police is neither illegal nor imprudent, but inadvisable. The degree of corroboration, however, in the case of tainted evidence of an accomplice would be higher than that in the case of a partisan witness. There can be no rigid rule as to what degree of corroboration would be necessary for partisan evidence before it could be accepted. The degree of corroboration requisite in each case would depend on its own facts. 1964 S C J 362, Rel. on. 58 Bom L R 90 : 1956 Cr L J 585 : ILR (1956) Bom 343 : AIR 1956 Bom 287 (293) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence — Panch witness—Evidentiary value—Corroboration—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 133) —(Cr. P. C. (1898), Ss. 103, 165).

Merely because the police take the panchas with themselves before the raid the panchas do not become members of the raiding party and cannot be looked upon as partisan witnesses. They are independent witnesses and their evidence is good evidence and requires no corroboration before acceptance. The police take the panchas with themselves so that they should watch what happens. The law of the land requires that certain things should be done by the police in the presence of independent, respectable persons so that the presence of the said persons may put the particular transaction beyond the pale of suspicion. In these circumstances, to construe the conduct of independent and respectable people, who accompany the police at the asking of the police to serve as panches, as being the conduct of partisan persons would be grossly unfair to these people. 58 Bom L R 90 : 1956 Cr L J 585: ILR (1956) Bom 343 : AIR 1956 Bom 287 (294) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——S. 161—Proof—Trap witness — Whether accomplice or partisan witness — Corroboration — When necessary.

A person who is not a willing party to giving of bribe and who is only actuated by the motive of trapping another cannot be regarded as an accomplice, but the evidence of such a witness is that of a partisan witness who was out to entrap another.

If after scrutinizing the evidence of an interested witness, the Court finds it safe to accept such evidence, then independent corroboration is not necessary. The evidence of a partisan witness, which is unsatisfactory, cannot, however, be relied upon for implicating an accused person without independent corroboration. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. (1961) 1 Cr L J 50 : AIR 1961 Guj 1 (DB).

——S 161 — Applicability — Person paying bribe under compulsion and with a view to assist detection of crime—Liability of—If abettor or accomplice.

A person who pays bribe to the accused, not voluntarily but as a result of demand from the accused, and merely with a view to render necessary assistance in the detection of the crime cannot be said to be an accomplice in the commission of the offence under S. 161 because he has not the mens rea that he is paying the amount to secure a favour from the accused. It cannot be said that he aided or abeted the offence of illegal gratification by the accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1957 Cri L J 1127 : AIR 1957 Kerala 134 (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence—Decoy witness—There should be independent corroboration of his statement. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (2). AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3044.

——S. 161—Trap case—Evidence—Corroboration — Distinction between legitimate and illegitimate trap —Evidence Act (1872), S. 133.

There are two kinds of traps a legitimate trap where the offence has already been born and is in its course, and an illegitimate trap, where the offence has not yet been born and a temptation is offered to see whether an offence would be committed, succumbing to it, or not. Thus, where the bribe has already been demanded from a man, and the man goes out offering to bring the money, but goes to the police and the Magistrate and brings them to witnesss the payment, it will be a legitimate trap, wholly laudable and admirable, and adopted in every civilized country without the least criticism by and honest man.

But where a man has not demanded a bribe and he is only suspected to be in the habit of taking bribes, and he is tempted with a bribe, just to see whether he would accept it or not and to trap him, if he accepts it, it will be an illegitimate trap and, unless authorised by an Act of Parliament it will be an offence on the part of the persons taking part in the trap who will all be "accomplices" whose evidence will have to be corroborated by untainted evidence to a smaller or larger extent as the case may be before a conviction can be had under a rule of Court which has ripened almost into a rule of law. But, in the case of a legitimate trap, the officers taking part in the trap, and the witnesses to the trap would in no sense be "accomplices", and their evidence will not require under the law to be corroborated as a condition precedent for conviction though the usual rule of prudence will require the evidence to be scrutinised carefully and accepted as true before a conviction can be had. 1917 M W N 831; AIR 1918 Mad 738 and 1947 All E R 572, Ref. 1952 Mad W N Cr 45 : 1952 Mad W N 220 : 1952-2 Mad L J 11 : 1952 Cri L J 1245 : AIR 1952 Mad 561 (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 133 — Spy witnesses are not accomplices — Their evidence however requires corroboration. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. A I R 1952 Mys 42 (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence—Trap witness—Corroboration is necessary—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 144 and 133). AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 3978.

——S. 161 — Proof — Suspicion — Presumption of innocence—Explanation of accused.

A charge of bribery is one which can easily be made, and often lightly made, and however difficult it may be to establish by direct evidence the commission of the offence of bribery, it would not relieve the prosecution of the burden of establishing it beyond all reasonable doubt. If after everything that can legitimately be considered has been given its due weight, room still exists for taking the view that however strong the suspicion raised against the accused, every reasonable possibility of innocence has not been excluded, he is entitled to acquittal. ILR (1952) Cut 364 : 1952 Cri L J 1393 : A I R 1952 Orissa 267 (270) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 161—Proof—Intention—Trap witness—Use of marked currency notes.

Mere offer of money or illegal gratification to a public servant would not amount to an offence of abetment of bribery unless that offer is made 'as a reward for showing that person some favour in the exercise of the official functions of the public servant'. This is to say, there must be the necessary criminal intention on the part of the offerer. In the case of a trap witness engaged for the purpose of decoying a public official by offering him marked currency notes this essential criminal intention is wanting. ILR (1952) Cut 364 : 1952 Cri L J 1393 : AIR 1952 Orissa 267 (272, 275, 276, 277) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 19, 22, 23) (DB).

——S. 161 — Evidence — Tainted evidence of decoy witnesses—Necessity of independent corroboration—Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

There should be some independent evidence, either direct or circumstantial to prove the guilt. AIR 1951 Orissa 281 (283) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 133 — Accomplice and decoy witness — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 337).

A distinction has to be drawn between an accomplice and a decoy witness, the former being a person who joins another with the intention of aiding the commission of an offence and the latter who is instrumental in provoking the commission of the offence with the object of discovering the offence and detecting the offender. An accomplice is an associate in the crime. Mere aiding in the detection of the crime by becoming an instrument of detection without any intention to commit the crime and without any intention to make gain out of the perpetration of the crime cannot make the person so aiding an associate in crime. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1953 Cri L J 986 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 82 (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence — Uncorroborated evidence of decoy witness — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 133) — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 337).

In cases of illegal gratification the uncorroborated evidence of a decoy witness can form the basis of a valid conviction provided it can warrant the safe and unhesitating conclusion that what it divulges is true, convincing and credible. The rule of caution which has become a recognised rule of law that it is unsafe to convict a person on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice does not equally apply where the witness is simply a decoy witness. 38 Cal 96, Foll. 1953 Cri L J 986 : I L R (1952) Patiala 512 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 82 (84) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 161—Evidence—Decoy witness—Evidence of —Need for corroboration.

Every case of bribery in which decoys are used must be decided on its own peculiar facts, and it is not necessary that there should be independent corroboration of the decoy witness that the money was received by the accused person for an illegal purpose. Informers, that is, persons who have joined, or even provoked, the crime as police spies have not been regarded as accomplices and the rule requiring the corroboration of accomplices does not apply to this class of accomplices. 5 (A I) Cr D 485 : 1951 All W R (Supp) 87 : 52 Cri L J 944 : AIR 1951 Punj 424 (425) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

Magistrate as trap witness.

——S. 161—Evidence.

The Magistrates should not be employed by the police as witnesses of police traps. The independence of the judiciary is a priceless treasure to be cherished and safe-guarded at all costs against predatory activities of this character and it is of essence that public confidence in the independence of the judiciary should not be undermined by any such tactics adopted by the executive authorities. A I R 1936 P C 252 (2), Rel. on.; A I R 1951 Cal 524, Approved. Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V. P. (1954) S C R 1098 : (1954) S C J 362 : 1954 Cri L J 910 : 1954 S C A 1316 : A I R 1954 S C 322 (335) (Pt F) (Pr 28).

——S. 161—Evidence—Trap by S. D M. — S. D. M. signing notes to be offered as bribe—Money not supplied by S. D. M. or by police — S. D. M. present at time of payment — Evidence of S. D. M. held could not be discarded. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3570.

——S. 161—Evidence — Use of Magistrate for police trap—Effect on their evidence.

There can be no doubt that it is highly improper to make use of magistrates as witnesses in laying police traps for the detection of the offences of taking illegal gratification.

But, however profound their disapprobation be with regard to this practice, it is difficult for the Courts to shut their eyes to the materials which might appear before them in particular cases. Courts cannot decide cases except on the basis of a careful weighing of such evidence as is placed before them. AIR 1954 Madh B 101, Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 246 : A I R 1955 All 75 (77, 78) (Prs 9, 10, 11).

——S. 161—Evidence—Trap laid by Magistrate without reference to police — Statement of Magistrate, is admissible. (Evidence Act (1872), S. 133). A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 3679.

——S. 161 — Practice — Magistrate accompanying raiding parties.

The advisability of Magistrate being deputed to accompany raiding parties conducted by the police is questioned and disapproved. A I R 1951 Cal 524, Approved. Madh B L J 1954 (H C R) 474 : 1954 Cri L J 966 : A I R 1954 Madh B 101 (110) (Pt G) (Pr 81).

——S. 161—Practice—Practice of sending Magistrates under disguise to witness traps laid by police regarding acceptance of bribe and the like disapproved. A I R 1955 N U C (Mad) 3258 (DB).

——S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5—Testimony of executive Magistrate participating in a trap in bribery case — It cannot be ignored since separation of judicial magistrates from executive magistrates—Observations in A I R 1954 S C 322 do not apply to executive magistrates. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5. 1955 Cri L J 1387 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 156.

Evidence of Police Officer laying trap.

——S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 133 — Police officer laying trap and receiving gratification — No intention of taking bribe but to bring to book person offering gratification—Police Officer is not accomplice — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 337). See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. ('52) 54 Bom L R 153 : 1952 Cri L J 1572 : 21 Bom Cri Cas 310 : ILR (1952) Bom 900 : A I R 1952 Bom 435 (DB).

Laying of trap—Desirability.

——S. 191 —Acceptance of bribe—Offence—(Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5).

Whatever the criminal tendencies of a man may be, he has a right to expect that he will not be deliberately tempted beyond the powers of his frail endurance and provoked into breaking the law; and more particularly by those who are the guardians and keepers of the law. However regrettable the necessity of employing agents provocateurs may be it is one thing to tempt a suspected offender to over action when he is doing all he can to commit a crime and has every intention of carrying through his nefarious purpose from start to finish, and quite another to egg him on to do that which it has been finally and firmly decided shall not be done.

Held, that this was not a case of laying a trap in the usual way, for a man who was demanding a bribe but of deliberately tempting a man to his own undoing after his suggestion about breaking the law had been finally and conclusively rejected with considerable emphasis and decision: AIR 1954 S C 322, Rel. on. Ramjanam Singh v. State of Bihar, 1956 Cri L J 1254 : AIR 1956 S C 643 (651) (Pt C) (Pr 37).

● —S. 161—Evidence.

It may be that the detection corruption may sometimes call for the laying of traps, but there is no justification for the police authorities to bring about the taking of a bribe by supplying the bribe money to the bribe giver where he has neither got it nor has the capacity to find it for himself. It is the duty of the police authorities to prevent crimes being committed. It is no part of their business to provide the instruments of the offence. Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V. P., 1954 S C R 1098 : 1954 S C J 362 : 1954 Cr L J 910 : 1954 S C A 1316 : AIR 1954 S C 322 (334) (Pt E) (Pr 27).

—S. 161—Conviction —Delay in trapping accused Effect.

The fact that nothing is done for a long time (here, two months) between the alleged offer to brite and the actual trapping of the accused does not suggest that the story is false. The police authorities have perforce to wait until the accused make a further move in the matter. It is not reasonable to suggest that the police authorities should go out of their way and actively invite bribes in order to trap the accused. Mahadeo Dhanappa v. State of Bombay. (1953) S C J 229 : 1953 S C A 685 : (1953) 1 M L J 615 : 1953 Cri L J 902 : 55 Bom L R 513 : 55 Punj L R 307 : AIR 1953 S C 179 (181) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

—S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 133 — Decoy witness — Practice of supplying decoy witness with Government money for bringing about the completion of offence deprecated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1956 Cri L J 227 : AIR 1956 Madh Bha 51.

—S. 161—Procedure — Laying of trap—Propriety.

An offence had already been born where demand had already been made by the accused for the payment of bribe to him for hushing up the matter of the alleged abduction of one Lakhi against one Nandlal.

Held, that the trap laid was a legitimate trap. AIR 1954 S C 321, Foll. 1958 Raj L W 596.

14 (B). Evidence of bribe giver.

● —S. 161—Evidence.

Witnesses not willing party to giving of bribe to accused but only actuated with the motive of trapping the accused—Their evidence cannot be treated as the evidence of accomplices — Their evidence is nevertheless the evidence of partisan witnesses who were out to entrap the accused—The evidence cannot be relied upon without independent corroboration. But the evidence of witnesses who came on the scene after the raid was practically over, cannot be impeached as that of partisan witnesses. Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V. P., 1954 S C J 362 : 1954 Cr L J 910 : 1954 S C A 1316 : 1954 S C R 1098 : AIR 1954 S C 322 (327) (Pt G) (Pr 11).

—S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 133, 114, Illus. (b) — Accomplice, who is — Bribery cases — Charge of conspiracy and bribery against railway servants in allotting wagons and booking goods — Forwarding agents and commission agents paying bribes to secure advantage over others who did not pay — Whether accomplices — Evidence of such witnesses—Value of—Necessity, nature and extent of corroboration—(Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5).

If the Forwarding Agents are treated as accomplices, their evidence must receive independent corroboration in respect of the each of the accused persons from evidence which is not tainted before prudence will allow it to be accepted — In such circumstances the evidence of one Forwarding Agent will not be sufficient to corroborate the evidence of others, nor will complaints made by them earlier to the authorities be corroboration of the nature required. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1956 Cri L J 687 : AIR 1956 All 353.

—S. 161—Evidence—Bribe — giver as trap witness —Independent corroboration, if necessary.

All that is insisted on as a matter of prudence is that before acting upon such evidence the Court must be satisfied that such evidence has been corroborated in material particulars by other items of independent evidence. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1957 Cri L J 1127 : AIR 1957 Kerala 134 (DB).

—Ss. 161 and 109 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 133—Agent for prosecution — Evidence of — Value of — Necessity of corroboration.

The evidence of a spy or a decoy witness though admissible in evidence and may be acted upon the value to be attached to that evidence will depend upon the character of the person employed; where the spy or the police officer goes beyond the limit of collecting evidence and instigates or solicits the commission of a crime, he would be guilty of abetment. The Courts should, therefore, as a matter of prudence, require corroboration of their evidence like that of an accomplice. See Evidence Act (1872) S. 133. AIR 1952 Orissa 267 (DB).

—S. 161—Bribe giver whether accomplice — Evidence Act (1872), Ss 114, 133.

In the case of a bribe giver, he is an accomplice only when he gives it with the intention of gaining some undue official favour, but not one who gives it in order to aid the detection of crime. He has not the necessary mens rea. AIR 1951 Orissa 297 (299) (Pt A) (Pr 12) (DB).

● —S. 161—Evidence of decoy witness—Corroboration.

In a bribery case under S. 161, Penal Code, the evidence of the bribe giver or decoy witness is no better than that of an accomplice and requires corroboration that the money was received by the accused person for an illegal purpose. In any case, the evidence of such a witness should be carefully examined before it can form the basis of a conviction. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Illus. (b). AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1129.

—S. 101—Evidence—Accomplice's evidence—Rule of law and practice.

A person, who is compelled by force of circumstances to give a bribe to a public servant, stands on a higher footing as regards his credibility than a person giving bribe voluntarily, and slight corroboration would be sufficient to render his evidence credible. 3 Sau L R 196, Rel. on. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 113. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 955 (DB).

——S. 161 — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 114, 133 — Accomplice — Amount of corroboration — Bribery cases.

A distinction must be drawn between a person who is threatened and becomes an accomplice and a person who volunturily takes part in the crime. In the former case the corroboration necessary to establish the credit of a person would be very much less than in the latter case. In bribery cases this factor becomes of great importance by the very nature of the crime itself. When a person gives a bribe to a public servant with a view to induce him to abstain him from doing his duty and to the detriment of a third party, the bribe giver is equilly guilty with the bribe taker. His evidence would certainly require greater amount of corrobaration than in the case of person who is compelled by the force of circumstances to give bribe to a public servant to induce him to do just his plain duty which he refuses to do otherwise. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. 52 Cri L J 471 : AIR 1951 Sau 25 (DB).

14 (C). Recovery of currency notes and marked coins from accused.

● —S. 161—Evidence.

Held, that the circumstance that on the numbers of the notes being tallied and his explanation in that behalf being asked for by the police authorities the accused was confused and could furnish no explanation in regard thereto also supported the conclusion that the accused was guilty of the offence under S. 161. Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V. P. (1954) S C R 1098 : 1954 S C J 362 : 1954 Cr L J 910 : 1954 S C A 1316 : AIR 1954 S C 322 (334) (Pt J) (Pr 26).

●——S. 161 — Offence — Proof — Recovery of money — Effect of — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (2)).

The recovery of the currency notes from the person of the accused is an important link in proving the case in the prosecution for offence under S. 161, Penal Code and S. 5 (2), Prevention of Corruption Act and if the recovery becomes doubtful no conviction can be maintained. 1957 All L J 934 : 1957 All W R (H C) 874 : 1958 Cri L J 586 : AIR 1958 All 334 (335) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 161 — In a criminal trial the responsibility to prove a particular offence (e.g. offence under S. 161 Penal Code) is always on the prosecution, and the mere recovery of money does not exclude the possibility that the accused was an innocent recipient of the same. See Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 103. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2726.

——S. 161 — Burden of proof —Investigating agency using technique of anthracene powder for detection of bribery — What prosecution has to prove.

The prosecution must establish that the tests for detection of anthracene powder had been properly made and had yielded positive results. It is essential for the prosecution to prove that there was light blue emission of light under influence of ultra violet light It is not sufficient for the prosecution to prove that under the ultra violet light the witnesses saw stains of white powder or even that under the ultra violet light they saw some sparkling or some shimmering. (1961) 1 Cri L J 50 : AIR 1961 Guj 1 (DB).

——S. 161 — Bribery —Proof of acceptance of currency notes by accused — Use of Anthracene powder and ultra violet rays by police for detecting crime — Duty ot prosecution and nature of expert evidence required. (1960) 1 Guj H C R 42 : (1960) 1 Guj L R 138 : 1960 Cri L J 1207 : AIR 1960 Guj 7 (8) (Pr 1) (DB).

——S. 161 — Evidence — Trap laid — Evidence of recovery of initialled currency notes — Credibility not challenged — Non-production of currency notes held amounted to negligence but not fatal — Production held at most would have amounted to corroborative evidence. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 4861.

——S. 161 — Trap cases — Caution to be taken — Simply saying that currency notes were found somewhere in house of public servant cannot attribute possession to him — Courts have to be satisfied that notes were put there by him or at his instance. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 1 (d). 1962 M P L J (Notes) 211.

——S. 161 — Evidence — The mere handing over the notes will not adequately prove that they were paid as bribe — Prosecution either fails or succeeds according as it is proved that the notes were paid as bribe or not — Evidence Act (1872), S. 3 AIR 1951 Orissa 297 (298) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

14 (D). Presumption under S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act.

● ——S. 161 — Accused shown to have accepted money which was not legal remuneration—Presumption can be raised — Rebuttal must be by explanation which must be true and not merely plausible — Presumption under S. 4 (1) and Evidence Act S. 114, distinction between — Whether presumption is rebutted is question of fact—Supreme Court will not interfere. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). AIR 1964 S C 575.

● ——S. 161 read with Prevention of Corruption Act (2 of 1947), Ss. 5 (1) (d) and 5 (2)—Conviction and sentence under — Whether the presumption raised against the appellant could be held to have been rebutted by the explanation given by him inasmuch as it was both reasonable and probable — Evidence Act (1 of 1872), S. 114 — Presumption — Nature of.

The plain meaning of S. 4 (1) of the Prevention of Corruption Act (2 of 1947) undoubtedly requires the presumption to be raised whenever it is shown that the valuable thing has been received by the accused without anything more. In such a case the presumption arises not under S. 114 of the Evidence Act (1 of 1872), but under S. 4 (1) of the Prevention of Corruption Act. Where as under S. 114 of the Evidence Act it is open to the Court to draw or not to draw presumption as to the existence of one fact from the proof of another fact and it is not obligatory upon the Court to draw such presumption, under S. 4 (1) however, if a certain fact is proved. that is, where any gratification (other than legal remuneration) or any valuable thing is proved to have been received by an accused person the Court is required to draw a presumption that the person received that thing as a motive or reward such as is mentioned in S. 161 of the Penal Code (XLV of 1860). Therefore the Court has no choice in the matter: once it is established that the accused person has received a sum of money which was not due to him as a legal remuneration. The burden resting on the accused person in such a case wonld not be as light as it is where a presumption is raised under S. 114 of the Evidence Act, and cannot be held to be discharged merely by reason of the fact that the explanation offered by the accused is reasonable and probable. The words 'unless the contrary is proved' occurring in S. 4 (1) of the Prevention of Corruption Act make it clear that the presumption has to be rebutted by proof and not by a bare explanation which is merely plausible. Dhanvantrai Balwantrai Desai v. State of Maharashtra. (1964) 1 S C J 133 : 1963 Mad W N 246 : (1963) 1 Mys L J 66 : 1964 M L J (Cri) 65 : (1963) 1 S C W R 178 : 1963 All W R (H C) 358 : 65 Bom L R 332 :

1963 All Cri R 185 : (1963) 2 Lab L J 415 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 437 : (1963) Supp 1 S C R 485 : AIR 1964 S C 575 (578 to 580) (Prs 10, 12, 13).

● —Ss. 161 and 165—Presumption under — When can be raised—Money paid need not be by way of bribe. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). 1960 Cr L J 729 : AIR 1960 S C 548.

—S. 161—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 423 — Statutory presumption of motive of payment ignored — Appeal from acquittal — Acquittal cannot stand—(Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 425. 1959 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1959 Bom 543 (DB).

—S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4—Presumption of motive — Rebuttal of — 'Proof to the contrary'—Extent of burden of proof on accused — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101-103, 3)—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367).

It is clear from S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act that the moment it is proved that the accused has received a sum of money from the complainant it shall be presumed unless contrary is proved that he accepted it as a motive or reward such as one mentioned in S. 161, I. P. Code. This presumption being there the burden lies heavily upon the accused to prove to the contrary. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4. 1956 Cri L J 233 (2) : AIR 1956 Madh Bha 86 (DB).

—S. 161—Evidence—Acceptance of illegal gratification proved — Presumption under S. 4 Prevention of Corruption Act arises—(Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4). AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 4861.

—S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (4) Presumption under — Effect on onus—Duty of prosecution to prove guilt of accused—Benefit of doubt — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105).

Where it is proved that a gratification has been accepted the presumption at once arises under S. 4 of the Prevention of Corruption Act which shifts the onus upon the accused to prove that such acceptance was not for the purpose mentioned in S. 161, Penal Code. The presumption of law thus created by the section is, not unlike other presumptions of law, rebuttable. (e. g., the one contained in S. 105 of the Evidence Act).

In spite of the above the burden in criminal case, resting upon the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused, in a way never shifts and there is no burden upon the accused to prove his innocence beyond reasonable doubt. Where, therefore, after everything that can legitimately be considered has been given due weight, reasonable doubt is created as to his guilt, he ought to be acquitted. AIR 1958 S C 61; 1935 A C 462; (1943) 1 K B D 607; AIR 1944 F C 66, Rel. on.

Held, after taking into account the presumption under S. 4 of the Prevention of Corruption Act and also after giving every piece of evidence both for and against the accused due weight, a reasonable doubt was still created as regards the guilt of the accused. The benefit of this doubt must go to him. 1959 Jab L J 757.

—S. 161 — Accused in his capacity as supervisor recommending to his superior for retention of services of certain persons discharged from service —Accused receiving from such persons sums of money as a reward for his services — Accused is guilty under S. 161 in view of presumption arising under S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act—Prevention of Corruption Act (2 of 1947), S. 4.

Where a clerical supervisor who is believed to be able to influence his superior promises to recommend certain persons to his superior for retention of their jobs in spite of discharge notices served on them and actually recommends them in his capacity as supervisor and subsequently receives from such persons sums of money as a reward or 'mariyadas' there is an implied bargain for, and fulfilment of, an illegal gratification transaction and hence such a person is guilty under S. 161, Penal Code. The fact that the money was given to him willingly as a reward out of gratitude for recommending them would not make it any the less an illegal gratification in view of the presumption arising under S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act. 1947. The fact that the accused had himself no power to retain them in services is immaterial : AIR 1924 Mad 851 and AIR 1929 Mad 756, Disting. (1949) 2 Mad L J 443 : 62 Mad L W 712 : 1949 Mad W N 649 : 1949 All W R (Sup) 81 : 1949 All Cri Cas 150: 51 Cri L J 386 : A I R 1950 Mad 93 (94) (Prs 3, 4).

—S. 161 — Prevention of Corruprion Act (1947), S. 4 — Scope—Presumption of innocence of accused is not displaced by S. 4. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4. AIR 1952 Orissa 267 (DB).

—S. 161 — Accused receiving money from complainant not by way of legal remuneration — Presumption arising under S. 4 —Rebuttal.

Where in a prosecution under S. 161, Penal Code and S. 5 (2) read with S. 5 (1) (d), Prevention of Corruption Act, it is proved that the accused had received a sum of money from the complainant and it was nobody's case that this is a part of accused's legal remuneration, a presumption under S. 4 of the Act arises against the accused. that unless he proves to the contrary, he must be treated as having received the said money as a motive or reward within the meaning of S. 161, Penal Code such a presumption would be rebutted even if the explanation given by the accused for receiving the money is a reasonably probable one. AIR 1960 S C 548, Applied. 1962 Raj L W. 421.

—S. 161—(Obiter) : Merely because money passes from the hand of the complainant to that of the accused, there does not arise in law a presumption that such money was given as a bribe. The onus is on the prosecution under S. 4 of the Prevention of Corruption Act as under S. 161 of Penal Code. The moment, however, the prosecution proves that the accused accepted or agreed to accept any gratification, the presumption will be raised against him that he received it as a motive or reward for exercising any official favour or disfavour and if the accused wants to suggest to the contrary it would be for him to establish that such was not the case. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947) (as Amended in 1952, S. 4). AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1192.

14 (E). Accused as defence witness.

● —S. 161—An accused person is held competent to be a witness on his behalf. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 7. 1957 Cri L J 575 : AIR 1957 S C 458.

—S. 161 — In view of S. 1 (2), Criminal P. C. the Criminal Law Amendment Act repeals, alters or amends none of the provisions of the Prevention of Corruption Act either expressly or by implication. Section 7, is still binding in regard to trials under S. 161, Penal Code and the violation of this mandatory provision is not a minor illegality but vitiates the trial. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 7. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3590.

—S. 161—Court is not bound to inform the accused who is being prosecuted under S. 161, that he has a right to examine himself in defence and his conviction cannot be quashed merely on account of the Court's refusal or failure to inform him of the right. (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6). A I R 1954 All 223 (224) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

15. Sanction.

● ——Ss. 161 and 197—Prosecution of public servant under—Sanction is not necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197. 54 Cal W N 143 : 63 Mad L W 1 : (1950) 1 Mad L J 100 : (1950) 16 Cut L T 1 : 1950 All W R 308 : 1950 All L J 318 : 52 Bom L R 458 : 29 Pat 1 : A I R 1950 P C 26.

● ——S. 161—Prosecution requiring sanction — Trial without sanction is null and void being by Court not competent—Subsequent trial with proper sanction is not barred. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 403. 1957 Cri L J 597 : A I R 1957 S C 494.

● ——S. 161 — Sanction — Authority competent to remove.

Article 311 (1) of the Constitution and R. 1705 (c) of the Railway Establishment Code cannot be read as implying that the removal must be by the same authority who made the appointment or by his direct superior. It is enough that the removing authority is of the same rank or grade. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6 (c). 1955 Cri L J 249 : A I R 1955 S C 70.

● ——S. 161 — Sanction — Facts on which proposed prosecution is based must be proved to have been put before the sanctioning authority. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6 (1) (c). 1954 Cri L J 1656: A I R 1954 S C 637.

● ——S. 161 — Letter of sanction signed by Personal Assistant of Sanctioning authority—Personal Assistant examined as witness proving another document which purported to be draft of letter of which sanctioning letter was copy—Draft signed by sanctioning authority, below the word "approved" — Sanction held was in fact given, though the form was not proper. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6 (1) (c). 1954 Cri L J 1656 : A I R 1954 S C 637.

● ——S. 161 — Prosecution of public servant on charges of conspiracy and of bribery—Sanction.

Sanction under S. 197, Criminal P. C. (1898), is not necessary for instituting proceedings against a public servant on charges of conspiracy and bribery. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197. 1954 Cri L J 1161 : A I R 1954 S C 455.

——S. 161—Scope—Accused tried for offences under S. 5 (2), Prevention of Corruption Act and under S. 161, Penal Code — Sanction to prosecute given under S. 161, Penal Code only — Trial under S. 5 (2), Prevention of Corruption Act is not vitiated—Criminal P. C., S. 230. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. 1958 Cri L J 827 : A I R 1958 All 481 (DB).

——S. 161 — There is no particular form in which sanction should be requisitioned and should be given. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6 (1) (c). A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3570.

——S. 161 — Sanction — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6).

Valid sanction to prosecute by Superintendent, Watch and Ward—Magistrate wrongly thinking that sanction to investigate given by District Magistrate, to be sanction to prosecute — Mistake of Magistrate held did not matter as long as there was valid sanction. 1954 Cri L J 459 : 1953 All W R (H C) 606 : 1953 All L J 660 : A I R 1954 All 223 (224) (Pt B) (Pr 1).

——S. 161 — Sanction — Necessity — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6).

Whether the sanction had been given or not is to be seen before taking cognizance of the offence and not after it. If there is no sanction no cognizance of the offence can be taken at all. The sanction is required only for the purpose of taking cognizance of the offence ; once the cognizance is taken its utility is exhausted and it is no longer needed, either during the enquiry into the guilt of the accused or for the purpose of convicting him. Whether an accused is guilty or not does not depend upon whether his prosecution was sanctioned or not ; the existence of sanction is not an ingredient of any offence. Nor is it the law that an accused cannot be convicted unless the sanction by the appropriate authority of his prosecution has been proved. After the Court has taken cognizance of the offence, all that the prosecution has to prove, in order to secure conviction of the accused is that he committed the crime, and there is no provision obliging it to prove any other fact such as the sanctioning of his prosecution. Only the Court has to be satisfied of the existence of the sanction. The accused is not the person required to be satisfied by it; as a matter of fact the law does not contemplate his presence even when the prosecution satisfied the Court. 1954 Cri L J 459 : 1953 All W R (H C) 606 : 1953 All L J 660 : A I R 1954 All 223 (224) (Pt C) (Pr 2).

——S. 161 — Sanction — Presumption as to official acts — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6)—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 114).

Sanction of Superintendent to prosecute produced —Court can presume that police report was placed before him and that he considered it and that it was he who signed the sanction — Presumption can be rebutted. 1954 Cri L J 459 : 1953 All W R (H C) 606 : 1953 All L J 660 : A I R 1964 All 223 (224) (Pt D) (Pr 2).

——Ss. 161 and 218—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235—Joinder of charges — Joint trial of offences under Ss. 161 and 218, Penal Code—Previous sanction under S. 6, Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, not obtained for former offence—Evidence of demand and acceptance of illegal gratification for making false entry relevant for both offences—Accused is not prejudiced by joint trial and conviction for latter offence is valid—Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235. 52 Cri L J 184 : A I R 1951 All 502.

——S. 161—Sanction—Prevention of Corruption Act (2 of 1947), S. 6 — Charge against police constable —Absence of sanction—Effect.

Under S. 6 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, before a Court can take cognizance of an offence under S. 161 of the Penal Code, against a police constable, the sanction of the authority competent to dismiss the constable is necessary. In the absence of such a sanction no Court is entitled to take cognizance of the case. ILR (1950) All 670.

——S. 161—Sanction for investigation — Validity — Demand and acceptance on different dates — Sanction obtained after demand—Investigation—Validity —Subsequent trial—Legality.

A sanction for investigation for an offence under S. 161, issued immediately after a demand has been made does not become an anticipatory sanction even if the payment is made on a different date. The words of S. 161, I. P. C. and 5-A of the Prevention of Corruption Act are wide enough to include investigation into an intended offence or offence imminently likely to take place. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5. 1962 (2) Cri L J 598 : AIR 1962 Bom 263 (DB).

——S. 161 — Essentials of sanction — Sanction held valid. See Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 197. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 897.

——S. 161—What is essential for a valid sanction for prosecution under S. 161, Penal Code and S. 5 (2), Prevention of Corruption Act, is that the nexus between the sanction and the facts constituting the offence charged must be clear from the terms of the sanction itself or must be established by extraneous evidence. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 852.

——S. 161 – Cognizance under S. 161, Penal Code or S. 5 (2) of Prevention of Corruption Act against cholera—The sanction itself or other evidence should clearly show that sanctioning authority applied its mind and gave sanction after consideration of all circumstances — Lack of proper sanction vitiates the trial. See Prevention of Corruption Act, S. 5 (2). 1963 M P L J (Notes) 255.

——S. 161 — Sanction for prosecution under — Requirements.

The sanction for prosecution under the section to be a legal one there should be evidence either from the order granting the sanction or other documentary evidence placed before the Court or even oral evidence that the facts were placed before the officer from whom sanction was sought. A I R 1951 Mad 255 (255) (Pr 3).

——S. 161 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197 (1) and (2) — Mysore Prevention of Corruption Act (1948), S. 12 — Sanction for prosecution under S. 161, Penal Code and Ss. 5 (2), 5 (1) (a), Prevention of Corruption Act — Sanction not required — Specification of Court of trial is unnecessary — Sanction does not take away ordinary jurisdiction of Court to commit accused to Sessions — Sanction is required under S. 12, Prevention of Corruption Act but no specification of Court is necessary — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S 197 (1) and (2). 1952 Cri L J 919 : AIR 1952 Mys 42 (DB).

——Ss. 161 and 165—Sanction to prosecute under — Facts on which proposed prosecution is based must be put before sanctioning authority — Condition satisfied — Sanction held was valid — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197.

In order that a sanction for prosecution to be valid it is incumbent upon the prosecution to prove by other evidence that the material facts constituting the offence were placed before the sanctioning authority.

In a trial under Ss. 161 and 165, against the public servants of the Police department, the prosecution produced a letter written by the D. S. P. to S. P. requesting that "sanction may be accorded for trial of the accused persons in the above case supervised by you" and the S. P. endorsed "prosecution sanctioned." The Superintendent of Police was the person who supervised the investigation and the D. S. P. specially referred to the case number in the letter. The D. S. P. also stated that the above case was supervised by the S. P.

Held that the Superintendent of Police, was, according to this letter, in possession of the facts of the case and the sanction given was valid. The contention that the sanction was only with reference to prosecution under S. 161 and not with reference to prosecution under S. 165 was not acceptable because in the sanction there was not specifically mentioned that sanction to prosecute under such and such section was given. Further the mention was made of sections 342, 376 etc. and 161. (1957) 23 Cut L T 31.

——S. 161—Prosecution of public servant for taking bribe — No sanction under S. 197, Cr. P. C. is required — Public servant not removable except by previous sanction of Provincial Government — Sanction for his prosecution is required under S. 6 of Prevention of Corruption Act (Criminal P. C., 1898, S. 197) — (Prevention of Corruption Act (2 of 1947), S. 6).

In respect of the prosecution of a public servant for an offence of bribe-taking under S. 161 of the Penal Code, no sanction under S. 197, Cr. P. C. is necessary. The reason is that in receiving a bribe, a public servant neither acts, nor purports to act in the discharge of his official duty. A I R 1945 P C 148, Rel. on.

But sanction under S. 6 of the Prevention of Corruption Act will be required for his prosecution, if he is not removable from office except with the previous permission of the Provincial Government.

The prosecution must place before the Court proof of the very order granting the sanction and not proof of the fact that the sanction had been granted. The sanction of the Provincial Government is an executive act of the said Government. The requirement being a statutory one, it must be given in the manner and expressed in the form authorised by the statutory provisions or regulations and no other.

By virtue of sub-section (1) of S. 59, Government of India Act 1935, the order of sanction though authenticated by the Secretary of the Government must be expressed in the name of Governor. It is only an order expressed in the form authorised by S. 59 (1) taken if need be with the definition of "Provincial Government" in the General Clauses Act, as meaning the Governor, and authenticated in the manner indicated in S. 59 (2) that constitutes, the legal proof of a valid sanction of the Provincial Government and no other. This is not a question of mere form, but one of substance, since it relates to the jurisdiction of the Court to take cognizance. It is well settled that where certain forms and formalities are prescribed as a condition precedent for jurisdiction, those requirements must be strictly complied with, before jurisdiction can be taken.

Moreover, the sanction must be under S. 6 of the Prevention of Corruption Act and not under S. 197, Cr. P. C. A sanction purporting to have been given under S. 197, Cr. P. C. is no sanction at all. The sanction under the Prevention of Corruption Act, must be given with full realisation of the responsibility that the sanction is a pre-requisite for the Court taking cognizance. 18 Cut L T 227 : I L R (1952) Cut 344 : A I R 1952 Orissa 220 (221, 222) (Prs 4, 6, 7) (DB).

——S. 161 — Sanction, absence of — Trial is illegal—Sanction must be in respect of facts constituting offence—When in face of sanction it is not clear whether facts were put before sanctioning authority this can be proved by extraneous evidence—It must be shown that sanctioning authority applied his mind to facts — Report of magistrate, note of Sub-Divisional Magistrate and sanction of District Magistrate all on one page — Sanction held valid. A I R 1955 N U C (Pat) 1030.

—S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), Ss. 5, 6—Penal Code (1860), Ss. 161, 384—Complaint disclosing offence requiring sanction — Trial for offence not requiring sanction is not valid—See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5. 1955 Cri L J 1382 : AIR 1955 Pat 453.

——Ss. 161, 165 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 3 — Permission under, to investigate — It need not be in any form or in writing — Presumption under S. 114, illus. (e), Evidence Act, may be drawn —No objection in trial court to the defective nature of permission — Objection in appeal cannot be sustained — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 114) - (Words and Phrases — Regularly performed) — See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 3. 1955 Cri L J 609 : AIR 1955 Punj 65 (DB).

——S. 161 — The sanction given by the Collector to prosecute the Police Patel whose appointment was made by the Collector was a valid sanction under

S. 6 (1) (c). Prevention of Corruption Act. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 955 (DB).

——S. 161 — Sanction to prosecute for offence under S. 161.

The sanction to prosecute the accused under S. 161, did not state the facts which constituted the offence nor did the prosecution offer any extraneous evidence to show that the facts on which the opponent had been prosecuted were placed before the sanctioning authority.

Held, that there was no valid sanction for prosecuting the accused — See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. 1953 Cri L J 1268 : A I R 1953 Sau 139 (DB).

——S. 161—It is the duty of the lawyers to take the point about the sanction at the earliest stage and invite the Judge or the Magistrate to decide it before proceeding to deal with the merits of the prosecution case. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. 1954 Cri L J 1559 : AIR 1954 Sau 132 (DB).

——S. 161 — Sanction — Sanction of Raj Pramukh — Delegation power — Power of Rajpramukh is not exhausted — See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6 (3). 1954 Cri L J 688 : AIR 1954 Sau 62 (DB).

16. Charge under the section.

■ ——Ss. 161 and 109 - Criminal P. C (1898), Ss. 225, 537—Alteration of charge under S. 165A, Penal Code to one under S. 161/109, Penal Code. in respect of abetment — No illegality—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 225. 1960 Cri L J 514 : AIR 1960 S C 409.

■ ——Ss. 161, 116 and 165A— West Bengal Cri. Law Amendment (Special Courts) Act (21 of 1949), S. 4 and Schedule (as amended by W. B. Act 12 of 1952 and W. B. Act 15 of 1953 — S. 165A, Penal Code, is not mere restatement of S. 116 of Code — Case under Ss. 161, 116, Penal Code distributed to Special Judge — S. 165-A not included in Schedule at time Judge took cognizance of case —Charge and conviction under S. 165A improper— Special Judge whether Court of competent jurisdiction — Defect of jurisdiction could not be cured by S. 529, Criminal P. C — (Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), S. 3) — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 529 (e) —AIR 1956 Cal 385, Reversed. See West Bengal Criminal Law Amendment (Special Courts) Act (21 of 1949), S. 4. 1959 Cri L J 98 : AIR 1959 S C 8.

——S. 161—Charge under — Name of authority to be influenced need not be mentioned. (Cr. P. C. (1898). S. 222). 56 Cri L J 608 : AIR 1955 Ajmer 18 (1) (18) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——S. 161 — Alteration of charge — Charge under S. 165-A, I. P. Code — Necessary facts mentioned— Charge could be changed into under S. 161 read with S. 109, I. P. Code—See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1957 Cri L J 695 : AIR 1957 All 388.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 S C 409.]

——S. 161— Offence under Prevention of Corruption Act, S. 5-A is cognizable - S. 5-A, does not limit its nature—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 4 (1) (f). 1962 (2) Cri L J 598 : AIR 1962 Bom 263 (DB).

——S. 161—Offence of accepting bribe completed— Charge for offence of attempting to obtain and obtaining illegal gratification—Whether necessary.

If a person attempts to obtain a bribe, say, of Rs. 1,000 and succeeds in obtaining it, technically he commits two offences under S. 161. But for meeting out justice to him, it is unnecessary to charge him with the offence of having made an attempt when the said offence merged into what one might call a bigger offence of the attempt having been successfully made viz., the offence of actual acceptance of the bribe. 58 Bom L R 90 : 1956 Cri L J 585 : ILR (1956) Bom 343 : A I R 1956 Bom 287 (292) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 161—Charge.

Where it is evident that the accused themselves and their advocates had thoroughly understood the charge made under S. 161 the charge cannot be said to suffer from any vagueness. 58 Bom L R 90 : 1956 Cri L J 585 : I L R (1956) Bom 343 : AIR 1956 Bom 287 (296) (Pt E) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 161—Applicability—Charge under S. 5 (1) (a), Prevention of Corruption Act, specifying nine instances of accepting illegal gratification — Proof of only one instance — Conviction under S. 161, Penal Code—Legality — Held, that as the particulars by themselves were sufficient to constitute the smaller offence punishable under S. 161, the conviction for that smaller offence was legal and was warranted by S. 238 of Criminal P. C. (1898). 1957 Cri L J 1127 : AIR 1957 Kerala 134 (DB).

——S. 161 — Charge—Prevention of Corruption Act, S. 5 (1) (a)—Charge under—Whether implies charge under S. 161, Penal Code.

The charge framed against the accused that he has committed an offence under S. 5 (1) (a) of the Prevention of Corruption Act necessarily implies that he has committed an offence punishable under S. 161, Penal Code. 1957 Cri L J 1127 : AIR 1957 Kerala 134 (DB).

——S. 161—Applicability—Offer of bribe—Offence committed in 1950 — Conviction under S. 165-A— Legality of — Alteration of conviction to one under S. 161 read with S. 116, Penal Code.

On 16-1-1950 while the Naib Tahasildar was proceeding to the Court the accused, who was a party in a case pending before the Tahasildar, offered bribe to him. The Tahasildar made a report to the police and in due course the accused was convicted of an offence punishable under S. 165-A, Penal Code by a Special Judge appointed under S. 6, Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952).

Held, (i) that in view of the provisions of Art. 20 of the Constitution, the accused could not be convicted under S. 165-A of I. P. C. which was incorporated in the Penal Code on 28th July 1952, for a bribe said to have been offered on 16-1-1950.

(ii) that the accused could not be tried by the Special Judge for an offence under S. 161 read with S. 116 of the Penal Code, the High Court could not find him guilty of that offence in the appeal. The conviction and sentence imposed on the appellant must therefore, be quashed. 1954 Cri L J 872 : AIR 1954 Madh Bha 83.

——S. 161 — Criminal P. C., S. 238—Three complete minor offences of bribe-taking committed within space of 12 months included — Only one offence proved — Acquittal under S. 5 (2) — Accused can be convicted under S. 161, I. P. C. — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5) — (Penal Code (1860), S. 161). See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 238. 1953 Cri L J 1429 : AIR 1953 Mad 785.

——S. 161 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), Ss. 5 (1) and 5 (2) — Accused granting bail to complainant without demanding tip — Tip demanded after finishing entire work of granting bail — No offence under S. 161 or S. 5 (2) read with S. 5 (1) held was committed.

The habit of demanding tips or inam after doing the work cannot possibly be encouraged but it is difficult to hold that that would constitute any offence under S. 161, Indian Penal Code or S. 5 (2), read with S. 5 (1) of the Prevention of Corruption Act. Thus, where the accused granted bail to the complainant without demanding any amount by way of reward, or bribe or gratification, before the accused finished the entire work of granting the bail and it was only afterwards that he asked for some tip which was given to him.

Held, that the action of the accused in demanding the tip from the complainant did not constitute an offence under S. 161, Penal Code or S. 5 (2) read with S. 5 (1), Prevention of Corruption Act. AIR 1954 Punj 89. Foll. 67 Pun L R 939 : 1965 All Cri R 436 : 1965 All W R (Sup) 26 : 1966 Cri L J 1796 : AIR 1966 Punj 302 (303) (Pr 6).

——S. 161—Bribery case—Delay in filing complaint —Effect.

The delay of one day in filing the complaint in a case of bribery is certainly not very material and does not in any manner show that in the interval of that one day a false case has been concocted against the accused persons. 1960 Cri L J 404 : AIR 1960 Tripura 8 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 16).

SECTION 162

■ ——S. 162 — Scope — If repealed by S. 5, Prevention of Corruption Act — Prosecution under S. 409— Sanction — Prosecution if offends provisions of Art. 14 of the Constitution.

As S. 405, Penal Code, is not repealed by S. 5 (1)(c), Prevention of Corruption Act the application of S. 409 which is an aggravated form of offence to a public servant is not barred by Art. 14 of the Constitution.

No sanction is necessary to prosecute the public servant as he does not normally act in his capacity as a public servant when committing criminal breach of trust. 1957 Cri L J 575 : AIR 1957 S C 458.

——Ss. 162, 161 and 165 —Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d) — Offence under S. 5 (1) (d) and bribery — Distinction between — "Obtains" — Includes acceptance on voluntary offer—(Words and Phrases). See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d). 1956 Cri L J 837 : AIR 1956 S C 476.

——Ss. 162 and 182 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a) —Offence under —"Public servant concerned" in S. 195 (1) (a) — Meaning of — False information against police officers — Complaint by District Magistrate is competent. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1961 (2) Cri L J 47 : AIR 1961 All 352 (DB).

——Ss. 162 and 163 — Ss. 162 or 163, Penal Code do not form part of S. 6, Criminal Law Amendment Act —Therefore, no trial under the said Act is valid for an offence under those sections of the Code. See Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), S. 6. A I R 1955 NUC (All) 3531.

SECTION 165

■ ——S. 165 — Subordination — Does not mean in respect of those very functions—Administrative subordination is sufficient—Order rejecting application for export permit — Appeal pending before Joint Chief Controller of Imports and Exports — Illegal gratification accepted by Assistant Controller of Imports—Offence covered by S. 165.

Section 165 has been so worded as to cover cases of corruption which do not come within S. 161 or S. 162 or S. 163. When with that intention the legislature has used the word 'subordinate' in S. 165 without any limitation there is no justification for reading into the word the limitation suggested by the words 'in respect of those very functions'. Such interpretation needs the addition of some words in the section, and that is clearly not permissible. By the use of the word 'subordinate' without any qualifying words, the legislature has expressed its legislative intention of making punishable such subordinates also who have no connection with the function with which the business or transaction is concerned. To limit the meaning of 'subordinate' in the section by adding the words, would be defeating that legislative intention and laying down a different legislative policy. This the Court has no power to do. The argument that 'subordinate' means something more than 'administratively subordinate' must therefore be rejected.

Thus when an appeal against the rejection of an application for exports licence is pending before the Joint Chief Controller of Imports and Exports and an illegal gratification in respect of that matter is accepted by an Assistant Controller of Imports who is under administrative subordination of that officer, an offence under S. 165, Penal Code is committed, even though the accused had no functions to discharge in connection with the appeal before the Joint Chief Controller of Imports and Exports. R. G. Jacob v. Republic of India, 1963 S C D 316 : (1963) 2 S C J 330 : (1963) 2 Andh W R (S C) 79 : (1963) 2 Mad L J (S C) 79 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 453 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 486 : (1963) 1 S C W R 62 : (1963) 3 S C R 800: 1963 Mad W N 225 : A I R 1963 S C 550 (553) (Pr 9).

■ ——S. 165 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1)—Presumption under—When can be raised—Money paid need not be by way of bribe. AIR 1957 Raj 138 and AIR 1959 Bom 30, Overruled. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). 1960 Cri L J 729 : AIR 1960 S C 548.

■ ——S. 165 — Scope — Existence of property in excess of official remuneration—Presumption.

The Court is entitled to presume that the amassing of such wealth was due to briberty or corruption and the person is guilty of an offence of criminal misconduct. Such a presumption cannot be drawn in the case of a prosecution under Ss. 161, 165 and 409, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161 1957 Cri L J 575 : AIR 1957 S C 458.

■ ——Ss. 165 and 161, 162 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d)—Offence under S. 5 (1) (d) and bribery — Distinction between "Obtains" — Includes acceptance on voluntary offer—(Words and Phrases) See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d). 1956 Cri L J 837 : AIR 1956 S C 476.

——S. 165 — Knowledge that amount was being offered as bribe.

Where in a prosecution under Ss. 165 and 165A, Penal Code, the accused, an Excise peon, contended that he neither willingly accepted the amount, paid to him by a person, against whom a case was pending in respect of illicit liquor, nor he had knowledge that the amount was being paid to him as bribe for payment to the Excise Inspector in connection with the said excise case.

Held that the circumstances of the case indicated that the accused had knowledge that the sum was being offered as bribe for payment to the Excise Inspector and he was rightly convicted. 1958 All Cri R 285 : 1958 All W R (HC) 399.

——Ss. 165 and 161—Burden of proof on the prosecution — Standard of proof required — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3, 101 to 103.

Ordinarily, the prosecution would be liable to prove the motive or reward under S. 161, Penal Code, or absence or inadquacy of consideration under S. 165, Penal Code, because such motive or reward or such absence or inadequacy of consideration is part of the very offence under S. 161 or 165, Penal Code, respectively But now by reason of S. 4, Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, that presumption will be made against the accused the moment the prosecution proves that the accused accepted or agreed to accept or obtained or attempted to obtain any gratification or valuable thing. This does not mean that the burden of proof on the prosecution to establish the acceptance or the agreement to accept or the obtaining or the agreement to obtain the gratification or the valuable thing is at all displaced by this section. That burden still remains on the prosecution. This proof must be in accordance with the standard of proof laid down by S. 3, Evidence Act. Any other standard of proof by percentage or plausibility cannot be accepted. 52 Cri L J 1116 : AIR 1951 Cal 524 (DB).

——S. 165 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4—Presumption under Rebuttal — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 104).

The only element remaining to be proved to constitute an offence under S. 165 is that the acceptance was without consideration or for a consideration which the accused knew to be inadequate. It cannot be said that it must first be proved that the acceptance of the valuable thing was as a gratification other than legal remuneration before the presumption under S. 4 can be drawn so as to throw the burden on the accused. It is not enough for the accused to offer an explanation which has not been disproved or to create some doubt in the mind of the Court. The burden cast on the accused is however less stringent than that laid on the prosecutor in proving guilt and corresponds to that which rests upon the plaintiff or defendant who is required to prove an issue in civil proceedings. 1958 Cri L J 640 : AIR 1958 Ker 136 (DB).

——S. 165 — One of the essential ingredients of the offence is that the person from whom the accused accepted or obtained, or agreed to accept or attempted to obtain, any valuable thing without consideration was known to the accused to have been or then was likely to be concerned in a proceeding or business transacted or about to be transacted by himself, or which had a connection with the official functions of himself or of a public servant to whom the accused was subordinate or from a person known to the accused to be interested in or related to the person so concerned.

The words "having any connection with the official functions of himself" qualify the words "proceeding or business and not the words from any person." AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 4889 (DB).

——S. 165 — Evidence and Proof — Bribery cases — Trap by Police to catch corrupt official — Legitimate and illegitimate traps — Trap set after suggestion of illegal gratification by official himself — Trap not illegitimate. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1961 (2) Cri L J 778 : AIR 1961 Mad 482.

——S. 165 —Bribe accepted by subordinate officer in respect of official act directly concerning his superior officer — Promise to use influence to see that act was accomplished but no promise to use influence with superior officer or with any other designated person —Still section applies.

Held, that the facts proved were sufficient to establish the ingredients under S. 165 in the strict sense of the language employed.

It was not essential that the accused must be a subordinate in respect of the matter in question in the sense that the matter must belong to that sphere of duties which was common to both the subordinate and superior officers. 1961 Mad W N 201 : 1961 Mad L J (Cri) 776 : (1961) 2 Cr L J 778 : (1961) 2 Mad L J 547 : AIR 1961 Mad 482 (433) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——S. 165 — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). The only presumption which can be drawn by virtue of S. 4 (1) is that the thing was obtained without consideration or for a consideration which the accused knew to be inadequate. Presumption that it was obtained from any person whom he knew to be interested in or related to the person so concerned is not covered by this provision. It is for the prosecution to prove by positive evidence that the accused obtained the thing from a person who is known to be related to the concerned person. (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101-104). See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 4 (1). 1956 Cri L J 1341 : A I R 1956 Orissa 201 (DB).

——S. 165—Sanction to prosecute under — Facts on which proposed prosecution is based must be put before sanctioning authority — Condition satisfied — Sanction held was valid. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. (1957) 23 Cut L T 31.

——S. 165—Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 3 —Permission under, to investigate —It need not be in any form or in writing — Presumption under S. 114, illus. (e) Evidence Act, may be drawn—No objection in trial Court to the defective nature of permission— Objection in appeal cannot be sustained — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 114)—(Words and Phrases— Regularly performed). See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 3. 1955 Cri L J 609 : AIR 1955 Punj 65 (DB).

SECTION 165-A

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 165-A.)

1. Retrospective operation.
2. Offence under.
3. Cognizance and jurisdiction.
4. Sanction.
5. Evidence.
6. Conviction and sentence.
7. Alteration of charge.

1. Retrospective operation.

——S. 165-A—Scope—If same as S. 116 — Distinction between the two.

Held, that S. 165-A, is not merely a restatement of the offence of abetment under S. 116 of the Penal Code, and therefore it cannot be said that merely because the abetment of an offence under S. 161 was specified in the schedule of the West Bengal Act of 1949, S. 165-A which did not then exist in the Penal Code must be deemed to have been specified therein. Therefore under the notification of the case distributed to the Special Court for the appellant's trial was for a non-existing offence because when the Special Judge took cognizance of the case there was no such offence as Ss. 161/116, Penal Code. AIR 1956 Cal 385, Reversed. See Public Safety—W. B. Criminal Law Amendment (Special Courts) (13 of 1952), S. 4. 1959 Cri L J 98 : AIR 1959 S C 8.

——S. 165-A — Scope — Retrospective operation — [Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952)].

Section 165-A, Penal Code which imposes a higher penalty for abetment of offences under S. 161 and S. 165, Penal Code has no application to acts committed before its enactment that is before 28th July 1952. In respect of abetment of offence under S. 161 committed prior to 28th July 1952, S. 161 read with S, 116, Penal Code, would be available even after the enactment of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1952. 56 Bom LR 199: 1954 Cri L J 952: ILR (1954) Bom 763 : AIR 1954 Bom 327 (328) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Ss. 165-A, 161 and 116—Scope —If retrospective —Offer of bribe — Offence committed in 1950— Conviction under S. 165-A—Legality of— (Constitution of India, Art. 20).

On 16th January, 1950, while the Naib Tahshildar was proceeding to the Court the accused, who was a party in a case pending before the Tahsildar, offered bribe to him. The Tahsildar made a report to the police and in due course the accused was convicted of an offence punishable under S. 165-A, Penal Code, by a Special Judge appointed under S. 6, Criminal Law Amendment Act. 1952.

Held, (i) that in view of the provisions of Art. 20 of the Constitution of India, the accused could not be convicted under S. 165-A of the Penal Code, which was incorporated in the Penal Code on 28th July, 1952, for a bribe said to have been offered on 16th January, 1950.

(ii) that as the accused could not be tried by the Special Judge for an offence under S. 161 read with S. 116 of the Penal Code, the High Court could not find him guilty of that offence in the appeal. The conviction and sentence imposed on the appellant must therefore, be quashed. 1954 Cri L J 872, Madh B L I 1954 H C R 892 : ILR (1954) Madh Bha 411 : A I R 1954 Madh B 83 (84) (Prs 3, 7).

——Ss. 165-A, 161 and 116 — Person offering bribe can only be prosecuted under S. 165-A and not under S. 161 read with S. 116—(Interpretation of Statutes—Repeal of earlier by later.)

By insertion of S. 165-A, Penal Code, the Legislature has clearly and expressly made provisions for punishment and abetment in bribery cases and such abetment has been made a substantial offence. Hence a person offering bribe can only be prosecuted under S. 165-A and not under the old provisions as laid down in S. 161 and S. 116, Penal Code, for even if two sets of provisions be deemed to be co-existing and the result of this co-existence would be destructive of the object for which the new law was passed, the earlier would be repealed by the later. 1956 Cri L J 249 : A I R 1956 Manipur 9 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——S. 165-A—Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), Ss. 6 and 7—Applicability to Manipur State.

Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952) is fully applicable to Manipur State so far as the offence under S. 165-A, Penal Code, is concerned and the provisions laid down in Ss. 6 and 7 of that Act must, therefore be followed strictly. 1956 Cri L J 249 : AIR 1956 Manipur 9.

——S. 165-A —Abetting offence under S. 161—Person abetted incapable of committing offence under S. 161 —Abettor cannot be prosecuted under S. 165-A. 1962 (1) Cri L J 67 : AIR 1962 Pat 8 (10, 11) (Prs 12, 13) (DB).

2. Offence under.

——S. 165-A—Applicability—Commissioner appointed by Civil Court to seize account books—Offering bribe to him is not an offence under S. 165-A—Commissioner is not a public servant. AIR 1959 All 707, Reversed. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. 1961 (1) Cr L J 322 : AIR 1961 S C 218.

——S. 165-A — Expression of a desire to meet the doctor in connection with an autopsy he had performed on dead body of a person alleged to have been murdered—No illegal gratiffcation offered to doctor—Offence under S. 165-A not committed — Essential ingredient is lacking. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 1964 All W R (HC) 280.

——S. 165-A—Abetment of—When complete,

So soon as there is an instigation to a person to commit an offence under S. 161 the offence of abetment of the offence under S. 161 is complete within the intendment of S. 165-A quite irrespective of the fact that the person did not accept, or even consent to accept the money. :1959 All W R (HC) 27 : 1959 All Cr R 69 : 1959 Cri L J 1267 :AIR 1959 All 707 (708) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 S C 218.]

——S. 165-A—Offence—When complete.

In a case under S. 165-A, since it is the mens rea of the bribe-giver that has to be considered it should be sufficient to render him liable if his object in bribing or attempting to bribe the public servant was to induce the public servant to do an official act or show or forbear to show, in the exercise of his official functions, favour or disfavour to him. it being quite immaterial whether the public servant was not in fact in a position to do or not to do the act or show or forbear to show the favour or disfavour in question. 1959 All W R (H C) 27 : 1959 All Cr R 69 : 1959 Cri L J 1267 : AIR 1959 All 707 (710) (Pt C) (Pr 15).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 S C 218.]

——S. 165-A — Where in a prosecution under Ss. 165 and 165-A the accused an Excise peon, contended that he neither willingly accepted the amount, paid to him by a person, against whom a case was pending in respect of illicit liquor, nor he had knowledge that the amount was being paid to him as bribe for payment to the Excise Inspector in connection with the said excise case.

Held, that the circumstances of the case indicated that the accused had knowledge that the sum was being offered as bribe for payment to the Excise Inspector and he was rightly convicted. 1958 All W R (HC) 399.

——Ss. 165-A, 107. 116, 161—Gist of offence— Offer to public servant without actually producing money —Offence—Offer, what amounts to.

Section 165-A provides for the punishment of an abetment of an offence punishable under S. 161 or S. 165 whether or not that offence is committed in consequence of the abetment. The prosecution must, therefore, establish that the conduct of the accused amounts to an abetment of the offence under S. 161.

It is not necessary in order to bring home to the public servant the charge under S. 161 to prove that he has actually accepted or obtained illegal gratification. If a proposal is made to the public servant in respect of payment of illegal gratification and the proposal is accepted by the public servant, he would be guilty under S. 161 of the Indian Penal Code. If a person who offers to pay the amount makes his proposal, that constitutes an ofience under S. 165-A. If the proposal is accepted, that constitutes an offence under S. 161, Penal Code.

Illustration (a) to S. 116, Penal Code, makes it clear that the offer of the bribe would amount to an abetment under S 116 and would necessarily constitute an offence under S. 165-A. The definition of the word "instigation' contained in S. 107 leads, to the same result. Any act committed by a person which amounts to instigation as defined in S. 107 would attract the provisions of S. 165-A of the Indian Penal Code. 1955 Cr L J 181 : 56 Bom L R 1021 : AIR 1955 Bom 61 (62) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 165-A—In view of Explanation 4 to S. 108 there can be abetment of the offence punishable under S. 165-A. See Penal Code (1860). S. 108, Explanation 4. 1954 Cri L J 1503 : AIR 1954 Punj 228.

——S. 165-A—Applicability— Bribe offered to Head Constable unable to act—Conviction.

Section 161 does not require that the public servant must in fact be in a position to do the official act, favour or service at the time. Therefore, even if Head Constable is not in a position to take action under Ss. 18 and 37 of the Punjab Weights and Measures Act that would not affect the guilt of the accused convicted under S. 165-A. 1954 Cri L J 1503 : AIR 1954 Punj 228.

——S. 165-A—Essence of offence—Relevant question —State of mind of accused.

In a trial for the offence of offering a bribe to a public servant the relevant question is the state of mind of the accused, when he offers a bribe; it has nothing to do with the question whether the public servant is or is not in a position to do or not to do the act, for the doing or not doing whereof the amount is offered to him. AIR 1950 Mad 93 and AIR 1952 Bom 435 and AIR 1955 S C 70, Rel. on. 1956 Raj L W 464 : 1957 Cri L J 157 (Raj).

——S. 165-A — Applicability—Offer of bribe after order is passed.

It is not correct to say that if a public servant accepts or is offered bribe after he has passed a particular order, no offence of accepting illegal gratification is established. It is, however necessary that it should be proved that the offer was made to the public servant for the purpose of getting an official act done by him. AIR 1921 Cal 344; AIR 1929 Mad 756; AIR 1935 Pesh 26, Diss. from. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 1955 Cri L J 992 : AIR 1955 Raj 108.

——S. 165-A—Gist of offence — Mere offer to pay money was sufficient to constitute an offence of attempt to pay bribe. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 1955 Cri L J 992 : AIR 1955 Raj 108.

——S. 165-A—Applicability—Public servant powerless to assist accused.

Even if the public servant had no power to assist the accused the question is not wnat the public servant could have done but the question is what the accused wanted him to do. Where the accused wanted that the public servant in his official capacity should assist him and for that he made an offer to pay him some cash the accused was clearly guilty of an offence under S. 165-A. See Penal Code (1860), S. 161. 1955 Cri L 992 : AIR 1955 Raj 108.

——Ss. 165-A, 161—Scope — Paying illegal gratification to Food Inspector for giving certificate in respect of ration cards — Accused charged under S. 165-A with having abetted Food Inspector in commission of offence under S. 161 even though the said offence under S. 161 was not committed—Held, that question whether ration cards were true or false had nothing to do with the case. 1961 (1) Cri L J 437 : AIR 1961 Tripura 8 (11) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

3. Cognizance and jurisdiction.

——S. 165-A—Offence under — If non-cognizable — First information and investigation — Admissibility of first information — S. 3, Prevention of Corruption Act, effect of—(Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), Ss. 3, 5-A—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 154, 157).

The provisions of S. 5-A of the Prevention of Corruption Act are attracted only when the stage of investigation is reached and that too in the Presidency town of Bombay. They have no application at the stage of the first information which precedes the commencement of the investigation. It is the basis upon which the investigations under Chapter XIV of the Code of Criminal Procedure commences. The provisions of S. 5-A do not affect, and are not intended to override, the provisions about the giving of first information relating to the commission of cognizable offences. Section 5-A of the Prevention of Corruption Act cannot be pressed into service for contending that the statement of the complainant taken by Police Sub-Inspector is not admissible in evidence as first information. The stage of taking cognizance comes after the stage of investigation is over.

The provisions of S. 3, Prevention of Corruption Act, can only have one meaning and the meaning is that an offence under S. 165-A of the Penal Code has to be deemed to be a cognizable offence for the purposes of the Code of Criminal Procedure. There is nothing in the language of S. 5-A which would suggest that an offence under S. 165-A of the Penal Code is not to be treated as a cognizable offence. 59 Bom L R 875 : 1958 Cri L J 481 : I L R (1958) Bom 96 : AIR 1958 Bom 125 (131, 132) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——S. 165-A—Constitution of India, Art. 134 (1) (c) — Certificate of fitness for appeal — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 529 (e)).

Where the Judge of the Special Court in West Bengal in good faith takes cognizance of an offence under S. 165-A, Penal Code, at a time when he had no jurisdiction to do so, the question whether the case is covered by S. 529(e), Criminal P. C., is of considerable importance and the case is a fit one for granting leave to appeal under Art. 134(1)(c), Constitution of India. See Constitution of India, Art. 134(1)(c). 1956 Cri L J 994 : AIR 1956 Cal 388 (DB).

——S. 165-A—Constitution of India, Arts. 21 and 22 — Letter of Ministry of State, New Delhi to Chief Commissioner, inconsistent with Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952)—Validity — (Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), Ss. 6 and 7).

Any law or provision of law which affects the personal liberty and is inconsistent with Arts. 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India, is void to that extent. Case law referred.

In view of the provisions of Arts. 21 and 22, the Delhi official letter from the Ministry of States, New-Delhi, to the Chief Commissioner, Manipur, which is inconsistent with the provisions of the Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952) cannot be legally operative and binding and it cannot confer jurisdiction on the E. A. C. to try the case under S. 165-A, Penal Code. 1956 Cri L J 249 : AIR 1956 Manipur 9.

——S. 165-A—Where cognizance of an offence under S. 165-A, Penal Code, is taken and the trial has proceeded to termination the invalidity of the investigation, by reason of failure to obtain permission to investigate it necessary under S. 5-A, Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, will not vitiate the result, unless miscarriage of justice has been caused thereby. AIR 1955 S C 196, Rel. on. 1958 Cri L J 1053 : AIR 1958 Manipur 17.

4. Sanction.

——S. 165-A—Sanction to prosecute not necessary. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. AIR 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 1295.

——S. 165-A — Kotwar in former Madhya Pradesh was a public servant within the meaning of cl. (8) to S. 21, Penal Code. Under S. 6 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, previous sanction is necessary for prosecution under S. 165-A, Penal Code as he was a public servant. 1957 M P L J (Notes) 173.

5. Evidence.

——S. 165-A—Any person charged with an offence punishable under S. 161 or 165-A, Penal Code, or under sub-s. (2) of S. 5 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, is competent witness for the defence and may give evidence on oath in disproof of the charges made against him or any person charged together with him at the same trial; and there are also certain safeguards provided in the matter of giving such testimony. See Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 7. 1957 Cri L J 575 : AIR 1957 S C 458.

——S. 165-A—Evidence Act (1872), S. 133—Bribery cases—Evidence of person to whom bribe was offered —Corroboration—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367).

In a case under S. 165-A, Penal Code, the complainant and the person to whom bribe had been tendered, must be regarded as a witness whose evidence should be corroborated before the same can be acted upon. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1956 Cri L J 991 : AIR 1956 Cal 385 (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1959 S C 8.]

6. Conviction and sentence.

●——S. 165-A—Attempt to corrupt responsibie public servant—Sentence of 6 months' imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000 held was not severe. Mohammed Dastagir v. State of Madras. (1960) 1 Ker L R 592 : 1960 S C J 726 : 1960 Cri L J 1159 : (1960) 2 Mad L J (SC) 39 : 1960 M L J (Cr) 466 : (1960) 2 An W R (SC) 39 : 1960 All Cri R 240 : 1960 All W R (HC) 357 : (1960) 3 S C R 116 : AIR 1960 S C 756 (762) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

●——Ss. 165-A and 107—Abetment—Forms of—Case where commission of offence unnecessary—Offence of bribery—Acquittal of accused charged with—Conviction of abettor.

Whether the acquittal is right or wrong the conviction of the abettor also cannot be allowed to stand in the circumstances. AIR 1953 SC 364, Disting. See Penal Code (1860), S. 107. 1959 Cri L J 917 : AIR 1959 S C 673.

——S. 165-A—Scope — Conviction under S. 165, I. P. Code for offence committed in 1948 — Legality—Appellate Court's power to alter into one under S. 161 read with S. 109, I. P. Code. Conviction not valid — Appellate Court can alter findings — Accused may be convicted under S. 161 read with S. 109, I. P. C. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 423 (1) (b). 1957 Cri L J 695 : AIR 1957 All 388.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 SC 409.]

——Ss. 165-A, 109, 193, 214—Criminal P. C., S. 195-B—Municipal employees attesting Panchanama of seizure of "Ganja" — Attesting is not as municipal employees but as witnesses—Defence trying to win over attesting witnesses and constable who seized "Ganja"—Offence punishable under Ss. 109 and 193, I. P. C. — S. 214, I. P. C. is inapplicable—Prosecution can be on complaint by Court where case pending — Trial vitiated. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 109. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 11.

——S. 165-A—Sentence.

The accused in his rustic simplicity did not know the full consequences and implications of his act. This was clear from the fact that he asked the Magistrate to accept something publicly in open Court.

Held, that it would not be proper to treat him in the matter of punishment in the same way as is necessary in the case of those bribe-givers who deliberately want to corrupt public officials in order to gain their ends. 1955 Cri L J 992 : 1956 Raj L W 173 : ILR (1955) 5 Raj 497 : AIR 1955 Raj 108 (112) (Pt D) (Pr 15).

——S. 165-A—Sentence.

It is the gravity of the offence committed and not the nature or size of the instrument employed for committing that offence that should be the criterion for determining the sentence to be awarded to the offender. Where the accused was making a daring attempt to corrupt a public officer by inducing him to go out of his way and to wink at the land-grabbing enterprise pursued by the accused and to render illegal help to him for achieving success in such unlawful pursuits such an offence has to be viewed as a grave offence calling for a deterrent sentence. 1954 Ker L T 455 : ILR (1954) Trav-Co 856 : 1954 Cr L J 1604 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 492 (495) (Pt G) (Pr 7) (DB).

7. Alteration of charge.

●——S. 165-A—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 225, 537—Alteration of charge under S. 165A, Penal Code to one under S. 161/109, Penal Code, in respect of abetment—No illegality. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 225. 1960 Cri L J 514 : AIR 1960 S C 409.

——S. 165-A—Charge — Alteration of—Charge under S. 165-A, I. P. Code — Necessary facts mentioned — Charge could be changed into one under S. 161 read with S. 109, I. P. Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1957 Cri L J 695 : AIR 1957 All 388.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 SC 409.]

SECTION 166

——S. 166—'While acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his duty'—Act includes illegal omissions—Allegation that public servants disregarded their duties cast on them for safety of the populace—Sanction under S. 197 held necessary. See Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 197. 1962 (2) Cr L J 320 : AIR 1962 Bom 198 (DB).

——S. 166 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Bailiff using force in obtaining delivery of possession—(Constitution of India, Art. 215.)

The rules of the Court provide that the bailiff has to return to the Court for being armed with necessary powers and help. The mistake on the part of the bailiff in using force, however, without being properly armed by an order of the Court does not make his offence a culpable one for contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1956 Cri L J 734 : AIR 1956 Cal 249 (DB).

——S. 166 — Prisoners in police lock up — Circle Inspector not allowing them to take food—Offence.

Where it is admitted that when certain under trial prisoners in police lock up were about to take their food the officer in charge, whose primary responsibility it was to give them proper food, was not present and the circle inspector asked them not to take food but to wait till the arrival of the officer in charge, it cannot be said that he committed an offence under S. 166, Penal Code. By merely asking them not to touch any food until the person directly responsible for the feeding of the under trial prisoners, namely the officer in charge, arrived there, the circle Inspector was presumably taking the usual precaution so that there may not be any complaint about the quality of food, etc. and S. 166, Penal Code, has absolutely no application to this case. (1965) 31 Cut L T 695.

——S. 166—Case under—Delay in placing allegations before Magistrate.

In cases such as under Ss. 342 and 166, Penal Code the most important though by no means the only test is whether allegations against the police officer or any other public servant concerned are placed before proper authority at the very earlier opportunity. A delay in making this allegation before the magistrate or other competent authority is almost fatal to a prosecution of this nature. 1952 Cri L J 1390 : AIR 1952 Vindh Pra 57 (58) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

SECTION 167

——S. 167—Prosecution for giving false information—Protest petition pending enquiry—Opportunity to prove truth of that charge—Duty of Court to give.

Where a person who is accused of having committed an offence by reason of his having given false information demands a judicial investigation into the truth of the charge made by him, he is entitled to be given an opportunity to prove the truth of that charge. During the pendency of such judicial investigation into what should be regarded as a complaint made by accused in this case, a prosecution against him on the supposition that the charge made by him was false is unjustified. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 201. 1959 All W R (Sup) 12 : 1959 All Cr R 111 : 1959 M L J (Cri) 204 (Mys).

——S. 167—Ranbir Penal Code (1989 B. K.), S. 167 — Intention to cause harm — Patwari — Making wrong entry in revenue records—Possibility of mistake being bona fide not ruled out—Wrong entry was innocuous as there was decree of civil Court determining rights of complainants — Held, that Patwari could not be said to have intended to cause any harm. 1965 Kash L J 93 : AIR 1966 J & K 96.

——S. 167 — False document — Making of wrong entries initially not to constitute false document. See Penal Code (1860), S. 464. 1965 (1) Cri L J 213 : AIR 1965 Raj 9.

SECTION 168

——S. 168—Bombay Civil Services, Conduct, Discipline and Appeal Rules (framed under R. 48 (2))—Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal Rules), R. 21 — Trade — Meaning of — Words and Phrases.

The expression 'trade' used in S. 168 I. P. C. and R. 21, should not be construed in its technical sense and should not be confined only to mercantile operations or commercial transactions but should be given wider meaning bearing in mind the context in which it is used. So construed it would include any business carried on with a view to profit and, therefore, the business of making plans and estimates for profits as consulting sanitary engineers and contractors would be included within the expression "trade", AIR 1951 Bom 233 (239) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 19, 21, 22) (DB).

SECTION 170

——S. 170—"Particular office."

What is meant by "any particular office" is "any specified office" regardless of whether such an office exists or not. There can certainly be a particular office though it does not exist. 1953 All L J 260 : 1953 Cri L J 1279 : 1953 All W R (H C) 376 : AIR 1953 All 549 (549) (Pr 1).

● ——S. 170—Personating public servant—Four acts done while so personating — Gist of offence — One trial for all four acts — Same transaction — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235.

The act of pretending to hold a particular office as a public servant alone does not make a person punishable under S. 170 unless that person in such an assumed character does or attempts to do some act under colour of such office. The act or acts done by the person who personates a public servant merely gives a clear indication that the person has misused his position, i. e, he has done some overt act in exercise of the authority of the assumed public servant. It is thus wholly immaterial whether such a person indulges in one act only or in a series of acts. Assuming for the sake of argument that each of the four acts done by such a person technically constitutes a distinct offence, if it can be inferred from surrounding circumstances that all the activities at particular places were carried out in pursuance of one dominent idea then all the acts done by him would be acts done in the course of the same transaction. In such a case his trial for a number of distinct offences committed in the course of one and the same transaction would be permissible under S. 235, Criminal P. C. AIR 1951 All 481 (481) (Pr 3).

——S. 170—Personation.

Mere personation is insufficient to justify conviction under S. 170, Penal Code. The phrase "act under colour of such office", points to acts which could not have been done without assuming official authority or responsibility. Where the accused was not a Civil Surgeon but he issued a certificate on which he had made a rubber stamp which purported to show him a Civil Surgeon.

Held, that as under S. 288 of the old Civil Service Regulation, corresponding to S. 387 of the new Civil Service Regulations, the accused even in his capacity of a retired Assistant Civil Surgeon could issue a certificate, he could not be deemed to have done an act under colour of the office of a Civil Surgeon. ILR (1956) Hyd 436.

——S. 170 — Person travelling without ticket representing himself to be I. A. S. officer and managing to secure money for railway fare — Offence may be cheating but not covered by S. 170, Indian Penal Code. 'Act under colour of office' points to acts which could have not been done without assuming official capacity and would not connote acts of ministerial character which might be done without requiring the justification of offence in the person doing. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 224.

——Ss. 170 and 419 —Applicability —Personation of public servant—Ingredients.

Cheating by personation (S. 419) is an offence of a general character under which a person may pretend to be any one other than what he really is. But cheating by pretending to be a public servant (S. 170) is a specific offence where one pretends to be a public servant. It has all ingredients of cheating by personation under S. 419. But when the personation is that of a public servant and the pretender does some act, then the offence becomes one under S. 170. 1958 M P L J 287 : 1953 Cri L J 1039 : 1958 Jab L J 726 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 230 (230) (Pr 4).

SECTION 171-A

——S. 171-A(b)—A person giving some land to a voter for refraining to vote at an election is guilty of an offence under S. 171-B. See Penal Code (1860), S. 171-B. 1957 Cri L J 1212 (1) : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 845 (DB).

SECTION 171-B

——S. 171-B — Trial for offence under — The unregistered deed of sale is admissible in evidence for the limited purpose. See Registration Act (1908), S. 49 (c). 1957 Cri L J 1212 (1) : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 845 (DB).

——S. 171-B, 171-A (b) — Applicability — Bribe for refraining from voting—Offence.

If the words "electoral right" in S. 171-B are substituted by the relevant part of the definition given in S. 171-A (b), it is obvious that to induce a person not to vote or to refrain from voting would be to induce him not to exercise his electoral right. A person, therefore who gives some land to a voter for refraining from voting at an election is guilty of an offence under S. 171-B, Penal Code. 1956 Andh W R 420 : 1956 Andh L T 376 : 1957 Cri L J 1212 (1) : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 845 (846) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

SECTION 171-C

——Ss. 171-C, 171-F — Representation by candidate and his agent that he was Chalanti Vishnu and as such representative of Lord Jagannath and persons not voting for him would be sinning against the God and also be committing sacrilege against dharma—Candidate also appealing to voters in the name of caste and using symbols of the God in his propaganda—Held, that the representations fell within the scope of sub-s. (2) and also constituted offences under S. 171-F/171-C and S. 508, Penal Code — The appeal and use of symbols came within sub-s. (3) of S. 123, Representation of People Act (1951) but were not offences under the Penal Code. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 123. 1964 (1) Cri L J 57 : AIR 1964 Orissa 1 (DB).

SECTION 171-D

● ——S. 171-D—Scope and applicability.

The essence of the offence of false personation is the offender pretending to be other than what he really is. The gist of the offence being false personation, the section does not come into play when the candidate or his agent does not claim to be the voter himself whom he makes a cross against any name. 1955 Andh W R 903 : 1955 Andh L T 766 : AIR 1956 Andhra 65 (72) (Pt. G) (Pr 48) (F B).

——S. 171-D — Personation at election — Mens rea, proof of — Application for voting paper, when made.

When a person applies for a ballot-paper his name is checked and the fact that he has not already voted is checked by the first polling officer. When a person goes to get these facts checked, he is taken to have applied for ballot paper. Those who do not want to apply for ballot paper do not enter the polling station unless they are polling agents, Candidates, or Government Officer on duty. Every person who goes to the first polling officer does so because he applies for a ballot paper though actual issue of ballot paper is done by third polling officer. Merely because the work of checking the name, checking the fact that he has not already voted and the work of issuing a ballot paper is divided between different persons it cannot be said a person does not apply for ballot paper when he goes to any of the polling officers in charge of that work. AIR 1959 Orissa 97, Dissented from. It is not necessary that offence of personating at an election should require proof of mens rea. When a person goes to a polling station and applies for a ballot paper under a false name corrupt motive is implied in the very fact that he applies for a ballot paper under a false name. A I R 1960 Mad 243, Distinguished. 1965 (1) Cri L J 440 : (1965) 1 Cut L R 465 : AIR 1965 Cut 83 (88, 91) (Prs 1, 2).

——S. 171-D — Essentials of offence — Mens rea — Duty of prosecution to prove.

Chapter 9-A of the Penal Code provides for the punishment of malpractices in connection with election and attempts to safeguard the purity of the franchise. The very idea of personation connotes knowledge of or advertence to the act of pretending to be some other person. In fact it implies false pretence. The only injunction which is to be found in the section and which is the mental element requisite to a conviction is, the intention to personate at the election for one who is a voter.

It will thus be seen that the statute does not rule out mens rea as a constituent part of the crime and the accused cannot be found guilty of an offence under S. 171-D unless he is proved to have a guilty mind. If the intention of the accused was to do a thing forbidden by statute, he must be convicted. But this intention is to be judged from the circumstances of the case and in the light of common sense. The circumstances that it was the first election on the basis of adult franchise and that the percentage of illiteracy in the part of the country in which the election was held is low cannot altogether be ignored. 1958 Madh B L J 674: Madh B L R 1958 (Cr) 152 : 1958 Cri L J 1327 : I L R (1958) Madh B 374 : A I R 1958 Madh B 241 (244) (Pt A) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 171-D and 171-F — Personation at election — Elements of offence.

Where the accused is charged of personation at an election, the first element to be proved by the prosecution is that he had applied for a voting paper at the election in question. Another ingredient is that the accused in doing that act with which he is charged was actuated by corrupt motive. Until the voter does not approach the third polling Officer for purposes of getting the ballot paper, it cannot be said that he had applied for a voting paper within the meaning of S. 171-D, Penal Code. His approach to the second polling Officer may, at best, amount to some preparation on his part for the commission of the offence; but preparation is not an attempt within the meaning of S. 511, Penal Code.

Similarly, in order to sustain a conviction under S. 171-F, Penal Code, the prosecution must prove that there was an offence of undue influence or personation at the election committed by the accused; in other words, the prosecution must prove that the accused voluntarily interfered or attempted to interfere with the free exercise of the electoral right.

Where a person named 'Colai Barik' who was otherwise known in the village as 'Ghuma barik' went to the polling officer finding the name Ghuma in the election roll issued an identity slip to him of the name of Ghuma the son of Niranjan, neither of the ingredients of Ss. 171-D and 171-F could be said to have been present and the conviction could not be sustained. AIR 1926 All 425, Foll.; AIR 1937 Sind 21 and AIR 1941 Sind 109 and AIR 1939 Lah 52, Distng. I L R (1959) Cut 153 : 1958 Cri L J 752 : A I R 1959 Orissa 97 (97, 99) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 5).

SECTION 171-F

——S. 171-F—Scope—Section—Necessity — S. 136, Representation of the People Act, is not a mere direction—It actually amends S. 188, Cr. P. C. — Since the amendment therefore no order of Government is now required for instituting proceedings under S. 171-F, I. P. C. so far as it relates to false personation. 1958 Cri L J 384 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 67 (DB).

——S. 171-F—Impersonation at election—Conviction and sentence.

Held on facts considering the fact that personation at election has become fairly rampant and considering the fact that it was during the part of accused to give out his name falsely as Pakir Choudhury even when asked a second time his name by the Senior Polling Officer, it was not a case in which a mere fine would be adequate punishment for the offence but the ends of justice would be met by passing upon him a sentence of simple imprisonment for a period of one month. AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 2236 (DB).

——S. 171-F — Representation by candidate and his agent that he was Caalaaki Vishnu and as such representative of Lord Jagannath, and persons not voting for him would be sinning against the God and also be committing sacrilege against dharma—Candidate also appealing to voters in the name of caste and using symbols of the God in his propaganda — Held, that the representations fell within the scope of sub-s. (2), and also constituted offences under S. 171-C and S. 508, Penal Code—The appeal and use of symbols came within sub-s. (3) of S. 123 but were not offences under the Penal Code. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 123. 1964 (1) Cri L J 57 : AIR 1964 Orissa 1 (DB).

——S. 171-F — To sustain conviction under the section, the prosecution must prove that there was an offence of undue influence or personation at the election — That the accused voluntarily interfered or attempted to interfere with free exercise of the electoral right. See Penal Code (1860), S. 171-D. 1958 Cri L J 752 : A I R 1958 Orissa 97.

——S. 171-F—Personation at election — Sanction for prosecution — Not necessary — Although no corresponding amendment has been made in Criminal P. C., The Representation of the People Act (1951) has omitted the inclusion of S. 171-F, I. P. C. under S. 196 Criminal P. C. 1958 Cri L J 752 : A I R 1958 Orissa 97.

SECTION 171-G

——Ss. 171-G, 499 and 500 — Offence under—Sanction for prosecution — Necessity — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196).

No prosecution can be instituted for an offence under S. 171-G without the sanction of Government as provided in S. 196, Criminal P. C. But it is only when the offence strictly falls within the purview of

S. 171-G that a sanction is necessary. An offence under S. 171-G is not a species of the more general offence of defamation and the section cannot be said to have been carved out of S. 499, I. P. Code. Where the statement is merely defamatory and does not fall under this section no sanction is necessary. 70 Mad L W 942 : 1957 Mad W N 612: 1958 Cri L J 647 (2): AIR 1958 Mad 240 (241) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1967 S C 808].

——S. 171-G—Essentials to be proved.

Under S. 171-G, the points required to be proved are : (1) That an election was impending. (2) That the accused made or published a statement. (3) That it purported to be a statement of fact. (4) That it related to the personal conduct or character of a candidate. (5) That he published it with intent to prejudice his election. (6) That it was false or that the accused had no reasonable ground for believing it to be true. 1957 Mad W N 612 : 70 Mad L W 942 : 1958 Cri L J 647 (2) : AIR 1958 Mad 240 (241) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1967 S C 808.]

——Ss. 171-G, 499 and 500—Speeches made during elections—Privilege—Statement of fact when offence—(Elections)—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 196).

There is no special privilege attached to speeches made during an election. The political address or the public career or speeches of rivals are fair subjects for bona fide discussion and unfavourable comments are privileged. One should not however allude to the private life or circumstances of any candidate. One should always bear in mind the distinction between criticism and allegation of fact. Where the bulk of the matter consists of mere general expressions, it will not fall under S. 171-G. Statements of fact are those statements, of the falsity of which prima facie proof is possible.

A printed notice contained a series of rhetorical questions whether it was true or not that the candidate used to receive money and withdraw from contest in elections. Beyond these rhetorical questions no particulars were mentioned which would enable the candidate to refute them.

Held, that the allegations could not be construed as a statement of facts and the complaint under S. 500, Penal Code having been property filed, no sanction was necessary. 1957 Mad W N 612 : 70 Mad L W 942 : 1958 Cri L J 647 (2) : AIR 1958 Mad 240 (241, 242) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 10, 11, 13).

[Overruled in AIR 1967 S C 808.]

SECTION 172

——S. 172 — A served with notice but not appearing before adalat—Trial and conviction of A by Panchayati Adalat under S. 172, I. P. C. — As A was served with a notice he could not be convicted under S. 172, Penal Code — S. 172 makes absconding of a person to evade service of summons or notice an offence and not non-appearance of a person served with notice or a summons an offence — Conviction of A under S. 172 was bad in law—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1)). See U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 52. 1953 Cri L J 555 : AIR 1953 All 200.

——S. 172 — Applicability:— Mukhiya of gram panchayat was informed that woman had died — No information given that she had unnatural death or her death occurred in suspicious circumstances — Offence — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 45 (1) (d). 1961 B L J R 35.

SECTION 174

——S. 174 — Section 485-A, Cr. P. C., whether deals with offence falling under S. 174, I. P. C. — Sections 485 and 487, Cr. P. C. whether repugnant—S. 485-A whether dead letter on account of omission to mention it in S. 487, Cr. P. C., S. 485-A, Cr. P. C. does not deal with an offence falling under S. 174, I. P. C. which falls within the purview of S. 195, Cr. P. C. — There is no difficulty in reconciling S. 487 with S. 485-A — They provide for different situations and there is no repugnancy at all between the two— Consequently question of S. 485-A being a dead letter does not arise — (Interpretation of Statutes) — (Civil P. C. (1908), Preamble). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 485-A. 1959 Cri L J 300 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 144 (DB).

——S. 174 — Cognizance of offence under, committed by a person figuring as accused before it — Power of Nyaya Panchayat — Exercise of — Amounts to violation of principles of natural justice. See Panchayats — Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act (6 of 1953), S. 57. 1964 (1) Cri L J 34 : AIR 1964 Him Pra 2.

——S. 174 — "Intentionally omits to attend" — Prosecution's failure to prove satisfactorily service of summons on accused — Conviction for intentional omission to attend cannot stand. A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 4301.

——S. 174 — Offence under — S. 487, Cr. P. C. prohibits the Magistrate from trying any person who has been guilty of an offence under the section in relation to a summons issued by him. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 487. 1961 (2) Cri L J 87 : A I R 1961 J and K 54.

——S. 174—Procedure.

Non-attendance in obedience to a summons — If the Magistrate thinks that such an offence has been committed by the persons in question he ought to follow the procedure prescribed by the Criminal Procedure Code in trying them therefor. When this is not done but a simple notice to the persons is sent and they come forward and ask to be excused and the Magistrate "sentences" them to pay a fine of Rs. 5/-, the procedure is not contemplated by the Code. The Magistrate cannot formulate his own procedure, however convenient it be. 1961 (2) Cri L J 87 : AIR 1961 J and K 54 (54) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——S. 174 — Offence under—Complaint by Court—Necessity—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a).

In view of the provisions of S. 195 (1) (a) of Criminal P. C. an offence punishable under S. 174 of the Penal Code can be taken cognizance of by a Court only on the complaint in writing of the public servant concerned or of some other public servant to whom he is subordinate. 1961 (2) Cri L J 87 : A I R 1961 J and K 54 (54) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——S. 174—'Order in writing'—Nature of direction.

Order contemplated by S. 160, Cr. P. C. is an order addressed to a person whose presence is required — An order given to a subordinate officer to produce a person before the Sub-Inspector is not an order contemplated by S. 160, Cr. P. C., disobedience of which could be made punishable under S. 174, I. P. C. even though the order might be brought to the notice of person concerned. The words summons, notice, order or proclamation in S. 174, I. P. C. are different forms of directions as such if they are not addressed to the persons whose attendance is required. These directions are not warrants of arrest addressed to a police officer in respect of which there could be no intentional omission. 1954 Cri L J 1060 : AIR 1954 Kutch 25.

——S. 174 — Omission to attend — Whether intentional—Question of fact.

Whether the omission to appear before the investigating officer was intentional is a question of fact and where the trial Court had found in favour of the prosecution and the order was proper and legal : held, that prima facie the omission was intentional and High Court will not interfere in revision. 1954 Cri L J 1060 : AIR 1954 Kutch 25 (26) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

——S. 174 — If presence of a person cannot be compelled and he is not legally bound to appear, refusal to appear in response to notice and summons, etc., not an offence.

Held, that the offence contemplated by S. 174, Indian Penal Code, consists in an omission to appear at a particular place before a specified public functionary in obedience to a summons, notice, order or proclamation, which is otherwise valid. There cannot be a conviction under S. 174 unless a summons, notice or order or proclamation for attendance has been issued by a public servant to a person and unless that person is legally bound to attend at a certain time and place in obedience to the summons, notices, etc. The notices which were issued to the petitioner did not in any way require his attendance before the Gram Panchayat and the applicant could not be compelled to appear before the Panchayat for his non-compliance with the said notices. The conviction of the petitioner under S. 174 could not be sustained. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 331.

——S. 174 — Summons merely to produce account books — Company's non-compliance — Effect of — Officer not authorised to summon books for departmental enquiry—Company held not bound to comply with the summons—No offence committed. See Sales Tax—Madras General Sales Tax Act (1 of 1959), S. 41 (1). (1962) 2 Mad L J 264.

——S. 174—Intentional omission—Meaning — Accused attending but leaving, to answer on urgent call of nature—Explanation if satisfactory.

The expression 'intentional' in S. 174 occurring in that section conveys the idea that the disobedience must be wilful. Mere omission on the part of the accused to give previous intimation to the Court about his inability to attend at the time fixed may not by itself be decisive, because there may be some sudden disability which could not be anticipated, but such an omission is relevant on the question as to whether the explanation given by the accused person for his non-attendance can be believed or not. A I R 1922 All 82 and A I R 1923 Lah 163, Rel. on. (1960) 2 Ori J D 308 : 26 Cut L T 571.

——S. 174 — Applicability — Disobedience of order of Gram Panchayat to patrol village—Disobedience not intentional but due to factors over which accused had no control — Conviction by Gram Panchayat under S. 174, Penal Code, held not sustainable. See Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (1947), (7 of 1948), S. 73. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 3988 (DB).

——S. 174 — Construction—Defective proclamation —Effect—Applicability of S. 537 – Attachment under S. 88 is invalid—As terms of S. 87 are mandatory and imperative, petitioner against whom the proclamation is issued cannot be prosecuted for disobedience of a defective proclamation. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 87. 1955 Cri L J 318 : AIR 1955 Punj 18 (DB).

SECTION 175

——S. 175 — Summons merely to produce account books — Company's non-compliance — Effect of — Officer not authorised to summon books for departmental enquiry—Company held not bound to comply with the summons—No offence committed. See Sales Tax—Madras General Sales Tax Act (1 of 1959), S. 41 (1). (1962) 2 Mad L J 264.

——S. 175—"Legally bound to do' '— Karnam failing to hand over government records to his successor — Commits offence under S. 175. See Penal Code (1860), S. 43. 1956 Cri L J 754 : AIR 1956 Mad 335.

——S. 175—Contempt of subordinate Court — Jurisdiction of High Court—When barred.

If the act alleged are offences under Ss. 175, 178, 179, 180 or S. 228, I. P. C., then they constitute contempt and they can be taken cognizance of by the Court in whose view or presence they are committed and in respect of only such contempts, the High Court would not take cognizance and S. 3 (2) of the Contempt of Courts Act bars its jurisdiction. If the act complained of does not fall under the sections mentioned, then the jurisdiction of the High Court is not excluded. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 (2). 1961 :(1) Cri L J 134 : A I R 1961 Pat 1 (DB).

——S. 175 — Applicability— Failure to produce account books by plaintiff.

A party who fails to comply with an order for production or inspection of the documents can under the present law, be punished only in the manner prescribed by O. 11, R. 21, Civil P. C. and cannot be held punishable under Indian Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 43. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 4627.

SECTION 176

——Ss. 176, 21 — Applicability — Section 176, applies to public servant—Person appointed as investigator under S. 33 of the Insurance Act is not public servant—Statement made to such person is not barred under S. 24, Evidence Act.

For the application of S. 176, it is necessary that a person as Investigator under S. 33 (3) of the Insurance Act, be a public servant. A Chartered Accountant who had been directed by the order of the Central Government to investigate into the affairs of an Insurance Company and to report to the Government on the investigation made by him cannot be said to be a public servant. A person who is directed to investigate into the affairs of an Insurance Company under S. 33 (1) of the Insurance Act does not ipso facto become an officer. He is not employed in service and therefore definition in 9th clause of S. 21 would not apply to him. The making of a statement to the Investigator under S. 33 (3) of the Insurance Act does not amount to furnishing information on any subject to any public servant as contemplated by S. 176 an omission to furnish which would be an offence under that section. Section 176 would not compel an accused to make a statement to the Investigator to the effect that he misappropriated the money of the Insurance Company, and the statement cannot be considered to be involuntary under S. 24 of the Evidence Act. (1963) 1 S C R 253 : (1962) 32 Cam Cas 699 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 805 : A I R 1962 S C 1821 (1869, 1870) (Pt P) (Prs 285 to 287).

——S. 176—"In or near such village"—Suicide place in a village at a distance of one mile from the village of the land owner and there was another village and a nullah between the two—Village could not be said to be near the village where the landlord lived. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 45 (1) (d). A I R 1954 Him-Pra 67.

——S. 176—Essentials for conviction.

Before a person can be convicted under S. 176, Penal Code the prosecution is bound to prove (a) that the accused person was legally bound to furnish a certain information to a public servant and (b) that he intentionally omitted to give such information. 1954 Cri L J 1465 : AIR 1954 Him Pra 67 (67) (Pt C) (Pr 2).

——S. 176—Applicability—Holder of a license to sell mill made cloth—Statement of stock held—Omission of some stock—Offence.

Where under the terms of the license the holder thereof is bound under the Tripura State Cotton Cloth and Yarn Control Order (1358 T. E.) to supply information to the Civil Supplies Department of the stock of cloth held by him and on being so asked he gave a list with regard to mill made cloths in his shop but omitted to include the mill made cloth stored in a rented godown elsewhere which were subsequently seized.

Held, that intention is to be presumed from circumstances and in the face of the requirements of the license and the non-disclosure of the godown and the accidental seizure of the cloth from the godown, the conclusion is clear that the accused intentionally omitted to furnish information and is liable under S. 176, Penal Code. 1952 Cri L J 1642 : A I R 1952 Tripura 18 (20) (Pt B) (Pr 17).

SECTION 177

——S. 177—Legally bound—Knowledge of falsity is necessary to constitute offence — Registration Act (1908), S. 21.

Section 21, Registration Act, does not lay any obligation on the executants of documents to correctly describe the property sold, the object of that section in requiring sufficient description being only to secure easy identification of property. Even if such an obligation is assumed to exist, the Court is under a duty to see whether such information was given with the knowledge that it was false or whether there was reason to believe it false before it can hold an accused to have committed an offence punishable under S. 177, Penal Code. 51 Cri L J 883 : AIR 1950 Ajmer 19 (2) (20) (Pr 2).

——S. 177—Subordinate Court—Complaint of offence under by Additional Deputy Commissioner—Application to withdrawal by the Board of Revenue—Not maintainable — Additional Deputy Commissioner is not subordinate to the Board of Revenue under S. 195 (5), Criminal P. C. — (C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 83 (1) — (C. P. and Berar Board of Revenue Act (12 of 1949), S. 6). See Criminal P. C, (1898), S. 195 (5). 1953 Cri L J 741: (A I R 1953 Nag 121 (DB).

SECTION 178

——S. 178—Contempt of Subordinate Court — Jurisdiction of High Court — When barred stated. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 (2). 1961 (1) Cri L J 134 : A I R 1961 Pat 1 (DB).

SECTION 179

——S. 179 — Scope — Action under S. 480 to be preceded by action under S. 485. Section 480, Criminal P. C., is the general section for contempts committed in view or presence of Court whereas S. 485, Criminal P. C., is the particular provision regarding a witness refusing to answer questions as required by S. 179, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 480. 1962 (1) Cri L J 409 : A I R 1962 Cal 195.

——S. 179—Contempt of Subordinate Court —Jurisdictions of High Court — When barred stated. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 (2). 1961 (1) Cri L J 134 : A I R 1961 Pat 1 (DB).

SECTION 180

——S. 180—Contempt of Subordinate Court — Jurisdiction of High Court — When barred indicated. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 (2). 1961 (1) Cri L J 134 : A I R 1961 Pat 1 (DB).

SECTION 182

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 182.)

1. Nature and ingredients of offence under.
2. Information to any public servant.
3. Intention, whether necessary.
4. Sections 182 and 217 —Distinction.
5. Report of police officer not a complaint.
6. Evidence and proof.
7. Practice and procedure.

1. Nature and ingredients of offence under.

●——S. 182 — Report to Tahsildar with a view to take action — Report found false — Offence under S. 182, Penal Code, is complete even if no action is taken on report — S. 182 does not require that action must always be taken if the person who moves the public servant knows or believes that action would be taken—Prosecution under S. 182 must be on complaint in writing by Tahsildar. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1962 (2) Cri L J 286 : A I R 1962 S C 1206.

——Ss. 182 and 191 — Applicability — Information given under S. 182 must be information which accused knows or believes to be false — To have reason to believe it to be false is not sufficient — S. 191 — Distinction.

To constitute the offence punishable under S. 182, it is necessary that the information given should be information which the accused person knows or believes to be false. It is not sufficient that he had reason to believe it to be false, or that he did not believe it to be true; there must have been positive knowledge or belief that it is false. A I R 1930 Lah 54 : 29 Cri L J 753, Foll.

Unlike S. 191, the scope of S. 182 is restricted in that whereas the former also makes it an offence on the part of the accused person to make a statement which he does not believe to be true, the latter does not make it so. 1961 All Cr R 312 : (1961) All W R (Sup) 59 : 63 Punj L R 566.

——S. 182 — Offence under — Nature of —Involves moral turpitude.

"Moral turpitude" is not defined anywhere— But it means anything done contrary to justice, honesty modesty or good morals and implies depravity and wickedness of character —S. 182 (a) enjoins a duty on persons to abstain from giving false information to a public servant. Individual's conduct in giving false information to a public servant in the circumstances stated in S 182 (a) is contrary to justice, honesty, good morals and shows depravity of character. See Panchayats—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 5-A. AIR 1959 All 71.

——S. 182 — Information known or believed to be false.

A necessary ingredient of an offence under S. 182 is that the information which the person sought to be prosecuted gave must have been known or believed to be false by him. In the absence of such an allegation in the complaint an offence under S. 182 is not disclosed. I L R (1950) 2 Assam 249 : 52 Cri L J 394 : AIR 1951 Assam 54 (55) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——S. 182 (a)—Accused writing letter to chairman of municipality objecting to name of S in Electoral Roll—Assertion therein that S was not paying income tax and therefore he could not claim to be voter — Copy of letter sent to Sub-Divisional Officer — Such officer requested in accompanying memorandum to call for from Income-tax Officer necessary information—Enquiry made by Sub-Divisional Officer.

In order to establish an offence punishable under S. 182, Penal Code it must be established that a person gave information which he knew or believed to be false to a public servant and that he intended thereby to cause such public servant to do something which he ought not to do. The words "to do something" which such public servant ought to do must mean to do something which the public servant was enjoined to do in his official capacity as public servant. If a person gives false information to a public servant knowing it to be likely or intending that he would do something which had no connection with his office as a public servant the conduct of the person giving such information would not come within purview of S. 182, Penal Code.

The accused wrote a letter to the Chairman of a municipality objecting to the inclusion of the name of S in the preliminary Electoral Roll, asserting that he had come to know after an informal enquiry that S did not pay income-tax, that therefore he could not claim to be a voter and that his name should be struck off if it was found after necessary enquiry that he did not pay the income-tax. A copy of the letter was sent to the Sub-divisional Officer and in the accompanying memorandum he was requested to look into the matter seriously and call for from the Income-tax Officer necessary information in this connection. Enquiries were made by the Sub-Divisional Officer and he found that S paid income-tax and that the allegation against him was false. Upon that the Sub-Divisional Officer filed a complaint against the accused alleging that he had committed an offence punishable under S. 182, Penal Code:

Held, that the Sub-Divisional Officer was being asked to do something which did not constitute an act to be done in the exercise of his duties as a public servant. That being so, so far as the sending of the letter to the Sub-Divisional Officer together with memorandum was concerned, no offence under S. 182, Penal Code had been committed and therefore the Sub-Divisional Officer had no right to file the complaint. 51 Cri L J 469 : A I R 1950 Cal 97 (98) (Pt B) (Prs 2, 6).

——S. 182 — Applicability — Section requires that information given must be false to the knowledge of accused —Allegation found not proved is not necessarily false and false to the knowledge of the maker —Accused cannot be convicted under the section if fails to establish that the reported information was true. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-Bha) 35.

——S. 182—Essential ingredient of.

Section 182 of the Penal Code inter alia requires as an essential ingredient thereof that the allegedly false information must have been given with the intention to cause, or knowing it to be likely that it will cause a public servant in the exercise of his duties as such (a) to do or omit anything which he ought not to do if the true facts were known to him or (b) to use his lawful power to the injury or annoyance of any person. 1966 Raj L W 33 : 1966 Cri L J 576 : I L R (1965) 15 Raj 1134 : A I R 1966 Raj 101 (103) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

2. Information to any public servant.

——S. 182 — Offence under— "Public servant concerned'—Meaning.

So far as S. 182 is concerned words mean public servant to whom false information is given with the intention or knowledge that he will do something which he ought not to do. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 51 Cri L J 469 : AIR 1950 Cal 97.

——Ss. 182, 201 and 203—Scope.

Sections 201 and 203 contemplate information given to private persons as well as public servants— First information reports under S. 154, Criminal P. C. are covered by sections but statements made to police during investigation are not covered— It any person gives the first information statement to the police even though not voluntarily which is recorded under S. 154, Criminal P. C. and if ultimately it turns out to be false it would not amount to giving false information. It would amount to giving false information and the offender would be punishable under S. 201, I. P. C. provided the requisite intention is proved unlike S. 182, I. P. C. which deals with giving false information to any public servant, Ss. 201 and 203 do not refer to whom the information should be given. It would take in private persons as well as public servants including the police. 1962 (1) Cri L J 610 : AIR 1962 Ker 133 (DB).

——S. 182 — Assistant Sub-Inspector in charge of police station in absence of Sub-Inspector who is officer-in-charge recording F. I. R. and investigating it — Complaint about offence under S. 182, I. P. C., filed by him is valid. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 4 (p). ILR (1963) Cut 790.

——S. 182 — Misrepresentation to Magistrate as to identity of person, whether cheating — Offence made out is one under S. 182 since it is a case of misrepresentation as to identity and not of cheating. See Penal Code (1860), S. 415. AIR 1951 Sau 8 (DB).

3. Intention, whether necessary.

——S. 182—Making false report of burglary—Offence —Motive of suppressing certain documents on the plea of their having been stolen—Effect.

For an offence under S. 182 the accused must intend to cause or know it to be likely that he will cause a public servant to use his lawful power to the annoyance of any person, that is of any other person. Where the ulterior motive of making a false report of burglary was to suppress certain documents by pleading that they were stolen making of the false report with this intention is not punishable under S. 182. 1958 All W R (HC) 606 : 1959 All Cri R 508 : 1959 Cri L J 1037 : A I R 1959 All 545 (545) (Prs 1, 2).

——S. 182—Intention — Ascertainment.

In the case of an offence under S. 182, Penal Code the accused's intention has to be gathered from his acts. Where the whole object was clearly to invite the police to act in a manner which would make an election a farce it was held the offence under S. 182 was made out. 1952 Cr L J 365 : A I R 1952 All 178 (179) (Pr 4).

4. Sections 182 and 211—Distinction.

——S. 182 — Mere filing of report under S. 307 amounts to institution of criminal proceedings — Person reporting can be convicted only under S. 211 and not under S. 182. See Penal Code (1860), S. 211. (1965) All W R (H C) 282.

——S. 182 — Applicant lodging complaint under S. 307, I. P. C.—It amounts to institution of criminal proceedings—Applicant can be convicted only under S. 211 and not under S. 182. See Penal Code (1860), S. 211. (1965) All W R (H C) 282.

——S. 182 — Proceedings under Ss. 182 and 211, Penal Code—Provisions of S. 195 (1), Criminal P. C., applicable—Effect of non-compliance — Cognizance cannot be taken. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1962 (1) Cr L J 627 (All).

——Ss. 182 and 211 — Scope — They do not overlap each other.

An accused can commit both offences under S. 182 and S. 211 in the pursuit of the same purpose one after the other but their circles are clearly separated and they do not overlap each other. 1961 All L J 278: 1961 All Cr R 135 : 1961 All W R (H C) 286 : 1962 (1) Cr L J 627 (All).

——Ss. 182, 211 — Prosecution under S. 182—Complaint repeated before Magistrate—Conviction under S. 182—Bar of S. 195, Cr. P. Code —(Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 195).

After the Police had filed a complaint under S. 182, Penal Code against the accused the latter lodged a complaint to the Magistrate alleging that his allegation was correct. The Magistrate tried both the cases together and convicted the accused under S. 182 holding that his complaint was thus automatically dismissed:

Held, that the complaint under S. 182 could be proceeded with, even though a complaint was filed by the accused. The question whether the Magistrate should have also filed a complaint under S. 211 was a distinct question and if so persuaded he could have lodged a complaint himself under S. 195, Criminal P. C. If the Magistrate did not choose to do that his conviction was not incorrect. Sanction of the Magistrate is required for a complaint under S. 211 and not for one under S. 182, I. P. C. AIR 1943 Lah 31, Foll. 1956 Cri L J 215 : I L R (1955) Hyd 842 : AIR 1956 Hyd 25 (25) (Prs 2, 4).

——S. 182 — Scope — Offence also one under S. 211, Penal Code committed in relation to proceeding in Court—Necessity for complaint by Court—Held also that assuming the case fell within S. 182, I. P. C., or even S. 47 of Madras District Police Act, provisions as to necessity for a complaint by a Magistrate could not be evaded by prosecuting the complainant under S. 47 of the M. D. Police Act or S. 182, I. P. C., because the facts also constituted an offence for which such a complaint was necessary. See Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 195. 1954 Cri L J 799 : AIR 1954 Mad 561.

——Ss. 182 and 211—Complaint under S. 182—Facts disclosing offence under S. 211 as well as under S. 182—Accused not to be acquitted on ground that prosecution should have been under S. 211.

If a case comes both under Ss. 211 and 182 of the Indian Penal Code, it is open to the authority concerned to proceed either under one section or the other. But if in such a case the authority concerned has thought fit to file a complaint under S. 182, Penal Code the Magistrate is not justified in acquitting the accused on the sole ground that he should have been prosecuted under S. 211, Penal Code. 32 Cal 180 : 7 M H C R (App) 5 & 15 All 336, Foll., 14 Cr L J 491, Not foll. 1952 Raj L W 220 : I L R (1952) 2 Raj 44 : AIR 1952 Raj 142 (144) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

5. Report of police officer not a complaint.

——S. 182—Report of police officer of offence under S. 182, Penal Code not complaint. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 4 (h). 1963 Raj L W 48.

6. Evidence and proof.

——Ss. 182, 109 — Evidence — Writer of application proved to be false—Liability under S. 182 — Accused was only the writer of the application and he had no reason for supposing that the allegations in it were false and hence he could not be held guilty. 1956 Cri L J 503 (1) : AIR 1956 Bom 265 (265) (Prs 2, 3, 5).

——S. 182—Burden of proof.

Under S. 182 it is not the law that the accused must prove that the information given by him is true or that he believed it to be true. On the other hand, it is for the prosecution to prove satisfactorily that the allegations made by the accused, were false and were false to his knowledge or, at any rate, he did not believe them to be true at the time when he made those allegations. The fact that belief of the accused turns out to be a wrong belief, is not sufficient to bring home a conviction under S. 182. AIR 1930 Lah 54 (1) and 29 Pun Re 1894 (Cr) and 26 Mad 640, Relied on. 37 Mys L J 201 : I L R (1960) Mys 484 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 301 : 1960 Cri L J 1113 : AIR 1960 Mys 208 (208 (Pr 3).

7. Practice and procedure.

——S. 182 — Complaint regarding offence, by whom to be made — False information about bribery given to Chief Minister—Enquiry regarding it made by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate — False information repeated before him—The repeated information can be the basis on which the Sub-Divisional Magistrate can file a complaint against the informant under S. 182, I. P. C. — Said Magistrate will be the public servant concerned within, under S. 195, Criminal P. C. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1959 Cri L J 683 : AIR 1959 All 378 (DB).

——S. 182 — Report by police officer to Magistrate after investigation following complaint that complaint was false — Order by Magistrate directing prosecution of complainant under S. 182, Penal Code is wholly without jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 52 Cri L J 394 : AIR 1951 Assam 54.

——S. 182—Procedure—Offence under—Necessity of preliminary enquiry—S. 182 is not one of the offences mentioned in cl. (b) or (c) of S. 195 (1), Criminal P. C., therefore preliminary enquiry, before a complaint is actually made by public servant is not necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1957 Cri L J 716 : AIR 1957 Cal 382.

——S. 182—Sentence.

Accused mere servant and then out of employment —In view of facts and circumstances, sentence reduced to fine of Rs. 100 from that of Rs. 200. I L R (1958) 1 Cal 555 : 1957 Cr L J 716 : 61 Cal W N 967 : AIR 1957 Cal 382 (383) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——S. 182—Prosecution under—When misconceived.

As the law deals with the bribe-givers and bribe-takers on the same par and treats them as accomplices of each other when it is not shown whether the information given by the accused was false or true and secondly when the accused persons are not bound to incriminate themselves their prosecution under S. 182, Penal Code, is misconceived. 1954 Cri L J 263 : (1952) 1 Mad L J 803 : A I R 1954 Mad 245 (245) (Pr 1).

——S. 182—Complaint under S. 195 (1) (a), Criminal P. C. — Complaint in cases of offences mentioned in Cl. (a)—Offence under S. 182, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1963 B L J R 471.

——S. 182 — Prosecution under — Dismissal of, on ground that the complaint not presented by public servant concerned — Does not bar the second prosecution on valid complaint. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 403 (1). 1965 Raj L W 279 : I L R (1965) 15 Raj 1018 : 1966 Cri L J 166 : A I R 1966 Raj 40.

——S. 182 — Section 247, Criminal P. C. does not apply to case registered on report of police officer as public servant — Dismissal on case of default in appearance by police officer making report of offence under S. 182, Penal Code not in accordance with law. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 247. 1963 Raj L W 48.

——S. 182 — Complaint of theft found to be false—Complainant prosecuted under S. 182.

Complainant is not entitled to get the copies of statement of witness who had been examined by the police during the course of investigation in connection with the theft case—Proviso to S. 162 (1), Criminal P. C. relates to inquiry or trial of offence which was under investigation at the time when the statement was made and does not relate to a different offence which could not have been made the subject-matter of investigation by the police — To say that S. 182 does not amount to an offence in itself as an independent entity and it is indistinguishable from the offence investigation into which has led to a dropping at that case and to a subsequent complaint by the police under S. 182, Penal Code is to say something which is quite untenable. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 162 (as it stood before amendment of 1955). A I R 1957 Raj 185.

SECTION 183

——S. 183 — Order prohibiting act of directing or promoting procession without licence — Merely joining procession—Offence.

Where an order promulgated under S. 30, Police Act prohibited the convening or collecting any assembly or directing or promoting any procession in the regulated area without obtaining licence.

Held, that merely joining the procession did not amount to contravention of the order and no offence is committed. 1960 Nag L J (Notes) 114.

——Ss. 183 and 186—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, Rr. 46, 49—Decree passed against some partners of partnership business in their individual capacities—Attachment of partnership business in execution of decree against them is irregular — Officer executing decree obstructed in execution of decree — Question whether property attached belongs to partnership business is to be decided by executing Court and not left for decision in prosecution for offences under Ss. 183, 186.

A decree-holder cannot proceed against the interest of a partner except in the manner laid down in the different sub-rules, R. 49 of O. 21 and an attachment made under O. 21, R 46 of the partnership business in execution of a decree against the partners in their individual capacities is irregular and ineffective.

Where at the time of the execution of a decree passed against some of the partners of a partnership business in their individual capacities, the fact that the property sought to be attached belongs to a partnership business in which some other persons are also partners, is brought to the notice of the Officer executing the decree, it is his duty to stay his hands and report the matter to the Court for further orders. Then the Court would make necessary inquiries and come to a finding whether it was a partnership business or not and issue an appropriete writ of attachment. This important question cannot be left for decision of a Criminal Court in which the persons alleged to have obstructed the officer executing the decree are prosecuted for offences under Ss. 183 and 186, Penal Code. 1963 B L J R 375.

——Ss. 183 and 186—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, Rr. 46, 49—Decree passed against some partners in partnership business in their individual capacities — Nazir seeking to execute decree against partnership property in which some other persons were partners—Facts pointed out to Nazir — Nazir giving one hour's time for payment and, on non-payment, starting attachment — Judgment-debtors on advice of pleader asking Nazir to leave and snatching away article attached—Conduct of judgment-debtors and pleader held not to amount to obstruction or resistance. 1963 B L J R 375.

——S. 183 — Applicability — Removal of property lawfully attached — Obstruction during process of attachment not made out—Offence—Tripura Municipal Act, Ss. 256 and 297.

Section 256, Tripura Municipal Act deals with powers of entry and inspection as contained in S. 255 and prevents an obstruction to entry, inspection or search. Where the charge against the accused was that they forcibly removed from the custody of a tax collector certain property said to have been attached by lawful authority and it appeared that the tax collector and the municipal servant were not obstructed while entering the shop and preparing the attachment list but it was only after the movables were taken into custody that the accused were said to have removed the attached articles. Held, that there was no offence under S. 256 read with S. 297 of the Tripura Municipal Act but the offence came directly under S. 183, Penal Code. 1961 (2) Cri L J 564 (Tripura).

——S. 183—Attachment by lawful authority — Proof —Absence of—Offence.

In order to prove that an attachmeut made in pursuance of S. 109 of Tripura Municipal Act was effected by lawful authority the prosecution has to prove that on the date the attachment was effected the necessary 15 days had elapsed after the service of the notice and the bill. If the prosecution fails to prove this, the taking of the property is not by lawful authority and therefore the offence under S. 183, Penal Code has to be treated as not having been proved. 1961 (2) Cri L J 564 (Tripura).

SECTION 186

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 186.)

1. Ingredients of offence.
2. "Voluntarily obstructs."
3. Complaint—Necessity of and what is.
4. Practice and procedure.

1. Ingredients of offence.

——Ss. 186 and 189—Applicability — Ingredients of offence.

As the traffic constable was trying to clear the congestion from the road the accused became angry, showed him red eyes and asked him to give him his number. The accused persisted in asking for the number of the Police constable even when the constable was engaged in clearing the congestion on the road and he placed his hand on the uniform of the police constable and was pushing him, thus obstructing him in the discharge of his public functions.

Held, that the mere demand for the number of the constable was no threat of an injury nor did the pushing amount to a threat of injury although it might amount to an assault. Section 186 was the proper section to apply and not S. 189. (1958) 1 Cal L J 81.

——S. 186—Essentials of offence — Madras Ceneral Sales Tax Act, Ss. 14 aud 15.

To constitute an offence punishable under S. 186, Penal Code, the prosecution has to prove that the accused voluntarily obstructed a public servant in the discharge of his public functions. But the rigour of this section has been considerably diluted and even taken away by the corresponding provision in clause (c) of S. 15 of the Sales Tax Act. To attract this clause it is sufficient that an officer authorised under S. 14, has been prevented or obstructed from entering the shop and conducting the inspection contemplated by S. 14. It is not necessary that force or violence should have been used in preventing or obstructing such entry or inspection. All that is necessary is that entry or inspection should have been effectively prevented or obstructed. See Sales Tax—Madras General Sales Tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 14. 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 255 : 1958 Ker L J 63.

2. "Voluntarily obstructs".

——S. 186—Scope—Obstruction to order for seizure made by Provincial Government under the Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act (24 of 1946), S. 3 (1)—Obstructing removal of goods seized constitutes an offence under S. 186, Penal Code—See Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act (24 of 1946), Ss. 3 (1) and (2). 52 Cri L J 757 : AIR 1951 S C 201.

——S. 186—'Obstruction'—Meaning of.

The word 'obstruction' in S. 186 connotes some overt act in the nature of violence or show of violence. It cannot be said that a man obstructed another if that man runs away from arrest or if he does not actually submit to the arrest. 1955 Cr L J 278 : 1954 All L J 544 : A I R 1955 All 104 (105) (Pr 7).

——S. 186—Obstruction—What constitutes.

To constitute 'obstruction' within S. 186 it is not necessary that there should be actual criminal force. It is sufficient if there is either a show of force or threat or any act preventing the execution of the process of the civil Court. AIR 1935 Bom 24, Rel. on. 1956 Cr L J 48 : 58 Bom L R 1021 : ILR (1957) Bom 80 : AIR 1957 Bom 10 (11) (Pt 10) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 186—Obstruction to public servant in executing warrant of possession — Offences—(Contempt of Court.)

If an accused person obstructs a public servant in the discharge of his public function (viz., in execution of a warrant of possession) he commits two offences. One is the alleged obstruction which comes within S. 186 and the other offence is the offence of having been guilty of undermining the authority of the Court. If an accused person has committed an offence within S. 186, he would seem to have committed also an offence of contempt of Court. 1956 Cr L J 48 : 58 Bom L R 1021 : ILR (1957) Bom 80 : AIR 1957 Bom 10 (11) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 186 — Commissioner in partition proceedings —If public servant — Obstruction to, after protest, if offence.

A Commissioner appointed by a Court to divide properties by metes and bounds, as a result of a preliminary decree for partition, is a public servant within the meaning of the term under S. 21. Any obstruction to work done by him is an offence under S. 186 — See Penal Code (1860), S. 21. 52 Cri L J 847 : AIR 1951 Mad 773.

——S. 186 — Obstruction — Mere abusive words or threats not sufficient—Accompaniment of gestures or other signs causing reasonable apprehension of resistence in the mind of public servant necessary.

Mere threat or abusive words would not be sufficient to constitute 'obstruction' within the meaning of S. 186, I. P. Code, unless such words are accompanied by gestures or other signs from which the public servant could reasonably infer that any attempt by him to discharge his duty would be resisted and thereupon, out ot prudence, he decides to abstain from discharging his duty. A I R 1932 Cal 871, Followed; AIR 1935 All 118 and AIR 1938 Nag 529, Rel. on.

Where in the execution of a distress warrant against the petitioner, the petitioner used threatening words in a loud tone and taunting manner showing red eyes to the Ohakla Kanungo who was trying to execute the warrant, as a result of which the Kanungo got frightened and did not execute the warrant—Held, that the action of the petitioner amounted to an obstruction within the meaning of S. 186, I. P. Code. (1960) 2 O J D 401 : 26 Cut L T 596.

——S. 186—Criminal P. C. (1898), Chap. X, Ss. 133, 134—Application under S. 133, alleging encroachment on public road by opposite party — Magistrate not following procedure in Chapter X, but appointing pleader Commissioner to measure spot—Obstruction to pleader from entering house does not amount to offence under S. 186.

Before a person resisting a public servant can be held to be guilty of an offence under S. 186, I. P. Code, it must be established that the act of the public servant was legal and valid. When the act of the public servant was without jurisdiction, the person, who was being subjected to a position which is not valid or justifiable in the eye of law, cannot be said to be guilty of an offence under S. 186, even if in the course doing that he committed some other offence on which he may be legally liable. 14 Cr L J 251 : AIR 1927 Bom 483 : 22 Cal 286 : AIR 1920 Lah 295, Rel. on.

A Magistrate commencing proceedings under S. 133, Criminal P. C., is bound to proceed in strict conformity with the rules laid down in Chapter X. Where therefore, a Magistrate after receipt of an application under S. 133, alleging encroachment on a public road by the opposite party, instead of following the procedure laid down by Ss. 133, 134, Criminal P. C. of passing a conditional order and issuing notice to the opposite party, orders a pleader commissioner to measure the spot and submit his report, the procedure adopted by the Magistrate is misconceived and unwarranted in law and mere resistance on the part of the opposite party by stopping the pleader from entering his house to measure the land cannot be regarded as an obstruction to a public servant in the discharge of his duties within the meaning of S. 186, I. P. Code, although the opposite party may be liable for punishment for adopting threatening attitude and using indecent words towards the pleader. A I R 1928 Lah 95 : 29 Cr L J 530, Rel. on. 43 Pat 735 : 1963 B L J R 279.

——S. 186—Applicability—Minor certificate-debtor—Illegal arrest in execution of certificate—Father rescuing him from arrest:— Rescuing from such illegal arrest does not amount to any criminal offence—See Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (4 of 1914), S. 7. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 2490.

——S. 186 — Omission to prove writ under which public servant was acting—Propriety of conviction.

Conviction under S. 186 cannot be sustained where the prosecution entirely omits to prove the writ under which the public servant was acting and therefore, it is impossible to say what his functions were in the discharge of which he was obstructed. AIR 1952 Pat 85 (85) (Pr 1).

——S. 186 — Voluntary obstruction — What constitutes.

In order to constitute an obstruction physical force is not necessary. It may be in various ways. But where a tenant states to a peon who wants to effect delivery of possession of the house to a decree-holder, that he had rented the house from certain persons and would vacate it only if they asked him to do so, make such endorsement of the writ and the person returns without doing anything further, the action on the part of the tenant does not amount to obstruction as the peon has not persisted in the performance of his duties and is not obstructed as such. A I R 1950 Pat 544 (544) (Pr 6].

——S. 186—Obstruction—Nature of.

The word 'obsruction' does not mean 'physical obstruction' and differs according to the nature of duty that a public servant has to discharge. Thus, where a public servant has to search the stock of sugar and has to seize certain quantity of it, placing of obstacles on the way to sugar godown making any vehicular traffic to it impossible and the attitude of resistance on the part of the accused who is the general manager of the Company amounts to 'obstruction' within the meaning of S. 186, even though he has actually used no physical force and the stocks are in fact seized and removed with the help of the police : Case law referred. AIR 1950 Pat 436 (439) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 17) (DB).

——Ss. 186 and 353 — Taxation Officer has no right under provisions of E. P. General Sales Tax Act (1948), to insist on production of account books after refusal by dealer to produce — His act is illegal and presence at shop after refusal is as trespasser —

Hence even if he was pushed out of shop, dealer or persons assisting him cannot be said to have committed offences under sections. AIR 1928 Lah 328 and AIR 1960 A P 110. Foll. ILR (1965) 1 Punj 242: 1965 (2) Cr L J 116 : AIR 1965 Punj 264 (266) (Pr 9).

3. Complaint — Necessity of and what is.

——S. 186 — Offence under — Report by Deputy Superintendent of Opium to Police—Charge sheet submitted by Police to Magistrate on basis of that report — No complaint within S. 4 (1) (h) — Conviction was illegal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). AIR 1952 Him·Pra 32.

——S. 186 — Cr. P. C. (5 of 1898), S. 195 (1) (a) (b) (c)—Complaint by Court—Competency,

No complaint for an offence under S. 186 of the Penal Code can be filed by Court, as S. 476, Cr. P. Code, applies only to cases falling within S. 195 (1) (b) and (c) of the Cr. P. Code and S. 186, Penal Code, does not fall under S. 195 (1) (b) or (c) but only under S. 195 (1) (a). (1951) 1 M L J 290 : 1951 Mad W N (Cri) 59 (1) : 1951 Mad W N 231 (1) : 53 Cr L J 1210 : AIR 1952 Mad 607 (608) (Pr 1).

——S. 186 — Report by forester to D. E. O. about obstruction to execution of search warrant—D. F. O. in his turn reporting the matter to the Police—Police after investigation chargesheeting accused under S. 186 — Absence of complaint in writing of officer concerned. Cognisance without complaint in writing by concerned officer was fatal to the prosecution. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1954 Cri L J 240 : AIR 1954 Orissa 175.

4. Practice and procedure.

——S. 186 — Criminal Procedure Code, S. 195 (1) (a) — Application for framing additional charge under S. 186 along with copy of complaint by officer concerned—Provision of S. 195 (1) (a) not complied —No cognisance can be taken of the offence.

The accused was prosecuted under S. 353, Indian Penal Code. During the trial the Police Prosecutor filed an application for framing additional charge under S. 186, Indian Penal Code along with a copy of the complaint of the concerned Police Officer. Original charge-sheet was not however signed by this Police Officer.

Held, that the mandatory provisions of S. 195 (1) (a) were not complied with as a complaint in writing of the officer concerned was not filed and the Court could not take cognisance of such offence. AIR 1943 All 6; AIR 1950 Nag 12, Dist. (Conviction under S. 186, Indian Penal Code set aside; conviction under S. 353 maintained). 1965 Mah L J (Notes) 35.

——S. 186 — Practice and procedure—Offence under —Magistrate cannot take cognisance of the offence unless there is a complaint by public servant concerned or by some other person to whom he is subordinante. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1956 Cri L J 524 : AIR 1956 Cal 118.

——S. 186—Requirements of—Accused acquitted for offence under S. 353, Penal Code—Accused can again be charged under S. 186, Penal Code for same act. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 403. 1962 Ker L T 493.

——Ss. 186, 448 and 426 — Sentence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 448. ILR (1963) Cut 42.

——S. 186—Distinct offences—Offences under Ss. 186 and 332, Penal Code are distinct offences. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. ILR (1962) Cut 610.

——S. 186—Practice and procedure—Accused charged under Ss. 186 and 353 — Charge under S. 186 failed for non-compliance with S. 195, Cr. P. C. — Consequently prosecution under S. 353 also failed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. AIR 1954 Orissa 175.

——S. 186 — Decree passed against same partners of partnership business in their individual capacities — Attachment of partnership business in execution of decree against them is irregular — Officer executing the decree obstructed in execution of decree — question whether property attached belongs to partnership business is to be decided by the executing Court and not left for decision in prosecution for offences under Ss. 183 and 186, I. P. C. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S 183. 1963 B L J R 375.

——S. 186 — Practice and procedure — Conviction of accused set aside under S. 186, Penal Code for want of complaint under S. 195 (1) (a) — Conviction under S. 143, Penal Code is not barred — Prosecution under S. 143 does not require the making of a written complaint by public servant. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1960 Cri L J 987 : AIR 1960 Punj 356l.

SECTION 187

——S. 187 — Application under S. 476 (1), Criminal P. C. alleging commission of offence under S. 409, I. P. C. in proceedings before Court—Facts disclosing offence under S. 187, I. P. C. — Application not affected by mention of wrong section — S. 476 does not apply to the case.

It is well settled that the mere labelling of a petition under a particular section of the Penal Code is not very relevant if the contents of the petition are sufficient to disclose a particular offence. Thus even if an application is made under S. 476, Cr. P. C. alleging that an offence under S. 409, I. P. C. was committed in proceedings before Court, there is no bar for the Court to treat the application as one for trial of an offence under S. 187, I. P. C. if otherwise a case could be made out under that section from the facts disclosed in the application. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476 (1). 1965 (2) Cri L J 525 : AIR 1965 Orissa 180.

SECTION 188

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 188.)

1. Applicability and scope.
2. Essentials of offence under.
3. Conviction—Propriety of order.
4. 'Promulgated'—Meaning.
5. Necessity of complaint or sanction.
6. Disobedience of illegal or irregular order.
7. Practice and procedure.
8. Revision.

1. Applicability and scope.

——S. 188 — Order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Expiry of — Apprehension expected even thereafter —Fresh order promulgated by Magistrate would be continuation of the first — Such order is therefore beyond jurisdiction — Complaint under S. 188 for breach of such order is also beyond jurisdiction of the Magistrate. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144 (6). 1960 Cri L J 865 (2) : AIR 1960 All 397.

——S. 188 — Applicability — Disobedience of order under S. 145 (6), Cr. P. C.—Offence.

The section includes in its ambit both executive and judicial orders.

The word 'promulgation' in the section in essence means that the contents of the order which is promulgated should be known to the person against whom proceedings are taken under the section. The executive authorities cannot make their orders known to the public at large without adopting some form of promulgation. They do not pass any orders in a case in which they pronouce a judgment. On the other hand the pronouncement of the judgment in open

Court is a promulgation to the parties to that case. An order, whether it be judicial or executive, if it is for the purpose of maintaining public tranquillity, health, safety or convenience, its breach would be punishable under the section. Normally judicial orders, that is orders of civil, revenue or criminal Courts, affect only the right of parties and not the public and therefore it is right that such orders will not be governed by the section. But an order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code, is an exception inasmuch as it is passed for maintaining public peace and therefore its breach is punishable under the section. 1959 All W R (H C) 178 : 1959 All Cr R 204 : 1959 All L J 163.

—S. 188 — Scope and applicability — 'Disobedience causing or tending to cause etc.'

Per Mehrotra and Sahai JJ.—Orders passed in judicial proceedings by civil, revenue or criminal Courts are not governed by S. 188, Penal Code. The disobedience of an order promulgated by a public servant, which has been made punishable by S. 188, Penal Code must be a disobedience which causes or tends to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury to any person lawfully employed. This also suggests that orders contemplated under S. 188, Penal Code are orders made by public functionaries in the public interest. The disobedience of any order passed in favour of a party to the litigation by a Court may result in annoyance to the party in whose favour it has been passed, but it cannot be said that it necessarily causes or tends to cause obstruction or annoyance or injury to any person. Section 188, Penal Code, does not contemplate orders passed by civil or revenue Courts in judicial proceedings. Any breach of such orders can be adequately dealt with under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure but it cannot be said that they are orders promulgated within the meaning of S. 188, Penal Code, the disobedience of which would result into obstruction, annoyance or injury. 1956 Cri L J 1176 : 1956 All L J 607 : 1956 All W R (H C) 459 : A I R 1956 All 630 (631, 632) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——S. 188 — Scope — Disobedience of order under S. 145, Criminal P. C.—Offence—Complaint by Magistrate passing order under S. 145 or his superior is necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1958 Cri L J 1378 : AIR 1958 Andh Pra 718.

——S. 188—There must be violation of order duly promulgated — Mere order of attachment under S. 145, Criminal P. C., without prohibitory order, is not order duly promulgated.

Section 188 of Penal Code would not be attracted to a case where there is no prohibitory order served on a party. A bare order of attachment passed under S. 145, without any prohibitory order directing one of the parties not to do any acts in respect of the land, does not attract S. 188. Section 188 requires violation of an order duly promulgated. AIR 1961 Assam 94 and AIR 1960 Assam 109, Foll. 1965 (1) Cri L J 424: I L R (1964) 16 Assam 276: AIR 1965 Assam 29 (30) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——S. 188 —Applicability — Attachment order under S. 145, Criminal P. C.—Disobedience of—Offence.

An order of attachment passed under S. 145 and continued under S. 146 should not be construed to be an order forbidding the other interested parties or third parties from doing an act violation of which might come under S. 188 of the Penal Code, when there is no specific order passed on any of the parties either served or promulgated—that none of the parties will enter into possession of the property in dispute or do any act in reference thereto.

Violation of such an order can be punished by a proceeding under the Contempt of Courts Act or even by a process for criminal trespass. 1961 (2) Cri L J 64: I L R (1961) 13 Assam 414: AIR 1961 Assam 94 (95) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——S. 188—Applicability—Attachment of land before starting proceedings under S. 145, Criminal P. C.—Disobedience of such order—No offence under S. 188 is committed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145. 1960 Cri L J 891 : AIR 1960 Assam 109.

——S. 188—Applicability — Essentials — Attachment order under S. 145, Criminal P. C., not containing direction on petitioner to 'abstain from certain acts, etc.' — No finding that act of petitioner was such as to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury— Petitioner not shown to have known of order — Disobedience is not offence under S. 188 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145). 1960 Cri L J 891: AIR 1960 Assam 109 (111) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9).

——S. 188 —Attachment of land under S. 145, Criminal P. C.—Removal of crops in violation of Court's order amounts to theft — Accused would have been convicted even under S. 188, but omission, if any, in this respect did not affect legality of accused's conviction under S. 379 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. See Penal Code (1860), S. 379. 1952 Cri L J 994: AIR 1952 Assam 109.

—S. 188 — Applicability. See Penal Code (1860), S. 117. 1957 Nag L J 63.

——S. 188—Scope.

Mere disobedience under S. 188 of an order promulgated by a public servant is not in itself an offence unless it entails one or other of the consequences which the section itself mentions. 60 Cal W N 633 : 1956 Cri L J 515 : AIR 1956 Cal 102 (104) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——S. 188 — Applicability — Injunction order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Opposite party obtaining Civil Court injunction — Violation of order under S. 144, Criminal P. C.—Effect—In spite of Civil Court injunction, S. 144, Criminal P. C., order remains in force and its violation is an offence under S. 188, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144. 1955 Cri L J 1171 : AIR 1955 Cal 439.

——S. 188 — Applicability — District Magistrate not empowered to promulgate order — Contravention of order is no offence under S. 188. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 3048 (DB).

——S. 188—Applicability — Violation of order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Person arrested can apply under S. 435, Criminal P. C., before waiting for his conviction under S. 188, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144. 1961 (1) Cri L J 676 : AIR 1961 Manipur 12.

——S. 188—Applicability and scope — Promulgation of order — Proof — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 134) — Mere proof of general notification promulgating order does not satisfy requirement—Determination of question of knowledge of order — Place of residence of accused at place where order was promulgated will be taken into consideration — Due promulgation of order not admitted — Promulgation has to be proved according to law. AIR 1955 N U C (Manipur) 1836.

——S. 188 — Applicability — Mere disobedience of order—Sufficiency — Prohibitory order under S. 79, Orissa Tenancy Act — Disobedience of — Offence — (Tenancy Laws — Orissa Tenancy Act (2 of 1913), S. 79).

Where a Rent Suit Officer made a prohibitory order under S. 79 of the Orissa Tenancy Act for appraisement and division of the crop in respect of a plot and the accused having disobeyed the order was prosecuted under S. 188, Penal Code, but there was no evidence that his disobedience of the order caused or tended to cause any obstruction, annoyance or injury nor was there any risk thereof.

Held (1) that the case did not fall within the terms of S. 188 as there was mere disobedience of the order. AIR 1957 Orissa 214 and AIR 1950 Nag 12, Rel. on. (2) that the order passed by the Rent Suit Officer was of a civil nature and not for maintenance of public peace and security and, as such, S. 188 was inapplicable. A I R 1956 All 630, Rel. on. (1959) 25 Cut L T 264

——S. 188—Applicability — Wall under attachment under S. 146, Criminal P. C. — Repairs made on account of marriage in family—Offence — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 146).

It is not every disobedience of the Court's order that comes within the mischief of S. 188 of the Penal Code. The disobedience complained of must cause or tend to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury, etc., as stated in that section.

The wall which was under attachment under S. 146, Criminal P. C, was in a dilapidated condition. There was a marriage of a girl in the family of one of the parties and on account of this marriage ceremony the wall was repaired without the permission of the Court :

Held, that the offence under S. 188, Penal Code, was not made out and therefore, the prosecution under that section was incompetent. A I R 1939 Pat 611 and A I R 1944 Pat 213 and A I R 1955 All 423, Disting. 1960 Cri L J 387 : A I R 1960 Pat 125 (125, 126) (Prs 4, 5).

——S. 188 -Applicability and scope.

Under S. 188, Penal Code, mere disobedience of an order made by a public servant lawfully is not punishable. Thus where the only finding of the Court was that the act of the petitioner was done stealthily in the night it clearly indicated that the petitioners took some precaution to prevent it being known as to what they were doing or intended to do and their act, although disobedience of an order of the Court, was not done in circumstances which tended to cause a riot or affray 1953 B L J R 123 : 1953 Cri L J 1787 : AIR 1953 Pat 376 (376) (Prs 1, 2).

——S. 188 — Applicability — Eviction order against tenant — Tenant obtaining injunction against landlord restraining execution of order — Prosecution of tenant under S. 188, Penal Code for contravening order — Maintainability—Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947), Ss. 17 and 20.

A landlord who had obtained an eviction order against his tenant took out execution of the same under S. 17 of the Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act. The tenant thereupon filed a civil suit for declaration that the eviction order was illegal and obtained an ad interim injunction restraining the landlord from executing the order of eviction. The landlord then moved the Controller and at his instance a complaint was filed against the tenant for contravening the eviction order. The tenant was however proceeded against under S. 188, Penal Code.

Held, that S. 188, Penal Code had no application to the case as it relates to violations of orders made under the Code. The tenant having obtained an injunction from the Civil Court was fully entitled to rely upon it and refuse to vacate the house so long as it subsisted. The course adopted savours unpleasantly of a manoeuvre to evade the injunction granted by the Civil Court. This kind of thing is against the public interest and cannot be approved. Hence the prosecution must be quashed. 1952 Cri L J 1410 : AIR 1952 Pat 356 (357) (Pr 3).

——S. 188—Scope—Refusal to comply with order of injunction.

The refusal to comply with an order of injunction issued by a Civil Court is not an offence that comes under the scope of the section. Obviously the section applies to orders promulgated by public servants in respect of matters relating to safety, health or convenience of the public or in other words, to orders promulgated by public functionaries for public purposes. It does not apply to an order passed by a civil Court in respect of matters affecting the parties to a suit. The proper remedy for the disobedience of such an order is committal for contempt. 1952 Ker L T 547 : 1953 Cri L J 1421 : A I R 1953 Trav-Co 350 (351) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

2. Essentials of offence under.

——S. 188 -- Order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Disobedience of — Punishment—Constitutionality of order is to be judged in conjunction with S. 188 through which it is enforced and not in isolation — A mere disobedience of the order is not enough for conviction under S. 188, disobedience must cause or tend to cause obstruction, annoyance, or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury to any person lawfully employed or danger to human life, health or safety or a riot or affray — (Constitution of India, Part III). See Criminal P C. (1898), S. 144. 1956 Cri L J 1026 : AIR 1956 All 481 (DB).

——S. 188 — Order of attachment under S. 146 Criminal P. C. —Encroachment on attached land by one of the parties to dispute — No offence under S. 188 is committed. 1956 All W R (HC) 393

——S. 188 — Infringement of order under S. 145, Criminal P. C.

Under S. 188 it is not necessary that annoyance is actually caused; it is sufficient if the infringement has a tendency to cause annoyance. The act done by the accused, i.e., of taking forcible possession in spite of an order under S. 145 (6), Criminal P. C., passed against them has a tendency to annoy the complainant. 1951 All L J 710 : 1951 All W R (HC) 530 : 1951 All Cr C 140 : 1951 R D (HC) 297 : 52 Cri L J 1508 : AIR 1951 All 828 (829) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——S. 188—Mere disobedience of order—Offence—Mental annoyance is not sufficient.

Mere disobedience is not an offence under S. 188, Penal Code. Unless the consequence of the act of disobedience is proved, a person cannot be convicted under that section. In order to establish that annoyance was the result of the disobedience of the order, there must be some proximity between the conduct of the accused and disobedience. The annoyance has to be proved as a fact: mere mental annoyance of the authorities concerned does not come within S. 188, Penal Code. 1960 Cri L J 215 : AIR 1960 Assam 20 (21, 22) (Pt A) (Prs 2a, 4).

——S. 188—Essentials of offence—Proof—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195).

The ingredients of S. 188, Penal Code require: (1) That there must be an order promulgated by a public servant. (2) That the public servant must have been lawfully empowered to promulgate such order (3) That a person having knowledge of such order and directed by such order (a) to abstain from a certain act, or (b) to take certain order with certain property in his possession, or under his management, has disobeyed such direction. (4) That such disobedience causes or tends to cause (i) obstruction, annoyance, or injury, or risk of it, to any person lawfully employed, or (ii) danger to human life, health or safety, or (iii) a riot or affray.

A complaint in writing of the public servant concerned or of some other public servant to whom he is subordinate is required. A prosecution under this section should not be launched unless all the elements necessary for a conviction are present. A complaint for an alleged disobedience of the order under S. 144, Criminal P. C., must show that the disobedience caused or tended to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury or a riot.

Out of all these requirements the most essential is that no prosecution can be instituted under this section without the personal complaint of the public servant concerned : S. 195, Criminal P. C. 1959 Cri L J 328 : (1959) 1 Mad L J 135 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 157 : AIR 1959 Mad 89 (93, 94) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 12. 13).

——S. 188 — Order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Order does not affect legitimate activities of citizen— Violation of any part of the order by itself does not amount to an offence—It is only when such an order is taken along with S. 188, Penal Code, that the violation becomes an offence. See Constitution of India, Art. 19. 1961 (1) Cri L J 676 : A I R 1961 Manipur 12.

——S. 188—Essentials under — No evidence of causing obstruction, annoyance or injury — Validity of conviction.

Section 188, Penal Code, requires four ingredients: (1) there must be an order promulgated by a public servant, (2) the public servant must have been lawfully empowered to promulgate such order, (3) a person must disobey such an order and (4) such disobedience must cause or tend to cause obstruction, annoyance, or injury, or risk of it, to any person lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety, or a riot or affray. Where, therefore, there is no evidence to show that the disobedience tended to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury to any person lawfully employed there can be no conviction for an offence under S. 188, Penal Code. Case law referred. 52 Cri L J 1526 : A I R 1951 Mys 121 (122) (Pr 4).

——S. 188 — Order under S. 36 (4), Legal Practitioners Act (1879).

Proceedings under the Legal Practitioners Act are quasi-criminal proceedings and a person disobeying an order passed by the District Judge under S. 36 (4) of that Act is liable to be punished under S. 188, Penal Code provided he is aware of the order. 1950 Nag L J 215 : 51 Cri L J 1007 : 1950 All W R (Supp) 75 : ILR (1950) Nag 449 : A I R 1950 Nag 158 (159) (Pr 6).

——S. 188—Person refusing to get himself inoculated against Cholera on ground that he had taken preventive homeopathic medicine — Person contravenes provisions of paras 7 and 8 of Regulations made under Epidemic Diseases Act and hence is guilty under S. 188, Penal Code. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 238 : ILR (1963) Cut 640 : 1968 (2) Cri L J 659 : AIR 1963 Orissa 216 (217) (Prs 3, 6).

——S. 188—Complaint under—Mere disobedience of order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. not sufficient—Other ingredients must be present—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144.

In a complaint under S. 188, I. P. Code the mere allegation that the accused had disobeyed the order under S. 144, Criminal P. C., is not sufficient. It has further to be shown that the disobedience caused or tended to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury to any person lawfully employed, or that the disobedience caused or tended to cause danger to human life, health or safety, or caused or tended to cause a riot or affray. In the absence of consideration of these ingredients, the filing of a complaint for an offence under S. 188 is not legal. AIR 1922 Pat 84 and AIR 1960 Pat 125, Rel. on. 1964 B L J R 799.

——S. 188 — Disobedience to order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code—Order attaching land in dispute recorded on order sheet only — No specific direction prohibiting parties from going on land — No factual attachment made in pursuance of order — Order is not validly promulgated — Disobedience does not constitute an offence under S. 188. 1962 BLJR 405.

3. Conviction — Propriety of order.

——S. 188—Breach of an order promulgated by public servant — Conviction — There must be evidence of promulgation of order by a public servant lawfully empowered to promulgate such order. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3057.

——S. 188—Order by Ruler not to carry goods out of Kutch—Breach of—Recovering of penalty by customs authority—Punishment under S. 188.

The Notification No. 135 dated Ashad Sud 6th, Samvat 1988, reiterating an order by the Ruler prohibiting carrying of goods out of Kutch except by recognised routes is not superseded by the Land Customs Act, 1948, and the persons carrying bullocks through the little desert, by passing customs outposts, commit an offence under S. 188, Penal Code. The fact that the customs authority recovers penalty from such person for the evasion of customs out-posts does not dispense with punishment under the Penal Code for the same offence. 51 Cri L J 1330 : AIR 1950 Kutch 62 (63) (Prs 2, 3, 5).

——S. 188— Conviction — Validity — Order under S. 144, Cri. P. Code — Disobedience of— Shouting of slogans causing annoyance to Magistrate and police going to preserve law and order— Conviction under S. 188, valid. See Penal Code (1860), S. 143. 1962 (1) Cr L J 827 (Manipur).

——S. 188, First part—Burden of proof.

For a conviction under S. 188 first part it has to be proved not merely that the accused disobeyed the prohibitory order under S. 144, Criminal P. C knowing of the same but that the said disobedience caused or tendered to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury or risk of obstruction to person lawfully employed. It was for the prosecution to establish that. 1961 (2) Cr L J 583 (Manipur).

——S. 188—Likely consequences of breach of order not proved—Conviction under S. 188 improper—Gap not to be filled by resort to judicial notice.

There can be no conviction under S. 188 unless the likely consequences of the breach of the order are proved affirmatively. The gap cannot be filled up by resort to judicial notice. It is a fact to be proved : AIR 1931 Cal 122, Rel. on. 51 Cri L J 254 : 1950 Nag L J 211 : ILR (1949) Nag 976: AIR 1950 Nag 12 (13) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——S. 188 — Order under S. 144, Criminal P. C, restraining both parties (A and B) from going over land with standing crops—A going there and cutting crops in presence of B — Though B does not resist, A commits offence under section as riot or affray is likely consequence of his disobedience—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144.

Where in a proceeding under S. 144, Criminal P. C., an order is promulgated restraining both the parties A and B from going over the land in dispute over which paddy crops are standing and A in disobedience of that order goes over there and in the presence of B cuts and takes away the crops, even though a riot does not take place by B's non-resistance, an inference that the disobedience of A tended to result in a riot or affray is not unjustified for his conviction under S. 188, Penal Code : AIR 1934 Oudh 162 and AIR 1940 Pat 446 and AIR 1951 All 828, Rel. on. 1953 BLJR 522 and AIR 1953 Pat 376 and AIR 1931 Cal 122 and AIR 1949 Cal 677 and 4 Cal W N 226 and AIR 1922 Pat 84 and 14 Cal W N 234 and AIR 1950 Nag 12 and AIR 1960 Assam 20, Distinguished. 1964 (2) Cri L J 704 : 1965 B L J R 180 : AIR 1964 Pat 526 (529) (Pr 9) (DB).

4. Promulgated — Meaning.

——S. 188—'Promulgate'—Meaning of—(Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 145 (b).)

Per Agarwala and Desai, JJ., Mehrotra, J., contra.—The word "promulgate" connotes two ideas: (i) making known of an order, and (ii) the means by which the order is made known must be by something done openly and in public. Private information will not be "promulgation." But the law does not prescribe any particular mode in which an order is made known openly, publicly. It may be by beat of drum; it may be by publication in Gazette; it may be by reading out an order openly in public. An order duly pronounced in open Court must be deemed to be duly promulgated so far as the parties to the case are concerned. Therefore an order of the criminal Court under S 145 (b) having been passed in the presence of the parties, must be deemed to have been duly promulgated within the meaning of S. 188 qua the parties to the litigation in the Court. 1955 Cri L J 1111 : ILR (1955) 2 All 547 : AIR 1955 All 423 (425, 429, 431) (Prs 6, 29, 45) (DB).

——S. 188 — "Promulgated" — Meaning of — Final order under S. 145 (6), Criminal P. C.

The word "promulgation" is not used in any narrow or technical sense in S. 188. When a judgment or order is passed in open Court, it constitutes a formal declaration to the public of the decision of the Court in the case in which the order is given or the judgment is passed. The delivery of the final order in the case under S. 145 (6) of the Code of Criminal Procedure would constitute promulgation within the meaning of S 188 as the final order is pronounced in open Court. In order to constitute promulgation under S. 188 affixation of the order on the spot or on the property which is the subject-matter of dispute or the promulgation of the order by a beat of drum is not necessary. AIR 1935 Cal 63, 13 Cal 175; 16 Cal 9, Rel. on. 1951 All Cri C 143 : 1951 All W R (H C) 582 : 1953 Cri L J 623 : AIR 1953 All 257 (258) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 188 — Order promulgated under S. 144, Cr. P. Code—Disobedience—Offence.

Mere disobedience of an order under S. 144, Cr. P. Code, does not render a person liable to punishment under S. 188, Penal Code. It must be further shown that such disobedience had either of the two tendencies described in the second and third paragraphs of that section. These tendencies have to be inferred from the proved facts and circumstances of each case and are not capable to direct proof. ILR (1957) Cut 233 : 23 Cut L T 176 : 1957 Cri L J 1151 : A I R 1957 Orissa 214 (215) (Pr 5).

5. Necessity of complaint or sanction.

——S. 188—Offence under the section made cognisable—S. 195 (1), Cr. P. Code not affected thereby—Magistrate cannot take cognisance of offence under S. 188 without complaint in writing of the public servant concerned—Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try offence under S. 188 merely on the report of public when there was no complaint by the Magistrate whose order was disobeyed. See Cri. P. Code (5 of 1898), Ss. 190 (1), 195 (1) (a). 1952 Cri L J 1034: AIR 1952 All 560.

——S. 188—Offence under—Cognizance of, without written complaint by public servant—Trial by Magistrate of such an offence on police report made to him is without jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1952 Cri L J 641 : AIR 1952 Assam 68 (DB).

——S. 188—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 — Notification by Home Minister prohibiting burial of dead body at a place other than one specified for the purpose—Trial for offence under S 188, Penal Code, for contravening the order — No written complaint by Home Secretary — Cognizance cannot be taken by Court on complaint by police. 51 Cri L J 1345 : AIR 1950 Madh-B 58 (58) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——S. 188—Annoyance.

The Collector by a disobedience of his orders under S. 3 (2) of the Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act and the Sub-Inspector of Police lawfully employed in operations under the Act must be said to be annoyed and can file a complaint under S. 188. 1950 Mad W N 142 : (1950) 1 Mad L J 201 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 26 : 51 Cri L J 1518 : AIR 1950 Mad 599 (601) (Pt D) (Pr 5).

——S. 188—Offence under — Complaint of Court—Necessity. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. ILR (1959) Cut 555.

——S. 188—Trial for offences under Ss. 188 and 145—Non-compliance with S 195 Criminal P. C., in respects of offence under S. 188—Conviction under S. 188 set aside—Conviction under S. 145 held did not stand—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. See Penal Code (1860), S. 145. AIR 1951 Orissa 84 (DB).

——S. 188—Offence under made cognisable by S. 10 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act 1932—Provisions of S. 195, Criminal P. C are not rendered nugatory thereby — Complaint by public authority concerned is essential — Non-compliance with S. 195, Criminal P. C., is fatal to prosecution—Criminal P. C. (1898), S 195—Criminal Law Amendment Act (1932), S. 10. AIR 1951 Orissa 84 (85) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Ss. 188 and 379 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a) — Person committing offence under S. 188, committing additional offence of theft—Court can take cognizance of the offence even in absence of complaint by public servant—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a).

Although it is true that before a Court takes cognizance of an offence under S. 188 I. P. Code, there must be a complaint by the public servant concerned under S. 195 (1) (a), Criminal P. C., it cannot be said that if a person commits an offence under S. 188, he cannot be put upon his trial for any of the offences which he commits unless and until the public servant files a complaint.

Where an additional offence of theft has been committed by the party committing an offence under S. 188, the Court can take cognizance of the offence even in absence of a complaint by the public servant. 1963 B L J R 211.

——S. 188 — Sanction for prosecution of an offence under not necessary—All that is necessary for cognisance of an offence under S. 188, I. P C. is that there must be a complaint in writing of public servant concerned or of some public servant to whom he is subordinate. See Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 195. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 99.

6. Disobedience of illegal or irregular orders.

——S. 188—Person arrested for disobedience of order under S. 144, Criminal P. C.—Fact that order is vague and widely worded is no ground for releasing person on habeas corpus—It may be ground for challenging it during his trial under S 188, I. P. C. See Constitution of India, Art. 226. 1956 Cri L J 1026 : AIR 1956 All 481 (DB).

——S. 188—Petitioners holding meeting peacefully in order to vindicate their public right under Manipur State Constitution Act — Order on analogy of S. 144, Cr P. C., passed — Order held illegal— Detention for offences under Ss. 143, 145 and 188—Detention held illegal and the order of commitment under Ss. 143, 145 and 188, I. P C., must be quashed — Petitioners set at liberty—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144)—(Penal Code (1860), Ss. 143, 145). See Constitution of India, Art. 226. 1955 Cri L J 1603 : AIR 1955 Manipur 41.

——S. 188—Proceedings under S 144, Criminal P. C.—Attachment cannot be ordered — Consequence of disobedience of an order under S. 144 is not a prosecution under S. 353 or S. 379, Penal Code, but one under S. 188, Penal Code. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144. 1953 Cri L J 1198 : AIR 1953 Vindh Pra 25.

7. Practice and procedure.

——S. 188 — Procedure. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1957 Nag L J 63.

——S. 188 — Disobedience of order promulgated — Prosecution for — Accused can plead worthlessness of order and question it on merits.

It is open to a person charged with disobedience to an order promulgated by a public servant lawfully empowered to promulgate such order, to plead in defence that the order though made with the jurisdiction was utterly wrong or improper on the merits. The accused persons cannot be precluded from pleading the worthlessness of the order in question on the merits although a Court trying a charge will proceed on the footing that the order, if made with jurisdiction, is 'prima facie' a good and valid order but that position is liable to be challenged by the accused in his defence and cannot be held to be sacrosanct. 6 Cal 88, Rel. on.

(Note. — It was held that the petitioners had succeeded in showing that the ex parte order of injunction was a highly improper order which should never have been made in the circumstances of the case). 60 Cal W N 633 : 1956 Cri L J 515 : AIR 1956 Cal 102 (105) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——S. 188 — Service of order by affixing copy on bamboo pole near place of dispute—No proof that personal service or service on adult member could not be effected—Service is no service—Breach of order is no offence — No proceedings under S. 188, I. P. C., can therefore be commenced for the breach of the order when there was nothing to show that the accused was aware of the order before he was charged. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 164. 51 Cri L J 1575 : AIR 1951 Cal 207 (DB).

——S. 188—Procedure—Case under S. 188, I. P. Code to be tried as summons case. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 241. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 3057.

——S. 188 — Possession of successful party in civil suit confirmed in subsequent proceedings under S. 145—Unsuccessful party interfering with possession—Action under S. 107 against him is the proper course—Direction for prosecuting him under S. 188, I. P. Code for past incidents, not proper course. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 107. ILR (1963) Cut 771.

——S. 188 — Prosecution under for breach of order under S. 144, Criminal P. C. — Accused not party to proceedings under S. 144 — Prosecution not legal. 1964 B L J R 799.

——S 188 — Practice and procedure — Mere disobedience of order promulgated by public servant does not constitute offence under section — Independent of proof of disobedience, there must be some evidence to prove the consequence of alleged disobedience and a finding based on it. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 5703.

8. Revision.

——S. 188—Sanction to prosecute for offence under S. 188, Penal Code.

S. 476, Criminal P. C. does not apply to an offence under S. 188, Penal Code—Order according sanction to prosecute for that offence is not appealable — As the order is not open to appeal a revision petition is maintainable against it. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1953 Cri L J 1421 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 350.

SECTION 189

——Ss. 189, 186 — Applicability — Ingredients to offence.

As the Traffic Constable was trying to clear the congestion from the road the accused became angry, showed him red eyes and asked him to give him his number. The accused persisted in asking for the number of the police constable even when the constable was engaged in clearing the congestion on the road and he placed his hand on the uniform of the police and was pushing him, thus obstructing him in the discharge of his public functions. Held, that the mere demand for the number of the constable was no threat of an injury nor did the pushing amount to a threat of injury although it might amount to an assault. S. 186 was the proper section to apply and not S. 189. (1958) 1 Cal L J 81.

SECTION 190

——Ss. 190, 193—Scope—Statement on oath - Statement continued on subsequent date — Oath also continues — Statement not read over to witness — Conviction not affected.

Before a person can be convicted for giving false evidence under S. 193, Penal Code, it has to be proved that he was legally bound by an oath, or by an express provision of law to state the truth, or being bound by law to make a declaration upon any subject, makes any statement which is false. Where a statement made by a witness on a certain date on solemn affirmation before the Court was continued on a subsequent date, it must be presumed that the oath which was administered to the witness on the first date continued to bind his statement and he continued to be on oath till the evidence was concluded. The fact that the statement was not read over to the witness as required by S. 360, Criminal P. C. is curable and not fatal to his conviction under S. 193. AIR 1927 P C. 44 and AIR 1950 All 501 and AIR 1952 Sau 7, Rel. on. AIR 1928 Lah 125, Not foll. 66 Pun L R 65 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 544 : AIR 1964 Punj 211 (212, 213) (Prs 2, 3, 6).

SECTION 191

——Ss. 191, Expln. 2 and 193 — 'Whoever being legally bound by an oath or by an express provision of law to state the truth' — Meaning of — (Oaths Act (1873), Ss. 4, 5 and 14).

The opening words of S. 191, I. P. Code 'whoever being legally bound by an oath or by an express provision of law to state the truth .....' do not support the submission that a man, who is not bound under the law to make an affidavit, can, if he does make one, deliberately refrain from stating truthfully the facts which are within his knowledge. Whenever a man makes a statement in Court on oath he is bound to state the truth and if he does not, he makes himself liable under the provisions of S. 193, I. P. Code. It is no defence to say that he was not bound to enter the witness box. A defendant or even a plaintiff is not bound to go into the witness-box but if either of them chooses to do so he cannot, after he has taken the oath to make a truthful statement, state anything which is false.

In an application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by S's brother it was alleged that S was illegally detained in police custody by the appellant, a police Sub-Inspector. In his return the appellant filed a false affidavit denying that S was ever arrested by police or was in his custody.

Held, (i) that the appellant was legally bound to place facts and circumstances before the Court to justify S's detention and this could be done by an affidavit, (ii) that Ss. 4 and 5 read with S. 14 of Oaths Act show that the High Court or its officers were authorised to administer the oath and as the appellant was stating facts as evidence before the High Court he had to make the oath or affirmation and was bound to state the truth. Since the statement made by him in the affidavit was found to be false he had committed the offence under S. 193, I. P. Code. (iii) That the fact that the affidavit filed by the appellant was affirmed as being true to the best of knowledge and belief did not affect the question of his guilt inasmuch as even a false statement as to belief would fall under Expln. 2 to S. 191 AIR 1947 All 235, Overruled. Ranjit Singh v. State of Pepsu (now Punjab), 26 Cut LT 576: (1960) 2 Ker LR 541: (1959) Supp (2) S C R 727: 1959 Mad W N (SC) 86: 37 Mys L J 869: ILR (1959) Punj 1709: 1959 All W R (HC) 371: 1959 S C J 905: 1959 Cri L J 1124: 1959 All Cri R 298: 1959 Mad L J (Cri) 618: (1959) 2 M L J (S C) 121: (1959) 2 Andh W R (S C) 121: (1959) 2 S C A 552: AIR 1959 S C 843 (846, 847) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6, 8).

——S. 191—Perjury—A witness perjures himself not only when he does not state the truth, but also when he states something which is not the whole truth. (1963) 7 Fac L R 30 (All).

——Ss. 191 and 193 — Criminal P. C. (5 of 1898), S. 162 – Statement before Sessions Court contradictory to earlier statement made to police — Witness, whether liable for perjury — Criminal P. C. (5 of 1898), S. 479-A.

The petitioner, a witness before the Sessions Court in a criminal trial, made a statement contradictory to the one he had earlier made to the police, which he explained was due to pressure of the police. The Sessions Judge filed a complaint under S 479-A, Criminal P. C. for an offence under S. 193, I. P. C. Petitioner preferred a revision to the High Court.

Held, the burden is on the prosecution to prove that the statement made by the petitioner in his deposition in the Sessions Court was false as defined in S. 191, Indian Penal Code. It cannot be presumed that, in the statements made before the police the petitioner spoke the truth and it is not possible to hold on the basis of that assumption that, in the deposition before the Sessions Court he gave false evidence and thereby committed offence under S. 193, I. P. Code. Assumption is not permissible under the law. If there is no basis to positively hold that the statements were false and if the possibility existed of their being either true or false, there can be no positive finding that the deposition in the Sessions Court is false and the accused would have to be given the benefit of doubt. (1965) 1 Andh W R 465: 1965 M L J (Cri) 358: 1965 (2) Cri L J 599: AIR 1965 Andh Pra 402 (404, 405) (Prs 6 to 9).

——S. 191 — Accused filing statement containing list of property according to direction of Deputy Commissioner in miscellaneous proceedings before him —To constitute offence under S. 193 it is necessary to show that the list supplied by accused amounted to declaration which he was bound by law to make. See Penal Code (1860), S. 193. 1954 Cri L J 1838: AIR 1954 Assam 259 (DB).

——S. 191 –Scope –Giving false evidence.

S. 191, Penal Code only defines what amounts to 'giving a false evidence'. The definition has been enacted for the purposes of the provisions of the Penal Code, and it cannot be said that it contains any general principle of law of universal application as such. That a person should always tell truth is a moral principle, but it cannot be said to be a legal principle as such. Whenever the Legislature requires a person to tell truth, it has so enacted in various enactments. It is only when it has been so enacted and a person fails to tell truth that he comes within the mischief of the provisions of the Penal Code. 67 Bom L R 317: ILR (1965) Bom 648: 1965 (2) Cri L J 616: 1965 Mah L J 705: AIR 1965 Bom 195 (207) (Pt E) (Pr 38) (DB).

——S. 191— False statement in application for transfer—Petitioner is bound to state truth by his solemn affirmation in affidavit — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 24) — (Oaths Act (1873), Ss. 5-A and 14). AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 2906 (DB).

——S. 191 — 'Evidence' in section is not confined to oral evidence only — A statement whether verbal or otherwise is within its meaning. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 2906 (DB).

——S. 191—"Being legally bound by an oath"—There must be valid and legal oath administered by person authorised by law to administer it — Person to whom oath is administered must be person competent in law to whom such oaths can be administered. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 2906 (DB).

——S. 191—"Being legaliy bound by oath" — Oath must have been taken before the statement in question was made. AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 2906 (DB).

——S. 191—False affidavit — Affidavit filed by complainant against fact admitted in complaint itself must be considered to be false. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3073.

——Ss. 191 and 193 — Scope — 'Intentionally gives false evidence'—False statement need not be material to case. AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 3980 (DB).

——S. 191—Filing of false affidavit — Duty of Court stated. 1962 (1) Cri L J 478: AIR 1961 Punj 185.

——Ss. 191, 182—Applicability — Information given under S. 182 must be information which accused knows or believes to be false — To have reason to believe it to be false is not sufficient. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 182. (1961) All W R (Sup) 59: 63 Punj L R 566.

——Ss. 191 and 193 — Complaint under — When can be filed —Persons swearing false affidavits in writ proceedings—High Court expressing opinion that it was satisfied about false swearing—No opinion about their having given false evidence intentionally and for prosecution under S. 193, Penal Code, however expressed — Complaint cannot be filed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1961 (2) Cr L J 796: AIR 1961 Raj 268 (DB).

SECTION 192

●——Ss. 192 to 195 –Prosecution under—Procedure for — S. 479-A may be resorted to in case falling within first paragraph of S. 193 and Ss. 194 and 195. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1964 (1) Cri L J 555: AIR 1964 S C 725.

——S. 192—Scope — Requirements of offence under —Meaning of 'taken by law' and 'evidence'—Cochin Municipal Act (18 of 1113 T E), S. 195—Proceedings before Executive Authority of Municipality covered by section.

Section 192 does not insist that the proceedings in which false or fabricated evidence is produced should be either judicial or quasi judicial; nor does it say that it does not apply where proceedings are non-judicial. A proceeding before the Executive Authority of a municipality, therefore, satisfies the requirements of the section and a person producing false documentary evidence in a proceeding before the Executive Authority as such would be guilty of an offence under section as such a proceeding is before a public servant as such. The section thus contemplates even a proceeding which is non-judicial. Expression 'taken by law' in the section only means 'taken under the provisions of any law'; similarly the word 'evidence' as used in the section is used in its ordinary sense, namely, 'information (given personally or drawn from documents etc.) tending to establish a fact. 6 Cal 482; 7 Cal L R 356; AIR 1918 Cal 61, Rel. on. 1960 Ker L J 1307.

——S. 192—Offence under — Essential of — Cochin Municipal Act (17 of 1113 T E), S. 195 — Nature of proceedings under.

For an offence under S. 192 it is essential that there should be an intention on the part of the accused that the false statement in the document produced or relied on, assuming that it was false, may cause any person to entertain opinion touching a point material to the result of a proceeding. Such intention is an essential element of the offence. Since the Executive Officer of a municipality has no authority to investigate whether an applicant for permission to build has a right to build on the land in question, production of a false document by the applicant would not make him fall within the mischief of S. 192. 1960 Ker L J 1307.

——S. 192 — Police fabricating evidence— Impropriety of.

The police are too often tempted to introduce padding in a case in their over-zealousness to establish a charge which they believe to be true in support of which the evidence in their possession is weak. But this practice has to be condemned in no uncertain terms. AIR 1936 Lah 380, Rel. on. 1957 M P C 541 : (1957) M P L J 837 : 1958 Cr L J 190 : A I R 1958 Madh Pra 55 (59) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 192—Fabrication of false evidence.

In a proceeding under S. 144, Criminal P. C. between a raiyat A and B who claimed to be in possession as a bataidar A produced an antedated deed of exchange of title between him and another raiyat C under which A was authorised to be in possession of the disputed plot but there was no recital of past possession.

Held, that there being no recital of any kind as to past possession in the deed of exchange the deed was not relevant for the purpose of deciding a dispute of actual possession between A and his bataidar B. The deed of exchange even if antedated, therefore could not be held to be the fabrication of false evidence within the meaning of S. 192, Penal Code. 1955 B L J R 453 : 1956 Cr L J 647 : A I R 1956 Pat 154 (156) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

SECTION 193

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 193.)

1. Scope.
2. "Intentionally gives false evidence."
3. "In any stage of a judicial proceeding."
4. Depositions.
5. False affidavit.
6. Contradictory statements.
7. Complaint.
8. Proof.
9. Practice and procedure.
10. Charge.
11. Conviction and sentence.

1. Scope.

— S. 193—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 479-A, 476 — Scope — S. 479-A may be resorted to in case falling within first paragraph of S. 193, Penal Code and Ss. 194 and 195 — Offence under S. 471, Penal Code — S. 479-A (1) not applicable — Resort to S. 476 proper. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1964 (1) Cri L J 555 : AIR 1964 S C 725.

— S. 193 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 195 (1) (b) and 195 (1) (c)—Expressions "in relation to" in S. 195 (1) (b) and "in respect of" in S. 195 (1) (c) — Meaning of — Sale deed got executed fictitiously by three parties —One of them starting mutation proceedings on basis of such sale deed—Dismissal of mutation application — Private complaint under Ss. 467 and 471, Penal Code — Bar of — Offence was in relation to mutation proceedings — S. 195 (1) (b) held applied — Even if allegations disclosed offences under Ss. 467 and 471 and not under S. 193, Penal Code, private complaint would be barred under S. 195 (1) (c). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b). AIR 1966 All 124.

— Ss. 193, 195 — Scope — Section 195 is an aggravated form of offence contemplated under S. 193 See Penal Code (1860), S. 195. A I R 1966 All 66 (DB).

——Ss. 193 and 195 —Alleged substitution of original F. I. R. — Circumstances and evidence indicating allegation to be justified — Offences under S. 193 of the Code held clearly appeared to have been committed and further inquiry by Magistrate held needed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1966 Cri L J 115 : 1965 All Cri R 229 : AIR 1966 All 66 (DB).

——S. 193 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b) — Falsification of public record (false entry in birth and death register) by public servant — Offences under Ss. 193 and 218, Penal Code are distinct — Prosecution of public servant for offence under S. 218 alone without sanction not barred. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b). 1962 (1) Cri L J 240 : A I R 1962 All 150.

——S. 193 — Case under S. 193, I. P. C. — Section 479-A, Cr. P. C. does not apply. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A 1959 Cri L J 1279 : A I R 1959 Andh Pra 567 (DB).

——S. 193 — Scope — Finding should be recorded at time of delivery of judgment or final order disposing of proceedings, although formal complaint can be made subsequently after giving witness an opportunity of being heard. See Cr. P Code (1898), S. 479-A. 1958 Cri L J 1289 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 657.

——S. 193—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 476-B and 476 — Offence under S. 193, Penal Code — Order under S. 476-B — No enquiry and preliminary order under S. 476 — When the Judge records his finding that it is expedient in the interests of justice, that the persons concerned should be prosecuted and directs the institution of complaint under S. 193, it is an order in conformity with provisions of Ss 476-B and 476 even though he may inappropriately call it a "report". See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476-B. AIR 1953 Madh Bha 12.

——Ss. 193, 165-A, 109 and 214 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195-B — Municipal employees attesting panchnama of seizure of 'ganja' — Attesting is not as municipal employees but as witnesses — Defence trying to win over attesting witnesses and constable who seized 'ganja' — Offence punishable under Ss. 109 and 193 — S. 214 is inapplicable — Prosecution can be on complaint by Court where case pending — Trial is vitiated. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 11.

——S. 193—Applicability—Undertaking in guardianship proceedings by mother that she would not marry her daughter during pendency of proceedings — Breach — Held that undertaking given to Court would amount to a contempt and not to a false declaration as contemplated by S. 191 punishable under S. 193. See Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 476. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 138.

——S. 193—Scope - 'Person appearing as witness' — Interpretation of—Section to be strictly construed — Person giving false evidence by affidavit but not physically appearing is not person appearing as witness — Complaint against him must be made under S. 476 and not under S. 479-A. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1965 (1) Cri L J 311 : A I R 1965 Mad 100 (DB).

——S. 193 — Scope—Application praying for lodging of complaint under Ss 209 and 193, I. P. C or both read with S. 109 — Lodging of a complaint under S. 209, I. P. C. read with S. 109 I. P. C. not prohibited. ILR (1962) 2 Punj 504.

2. "Intentionally gives false evidence."

——S. 193 — Applicability — False confession — If 'false evidence'—Accused if witness—(Evidence Act (1872) Ss 3, 157).

Before S. 193 can be invoked it should be found that the person concerned has given false evidence. An accused who has made a false confession under S. 164, Cr. P. Code cannot be said to have given false evidence within the meaning of S. 193. Accused making a false confession is not a witness within the scope of the definition of 'evidence' in S. 3, Evidence Act. Section 157, Evidence Act has no bearing on this question. 1959 Andh L T 512 : (1959) 2 Andh W R 326 : 1959 Cri L J 1279 : 1959 M L J (Cr) 757 : ILR (1959) Andh Pra 681 : A I R 1959 Andh Pra 567 (568) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——S. 193 — Scope — 'Intentionally gives false evidence' – False statement need not be material to case. See Penal Code (1860), S. 191. A I R 1955 N U C (Orissa) 3980 (DB).

3. "In any stage of a judicial proceeding."

——S. 193 - Applicability — Contradictory statements on oath under S 164, Criminal P. C. and at preliminary enquiry — Complaint under S. 476, Criminal P. C —Conviction—Legality — Proceedings under Chap. XIV, Criminal P. C. — 'If judicial proceeding.'

Where a person had given two contradictory statements on oath, one under S. 164, Criminal Procedure Code and the other at the preliminary enquiry and had admitted in the course of his deposition before the committing Court that the statement he made before the Sub-Magistrate under S. 164 was false, and a complaint was filed under S. 476, Criminal P.. C. for an offence under S. 193, Indian Penal Code and the accused was acquitted by the trial Magistrate on the grounds (i) that the statement recorded under S. 164, Criminal P. C was made only during investigation and not during a judicial proceeding, and (ii) that the case would stand only if it were proved that what the accused stated before the District Magistrate was false.

On appeal by the State against the said acquittal, held:— (1) An investigation under Chapter XIV of the Criminal P. C. is a stage of judicial proceeding and a person who makes on an oath statements which he knew to be false before a Magistrate conducting the investigation, gives false evidence and commits an offence under S. 193. Penal Code. (2) Once a complaint has been laid and it has not been challenged in appeal and the trial ensues, it is not open to the accused to try to put the clock back and contend that the laying of the complaint itself was not expedient in the interest of justice. Once the case comes up for trial, the question which of the two statements is false is really not germane to the question whether the accused has intentionally given false evidence on oath. That the accused might have given the first statement under police pressure and had stated the truth in his later statement have no relevancy in adjudicating the question whether or not an offence under S. 193, Penal Code, has been made out. Such considerations may have a bearing on the question of sentence but not on the question of guilt. Illustration (b) to S. 238, Criminal P. C., makes the position crystal clear. It matters not which of the two statements is false.

On the facts of the instant case, held that the accused had intentionally given false evidence in a judicial proceeding and the order of acquittal is wrong. (1958) 2 Andh W R 189 : 1958 M L J (Cr) 649 : 1958 Andh L T 813 : 1959 Cri L J 564 : I L R (1958) Andh Pra 614 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 250 (251) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——S. 193 — Applicability — False evidence outside judicial proceedings.

The argument that S. 193, Penal Code, applies only to false evidence given in judicial proceedings applies only to sub-paragraph (1) of that section and does not apply to sub-paragraph (2). I L R (1958) Mad 87 : 70 Mad L W 666 : 1957 M L J (Cr) 528 : (1957) 2 M L J 348 : 1958 Cri L J 197 : AIR 1958 Mad 69 (70) (Pr 6).

——S. 193 — 'In any stage of judicial proceedings' — Statement of witness recorded under S. 164 — Does not amount to evidence in any stage of judicial proceeding within S 193, I. P. C See Criminal P. C. (1898), S 479-A. 1963 (2) Cri L J 284 : AIR 1963 Manipur 21.

——S. 193—Applicability — Statement under S. 164, Criminal P. C. — Section not attracted — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 164.

The statement made by a person under S. 164 of Criminal P. C., cannot be said to have been made in relation to judicial proceedings so as to attract the provisions of S. 193, Penal Code. A Magistrate recording the statement under S. 164 is not authorised by law to take evidence for the simple reason that he is not charged with the duty of deciding any case and there is no matter to be proved or disproved before him. The provisions of the Evidence Act make it clear that no person can claim the status of a witness except in relation to a proceeding before a Court. 31 Cut L T 925 : I L R (1965) Cut 510.

4. Depositions.

● ——Ss 193 and 191, Expln. 2 — "Whoever being legally bound by an oath or by an express provision of law to state the truth"—Meaning of, stated—Person making a statement in Court on oath is bound to state truth—Statement made by him in affidavit found to be false — He had committed offence under S 193, — (Oaths Act (1873), Ss. 4, 5 and 14) AIR 1947 All 235. Overruled. See Penal Code (1860), S. 191, Expln. 2. 1959 Cri L J 1124 : AIR 1959 S C 843.

——S. 193—Deposition containing false statement — Prosecution for perjury — Non-compliance with S. 360, Criminal P. C. — Effect of — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 360—Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 80 and 91.

Where a deposition by a witness contains a false statement, the deponent is guilty of perjury. The deposition is false notwithstanding its not being read over to the witness as required under S 360, Criminal P. C. The provisions of Penal Code relating to punishment for perjury do not pay any regard to the question whether the deposition was read over or not.

The deposition is to be produced in evidence against the deponent during his trial not for the purpose of proving its truth but for the purpose of proving that he made it. There is nothing in S 91, Evidence Act, to prevent this fact being proved without producing the deposition itself.

If a deposition is not read over to the witnesses, it is only an irregularity and the irregularity does not vitiate the conviction: AIR 1918 L B 129; 6 Cal 762; 23 Mad 308; 51 Cal 236; AIR 1924 Cal 705 and 12 C W N 845, Dissent. 1950 All L J 277 : 1950 All W R 323 : 1950 All Cri Cas 94 : 51 Cri L J 1346 : AIR 1950 All 501 (502, 503) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 10, 11).

——S. 193—Applicability — Deposition — Failure to remember prior statement.

The mere failure to recollect a former statement made does not involve one in the offence of perjury. AIR 1955 N U C (Andh-Pra) 5834.

——S. 193—Deposition containing false statement— Prosecution for perjury — Non-compliance with

S. 360, Criminal P. C.—Effect—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 360, 476.

Where a deposition made by a witness contains a false statement, the deponent is guilty of perjury. The deposition is false notwithstanding its not being read over to the witness as required under S. 360, Criminal P. C. The provisions of Penal Code relating to punishment for perjury do not pay any regard to the question whether the deposition was read over or not. If a deposition is not read over to the witness, it is only an irregularity and the irregularity does not vitiate the conviction AIR 1950 All 501, Foll. 1952 Cri L J 167 : AIR 1952 Sau 7 (7, 8) (Pr 1) (DB).

5. False affidavit.

——S. 193—Applicability — False affidavit—Allegation on false information.

Where in an affidavit the deponent makes certain allegations based on information conveyed to him by other persons, even if the information which was given to him was wrong he cannot be held liable unless at the time he swore to the affidavit he knew that he was wrong and in spite of that knowledge he swore the affidavit. 1955 Cr L J 1439 : AIR 1955 All 608 (609) (Prs 11, 12).

——S. 193—Applicability — Swearing a false affidavit and filing it in Court as evidence — Offence under S. 193 is committed—Fact that affidavit was not fully in conformity with O. 19, R. 8, held immaterial — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 3)—(Civil P. C. (1908), O. 19, R. 1, R. 8 (All)) —(Oaths Act (1873), S. 14). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2700.

——S. 193 — False affidavit filed by Amin of Municipality on relevant questions of fact — Prosecution under S. 193, Penal Code, desirable. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1963 (2) Cr L J 526 : AIR 1968 Orissa 179.

6. Contradictory statements.

——S. 193—Murder trial—Conflicting statements as to commission of murder by witness — Charge for perjury - Delay in filing application under S. 476, Criminal P. C. — Effect — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476.

Where a person as a witness for the prosecution in a murder trial makes conflicting statements regarding the commission of murder, it is expedient in the interest of justice that he should be tried under S. 193. The delay in filing the application under S. 476, Criminal P. C, after the decision of the murder case, is not material in the circumstances. 51 Cri L J 1187: 1950 All L J 34 : AIR 1950 Ajmer 37 (2) (38) (Pr 3).

——S. 193—Scope—Contradictory statements not in course of same deposition—Conviction for perjury — Nature of proof — Proceedings under S. 476 distinguished.

If the prosecution succeeds in proving that an accused in the witness-box deliberately made two statements which are so contradictory to, and irreconcilable with, each other, that both cannot possibly be true, he can be convicted of perjury even without its being proved which one of them was not true. It is only when the prosecution charges him with making a particular statement falsely, that it has to prove that that statement is false and not the other. When all that is proved is that one of the two statements is false, it means that it is not proved that a particular statement is false. If the accused is charged with making that statement falsely, naturally the charges must fail.

Mens rea is an essenial ingredient of the offence of perjury. The mere fact that a statement made by a witness turns out to be wrong or inaccurate does not make him liable to punishment. He must make the statement deliberately and must know or believe it to be false or must not believe it to be true.

When a witness admits having made a previous statement incorrectly and corrects himself later, it is not expedient to prosecute him for perjury. Where the two statements made by the applicant were so contradictory to each other that they could not be reconciled with each other and could not both be true and one of them was bound to be false, the applicant deposing about matters which were within his knowledge and there being no scope for his making any mistake, it is clearly a case of making both the statements deliberately and when they are found to be irreconcilable he must be convicted.

It is quite immaterial that the two contradictory statements were made in the course of one deposition in one trial. If the requirements of S. 191 are fulfilled, he committed the offence of perjury as soon as he made it. The completion of the offence does not remain in abeyance for a short time in order to give him an opportunity of repenting and correcting himself. The offence is not purged or wiped off by subsequent repentence or retraction or correction. S. 191 does not take into consideration the fact that the false statement was subsequently in the same deposition or in the same trial, admitted to be incorrect and replaced by the correct statement or that the deposition was not finished before the accused corrected himself.

The questions that are in issue when a person is prosecuted for perjury are quite different from those that arise in proceedings under S. 476 of the Cr P. Code. In the latter the Court has to see whether it is expedient in the interest of justice to prosecute the witness for committing perjury whereas in the former the Court has only to see whether the ingredients of the offence of perjury are proved by the prosecution and is not at all concerned with the question of the expediency. No accused can be acquitted of the charge of perjury on the ground that it was not expedient to prosecute him. 1954 Cr L J 860 : 1954 All L J 246 : 1954 All W R (H C) 10 : AIR 1954 All 424 (425 to 427) (Prs 2 to 4, 6, 9).

——Ss. 193, 191 — Charge of perjury — Burden of proof is on prosecution — Contrary statements made before police prior to deposition in Court—Burden is not shifted. A I R 1965 Andh Pra 402.

——S. 193 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b)—Offence under S. 193, Penal Code—Cognizance of—When can be taken.

A made certain statement before B, a Magistrate 2nd Class in the course of an enquiry directed by C, a First Class Magistrate. Before the Magistrate C, A however made a contrary statement and stated that his prior statement was false. C, thereupon, filed a complaint against A for trial of A for an offence under S. 193, Penal Code. A was tried and convicted by another Magistrate. On revision against the order:

Held, that there being nothing else apart from the contradictory character of the statement, the Magistrate C was not in a position to decide which of these statements was false and hence could not file a complaint under S. 195 (1) (b), Criminal P. C. in respect of any offence committed before him.

Further, C could not file a complaint on behalf of Magistrate B as B's Court was not subordinate to C's Court. Hence, the cognizance taken on the complaint of C was bad and the whole trial illegal 1956 Cri L J 398 : A I R 1956 Cal 63 (63) (Pr 2) (DB).

——S. 193—Applicability — Contradiction between pleading in plaint in former suit and deposition in later suit—Prosecution for perjury — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476).

In many cases persons in verifying pleadings are often found to say something which is not strictly true; but by such action they do not render themselves liable for prosecution for perjury for making a false statement. This by itself does not constitute an offence under S. 193. A I R 1930 Cal 639, Foll.

Accused making allegation of oral partition in plaint in former suit — Accused stating on oath in later suit that there was no partition — Allegation of oral partition found not necessary for getting decree in former suit nor allegation spoken to by accused in evidence recorded in that suit — Facts showing that there could have been no intention to make false statement to get undue advantage over defendant or to mislead Court — Allegation of oral partition held could not be regarded as intentionally false so as to attract operation of S. 193, Penal Code. 1954 Cri L J 1201 : 20 Cut L T 188 : I L R (1954) Cut 87 : A I R 1954 Orissa 193 (194) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——S. 193 — Scope — Contradictory statements—Desirability of prosecution.

If a person makes two contradictory statements and the Court finds that he has in fact reverted to truth in the later statement it is not always desirable that he should be prosecuted for perjury. 1953 Cri L J 1221 : I L R (1953) Patiala 137 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 110 (111) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

——S. 193—Scope—Contradictory statements—Conviction.

It is very unsafe to convict an accused of perjury simply because there is some oral evidence to show that the statement was false. The evidence to prove perjury should be as strong if not stronger, as in any other criminal case. The Court should have no reasonable doubt about the statement being perjured before it can convict an accused of perjury. Even if there are two contradictory statements, the accused should be convicted of perjury only when they are found to be altogether irreconcilable. A witness has a right to correct himself, and if he had stated something in a statement and further on he thinks that the statement was not correct, he is entitled to make the necessary correction. 1954 Cri L J 1000 (Raj) : 1953 Raj L W 215.

7. Complaint.

——S. 193—Proceedings before Income-tax Officer —Offence under S. 193, Penal Code, committed in respect of such proceedings — Complaint by private party not competent. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 37 (4). 1964 (2) Cri L J 249 : A I R 1964 S C 1154.

——Ss. 193 and 194 — Offence committed during investigation — No complaint under S. 195 (1) (b) is necessary by Court See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b). 1959 Cri L J 2 : A I R 1959 All 14.

——Ss. 193 and 465 — Offence under S. 193, Penal Code—Absence of complaint by Court — It is not open to complainant that he would confine his case to an offence under S. 465 for which no complaint by Court is needed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (b). 51 Cri L J 1235 : A I R 1950 All 465.

——S. 193 – Criminal P. C (1898), Ss. 476 and 4 (h)— "Make a complaint thereof in writing" — Judgment containing complaint under S. 193, Penal Code at the end and setting out precise facts and evidence available—Requirements of complaint held satisfied— Separate formal complaint is not necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 2906 (DB).

——S. 193—Requirements for prosecution of witnesses under S. 193, stated — Contradictory statements by witnesses in two different Courts — Court competent to file complaint. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 479-A (1). 1961 (1) Cri L J 668 (Madh Pra).

——S. 193—Complaint without giving witness opportunity of being heard is invalid. 1962 Mad W N 290.

——Ss. 193, 467 and 471—Applicability.

Complaint containing allegations that the accused as guardian of his minor daughter had filed a suit against the complainant on the basis of a will forged by him intending that such will may cause the Judge before whom the suit is filed to form an opinion that the will is genuine one and therefore his minor daughter was entitled to the property.

Held, that the complaint disclosed offence under S. 193, Penal Cade as well as those under Ss. 467 and 471, Penal Code. 1954 Mad W N 231 : (1954) 1 Mad L J 650 : 56 Cri L J 716 : A I R 1955 Mad 237 (238) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

——S. 193—Offence of perjury – Court must consider whether it is expedient in interest of justice to make complaint. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476 1954 Cri L J 374 : A I R 1954 Mad 303.

——S. 193 — Complaint when not proper for offence under Penal Code (1860), S. 193—In case of doubt in the mind of District Magistrate unless he specifically and clearly finds that the statements made in Court are false, he should not order prosecution for offence under S. 193. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1953 Cri L J 1382 : A I R 1953 Mad 745.

——S. 193—False statement – Duty of cross-examiner pointed out—Finding as to expediency of prosecution in the interest of justice is essential. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. A I R 1955 N U C (Orissa) 1471.

——S. 193—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A—Criminal trial—Sessions Judge holding prosecution case to be false and acquitting accused – No finding in acquittal order that complainant should be prosecuted for perjury — Judge is debarred from filing such complaint against complainant by subsequent order. See Criminal P. C (1898), S 479-A. 1961 (1) Cri L J 303 (2) : A I R 1961 Pat 71.

——S. 193—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A — Complaint under—When can be filed - Persons swearing false affidavits in writ proceedings — High Court expressing opinion that it was satisfied about false swearing—No opinion about their having given false evidence intentionally and for prosecution under S. 193, Penal Code, however, expressed — Complaint cannot be filed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1961 (2) Cri L J 796 : A I R 1961 Raj 268 (DB).

8. Proof.

——S. 193 — Contradictory statements on oath by accused—Complaint under S. 476 for perjury—Proof —Question as to which one of two statements is false is irrelevant. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 476. 1959 Cri L J 564 : AIR 1959 Andh-Pra 250.

——Ss. 193 and 191—Applicability—Proof.

Where in a miscellaneous proceedings before the Deputy Commissioner for direction to a person who was alleged to be in the possession of the movable property of the deceased that person filed a statement containing a list of such property according to the direction of the Deputy Commissioner and was charged under S. 193, Penal Code, for giving false evidence by the concealment of certain items from that list.

Held, that in order to attract the applicability of S. 193 to the case it was necessary to show that the list supplied by the accused amounted to a declaration which he was bound by law to make and so long as that condition was not satisfied the charge under S. 193 could not succeed 55 Cr L J 1838 : AIR 1954 Assam 259 (261) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 193 – Prejury—Complaint in respect of—Proof —Intention is an essential ingredient of the offence of perjury—No man can be convicted of giving false evidence except on proof of facts which if accepted as true show not merely that it is incredible but that it is impossible that the statement of the party accused made on oath can be true. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1959 Cr L J 848 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 264.

——S. 193—If explanation given by the party accused is possible no action to prosecute him under S. 193, should be taken. See Criminal P. C., S. 476. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 53.

——S. 193—Essentials—Intention is essential ingredient — Prosecution must prove that accused knew when making statement that it was false—Rash and credulous act and failure to make reasonable inquiry is not enough.

Intention is the essential ingredient in the constitution of the offence of giving false evidence punishable under S. 193, Penal Code. The prosecution has to establish in a trial for an offence under that section that the accused knew at the time of making the statement that it was false or believed it to be false or did not believe it to be true. An accused cannot be convicted of giving false evidence for having acted rashly and credulously and having failed to make reasonable inquiry with regard to the facts alleged by him to be true. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 53.

——S. 193—Prosecution for perjury—Previous statement of accused — Necessity of confronting — Evidence Act (1872), S. 145.

Under S. 145, Evidence Act, it is necessary that witness should be confronted if his evidence is to be attacked by a previous statement, but such a thing is not necessary where a person is prosecuted under S. 193, Penal Code. The fact that in the judicial proceeding in which he is alleged to have given the false evidence he is not confronted with the previous statement will not vitiate his prosecution. 53 Pun L R 122 : 52 Cri L J 1497 : AIR 1951 Punj 131 (132) (Pr 6).

9. Practice and procedure.

——S. 193—Perjury — Defendant, a pleader committing deliberate perjury — High Court taking serious view of offence — But out of respect for old age of defendant and in view of apology of his counsel in his presence, his Lordship forgave him. AIR 1952 Cal 773 (774) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——S. 193 — Transfer application — Procedure. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 526. 1959 M P C 226.

——Ss. 193 and 196 — Facts alleged making out offences under S. 193 as well as under Ss. 463, 467 and 471, Penal Code — Proper procedure for filing complaint for offence under Ss. 463, 467 and 471 — Procedure under S. 476 not illegal. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1962 (2) Cri L J 89 : AIR 1962 Pat 282.

——S. 193—Prosecution under legislation or preventing food adulteration—Doubt in Magistrate's mind as to truthfulness of evidence by responsible Govt. Officer giving evidence for prosecution — Duty of Magistrate.

Where in prosecution for an offence under the Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954, the Magistrate entertains a genuine doubt about the presence of an officer of the Prevention of Food Adulteration Department (who figures as a prosecution witness) at the time of the sale of an article of food for analysis, then it is the Magistrate's duty not to leave the matter at that. He should pursue the matter further because the officer has on this premise tried falsely to help the prosecution of an innocent citizen, which is intolerable in a democracy like ours, which is continually subject to moral judgments. In case the doubt was not justified, then it was highly unfair to the officer concerned Except, preservation of their liberties, no people can have any higher interest than integrity in the administration of their Government in all its forms. 1965 (2) Cri L J 571 (Punj).

10. Charge.

——S. 193—Charge—Frame of—Application for transfer of case under S. 24, C. P. Code—False statements in affidavit — Charge against him stating that it was framed under S. 193, Penal Code in respect of those statements knowing or believing them to be false — Held that the fact that charge was made under S. 193 was tantamount to a statement that every legal condition including that of intention was fulfilled — (Cr. P. C. (1898) Ss. 221 and 539). AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 2906 (DB).

——S. 193—Scope—Contradictory statements in same deposition — Alternative charge under held justified —Propriety. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 236. 1959 Cr L J 197 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 35 (DB).

——S. 193 — Contradictory statements charge under S. 193, may be framed alternatively. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 236, Illus. (b) and Sch X. xxviii, (110-No. 4). AIR 1955 NUC (Orissa) 3980 (DB).

——S. 193—Complaint under—Statement in criminal case — Charge including another statement from previous civil suit in alternative — Not legal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1958 Cr L J 1241 : AIR 1958 Raj 240 (DB).

——S. 193—Alternative charge—When proper, indicated — Held on facts that the two statements mentioned in the charge being wholly unconnected did not form a series of facts mentioned in S. 236 Cr. P. C. and a charge in the alternative in respect of the two statements could not be made. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236, Ill. (b). 1958 Cr L J 1241 : AIR 1958 Raj 240 (DB).

11. Conviction and sentence.

——S. 193—Offences of cheating and false evidence —No fraudulent representation—Reasonable explanation by accused — Accused held entitled to benefit of doubt. See Penal Code (1860), S. 420. 1957 Cri L J 583 : AIR 1957 S C 466.

——S. 193—Swearing of false affidavit—Sentence.

The accused in support of his transfer application made before the District Judge, had filed an affidavit making certain allegations against his decree-holder, who was a retired District and Sessions Judge. On enquiry under S. 476, Criminal P. C., the affidavit was found to be false. The accused was prosecuted under S. 193, and was convicted and sentenced to six months R. I. :

Held, that the sentence was somewhat excessive. A substantive sentence of one month's rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 3,000 would meet the ends of justice. 1965 All W R (HC) 508 : 1965 All Cr R 321 : 1965 All L J 940 : 1966 Cri L J 825 (All).

——S. 193 — Complaint under in respect of offence under S. 193, Penal Code—Accused can be convicted of offences under S. 466/471, Penal Code. See Criminal P C. (1898), S. 476. 1962 (1) Cri L J 229 : A I R 1962 All 132 (DB).

—S. 193 — Accused as witness giving general answers in reply to specific question — General answers found to be false — Conviction under S. 193 if justified—Sentence.

Where as a witness in a criminal case, the accused was asked whether he had been arrested in a prohibition case, and he states in reply that he had not been arrested in any case by the police and had never been in custody before and to emphasise that he was not concerned in any police case he went on to add that he had never entered the Courts before, the answers given by the accused are very general and are not confined only to prohibition cases but apply to other cases also. Where his answers are found to be false for he was arrested by the police and was actually on bail at the time he gave false evidence though it was not a prohibition case, he can be convicted under S. 193, Penal Code.

Where it appeared in the circumstances of the case that the accused gave false answers to the questions put to him either under the influence of the police or because he was under the impression that if he gave such evidence he would be able to obtain a discharge in the case which was then pending against him.

Held, that a severe sentence was not called for. 1956 Cri L J 891 : A I R 1956 Bom 185 (186) (Pars 4, 6) (DB).

—Ss. 193 and 191 — Scope — Statement on oath — Statement continued on subsequent date — Oath also continues — Statement not read over to witness — Conviction not affected. See Penal Code (1860), S. 191. A I R 1954 Punj 211.

—Ss. 193, 467, 471 — Forged thumb impression — Acquittal on charges under S. 467 and 471 — Accused can be convicted under S. 193.

It cannot be said that where the accused and others are exonerated of charges under Ss. 467 and 471, Penal Code, the conviction of the accused under S. 193, Penal Code, cannot be maintained. There is no legal bar for arriving at a finding that the thumb impression on the document was forged in connection with the determination of the guilt of the accused under S. 193, Penal Code on the basis of the examination with respect to other charges, especially when the question arises during the course of one trial. Secondly, even without a definite finding regarding forgery, the accused can be treated as having fabricated false evidence if it is shown that he made a document, purporting to be one on behalf of a certain person, when in fact there was no justification or authority for making of that kind of document. 1960 (1960) 16 Raj 1191 : 1960 Raj L W 521.

SECTION 194

—S. 194—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 479A, 476 — Scope — S. 479A may be resorted to in cases falling within first paragraph of S. 193, Penal Code and Ss. 194 and 195 — Offence under S. 471, Penal Code — S. 479A (1) not applicable — Resort to S. 476 proper. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1964 (1) Cri L J 555 : A I R 1964 S C 725.

—S. 194—Jurisdiction—Case falling under first part of section—Magistrate empowered under S. 30, Criminal P. C. is competent to try the case. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 28. 1964 Cri L J 1494 : A I R 1964 Him Pra 79.

SECTION 195

—S. 195:— Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 479A, 476 — Scope — S. 479A may be resorted to in case falling within first paragraph of S. 193, Penal Code and Ss. 194 and 195 — Offence under S. 471, Penal Code — S. 479A (1) not applicable—Resort to S. 476 proper. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1964 (1) Cri L J 555 : A I R 1964 S C 725.

—Ss. 195, 193 — Alleged substitution of original F. I. R.—Circumstances and evidence indicating allegation to be justified—Offences under Ss. 193 and 195 of the Code clearly appear to have been committed and further inquiry by Magistrate is needed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1965 All W R (HC) 313 : 1965 All Cri R 229 : A I R 1966 All 66 (DB).

—Ss. 195, 193 — Scope — S. 195 is an aggravated form of offence contemplated under S. 193. 1965 All W R (HC) 316 : 1965 All Cr R 229 : 1966 Cri L J 115 : A I R 1966 All 66 (68) (Fn C) (Fn 10) (DB).

—S. 195 — Witness making voluntarily statements before Court — Prosecution under S. 500 on basis of private complaint is not barred merely because statements disclose offence under Ss. 193 and 195. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1965 (2) Cri L J 705 (1) : A I R 1965 All 537.

SECTION 196

—Ss. 196, 471—"Corruptly"—It means something different from 'dishonestly' or 'fraudulently'—Filing false receipts to claim tenancy—Accused is guilty of 'corruptly' using as true or genuine evidence, which he knows to be false—Offence is not under S. 471 but under S. 196—Cri. Rev. Appeal No. 23 of 1959 (Bom), Dss. from. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 562.

—Ss. 193, 196, 468, 467 and 471 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 479, 479A and 255—Facts alleged making out offences under S. 193 as well as under Ss. 468, 467 and 471, Penal Code—Proper procedure for filing complaint for offence under Ss. 468, 467 and 471—Procedure under S. 476 not illegal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479. 1962 (2) Cri L J 88 : A I R 1962 Pat 252.

SECTION 199

—S. 199—Applicability — Consent to marriage by bogus guardian before Special Marriage Registrar—Offence—Prosecution under S. 199 Penal Code read with S. 21, Special Marriage Act—Sustainability.

Where an ad hoc guardian got up temporarily for the purpose of a marriage to be performed under the Special Marriage Act subscribes to the declaration by the girl before the Special Marriage Registrar to the effect that he was her guardian and had given consent to her marriage, knowing that the father of the girl and her natural guardian was not prepared to consent to such a marriage, he becomes a bogus guardian of the girl and as such makes a false declaration and statement before the Registrar and thereby commits an offence under S. 199, Penal Code read with S. 21, Special Marriage Act. 1956 Cri L J 362 : A I R 1956 Bom 439 (442) (Pr B) (Pr 9) (DB).

SECTION 200

—S. 200, Exception 1 and S. 302 — Grave and sudden provocation—Long standing feeling of provocation becoming motive—Expl. 1 will not apply.

Where the accused had known that the deceased was misbehaving with his mother that would certainly afford provocation to him to retaliate. But when such feeling of provocation is a long standing one gaining intensity from day to day until finally the person harbouring such feeling yields to the provocation by attacking his enemy, it cannot be said that he is acting under grave and sudden provocation. Feeling of provocation which he was entertaining can only be termed the motive for the act committed by him and when the accused comes to the house knowing that the deceased is there to punish the deceased he cannot be said to have acted under exception (1) to S. 300. 1962 Ker L J 1004.

SECTION 201

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 201).

1. Essentials of the offence.
2. "Whoever causes evidence to disappear."
3. Intention necessary for the offence.
4. Evidence of the offence.
5. Charge.
6. Practice and procedure.
7. Conviction and sentence.

1. Essentials of the offence.

—S. 201—Ingredients — Mere knowledge of removal of dead bodies not sufficient.

Per Kapur and Hidayatullah, JJ. — It may be that the accused had knowledge of the removal of the dead bodies, but what S. 201 requires is causing any evidence of the commission of the offence to disappear or giving any information respecting the offence which a person knows or believes to be false. Ragha Prapanna Tripathi v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1963 (1) Cri L J 70 : 1962 S C J 1024 : AIR 1963 S C 74 (89, 90) (Pt D) (Pr 63).

—S. 201—Applicability—Essentials.

Before an offence under S. 201 can be made out, it is necessary that the person charged should, among other facts, know that an offence had been committed and that he caused the evidence thereof to disappear. He should be instrumental in the disappearance of the evidence of the crime. 1958 Cri L J 821 : AIR 1958 All 467 (473) (Pt D) (Pr 30) (DB).

—S. 201 — Applicability — Offence in respect of which evidence is removed must have been committed.

Where the charge against the accused was that he caused disappearance of the evidence of the offence of forgery, and the first charge failed the ingredients essential to constitute an offence under S. 201, were lacking and the accused could be rightly discharged. 1955 Cri L J 769 : 1954 Mad W N 1013 : 1954 Andh L T (Cri) 49 : (1954) 2 M L J (Andhra) 103 : AIR 1955 Andhra 82 (83) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

—S. 201 — Ingredients of offence indicated. AIR 1955 N U C (Hyd) 908 (DB).

—Ss. 201, 203 and 182 — Scope—Ss. 201 and 203 contemplate information given to private persons as well as public servants — First information reports under S. 154, Cr. P. Code are covered by sections but statements made to police during investigation are not covered.

Sections 201 and 203, I. P. Code, contemplate giving information respecting an offence which the accused person knows or believes to be false. For the offence under S. 201, I. P. Code, the false information should also be furnished with the intention of screening the offender from legal punishment. S. 182 of the Penal Code deals with giving false information to any public servant.

If any person gives the first information statement to the police even though not voluntarily which is recorded under S. 154, Cr. P. Code and if it ultimately turns out to be false it would amount to giving false information and the offender would be punishable under S. 201, I. P. Code, provided the requisite intention is proved. AIR 1953 S C 131, Foll.

But statements given by a person in the course of an investigation by the police cannot amount to an offence under Ss. 201 and 203, I. P. Code, even if they ultimately turn out to be false. AIR 1933 Pat 555 (1) and AIR 1936 Sind 94, Diss from. 1961 Ker L T 1060 : 1961 Ker L J 1393 : ILR (1962) 1 Ker 224 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 610 : AIR 1962 Ker 133 (134, 135, 137) (Prs 4, 5, 24) (DB).

—S. 201—Applicability—Ingredients of offence.

Section 201 looks upon a person giving false information with intent to screen an offender as an accessory after the fact and makes him culpable as an offender committing an offence against public justice, as the policy of the law is that even at the early stage of the enquiry nothing should be done which would lay false trials or cause the enquiry to be burked or weaken the prosecution and injuriously interfere against public justice. S. 201 will apply only when the false information touching the offence with intent to screen the offender is given to those interested in bringing the offender to justice. If the accused gives information to a wayfarer, it will only be a case of gossiping and not with intent to screen the offender. This connotation vastly reduces the denotation of the persons thus informed, and in practice would reduce itself only to the authorities, persons in authority and the persons so interested that they would take action to bring the offender to justice, e. g., the father, guardian, caste head etc.

Some sections in Chapters 10 and 11 of the Penal Code use the words that the information should be given to a public servant and some sections lay down that such information should be given by persons legally bound to do so. In the case of S. 201 neither the term 'public servant' nor the term 'legally bound' is used. In other words, persons to whom information is given will take in non public servants. Persons not legally bound to give information would take in persons like the principal or the actual offender. This false information can be given at a very early stage and the object is to put off the enquiry and screen the offender by puting, for instance, an innocent complexion on an otherwise sordid crime. 72 Mad L W 522 : 1959 Mad W N 433 : ILR (1959) Mad 654 : 1960 Cri L J 85 : AIR 1960 Mad 9 (14, 15) (Prs 24 to 27) (DB).

—S. 201—Essentials of offence.

In order to establish the charge under S. 201 of the Indian Penal Code, it is essential to prove that an offence has been committed — mere suspicion that it has been committed is not sufficient—and that the accused knew or had reason to believe that such an offence had been committed. AIR 1952 S C 354 Foll.

Held, that the prosecution having failed to establish that the dead body exhumated was that of the person alleged to be murdered and that the fracture of jaw was the result of an ante-mortem injury there could be no justification for convicting the accused on the assumption that he had caused the disappearance of the evidence of an offence under S. 326 of the I. P. C., in this view of the case much importance could not be attached to the circumstance that it was on the information of the accused person, that the place where the corpse was buried was discovered. 1959 Cr L J 1349 : 37 Mys L J 511 : 1959 M L J (Cri) 919 ; A I R 1959 Mys 250 (252) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

—Ss 201, 211 and 167 — Prosecution or giving false information—Protest pending enquiry—Opportunity to prove truth of that charge — Duty of Court to give.

Where a person who is accused of having committed an offence by reason of his having given false information, demands a judicial investigation into the truth of the charge made by him, he is entitled to be given an opportunity to prove the truth of that charge. During the pendency of such judicial investigation into what should be regarded as a complaint made by accused in this case a prosecution against him on the supposition that the charge made by him was false is unjustified. 1959 All W R (Sup) 12 : 1959 All Cr R 111 : 1959 M L J (Cri) 204 (Mys).

—S. 201 — Accused not attempting to screen anybody else excepting themselves — No offence under S. 201 arises for consideration of Court. 1956 Cri L J 638 : ILR (1955) Cut 625 : AIR 1956 Orissa 108 (111) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

—S. 201—Applicability—Murderer removing dead body—Offence.

A murderer by removing a dead body from a place of murder to another place cannot be held to screen himself as the person to be screened must be somebody else than the offender within the meaning of S. 201, Penal Code. 1958 Raj L W 353 : 1958 Cri L J 1540 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 944 : AIR 1958 Raj 338 (342) (Pt E) (Pr 7) (DB).

2. "Whoever causes evidence to disappear."

—S. 201—'Any evidence of the commission of that offence'—Expression refers not to evidence in extensive sense but to evidence in its primary sense as meaning anything that is likely to make crime evident such as existence of wounded corpse or blood-stains etc. -Words causing disappearance imply some active exertion in that direction — Held, picking of blood-stained pestle and placing it in almyrah of house without anything more would not satisfy requirements of S. 201, Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. ILR (1963) Andh Pra 454.

—S. 201—"Whoever causes evidence to disappear" —Accused himself responsible for offence evidence of which has been made to disappear by him — He can be convicted under S. 201. A I R 1955 N U C (Assam) 2832 (DB).

—S. 201 - 'Whoever causes evidence to disappear' —Proof of mere knowledge of disappearance of evidence not enough for conviction under S. 201.

The fact of discovery, of course proves knowledge on the part of the person discovering the fact. But mere knowledge of the existence of such a fact is not sufficient to make him guilty under S. 201. To make a person guilty under S. 201, it must be proved that that person had caused the evidence of the commission of the offence to disappear and not merely that that person knew that some other person had caused the evidence of the commission of the offence to disappear. It must be positively proved that it was the accused who had caused the evidence of the commission of the offence to disappear. (1962) 3 Guj L R 571 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 66 : A I R 1962 Guj 225 (226) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

—S. 201—"Whoever causes evidence to disappear" — Mere pointing out place of burial does not lead to presumption that accused concealed dead body there. AIR 1955 N U C (Hyd) 908 (DB).

—S. 201 — Evidence of offence — Circumstantial evidence.

Held, on facts that, from all the circumstances of the case it was reasonable to infer that the accused knowing that the deceased was killed, had tried to dispose of his dead body with a view to destroy the evidence of murder. 1962 Mad L J (Cr) 41 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 81 : 40 Mys L J 504 : I-L R (1961) Mys 524 : AIR 1962 Mys 138 (139) (Pt B) (Pr 18) (DB).

—S. 201 — Removal of dead body from place of occurrence is not causing disappearance of evidence of offence.

Removal of the dead body of a murdered person from the place of murder to another place does not by itself necessarily amount to causing the disappearance of evidence of the commission of the offence with the intention of screening the offender from legal punishment, though in certain circumstances such removal of the body may amount to causing disappearance of evidence of the offence by the real culprit. It is a matter of evidence in each case.

The use of the word 'concealed' by itself does not furnish the essential ingredient of causing disappearance of evidence as contemplated by S. 208. 63 Punj L R 526 : 1961 (2) Cr L J 886 (Punj).

—S. 201—Causing evidence to disappear.

The expression 'any evidence of commission of that offence' refers to evidence in its primary sense as meaning anything that is likely to make the crime evident, such as the existence of a wounded corpse or blood-stained clothes and weapons, fabricated documents or similar material objects, indicating that an offence has been committed.

Held, that the removal of the corpse from the village to the Grand Trunk Road suggested that by removing the corpus delicti the intention was to avert the suspicion from the accused. The removal was presumably with a view to suggest that the man had been done to death by someone who was a passerby. This act was an attempt to screen the real offenders. The conclusion as to the commission of the offence under S. 201, Penal Code, by the accused was therefore inescapable. A I R 1921 Bom 115, Rel. on ; AIR 1952 S C 354 Disting. 1958 Cr L J 689 : I L R (1957) Punj 1985 : A I R 1958 Punj 183 (186) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

—S. 201—Causing evidence to disappear — Hiding blood-stained weapon—Effect of.

When a weapon is stained with human blood it affords a primary evidence of the offence and not any evidence in the extensive sense and if a person conceals that weapon, provided his intention in doing so is to screen the offender, he is guilty of causing that evidence to disappear. View of Sharif, J. in 48 Cr L J 786 (Lah); Not Foll. 1958 Cr L J 689 : I L R (1957) Punj 1985 : A I R 1958 Punj 183 (186) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

—S 201—Applicability — Removal of corpse from place of murder - Offence.

Removal of the corpse of a murdered man from the place of murder to another place is not causing disappearance of some evidence of commission of the murder and the offence would not fall under S. 201. A I R 1934 Cal 144 and A I R 1941 Cal 456, Rel. on. ILR (1957) Punj 950 : 1957 Cr L J 1307 : AIR 1957 Punj 278 (283) (Pt B) (Pr 36) (DB).

3. Intention necessary for the offence.

—Ss. 201 and 94—Intention — Offence committed under duress.

The accused in his statement in the Court stated that he held the legs of the deceased under threat of instant death and helped the murderers in removing the body and concealing it. He did not say in his statement that he protested against carrying the body and that he was again threatened with death. It was clear however from the statement of the accused that the murderers practically kept him in custody when he removed the body at their order and that the person who had threatened him and asked him on pain of death to hold the legs of the deceased was amongst them. The Court did not question him specifically about the removal and ask him to explain his conduct in doing that.

From the circumstances disclosed by him in his statement and also in view of the fact that in all probability if he had been questioned he might have answered that he removed the dead body on account of the fear of instant death at the hands of the murderers it was reasonable to hold that his conduct in removing the dead body was also on account of his fear of instant death at the hands of the murderers in case he refused to do so. (1956) 1 W L R 965 (PC), Rel. on. 1957 All L J 20 : 1957 All W R (HC) 86 : 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (188, 189) (Pt F) (Prs 18, 19) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192].

——S. 201—Shoes of murdered person discovered at instance of accused — Intention to screen offender can be inferred.

The statement of the accused that he had hidden the shoes of the murdered person is admissible in evidence under S. 27 of Evidence Act and his intention to screen the offender from punishment must be inferred. AIR 1952 Bom 299 (FB), Rel. on. (1962) 3 Guj L R 1052 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 755 : AIR 1963 Guj 135 (139) (Pt C) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 201—Essentials of — Intention to screen accused must be sole object — Mere likelihood not sufficient.

What S. 201, I. P. Code requires is that the accused must have had the intention of screening the offender. To put it differently, the intention to screen the offender must be the primary and sole object of the accused. The fact that the concealment was likely to have that effect is not sufficient, section speaks of intention as distinct from a mere likelihood. 1962 M P L J 1064 : 1962 Jab L J 876 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 433 : ILR (1963) Madh Pra 730 : AIR 1963 Madh Pra 106 (114) (Pt H) (Pr 33) (DB).

——S. 201—Mere removal of dead body is not sufficient — Intention to escape punishment must be proved.

A mere act of removing the dead body of a murdered may not by itself be sufficient to justify a conviction under S. 201, I. P. C. It is necessary to prove in a case under S. 201, I. P. C., that such removal was made with the intention of screening the offender from legal punishment. AIR 1953 S C 131, Rel. on. ILR (1965) 1 Mad 346.

4. Evidence of the offence.

——S. 201 - Evidence—Circumstantial evidence—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 3).

In order to establish the charge under S. 201, I. P. Code, it is essential to prove that an offence has been committed that the accused knew or had reason to believe that such offence had been committed and with the requisite knowledge and with the intent to screen the offender from legal punishment causes the evidence thereof to disappear or gives false information respecting such offence knowing or having reason to believe the same to be false.

The Court should safeguard itself against the danger of basing its conclusion on suspicions however strong they may be and the necessity for adopting the caution becomes absolute in a case in which the situation of the parties, the belated investigation of the case and the sensation it had created demands the same; (1838) 2 Lewin 227 and AIR 1952 S C 343, Rel. on.

Where there is no direct evidence and the circumstantial evidence answers the questions, essential to the proof of the offence, only vaguely and indefinitely and is not incompatible with the theory of the innocence of the accused there is no evidence on which the accused can be found guilty. Palvinder Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1952) S C J 545 : 1953 Mad W N 418 : 1953 Cri L J 154 : 1953 All L J 18 : 1953 S C R 94 : 1953 All W R (Sup) 19 : 1953 B L J R 30 : ILR (1953) Punj 107 : AIR 1952 S C 354 (356, 358) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 14, 19) (DB).

——S. 201—Evidence of offence—Meaning—Murder case—Concealment of weapon with which offence was committed and blood-stained clothes of accused —No offence under S. 201.

When an offence is committed, there may be evidence of various types : (1) Evidence to show that the offence had been committed, (2) Evidence to show that the offence had been committed at a particular place; (3) Evidence to show that the offence had been committed by a particular person or persons. When S. 201 uses the expression 'whoever causes any evidence of the commission of that offence to disappear', it refers to a person who causes the evidence of actual commission of the offence to disappear and not to person who causes the disappearance of evidence as to by whom the offence was committed.

Held, on facts that the discovery of the scythe and the blood-stained clothes of the accused would not amount to an offence under S. 201, and even assuming that the accused had concealed them, he would not be guilty under S. 201. AIR 1921 Bom 115, Rel. on.; AIR 1958 Punj 183, Dissented. (1962) 3 Guj L R 571 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 66 : AIR 1962 Guj 225 (225) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 201 — Evidenee of offence under — Pointing out spot by accused where dead body was—Evidence held not sufficient.

The pointing out of a particular spot by the accused from where, later on, the dead body was recovered does not advance the case for the prosecution for proving the guilt for offence under S. 201. The conduct of the accused in pointing out the spot, where the dead body was would show, at the most, that he had knowledge that a dead body was lying there Without any further evidence that is not sufficient to hold that the dead body was thrown thereby by the accused. AIR 1955 S C 104, Relied on. 1961 Jab L J 1250 : 1961 M P L J 1291 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 690 (Madh Pra).

——Ss. 201 and 302—Appreciation—Murder and concealment of dead body — Evidence disbelieved on murder charge cannot be believed for charge under S. 201, Penal Code. (1960) 26 Cut L T 638.

5. Charge.

—— Ss. 201, 300, 379, 411—Murder for gain—Separate charge under each section is not necessary—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236). See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. AIR 1953 Mad 1006 (DB).

6. Practice and procedure.

——Ss. 201 and 114—Procedure and practice.

Section 201 not restricted to the case of a person who screens actual offender—It can be applied even to a person guilty of main offence, though as a matter of practice a Court will not convict a person both of the main offence and S. 201 - Acquittal of main offence is no legal impediment to accused conviction under S. 201. See Penal Code (1860), S. 114. 1953 Cri L J 668 : AIR 1953 S C 131.

——S. 201—Person charged under Ss. 302 and 201—Acquittal under S. 201 on mere ground that she was convicted under S. 302—Procedure dangerous. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1957 Cri L J 1152 : AIR 1957 Orissa 216 (DB).

7. Conviction and sentence.

——S. 201—Interpretation — "Knowing or having reason to believe" in Para. 1 and "knows and believes" in Para. 2, mean the same thing—Punishment depends on gravity of offence which was committed and which accused knew or had reason to believe to have been committed — Erroneous belief of accused as regards offence committed does not provide basis of punishment. Roshan Lal v. State of Punjab, 1965 (2) Cri L J 426 : (1965) 2 S C A 447 : 1965 S C D 1133 : (1965) 2 S C R 316 : A I R 1965 S C 1413 (1417, 1418) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 13).

●——Ss. 201, 71—General Clauses Act (1897), S. 26—Disappearance of evidence in respect of two offences committed by same act — There are two offences under S. 201, by same act—Punishment.

Where the accused has caused the evidence of the two offences under Ss. 330 and 348, Penal Code, committed by the same act to disappear, commits by the same act two separate offences under S. 201. The case is not covered either by S. 71 of the Penal Code or by S. 26 of the General Clauses Act, and the punishment for the two offences cannot be limited under those sections. But, normally no Court should award two separate punishments for the same act consisting two offences under S. 201. The appropriate sentence under S. 201, for causing the evidence of the offence under S. 330, to disappear should be passed, and no separate sentence need be passed under S. 201, for causing the evidence of the offence under S. 348 to disappear. The maximum sentence for the offence under S. 330, is imprisonment for seven years, and under the fourth paragraph to S. 201, the accused are liable to be sentenced to a maximum of one-fourth of seven years of imprisonment. Roshan Lal v. State of Punjab, 1965 (2) Cri L J 426 : (1965) 2 S C A 447 : 1965 S C D 1133 : (1965) 2 S C R 316 : A I R 1965 S C 1413 (1419) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

●——Ss. 201, 302—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 236 and 237—Charge of murder—Acquittal — Conviction for offence under S. 201 without any further charge is not legal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236. 1952 Cri L J 839 : A I R 1952 S C 159.

——Ss. 201 and 34 — Person charged with others under S. 201, Penal Code read with S. 34 — Others acquitted — Person can be convicted under S. 201 only. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1958 Cri L J 18 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 37 (DB).

——S. 201 — Applicability — Charge under S. 302, Penal Code—Facts justifying conviction under S. 201—Accused can be convicted under latter section though there is no specific charge — Legality of conviction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1957 Cri L J 1071 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 611 (DB).

——Ss. 201 and 302 — Conviction under S. 302 not maintainable — Accused found guilty under S. 201 — No legal bar to his being convicted under S. 201. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 2347.

——Ss. 201, 300 and 302—Applicability—Recovery of head and clothes of deceased at instance of accused—Accused cannot be convicted under S. 302 — Accused is guilty of offence under S. 201—A I R 1937 P C 179 Applied. 1954 Cri L J 1124 : A I R 1954 J & K 42 (44) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 201—Punishment how to be awarded—Punishment under S. 201, cannot be awarded without ascertaining what original offence was committed. 51 Cri L J 1178 : A I R 1950 Kutch 54 (54) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——S. 201 — Person found guilty of main offence—He should not, as a matter of practice, be convicted both of the main offence and under S. 201. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236. 1956 Cri L J 1401 : A I R 1956 Madh B 262 (DB).

——Ss. 201 and 302—Applicability — Charge under S. 302 — Conviction under S. 201 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236).

Accused charged and convicted under S. 302 for murdering a boy — No evidence to convict accused with offence of murder — Accused admitting possession of ornaments belonging to murdered boy and also disposal of the same by himself — Falsity of explanation offered by accused not established—Disposal of ornaments resulting in screening whoever had been responsible for the murder—Accused must be presumed to intend the natural consequences of his act and it is only reasonable to presume an intention to screen the offender — Conviction altered to one under S. 201, even though no specific charge was framed under S. 201. (1954) 2 Mad L J 673 : 1954 Mad W N 586 : 1954 Cri L J 1768 : A I R 1954 Mad 1088 (1090) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 201, 302, 379, 411 — Murder for gain — Convictions under Ss. 302, 379 or 411 in alternative—Acquittal of charge under S. 201—Appeal — Conviction under S. 302 set aside and under S. 379 maintained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. A I R 1953 Mad 1006 (DB).

——Ss. 201 and 302—Accused five in number charged under S. 302 and alternatively under S. 201—Conviction under S. 302 without any express finding with regard to offence under S. 201—Appellate Court has power to convict some of them under S. 201 if evidence against them is not sufficient to connect them with murder — Conviction is not illegal — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236). ('50) 55 Mys H C R 48 (DB).

——S. 201—Charge under, against two named persons only—No reference in charge or in evidence that any other person was involved—Acquittal of one, conviction of other under S. 302 or 201 read with S. 34 cannot be sustained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. I L R (1962) Cut 516 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 229 (Orissa) (DB).

——S. 201 — Uncorroborated testimony — Evidence connecting accused with crime not clear — Reasons for accepting evidence not given by judge — Conviction cannot be sustained. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. (1960) 26 Cut L T 638.

——S. 201 — Conviction—Disposal of dead body with intention of concealing or removing the evidence of murder — Absence of evidence regarding knowledge of accused that offence punishable with death has been committed — Accused cannot be convicted. (1960) 26 Cut L T 638.

——S. 201—Conviction under—Maintainability.

Where the charge of murder against the accused has been proved beyond all reasonable doubt his conviction under S. 201, Penal Code cannot be sustained for the simple reason that a murderer by throwing the body of the person murdered by him from one place to another cannot be held to screen himself, as the person to be screened must be obviously somebody else than the offender himself within the meaning of S. 201, Penal Code. I L R (1965) 15 Raj 989 : 1965 Raj L W 418 : A I R 1966 Raj 74 (83) (Pt F) (Pr 30) (DB).

——Ss. 201 and 302—Death of X by strangulation by K in room of S—Body removed by K and S and concealed — S held guilty under S. 201 and not under S. 302—A I R 1930 All 45, Disting. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1963 Raj L W 214 : I L R (1963) 13 Raj 199.

——S. 201 — Applicability — Accused charged with murder—Ornaments of deceased recovered from him—Accused denying that he committed murder but admitting that the murder was committed by co-accused and that he was given the ornaments of the deceased by them — Accused hiding away the ornaments and not informing police — Charge of murder not established — Accused held guilty under S. 201—A I R 1941 Mad 359 : 42 Cri L J 664, Rel. on. A I R 1955 N U C (Raj) 511 (DB).

——Ss. 201, 71 and 302—Conviction and punishment under S. 201 and S. 302 — No legal bar to a person being convicted both of murder and of offence under S. 201 — Proper course for trial Court in case where evidence warrants it will be to enter a conviction for both offences but not to award any sentence for accessory offence—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 35, 236. See Penal Code (1860), S. 71. 1953 Cri L J 1613: AIR 1953 Trav-Co 402.

SECTION 202

——S 202—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 44 — Offence of murder — Requirements — Failure of person having knowledge of offence to give information to police—Punishable. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 44. 1964 (1) Cri L J 214 : AIR 1964 Pat 62 (DB).

——S. 202 — Applicability — Absence of evidence or finding that any offence has been committed — No finding that accused intentionally omitted to give information respecting any offence — Conviction illegal. 1961 B L J R 35,

SECTION 203

——Ss. 203, 201 and 182 — Scope — Ss. 201 and 203 contemplate information given to private persons as well as public servants — First information reports under S. 154, Criminal P. C., are covered by sections but statements made to police during investigation are not covered. See Penal Code (1860), S. 201. 1962 (1) Cri L J 610 : AIR 1962 Ker 133 (DB).

SECTION 204

——S. 204—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 439 and 253—Order of discharge under S. 253—Revision.

The accused on being asked to produce certain documents refused to produce on the ground that its production might prejudice him in other proceedings. Thereupon a search warrant was issued but since the document could not be found the accused was prosecuted under S. 204, Penal Code. The Presidency Magistrate discharged the accused under S. 253, Criminal P. C., on the ground that mere refusal did not amount to an offence under S. 204 remanding the case. Held, that the order of the Magistrate was wrong since the accused in showing cause against the production of the document had admitted its possession and the Court had evidence before it from which it could be inferred that the accused had secreted the document. 52 Cri LJ 946 : I L R 1951 Cal 101 (FB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1965 S C 1251.]

——S. 204—Place of trial — Offence under—Offence alleged to have been committed at Banglore by accused residing at Bangalore — Magistrate at Visakapatnam has no jurisdiction to try. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 177. (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 603 : (1957) 2 Andh W R 368.

SECTION 205

——S. 205—Applicability—False personation—Personation of fictitious or non-existing person—Offence.

A did two acts; one of getting a rent note executed in the name of B, a fictitious person and the other of posing to be B and producing the rent note before the Sub-Registrar.

Held, that there might have been no personation by A when he did the former act because he simply assumed another name. But when he did the other act he committed personation within the meaning of S. 82 (c) of the Registration Act by assuming the personality of B. (1961) 1 Cri L J 30 : AIR 1961 All 62.

SECTION 206

——Ss. 206 and 379 — Applicability — Execution of money-decree — Distraining sheep belonging to the judgment-debtor and entrusting them to decree-holder's representative on his executing a bond — Removal of sheep by force — If the removal 'fraudulent' under S. 195 (1) (b) of the Criminal P. C, or 'dishonest' — Whether a complaint by a civil Court is necessary for prosecution.

The judgment-debtor and four others removed two sheep distrained in execution of a decree and entrusted to the son of the decree-holder on his executing a security bond. The removal of sheep was open and without any element of secrecy or deception.

Held : In the circumstances, it might be 'dishonest removal and might even amount to 'robbery' and not theft'. But it was not 'fraudulent removal'. Hence S. 206 of the Penal Code cannot be held to be involved in this case, and the complaint was perfectly competent without the sanction or institution of complaint by the concerned Civil Court under S. 195 (1) (b), Criminal P. C. (1898).

The decisions in (1936) Mad W N (Cr) 36 and (1941) Mad W N (Cr) 79 are perfectly reconcialable. (1962) 2 Mad L J 283 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 473 : 1962 All Cr R 43 : 1962 All W R (Sup) 14 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 555 (Mad).

SECTION 209

——S. 209—Ingredients — Accused must know that claim was false.

One of the important facts which has to be proved by the prosecution to bring home the charge under S. 209, Penal Code is that the accused when making claim knew it to be false. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 44.

——S. 209—Essentials for complaint under S. 476, Criminal P. C.—Application by private person — Proceeding under S. 476 should not be undertaken unless prosecution is in interest of State and reasonably certain to result in conviction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 44.

——S. 209—Scope—Application praying for lodging of complaint under Ss. 209 or 193, Penal Code or both read with S 109—Lodging of a complaint under S. 209, Penal Code read with S. 109, Penal Code not prohibited. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. I L R (1962) 2 Punj 504.

SECTION 211

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 211.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. Sections 211 and 182.
3. Sections 211 and 47, Madras District Police Act.
4. Intent to cause injury.
5. "Institutes ... any criminal proceedings".
6. "Falsely charges any person."
7. Illustrative cases.
8. "If such criminal proceedings be instituted."
9. Accused to have opportunity to prove truth of his complaint.
10. Practice and procedure.

1. Scope and applicability.

——S. 211 — Mere filing of report under S. 307 amounts to institution of criminal proceedings within S. 211. (1965) All W R (HC) 282.

——S. 211—Scope—Proceedings under Ss. 192 and 211, Penal Code — Provisions applicable — Effect of non-compliance — Cognisance cannot be taken. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1962 (1) Cri L J 627 (All).

——S. 211—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 — Facts constituting offences under Ss. 211 and 500, Penal Code — Complaint only under S. 500 — Maintainability.

It is open to the complainant to prosecute for an offence under S. 500 without at the same time asking for sanction under S. 195, Criminal P. C., to prosecute for an offence under S. 211, Penal Code. 52 Cri L J 1269 : AIR 1951 Bom 289 (DB).

—S. 211—Applicability — Demand for judicial investigation pending — Prosecution for giving false information — It is unjustified. See Criminal P C. (1898), S. 173 (2) (b). (1959) Mad L J (Cri) 204 (Mys).

—S. 211 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b) — Information to police of cognizable offence — Final report by police that information is false — Report accepted by Magistrate — No protest petition by informant — S. 195 (1) (b) does not apply. See Criminal P C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b). 1961 (2) Cri L J 878 (Orissa).

—S 211 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 195 (1) (b) and 173 —Applicability—Offence under S. 211, Penal Code in relation to proceedings in Court — Final report under S. 173 that complaint was false — Does not constitute proceedings before Magistrate — Order of Magistrate that report be filed is an administrative order — S. 195 (1) (b) does not apply. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S 195 (1) (b). 1962 Raj L W 272.

2. Sections 211 and 182.

—Ss. 211, 182 and 307 — Applicant lodging complaint under S. 307, Penal Code — It amounts to institution of criminal proceedings — Applicant can be convicted only under S. 211 and not under S. 182 —Proceedings under S. 211 can be started only on complaint of Magistrate concerned — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 195 (1) (b) and 260.

Where the applicant has lodged a complaint against certain persons under S. 307, Penal Code, which is a cognizable offence, the mere filing of a report under that section amounts to institution of criminal proceedings within the meaning of S. 211, Penal Code and as such the applicant can be convicted only under S. 211 in a regular trial and not under S. 182, Penal Code in a summary trial. Moreover, proceedings under S. 211 can be started only on the complaint of the Magistrate concerned. AIR 1931 All 269; (1962) 2 Cri L J 719 and AIR 1952 Sau 67, Rel. on. 1965 All Cri R 208 : (1965) All W R (H C) 282.

—Ss. 211 and 182 — Prosecution under S. 182 — Complaint repeated before Magistrate — Conviction under S. 182—Bar of S. 195, Criminal P. C.

Where after a complaint had been filed under S. 182, by the Police, the accused lodged a complaint with the Magistrate alleging that his allegations were correct and the Magistrate tried both the cases together and convicted the accused under S. 182 holding that the complaint of the accused was automatically dismissed — Held that the complaint under S. 182 could be proceeded with, even though a complaint was filed by the accused— One Magistrate could have lodged a complaint under S. 195, Criminal P. C. before another Magistrate for proceeding against the accused under S. 211 and his action in convicting the accused under S. 182 was not bad. 1956 Cri L J 215 : AIR 1956 Hyd 25 (25) (Prs 2, 4).

—Ss. 211 and 182—Complaint under S. 182—Facts disclosing offence under S. 211 as well as under S. 182 — Accused not to be acquitted on ground that prosecution should have been under S. 211. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 182. AIR 1952 Raj 142.

3. Section 211 and S. 47, Madras District Police Act.

—S. 211—Madras District Police Act (24 of 1859), S. 47 — Charge — Meaning — (Words and Phrases —Charge).

The word 'charge' is not defined in the Madras District Police Act and must therefore be taken to bear its ordinary meaning, 'to prefer an accusation against one'. The charge under S. 211 must be one against any person with having committed an offence. In this view therefore there is no identity between S. 47, Madras District Police Act and S. 211, Penal Code with regard to the meaning of the word "charge". 1953 Cri L J 959: AIR 1953 Mad 507.

4. Intent to cause injury.

—S. 211—Enquiry into allegation of offence under S. 211—Words 'with intent to cause injury' in the section indicate malice and words 'there is no just or lawful ground' indicate want of reasonable or probable cause — Standard and measure for judging 'malice' and 'want of reasonable or probable cause' stated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S 476. 1965 All W R (H C) 316 : 1965 All Cri R 229 : 1966 Cri L J 115 : AIR 1966 All 66 (DB).

5. "Institutes any criminal proceeding."

—S. 211 — Applicability and scope — Complaint should have been instituted before Court.

Section 211 contemplates that a complaint should be instituted before a Court either by the accused himself or at his instigation. Where no complaint is filed before a Court against a person, even if the allegation made in a report earlier is completely false, S. 211 will not be applicable. AIR 1924 All 779, Not foll.; AIR 1928 All 765 and 35 All 522, Foll. 1961 All L J 278: 1961 All Cr R 135 : 1961 All W R (H C) 286 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 627 (All).

—S. 211 — "Instituting criminal proceeding" and "making false charge" — Expressions though not co-extensive are not mutually exclusive — Setting in motion criminal law by making false charge to police — Amounts to institution of criminal proceedings.

The expressions "instituting criminal proceedings" and "making a false charge" in S. 211, Penal Code, though not co-extensive are not mutually exclusive in meaning so that the instituting of criminal proceedings must be by something which is not a charge, and a charge must be something which is not the institution of criminal proceedings. The fact that the offence in the second part of the section has been made, as a graver offence is attributable only to the serious nature of the offence with regard to which on a false charge the criminal proceeding has been instituted, and not to the fact that the person making a charge owing to his greater skill has succeeded in getting the police to arrest his enemy and place him before the Court. Therefore, a person who sets the criminal law in motion by making a false charge to the police of a cognizable offence, institutes criminal proceedings within the meaning of S. 211 of the Penal Code even though the person charged may not be arrested or the matter may not go further than the police inquiry and if the offence falls within the description in the latter part of the section he is liable to the punishment there provided. 17 Cal 574 (FB) and 32 Mad 258 (FB). Foll.; AIR 1941 Bom 414 and AIR 1938 Rang 397 and 16 All 124 and AIR 1931 Nag 134 (FB), Not foll. (1962) 1 Andh W R 195 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 187 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 719 (Andh Pra).

—S. 211 —Applicability — Mere statement or communication of suspicion cannot amount to institution of proceeding within section. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 338 : 1953 Cri L J 1598 : AIR 1953 Assam 204 (204) (Pr 8) (DB).

—S. 211—Criminal proceedings—Not necessarily a judicial proceeding—Includes investigation under Chapter 14, Criminal P. C. Giving information to police that a person has committed a cognizable offence — Amounts to institution of criminal proceeding within S. 211—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 4 (1) (i).

The word 'proceedings' is used in S. 211 in the ordinary sense of a prescribed mode of action for prosecuting a right or redressing a wrong. It is not used in the technical sense of a proceeding taken in a Court of law. If an investigation under Chapter 14 is a proceeding it necessarily follows that it is a criminal proceeding. The expression, 'criminal proceeding' in S. 211 of the Penal Code is wide enough to include a proceeding under Chap. 14 of the Criminal P. C. This is made clear by the fact that the expression 'criminal proceeding' in S. 211 ,Penal Code is not qualified by the word, 'judicial' or by anything else showing that it is confined to a proceeding before a Court of law or other tribunal ILR 5 All 215 and ILR 5 All 598 and ILR 16 All 124 and AIR 1931 Nag 134 (FB) and AIR 1938 Rang 397 and AIR 1941 Bom 414, Dissented from. Where, therefore, the criminal law is set in motion against a person by giving information to the police that that person has committed a cognizable offence, the person giving information institutes a criminal proceeding against that person within the meaning of S. 211 of the Penal Code, for the reason that the police are bound by law to investigate the accusation against that person whether they believe it or not and make a final report under S. 173 of the Criminal P. C. AIR 1931 All 269 and ILR 17 Cal 574 and ILR 20 Mad 79, Rel. on. The final report may be against some other person or against none at all; but this fact cannot alter the fact that a criminal proceeding was instituted against the person accused. Similarly the circumstance that a police investigation need not necessarily be directed against a definite person (though in the vast majority of cases it is) will not alter the fact that it is a proceeding against a person when it is so directed. Albert, Accused No. 1 v. State of Kerala, 1965 Ker L T 865 : ILR (1965) 2 Ker 329 : (1965) 2 Ker L R 117 : 1965 Ker L J 877 : 1966 Cri L J 26 : AIR 1966 Ker 11 (13) (Pr 5) (FB).

——S. 211—First information by accused not naming any particular person as culprit — Subsequent statement by him to police merely expressing suspicion on particular person—No criminal proceedings started against that person — Accused held not guilty under S. 211.

The accused made a report to the police that there had been house-breaking and theft in his house but did not name any person as the culprit. When questioned by the police during the investigation he merely expressed his suspicion on a particular woman. The investigation revealed that there had not been a real house-breaking. The accused was convicted under S. 211, Penal Code, upon the complaint of the woman.

Held, that the statement of the accused to the police of a suspicion that the woman was involved in the crime did not amount to a charge within the meaning of S. 211. No criminal proceedings were instituted against the woman and, therefore, the accused was not guilty under S. 211: AIR 1925 Lah 325: 14 I C 767 (Mad) and A I R 1924 All 779, Ref 1949 Nag L J 604 : 51 Cri L J 267 : 1950 All W R (Supp) 13 ; 1950 All Cri Cas 30 : ILR (1950) Nag 208 : AIR 1950 Nag 20 (21) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

6. "Falsely charges any person."

——S. 211—Institution of criminal proceedings — False charge—Charge of having committed contempt of Court—Held amounted to falsely charging (Per Sarkar and Mudholkar, JJ.) — Held amounted to institution of criminal proceedings (Per Hidayatullah, J.)

Per Sarkar, J.: Assuming that a proceeding for committal for contempt of Court is not a criminal proceeding within the meaning of that expression as used in S. 211 the section also says that falsely charging a person with the commission of an offence would be an offence under it. When S. 211 says that an offence under it may be committed by falsely charging a person with the commission of an offence, it does not intend that the offence must be one which gives rise to a criminal proceeding. Under the definition of offence in S. 40 the word 'offence' in S. 211 means an offence punishable under the Code or under any special or local law as defined in it. Section 41 defines a special law as a law applicable to a particular subject. Now the Contempt of Courts Act is an Act dealing with the subject of contempt of Courts and is therefore, a special law. It also provides for punishment for contempt of Court by simple imprisonment up to six months, subject to certain conditions mentioned. A charge of having committed a contempt of Court is, therefore, a charge of having committed an offence within the meaning of S. 211. ILR 6 Cal 620 and ILR 17 Cal 574 (FB) and ILR 19 Bom 51, Distinguished.

Per Mudholkar, J.—Since making of a false charge before any person, whosoever he may be, is covered by S. 499, Penal Code it would be appropriate to construe S. 211 as being applicable only to a case where a fale charge is made by the accused person against another before a person who is competent to enquire into it and take other proceedings himself or cause proceedings to be initiated. It is not limited to false charges made to a person who also has the power to try the accused or commit him for trial by another Court. The word 'offence' used in S.211 would also include a thing punishable under a special law. Special law is defined in S. 41 as a law applicable to a particular subject. The law of contempt is a particular subject and the High Court has inherent power to punish a person for the offence of contempt committed by him by disobeying an injunction issued against him. Disobedience of an injunction issued by the High Court is not something with respect to which action under S. 24 or S. 95 of the Civil P. C., could alone be taken but being contempt of the High Court's order is punishable by it in its discretion in exercise of its inherent powers. The only limitation which the statute has placed is with regard to the punishment that the High Court can meet out to the contemner.

Per Hidayatullah, J. : An application to take proceedings under the Contempt of Courts Act undoubtedly can be regarded causing criminal proceeding to be instituted. There may be some dispute as to whether a person charging another of having committed a contempt of Court charged the other with an offence, but. there can be no doubt that it amounted to the institution of a criminal proceeding because a contempt of Court can be punished by imprisonment and fine and that brings an accusation charging a man with contempt of Court within the wide words 'criminal proceeding.' Such proceedings were described as quasi-criminal proceedings by the Privy Council because such proceedings are not tried under the Criminal P. C. That does not render it any the less a criminal proceeding because the Criminal P. C., is not exhaustive. If there was no just or lawful ground for commencing the proceedings for contempt in the High Court then the requirements of S. 211 of the Penal Code must be taken to be prima face satisfied. 1964 Mad W N 574 : 1965 SCD 219 : (1965) 2 SCJ 329 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 588 : (1964) 7 S C R 237 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 737 : (1965) 1 SCWR 42 : AIR 1964 SC 1773 (1775) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 8).

——S. 211—'False charge'—Meaning of.

The meaning of the expression 'false charge' is simply 'falsely accuses,' and as the section stands, there is no necessity of this false accusation being made in connection with a criminal proceeding. If false allegations were made in connection with an application for contempt, it is at once obvious that these allegations were made in order that the Court might be persuaded to take action against the petitioners in contempt, and it must be held that there was an intention on the part of the opposite parties to cause injury to the petitioners by falsely accusing them of having committed certain offences : ILR 19 Bom 51, Dissented. 1959 Cri L J 583 : 1960 All W R (Supp) 13 (2) : 64 Cal W N 237 : 1960 All Cri R 148: AIR 1959 Cal 293 (293) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

—S. 211 — Ingredients of — Mere statements of facts or communications of suspicions not sufficient —Charge must be wilfully false to the knowledge of the maker — Accused must have intent to cause injury to persons against whom offence is alleged.

Mere statements of facts or communiciation of suspicions cannot amount to institution of criminal proceedings within the meaning of S. 211, I. P. C. Yet another ingredient of the offence the prosecution is bound to prove is that the charge was wilfully false to the knowledge of the maker of the charge. If that proof of knowledge is not insisted upon no person would feel it safe to convey information to the police about any suspicion of the commission of a cognizable case. But when the complaint is substantially true and what is false is a mere fringe to the complaint there is no offence made out under S. 211, I. P. C. Further, the accused in giving information must have acted with the intent to cause injury to the person against whom the offence is alleged. 1912 Mad W N 1125 and A I R 1924 All 779 ; A I R 1953 Assam 204 and A I R 1914 Cal 349 and AIR 1937 Pat 84, Rel. on. (1963) M L J (Cri) 396 : (1962) 2 Ker L R 103 : 1962 Ker L T 564 : ILR (1962) 2 Ker 355: 1963 (1) Cri L J 597 : A I R 1963 Ker 152 (153, 154) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5, 6).

——S. 211 – False charge — Circumstances in which it can be made — Considerations which might go to prove that person concerned knew that there was no just or lawful ground for such charge.

A false charge can be made in two circumstances (i) the person making the charge may have himself seen the offence being committed and (ii) the charge may be made on the basis of information received by him. In the former case the prosecution can easily establish that there was no just or lawful cause. In the latter however the prosecution has to show by producing the informant who gave the information to the accused or by showing that the facts given in the report were such that no man of ordinary prudence would make such a charge. AIR 1953 Raj 115 (115, 116) (6).

7. Illustrative cases.

——S. 211 – Information about commission of offences by some persons lodged with police – Informant also filing private complaint for prosecution of accused persons—Final report by police in respect of information – Prosecution under S. 211 not justified unless and until complaint or information to police is found to be false.

Where a person lodges information with the police alleging commission of certain offences by some persons and later on, before any report is filed by the police in respect of his report files a complaint for prosecution of the accused persons at his instance, the fact that a final report in respect of the information lodged by him is submitted by the police does not justify an order for his prosecution under S. 211, I. P. C. He is liable to be proceeded against under S. 211. I. P. C. only if his complaint or the information lodged by him with the police is found to be false but not before that. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 242.

——S. 211—Evidence—Information of alleged offence given at police station — Entry in the General Diary —Subsequent statement recorded from victim of the alleged occurrence — If can be used against him for convicting him of an offence under S. 211, Penal Code. Held that it fell within the mischief of S. 162, Criminal P. C. and therefore could not be used against him. See Criminal P. C. (5 of 1898), Ss. 154 and 164. 52 Cr L J 857 : AIR 1951 Mad 812.

——S. 211—Fact that police wanted to initiate proceedings under S. 211 of Penal Code against complainant—Order is illegal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 250. (1965) 31 Cut L T 324.

8. "If such criminal proceedings be instituted."

——S. 211, Second part—Scope of—False complaint of murder made to Village Mursif — Complaint proved false on police enquiry — Magistrate committing accused to Sessions — Validity — Criminal Procedure Code (5 of 1898), Ss. 207-A and 208.

If a false charge is made before the Village Munsif or police with regard to commission of an offence of the description in Part two of S. 211, with intent and knowledge as stated in the section even though the person charged may not be arrested or the matter may not go further than the police enquiry. S. 211, Part two will apply because setting the criminal machinery thus in motion is the institution of criminal proceedings on a false charge of an offence of the description in Part two of S 211. It was therefore a case exclusively triable by a Sessions Court and the Magistrate taking cognizance of such an offence on a report of the police could very well on seeing sufficient grounds, commit the case to Sessions.

Section 207, Criminal P. C., which relates to the enquiry into cases triable by a Court of Session or High Court, provides for two different procedures. Sub-s. (a) provides for procedure to be followed when the proceedings are instituted on a police report embodied in S. 207-A. Sub-s. (b) provides a different procedure for any proceeding which is not instituted on a police report. In the instant case, even though the police had investigated the matter and made report thereafter, since that investigation was not by the order of the Magistrate as contemplated by S. 155 (2), the report based thereon was not a 'police report' to which the provisions of S. 207-A would apply. Therefore it was obligatory on the part of the Magistrate to follow the procedure prescribed in S. 208, Criminal P. C. (1962) 1 Andh W R 195 : 1962 Mad L J (Cr) 187 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 719 (Andh Pra).

9. Accused to have opportunity to prove truth of his complaint.

——S. 211— Prosecution for giving false information —Protest petition pending enquiry— Opportunity to prove truth of that charge—Duty of Court to give.

Where a person who is accused of having committed an offence by reason of his having given false information demands a judicial investigation into the truth of the charge made by him he is entitled to be given an opportunity to prove the truth of the charge. During the pendency of such judicial investigation into what should be regarded as complaint made by accused in this case, a prosecution against him on the supposition that the charge made by him was false is unjustified. 1959 All W R (Sup) 12 : 1959 All Cr R 111 : 1959 M L J (Cri) 204 (Mys).

——S. 211—Evidence—Charge of making false allegations against police officer — Proof — Evidence necessary.

In a case where a person is charged with having made false allegations against a police officer, it is necessary that the falsity must be proved to its hilt by examining all the witnesses mentioned by him 1951 Mad W N 59 : 1951 Mad W N (Cri) 7 : 5 A I Cr

D 540 : 52 Cr L J 686 : (1951) 2 Mad L J 25 : A I R 1951 Mad 717 (717) (Pr 4).

——S. 211—Complaint against Armed police — Enquiry under S. 202, Criminal P. C. by Magistrate — Report that complaint is false—Enquiry unsatisfactory and held almost like a trial — Case under S. 211, should not be kept before the same Magistrate. 1952 Cri L J 303 : AIR 1952 Pat 125 (125) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

10. Practice and procedure.

——S. 211—"Proceeding"—"In relation to" — Meaning — False report to police against certain persons leading to their arrest and remand to custody—Remand and bail proceedings are "proceedings" — Cognizance of offence cannot be taken without complaint by Magistrate. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b). 1963 (2) Cri L J 64 (All).

——S. 211—Ingredients of—Mere statements of facts or communications of suspicions not sufficient — Charge must be wilfully false to the knowledge of the maker—Accused must have intent to cause injury to persons against whom offence is alleged.

Mere statements of facts or communication of suspicions cannot amount to institution of criminal proceedings within the meaning of S. 211, I. P. C. Another ingredient of the offence the prosecution is bound to prove is that the charge was wilfully false to the knowledge of the maker of the charge. Mere proof of the falsity of the complaint or the failure to prove its truth is not enough. To adduce evidence of such knowledge may be very difficult but it is still the unavoidable duty of the prosecution to prove that, if the accused is to be convicted under S. 211. If that proof of knowledge is not insisted upon no person would feel it safe to convey information to the police about any suspicion of the commission of a cognizable case When the complaint is substantially true and what is false is a mere fringe to the complaint there is no offence made out under S. 211, I. P. C. Further, the accused in giving information must have acted with the intent to cause injury to the person against whom the offence is alleged 1912 Mad W N 1125; AIR 1924 All 779; AIR 1953 Assam 204; AIR 1914 Cal 349; AIR 1937 Pat 84, Rel on. 1962 Ker L T 564 : (1962) 2 Ker L R 103 : ILR (1962) 2 Ker 355.

— S. 211 — Report to Police — Complaint filed in Court later — Prosecution under S. 211, Penal Code — Complaint from Court — Necessity — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S 195 (1) (b)).

Non-applicant made a report to the Police that he was attacked by a number of persons and was stabbed with a knife. Since Police did not prosecute the accused persons, non-applicant filed a complaint before a Magistrate. About 4 months thereafter, the Police prosecuted the non-applicant under S. 211, Penal Code alleging that the report made by him to the Police was false.

Held, that clause (b) of sub-s. (1) of S. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code being applicable, a prosecution under S. 211, Penal Code cannot be instituted without the complaint of the Court. The complaint filed by the Police was incompetent. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 175.

——S. 211—Offence under — Cognizance of —Sanction under S. 195 (1) (b) of the Criminal Procedure Code (5 of 1898)—When essential.

Where the Magistrate has already taken cognizance of a complaint under S. 211, Penal Code, and after that stage the accused moves the Court in a revision petition for inquiring into the truth of the complaint, there will be no question of the former complaint being hit by S. 195 (1) (b), Criminal Procedure Code and no sanction of the Court which has taken cognizance of the revision petition will be necessary to validate the further proceedings under the earlier complaint. (1964) 2 Mad L J 471 : 1964 Mad L J (Cr) 640.

——S 211 — False charge — Interpretation of. See Madras District Police Act (24 of 1859), S. 47. 1960 M W N 154.

——S. 211—Practice and procedure

Offence under S. 211, Penal Code, committed in relation to proceeding in Court—Once a complaint goes to the Court and the accused is discharged, thereafter for any complaint by the discharged person in respect of the complaint made against him to the Court, the complaint of the Court is necessary for an offence under S. 211, Penal Code See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1954 Cri L J 799 : AIR 1954 Mad 561

——S. 211 — Offences under Ss. 182 and 211, Penal Code—Complaint by officer in charge of police station —Offence under S. 182, Penal Code held could be tried. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a). 1957 B L J R 387.

——S. 211 — False information to Police—Case cancelled on final report from police — Magistrate in accepting such report does not act as Court—Prosecution of informant under S. 211, I. P. C., is not in relation to proceedings before Court — Complaint of Court is not necessary. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 173. 1961 (2) Cri L J 691 : AIR 1961 Raj 231.

——S. 211 — Information to police followed by criminal complaint — Prosecution of informant — Complaint by Court is necessary. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. 1960 Cr L J 995 : AIR 1960 Raj 168.

SECTION 212

——S. 212—Punishment.

Not only that the law makes harbouring of an offender punishable but that the punishment provided for against harbour is made to conform to the gravity of the offence committed by the person who is being harboured, the more serious the offence committed by the absconder, the greater is the disfavour shown by law to the accused being harboured or screened from legal punishment. 1958 Cri L J 324 : AIR 1958 All 214 (Pr 32) (DB).

——S. 212—Scope.

Until the 'offender' has been convicted of the offence he is alleged to have committed no prosecution can be launched under S. 212, Penal Code for harbouring him. 52 Cri L J 470 : I L R (1951) Trav-Co 61 : 1950 Ker L T 628 : AIR 1951 Trav-Co 90 (91) (Pr 3).

SECTION 214

——Ss 214, 109, 165-A and 193 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195-B -Municipal employees attesting panchnama of seizure of 'ganja'—Attesting is not as municipal employees but as witnesses—Defence trying to win over attesting witnesses and constable who seized 'ganja' — Offence punishable under Ss. 109 and 193, Penal Code — S. 214, Penal Code is inapplicable — Prosecution can be on complaint by Court when case pending. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 11.

SECTION 215

——S 215 — 'Deprived of movable property by any offence punishable under the Code' — Meaning of — Straying of cattle — Person finding it, demanding money for its return to owner — Not guilty under S. 215. 1963 All Cri R 455 : 1963 All W R (HC) 755.

——S. 215—Deprivation of property—What amounts to,

The deprivation of the property is not confined to one resulting from an act of theft. A person who commits criminal misappropriation of a property also deprives the owner of the possession of the property. 1953 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1953 Madh B 191 (191) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 215—"By any offence"—Meaning of.

From the mere fact that the accused took the complainant during night time to the jungle and did not point out to him the actual place where his buffaloes were, but himself went alone and returned with buffaloes, it cannot be inferred that some person had committed criminal misappropriation in respect of them. AIR 1938 All 440, Distinguished. 1953 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1953 Madh B 191 (191) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 215 — Burden of proof — "Unless he uses all means"—Onus.

The burden of proving that the accused used all means in his power to cause the offender to be apprehended and convicted of the offence is on the accused. AIR 1933 Cal 599, Rel. on. 1953 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1953 Madh B 191 (192) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——S. 215—Onus—Duty of prosecution and accused — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105)—(Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 367).

Under S. 215, Penal Code, once it is established by the prosecution that the accused accepted the gratification, for restoring the stolen property he must be guilty under S. 215 unless and until he successfully proves that he did all that lay within his means for the apprehension and conviction of the real culorits. 1959 Cri L J 1438 : 1960 M P C 49 : 1960 M P L J 205 : 1960 Jab L J 153 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 418 (420) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——S. 215—Onus and proof—Section is not intended to punish persons, receiving consideration bona fide for helping owner to recover property lost by theft—Prosecution has initially to prove that accused received money without any intention of tracing offender and bringing him to book—Onus to prove exception lies on accused — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

Section 215 of the Code is not intended to punish person who receives consideration bona fide for helping the owner to recover property which he has lost by theft, criminal misappropriation etc. It is intended to deal with cases which are similar to collections in the nature of 'Thuppukooli' made by the persons who from the circumstances of their offer to help the owner, are expected to contact the thief, pay him a portion of the money on the understanding that he won't be exposed if he would release the concerned property to the owner. There is thus, besides the promise by the accused to recover the stolen property an implied association between him and the thief or the means on his part of discovering the thief and recovering the property but without at the same time any undertaking on his part, to do what the law expects every honest citizen to do in the situation, namely to help in the prosecution of the person who has committed a cognizable and non-bailable offence like theft or an offence in regard to moveable property.

For giving the section this significance the first part has to be read in conjunction with the last part containing the words 'unless he uses all means in his power to cause the offender to be apprehended.' Therefore, the first part of the section itself is really intended to deal with persons who impliedly have means of contacting the offender and recovering the property, and who then undertake to recover the property from the thief on payment of a sum which will serve to remunerate them and also 'square' up the thief. It is only when this state of affairs has been established by the prosecution, can the onus of proof be thrown on the accused person to prove the terms of the exception namely that he had 'used all means in his power to cause the offender to be apprehended and convicted of the offence.' These being facts within his knowledge, the statute has placed the onus on him to establish them. Therefore, though it is clear that the clause 'unless he uses all means in his power to cause the offender to be apprehended and convicted of the offence' is in the nature of a special exception or proviso, within the meaning of S. 105 of the Evidence Act, for which the onus of proof is on the accused, the juxtaposition of this clause with the other ingredients of the offence specified in the first portion of the section, shows that the prosecution has initially to establish that the circumstances of the taking of the money were such that the accused received it without any intention of tracing the offender and bringing him to book, assuming he had the means of getting at the offender.

Where, therefore, the accused received the money and made the representation that he would recover the property stolen, before night-fall,

Held, that the accused had the means of getting at the offender and that he had also no intention to bring the thief to book, while restoring the property. He could, therefore, be convicted under S. 215, Penal Code. 1965 Mad W N 154 : (1965) 2 Mad L J 321 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 719 : 78 Mad L W 110 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 826 (Mad).

——S. 215—Scope—Missing property must have been stolen—The accused must have consented to take gratification under pretence of recovering same — Exception where accused has used all means in his power to apprehend offender. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 125.

——S. 215 — Sentence—Accused old man of 60 and serving sentence of two months already — Complainant says to accused that he would report matter to police — Sentence of six months reduced to one already undergone. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 125.

SECTION 216-A

——S. 216-A—Essentials of offence—Burden of proof.

In a prosecution under S. 216-A, Indian Penal Code, the burden is on the prosecution to establish the following ingredients:—(i) that the persons in questions were about to commit or had recently committed robbery; (ii) that the accused knew this; (iii) that the accused harboured them or some of them; (iv) that the accused did so with the intention of— — (a) facilitating the commission of robbery or dacoity, or (b) screening them or some of them from punishment. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 94.

SECTION 218

● —S. 218 — Police Officer manipulating police diary to save another accused — Another accused acquitted of offence and also of abetting under S. 218—Conviction of public servant—Not affected—U. P. Police Act, Ss 36 and 42—Scope—For anything done or intended to be done under the Act—Prosecution under S. 218 of the Penal Code — Limitation of three months — Not applicable to an offence under the Penal Code.

It is manifest that whether G was guilty or not, at the time the false entries were made in the case diary by X (the accused) there was every likelihood of being prosecuted along with others for causing the death of R and another. Indeed as expected G and others were prosecuted though they were acquitted. On the said facts the mere acquittal of G cannot displace the finding that X the accused manipulated the record with an intent thereby to save or knowing it to be likely that he would thereby save G from legal punishment. If X had made the false entry in the diary and manipulated other records with a view to save G from the legal punishment that might be inflicted upon him, the mere fact that he was subsequently acquitted of the offence could not make it any the less an offence under S. 218 of the I. P. Code. The acquittal of G for the abetment of the offence under S. 218 of the I. P. Code committed by X does not affect the conviction of X under S. 218 of the I. P. Code.

The period of three months prescribed for commencing a prosecution under S. 42 of the U. P. Police Act is only with respect to prosecution of a person for something done or intended to be done by him under the provisions of the U. P. Police Act or under general police powers given by the Act. S. 42 does not apply to prosecutions against any person for anything done under the provisions of any other Act or under police powers conferred under any other Act. Under S. 36 nothing contained in the Police Act shall be construed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any Regulation or Act for any offence made punishable by this Act or for being liable under any other Regulation or Act or any other or higher penalty or punishment than is provided for such offence by this Act.

The prosecution in the present case was for an offence under S. 218 of the I. P. Code which is an offence under a different Act and for which a much higher punishment is prescribed. By reason of S. 36 of the Police Act, S. 42 thereof cannot apply to such a prosecution. Maulud Ahmad v. The State of Uttar Pradesh, (1964) 1 S C J 164 : 1964 M L J (Cri) 76 : (1963) 1 S C W R 268 : 1963 All L J 555 : 1963 All W R (H C) 482 : 1963 S C D 714 : I L R (1963) 2 All 528 : 1963 All Cr R 253 : (1963) Supp 2 S C R 38 : 1964 (2) Cr L J 71 (S C).

● ——S. 218—Prosecution under of Police Officer — Limitation prescribed by S. 42 has no application. See Police Act (1861), S. 42. (1954) 1 S C J 164 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 76 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 71 (S C).

● ——S. 218:— Police officer charged with manipulation of records to save accused—Accused acquitted—Held, police officer could be convicted under S. 218. Maulad Ahmad v. State of U. P., 1963 All L J 155 : (1964) 1 S C J 164 : (1963) All W R (H C) 482 : I L R (1963) 2 All 528 : 1964 M L J (Cri) 76 : 1963 All Cr R 253 : (1968) Supp 2 S C R 38 : (1963) 1 S C W R 268 : 1963 S C D 714 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 71 (S C).

● ——S. 218—Police Act (1861), S. 42—Sentence—If a police officer manipulates the record such as police diary etc. it will be the end of honest criminal investigation in the country. Such offences shall receive deterrant punishment. Maulud Ahmad v. State of U. P. 1963 All L J 555 : 1963 S C D 714 : 1963 All W R (H C) 482 : (1964) 1 S C J 164 : 1 L R (1963) 2 All 528 : 1963 All Cr R 253 : 1964 Mad L 7 (Cri) 76: (1963) Supp 2 S C R 38 : (1963) 1 S C W R 268 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 71 (SC).

● ——S. 218—Proof of intention — Duty of prosecution.

In order to sustain a conviction under S. 218, it is not sufficient that the entries are incorrect, but it is essential that the entry should have been made with the intention mentioned in that section. Where direct evidence proving the necessary criminal intention is lacking in the case and the circumstantial evidence too meagre to support any safe conclusion as to the intention with which the accused made the entry complained of, it must be held that the prosecution has failed to prove the necessary criminal intention. Raghubansh Lal v. The State of Uttar Pradesh, 1957 Mad W N (SC) 21 : ILR (1957) 1 All 368 : 1957 B L J R 362 : 1957 Mad L J (Cri) 388 : 1957 S C J 417 : 1957 Cri L J 595 : 1957 S C R 696 : 1957 M P C 361 : 1957 Ker L T 452 : 1957 S C A 607 : 1957 Andh L T 550 : 1957 S C C 207 : 1957 All W R (HC) 476 : 1957 All L J 472 : A I R 1957 S C 487 (488) (Pr 12).

—S. 218—Conviction under — Dishonest intention not proved—Accused given benefit of doubt — Criminal trial—Evidence—Benefit of doubt. 1964 All Cr R 244 (All).

——S. 218 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b) — Falsification of public record (false entry in birth and death register) by public servant—Offences under Ss. 193 and 218, Penal Code are distinct—Prosecution of public servant for offence under S. 218 alone without sanction not barred. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (b). 1962 (1) Cri L J 240 : A I R 1962 All 150.

——S. 218 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235—Joinder of charges — Joint trial of offences under Ss. 161 and 218, Penal Code — Previous sanction under S. 6, Prevention of Corruption Act. 1947, not obtained for former offence—Evidence of demand and acceptance of illegal gratification for making false entry relevant for both offences—Accused is not prejudiced by joint trial and conviction for latter offence is valid — Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 6. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235. 52 Cri L J 184 : A I R 1951 All 502.

——S. 218—Ranbir Penal Code (1989 B. K.), S. 167 — Intention to cause harm — Patwari making wrong entry in revenue records—Possibility of mistake being bona fide not ruled out—Wrong entry was innocuous as there was decree of civil Court determining rights of complainants — Held, that Patwari could not be said to have intended to cause any harm. 1965 Kash L J 93 : AIR 1966 J & K 96.

SECTION 220

——S. 220—Malicious confinement.

Where the unlawful commitment to confinement is wilful, without any excuse and with a view to put pressure on the person confined to come to terms with a certain person in whom the accused is interested, the accused can safely be said to have acted 'maliciously'. 1956 Cri L J 412 : ILR (1956) Pepsu 13 : A I R 1956 Pepsu 30 (30) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

SECTION 221

——S. 221 — Person apprehended with stolen property handed over to Datadar—Escape from custody of Dafadar — Duties of Dafadar under Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act, Ss. 27 and 28—Dafadar held guilty under S. 221.

Held, on facts established that the petitioner as a dafadar had arrested the person and had thus taken him in custody, and was under duty to keep him under arrest and that inasmuch as he allowed him to escape he was guilty under S. 221 of the Penal Code. A I R 1940 Pat 696; 27 Cal 366; A I R 1914 Cal 272 and 46 Cal W N 163. Disting. 1962 B L J R 438 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 827 (Pat).

——S. 221 — Person apprehended with stolen property handed over to Dafadar—Escape from custody of Dafadar — Duties of Dafadar under Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act Ss. 27 and 28—Dafadar held guilty under S. 221.

Under S. 27 (a) Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act (3 of 1922), a dafadar is empowered to exercise all the powers conferred on a Choukidar under sub-s. (1) of this section. Under the definition given by S. 4 (4) of the Act, a dafadar merely means a head choukidar. Consequently, under S. 27 (1) (ii) (d), a dafadar is bound to arrest a person in whose possession anything is found which may reasonably be suspected to be stolen property, or who may reasonably be suspected of having committed an offence with reference to such thing. Where some persons hand over the accused along with articles alleged to have been stolen by him, to the dafadar and tell him all about the occurrence and circumstances under which the accused was caught, the dafadar takes the custody of the person of the accused as well as the suspected property and when he takes away the accused and the suspected property to his house, it must be held that the dafadar as dafadar has actually arrested the accused by virtue of the power conferred on him It may be, that not being a police officer within the meaning of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the dafadar is not governed by S 59 (2), Criminal P. C, in the sense that he should re-arrest the accused, after the latter had been handed over to him, but it cannot be said that the dafadar had not arrested the accused.

If a dafadar receives information, which may lead to an inference that a person has been found in possession of property which may reasonably be suspected to be stolen property, or upon which a person may reasonably he suspected of having committed an offence with reference to such thing, the dafadar in exercise of his own rights under S. 27 of the Bihar Act 3 of 1922 can arrest the person concerned. Only because S. 27 of the Act does not mention any power of a chowkidar to re-arrest, it is difficult to hold that he cannot arrest by virtue of his powers, even if circumstances exist under which he can take action under S. 27 (1) (ii) (d) of the Act.

Under S. 28 whenever a dafadar or chowkidar arrests any person under S. 27, he is bound to take the arrested person forthwith to the police station within the limits of which the union was situated. Where, however, the arrest has been made at night, it is open to him to take the accused to the police station as soon as it was convenient to do so in the following morning.

Held on facts established that the petitioner as a dafadar had arrested the person and had thus taken him in custody, and was under duty to keep him under arrest and that inasmuch as he allowed him to escape he was guilty under S. 221 of the Penal Code. A I R 1940 Pat 698, I L R 27 Cal 366, A I R 1941 Cal 272, 46 Cal W N 163, Disting. 1962 B L J R 438.

——S. 221—Charge—Framing of—Details.

A person must be told as to what offences he is being directly charged with and what others, if any, he is being sought to be vicariously made liable. There is no reason or rhyme to seek to make a person who has committed a criminal act with his own hand liable constructively for that act under any of the sections of the Penal Code relating to vicarious responsibility. As the principal offender the charge and the conviction against him must be for the substantive offence he committed and not for that offence by virtue of any vicarious responsibility. A I R 1955 Assam 226, Ref. to. 1956 Ker L T 30 : I L R (1956) Trav-Co 1 : 1956 Cri L J 1358 : A I R 1956 Trav-Co 230 (232) (Pt E) (Pr 7) (DB).

SECTION 223

——S. 223 — Accused was posted on duty to guard sub-jail at midnight — Escape of prisoners from jail during period of his watch — It is prima facie evidence of his negligence—Accused must satisfactorily establish that he took all reasonable care in performing his duty which required extra vigilance and which is expected of a person performing similar duties — Failure to establish — Moreover accused found to be actually negligent in his duty — He is guilty under S. 223 — Sentence of fine only is out of all proportion to gravity of offence — Deterrent sentence should be passed — Sentence of fine of Rs. 50 enhanced to one of six months' simple imprisonment. 1952 Cri L J 22 : A I R 1951 Kutch 89 (90) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

——S. 223 — Neglect of duty — Under-trial persons escaping—Offence.

Held, on facts of the case that the accused was guilty of neglect of duty on account of which the under-trial prisoners escaped from confinement and the conviction under S 225, Penal Code could therefore be altered to one under S. 223, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 225. AIR 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 2508.

——Ss. 223 and 224 — Escape from custody—Person responsible for escape not prosecuted under S. 223 — Inference against prosecution cannot be drawn. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 490 (DB).

SECTION 224

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 224.)

1. Scope and applicability.
2. "Intentionally."
3. Resistance or obstruction to apprehension.
4. "For any offence with which he is charged."
5. Escape from lawful custody.
6. Sentence.

1. Scope and applicability.

——S. 224 — Applicability — Proceedings against prisoner—Imposition of fetters by Superintendent of Jail not shown to be by way of punishment for offence—Legality of proceedings—Prisons Act, S. 46 —Constitution of India, Art. 20.

Where proceedings were instituted against a prisoner under S. 224 or 224/114, Penal Code, on the allegation that he along with others attempted to escape from jail and there was nothing definite to show that the imposition of fetters and the restriction on him to take exercise in the cellyard inflicted by the Superintendent of Jail were by way of punishment for the offence under S. 46 of the Prisons Act, the proceedings are not liable to be quashed.

If, however, the prisoner was already punished for the alleged offence under S. 224 or 224/114, Penal Code, there is no doubt that the proceedings would be against the provisions of Art. 20 of the Constitution and would, therefore, be illegal.

The provisions of S. 403, Criminal P. C. cannot apply to the facts of the case 55 C W N 140 : A I R 1952 Cal 319 (320) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 224 — Lawfully detained:— Warrant of arrest returned unexecuted — No issue of fresh warrant — Second attempt to arrest — Accused taken into custody—Arrest is without any order of arrest — It is not custody in which accused could be held to be lawfully detained — To escape or attempt to escape from such custody is no offence. 51 Cri L J 679 : I L R (1949) 1 Cut 623 : A I R 1950 Orissa 62 (64) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 224 — Offence under S. 33 (1) (a), Forest Act is cognizable offence—Person arrested for offence under S. 33(1)(a) can be released on his executing bond to appear before Magistrate—Offence is not non-bailable —Private person like Plantation Watcher can arrest person committing offence under S. 33 (1) (a) — Plantation Watcher is forest officer within meaning of S. 2 (2). Forest Act and has power to arrest without warrant person committing offence under S. 33 (1) (a) — Person arrested has no right of private defence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 59. 1963 (1) Cri L J 558 (Tripura).

2. "Intentionally."

——S. 224—'Intentionally' escapes.

Accused 3 was arrested by the police on a public road believing him to be indulging in unlawful gaming with other accused. While being taken to the police station accused 2 threw soda water bottles at the police constable who as a result, released his hold on the accused. Taking advantage of the situation accused 3 ran away.

Held, that the accused was guilty of intentional escape from lawful custody within the meaning of S. 224, I. P. Code (1963) 1 Mys L J 251 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 131 : I L R (1963) Mys 456 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 466 (Mys).

——S. 224—"Intentionally"—Accused forcibly taken away from custody by others — Accused cannot be said to have "intentionally" escaped from custody. 51 Cri L J 679 : I L R (1949) 1 Cut 623 : A I R 1950 Orissa 62 (64) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

3. Resistance or obstruction to apprehension.

——Ss. 224 and 225 — Endorsement on warrant not by name but by designation — Warrant is not legal—Resistance to execution of such warrant—Conviction under, not sustainable. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 79. 1964 (1) Cri L J 592 (Ker).

——Ss. 224, 225 and 225-B — Lawful apprehension —Apprehension made within power and authority of person making it — Accused acquitted of offence for which apprehension was made — Acquittal does not make apprehension unlawful. (1965 1 Mys L J 307 : (1965) 1 Law Rep 806 : 1965 Mad L J (Cr) 404 : 1966 Cri L J 36 : A I R 1966 Mys 20 (21) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

—— Ss. 224, 225 and 225-B — Lawful apprehension—Apprehension must be lawful—Whether it is in good faith is immaterial. (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : (1965) 1 Law Rep 806 : 1965 Mad L J (Cr) 404 : 1966 Cri L J 36 : AIR 1966 Mys 20 (21) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Ss. 224, 226 and 225-B — Intentional obstruction or resistance—Proof—Intention should be that there should be no apprehension notwithstanding apprehension is known to be lawful — Very act of rescue involves intention to take away person rescued.

To constitute an offence under Ss. 224 and 225 the obstruction or resistance must be intentional. An obstruction or resistance to apprehension would be intentional when the persons offering it did so with the intention that there should be no apprehension notwithstanding that such apprehension is to their knowledge lawful. Rescuing a person from lawful custody is clearly an offence because the very act of rescue involves the intention to take away the person rescued from the custody in which he is lawfully detained. (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : (1965) 1 Law Rep 806 : 1965 Mad L J (Cr) 404 : 1966 Cri L J 36 : AIR 1966 Mys 20 (21) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——S. 224 — Apprehension must be lawful — Case under S. 447 — In first instance summons should issue — Issue of warrant is not lawful apprehension — Resistance is not offence — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 204.

Where a person was put on trial for having committed an offence under S. 224, Penal Code, on the allegations that he offered resistance to his lawful apprehension, in order to bring the charge home to the accused, it has to be established that the accused intentionally offered resistance to his lawful apprehension for the offence with which he was charged or he escaped from the custody in which he was lawfully detained.

The case under S. 447, Penal Code is one in which, according to S. 204, Criminal P.C., summons has to be issued for the accused's attendance. The Court shall be entitled to issue a warrant not in the first instance but only later, after the summonses are not complied with.

Where the Magistrate issues warrant of arrest at the first instance for an offence under S. 447 after taking cognizance of the offence, instead of summons, apprehension of accused under such circumstances cannot be said to be lawful one within S. 224, Penal Code, and resistance to it will not be an offence. 51 Cri L J 679 : I L R (1949) 1 Cut 623 : A I R 1950 Orissa 62 (63) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

4. "For any offence with which he is charged."

——S. 224—Escape from lawful custody—Proof that person escaping was charged with offence is essential—'Charged', meaning of.

In a prosecution under S. 224, I. P. Code, what should be proved is that the person who escaped from lawful custody had been charged with an offence not in the sense that a charge had been framed against him by a Court of law under the Code of Criminal Procedure but in the ordinary sense of that expression, namely, that he was accused of having been involved in an offence. The question whether a person was or was not charged with an offence should depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and the inference to be drawn from such facts and circumstances. (1963) 1 Mys L J 251 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 131 : ILR (1963) Mys 456 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 466 (467) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (Mys).

——S. 224 — Charge —Offences committed not in the course of same transaction — Misjoinder of charges—Effect — The trial held was vitiated by misjoinder. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239. A I R 1955 N U C (Mad) 2415.

——S. 224—Applicability—Person who escapes must be charged with offence—Evidence — Contradiction in—Ingredient held not established —(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 5050.

5. Escape from lawful custody.

——S. 224 — Name and designation of person who was to execute warrant not mentioned in the warrant — Where legality of warrant is basis for prosecution and is challenged, error or omission in warrant cannot be considered to be mere irregularity within S. 537, See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1965 All W R (H C) 143.

——S. 224 —Lawfully detained — Meaning of.

Section 61, Criminal P. C. (1898), provides that the police officer should not detain a person in custody for a period longer than 24 hours exclusive of the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the Magistrate's Court. Where the accused is sent to be produced before the Magistrate within 24 hours of his arrest the fact that more than 24 hours have elapsed before he could reach the Magistrate's Court which was situate in another town, to which he had to be taken in view of the circumstance that the Magistrate was on leave cannot make the detention of the accused unlawful within the meaning of S. 224, Penal Code. 1954 Cri L J 651 : AIR 1954 Hyd 89 (DB).

——S. 224 — Escape from custody — What is.

Even when the escape is effected by the consent or with the knowledge of the person escorting the prisoner in custody, the accused is no less guilty, 1954 Cri L J 651 : I L R (1954) Hyd 68 : AIR 1954 Hyd 89 (90) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 224 — Police constable arresting suspected thief without warrant on his own initiative under S. 54 (1) — Arrest lawful even if S. 56 not complied with — Suspected thief escaping from custody by causing death of constable — Held guilty of offences under Ss. 224 and 302, I. P. C. See Penal Code (1860), S. 99. 1964 (2) Cri L J 34 : AIR 1964 Ker 185 (DB).

——Ss 224 and 225 — Lawful custody – Resistance to or escape from — Warrant of arrest—Endorsement on — No proper endorsement as required by S. 79, Cri. P. Code —Arrest not lawful—S. 54, Cri. P. Code cannot be availed.

Under the terms of S. 79, Cri. P. Code, the endorsement on the warrant of arrest should be regularly made by name to a certain person in order to authorise him to make an arrest. Where there is no such endorsement the arrest is not a legal arrest so as to make the accused liable for an offence under Ss. 224 and 225, Penal Code. 4 Cal W N 85, Foll. To hold that S. 54 applies in such cases without any intimation to the accused and without any allegation by the police officer in his deposition that he proceeded under the section could be to nullify several salutary provisions contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure regarding the execution of warrants of arrest. AIR 1924 Mad 555; AIR 1918 Pat 252, Rel. on. 1961 Ker L J 769 : 1961 Ker L T 577 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 437 (Ker).

——S. 224 – Applicability—Conditions—'Escape.'

A person forcibly snatchad away from custody cannot be said to have intentionally escaped from custody and therefore cannot be convicted under this section. AIR 1950 Orissa 62, Followed. 1957 Mad W N 423 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 405 : 1957 Cri L J 1284 (1) : AIR 1957 Mad 714 (714) (Pr 2).

——S. 224 — Applicability — Detention of accused by villagers on suspicion — Subsequent arrest by constable — Escape — Offence — (Cri. P. Code (1898), Ss. 46, 54 56 and 59).

The accused was detained by certain villagers on suspicion. On information sent by them to the Police station the Officer-in-charge deputed a constable who took charge of the accused. On their way to the Police station the accused escaped. In the case under S. 224, Penal Code the command certificate authorising the constable to effect arrest was not produced and on the question whether the arrest was legal.

Held, that in order to convict the accused under S. 224, I. P Code the prosecution must prove that there was a lawful arrest within the meaning of S. 54 or S. 56, Cri. P. Code. In order to enable a private person to effect an arrest of any person a cognizable offence must be committed in his presence. In the present case no cognizable offence had been committed in the presence of the villagers. Therefore, the villagers could not have effected a legal arrest. There was no evidence on record that he was re-arrested by the constable. The arrest, therefore was neither under S. 54 nor under S. 56, Cri. P. Code. Nor was there submission to custody by the accused himself under S. 46, Cri. P. Code. It could not be said. therefore, that the accused escaped from lawful custody. 25 Cut L T 244 : I L R (1959) Cut 504 : 1960 Cri L J 267 : AIR 1960 Orissa 23 (25) (Pr 7).

——S. 224 — Jaipur Penal Code (1924), S. 224 — Escape from custody.

The fact that the public servant who had the custody of the accused and suffered him to escape has not been prosecuted under S. 223 does not necessarily lead to an inference against the prosecution case against the accused under this section. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 490 (DB).

——S. 224 — Accused apprehended for possession of opium—Search and seizure of opium from person — Accused suddenly managing to escape from armed police guard while seizure list was being prepared and on being chased escaping to Pakistan border — Conviction of accused under S. 224 is justified. 1965 (2) Cri L J 814 : AIR 1965 Tripura 45 (48) (Pt E) (Pr 18).

6. Sentence.

—— Ss. 224. 225 and 225-B—Sentence.

The offences under Ss. 224 and 225 are serious ones. A person securing his freedom from lawful apprehension by offering resistance to such apprehension and those who, depending upon their greater number, over-power and manhandle a public servant discharging his duty and rescue such person, can plead no circumstance in extenuation. (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : (1965) 1 Law Rep 806 : 1965 Mad L J (Cr) 404 : 1966 Cri L J 36 : AIR 1966 Mys 20 (22) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

——S. 224 — Sentence.

When the Constables told the petitioner that he must agree to be put under arrest and taken to the Police Station, the petitioner replied that he had obtained a bail order from the Magistrate and that he was ready to accompany the Constable to the Police Station, but refused to be arrested. The Constables were not however satisfied with the assurance given by him and caught hold of his hand with a view to arrest him. Thereupon the petitioner snatched away his hand and attempted to assault the Constable by raising his Kudi (spade) which was then snatched away by the other constable who received a light injury.

Held, that as the accused did not agree to be arrested there was no "submision" to custody within S. 46, Criminal P. C. Considering all the circumstances, status of the accused, and the fact that in that in respect of the main offence he has been given bail by the Magistrate, a substantive sentence of imprisonment under S. 224, Penal Code, was not necessary. A fine of Rs 200 and in default rigorous imprisonment for three months was sufficient. (1959) 1 O J D 677 (1960) 26 Cut L T 92.

SECTION 225

——S. 225 — Name and designation of person who was to execute warrant not mentioned in the warrant — Where legality of warrant is basis for prosecution and is challenged, error or omisssion in warrant cannot be considered to be mere irregularity within S. 537. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1965 All W R (H C) 143.

——Ss. 225 and 353 — Sentence.

Where accused are convicted under Ss. 225 and 353 for offences committed in the course of the same transaction and the Magistrate feels that a sentence of imprisonment is necessary, the proper course for him is to inflict a sentence of imprisonment for each offence and to direct that the two sentences run concurrently. 1954 Cri L J 1472 : AIR 1954 Him Pra 68 (70) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Ss. 225, 224 and 225B — Lawful apprehension—Apprehension made within power and authority of person making it — Accused acquitted of offence for which apprehension was made — Acquittal does not make apprehension unlawful. See Penal Code (1860), S. 224. (1965) Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1966 Mys 20.

——Ss. 225, 224 and 225B — Lawful apprehension — Apprehension must be lawful — Whether it is in good faith is immaterial. See Penal Code (1860), S. 224. (1965) Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1966 Mys 20.

——Ss. 225, 225B and 224 — Gist of offence.

What is necessary to constitute an offence under S. 225 of the Penal Code is that the obstruction or resistance was intentional. An obstruction or resistance is intentional when those who offered the obstruction or those who resisted did so with the intention that there should be no apprehension notwithstanding such apprehension is to their knowledge lawful. (1965) 1 Mys LJ 307: (1965) M L J (Cr) 404: (1965) 1 Law Rep 806: AIR 1966 Mys 20 (21) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——S. 225 — Sentence.

The offences under Ss. 224 and 225 are serious ones. A person securing his freedom from lawful apprehension by offering resistance to such apprehension and those who depending upon their greater number, overpower and manhandle a public servant discharging his duty and rescue such person can plead no circumstance in extenuation. (1965) Mad L J 404: (1965) 1 Mys L J 307: AIR 1966 Mys 20.

— S. 225 — Offence under — Intention — Proof of — Necessary only in regard to resistance to apprehension and not for rescue from lawful custody.

In order to amount to an offence under the second part of S. 225, Penal Code a rescue from lawful custody need not be intentional. It is only resistance or illegal obstruction to apprehension that has to be proved to be intentional before it can amount to an offence under the first part of S. 225, Penal Code. When a person rescues another person who is in lawful custody so that he may be prosecuted for an offence committed by him it is obvious that the rescue cannot be anything but intentional. (1962) 40 Mys L J 380: 1962 All Cr R 203: 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 436: 1962 All W R (Suppl) 46 (Mys).

——Ss. 225 and 353 — Sarpanch forwarding warrant to Chief Officer for execution — No irregularity or illegality — Accused rescuing arrested person from custody of Chief Officer — Can be punished under S. 353, Penal Code. See Panchayats — Bihar Gram Cutcherry Rules (1949), R. 9. 1963 B L J R 641.

——S. 225 — Lawfully detained.

Under R. 28 (2) of Bihar Gram-Cutcherry Rules (1949) it is incumbent to send the accused to jail custody with the village chowkidar who is to be assisted by such person of the village volunteer force as the Mukhiya may direct. Instead of that where the convict was sent to Jail custody and on the way the convict was rescued by others:

Held that at the time the convict was rescued he was in lawful detention within the provisions of S. 225, Penal Code. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 1392.

——Ss. 225, 223 — 'Rescue' means forcibly liberating or recovering prisoner from custody — There must be intention and use of violence — In absence of proof of this, there cannot be conviction under S. 225 — Accused held guilty of negligence in allowing undertrials to escape — Conviction altered to one under S. 223. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 2508.

SECTION 225-B

——S. 225-B — Applicability — Absence of valid or legal warrant for apprehension of a person is fatal to conviction under this section. See Penal Code (1860), S. 332. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2782.

——S. 225B — Illegal custody — Escape from — If offence.

The person from whose custody the rescue is effected or escape made must have authority to lawfully detain the person rescued. If the apprehension or detention is not lawful then his own escaping as well as the rescuing of such a person by others is no offence. ILR (1951) Hyd 237: AIR 1950 Hyd 20 (DB).

—— Ss. 225-B, 323 — Accused rescuing person from unlawful detention and simultaneously causing hurt — Acquittal under S. 225-B — Conviction under S. 323 not legal — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 235. 1965 (2) Cri L J 89: AIR 1965 Cal 368 (368) (Prs 3, 6) (DB).

——S. 225-B — Warrant of arrest of judgment-debtor — It is to be issued to a person named — Necessity of such issue — Improper issue of warrant — Escape of judgment-debtor from custody — Offence under S. 225-B, Penal Code cannot be made out. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 24 (2). 1962 (2) Cri L J 372: AIR 1962 Ker 258 (DB).

——S. 225-B — Requirements to constitute the offence — Warrant issued in the name of Nazir — Arrest by process server without endorsement by Nazir — Escape whether amounts to an offence.

It cannot be contended that the warrant having been issued to the Nazir should be executed by himself and that he is not empowered to delegate its execution to another. If the Nazir has made an endorsement on the back of the warrant authorising any particular process server or Amin to effect the arrest there is no doubt that that particular person would have authority to go and effect the arrest. A warrant for arrest must be issued to some person for execution and where no name or description of that person is given in the warrant the person arrested can have no knowledge that the person who presents the warrant and demands the payment of the decree amount and arrests him in default is legally authorised to do so. It may be that the person who is arrested is unable to read the warrant or had no knowledge as to whether the warrant is or is not properly filled up but it is the duty of the Court to issue a warrant in proper form and when the warrant is incomplete, no offence under S. 225-B of the Penal Code is made out. There must be an order of the Munsif leaving the judgment-debtor in the custody of a particular officer of the Court and an order to produce the judgment-debtor at the expiration of the period specified. Order 21, R. 40 of Civil P. C., says nothing about the order having to be in writing. In order that an offence under S. 225-B of Penal Code is made out the apprehension and detention must be lawful, that is to say, the warrant on which the arrest was made and detention was ordered must satisfy all due formalities of law. The statutory rules which involve penal consequences for infringement must be strictly interpreted and it is the duty of the prosecution to prove all the essential ingredients that constitute the offence. As the custody of the accused with the peon is not proved to be legal custody, his escape will not amount to an offence (1964) M L J (Cr) 392: 1961 Ker L J 1095: 1962 Ker L T 169: 1962 (2) Cri L J 372: 1962 All W R (Sup) 99: 1962 All Cri R 458: AIR 1962 Ker 258 (261) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Ss. 225-B and 109 — 'Rescuing' requires overt act — Mere instigation to escape would make it only an abetment of offence of escape.

Where no overt act has been done by the first accused to forcibly rescue the second accused from the custody of the Amin, the oral incitement or instigation to escape, alone would not be sufficient to constitute the offence of rescuing from custody made punishable under S. 225-B; 'rescuing' indicates some positive overt act on the part of the accused by which the liberation of the person arrested is effected. Whether there is any such act done by the accused in a particular case would depend on the facts of each case. When the accused No. 1 only instigated the second accused to escape and in consequence of that he escaped from custody, the offence committed by the first accused, is really abetment of escape by the second accused, an offence punishable under S 225-B read with S. 109. ILR (1961) 1 Ker 279: 1961 Ker L T 353: 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 597: 1961 (2) Cri L J 774: AIR 1961 Ker 331 (334) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 16) (DB).

——Ss. 225-B, 353 and 114 — Misdescription in warrant — Resistance to arrest is not offence — Burden lies on prosecution to establish identity of accused with person described in warrant — Aiding escape from illegal arrest is also not an offence.

If the description in the warrant of the person to be arrested is wrong it makes the warrant invalid and the arrest illegal. The attempt of the accused to resist an illegal arrest does not make him liable to punishment under S. 225-B. ILR 28 Cal 399, Rel. on,

It is but elementary that in a criminal case the burden of proving the necessary facts to constitute an offence is always on the prosecution and it never shifts.

Persons aiding accused to escape from custody also are not exposed to punishment even if they had knowledge that the persons having custody of the accused are officers of Court. 1961 Ker L J 696 : (1961) M L J (Cr) 795 : 1961 Ker L T 612.

—S. 225-B — Authority to sign warrants given to Head Clerk—Warrant signed by Deputy Nazir acting as Head Clerk—Legality—Warrant issued is legal as authority conferred on Head Clerk was general. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 24 (2). 1957 Cri L J 1264: AIR 1957 Ker 17.

—S. 225-B—Ingredients of offence.

In order that forcible escape from the custody of process-server may amount to an offence under S. 225-B two pre-requisites must be satisfied : (1) that the process-server had the legal authority to arrest the accused, and (2) that the warrant of arrest had been legally issued by a competent authority. 1957 Ker L J 419 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 335 : 1957 Ker L T 555 : I L R (1957) Ker 586 : 1957 Cri L J 1264 : AIR 1957 Ker 174 (174) (Pt A) (Pr 2)

—S. 225-B—Applicability—Person arrested refusing to accompany process server—Conviction—Legality.

In a trial under S. 225-B the prosecution case was that after the process server of a Civil Court effected the arrest of the accused, the latter refused to accompany the process server and thus escaped from the lawful custody. No evidence was led to show that the Head clerk who had signed the warrant of arrest was authorised under O. 21, R. 24 (2), C. P. Code to sign such warrants. Subsequent report of the District Munsiff however stated that the Head clerk was duly authorised under the High Court Circular.

Held (i) that technically speaking the evidence of authority to Head clerk to sign warrants of arrest ought to be given in Court but the failure to file the authorisation was not a lacuna in the prosecution case so as to warrant the case being sent back for letting in that evidence.

(ii) that the refusal of the accused to accompany the process server necessarily meant that he would not go with the process server and that the latter will have to leave the accused and go unless force was used. It was, therefore, an attempt to escape within the meaning of S. 225-B.

(iii) that though the charge was only for escape the alteration in conviction for attempt to escape did not in any way affect the conviction under S. 225-B. AIR 1933 Lah 128 (1), Dissented from. 1955 Cri L J 569 : 1955 Mad W N 24 : A I R 1955 Mad 157 (158) (Prs 3, 4).

—S. 225-B—"Lawful apprehension"—Meaning of.

The person from whose custody the rescue is effected or escape made must have authority to lawfully detain the person rescued; if the apprehension or detention is not lawful, then his own escaping as well as the rescuing of such a person by others is no offence. 1953 Mad W N 362 : (1953) 1 Mad L J 653 : 55 Cri L J 396 : AIR 1954 Mad 321 (323) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

—Ss. 225-B, 224, 225!— Lawful apprehension — Apprehension made within power and authority of person making it— Accused acquitted of offence for which apprehension was made — Acquittal does not make apprehension unlawful. See Penal Code (1860), S. 224. (1965) Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1966 Mys 20.

—Ss. 225-B, 224, 225—Lawful apprehension—Apprehension must be lawful — Whether it is in good faith is immaterial. See Penal Code (1860), S. 224. (1965) Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1966 Mys 20.

—Ss. 225B, 224, 225 — Intentional obstruction or resistance—Proof—Intention should be that there should be no apprehension nothwithstanding apprehension is known to be lawful—Very act of rescue involves intention to take away person rescued. See Penal Code (1860), S. 224. (1965) Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1966 Mys 20.

—S. 225-B—Sentence.

The offences under Ss. 224 and 225 are serious ones. A person securing his freedom from lawful apprehension by offering resistance to such apprehension and those who depending upon their greater number overpower and manhandle a public servant discharging his duty and rescue such person can plead no circumstance in extenuation. (1965) Mad L J (Cri) 404 : (1965) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1966 Mys 20.

—S. 225-B—Applicability—Minor certificate-debtor —Illegal arrest in execution of certificate—Father rescuing him from arrest — Offence.—Held, that the arrest was illegal as it was in breach of the mandatory provisions of Ss. 7, 42 and Sch. 2, R. 54(1) of the Bihar and Orissa Act 4 of 1914. Held also that in the circumstances the act of the father of the minor in rescuing him did not amount to any criminal offence. See Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (4 of 1914), S. 7. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 2490.

—Ss. 225-B, 225, 147 and 353—Warrant of arrest without seal of Court — Obstruction to execution by more than five persons — Conviction under Ss. 225-B and 353 not maintainable—Conviction under S. 147 held legal. AIR 1918 Lah 332, Rel. on. 1960 Raj L W 637 : I L R (1960) 10 Raj 1689 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 91 (Raj).

—S. 225-B—Applicability — "Arrest," meaning of.

By showing the warrant to the judgment-debtor and by requesting him to accompany to the Court, an arrest cannot be deemed to have been effected so as to hold the judgment-debtor liable for an offence under S. 225-B, Penal Code on his trying to refuse to accompany the Amin An arrest under a civil process is not effected unless either the person to be arrested submits to the arrest or the officer making the arrest actually touches or confines the body of the person to be arrested. Request to the judgment-debtor by the Amin to accompany him to the Court is not an arrest as required by law where the judgment-debtor is not informed that he is being put under arrest. 5 Cal W N 843, Ref. ILR (1961) 11 Raj 243: 1961 Raj L W 227: 1961 (2) Cri L J 151: AIR 1961 Raj 156 (157) (Pr 3) (DB).

SECTION 228

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 228.)

1. Insult or interruption.
2. Insult or interruption should be intentional.
3. Insult or interruption by lawyer.
4. Judicial proceedings.
5. Contempt of Court.
6. Procedure.

1. Insult or interruption.

● —S. 228—Offence—Essential ingredients.

The essential ingredients of the offence under S. 228 are (1) intention, (2) insult or interruption to a public servant and (3) the public servant insulted or interrupted must be sitting in any stage of a judicial proceeding. State of Madhya Pradesh v Revashankar, 1959 All W R (Sup) 17 : 37 Mys L J 7 : 1959 Mad W N (S C) 5 : 1959 M P L J 251 : 1959 All Cr R 137: 61 Pun L R 343 : 1959 Nag L J 85 : 1959 M P C 25 : 1959 S C J 86: 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 14 : (1959) 1 Andh W R (S C) 84 : (1959) 1 Mad L J (S C) 84 : 1959 Cri L J 251: 1960 Andhra L T 712: 1959 S C R 1367 : AIR 1959 S C 102 (105) (Pt B) (Pr 5)

—S. 228—Case under S 228, Penal Code—Not applicable to case under S. 37-A, Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act (1953). See Panchayats — Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act (6 of 1953), S. 37-A. 1965 (1) Cri L J 550 : AIR 1964 Him Pra 95.

—S. 228—Scope—Interruption of Panchayat work as Court—Complaint to police—Proper procedure.

Member of Panchayat, while it was functioning as Court, insulted and interruption caused to Panchayat —Member making complaint to Sarpanch who forwarded it to police—Police forwarding it to Magistrate who convicted accused under S. 228—Held that not only under the mandatory provision of S. 476, Criminal P. C. but also according to the definition of complaint as given in S. 4 (1) (h) of the Code, the cognizance of the case by the Magistrate on report of the police was clearly barred by S. 195 (1) (b) of the Code. 1954 Cri L J 166 : AIR 1954 Him Pra 32.

—S. 228 — Applicability — Mere audible remarks interrupting Court's proceedings not enough See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 480. AIR 1955 N.U C (Madh B) 3034 (DB).

—S. 228 — Applicability—Insult to judicial officer — Offence—Personal feelings of officer—Relevancy.

To insult a public servant while he is sitting in any stage of a judicial proceeding or to cause an interruption to such public servant is a very serious matter and the Legislature has conferred a power on the Court itself in such a contingency to cause the offender to be detained in custody and, if thought fit, to take cognizance of the offence and sentence the offender. The gravity of the offence is clear from the fact that the Court in such cases has been given the extraordinary power of being the complainant, the prosecutor and the judge. The Legislature has thus manifested its anxiety to maintain and uphold the dignity and prestige of Courts of justice. It is therefore essential that a judicial officer while exercising the extraordinary powers of committing a person for contempt of Court must never allow his personal feeling to have any weight or importance because those powers have been conferred on him exclusively for the purpose of supporting the dignity of his important office and not for upholding his on vanity. 1960 Cri L J 511 : AIR 1960 Punj 211 (213) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

—S. 228—Criminal P. C. (1898). S. 480—Scope and applicability of S. 480 — Alleged contempt under S. 228, Penal Code—Action by Sessions Judge against clerk working in another department for alleged interruption of Court work—Accused denying offence and questioning jurisdiction of Court whether intentional insult — Order finding him guilty not recorded as required by S. 481—Order held vitiated—Proper procedure to be followed in such cases. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 480. 1963 (2) Cri L J 668: AIR 1963 Tripura 50.

2. Insult or interruption should be intentional.

■ —S. 228 — Intention to offer insult — Depends on facts and circumstances. State of Madhya Pradesh v Revashankar, 1959 All W R (Sup) 17 : 37 Mys L J 7 : 1959 Mad W N (SC) 5 : 1959 M P L J 251 : 1959 All Cri R 137 : 61 Punj L R 343 : 1959 Nag L J 85 : 1959 M P C 25 : 1959 S C J 86 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 14 : (1959) 1 Andh W R (SC) 84 : (1959) 1 Mad L J (SC) 84 : 1959 Cr L J 251 : 1960 An L T 712 : 1959 S C R 1367 : AIR 1959 S C 102 (107) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

—S. 228 — Question of intention to offer insult to trying Magistrate depends on facts and circumstances of each case.

The question of an intention to offer insult to the Magistrate trying the case is a question of drawing inferences from primary facts and depends on the facts and circumstances of each case. AIR 1959 S C 102 and AIR 1922 Bom 261 and AIR 1932 Lah 502, Rel. on; AIR 1930 All 483 and AIR 1936 PC 141, Dist. 1964 All Cr R 334 : 1964 All W R (HC) 484 : 1964 All L J 614.

—S. 228 — Insult or interruption — What record should show — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 481 (2)).

Where the record only shows that the accused was badly drunk and talked irrelevant in Court it does not necessarily follow from this fact that he was behaving so as to cause interruption or insult. The record should show how the accused had acted or what he had stated caused interruption or amounted to insult. 1952 R D (HC) 166 (2) : 1952 All Cr R 69 : 1952 All W R (HC) 198 : 1952 All L J 240 : 1953 Cri L J 320 : AIR 1953 All 59 (60) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

—S. 228 — Intentionally.

Where the accused could not be presumed to have deliberately taken liquor out of his free will before coming to the Court in which he appeared and talked irrelevant:

Held, that the accused could not be held to have intentionally offered any insult or caused any interruption. ('52) 1952 R D (HC) 166 (2) : 1952 All Cr 69 : 1952 All W R (HC) 198 : 1952 All L J 240 : 1953 Cri L J 320 : AIR 1953 All 59 (61) (Pt C) (Pr 12).

—S. 228 — Applicability — Accused on conviction abusing members of Panchayati Adalat—Offence.

As every member of a Panchayati Adalat is a Judge and therefore a public servant, where an accused on the pronouncing of the judgment convicting him by a Panchayati Adalat abuses the members of the Panchayati Adalat and threatens them, he is guilty of an offence under S. 228 as every ingredient of the offence is present. 1951 A L J 551 : 53 Cri L J 621 : AIR 1952 All 306 (306) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

—S. 228—"Insult" or "interruption"—Meaning of.

Every protest made, in fact, does interrupt the Court but it is its duty to listen to protests how much soever they may delay its proceedings. So long as they are made bona fide they do not constitute the interruption which the section punishes as contempt. But if they are made with that sole object in view, they cease to be bona fide and they may then supply necessary element to constitute the offence. I L R (1953) Hyd 389 : 1953 Cri L J 1856 : AIR 1953 Hyd 285 (285) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

—S. 228 — Insult or interruption must be intentional.

The petitioner's criminal complaint was dismissed by the Magistrate summarily under S. 203, Criminal P. C. No opportunity was given to the petitioner to explain the legal position. After pronouncing the order, the Magistrate directed the complainant to bring his lawyer so that he may go through the order passed by him.

But the complainant expressed surprise at this and enquired how his complaint could be dismissed without any examination of his witnesses. According to the Magistrate the complainant repeated this statement several times with the deliberate intention of insulting him He therefore drew up proceedings for contempt against the complainant, and convicted hi n under S 228, Penal Code.

Held, that after having pronounced the order of dismissal the Magistrate lost seisin of the matter and his direction to the complainant to bring his Vakil could not be regarded as an order of the Court trying the matter. It was not unnatural for the petitioner whose case had been summarily dismissed by the Magistrate without hearing his witnesses or his Vakil to have remarked that the presence of a Vakil at that stage was unnecessary, and there appeared to be no justification to import any intention to insult the Magistrate. After all Courts could not be overtouchy in such matters. 21 Cut L T 320 : 1956 Cri L J 85 : AIR 1956 Orissa 28 (29) (Prs 4, 5).

——S 228 — Intentional disobedience of order of presiding officer to leave Court—Offence.

The mere fact that a judicial officer feels insulted is of no consequence. The intention of the alleged offender must be looked into. If the facts and circumstances show that he intended to cause insult or interruption, his act may amount to an offence under S. 228. If they show that he has no such intention, his act cannot be held to amount to that offence. Where the presiding officer of a Court asked the petitioner to quit the Court but the petitioner insisted upon staying in spite of the warning that action for contempt of Court might be taken against him, it was held that the petitioner intentionally and deliberately disobeyed and defied the Magistrate by not leaving the room and was guilty under S. 228 An intentional disobedience of the order of the presiding officer of a Court in his presence must lead to the conclusion that the person responsible intended, at least, to offer insult to that officer. 1960 Cri L J 976 : AIR 1960 Pat 309 (309, 310) (Prs 5, 9).

● —S 228 — Applicability — Plaintiff in a civil suit on being asked by court if he has brought certain books denying he has those books—Subsequently going out and talking to his witness — No offence held committed under S. 228. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 4627.

3. Insult or interruption by lawyer.

——S. 228 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Offence punishable under Penal Code.

Merely appearing in a drunken state in Court is neither offering an insult nor causing any interruption to the Presiding Officer of the Court. A counsel appearing in Court under intoxication may be showing disrespect to the Court but showing disrespect is not synonymous with insulting. He may do an act under the influence of liquor which amounts to an insult but it would be an additional act to that of merely being under intoxication. As there is no other provisions of the Penal Code under which the counsel could be punished the High Court is not deprived by S. 3(2), Contempt of Courts Act from taking cognizance of the contempt, if his mere presence in the subordinate Court in a drunken state amounted to contempt of Court. 1956 Cri L J 679 : AIR 1956 All 258 (DB).

[Overruled on other point in AIR 1962 All 315.]

——S. 228 — Insult or interruption by lawyer — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 3, R. 4) — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 340).

While it is true that the Court has the power, and indeed it is its duty, to see that undue advantage is not taken of the ignorance of witnesses or parties, it is no less the duty of the Court to see that there is a faithful record of the proceedings in Court. If for any reason the Court does not see its way to accept the position contended for by a counsel, there is nothing unnatural or wrong in the counsel requesting the Court to place on record its ruling. While it cannot be said that the Court is bound to record all contentions, objections or representations, even if they are of a trivial or a frivolous character, it is undoubtedly the Court's duty to record its decision on any matter of substance that arises in a case. If some time was taken by the counsel in looking up authorities to satisfy the Court about the correctness of the position contended for by him and if the discussion took some time and if all this occupied about 20 minutes, it can hardly be said that the counsel interrupted the Court's proceedings. The mere circumstance that the counsel expressed his intention to retire from the case or to move for a transfer of the case did not constitute a threat or insult. It is scarcely necessary to emphasise that when under some exceptional provisions the Court itself is constituted both the prosecutor and the Judge, it is all the more incumbent upon the presiding officer not to lose a sense of perspective while there can be no doubt that it is the duty of all those appearing in Court and more particularly of counsel to conduct themselves with becoming decorum and restraint and to do nothing which is likely to bring down the prestige or dignity of the Court; it is equally essential that no occasion should be given for any party to feel that he has not been given the fullest opportunity to present his case or that there is not a fair, substantial and faithful record of the proceedings in Court Some latitude should be allowed to the member of the Bar insisting in the conduct of his case upon his question being taken down or his objections noted where the Court thinks the question inadmissible or the objections untenable. 8 Bom L R 541, Rel. on. 1956 Cri L J 1415 : ILR (1956) Mys 371 : AIR 1956 Mys 60 (2) (61, 62) (Prs 4, 8).

4. Judicial proceedings.

——S. 228 — "Judicial proceeding" — Pronouncement of judgment — Accused threatening and abusing panches immediately after hearing sentence.

Pronouncement of judgment is a state of judicial proceeding. Where the panches had assembled on a particular day to pronounce judgment they should be deemed to be sitting in a stage of a judicial proceeding till their dispersal, unless, of course, the dispersal was delayed beyond a reasonable time. Where immediately on hearing the sentence, the accused abuses the panches and swears in open Court to kill them, it cannot be urged that the threat and abuses were hurled by the accused at a stage which was not a stage of a judicial proceeding. 1897 P R (Cri) 43, Rel. on. 1951 All L J 551 : 1952 Cri L J 621 : AIR 1952 All 306 (307) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——S. 228 — Judicial proceedings — What are — Demarcation of land by Nyaya Panchayat officials under Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act not a judicial proceeding — Interruption to proceedings and insult not an offence under S. 228. 12 Bom 38, Foll. 1965 (1) Cri L J 550 : AIR 1965 Him Pra 25 (27, 28) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13, 15, 18).

——S. 228—"Judicial proceedings."

Where the order of the Magistrate showed that he was engaged in the trial of criminal cases and that he had finished recording the deposition of a witness and was presumably to proceed with the recording of other depositions when the interruption occurred :

Held, that this was sufficient to indicate the case in which he was engaged and stage at which he was interrupted. ILR (1953) Hyd 369, 1953 Cri L J 1956, AIR 1953 Hyd 285 (285) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——S. 228 — Settlement Officer under E. P. Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation Act, 1948, convicting person under S. 228 of Penal Code exercising powers under S. 480 of Criminal P. C. — Held, Settlement Officer not Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court—Conviction held without jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 480. 1965 (2) Cri L J 669 : AIR 1965 Punj 454.

——S. 228 — Judicial proceeding—Member of Gram Panchayat returning from spot inspection—Does not sit in any stage of judicial proceeding — S. 228 not attracted.

A Panch does not sit in any stage of a judicial proceeding when he is returning after the inspection of a spot.

Section 228, therefore, is not attracted, where a member of Gram Panchayat is abused while returning from inspection of a spot and abuse relates to another dispute between the accused and the Gram Panchayat not connected with the spot inspection. 1962 All W R (Sup) 96 : 1962 All Cr R 390: 1962 Cur L J 415: 64 Punj L R 868.

5. Contempt of Court.

● ——S. 228 — Application under S. 528, Criminal P. C. — Aspersions against Magistrate — Jurisdiction to take cognisance of contempt—S. 3 (2), contempt of Courts Act (1952), if bar.

Held that the aspersions amounted to something more than a mere intentional personal insult to the Magistrate; they scandalised the Court itself and impaired the administration of justice. S. 3 (2) of the Contempt of Courts Act, therefore did not stand in the way of the High Court taking cognizance of the contempt. Madh BLR 1955 Cri 111 : AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3775, Reversed. 1959 Cri L J 251 : A I R 1959 S C 102 (104) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——S. 228—Conditions required.

The contention that the High Court should not have treated the qualified apology as an unqualified one and should have convicted and sentenced the accused for contempt of Court, cannot be considered in an application for a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Supreme Court. 1953 Cri L J 1206 : AIR 1953 Ajmer 11.

——S. 228 — Matter of public importance.

There can be no doubt that the question of maintenance of integrity of the jurisdiction is a matter of great public importance. But the reputation of judiciary is so well established that it will not suffer even if one contempt of Court goes unpunished. The publication of an article in a newspaper against a Magistrate is not of great importance and the purpose would not be advanced by the grant of a certificate of leave to appeal to the Supreme Court. 1953 Cri L J 1206 : AIR 1953 Ajmer 11.

——S. 228—Person abusing Judge in Court, calling him dishonest and unfair — Not a mere insult of Judge but amounts to scandalization of tribunal — Offence not excluded by S. 3 (2), Contempt of Courts Act. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 (2). 1964 (1) Cri L J 652 : AIR 1964 Bom 147 (DB).

——S. 228 — Jurisdiction — Offence under S. 228 — Jurisdiction of High Court to punish.

Where an application for transfer submitted to the Magistrate is intended to offer insult to the Magistrate the act would fall within the purview of S. 228 and the High Court will be precluded from taking action for the contempt committed before the Court of the Magistrate. Madh BLR 1955 Cri 111 : AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3775 (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1959 S C 102.]

——S. 228 — Witness creating scene by shouting and imputing great irregularity to Nyaya Panchayat on their face — Offence—Act held amounts to contempt within S. 228. 1961 M P L J 108 : 1961 Jab L J 265 : 1961 M P C 295 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 494 (Madh Pra).

——S. 228 — Contempt of Court — What amounts to — Proof.

To wilfully impede, hinder, embarrass, interrupt or obstruct the judicial proceedings, or to insult the Court, in its presence in the course of adjudication of some cause, amounts to undue interference with the administration of justice and therefore to contempt, and as such it can never be tolerated or countenanced by the High Court. Contempt may be shown either by language or by manner and language which may otherwise be unobjectionable. 1960 Cri L J 511 : AIR 1960 Punj 211 (213) (Pt C) (Pr 3).

6. Procedure.

——S. 228 — In circumstances of case trying Magistrate committing no error of principle in not acting on so called apology — High Court will not interfere in revision with the exercise of discretion of trying Court under S. 484. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. 1964 All W R (HC) 484.

——S. 228—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 260 (a)—Offence under S. 228, Penal Code, may be tried summarily. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 260 (a). 1952 Cri L J 621 : AIR 1952 All 306.

——S. 228 — Constitution of India, Article 134 (1) (c) — Act amounting to insult — Act if can be dealt with under summary jurisdiction of High Court — Question is not of great public importance particularly where the contemner can be adequately punished under S. 228. See Constitution of India, Art. 134 (1) (c). 1956 Cri L J 243 : AIR 1956 Madh-Bha 96 (DB).

——S. 228 — Contempt of subordinate Court — Jurisdiction of High Court — When barred.

If the acts alleged are offences under Ss. 175, 178, 179, 180 or S. 228 of the Penal Code then they constitute contempt and they can be taken cognizance of by the court in whose view or presence they are committed and in respect of such contempt, the High Court would not take cognizance and S. 3 (2) of the Contempt of Courts Act (1952), bars its jurisdiction. 1961 (1) Cri L J 134 : AIR 1961 Pat 1 (DB).

——S. 228 — Unlawful assembly — Common object — Charge not sufficient to give notice to accused of alleged common object — Conviction under S. 143, Penal Code cannot stand. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1956 B L J R 652.

——S. 228 — Scope.

The opinion of the Magistrate that by his tone and temper and heat and anger the accused intentionally offered insult to the Court is not enough when the Magistrate has not placed any facts on the record from which it could be gathered that the conduct of the accused was clearly vexatious. 1952 Raj L W 200 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 564.

SECTION 231

——S. 231 — Counterfeit coins — Proof.

One need not be an expert to find out a bad coin and experience shows that many have the knack and capacity to mark it out readily even though the same is mixed up with good ones. 1957 Cri L J 381 : ILR (1956) Mys 238 : AIR 1957 Mys 24 (25) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

SECTION 232

——Ss. 232, 235 and 243 — Accused alleged to have committed offences under sections — It is unsafe to enter conviction on uncorrobarated testimony of Sub-Inspector of Police — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367) — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 5). 1959 Ker L R 731 : 1959 Ker L T 901.

——S. 232 — Joinder of charges under Ss. 232, 235, with that under S. 240, Penal Code — Propriety — Effect of. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1957 Ker L T 215.

——S. 232 — Fine. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32. 1957 Ker L T 215.

SECTION 235

——S. 235 — Essentials — Ownership of house from which articles were recovered need not be proved.

All that is required to convict a person under S. 235, is that he should be in possession of the material for counterfeit coins. It is not necessary that he should be the owner of the building in which the material was found stored. 1950 All L J 516 : 1950 All W R 525 : 1950 All Cri Cas 193 : AIR 1950 All 732 (733) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——S. 235 — Criminal P. C (1898), S. 297 — Misdirection — Offence under S. 235, Penal Code — Nature of occupation by accused — It must be conscious possession of incriminating articles — Mere recovery from room in mere occupation is not enough — Direction to jury held amounted to misdirection. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 1012 (DB).

——S. 235 — Applicability — Coins having irregular edges — If counterfeit — Offence.

Although the alleged counterfeit coins which have irregular edges cannot pass off as genuine coins and therefore are not counterfeit coins within the definition of S. 28 they are clearly materials which are in the process of being made into counterfeit coins, and a person in possession of such materials would come under the mischief of S. 235, provided other conditions of that section are fulfilled. 1961 (2) Cri L J 472 (Guj).

——S. 235 — Accused alleged to have committed offences under section — It is unsafe to enter conviction on uncorroborated testimony of Sub-Inspector of Police. See Penal Code (1860), S. 232. 1957 Ker L T 801.

——S. 235 — Joinder of charges under Ss. 232, 235, with that under S. 240, Penal Code — Propriety — Effect of. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1957 Ker L T 215.

——S. 235, Parts I and II — Applicability — Accused found in possession of instruments and materials for counterfeiting coins — No evidence of possession of same for counterfeiting Indian coins — Offence — Accused guilty under Part I and not under Part II. (1958) 24 Cut L T 445.

SECTION 240

——S. 240 — Delivery of counterfeit coin — Knowledge of possession — How to be proved — Several accused—Joint trial and conviction.

In a prosecution under S. 240, it is not always possible or necessary that the particular knowledge should be proved by positive evidence. The prosecution may bring out circumstances which might indicate or on which a reasonable presumption could be raised that the accused ought to have known at the time he or she became possessed of the coins that they were counterfeit.

Where three accused are indicted for uttering counterfeit coins, having other counterfeit coins in their possession, it is not necessary to prove with certainty which of the pieces was the ones uttered and which was found on them unuttered, if all the pieces of money are proved to be counterfeit; and if it appears that the three accused went to different shops and that one or the other uttered the bad money and all of them fraudulently prevailed upon the shopkeepers to accept the money as genuine, they can all be convicted under S. 240, Penal Code. 1957 All W R (H C) 160 : 1957 All L J 283.

——Ss. 240 and 243 — Separate convictions under — Legality.

A person having certain counterfeit coins in possession but uttering only one of them, cannot be separately convicted under S. 240 respecting the one coin and under S. 243 regarding the other coins because an offence under S. 240 implies prior guilty possession. 1957 All W R (H C) 160 : 1957 All L J 283.

——S. 240—Essentials of offence—Fraudulent possession with knowledge is essential — Prosecution to prove—Inference can be drawn from facts — Knowledge can be inferred from mere possession of small number of counterfeit coins. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2662.

——Ss. 240 and 243 — Applicability — Accused delivering counterfeit coins to constable taking him as bona fide purchaser—Charge under S. 240 must fail. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 5566 (DB).

——S. 240 — Joinder of charges under Ss. 232, 235, with that under S. 240, I. P. C — Propriety — Effect of. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1957 Ker L T 215.

——S. 240 — Applicability — Knowledge of counterfeit coins - Inference of.

For a conviction under S. 240 the point of time to be considered in connection with the offence is the time when the accused becomes possessed of the false coins and it has to be shown that at that particular time the accused knew that the coins were not genuine.

In view of the fact that the accused was carrying as many as 890 similar coins and had passed on 350 out of them as genuine to three of the prosecution witnesses it could be safely presumed that the accused had the particular knowledge when he got possession of the coins. 1953 Cri L J 452 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 43 (43) (Pr 3).

SECTION 241

——S. 241—"Counterfeit coin which he knows to be counterfeit" — Knowledge that coin is counterfeit is always matter of inference from circumstances which appear against accused and which must be adequately explained by accused — Accused delivering genuine coins first and counterfeit coins afterwards — If accused had no knowledge that coins were counterfeit, it is difficult to understand why accused separated counterfeit coins from genuine coins and when there is no adequate explanation by accused, such knowledge follows as inescapable inference — Criminal P. C (1898), S. 367 — Appreciation of evidence — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. 1966 All Cri R 15 : 1965 All W R (H C) 837.

——S. 241—'Ten times the value of the coin counterfeited' — Section is not happily worded as actual value of counterfeit coin would be less than face value—Intention of Legislature was to indicate that fine may extend to ten times the face value of the counterfeit coin. 1966 All Cri R 15 : 1965 All W R (H C) 837.

——S. 241 — Sentence — Accused not a confirmed dealer in counterfeit coins but only a first offender — Ends of justice would be served by imposing sentence of fine only. 1965 All Cri L 15 : 1965 All W R (H C) 837.

SECTION 243

——S. 243—Separate convictions under—Legality.

A person having certain counterfeit coins in possession but uttering only one of them, cannot be-separately convicted under S. 240 respecting the one coin under S. 243 regarding the other coins because an offence under S. 240 implies prior guilty possession. 1957 All W R (H C) 160 : 1957 All L J 283.

——S. 243 — Essentials — Innocent possession of counterfeit coins — Retention after knowing them to be counterfeit—Offence.

In order to find a person guilty under S. 243 it must be proved, inter alia that at the time of coming into possession of the counterfeit coins he knew that the coins were counterfeit. If a person who innocently comes into possession of counterfeit coins, discovers later on that the coins are counterfeit, he does not thereby become liable to punishment under S. 243, Penal Code, if he retains possession of those coins with him. AIR 1941 Pat 36, Rel. on; 1943 A W R 31 (C C), Disting. 1950 All L J 516 : 1950 All W R 525 : 1950 All Cri Cas 193 : AIR 1950 All 732 (733) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Ss. 243, 28—Counterfeit coin—Ingredients of.

For conviction under S. 243 it is essential that the counterfeit coin must be of such a character that it would be possible to pass it off as a genuine coin. Where the evidence of the expert is that it is not possible to pass off the counterfeit coin as genuine the accused cannot be said to have committed an offence under this section. 1956 Cri L J 881 : AIR 1956 Bom 511 (DB).

——Ss. 243 and 240—Applicability — Accused delivering counterfeit coins to constable taking him as bona fide purchaser — Charge under S. 240 must fail. See Penal Code (1860), S. 240. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 5566 (DB).

——S. 243 —Applicability—Coins in process of being made counterfeit—Deception not possible. See Penal Code (1860), S. 28. 1961 (2) Cri L J 472 (Guj)).

——S. 243 — Accused alleged to have committed offence under section — It is unsafe to enter conviction on uncorroborated testimony of Sub-Inspector of Police. See Penal Code (1860), S. 232. 1959 Ker L T 801.

——S 243—Essential ingredients of offence.

To sustain a conviction under S. 243, I. P. Code, the prosecution should establish : firstly, that the accused was in possession of coins; secondly, that the said coins were counterfeit coins; thirdly, that the accused was in possession with intent to defraud, and fourthly, that the accused, at the time he became possessed of them, knew that they were counterfeit. 1956 Cri L J 904 : ILR (1956) Mys 118 : AIR 1956 Mys 51 (52) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

SECTION 253

——S. 253 — Proceedings under S. 144, Criminal P. C. (1898) — Attachment cannot be ordered — Disobedience of order under — Consequence is prosecution under S. 188 and not S. 253 or S. 379, Penal Code. 1953 Cri L J 1198 : AIR 1953 Vind Pra 25.

——S. 253 — Duty of Magistrate — Discharge of accused — When justified.

It is wrong for a Magistrate to discharge the accused under S. 253, Criminal P. C., simply because he finds that the prima facie evidence did not make out the offences defined in the very sections mentioned in the complaint. He can discharge the accused under S. 253 only when he finds that no case has been made out against the accused, which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction. The responsibility for the application of a particular section of the Penal Code or any special law, rests on the Magistrate and not on the party. AIR 1951 Vind Pra 1 (2) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

SECTION 265

——S. 265 — Ingredients of offence — False weight used in Ginning Factory — Accused working as Manager alone prosecuted — Neither owner nor weighman prosecuted — In the absence of evidence that weight was used by or under orders of Manager, or that he derived benefit from it, Manager is not liable. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 176.

SECTION 266

——S. 266 — Possession of false weights with intention to use — Proof of.

Where the evidence on record shows that the accused was sitting on the gunny bag beneath which true and false weights were recovered by the police Officer, that series of false weights were found at a distance of 4' from the series of true weights and that the box containing opium and the scales for weighing it were near the gunny bag beneath which false weights were found and the accused was the person who carried on the business of selling opium at the shop, the only inference that can be drawn from these circumstances is that the accused possessed false weights knowing them and intending that the same may be fraudulently used. 1959 Raj L W 138 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 86 : 1959 Cri L J 1112 : AIR 1959 Raj 191 (192) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——S. 266 — Sentence.

The offence under S. 266, Indian Penal Code, is an offence against society and in such cases any leniency will be misplaced 1959 Raj L W 138 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 86 : 1959 Cri L J 1112 : AIR 1959 Raj 191 (193) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

SECTION 268

——Ss. 268 and 290—Non-payment of Panchayat taxes —Does not amount to public nuisance—Conviction of accused under S. 290 is illegal — See Penal Code (1860), S. 290. 1964 (1) Cri L J 24 (1) : AIR 1964 All 16.

——S. 268 — Nuisance — Tenant placing furniture in passage used by other tenants — Notice under S. 381 (1) (ii) of Bombay Municipal Corporation Act, 1858, on landlord —No steps taken to abate nuisance— Such keeping in the passage meant for persons especially going to and coming down from upper floor constitutes nuisance — If the tenant and the landlord served with notice under S. 381 (1) (ii) of Bombay Municipal Corporation Act, do not take steps to remove it, both are liable to be convicted for not complying with the notice — (Tort — Nuisance — What is) — See Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Corporation Act (3 of 1858), S. 381 (1) (ii). 1956 Cri L J 380 : AIR 1956 Bom 163.

——S. 268 — Community—Meaning of—Community means public at large or the residents of entire locality—Public nuisance — cecream making machinery causing nuisance to residents of buildings whose flats were adjacent to place where machinery was working—Not public nuisance—S. 133, Criminal P. C., not attracted See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 133 (1), Para 3. 51 Cri L J 1315 : AIR 1950 Cal 349 (DB).

——Ss. 268 and 290 — Public nuisance — Clandestine prostitution.

Before any finding can be arrived at that a public nuisance has been committed the elements contained in S. 268, Penal Code, must be established. Common injury, danger or annoyance mentioned in the section must be to the public at large dwelling in the vicinity and not to a particular individual. If prostitution is carried on in a clandestine or hidden manner, there can be no public nuisance although persons who come to know of the immoralities committed in the house may feel their moral sense outraged. 54 Cal W

N 384 : 51 Cri L J 1241 : AIR 1950 Cal 330 (330) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——S. 268 — 'Public nuisance' — What is.

The expression means an act or illegal omission which causes any common injury, danger, or annoyance to the public or the people in general who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 133. 1958 Cri L J 1319 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 350.

——S. 268 — Public nuisance — Gist of offence.

The offence of public nuisance may be analysed thus : (i) It may be caused either by an act or illegal omission, (ii) the effect thereof must be either injury, danger or annoyance, (iii) actually caused either to the public or to that portion of the public who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity ; or (iv) threatened of necessity to persons who may have to use any public right.

Thus where a person raises the rastha in front of his house and cross-bunds the rastha leading to stagnation of rain-water, breeding mosquitoes and giving rise to offensive smell a clear case of public nuisance is made out. 1952 Mad W N 846 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 234 : 54 Cri L J 500 : (1952) 2 Mad L J 554 : AIR 1953 Mad 242 (243) (Pr 4).

SECTION 273

——S. 273 — Charge only under S. 3, Bihar and Orissa Prevention of Adulteration Act — No particulars of offence under the section explained — Accused cannot be convicted under this section — Bihar and Orissa Prevention of Adulteration Act (2 of 1919), S. 3 — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1952 Cri L J 295 : AIR 1952 Pat 77.

SECTION 276

——Ss. 276, 365 and 366 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 238 — Major and Minor offences — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 238. AIR 1954 Madh-Bha 97.

SECTION 277

——S. 277—Applicability—Pollution of private well.

Section 277, I. P. Code does not apply to case of pollution of a well which the complainant claims to be her private well, particularly in the absence of any evidence to show that the public were using its water by right. The mere fact that the neighbours were using its water does not make it a public well, as they may be doing so by license. AIR 1916 Nag 15 (1) and (1885) 14 Q B D 63, Distinguished. 1954 Cri L J 998 : 1954 B L J R 31 : AIR 1954 Pat 309 (310) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

SECTION 278

——S. 278—Making atmosphere noxious.

Accused using open compounds as latrine for himself and his family—Offence under S. 278 is committed as obnoxious smell is bound to emanate from it—Facts that neighbours are not inconvenienced and that the other houses were constructed after the commencement of nuisance and with their full knowledge are immaterial. 1953 Cr L J 1192 : AIR 1953 Ajmer 4 (4) (Pr 3).

SECTION 279

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 279.)

1. Rash and negligent driving.
2. Procedure.
3. S. 279 and S. 338.
4. Gist of offence.
5. Enhancement of sentence.

1. Rash and negligent driving.

——Ss. 279 and 304-A—Death caused due to rash and negligent driving of a motor vehicle on public road — Criminal rashness and criminal negligence—What amounts to — Conviction — Sentence—Interference by appellate Court or by High Court in revision—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32, 423 & 439.

A person who is driving a motor vehicle should always keep it in a state of control sufficient to enable him to avoid dashing against any other vehicle or running into any passenger who may fail to step off the road and he is prima facie guilty of negligence if the vehicle leaves the road and cashes headlong and knocks against other users of the road. (Criminal rashness and criminal negligence explained 3 All 776 Rel. on.)

The accused, a driver of a stage carriage vehicle was found guilty under Ss. 279 and 304-A, I. P. Code and was sentenced to simple imprisonment for three months under S. 279, I. P. Code and to simple imprisonment for six months under S. 304-A, I. P. Code the sentences to run concurrently. In appeal the conviction was confirmed but the sentence was reduced to a fine of Rs. 150 only. The facts established at the trial showed utter callousness on the part of the driver in having gone on the wrong side of the road losing control of the vehicle and running over a person who was sitting on the extreme end of the road and dashing against the cyclist who was coming on his proper side.

Held, that on the facts found by the trial Magistrate the conviction and sentences passed under Ss. 279 and 304-A were quite correct and the appellate court was not justified in reducing the sentences. AIR 1937 Bom 96, AIR 1926 Cal 300, Ref. to.

The question of sentences is a matter of discretion of the trial Judge and where that discretion has been properly exercised along accepted judicial lines an appellate court should not interfere with the sentence except for strong reason.

It is true that the power of enhancing sentence should be exercised by the High Court very rarely, but when it appears to the Court that the sentence imposed on the accused is grossly inadequate having regard to the gravity of the offence resulting in miscarriage of justice, it should not hesitate to impose an adequate sentence on the accused even though the effect of the order will be to send the accused back to jail. 1961 Ker L T 769.

——S. 279—Section contemplates distinction between negligence and rashness—Rash and negligent driving—Distinction between negligence and rashness — In the case of rashness party does an act and breaks a positive duty — Held on facts that the collision was brought about by reckless and careless driving. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 116. 1960 Cr L J 239 : AIR 1960 Mad 50.

——S. 279—Driver of goods vehicle carrying passengers—Passengers allowed to sit on top of goods due to negligence of driver—Passengers falling down and run over by truck—Driver is liable for offences under section. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304-A. ILR (1964) Cut 603.

——S. 279—Criminal negligence in driving loaded truck with worn out front tyre on down gradient, at excessive speed—Bursting of tyre — Truck going out of control and meeting with accident—Contravention of Rule 85 (4) of Orissa Motor Vehicles Rules, 1940, held itself culpable negligence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304-A. (1962) 4 Orissa J D 372 : ILR (1962) Cut 947.

——S. 279 — Rash or negligent driving — Petitioner driving heavily loaded bus up-hill along zig-zag road on wrong side at speed between 20 and 25 miles per hour and colliding with car proceeding from opposite direction on right side — Offence — Petitioner held guilty of rash and negligent driving —Doctrine of contributory negligence does not apply to criminal liability. 26 Cut L T 86: 1961 (1) Cri L J 541 : AIR 1961 Orissa 71 (72) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

——S. 279—Motor driver backing car at night time —Duty to take care — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 91—Rules under, R. 166 (Orissa Government).

The appellant, a motor driver, in the town of Cuttack at about 10 p. m. in the night while driving his car on the Buxi Bazar, parked it in front of a petrol shop the parking being done not on the road, but on the side-land to the South of the road. He then went to a shop and after purchasing some petrol there, while he was backing the car for the purpose of coming away, the rear wheel ran over the chest of an old beggar woman who was sleeping under the tree which stood there. When the beggar woman shrieked in pain he stopped the car, driving it forward, and came out. He and some other persons who gathered there gave some water to the woman who thereupon rose to a sitting posture. He took her in his car to the Hospital but the doctor on examination, found her to be dead, upon which he came with the dead body to the Police station and reported there the occurrence.

It was a dark night and on account of the darkness, the backside was not reflected in the mirror fixed to the front part of the car and the mirror did not show whether there was nobody under the neighbouring tree. The driver was looking back to his right side while backing the car and sounded the horn twice or thrice.

Held, that the driver had the peremptory duty of satisfying himself before backing that the ground to the rear was clear enough for backing so as not to cause any danger or undue inconvenience to any person. In the circumstances, it could not be held that the appellant took sufficient care in attempting the backing merely by sitting at the wheel, and looking from his rightside backwards and blowing the horn, even though he might have had no reason to anticipate the presence of a sleeping woman just behind the wheels of the car. It was negligence on the part of the appellant not to have gone to the rear of the car and satisfy himself before he started backing. The convictions under Ss. 304A and 279 must accordingly be maintained.

Taking the extenuating circumstances into consideration a sentence by way of a fine of Rs. 100 was held adequate ('51) 17 Cut L T 359 (DB).

——Ss. 279, 304-A and 338—Applicability—Culpable rashness and negligence—Meaning—Motor bus with defective brakes—Driving at high speed — Accident resulting in injury to passengers and death of one —Offence.

Culpable rashness consists in acting with consciousness that mischievous and illegal consequences may follow, but with the hope that they will not and often with the belief that the actor has taken sufficient precaution to prevent their happening. The imputability arises from acting despite the consciousness. Culpable negligence consists in acting without consciousness that illegal or mischievous effects will follow, but in circumstances which show that the actor has not exercised the caution incumbent on him and that if he had, he would have had the consciousness. The imputability arises from the neglect of the civic duty of circumspection. The driver of a motor bus with passengers in it drove the bus at a high speed, knowing that the hand-brake was ineffective and the foot-brake defective and the rod and drag-link were loose. The driver, when signalled to stop the bus, applied the brake, but he could not control the bus or stop it. It swerved to the right and then to the left and turned upside down and capsized. The road was clear and straight and there was no traffic on it. Two of the wheels had gone into a nala which was by the side of the road, before it capsized. Several of the passengers were injured, some seriously and one of them died as a result of the injuries. The driver was prosecuted and tried for offences under Ss. 279, 338 and 334-A.

Held, that he was guilty of the offences for which he was charged and liable to conviction therefor. 4 Cal 764; 7 M H C R 119, Foll. ILR 31 Pat 716 : 1953 Cri L J 518 : AIR 1953 Pat 56 (57, 58) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Ss. 279, 114, 107 and 338—Principal offender or abettor—Driver of lorry carrying passengers allowing minor to drive lorry with full knowledge that minor did not know driving — Rash and negligent driving by minor resulting in grievous hurt—Driver sitting by the side of minor — Held the driver was liable as principal offender under S. 114—In fact he was the person driving through the instrumentality of the minor and therefore was liable to be punished for offences under Ss. 338 and 279. See Penal Code (1860), S. 114. 52 Cri L J 930 : AIR 1951 Punj 418 (DB).

——Ss. 279 and 304A — Travancore Penal Code, Ss. 277 and 304 — Rash or negligent driving—Culpable rashness and negligence explained—Car proceeding north and south at 20 to 22 miles per hour—Driver first seeing pedestrian S at distance of furlong —Horn sounded and S moving to eastern extremity of road — Car keeping to correct side close to eastern extremity leaving only 1 1/2 feet of road—When car 10 feet away, S cutting across to western side—S run over and dying—Open lawn on road level on eastern side—Held case of pure accident—Driver not guilty of rash or negligent driving — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 116.

Culpable rashness is often explained as acting with the consciousness that dangerous consequences will follow, but with the hope that they will not follow and with the belief that the actor has taken sufficient precautions to prevent the happening of such consequences. Similarly, culpable negligence is acting without the consciousness that dangerous consequences will follow, but in circumstances which show that the actor has not exercised the caution that was incumbent on him. The imputability arises from the neglect of the duty of circumspection.

The negligence in such cases must be what is designated 'gross'. There must be such an amount of recklessness or negligence as to be something more than normal or ordinary. It must at once bring into view the possibility of danger, the happening of some catastrophe. It must be something more than a mere omission or neglect of duty : 1943 Tr L R 710, Rel. on.

The car was proceeding at a speed of 20 to 22 miles per hour north to south on a straight road and S a pedestrian was coming in the opposite direction. There was not on the road at that time any other vehicle or pedestrian. The driver saw S first at a distance of about one furlong and at the sound of the horn he moved to his right on the extreme eastern edge of the road. The car was keeping to the correct side close to the eastern extremity of the road leaving only a space of about one and a half feet of the road on the eastern side. The space on the eastern side was an open lawn on the same level as the road. When the car approached the man at a distance of about ten feet, he cut across to the western side of the road and dashed against the head light and the bumper on the left side of the car and was run over by the car. He sustained injuries resulting in his death :

Held, that the driver could not have by any degree of circumspection foreseen the contingency that S would expose himself to danger by trying to cross the road in the sudden and unexpected manner. It was a case of pure accident and the driver could not be said to have been rash or negligent in driving the car. 51 Cri L J 658 : 1950 T C L R 416 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 14 (16) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 279, 304-A, 337 and 338 — Applicability — Rash or negligent driving causing death—Travancore Penal Code, Ss. 277, 304, 339 and 338.

Accused driving a lorry along the centre of a straight road at a high speed in order to keep pace with a railway train running parallel to the road—Lorry loaded with several bags of paddy upon top of which were seated two persons — Three bullock-cars coming in opposite direction along the correct side of the road — First two carts passed without any danger — Third cart loaded with iron bars which protruded in front of cart suddenly turning to its right — Accused suddenly swerved towards the right to allow cart to pass with result that the lorry overturned causing death of one person and grievous hurt to other sitting on top of the bags — Accused held was liable for the death and grievous hurt caused by his rash and negligent driving, at the time of accident. 1954 Cri L J 7 : AIR 1954 TravCo 25 (26) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 279—Applicability—Hurt caused to animal—Offence.

One of the ingredients of S. 279 is that it must endanger human life or be likely to cause hurt or injury to another person. The section will not apply if the accused hurts any animal like a mule. 1957 All L J 123.

2. Procedure.

——Ss. 279 and 280 — Accused once convicted under S. 304-A cannot be convicted under S. 279 for minor offences—Offences defined by Ss. 279, 280, 336, 337 and 338 can be viewed as minor offences included within S. 304A. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304-A. 1965 (1) Cri L J 524 : AIR 1965 All 196.

——Ss. 279 and 304-A—Collision of motor-vehicles—Trial of drivers for offences under Ss. 279 and 304-A, Penal Code, in one trial is bad—For it cannot be said that there is one transaction in which different offences have been committed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239, Cl. (d). 1963 (2) Cri L J 519 (1) : AIR 1963 Guj 275.

——S. 279—Scope — Charge under read with S. 112, Motor Vehicles Act — Legality and propriety of — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 112).

Section 112 of the Motor Vehicles Act would apply to offences not only under the Motor Vehicles Act but also for breach of provisions the punishment for which is not provided for under those provisions. S. 279 of the Penal Code on the other hand is a self-contained provision like any other section in that Code prescribing the extent of punishment. There is no meaning in connecting it or reading it with S. 112 of the Motor Vehicles Act. S. 112 of the Motor Vehicles Act cannot be read with S. 279 of the Penal Code. 1958 Mad W N 223 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 260 : (1958) 1 Mad L J 243 : 1958 All W R (Sup) 69 : 71 Mad L W 415 : 1958 All Cr R 240 : 1958 Cri L J 775 : AIR 1958 Mad 286 (286) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——S. 279—Procedure for trial of offence.

An offence under S. 279 cannot be said to be an offence under the M. V. Act — If in such a case summons is issued under S. 130 (1) of the Motor Vehicles Act and accused is convicted on the plea of guilty, the summons being contrary to the provisions of S. 130 (1) is illegal and consequently the plea also becomes illegal. Therefore the conviction of the accused is to be set aside. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 130 (1). (1958) 1 M L J 243 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 260 : 1958 Cri L J 775: AIR 1958 Mad 286.

——Ss. 279 and 337 — Expressions 'same transaction' and 'in the course of the same transaction'—Meaning of — Various independent acts if connected either subjectively or objectively and producing particular result from one transaction — Collision of two motor vehicles — Joint trial for offences under Ss. 279, 337 and 426, Penal Code not illegal—Even if illegal, there being no prejudice caused to prosecution, retrial could not be ordered. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 239 (d). 1962 (1) Cri L J 763 : AIR 1962 Raj 155 (DB).

3. Sections 279 and S. 338.

——S. 279—Conviction for offences under Ss. 279 and 338 — Proper sentence — Separate sentence for each offence not invalid.

When two distinct offences are committed sentences passed under both cannot be said to be illegal. But the measure of punishment would be as laid down under S. 71. See Penal Code (45 of 1860), S. 71. 1961 Raj L W 404.

——Ss. 279 and 338—Offences under — Not of same nature and character — Being distinct offences, separate convictions are valid.

It may be that one of the ingredients constituting the offence under S. 338, i. e., the act of driving rashly and negligently constitutes an offence falling under S. 279 but it does not mean that both the offences under these sections are of the same nature and character or that S. 338 is an aggravated form of S. 279. The offences under Ss. 279 and 338 are distinct offences and a person can be separately convicted under these offences. AIR 1956 M B 141; 1950 P L R 193 and (1933) 1 K B D 704, Rel. on. 1961 Raj L W 404.

4. Gist of offence.

——Ss. 279, 336 and 337 — Nature of offences — Composition of offence under S. 337 — If involves acquittal under S. 279 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 345).

By S. 336, Penal Code, an act, endangering life or personal safety of others, which is done rashly or negligently is penalised, and evidently the offence punishable under S. 337, Penal Code is an aggravated form of the offence defined by S. 336, Penal Code. The offences under Ss. 279 and 337, Penal Code, are however, offences of different nature and the conduct referred to therein is penalised with different objects. An act, which is rash or negligent or is likely to endanger human life, may be the result of driving any vehicle or riding on a public way. The offence under S. 279, Penal Code is non-compoundable; and the compounding of the offence under

S. 337, Penal Code, will not prevent the prosecution from being continued under S. 279, Penal Code. The composition of the offence under S. 337, Penal Code, sanctioned by the Magistrate therefore does not result in the acquittal of the accused of the offence under S. 279, Penal Code. Where the offence which is the result of rash and negligent driving, may constitute independently an offence punishable under S. 279, Penal Code, that will not justify the view that the offence under S. 337, Penal Code, is an aggravated form of offence penalized by S. 279, Penal Code. 61 Bom L R 1674 : ILR (1960) Bom 75 : 1960 Cri L J 814 : AIR 1960 Bom 269 (270) (Prs 2, 4) (DB).

——S. 279— Gist of offence — Nature of rashness or negligence — Appeal from acquittal — High Court's power to review entire evidence — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 417.

A person could be found guilty of an offence under S. 279, Penal Code, only if it is proved that the vehicle was driven rashly and negligently. Rashness or negligence must be what must be described as criminal rashness or criminal negligence. There must be something more than mere carelessness or an error of judgment.

The High Court, no doubt, has the power to review the entire evidence on which the order of acquittal is founded and to reach its own conclusions, but in reaching its conclusions upon pure questions of fact, the High Court will always give proper weight and consideration to the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused and the right of the accused to the benefit of every reasonable doubt. (1961) M L J (Cr) 325 (Ker).

——Ss. 279 and 337—'Negligence'—What amounts to.

Applicant was convicted under Ss. 279 and 337, Penal Code for rash and negligent driving when a bus was washed away on a 'rapta.' Driver and two other passengers had ascertained the depth of water over the 'rapta' and were of opinion that the bus could pass. It was washed away due to sudden gush of water.

Held, that negligence has been defined to be the breach of a duty caused by the omission to do something which a reasonable man guided by those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs would do or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence in order to render a person criminally liable must be of such a degree as to endanger human life or to be likely to cause hurt or injury to any other person. The accident in the case was the result of circumstances which could not possibly have been anticipated by exercise of any amount of prudence or caution. (1960) M P L J (Notes) 79.

——S. 279 —Gist of offence — Rash and negligent act need not result in injury to life or limb — Bare negligence involving risk of injury is enough for a conviction under the section. 1953 Cri L J 913: AIR 1953 Trav-Co 173 (173) (Pr 5) (DB).

5. Enhancement of sentence.

——S. 279—Driving a vehicle in a manner which is dangerous to public — Conviction for — Enhancement of punishment — Punishment enhanced — Accused to be disqualified from holding a driving licence for a period of six months. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 116. 1965 (2) Cri L J 84 : AIR 1965 Cal 363.

——Ss. 279 and 304-A—Death caused due to rash and negligent driving of a motor vehicle on public road—Criminal rashness and criminal negligence—What amounts to — Conviction—Sentence—Interference by appellate court or by High Court in revision—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32, 423 and 439.

A person who is driving a motor vehicle should always keep it in a state of control sufficient to enable him to avoid dashing against any other vehicle or running into any passenger who may fail to step off the road and he is prima facie guilty of negligence if the vehicle leaves the road and dashes headlong and knocks against other users of the road (Criminal rashness and criminal negligence explained. 3 All 778 Rel. on.).

The accused, a driver of a stage carriage vehicle was found guilty under Ss. 279 and 304-A, I. P. C. and was sentenced to simple imprisonment for three months under S. 279, I. P. C. and to simple imprisonment for six months under S. 304 A I. P. C. the sentence to run concurrently. In appeal the conviction was confirmed but the sentence was reduced to a fine of Rs. 150 only. The facts established at the trial showed utter callousness on the part of the driver in having gone on the wrong side of the road losing control of the vehicle and running over a person who was sitting on the extreme end of the road and dashing against the cyclist who was coming on his proper side.

Held that on the facts found by the trial Magistrate the conviction and sentences passed under Ss. 279 and 304-A were quite correct and the appellate court was not justified in reducing the sentences. AIR 1937 Bom 98 and AIR 1928 Cal 300 Ref. to.

The question of sentences is a mater of discretion of the trial Judge and where the discretion has been properly exercised along accepted judicial lines an appellate court should not interfere with except for strong reason.

It is true that the power of enhancing sentence should be exercised by the High Court very rarely, but when it appears to the Court that the sentence imposed on the accused is grossly inadequate having regard to the gravity of the offence resulting in miscarriage of justice, it should not hesitate to impose as adequate sentence on the accused even though the effect of the order will be to send the accused back to jail. 1961 K L T 769.

——Ss. 279, 337, 338 and 71—Offences under S. 279 and Ss. 337 and 338 are distinct—Conviction and sentences—A person therefore convicted of offences under S. 337 or S. 338 can also be convicted under S. 279—If however the two offences are committed in the same transaction S. 71 will govern the assessment of punishment—Madh. B.L.R. 1952 Cr. 302; Madh. B. L. J. 1952 H. C. R. 459, Overruled—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233). Madh B L R 1956 Cr 36 : 1956 Madh B L J 70 : 1956 Cr L J 624 : I L R (1956) Madh B 208 : AIR 1956 Madh B 141 (144) (Pr 16) (FB).

SECTION 282

——S. 282—Murder trial—Out of eight eye-witnesses named in F. I. R. only three were examined in committing Magistrate's Court — Mere fact that these witnesses did not give evidence helpful to prosecution is no ground for not examining the rest—Prosecution examining different set of eye-witnesses at trial whose evidence was not trustworthy—Motive for crime not established—Held on a consideration of entire evidence that evidence adduced was not of such a character as could be relied upon for conviction—In any case accused was entitled to benefit of doubt — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 286. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1326 (DB).

——S. 282 — Negligent conveying in over loaded vessel—Liability of owner—Owner living nearby and daily taking proceeds from over loading—Owner held guilty.

Where the owner of the boats, which carried terrific overloads, thus endangering the safety of the passengers, lived near the starting place of the boats and leaving everything to his tindals, only took the daily proceeds from such overloading :

Held that even though there was no proof that he actually knew about the overloading, he was guilty of the offence under S. 282, Penal Code, as his negligence was directly responsible for the overloading of his boats. If he had exercised due care and caution, as he lived nearby, the overloading would have never happened; the fact that the tindal, a man of straw, had not been prosecuted for the offences was irrelevant as the owner was a man of substance and was also liable. (The sentence, however, was reduced as there was no direct knowledge and it was his first offence). AIR 1949 All 11, Disting. (1949) 2 Mad L J 773 : 1950 Mad W N 37 : 1950 All W R (Sup) 11 : 1950 All Cri Cas 28 : 51 Cri L J 729 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 17 : AIR 1950 Mad 300 (300, 301) (Prs 3, 4, 5).

SECTION 283

——S. 283 — Applicability — Mere standing on road whether offence — (Interpretation of Statutes—Punctuations—Act—Meaning of).

So far as the Acts of the Indian Legislature and the Constitution of India are concerned, it has been held that in India, the punctuation in the statutes should not be ignored. The Court cannot therefore ignore the comma after the words 'by doing any act' in S. 283. The words 'or by omitting to take order with any property in his possession or under his charge' are disjunctive and not conjunctive to 'by doing any act'.

As it was the intention of the Legislature to restrict the omission only to any property in the possession or under the charge of the accused, the expression 'or by omitting to take order with any property in his possession or under his charge' had to be added. The word 'act' under S. 283 cannot be read in such a wide sense that mere standing on the road without anything more is such an act as is punishable under S. 283. I L R (1956) 6 Raj 539 : 1956 Raj L W 492 : 1957 Cr L J 391 : AIR 1957 Raj 64 (65) (Prs 10, 11) DB).

SECTION 285

——S. 285—Negligent omission to take proper order with fire and combustible matter—Factory-manager, in breach of licence condition; keeping naked fire in proximity of stores of turpentine and varnish—Act always matter of 'probable danger' to human life, viz., factory workers, and not simply a 'possible danger on ground that no fire broke out earlier—Fire causing death of seven workers—Held, maximum punishment of six months' rigorous imprisonment given to manager was not harsh. Criminal Appeal No. 433 of 1963, dated 8-4-1963 (Bom.) Affirmed Kurban Hussein v. State of Maharashtra. (1965) 2 S C R 622 : 1965 S C D 1056 : 1965 All Cri R 331 : (1965) 1 S C W R 718 : 1965 M P L J 561 : 67 Bom L R 447 : 1965 Mah L J 497 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 550 : 1965 All W R (H C) 527 : AIR 1965 S C 1616 (1618) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

SECTION 289

——S. 289—Applicability—Failure to guard dangerous animal.

If the owner was clearly aware of the vicious disposition of the animal vis-a-vis human beings and if he negligently or knowingly omitted to take sufficient care to guard it against probable danger to human life or probable danger of grievous hurt, he is liable under S. 289 if the animal attacks a person and causes injuries to him. AIR 1955 N U C (Nag) 5679.

SECTION 290

——S. 290 and S. 268—Non-payment of Panchayat taxes—Does not amount to 'public nuisance' under S. 268—Conviction of accused under S. 290 is illegal. 1964 (1) Cr L J 24 (1) : AIR 1964 16 (17) (Prs 2, 3).

——S. 290 — Applicability — Notice under S. 100, U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947—Prosecution under.

Where the notice is given by the Gaon Sabha under S. 100 of the Panchayat Raj Act the Sabha can take action for the prosecution of the accused before a Magistrate—The Panchayat Adalat cannot try the accused under S. 290 Penal Code — See U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (1947), S. 52. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1725.

——S. 290—Allegation that public servants disregarded their duties cast on them for the safety of the populace — Prosecution — Sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C., held necessary inasmuch as the illegal omissions of the public servants must necessarily arise out of the official duty they were performing—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 197. 1962 (2) Cr L J 320 : AIR 1962 Bom 198 (DB).

——Ss. 290, 268—Public nuisance—Clandestine prostitution.

If prostitution is carried on in clandestine or hidden manner, there can be no public nuisance although persons who came to know of the immoralities committed in the house may feel their moral sense estranged. Before any finding can be arrived at that a public nuisance has been committed the elements contained in S. 268 must be established. 51 Cri L J 1241 : AIR 1950 Cal 330.

——Ss. 290 and 95—Scope—Merely interrupting at a public meeting will not amount to an offence—Complaint or charge sheet by police disclosing no offence—Interference by High Court is called for—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A Merely interrupting at a public meeting without anything more would not amount to an offence under S. 290 of the Penal Code. Section 95 of the Penal Code would be a complete answer to such a charge. In cases where the allegations in a complaint would at the most amount to some technical offence the matter would be covered by S. 95 barring cognizance by Courts in view of its triviality. AIR 1932 Bom 193 and AIR 1954 Cal 299, Rel. on.

Ordinarily the High Court does not interfere at the interlocutory stage of criminal proceedings in a Subordinate Court. But if in a particular case the complaint or the police charge sheet discloses no offence and where even on the admitted facts there is no case against the accused and there is no chance of the case ending in a conviction and the High Court is clearly of opinion that a further prolongation of the prosecution would amount to harassment of the process of the Court, it is the duty of the High Court to interfere under S. 561-A of the Criminal P. C., and put an end to this abuse by directing the quashing of the prosecution. AIR 1960 Ker 263, Foll. (1962) Mad L J (Cri) 185 : 1961 Ker L J 96 : 1961 Ker L T 110 : (1961) 1 Ker L R 205.

——S. 290—Person charged under S. 160—Doubtful if he can be convicted under S. 290. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1959 Cri L J 1440 : A I R 1959 Mad 513.

——S. 290 — Applicability — Quarrelling in public street in village—Offence.

Quarrelling in public street in village is not likely to cause annoyance to villagers and as such would not constitute offence under S. 290, Penal Code. AIR 1937 Mad 130, Rel. on. 1959 Mad L J (Cri) 346 : 72 Mad L W 444 : 1959 Mad W N 366 : 1959 Cri L J 1440 : AIR 1959 Mad 513 (513) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——S. 290—Applicability—Encroachment must constitute public nuisance for there may be encroachment which may fall short of public nuisance—Bona fide dispute between accused and the Board about alleged encroachment — Proper forum is Civil Court and the criminal prosecution of the accused was misconceived. AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 583.

—— S. 290 — Trade or business — Factory operating for long time—If can become public nuisance.

Although a person is at liberty to carry on any trade or business on the property belonging to him, he has no right to do so if such trade or business deprives another of the reasonable and comfortable use of his property. Even a lawful trade would become a nuisance if it interferes with the comfort and enjoyment of the neighbours, gives offence to their senses or obstructs the reasonable use of property.

The question whether a particular trade or business is or is not a nuisance can be determined only after taking into consideration a number of circumstances such as the place where it is located or carried on, the number of people whose rights are prejudicially affected thereby and the extent of the injury, discomfort and annoyance caused to normal human beings.

The mere fact that the factory was allowed to operate for several years without any objection having been raised by the neighbours would not render the accused immune from punishment if it is found that its existence constitutes a nuisance to the people of the neighbourhood. No prescriptive right can be acquired to maintain and no length of time can legalise a public nuisance. I L R (1956) Punj 1072 : 1958 Cri L J 91 : AIR 1958 Punj 11 (12) (Prs 4, 5).

——S. 290—Accused using vulgar language against some one in public place thereby causing annoyance to public — Such conduct amounts to public nuisance. 1953 Cri L J 288; 1952 Ker L T 487 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 43 (44) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

SECTION 292

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 292.)

1. Scope.
2. Validity.
3. Whether repealed.
4. Test of obscenity.
5. Mens rea—Necessity and proof.
6. Obscene in part—Obscene as a whole.
7. Publication.
8. Obscene matter—Defence.
9. Sentence.
10. Interference in revision.

1. Scope.

● ——S. 292—Whether a book is obscene depends on interpretation of S. 292 and not on expert evidence—Evidence Act (1872), S. 45.

In a prosecution under S. 292, the question whether the book is obscene or not does not altogether depend on oral evidence of a writer and art critic because the offending novel and the portions which are the subject of the charge must be judged of by the Court, in the light of S. 292, and the provisions of the Constitution. This raises two broad and independent issues of law—the validity of S. 292 and the proper interpretation of the section and its application to the offending novel. Ranjit D. Udeshi v. State of Maharashtra, 1965 (2) Cri L J 8; (1965) 1 S C W R 778 : 67 Bom L R 500 : (1965) 1 S C R 65 : AIR 1965 S C 881 (884) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——S. 292, Exception—Scope of Exception — Effect of amendment of 1925—Scope is not widened.

Section 292 of the Penal Code, as it originally stood in 1861, made it an offence to sell, distribute, import or print for sale or hire, or wilfully to exhibit any obscene book, pamphlet, paper, etc. A representation in a temple or on a car used for conveying of an idol was however, exempted from the operation of the section. In 1925, in implementation of the International Convention for Suppression of Traffic in obscene literature, the scope of the section was widened and the exception was also slightly enlarged The exception now applies to any such matter connected with religion. However, the scope ot the exception has not been widened so as to make it applicable to object of art and literature. 64 Bom L R 356 : 1962 Nag L J 406 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 741 : I L R (1962) Bom 538 : A I R 1962 Bom 268 (269) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 292—Trial under — Change in society to be considered.

In deciding whether a publication absorbed with sex relationship of men and women and purporting to describe the contemporary life, is an obscene libel, it is necessary to take into account the change brought out in the society. I L R (1959) 1 Cal 678.

——S. 292 — Scope — (Press (Objectionable Matter) Act (1951), S. 11)—Effect of.

Prosecution under section does not amount to evasion of S. 11, Press Objectionable Matter Act of 1951 —That Act does not repeal any provision of Penal Code and is not a bar to prosecution under the section. (1953) 1 Mad L J 144 : 1953 Mad W N (Cri) 9 : 1953 Mad W N 17 : 1953 Cri L J 763 : 66 Mad L W 51 : AIR 1953 Mad 418 (418) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

2. Validity.

● ——S. 292 — Section is not invalid in view of Art. 19 (2) of Constitution.

Article 19 guarantees complete freedom of speech and expression but it also makes an exception in favour of existing laws which impose retrictions on the exercise of the right in the interests of public decency or morality. The cherished rights of freedom of speech or expression is meant for the expression of free opinions to change political or social conditions or for the advancement of human knowledge. This freedom is subject to reasonable restrictions which may be thought necessary in the interest of the general public and one such is the interest of public decency and morality. Section 292. Penal Code manifestly embodies such a restriction because the law against obscenity of course, correctly understood and applied, seeks no more than to promote public decency and morality. Section 292 does not go beyond obscenity which falls directly within the words 'public decency and morality' of the second clause of the Article.

Condemnation of obscenity depends as much upon the modes of the people as upon the individual. It is always question of degree or as the lawyers are accustomed to say of where the line is to be drawn. It is however clear that obscenity by itself has extremely poor value in the propagation of ideas, opinions and informations of public interest or profit. When there is propagation of ideas opinions and information of public interest or profit the approach to the problem may become different because then the interest of society may tilt the scales in favour of free speech and expression. It is thus that books on medical science with intimate illustrations and photograp though in a sense immodest are not considered to be obscene but the same illustrations and photographs collected in book form without the medical text would certainly be considered to be obscene. Section 292, Penal Code deals with obscenity in this sense and cannot thus be said to be invalid in view of the second clause of Art. 19. Ranjit D. Udeshi v. State of Maharashtra, 1965 (2) Cri L J 8 : (1965) 1 S C W R 778 : 67 Bom L R 506 : (1965) 1 S C R 65 : A I R 1965 S C 881 (885) (Pt B) (Prs 7 to 9).

3. Whether repealed.

——S. 292—S. 292 is not impliedly repealed by Press (Objectionable Matter) Act. 1951—(General Clauses Act (1897). S. 26) — (Press (Objectionable Matter) Act (1951)) — (Constitution of India, Art. 254) — Interpretation of Statutes—Repeal—Implied repeal—Repugnancy.

The Press (Objectionable Matter) Act (1951) does not provide for punishment for printing and publishing obscene matter but provides only against the repetition of such publications. It is preventive in nature regarding objectionable matters and not penal. On the other hand under S. 292, Penal Code, once a a person is found to have been concerned with the publication of obscene matter, the Court must convict and punish him. A person found guilty under S. 292, Penal Code, is considered as an offender and is guilty of having committed an offence. Moreover it cannot be said that the ingredients of the offence laid down in S. 292, Penal Code, have been repeated in the 1951 Act or that that 1951 Act qua this provision of Indian Penal Code covers the same ground. Taking the two Acts together it cannot be said that S. 292, Penal Code, cannot be read together with the 1951 Act, The provisions of S. 292, Penal Code, are not inconsistent with the provisions of the 1951 Act and therefore it cannot be said that S. 292, Penal Code, is repealed by implication by the Press (Objectionable Matter) Act (1951) so far as it is applicable to the keepers of the press and publishers of offending articles. ILR (1986) Punj 104 : 1956 Cr L J 415 : 58 Punj L R 795: AIR 1956 Punj 85 (87) (Pt B) (Prs 7 to 10, 12) (DB).

4. Test of obscenity.

■ ——S. 292 — Test of obscenity — It must square with freedom of speech and expression guaranteed by Constitution — Test laid down — Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (a) and (5).

The Penal Code does not define the word 'obscene' and this delicate task of how to distinguish between that which is artistic and that which is obscene has to be performed by Courts and in the last resort by the Supreme Court. The test must obviously be of a general character but it must admit of a just application from case to case by indicating a line of demarcation not necessarily sharp but sufficiently distinct to distinguish between that which is obscene and that which is not. None has so far attempted a definition of obscenity because the meaning can be laid bare without attempting a definition by describing what must be looked for. It may, however, be said at once that treating with sex and nudity in art and literature cannot be regarded as evidence of obscenity without something more. The test of obscenity must square with the freedom of speech and expression guaranteed under our Constitution. This invites the Court to reach a decision on a constitutional issue of a most far-reaching character and it must beware that it may not lean too far away from the guaranteed freedom.

The test of obscenity, as laid down in Hicklin's case, (1868) 3 Q B 360 ; and formerly applied in India is this : Whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscenity is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences and into whose hands a publication of this sort may fall. It is quite certain that it would suggest to the minds of the young of either sex, or even to persons of more advanced years, thoughts of a most impure and libidinous character.

The Court must apply itself to consider each work at a time. An overall view of the obscene matter in the setting of the whole work would, of course, be necessary but the obscene matter must be considered by itself and separately to find out whether it is so gross and its obscenity so decided that it is likely to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to influences of this sort and into whose hands the book is likely to fall. In this connection the interests of our contemporary society and particularly the influence of the book etc., on it must not be overlooked. A number of considerations may here enter. Emulation by our writers of an obscene book under the aegis of the Court's determination is likely to pervert our entire literature because obscenity pays and true art finds little popular support. Where obscenity and art are mixed, art must be so preponderating as to throw the obscenity into a shadow or the obscenity so trivial and insignificant that it can have no effect and may be overlooked. In other words, treating with sex in a manner offensive to public decency and morality (and these are the words of our fundamental law) judged of by our national standards and considered likely to pander to lascivious, prurient or sexually precocious minds must determine the result. A balance should be maintained between freedom of speech and expression and public decency and morality but when the latter is substantially transgressed the former must give way. The test to adopt in our country is that obscenity without a preponderating social purpose or profit cannot have the constitutional protection of free speech and expression and obscenity is treating with sex in a manner appealing to the carnal side of human nature. or having that tendency. Such a treating with sex is offensive to modesty and decency but the extent of such appeal in a particular book, etc., are matters for consideration in each individual case.

Applying this test, to the book in question (Lady Chatterley's Lover) their Lordships held that in treating with sex the impugned portions viewed separately and also in the setting of the whole book passed the permissible limits judged of from our community standards and as there was no social gain to the public which could be said to preponderate the book must be held to satisfy the test of obscenity indicated above. AIR 1962 Bom 268 Affirmed. Ranjit D. Udeshi v. State of Maharashtra, 1965 (2) Cri L J 8 : (1965) 1 S C W R 778 : 67 Bom L R 506: (1965) 1 S C R 65 : AIR 1965 S C 881 (887, 888, 889, 891) (Pt E) (Prs 14, 16, 19 to 22, 29).

——S. 292—Obscene matter—What is.

The word 'obscene' is not defined in the Penal Code ; but it may be taken as meaning offensive to chastity or modesty, expressing or personating to the mind or view something that delicacy, purity and decency forbid to be expressed. The test of obscenity is this, whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscenity is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences and into whose hands a publication of this sort may fall ; and in determining whether or not such a book is obscene regard must be had to that book alone ; other books not the subject of charges may not be referred to. A picture of a woman in the nude is not per se obscene. For the purpose of deciding whether a picture is obscene or not one has to consider to a great extent the surrounding circumstances, the pose, the posture, the suggestive element in the picture, and the person or persons in whose hands it is likely to fall.

The publication concerned was not a medical one. Neither was it sold to registered subscribers nor had its circulation or sale been restricted to members of the medical and legal professions and to students of Psychology and Sociology. The book was written, printed and published and brought into circulation for prurient tastes. The probable effect of the publication was to prejudice public morals and decency. It was intended for those who had ardent sex appeal in them and it was for the delectation of the married and the unmarried for the gratification of their normal and abnormal sex appetites and it described varieties of sexual intercourse in a manner which to say the least was obscene.

Held, that if the probable effect of the publication was to prejudice public morals and decency, the accused must be taken to have intended the natural consequences of his acts. It was no justification that the matter published was by an eminent writer or was composed in a style not easily understood by all. The matter constituted obscene matter contemplated under S. 292. 1958 All L J 578 : 1958 All W R (H C) 680 : 1958 All Cri R 458 (2) : 1959 Cri L J 9 : A I R 1959 All 49 (52, 53) (Prs 17, 21) (DB).

——S. 292—Obscene literature—Test — That there is gulf between legalism and literature on decency, is no ground for judging publication in question on different standard than strictly legal one. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3567.

——S. 292 (a) - Obscene book — Test of obscenity— Book to be judged by present day standards of morality — Effect of book on mind of average person and adolescents — Court has to see whether book tends to deprave public morality.

Section 292 of the Penal Code does not define the word "obscene". On a review of the cases decided, the test of obscenity will be as to whether or not looking to the present day standards of morals and thoughts, the tendency of the book alleged to be obscene would be to deprave public morality. (1868) 3 Q B 360 and (1954) 2 Q B 16 and 3 All 837 and 20 Bom 193 and 15 Bom L R 307 and A I R 1956 Bom 32, Rel. on.

While judging the character of a publication, the Court must consider the effect that it would produce on the mind of an average person in whose hand the book is likely to fall. While so judging, neither a man of wide culture or superb character nor a person of depraved mentality only should be taken as a reader of such publication. The standard of readers is neither one of exceptional susceptibility nor one without any susceptibility whatsoever. A I R 1952 Cal 214, Rel. on.

The Court must also consider the effect on the mind of young and unwary persons or those of impressionable age. (1872) 7 C P 261 (266) and (1954) 2 All E R 683 and 39 Cal 377 and A I R 1952 Cal 214 and A I R 1961 Cal 177, Rel. on.

Held, that taking into consideration several passages occurring in the novel "Lady Chatterley's Lover" by D. H. Lawrence and taking also an overall view of the case the novel should be held to be obscene within the meaning of S. 292, Penal Code. 1962 (2) Cri L J 741 : I L R (1962) Bom 538 : 64 Bom L R 356 : 1962 Nag L J 406 : A I R 1962 Bom 268 (270, 271, 273, 274) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 9, 10, 15, 20) (DB).

——S. 292—Obscene matter—Test for determination —Effect produced on ordinary member of society is to be considered.

The true test of obscenity is whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscene is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to immoral influences and into whose hands a publication of such sort might fall. The effect produced by the publication on the ordinary member of the society has to be ascertained. (1868) 3 Q B 360 and (1954) 2 All E R 683 and A I R 1952 Cal 214 and (1872) 7 C P 261 and A I R 1940 Cal 290, Rel. on. 1961 (1) Cri L J 371 : I L R (1960) 1 Cal 867 : A I R 1961 Cal 177 (178, 179) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——S. 292—Obscene book — Test — A book may be obscene although it contains but a single obscene passage. 3 All 837, Rel. on. 1961 (1) Cri L J 371 : I L R (1960) 1 Cal 867 : A I R 1961 Cal 177 (179) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 292 — Obscene matter — What constitutes— Held, that the three books, 'The Dark Urge', 'The Shame of Mary Quinn' and 'Find Me in Fire' were meant to pander to the prurient taste of the public and appeal to their baser instincts. They were 'obscene' within the meaning of S. 292. 1961 (1) Cri L J 371 : I L R (1960) 1 Cal 867 : A I R 1961 Cal 177 (180) (Pt E) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 292 — Prosecution under for publication of collection of stories alleged to be obscene — Such stories taken from past periodicals — Stories not objected to when appeared in periodicals—Collection held still objectionable because a stray passage or a stray story occasionally thrown into a magazine might escape the attention of persons who read them, but to collect such stories together and publish them in book form is certainly bound to excite a particular feeling in the minds of the readers. ILR 39 Cal 377, Rel. on. I L R (1959) 1 Cal 678.

——S. 292 — 'Obscene' — Test of — Sexual urge not necessary.

It may be quite true that to a person past his seventies there would be no sexual urge on reading the passages of the book in question, but that will not be the correct test to determine the question of obscenity which has been accepted to be one that is detrimental to public morals and calculated to produce a pernicious effect in depraving and debanching the minds of persons into whose hands it may come. If the story would suggest to the minds of the young of either sex thoughts of most impure and libidinous character it is obscene though the ulterior object of the writer might have been innocent or even laudable. I L R (1959) 1 Cal 678.

——S. 292—Obscene literature—Test of obscenity — Sex magazine containing articles dealing with ancient Indian architecture as exhibited on walls of old Hindu temples — Indecent items selected.

The word "obscene" has not been defined in the Penal Code. The tests to be applied for determining whether a particular object is obscene or not would depend on various circumstances. The idea as to what is to be deemed to be obscene has varied from age to age, from region to region, dependent upon particular social conditions. There cannot be an immutable standard of moral values.

The Courts have, more often, restricted the use of the term obscenity to sexual immorality only. Such matters as would tend to stir in persons, into whose hands such matter is ordinarily expected to reach, sex impulse which leads to sexually impure and lustful thoughts, are declared as obscene, attracting the jurisdicsion of the Court to ban out such publications. The true test is not to find out what depraves the morals in any way whatsoever, but what leads to deprave only in one way, viz., by exciting sensual desires and lascivious thoughts. The effect produced on an ordinary member of the society or a particular class or readers for which a particular publication may be meant has to be ascertained. It is neither men of wide culture or rare character nor persons of depraved mentality who should be thought of as being the readers of such literature. The standard of readers is neither one of exceptional sensibility nor one without any sensibility whatsoever. (1868) 3 Q B 360, Rel. on.

Scientific treatises and journals are not to be tested in the same way as books and papers which are published for being read by the common and ordinary man and woman.

The form and method of expression together with the occasion and surrounding circumstances play an important part for determining whether a particular matter is obscene or not.

A sex magazine, meant to educate the ordinary members of the public in science of sexology, contained articles dealing with ancient Indian architecture as exhibited on the walls of old Hindu Temples. With the exception of a few sentences the entire article was devoted to descriptions of and made reference to statutory representations of co-habiting couples found on the walls of certain specified temples. The particular items selected for the article were not really the best from the artistic point of view but those which were indecent and more aphrodisiac. Both the text and the pictures selected were with that aim alone and the articles could not in any view be considered to be one in which art was explained for the sake of art. Detailed descriptions of the scenes of the story which even the writer would not express in language were made explicit by the pictorial representation.

Part of the magazine was also devoted to correspondence from readers and the reply by the Editorial Board of the paper. Questions published in some cases had nothing of a scientific bearing. Those could only be characterised to be a clear article for advertising the capacity of the paper to rouse the immoral sex urge or in some cases even unnatural offences.

Held, that the manner in which the pictures had been selected and the various descriptions were given had only one effect. Its sole object was to exploit the base instinct in human nature, and the passages and the pictures came within the purview of S. 292. 1952 Cri L J 575 : A I R 1952 Cal 214 (215, 216) (Prs 3, 4, 7, 10, 13, 14, 17, 18) (DB).

——S. 292—'Obscene' book—Tests.

It is a question of fact in each case, whether a particular book falls within the meaning of 'obscene' coming within the mischief of S. 292. The test of obscenity is this: whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscenity is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences, and into whose hands a publication of this sort may fall. (1868) 3 Q B D 360, Foll.; (1954) 1 All E R 741, (1955) 1 Mad L J 106; (1953) 1 Mad L J 144; A I R 1953 S C 418; (1957) 1 Mad L J (Cri) 731, Rel. on.; AIR 1940 Cal 290; AIR 1947 Lah 387, Distinguished. Whether the book is obscene is a matter in which the Court is entitled to rely on its own judgment apart from the other circumstances. 1961 Ker L J 771 : 1961 Ker L T 701.

——S. 292 — Obscene matter — What constitutes — Mere defamatory article—Offence.

What is 'obscenity' is not defined by the Penal Code. But Courts have laid down that the word 'obscene' should be given its ordinary and literal meaning, viz., repulsive, filthy, loathsome, indecent and lewd. But every indecent or filthy article will not come within the scope of obscenity punishable under S. 292 of the Penal Code.

In order that an article should be obscene it must have the tendency to corrupt the morals of those in whose hands it may fall. The mere fact that an article is highly defamatory of certain person referred to therein or is so highly indecent that no decent person will indulge in such writings, will not by itself make them necessarily 'obscene' also. Though all obscene articles will be either filthy, indecent or repulsive, every filthy or indecent article may not necessarily come within the mischief of 'obscenity.' 1958 Mad W N 52 : (1958) 1 Mad L J 8 : 1958 All Cri R 71 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 27 : 71 Mad L W 111 : 1958 All W R (Supp) 27 (1) : 1958 Cri L J 647 (1) : AIR 1958 Mad 210 (210) (Pr 1).

——S. 292—Obscene publication—Test.

The test of obscenity is, whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscene is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to immoral influences and in whose hands a publication of this sort may fall. The publication must be regarded as obscene if it is calculated to produce a pernicious effect in depraving and debauching the minds of the persons into whose hands it might come. (1868) 3 Q B 360, Rel. on.

Works of art are never considered as obscene.

It is the effect of the publication on the mind of an ordinary young person that has to be considered in deciding whether it is obscene or not. A I R 1952 Cal 214, Rel. on.

Whether the book is obscene is a matter in which the Court is entitled to rely on its own judgment as well as the evidence of witnesses in support of this finding of fact. A I R 1932 Cal 651, Rel. on.

Where a man publishes a work manifestly obscene he must be taken to have intended the inevitable consequences. The object which the writer has view is immaterial. If the publication is an obscene publication it would be no defence to say that the law was broken for some wholesome and salutary purpose.

Held, on a consideration of the publication 'Kama Kala' as a whole that it was obscene within the meaning of S. 292, Penal Code. 1954 Cri L J 1622 : 34 Mys L J 100 : ILR (1954) Mys 229 : A I R 1954 Mys 164 (165, 166) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6, 8, 9) (DB).

——S. 292—"Obscene,' meaning of — Determination of obscenity — Non-prosecution of publishers of similar books—Effect.

The word "obscene" in the section should be interpreted to have its dictionary meaning.

Whether a particular book is obscene is a question of fact.

Non-prosecution of publishers of similar books cannot mean that the book which is an obscene one does not fall within the scope of S. 292, Penal Code. (1953) 1 Mad L J 144 : 1953 Mad W N (Cri) 9 : 1953 Mad W N 17 : 1953 Cri L J 763 : 66 Mad L W 51 : A I R 1953 Mad 418 (418) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 7, 8).

——S. 292—'Obscene' — Test— (Press (Objectionable Matter) Act (1951), S. 3 (vi)).

The word 'obscene' has not been defined in the Indian Penal Code and the determination of this question depends on various circumstances. The idea as to what is to be deemed to be obscene varies from age to age, from region to region and even from person to person. As a matter of fact all that can be done in such a case is to apply a set of tests which depends on every individual's notion of obscenity and there is no doubt that there cannot be an immutable standard of moral values.

The test of obscenity is this, whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscenity is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences, and into whose hands a publication of this sort may fall. ILR (1956) Punj 104 : 1956 Cri L J 415 : 58 Punj L R 79 : A I R 1956 Punj 85 (88) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

5. Mens rea—Necessity of and proof.

——S. 292—Prosecution need not prove knowledge of obscenity on part of accused.

In prosecution under S. 292 the prosecution need not prove that the person who sells or keeps for sale any obscene object knows that it is obscene before he can be adjudged guilty. The first sub-section of S. 292 does not make knowledge of obscenity an ingredient of the offence. The prosecution need not prove something which the law does not burden it with. Something much less than actual knowledge must therefore suffice. Courts can only interpret the law as they find it and if any exception is to be made it is for Parliament to enact a law. The difficulty of obtaining legal evidence of the offender's knowledge of the obscenity of the book etc. has made the liability strict. Under our law absence of such knowledge, may be taken in mitigation but it does not take the case out of the sub-section. Ranjit D. Udeshi v. State of Maharashtra. 1965 (2) Cri L J 8 : (1965) 1 S C W R 778 : 67 Bom L R 506 : (1965) 1 S C R 65 : AIR 1965 S C 881 (886) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——S. 292 — Sale of obscene book — Mens rea — Proof—Need not be proved by positive evidence.

In S. 292, in the matter of the second part of the guilty act (Actus reus), namely, the selling or keeping for sale of an object which is found to be obscene, the ordinary guilty intention (mens rea) will be required before the offence can be said to be complete. The offender must have actually sold or kept for sale, the offending article The circumstances of the case will then determine the criminal intent and it will be a matter of a proper inference from them. The prosecution need not give positive evidence to establish a guilty intention. In criminal prosecution mens rea must necessarily be proved by circumstantial evidence alone unless the accused confesses. The sub-section makes sale and possession for sale one of the elements of the offence. Where sale has taken place and the accused is a book seller the necessary inference is readily drawn at least in this case. Difficulties may, however, arise in cases close to the border. To escape liability the accused can prove his lack of knowledge unless the circumstances are such that he must be held guilty for the acts of another. The Court will presume that he is guilty if the book is sold on his behalf and is later found to be obscene unless he can establish that the sale was without his knowledge or consent. The law against obscenity has always imposed a strict responsibility. Ranjit D. Udeshi v. State of Maharashtra, 1965 (2) Cri L J 8 : (1965) 1 S C W R 778 : 67 Bom L R 506 : (1965) 1 S C R 65 : AIR 1965 S C 881 (886) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——S. 292 (a) — Scope — Mens rea is not dispensed with under the section.

Unless a statute either clearly or by necessary implication rules out mens rea as a constituent part of the crime, no one should be found guilty of an offence under the criminal law unless he has got a guilty mind. The offence under S. 292 is not of a minor character, for the liberty of the subject is at stake. A sentence of three months' rigorous imprisonment prescribed under S. 292 is not insignificant. 'Possession' referred to in S. 292 (a) connotes conscious possession and in that sense mens rea or guilty mind has not been dispensed with under the provision. All the surrounding circumstances may have to be taken into consideration in determining whether the accused had the guilty mind. What is most important is that a man is deemed to have intended the natural consequences of his act. Hence mens rea cannot be said to have been absent, once it is found that the books concerned are obscene. 3 All 837 and (1868) 3 Q B 360, Rel. on. 1961 (1) Cri L J 371 : I L R (1960) 1 Cal 867 : A I R 1961 Cal 177 (178) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 292 — Prosecution under, for publication of obscene book—Specification of particular passages—Not necessary.

In a case where a publication is alleged to be obscene it is not necessary to specify any particular passage or passages, taking the same out of the context. If a charge was framed on such isolated passages, the accused in the case would at once take objection, and very legitimately, that the entire book or article from which these particular passages had been abstracted, should be considered as a whole. A passage out of the context may have one meaning while in relation to the context, it may not have the same meaning. I L R 1 Cal 356, Disting. ILR (1959) 1 Cal 678.

——S. 292—Proof of offence.

Conviction of keeper of press and printer and publisher — (Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 342) — (Press and Registration of Books Act (1867), S. 7).

Prosecution not proving that book was printed at particular press—Keeper of that press cannot be convicted on the mere evidence of the printed statement on the book as to where it was printed for it raises no presumption under S. 7, Press and Registration of Books Act and is no evidence against him. Nor can he be convicted on admission in his statement under S. 342, Cr. P. Code.

The presumption under S. 7, Press and Registration of Books Act, however arises against the person who is shown as the printer and publisher. 1953 Mad W N (Cri) 9 : 1953 Mad W N 17 : (1953) 1 Mad L J 144 : 1953 Cri L J 763 : 66 M L W 51 : AIR 1953 Mad 418 (419) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 10).

6. Obscene in part—Obscene as a whole.

——S. 292 — Portion of book only obscene — Entire book must be condemned as being obscene. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3567.

——S. 292 (a)—Obscene book — Even single passage in book may render it obscene.

A publication is an obscene publication even if only a part of it is obscene. And even a single passage in a book may render the book obscene. There lurks a danger in the doctrine of taking into consideration "the book as a whole." The application of this doctrine would mean that if in a book some portion, say, a few pages are clearly obscene and the rest inocuous, the book can pass muster, good overshadowing the bad. The fact, will, however remain that despite the large portion of the book being inocuous, the obscene portion would have the effect to deprave the mind of the reader. The result would be that obscenity could then parade under the protective cloak of a quantity of innocuous pages. (1952) 1 All E R 1256 and 3 All 837 and A I R 1961 Cal 177, Rel. on. 64 Bom L R 356 : 1962 Nag L J 406 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 741 : ILR (1962) Bom 538 : A I R 1962 Bom 268 (270, 271) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7, 8) (DB).

7. Publication.

——S. 292 — Private circulation not protected under the section — Putting obscene literature into circulation whether privately or otherwise is an offence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3567.

——S. 292—Publication of obscene matter.

Where a Tamil Quarterly Journal was intended to be sold to pruriently minded adolescents, all and sundry, in order to stir the sex impulses and lead to sexual and impure thoughts, and the publication was obscene on every page and unrelieved by a single ennobling thought, and the general character and dominant effect of the publication was obscene, impure, indecent, and manifestly tending to the corruption of youth and further it had no literary or artistic or medical, legal, political, religious or scientific character or importance :

Held, that the publication constituted obscene matter under S. 292, I. P. Code. It was plainly intended to be for the lewd, lascivious, and filthy minded who might secure it at street corners for a few annas. It did not become less smutty or more sanctified because the information had been copied from similar foreign works. (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 731 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 552.

8. Obscene matter—Defence.

——S. 292 — Defence — The fact that other publications which could have been subject of prosecution but were not made, is no defence. AIR 1965 N U C (All) 3537.

——S. 292—Obscene matter—Defence.

It will be no defence to say that one object of the books alleged to be obscene was to hold up to the reader contemporary life in the West. So also it is no defence to show that other books freely circulating now are not subject to any com. (1868) 3 Q B 360 and (1872) 7 C P 231 and H.R. & All 987 and and (1954) 2 Q B 18, Rel. on. 1961 (1) Cri L J 871 : 2 LR (1960) 1 Cal 967 : AIR 1931 Cal 177 (150) (Pt B) (Pr 78) (DB).

——S. 292 — Trial under for obscene publication — Plea that book is not in circulation is not acceptable. (LR (1959) 1 Cal 678.

9. Sentence.

——S. 292 — Sentence — While reducing sentence of Rs. 200 fine to Rs. 250, the following facts were considered : (i) that similar publications had gone unchallenged (ii) that accused would lose great deal of amount expended on publication by destruction of copies and (iii) that book contained undoubtedly some matter which was useful on sexual matters. AIR 1965 N U C (All) 3587.

——S. 292—Sentence—Accused a petty bookseller—Entire stock of obscene book seized — No likelihood of repetition of offence—Accused giving undertaking —Held, that though a fine of Rs. 200 was not severe and unwilled for, considering the circumstances of the case, the sentence of fine should be reduced to Rs. 50. 1966 Ker L J 771 : 1967 Ker L T 701.

10. Interference in revision.

——S. 292 — Charge under, need not indicate the alleged obscene passages when whole book is maintained to be obscene—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 221, 298.

Where a person is prosecuted under S. 292 no doubt it is better to indicate in the charge in what respect exactly the book is obscene. But if the accused is not prejudiced in his defence and the prosecution maintains that the whole book is obscene mere failure to mention particular passages is not a sufficient reason to interfere in revision. AIR 1962 Cal 651. Rel. on. : 1966 Ker L J 771 : 1967 Ker L T 701.

SECTION 292

——S. 292-A (Madras)—Publication of grossly indecent and scurrilous pictures in newspaper—Liability under section is absolute and prosecution need not prove that publication was intentional—Burden is on accused, the declared printer, to prove that he had no knowledge of or hand in such publication. 3 Mad 337 and 32 Mad. 335, Rel. on. (1930) 2 M L J 778 : AIR 1957 Mad 714, Distng. 1964 Mad L J (Cr) 604 : (1964) 2 Mad L J 440.

SECTION 294

——S. 294 — Obscene act — What amounts to — Annoyance to others — Proof of — Address to respectable young girls in public place suggestive of illicit sex relation with them — Amounts to obscene act within S. 294 — Production of girls as witnesses not necessary. (1963) All W R (H C) 216 : 1963 All Cri R 135 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 278 : AIR 1963 All 105 (106, 107) (Pt A) (Prs 8 to 10).

——S. 294—Offence under—Offender a youngster—Proper sentence.

An offence under S. 294 when proved, must be looked upon with utmost severity and should be punished. The maximum sentence of three months' rigorous imprisonment is called for in such cases and a lighter sentence would not meet the ends of justice even if the accused is a youngster of 16 or 17 years of age. 1963 All W R (H C) 216 : 1963 All Cri R 135 : (1963) 1 Cri L J 278 : AIR 1963 All 105 (107) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13).

——S. 294—Ingredients of offence.

One of the essential ingredients of the offence under S. 294, I. P. Code is that the act was done in or near any public place. Where the accused went to the complainant's house and abused him, this does not amount to an offence under S. 294. 1960 Nag L J (Notes) 111.

——S. 294—Evidence and proof.

Accused charged under the section for using obscene words towards school girl and teasing her on road—No eye-witness or informant (girl) produced by prosecution — Prosecution solely relying on the sole testimony of witness who had reached the spot after the incident and was told about the words used by the girl — Evidence purely hearsay and inadmissible—Offence under the section not proved. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. 1965 (1) Cri L J 564 : AIR 1965 J & K 37.

——S 294 — Obscene act or obscene words uttered in public places — Act or utterance will constitute offence only if annoyance is caused to others — Test to see if offence committed — Regard to be had to circumstances of case and to the class of society to which parties belong.

The offence punishable under S. 294, Indian Penal Code is essentially in doing an obscene act or in uttering obscene words in or near any public place to the annoyance of others. The word 'obscene' has been wisely not defined in the Penal Code inasmuch as notions about obscenity are found to change from time to time and depend considerably upon the class of persons whose susceptibility into the matter is involved. Filthy phrases are not per se obscene within the meaning of S. 294, Indian Penal Code. 1957 M P L J Note 62, Foll. and L R (1868) 3 Q B 371, Rel. on. 1956 M P L J (Notes) 95.

SECTION 294-A

——S. 294-A — Sanction for trial of offence under second part of S. 294-A—Trial and conviction under first part in the circumstances is without jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 230. 1957 Cri L J 1459 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 987.

——S. 294-A — Essentials — Offence under second clause — When complete — Actual carrying out of scheme—If necessary.

The offence under S. 294-A, I. P. C. consists in the publication of proposals and does not depend on whether the proposals were to be actually carried out or not. The intention of the Legislature appears to have been that the public should not be informed of such proposals. If the proposals are such as come within the mischief of the second clause of S. 294-A, Indian Penal Code, the offence is contemplated by publishing them and it does not matter whether the scheme is to actually conduct the lottery or to merely defraud the public. 1958 Andh W R 503 : 1957

Cri L J 1389 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 987 (989) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——S. 294-A—All chit transactions are not lotteries—What is lottery indicated — Where the agreement is unattended with the risk, speculation and uncertainty which make lotteries void, such a transaction can be held to be a good contract unaffected by the provisions of S. 294-A, I. P. C. — Chit fund held not lottery—Suit relating to recovery of deposit, winning or losses held maintainable — (Words and phrases—Lottery). See Contract Act (1872), S. 30. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 425.

——S. 294-A—Applicability.

Accused keeping a particular place as office for running a lottery — Lottery winning tickets were to be drawn out of urn, box or other receptacle at that place—Offence falls under the first part of S. 294-A. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 78.

SECTION 295

●——S. 295—'Object held sacred"—Matter of evidence.

Whether any object is held sacred by any class of persons, must depend upon the evidence in the case, so also the effect of the words in S. 295 "with the intention of thereby insulting the religion of any class of persons or with the knowledge that any class of persons is likely to consider such destruction, damage or defilement as an insult to their religion". S. Veerabadran Chettiar v. E. V. Ramaswami Naicker, 1959 Ker L T 45 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 21 : 1959 All Cr R 142 : (1959) 1 Mad L J (SC) 1 : (1959) 1 An W R (SC) 1 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 989 : 1959 Mad W N 14 : 1958 S C A 1116 : (1959) S C J 1 : 1959 S C R 1211 : 1958 Cri L J 1565 : AIR 1958 SC 1032 (1035) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

●——S. 295—"Object held sacred"—Duty of Court.

Section 295 has been intended to respect the religious susceptibilities of persons of different religious persuasions or creeds. Courts have got to be very circumspect in such matters, and to pay due regard to the feelings and religious emotions of different classess of persons with different beliefs, irrespcetive of the consideration whether or not they share those beliefs, or whether they are rational or otherwise, in the opinion of the Court. S. Veerabadran Chettiar v. E. V. Ramaswami Naicker, 1959 Ker L J 45 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 21 : 1959 All Cri R 142 : (1959) 1 Mad L J (S C) 1 : (1952) 1 An W R (SC) 1 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 989 : 1959 Mad W N 14 : 1958 S C A 1116 : (1959) S C J 1 : 1959 S C R 1211 : 1958 Cri L J 1565 : AIR 1958 SC 1032 (1035) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

●——S. 295—"Object held sacred"—What is sacred stated—Actual worship or consecreation of idol is not necessary.

Any object however trivial or destitute of real value in itself, if regarded as sacred by any class of persons would come within the meaning of the penal section namely, S. 295. It is not absolutely necessary that the object, in order to be held sacred should have been actually worshipped. An object may be held sacred by a class of persons without being worshipped by them. Apart from the question of evidence it is a well known fact that the image of Lord Ganesa or any objective representation of a similar kind, is held sacred by certain classes of Hindus even though the image may not have been consecrated. S. Veerabadran Chettiar v. E. V. Ramaswami Naicker. 1959 Ker L J 45 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 21 : 1959 All Cri R 142 : (1959) 1 Mad L J (SC) 1 : (1959) 1 An W R (SC) 1 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 989 : 1959 Mad W N 14 : 1958 S C A 1116 : (1959) S C J 1 : 1959 S C R 1211 : 1958 Cri L J 1565 : AIR 1958 SC 1032 (1035) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Ss. 295, 297, 149 — Charge under S. 295/149, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 297/149, Penal Code — Circumstances of case such that accused could be convicted under S. 147, Penal Code even in absence of charge—Mere absence of conviction under S. 147, Penal Code is no ground for setting aside their conviction where there has been no failure of justice. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535 (1). 1952 Cri L J 1551 : AIR 1952 All 878.

——Ss. 295, 149 — Defective charge — Charge under S. 295/149, Penal Code — No mention that accused were members of unlawful assembly will not vitiate the conviction thereon. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1952 Cri L J 1551 : AIR 1952 All 878.

— Ss. 295, 295A, 403, 427—Bull dedicated to Lord Shiva — If public property—Bull sold at auction by cattle pound keeper—Auction purchaser using it for his own purpose if commits any offence.

A dedicated bull is neither nullius propritas or res nullius nor property of a particular deity. Case law Ref.

A bull dedicated to Lord Shiva is public property unless the deity contemplated is in existence in the shape of a consecrated idol. A public bull has no licence to trespass upon private property. If if does so trespass it can be rightly sent to the cattle pound. When it has been sent to the cattle pound and no one appears to claim it on payment of charges cattle pound authorities can sell it by auction. If the bull is so sold under the Cattle Trespass Act the purchaser acquires proprietary title to it and the public lose their title to it. If the auction purchaser uses the bull for the purpose of ploughing his fields after puncturing its nose he does not commit offence under S. 427 or any other section of the P. C. 1951 All L J 656 : 1952 Cri L J 168 : 1952 All W R (HC) 104 : 1952 R D (HC) 26 : 1952 All Cr R 39 : AIR 1952 All 26 (26, 27) (Prs 2, 3).

——S. 295/511 — Applicability — Burning cigarette thrown on 'Viman' — Cigarette striking Viman but falling on the ground — Accused held guilty under S. 295/511.

Before a criminal act is complete there is first of all an intention followed by preparation and actual attempt and when the attempt is successful the substantive offence is committed. But where for certain unforeseen reasons beyond the control of the accused the offence is not actually committed he can be punished of the offence of attempt to commit such an offence.

Where the accused, a Mahomedan, threw a burning cigarette on the 'Viman' (an object held sacred by the Hindus) in a procession taken out by the Hindus but the cigaratte did not actually fall on the 'Viman' but struck the side and thereafter fell on the ground :

Held, that the accused was guilty under S. 295/511, Penal Code. 1955 Cri L J 1563 : AIR 1955 Bhopal 23 (24) (Prs 5, 7).

——S. 295—'Defile'—Meaning — Damaging idol by breaking them—Offence.

The word 'defile' in S. 295, Indian Penal Code, is not to be restricted in meaning to acts that would make an object of worship unclean as a material object but extends to acts done in relation to the object of worship would render such object, ritually impure. By contrast the words 'destroy' and 'damage' have obviously a physical or material significance but the expression 'defile' is to be construed ejusdem generis with the words 'destory' or 'damage'. Therefore, even damaging the idols by breaking them up would amount to defilement. 1959 Nag L J (Notes) 120.

——S. 295—'Class'—Meaning of.

A class of persons would certainly be a body of persons. But in order that a body of persons might form a class, there must be a principle of classification, and even two persons would be sufficient to form a class, if those two persons according to the principle of classification adopted, form a group distinct from any other group. (1956) 98 Cal L J 139.

——S. 295—'Place of worship'—What constitutes—Absence of dedication—Effect.

Where the lessor has not dedicated the site or the shed on it to the Hindu public of the locality to be used as a temaple or a place of worship, the mere fact that the lessee used the same as a place of worship and permitted such user by other Hindus of locality cannot in any way prejudice the proprietary right of the lessor over the property. The privilege enjoyed by the lessee and others in making use of this shed as a prayer hall could continue only as long as the arrangements continued. In such a case no valid dedication could have come into existence as a result of the unlawful act of the lessee. Such a user cannot make the place a place of worship within the meaning of S. 295. AIR 1941 Pat 492, Rel. on. 1961 Mad L J (Cri) 108 : 1960 Ker L J 673 : (1960) 1 Ker L R 728 : 1960 Ker L T 623 : I L R (1960) Ker 1045 : (1961) 1 Cr L J 82 : AIR 1961 Ker 28 (31) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 295—'Object held sacred'—Articles which were abandoned by a person cannot be said to be aricles held sacred by him. 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 108 : 1960 Ker L J 673 : (1960) 1 Ker L R 728 : 1960 Ker L T 623 : ILR (1960) Ker 1045 : (1961) 1 Cri L J 82: AIR 1961 Ker 28 (31) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 295 and 380 — Applicability — Essentials — Ingredients of offences.

Where in a property with buildings given on lease, a shed in the compound was used as a place of worship by members of the family of lessee and other Hindus of the locality and a decree for recovery of property and buildings was passed in favour of landlord, the assignee of decree took delivery through Court and destroyed the shed and carried away the pictures of Hindu Gods kept in that shed.

Held : The owner had not dedicated this particular site or the shed to the Hindu public of the locality to be used as a temple or a place of worship. The lessees who had no proprietary right over the property could not also make any such dedication. A lessee by his unilateral act cannot prejudice the lessor's proprietary right in the leasehold property. Even if it is assumed that the prayer hall was used by lessee and others as a place of worship and the articles therein had been held sacred by them the act of the accused in pulling down the shed and in moving the articles can amount to an offence under S. 295 of the Penal Code only if these acts were done by the accused with the intention of insulting the religion of any class of persons or with the knowledge that any class of persons is likely to consider such destruction, damage or defilement as an insult to the religion. After having got delivery of the property through Court, the accused must have honestly believed that he had the undoubted right to use the property as he liked. In pulling down the shed, he cannot be said to have intended or known that such an act will be an insult to the religion of others who had no manner of right over the property or the shed. Similarly he cannot be said to have committed an act of theft in removing the articles which were found in the shed even after the same had been delivered over to him through Court. Hence it follows that the essential elements of the offences punishable under Ss. 295 and 380 of the Penal Code, have not been brought home to the accused. 1960 Ker L J 673 : (1960) 1 Ker L R 728 : 1960 Ker L T 623 : ILR (1960) Ker 1045 : (1961) 1 Cr L J 82 : (1961) M L J (Cr) 108 : AIR 1961 Ker 28 (31) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 295 — Essentials of offence — 'Object held sacred' meaning of— Breaking of mud image of God Ganesh in public—No offence.

The ingredients of S. 295, I. P. Code are, first that a person must destroy, damage or defile any place of worship or any object held sacred by any class of persons and secondly he must have the intention of thereby insulting the religion of any class of persons or the knowledge that any class of persons is likely to consider such destruction, damage or defilement as an insult to their religion. If one of the ingredients is not present, the offence is not made out.

The word 'object' has to be interpreted ejusdem generis with a place of worship. The section would apply only to cases where an idol in a temple is sought to be destroyed, damaged or defiled. The words 'any object held sacred by any class of persons' even otherwise will apply only to idols in a temple or when they are carried out in procession on festival occasions.

Hence, the breaking in public of a doll or mud image of a deity (God Ganesh) does not amount to an offence under S. 295 I. P. Code, as it cannot by any means be called an object held sacred. 1955 Cr L J 1268 : 1955 Mad W N 245 : (1955) 1 M L J 368 : 68 Mad L W 250 : AIR 1955 Mad 550 (551) (Pr 4).

——S. 295 and 420—Scope.

Section 295 was intended to prevent wanton insult to the religious notions of a class of persons. S. 420.

Held on facts that the accused before they could be held guilty of the offences must be shown to have known (a) that the pollution of the kind alleged could be removed only by the performance of the purificatory ceremony known as the Mahasnan and (b) that the bhog offered by any class of sebaks other than puja pandas was polluted bhog and not mahaprasad. As it was in evidence that on previous occasions the pushpalak sebaks had been allowed to offer the seba puja and as the nitis had been inordinately delayed by the refusal of puja pandas on the day in question the accused when they thought that the pushpalaks may be asked to perform the remaining nitis could not be said to have either intended or knew it to be likely that the bhog offered by the pushpalak sebaks would be defiled and that the Hindu religion would thereby be insulted. In the above circumstances it could not also be held that the accused had any intention to deceive inasmuch as they might believe that the bhog had been offered to the deity by authorised persons and therefore was properly mahaprasad. Hence it could not be said that in offering it to the public for sale as such they committed the offence of cheating. 24 Cut L T 183 : 1958 Cr L J 1207 : I L R (1958) Cut 485 : AIR 1958 Orissa 220 (222 to 224) (Prs 6, 9, 10, 12, 13).

——S. 295—Essentials—Intention or knowledge.

Accused must act with intention mentioned in section—Carrying away of idol by shebait cannot constitute offence under section. A I R 1955 N U C (Raj) 4036.

SECTION 295-A

● ——S. 295-A—Scope—Validity—Section falls within protection of Cl. (2) of Art. 19 of the Constitution. See Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (a). 1957 Cri L J 1006 : AIR 1957 S C 620.

● ——S. 295-A— Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A, 99-B and 99-D—Sections are not ultra vires. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1960 Cri L J 256 : AIR 1960 All 715 (SB).

● ——S. 295-A—Intention—Books written by way of reply to pamphlets issued from opposite camp — If affords immunity.

It may be that the applicant wrote the books, alleged to come within the scope of S. 295-A as outraging the religious feelings of a class of Indian citizens, by way of a reply to the pamphlets issued from the opposite camp. But that circumstance will not by itself take out the books from the scope of S. 295-A.

The intention of the writer of a book must be judged primarily by the language of the book itself though it is permissible to receive and consider external evidence either to prove or to rebut the meaning ascribed to it. Ii the language is of a nature calculated to produce or to promote feelings of enmity or hatred, the writer must be presumed to intend that which his act was likely to produce. AIR 1927 All 649 (FB), Rel. on. Baba Khalil Ahamad v. State, ILR (1960) 2 All 113 : 1960 All L J 481 : 1960 All W R (H C) 389 : 1960 All Cr R 256 : 1960 Cr L J 1528 : AIR 1960 All 715 (718) (Pt C) (Pr 24) (SB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1662.]

● ——S. 295-A—Intention of writer—Ascertainment of—Truth of language—Relevancy.

In the case of books alleged to fall within the scope of S. 295-A, the truth of the language can neither be pleaded nor proved. The enquiry under S. 295-A has to be confined to the question whether there was malicious intention of outraging the religious feelings of a class of citizens of India. Even a true statement may outrage religious feelings. AIR 1927 All 649 (FB), Rel. on. Baba Khalil Ahmad v. State, ILR (1960) 2 All 113 : 1960 All L J 481 : 1960 All W R (H C) 389 : 1960 All Cr R 256 : 1960 Cri L J 1528 : A I R 1960 All 715 (718) (Pt D) (Pr 27) (SB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1662.]

● ——S. 295-A—'Malicious'—Meaning.

In order to establish malice as contemplated by S. 295-A, it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that the applicant bore illwill or enmity against specific persons. If the injurious act was done voluntarily without a lawful excuse, malice may be presumed.

Provocation received from supporters of the opposite view cannot be treated as a lawful excuse for writing the offensive books. AIR 1917 All 317 (1). Ref. Baba Khalil Ahmad v. State, ILR (1960) 2 All 113 : 1960 All L J 481 : 1960 All W R (H C) 389 : 1960 All Cr R 256 : 1960 Cr L J 1528: AIR 1960 All 715 (719) (Pt E) (Pr 32) (SB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1662.]

● ——S. 295-A—Scope—Books attacking character of Muawiya, religious leader and historical figure held in great regard by class of Sunni Muslims— Muawiya described as man of despicable character — Book written by way of reply to pamphlets issued from opposite camp—Language likely to outrage religious feelings of admirers of Muawiya — Publications held punishable under S. 295-A, Penal Code — Order for forfeiture of books under S. 99-A, Cri. P. Code, held justified. Baba Khalil Ahmad v. State, ILR (1960) 2 All 113 : 1960 All L J 481: 1960 All W R (H C) 389: 1960 All Cr R 256 : 1960 Cr L J 1528: A1R 1960 All 715 (719) (Pt F) (Pr 33) (SB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1662.]

● ——Ss. 295-A and 153 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 99-A, 99-D — Scope—In order to bring matter under S. 295-A it is not the mere matter of discourse or written expression but also the manner of it which has to be looked to. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1957 Cri L J 912 : AIR 1957 All 538 (SB).

● ——Ss. 295-A, 153-A—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A —Scope, indicated—If the author uses language which shows malice and is bound to annoy members of the community so as to degrade them in eyes of other classes, he would be promoting feelings of enmity and hatred. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1957 Cri L J 912 : A IR 1957 All 538 (SB).

——Ss. 295-A, 295, 403, 427—Bull dedicated to Lord Shiva— If public property — Bull sold at auction by cattle pound keeper—Auction purchaser using it for his own purpose does not commit any offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 295. 1952 Cri L J 168 : A I R 1952 All 26.

● ——S. 295 A — Defence—It is no defence to a charge under S. 99-A, Criminal P. C. or S. 295-A, Penal Code, that author had incidentally attacked other religious beliefs also—(Per Majority, Bhimsankaram, J ; Contra) — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1959 Cri L J 1280 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 572 (SB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1662.]

——S. 295-A—Constitution of India, Arts. 19 (1) (a), (2), 25 — S. 295-A is valid — Applicability and scope of S. 295 A — Intention of writer found clearly to outrage religious feelings of Muslims deliberately and maliciously — Offence under S. 295-A held made out. AIR 1957 S C 620 and A I R 1958 S C 1032, Rel. on. 1963 Mad W N 667 : (1964) 1 Mad L J 147: 1964 All Cr R 61 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 123 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 672 : AIR 1964 Mad 258 (259, 260) (Prs 6 to 10, 13).

——S. 295-A—Malice—What constitutes — Negation of bona fides — Persons with knowledge that his words are bound to offend religious faith of others iudulging in them—Malice implicit in such action.

Malice is one of the important ingredients of the offence under S. 295-A, Penal Code and it is necessary for the prosecution to establish that element by proper evidence. But it being a state of mind is often not capable of direct and tangible proof and in almost all cases has to be inferred from the surrounding circumstances. If a person knowing that his words, either uttered or written, are likely to offend or injure the religious faiths of others, indulges in them it would be difficult to hold that his act was done bona fide and without malice.

Where the accused who was charged under S. 295-A. Penal Code, admitted that the published articles were such as would offend the respective religious and religious beliefs of sections of Hindus and Christians, but contended that their publication was not proved to have actuated with malice.

Held, that the malice was naturally and necessarily implicit and apparent from the fact of the publication. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 465 : (1962) 2 Mad L J 210 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 146 (147) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5) (Mad).

——S. 295-A—Criticism of Roman church by accused —Accused using vile and abusive language likely to insult and offend followers of the church—Malicious intention of accused must be inferred from the language—Truth of criticism or sincerity of accused is no valid defence.

The accused who has criticized in a series of articles certain beliefs and practices of the Roman church in vile and abusive language likely to insult and offend the followers of that church is guilty of an offence under the section even if there is truth in his criticism and the criticisms arose out of his sincere conviction that those beliefs and practices were opposed to the teachings of Christ.

It is true that in countries where there is religious freedom a certain latitude must of necessity be conceded in respect of the free expression of religious opinions together with a certain measure of liberty to criticise the religious beliefs of others. But the liberty to criticise does not include a license to resort to vile and abusive language.

If the language used by the accused in the several articles transgresses the limits of decency and is designed to vex, annoy and outrage the religious feelings of others then, the malicious intention of the writer necessary for the offence under the section can be inferred from the language so consistently employed by him. AIR 1957 SC 620, Distinguished. The malicious intention has to be gathered primarily from the language used by the accused. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 572 (SB), Rel. on.

The truth of the allegations cannot be an effective defence to a charge under the section. Having regard to the purpose for which S. 295-A of the Penal Code has been enacted, a statement which would otherwise fall within the mischief of the section, cannot be taken out of it merely because it happens to be a true statement. AIR 1960 All 715 (SB), Relied on. Nor can the fact that the accused was sincerely opposed to the practices and beliefs criticised by him can constitute a just or lawful excuse for using foul and abusive language and take his case out of the mischief of the section. 40 Mys L J 271 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 259 : I L R (1961) Mys 1099 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 564 (566 to 568) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 7) (Mys) (DB).

——S. 295-A — Constitution of India, Art. 25 (1) — S. 295-A, Penal Code is a law creating an offence relating to religion in the interests of public order and is therefore not inconsistent with the right guaranteed by Art. 25 (1) of the Constitution to propagate religion AIR 1957 SC 620, Rel. on. 40 Mys L J 271 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 259 : I L R (1961) Mys 1099 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 564 (568) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB) (Mys).

——S. 295-A—Custom — Prohibition of sacrifice of cows by Moslems on festive occasions—Custom as to —Onus—Custom arising out of common consent and voluntary forbearance—If unreasonable or invalid.

None can dispute the legal right of Mahomedans to kill their own cows in privacy. It is a well-known rule of jurisprudence that every man is entitled to use his own property as not to injure the rights of another. Where the Mahomedans found their right to kill cows on festive occasions not on any custom but on their ecclesiastical law which enjoins the sacrifice of a camel, a buffalo, a cow, a sheep or any other quadruped, and the Hindus object to the exercise of such right by the Mahomedans on the ground of a local village custom, the onus, is on the Hindus to prove that the Mahomedans have lost their legal or ecclesiastical right under a valid custom, i.e., a custom which owes its origin to common consent and voluntary forbearance on the part of the Mahomedans of the village and was never disputed at law. Such agreement when it becomes a valid custom can no longer be regarded as a matter of choice, but acquires an obligatory element and a binding force. If the Hindu and Mahomedan inhabitants of a village who are close neighbours and whose houses are intermingled, enter into some agreement in order to maintain good social relations and neighbourly feelings between the two communities, under which out of deference to the religious susceptibilities of the Hindus and in order to respect their feelings, the Mahomedans knowingly and willingly desist from exercising their right to slaughter kine on Bakrid days or other festive occasions, a custom thus arising cannot be said to be unreasonable. ILR 30 Pat 606 : AIR 1951 Pat 583 (587) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

● ——S. 295-A—Charge under — It is no defence for accused to plead that he was writing a book in reply to one written by one professing another religion who has attacked his own religion. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 99-A. 1955 Cri L J 337 : AIR 1955 Punj 28 (SB).

● ——S. 295-A—Applicability.

In order to bring a case within S. 295-A it is not so much the matter of discourse as the manner of it. In other words, the words used should be such as are bound to be regarded by any reasonable man as grossly offensive and provocative and maliciously and deliberately intended to outrage the feelings of any class of citizens of India. Shiv Ram v. Punjab State, 1955 Cri L J 337; ILR (1954) Punj 1020; 56 Punj L R 354 : AIR 1955 Punj 25 (30) (Pt B) (Pr 34) (SB).

SECTION 296

——Ss. 296, 143—Unlawful assembly with common object of disturbing a religious gathering — Case of each accused not considered individually — High Court remanding case for fresh disposal according to law. See Penal Code (1860), S. 143. 1961 B L J R 347.

SECTION 297

——Ss. 297, 295, 147, 149 — Charge under S. 295/149, Penal Code — Conviction under S. 297/149, Penal Code — Circumstances of case such that accused could be convicted under S. 147, Penal Code even in absence of charge — Mere absence of conviction under S. 147, Penal Code is no ground for setting aside their conviction where there has been no failure of justice. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535 (1). 1952 Cri L J 1551 : AIR 1952 All 878.

——S. 297—Trespass inludes criminal as well as civil trespass. AIR 1952 All 878 (879) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

SECTION 298

——S. 298 — Intention :wounding religious feelings has to be gathered from circumstances — Muslim garlanding cow and parading it before sacrificing it at place open to public view — Carcass with horns and legs protruding carried on cot — Intention was to wound religious feeling of other community. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 9.

——S. 298 — Wounding religious feelings of section of public — Requisite intention — Proof — Performance of Bali puja of village deity by unauthorised person on inauspicious day to prevent spread of cattle epidemic — Mere invasion of Civil rights of others not sufficient — Abence of requisite intention — Accused held not guilty. 28 Cut L T 294 : 1962 All Cri R 204 : 1962 All W R (Sup) 47 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 212 : AIR 1963 Orissa 23 (23, 24) (Prs 4, 5).

——S. 298 — Intention to wound religious feeling must be deliberate and dominant.

The essence of the offence under S. 298 consists in the "deliberate intention" of wounding the religious feelings of other persons. A mere knowledge of the likelihood that the religious feelings of other persons may be wounded would not suffice nor a mere intention to wound such feelings would suffice unless that intention was deliberate. Where the intention to wound was not conceived suddenly in the course of discussion, but premeditated, deliberate intention may be inferred. Similarly, if the offending words were spoken without good faith by a person who entered into a discussion with the primary purpose of insulting the religious feelings of his listeners deliberate intention may he inferred. The deliberate intention has undoubtedly to be inferred from the words spoken, the place where they were spoken and the persons to whom they were addressed and other surrounding circumstances. A man is not free in a public place where passers-by who might not willingly go to listen to him knowing what he was going to say might accidentlly hear his words, or where young people might be present. A man is not free in such places to use coarse ridicule on subjects which are sacred to most people in the country. Intention which is a state of mind, can never be proved as a fact; it can only be inferred from facts which are proved. In doing particular act a person may have more intentions than one and to hold him guilty of the intention required for a particular offence it must be further shown that the intention specified in that offence was the real or dominant intention. Case law Ref.

The accused No. 1 had honestly believed that he was a god incarnate. On a Rath Jatra day, he and his consort were being taken out, seated on a Rath, in a procession on the village road. His disciples and the accused were dissuading people from going to Ratha Jatra of Lord Jagannath which they said "was only a piece of wood while he himself was a living god." Accused No. 2, a fanatical disciple of the accused No. 1, who was accompanying the procession of the Accused No. 1, saying the same thing, reinforced the argument by saying that "the village goddess and the deity were stone idols and that he could pass urine on them."

Held that the primary or dominant intention of accused No. 1 was to emphasise his own divinity and not to deliberately wound the religious feelings of others by insulting Lord Jagannath. The fact that some of the villagers who had implicit faith in the divinity of Lord Jagannath were likely to be offended by his remarks might show knowledge on his part but was not sufficient to show that he had that intention, much less deliberate intention. He was not therefore guilty of offence under S. 298.

Held further that the accused No. 2 was a man of the village and he knew very well that the village deity and the goddess were held in great reverence by some of his co-villagers. His dominant intention in saying that he could pass urine on them could not be anything else except to outrage their feelings and to administer such rude shock that they would fall in line with him and join in the worship of the accused No. 1. In his case the deliberate intention required for the purpose of S. 298, could be reasonable inferred and he was guilty of offence under that section. 1952 Cri L J 772 : 19 Cut L T 127 : ILR (1952) Cut 199 : AIR 1952 Orissa 149 (150 to 152) (Pt B) (Prs 6 to 9 and 11, 12).

——S. 298—Essence of offence.

The essence of the offence under S. 298, consists in the deliberate intention of wounding the religious feelings of other persons and a mere knowledge of the likelihood that the religious feelings of other persons may be wounded would not suffice nor a mere intention to wound such feelings would suffice unless the intention was delibrate. Where prosecution has not proved that the petitioners flourished their knives or exhibited some gesture while dividing the flesh with the deliberate intention of wounding the religious feelings of Hindus who were passing at a distance of at least 200 feet from the spot, it could not be inferred that the petitioners deliberately intended to wound the religious feelings of the persons who were passing by. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 442.

——S. 298—Complaint by Hindus under S. 298 on ground of bullock-slaughter in their right — Eye-witness—Minor discrepancies which would not affect merits of testimony — Concurrent findings of facts of lower Courts — Court of Revision should not interfere with appreciation of oral evidence. 1965 (2) Cri L J 134 : AIR 1965 Tripura 22.

——S. 298—'Religious feeling'—Meaning of—Feeling of Hindus against cow-slaughter is 'religious feeling' and not feeling of superstition. AIR 1954 S C 282, Rel. on. 1965 (2) Cri L J 134: AIR 1965 Tripura 22 (24) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——S. 298—Slaughter of bullock by Muslims in open public place in broad day-light on Bakr-id-Day — Sacrifice of cow on Bakr-id-Day is not obligatory act for Muslim and protection of fundamental right under Art 25 (1) cannot be availed of — Slaughter in open public place and in day-light and despite protests establishes 'deliberate intention' to offend religious feelings—AIR 1958 S C 731, Rel. on.

Held, on fact that the accused persons were not protected by Art. 25 (1) of the Constitution and the slaughter of the bullock in the open public place in broad day-light and despite protest by Hindus established that the accused persons had 'deliberate intention' to offend the religious feelings of the complainant and were guilty under S. 298 of Penal Code: AIR 1937 All 13, Rel. on; AIR 1942 Pat 471, Disting. 1965 (2) Cri L J 134 : AIR 1965 Tripura 22 (24, 25) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9).

SECTION 299

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 299).

1. Scope.
2. Intention and knowledge.
3. "With the intention of causing death".
4. "With the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death".
5. "With the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death".
6. Absence of knowledge or intention.
7. Explanation 2.

1. Scope.

——Ss 299 and 300 — Scope of.

Section 299 defines culpable homicide. Culpable homicide is of two kinds, culpable homicide amounting to murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder. Section 299 cannot be taken to be the definition of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, as the section clearly speaks of culpable homicide simpliciter. The scheme of the Penal Code is that first the genus 'culpable homicide' is defined and then murder, which is a species of culpable homicide is defined. What is left out of culpable homicide after the special characteristics of murder have been taken away from it, is culpable homicide not amounting to murder. For this reason the Code does not contain any definition of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. 1952 All L J 546 : 1953 All W R (HC) 63 : 1953 Cri L J 565 : ILR (1953) 2 All 885 : AIR 1953 All 203 (205) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss 299 and 300 — Distinction between, pointed out. 1952 Cri L J 1366 : AIR 1952 Bhopal 25 (29) (Pt H) (Pr 31).

——S. 299 — Injury to spinal cord by penknife stab — Death after seven months — Offence.

Any act is said to cause death, within the meaning of S. 299, when the death results either from the act itself, or from some consequences necessarily or naturally flowing from, that act and reasonable contemplated as its result. Where therefore without the intervention of any considerable change of circumstances the death is connected with the act of violence by a chain of causes and effects, the death must be regarded as a proximate and not too remote a consequence of the act of violence. No doubt when death is caused, by what the medical books often call remote or indirect causes, it might be difficult to establish the mens rea necessary for the offence of murder.

Where the accused stabbed his wife in her back by a penknife which injured her spinal cord and resulted in paralysis of the lower limbs and of the bladder, followed by cystitis and bedsore and, in turn, by death after seven months in hospital :

Held, that the death was caused by the injury and the accused was guilty of nothing short of murder. 1958 Ker L T 273 : 1958 Ker L J 424 : (1958) Mad L J (Cri) 481 : 1958 Cri L J 1021 : ILR (1958) Ker 545 : AIR 1958 Ker 207 (210) (Pt C) (Prs 16, 17, 19, 20) (DB).

——Ss. 299 and 300 — Injury — Nature of — Duty of prosecution — Nature of medical evidence.

In a trial for murder it is essential that the medical witness should be asked about the character of the injury on the deceased and whether it was an injury merely likely to cause death, or sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, it is of the greatest importance that, in murder cases, such facts should be carefully elicited by the prosecution from the medical officer who has held the autopsy. 1962 Mad W N 24 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 651 : AIR 1963 Mad 476 (477) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 299 — Culpable homicide — Essentials of.

The mental element in culpable homicide, i. e., the mental attitude of the agent towards the consequences of his conduct, is one of intention or knowledge. Motive is immaterial so far as the offence is concerned, and need not be established. There are three species of mens rea in culpable homicide : (1) An intention to cause death, (2) an intention to cause a dangerous injury, (3) knowledge that death is likely to happen.

If a person in performing some act either (1) expects death to be the consequence thereof; or (2) expects a dangerous injury (i. e. a bodily injury likely to cause death) to be the consequence thereof; or (3) knows that death is a likely consequence thereof, and in each case death ensues, his intention in the first two cases, and his knowledge in the third render the homicide culpable. A guilty intention or knowledge is thus essential to this offence, and if this does not exist the killing cannot amount to culpable homicide. The intention or knowledge necessary in order to render killing culpable homicide must be clearly proved by the prosecution which can usually be done by proof of the circumstances which prove the act or omission in question for the presumption is that a man knows the probable result of his conduct. The fact that such knowledge is accompanied by indifference whether death or serious injury is caused or not, or even by a wish that it may not be caused. makes no difference. 1959 Cri L J 993 : 1959 Mad W N 215 : AIR 1959 Mad 323 (325) (Pt A) (Prs 14 to 17) (DB).

——Ss. 299 and 300 — Law of homicide — Exceptions — Onus — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

The law of homicide is contained in Ss. 299 and 300, Penal Code. If the case falls under S. 300 then it is murder unless one of the exceptions to the section becomes applicable. The other defences to a charge of murder are contained in earlier sections which might make it excusable or justifiable homicide but in any case unless one of the various sections of the Penal Code applies the onus under S. 105 of the Evidence Act is not discharged. 1957 Cri L J 532 : AIR 1957 Punj 81 (83) (Pt C) (Pr 22) (DB).

2. Intention and knowledge.

——Ss. 299 and 300—Essentials of offence — Knowledge and intention—Distinction explained.

Knowledge and intention must not be confused. A man's intention has to be inferred from what he does. But there are cases in which death is caused and the intention which can safely be imputed to the offender is less grave. The degree of guilt depends upon intention and the intention to be inferred must be gathered from the facts proved. Sometimes an act is committed which would not in an ordinary case inflict injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, but which the offender knows is likely to cause the death. Proof of such knowledge throws light upon his intention. Every person is presumed to intend the natural and probable consequences of his act until the contrary is proved. It is therefore necessary in order to arrive at a decision as to an offender's intention to inquire what the natural and probable consequences of his acts would be. Once there is evidence that a deceased person sustained injuries which were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, the person, who inflicted them can be presumed to have intended those natural and probable consequences. His offence would fall under the third head of S. 300, Penal Code.

Under S. 299 there need be no proof of knowledge that the bodily injury intended was likely to cause death. Before deciding that a case of culpable homicide amounts to murder, there must be proof of intention sufficient to bring it under S. 300. Where the injury deliberately inflicted is more than merely 'likely to cause death' but sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, the higher degree of guilt is presumed. (1960) 1 Andh W R 313: 1960 Mad L J (Cri) 265 : 1960 Cri L J 303 : AIR 1960 Andh Pra 141 (143) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 299 and 300—Intention.

In deciding the question of intention in cases of murder, the nature of the weapon used, the part of the body on which the blow is given, the force of the blow and its number are some of the factors which assume importance. Death from a blow or blows on the head with a heavy sharp edged weapon is probably as a rule associated by the villagers with the breaking of the skull but the ignorance of the actual cause which will bring about the victim's death as a result of the blow or blows cannot affect the question of striker's intention. 1952 Cri L J 1366: AIR 1952 Bhopal 25 (29) (Pt I) (Pr 33).

—S. 299, Cls. 2 and 3, S. 300 Thirdly—Distinction between knowledge and intention.

Though there is difference between the Cls. 2 and 3 of S. 299 it is only one of degree. The former requires a particular intent. The latter is satisfied with knowledge only .'Intention' is the state of mind of a person with reference to certain consequences which result from his willed movements or omissions. An act is said to be intentional when it is done with a desire that certain consequences shall follow from a person's physical acts or omissions.

Where the accused stabbed the deceased in a very vulnerable part, e. g., the region of the chest, with sufficient force and with a dangerous weapon namely, a knife of sufficient dimensions, he can safely be credited with the knowledge that such an injury was substantially certain or inevitable and consequently he shall be deemed to have intended it. This is not a case therefore where it can be said that the foresight of consequences as to the injury on the chest was in the realm of "likelihood" only and not substantially certain.

The case of the accused falls under the third clause of S. 300. Examining the aforesaid clause, in the light of the third illustration, it is clear that if the accused intentionally gave the deceased a forceful stab wound at his back in the region of his chest with a knife causing an injury of the dimensions and magnitude which was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, and death resulted in consequence, he would be guilty of murder because both the ingredients of the third clause are fully satisfied. The accused would be guilty of an offence punishable under S. 302. AIR 1958 S C 465, Rel. on. 1962 M P C 206 : 1962 Jab L J 629 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 363 (367 to 369) (Prs 20 to 24, 27, 30) (Madh Pra).

——Ss. 299, 304, 326 and 324 — Intention or knowledge — Single stab in chest — Death not definitely traceable to injury — Offence held one under S. 324. AIR 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 5429 (DB).

3. "With the intention of causing death."

——S. 299—Intention of causing death.

Intention of causing death is not the intention of causing the death of any particular person. The first illustration to S. 299 shows that a person can be guilty of culpable homicide of a person whose death he did not intend. The same may be gathered from illustration (d) to cl. (4) of S. 300. 1955 Cri L J 1448 : AIR 1955 All 626 (629) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Ss. 299 and 300—Scope — Killing when constitutes murder.

Killing may be murder although it is not premeditated. Generally speaking the "murder" is killing with the intention of killing or inflicting a fatal injury and will cover Cls. (1), (2) and (3) of S. 300, Penal Code. Cases under Cl. (4) of S. 300, Penal Code, are very rare as will be evident from a perusal of illus. (d) to S. 300, Penal Code. 1952 Cri L J 1366 : A I R 1952 Bhopal 25 (29) (Pt H) (Pr 31) (Bhopal).

●——Ss. 299, 34 and 141—Applicability.

Under S. 299, Penal Code, the intention of causing death is necessary and unless that is proved the offence under that section and the subsequent sections cannot be said to have been committed. No doubt, often times it may be very difficult to procure direct evidence and the Court in proper cases may infer such an intention from the acts of the accused. The question of the application of S. 34, Penal Code may also come up for consideration in proper cases, as also the question of the application of S. 141, Penal Code, when five or more persons form an unlawful assembly with the common object and intention of committing murder. 29 Dec L R 105, Explained.

In order that S. 34, Penal Code, may be applicable there must be a common intention to commit some crime, that is something punishable under the Penal Code or any other law; if that is so, every one would be liable for the result of their joint act in committing the crime if the result was such as was likely to follow from their joint act in committing the crime intended and was not foreign to their common intention; and it is not necessary in order that S. 34, Penal Code should apply that the common intention should have been to cause, the particular result which came about in committing the crime. To convict the accused of an offence applying S. 34 it should be proved that the criminal act was done in pursuance of the pre-arranged plan. A I R 1951 All 21 and A I R 1945 P C 118, Rel. on. Hulliah v. State, 1954 Cri L J 454 : I L R (1953) Hyd 613 : AIR 1954 Hyd 54 (55) (Prs 5, 6, 7) (FB).

4. "With the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death".

——Ss. 299, 147, 300, 302, 304, 109 and 34 — Four accused armed with lathis and one with spear — Common object of beating deceased — One member, being struck by deceased, becoming incapable of taking further part — Rest beating deceased causing several injuries resulting in death — Offences committed by accused was of rioting, the moment they attacked the member who had become incapable of taking further part, as the result of the attack — Accused formed an unlawful assembly with the common intention of giving beating to the deceased. 1950 All L J 246 : 51 Cri L J 1133 : 1950 All W R (HC) 376 : I L R (1951) 2 All 141 : AIR 1950 All 418 (419) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 299 — Intention — Giving blow with hatchet — Death caused — Intention is to cause death or such injury as was sufficient, in ordinary course of nature, to cause death. AIR 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 2346.

——S. 299 — Applicability — Death not imminent result — Offence.

Obiter per Shiv Dayal, J. :— Ordinarily if a child of two years is thrown across a wall five feet high, death will not be the imminent result. If therefore, the child dies, the offence is not under S. 302 but under S. 304. 1960 Cri L J 480 : 1960 Jab L J 391 : 1960 M P L J 691 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 102 (104) (Pt D) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Ss. 299 and 300 — Intention of causing bodily injury as likely to cause death may be inferred from firing with fire arm at persons indiscriminately.

The act of indiscriminate firing with fire arm at persons is in itself so imminently dangerous that unless there is some other defence available, the offender must be held to have the intention of causing such bodily injury as he knew was likely to cause death or in the ordinary course of nature was likely to cause death. AIR 1935 Cal 530. Dissent from. 1961 Raj L W 82 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 134.

5. "With the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death."

●——Ss. 299, 300, 302, 304, Part 1—Applicability—Lathi blow—Knowledge of bodily injury likely to cause death—Sentence.

The accused administered six blows of the lathi on the person of the deceased and the injury No. 1 was the fatal injury. The injury No. 1 was kept under observation. The deceased however developed slight symptoms of compression of brain and these symptoms gradually increased and he became absolutely unconscious on the 28th March, 1952. Extra dural haemorrhage set in and proved fatal.

Held, that it was the accused who was responsible for inflicting the injuries which ultimately resulted in the death of the deceased. But the accused could not under the circumstances be held to have been actuated with the intention of causing the death of the deceased. But the accused no doubt knew that he would be causing such bodily injury as was likely to cause death and the offence committed by him would fall under S. 304, Part 1 and not under S. 302.

(The conviction under S. 302 of the Penal Code was converted to that under S. 304, Part 1 of the Indian Penal Code and the sentence of transportation for life meted out to the accused, was converted into a sentence of 10 years' rigorous imprisonment).

Inder Singh v. State of Pepsu, 1955 Cri L J 1014 : I L R (1954) Patiala 380 : A I R 1955 S C 439 (441) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10).

——Ss. 299, 300 fourthly and 304, Para. 2 — Applicability — Illustration (d) to S. 300 fourthly—Accused firing gun on members of opposite party—No intention of killing any particular person—One member hit and killed — Offence.

Where in the altercation that arose between the two parties, the accused fired his gun in the air to scare away the opposite party and in that act one stray pellet caused gunshot wound to a member of the opposite side which proved fatal, the accused must be deemed to have caused the death of the deceased with the knowledge that he was likely by such act to cause death but without knowing that the act was so imminently dangerous that it must, in all probability; cause death or such bodily injury as was likely to cause death, and commits an offence under Part 2 of S. 304. 56 Punj L R 339 : 56 Cri L J 305 : AIR 1955 Punj 13 (15, 17) (Pt B) (Prs 29, 30, 43) (DB).

——Ss. 299, 300, 302 and 304 — "Knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death."

Bitter enmity between accused and deceased — Accused inflicting as many as seventeen injuries on deceased, out of which eight were on head — Death due to shock and intracranial haemorrhage—Accused throwing body in a well—Accused using blunt sides of weapons—Held that in the circumstances the offence was one under S. 304, Part 2 and not one under S. 302. 1958 Cri L J 2815 : AIR 1958 Punj 262 (264) (Pt A) (Pt I.I) (DB).

——Ss. 299, 300, 304 and 304-A — Applicability — "With the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death"—Accused wrongfully confining deceased in a room — Accused by burying deceased in a lime quarry believing him to be dead, though in fact he was alive — Accused held guilty under S. 304-A although he had no guilty intention or knowledge within the meaning of S. 299 but the act of the accused was a rash act. 1960 Raj L W 4 : AIR (1960) 2 Raj 702.

——Ss. 299 and 300 —Circumstantial evidence—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

It will not be wrong or opposed to any rule of law to find the accused guilty of the offence charged against him merely on the strength of the circumstantial evidence provided that such evidence is so conclusive as to lead only to one conclusion, viz., that it establishes beyond doubt the guilt of the accused; when the circumstantial evidence is so thorough and convincing it can be accepted and acted upon as good as direct evidence.

The accused and the deceased were together in a toddy shop at Kalimuthan on the evening of 2-5-1124 till about 9 p. m. They left the shop together and both of them proceeded towards the south along the Arappamuttam lane. They were fully drunk and while they were proceeding along the lane they were engaged in a wordy quarrel by using foul and abusive language against each other. They were seen in that condition about at 9-30 p.m. by P. W. 5.A little later accused alone was seen going towards his house by P. W. 15. On the next morning the dead body of deceased was found in the Arappamuttam lane and at a point to the south of the spot where the accused and deceased were together seen by P. W. 5 and some distance to the north of the place where the accused alone was seen by P. W. 15. The clothes worn by the accused on the night were washed by him and spread for drying. In spite of such washing human blood was detected on these clothes when they were subjected to chemical examination after they had been recovered from the accused's house. A knife which belonged to the accused and which was in his possession on the night of 2-5-1124 and which was recovered from him at the time of his arrest, was also subjected to chemical examination and human blood was detected on that knife also. The accused was seen to have sustained certain minor injuries as described in the wound certificate on the night of 2-5-1124. These injuries were admitted by him to have been sustained at 10 p.m. on the crucial night and in the course of a struggle.

Held, that the cumulative effect of all these circumstances was to lead to the irresistible conclusion that the deceased sustained the minor injuries already mentioned, in the course of a tussle between himself and the deceased and that the fatal wound on the deceased was inflicted by the accused himself at that time. That several links in the chain of the circumstantial evidence were complete in themselves and it was impossible to explain them away in favour of the innocence of the accused. Thus the circumstantial evidence already adverted to conclusively proved and established the fact that it was the deceased who caused the death of the deceased. The offence committed was culpable homicide not amounting to murder, punishable under S. 304, Part I. 1952 Ker L T 723 : 1952 Cri L J 1804 : AIR 1952 Trav Co 305 (306) (Pt A) (Pt 4) (DB).

6. Absence of knowledge or intention.

C——S. 298 — Homoeopath administering poisonous medicines to patient without studying its effect — Death of patient — Petitioner held guilty under S. 304-A but not under S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304-A. 1955 (1) Cri L J 783 : AIR 1955 S C 331.

——Ss. 299, 300, 304, Part I and 34—Scope of first three clauses of S. 300 — Intention or knowledge a necessary ingredient of these clauses — Applicability of fourth clause—Wounds made on hands and feet with blunt—Death of deceased in hospital—Offence committed held was one under S. 299 and not under S. 300—Accused was punishable under S. 304, Part I and his assistants under that section read with S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1954 (2) Cri L J 171 : AIR 1954 Pat 334 (DB).

——Ss. 299 and 300 — Exchange of abusive language between accused and deceased on money matters — Being excited by abusive language and in moment of frustration accused striking deceased on head with halmudi lying nearby — No evidence of previous enmity — Offence held was culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

The accused asked the deceased to let him have the money that he owed to him. The deceased wanted more time and upon this the accused started cursing him. The deceased returned the abuse and this resulted into an altercation. The accused got excited by the exchange of abusive language which he had with the deceased and when he saw that the deceased was about to go away, in a moment of frustration he took up the halmudi lying nearby and struck it on the head of the deceased. The man fell down unconscious and succumbed to his injury in a few hours. There was no previous enmity between the two :

Held, that there being no previous enmity between the accused and the deceased, it could not even be held that the accused could have intended to cause a serious hurt. The accused picked up the weapon that he used from the spot and the peculiar shape of the weapon was such that even if used with both hands, it could not ordinarily result in causing a fatal injury. Accordingly it could not be held that the accused intended to cause an injury that he knew was likely to cause death or an injury that would be sufficient to cause death in all probability. All that could be held was that he knew that he was likely to cause death and since death was caused by him, the offence committed by him was culpable homicide not amounting to murder. AIR 1935 All 4; 16 Cri L J 129 ; 5 I P R 1932, Full. ; A I R 1949 Nag 15 and A I R 1934 Lah 741, Disting. ; A I R 1934 Lah 895, Dissent. (51) 3 Pep L R 144 : 1953 Cri L J 1189 : A I R 1952 Rajas 112 (118) (Pt 5) (DB).

7. Explanation 2.

——Ss. 299, 302 — Applicability — Accused causing deep injury on abdomen—Offence.

Where an accused causes several knife injuries on the person of the deceased, one on the abdomen being abdominal cavity deep, the injury is sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature and the accused is guilty of an offence punishable under S. 302.

The fact that better medical treatment could not be available at the local dispensary does not affect the nature of the offence. 1958 All L J 465 : 1958 All W R (HC) 503 : 1958 All Cr R 368 : 1958 Cri L J 1967 : AIR 1958 All 781 (782) (Pt 4) (Pt 10) (DB).

——S. 299, Expl. II — Applicability — In view of Expl. II to S. 299 and Cls. (2) and (4) of S. 300, it would be no defence at all to a charge of murder to plead that there was no proper medical treatment, if the injury which caused the death was inflicted with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the accused knew to be likely to cause the victim's death or that his act was so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability cause the victim's death or such bodily injury as was likely to cause death. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300 (2). 1959 Cri L J 931 : AIR 1959 Ker 230 (DB).

——S. 299, Expl. (2) — Death of victim due to fatal injury intentionally caused by accused — Offence is murder under S. 300 'thirdly'—Absence of immediate medical attention does not affect nature ot offence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300 thirdly. 1965 (2) Cri L J 42 : AIR 1965 Mad 261 (DB).

——Ss. 299, :Expl. 2, 302, 307, 34, 511 — Attempt to commit crime—Elements—Distinction between preparation and attempt — Attempt to murder—Accident intervening and resulting in death—Effect—Husband and wife determined to commit suicide, jumping into well with infant child—Child slipping from hands of mother as accused jumped, falling in and drowned — Accused held guilty only of attempt to murder child and not of murder — See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1961 (2) Cri L J 781 : AIR 1961 Mad 498 (DB).

——S. 299, Expl. 2—Death caused by bodily injury.

Where somebody strikes a man causing a wound and that wound in the ordinary course gives rise to certain disease which is the immediate cause of the death, the person causing the wound cannot be exonerated and he will be guilty either for murder or culpable homicide not amounting to murder according to the circumstances of each case, even if death could have been prevented by the deceased by resorting to proper remedies and skilful treatment. He would also be responsible for the death of the deceased if the latter was negligent in a way that he carried on as usual without taking the necessary precautions which a man in his position would have done. But, if something also intervened between the injury and the death due to distinct set of circumstances, such as gross neglect, or resorting to improper remedies, that disease not being the natural and probable result of the injury itself, the person causing the injury cannot be held responsible for culpable homicide amounting or not amounting to murder. 16 W R (Eng) 319, Rel. on. 1956 Pat L R 317.

——Ss. 299, Expl. II, 300—Applicability — Injury to side of head of old man of 75 with chopper such as to cause exposure of tissue of brain—Death resulting — Offence — Plea of death being due to negligence and carelessness of doctors — If open — Conviction under S. 301.

To break open the side of the head of a peron with a chopper in such manner as to expose the tissue of the brain in that region cannot be held to be a minor injury inflicted without any intention to cause death and without the knowledge that death was likely to be caused as a consequence of that injury, especially when the victim is an old man of about 75 years of age. When the medical evidence is to the effect that the injury was serious and that death was due to coma from inflammation of the brain membrane and substance consequent on the injury to the head the case must be held to be a typical one of murder falling under S. 301, Travancore Penal Code, (S. 302, I. P. C.) and it cannot be said that there was no intention to cause death or no knowledge that it was likely to cause death. To hold in such a case that death was caused not by the injury but as a result of the negligence and carelessness of the doctors who attended upon the victim is directly opposed to the provisions of Explanation II to S. 298, Penal Code, and such a defence is not open to the accused. The case falls easily within the purview of S. 301, and the accused is liable to conviction for murder under S. 301, Travancore Penal Code, and not merely under S. 326 of that Code. 1950 Ker L T 257 (Trav-Co).

SECTION 300

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 300.)

1. Scope.
2. "Act by which death is caused."
3. Knowledge and intention.
   See also Penal Code (1860), S. 299.

3A. Common intention.
   See Note 20 and Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

4. Intention of causing death.
5. "Secondly."
6. "Thirdly."
7. "Fourthly."
8. Exceptions — General.
   See also Note 24 and Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.
9. Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation.
   - (A) Sudden provocation.
   - (B) "Whilst deprived of his power of self-control."
   - (C) Adultery causing provocation.
   - (D) Words and abusive language causing provocation.
   - (E) Provocation not grave and sudden.
   - (F) Proviso 1.
   - (G) Provocation — Burden of proof.
10. Exception 2 — General.
    See also Penal Code (1860), Ss. 96-106.
    - (A) "In the exercise of the right of private defence."
    - (B) No right of private defence.
    - (C) "Exceeds the power given to him by law."
    - (D) "Without any intention to do more harm than necessary."
11. Exception 3.
12. Exception 4 — Scope and applicability.
    - (A) "Without premeditation."
    - (B) "In a sudden fight."
    - (C) "In the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel."
    - (D) "Without offender's . . . .unusual manner."
13. Exception 5.
14. Murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Distinction.
    See also Penal Code (1860), Ss. 299 and 304.
15. Murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Illustrative cases.
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 304.
16. Murder or hurt.
17. Motive.
    See also (1) Evidence Act (1872), S. 5.
    (2) Penal Code (1860), S. 302.
18. Framing of charge under S. 302, Penal Code.
19. Charge to jury.
    See also Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297.
20. Sections 34 and 300, Penal Code.
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.
21. Sections 149 and 300, Penal Code,
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 149.

22. Evidence — General.

23. Onus of proof.

See also (1) Notes 8 and 9 (G).
(2) Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

24. Benefit of doubt.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

25. Circumstantial evidence.

See also (1) Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367.
(2) Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

26. Proof of death.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 302 — Corpus delicti.

27. Dying declaration.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 32.

28. Evidence of poisoning.

29. Evidence as to possession of property.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

30. Confession.

31. Evidence, value of — Illustrative cases.

1. Scope.

——S. 300 — Intention — Proof — Conviction on statement made in Court — Accused's act done under duress and threat of instant death — Absence of common intention between accused and others who killed — Offence fell under S. 201. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 342. 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1966 All 192 (FB)].

——Ss. 300 and 299 — Scope of—Section 299 defines culpable homicide. Culpable homicide is of two kinds, culpable homicide amounting to murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder. Section 299 cannot be taken to be definition of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, as the section clearly speaks of culpable homicide simpliciter. The scheme of the Code is that first the genus "culpable homicide" is defined and then murder, which is species of culpable homicide, is defined. What is left out of culpable homicide after the special characteristic of murder is taken away from it, is culpable homicide not amounting to murder. For this reason the Code does not contain any definition of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1953 Cri L J 565 : ILR (1953) 2 All 885 : AIR 1953 All 203 (DB).

——S. 300 — Scope and effect — Whether offender should intend injury to be sufficient to cause death — Offender to face natural consequences of injuries inflicted.

While discussing the nature of the offence committed by the accused in the instant case, the Court proceeded to discuss the ambit of S. 300, Penal Code, and held that the test laid down in (1960) 1 An W R 313, is opposed to the observations in AIR 1958 S C 465. The Court, in the instant case, held that the observations in (1960) 1 An W R 313 being opposed to the Supreme Court decision, were rightly dissented from in an earlier Division Bench judgment in Cr. A. Nos. 654, 689, 694 of 1959 and 12 of 1960, (1960) 1 An W R 313 : (1960) M L J (Cr) 265, Diss. from; AIR AIR 1958 S C 465, Foll. (1962) 1 Andh L T 181 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 86 : (1962) 1 Andh W R 84.

——Ss. 300, 304 — Applicability — Right approach to cases.

The right approach in cases of culpable homicide is to first find out if the offence falls under any of the four clauses of S. 300, Penal Code. If it is so found the trial Judge is then to see if the case is covered by one of the exceptions to the section. The offence if proved to fall under one of the exceptions would be punishable under S. 304, Part I, otherwise, it would be murder punishable by S. 302, Penal Code. If, on the other hand, the requirements of S. 300 are not fulfilled and the offence does not fall under any one of its four clauses, the Court should proceed to see whether it was committed with one of the intentions mentioned in Part I or only with the knowledge described in Part II to S. 304. (1951) 3 Pepsu L R 558.

——S. 300 — Person convicted for murder and sentenced to transportation of life—Sentence afterwards remitted conditionally under S. 401 (3), Criminal P. C. and accused released — Accused committing murder of two women after release — Accused is liable to be convicted under S. 303. See Penal Code (1860), S. 303. 1965 (1) Cri L J 473 : AIR 1965 Punj 156 (DB).

2. "Act by which death is caused".

——S. 300—Applicability — Illegal omission — Husband not providing his wife necessaries for existence —Death of wife — Liability of husband, discussed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 32. 1959 Cri L J 368 : A I R 1959 Punj 134.

——Ss. 300, 299 — "With the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death"—Accused wrongfully confining deceased in a room — Accused by bringing deceased in lime quarry believing him to be dead though in fact he was alive — Accused held guilty under S. 304-A although he had no guilty intention or knowledge within meaning of S. 299 but the act was a rash act. 1960 Raj L W 4 : I L R (1959) 9 Raj 762.

3. Knowledge and intention.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 299.

● ——Ss. 300 and 40 — Motive, intention and knowledge — Distinction pointed out. See Penal Code (1860), S. 40. 1956 Cri L J 919 (2) : A I R 1956 S C 488.

——S. 300—Intention and knowledge—Distinction.

The words used in S. 300 connote intention and not knowledge. Knowledge as contrasted with intention would more properly signify a state of mental realisation in which the mind is a passive recipient of certain ideas and impressions arising in it or passing before it. It would refer to a bare state of conscious awareness of certain facts in which human mind might itself remain supine or inactive.

On the other hand, intention connotes a conscious state in which mental faculties are roused into activity and summoned into action for the deliberate purpose of being directed towards a particular and specified end which the human mind conceives and perceives before itself. Mental faculties which might be dispersed in the case of knowledge are in the case of intention concentrated and converged on a particular point and projected in a set direction. The difference between the shades of the meaning of the two words is fine but clear, and the use of the one in place of the other by the Legislature cannot be without purpose. The words used by the Legislature must, therefore, be given their full effect. I L R (1956) 1 All 84 : 1955 Cri L J 884 : A I R 1955 All 321 (325) (Pt B) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 299 — Ingredients of—Knowledge and intention — Distinction explained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1960 Cri L J 303 : A I R 1960 Andh Pra 141 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 307, 323 and 325 — Lathi not a lethal weapon—Knowledge imports certainty, not probability under S. 300 (2), Penal Code—In the absence of such knowledge conviction under S. 307, Penal Code is improper.

Held, that in view of the injuries the offence could not be one under S. 323, Penal Code. Having regard to the fact that the assailants had used lathis as weapons of offence, it could not be said definitely that their intention was to cause death. Ordinarily, lathis are not held to be lethal weapons even if used over the head of the victim The word 'knowledge' in clause (2) of S. 300, Penal Code, imports a certainty and not merely a probability. In the absence of any material on record to attribute to the accused any such 'knowledge' as was required to bring their act within the mischief of S. 307, Penal Code, they could only be attributed with the knowledge of natural consequences that follow the assault by a lathi. They could be convicted under S. 325 read with S. 34, Penal Code. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 290.

——Ss. 300, 302 — Applicability — Death of suspect caused by torture of police officer — Applicability of S. 302 is not excluded. 1955 Cri L J 1385 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 153 (155) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——S. 300—Intention or knowledge of causing death —Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101-103.

Under S. 300 the prosecution has to prove that the act by which death is caused was done with a certain intention or knowledge and as long as the prosecution does not prove such intention or knowledge, the accused is entitled to acquittal and there is no onus on him to take or prove any special plea of accident or necessity. Where, as in the offence of murder, intent or knowledge is an ingredient of a crime, there is no onus on the accused to prove that the act was accidental. 29 T L R 350, Rel. on.

Where death is caused by injuries from a fire-arm, the prosecution has to show not only that the firing was intentional or voluntary but also that the firing was prompted by any such intention or knowledge as is mentioned in S. 300. If either of these ingredients is not proved, the offence committed is not murder whatever else it may be. A I R 1949 Lah 85, Rel. on; 1935 A C 465, Ref. I L R (1950) Punj 155 : 1954 Cri L J 22 : A I R 1953 Punj 295 (296) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

3-A. Common intention.

See Note 20 and Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

4. Intention of causing death.

●——Ss. 300, 84, 302 — Unsoundness of mind—Epileptic insanity—Must exist at the time of commission of the act — Held on facts that the murder was committed not in a sudden mood of insanity. Criminal A. No. 3 of 1957 decided by Madhya Pradesh High Court (Gwalior Bench), Reversed. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1961 (2) Cri L J 43 : A I R 1961 S C 998.

●——S. 300 — Applicability — Attempt to commit robbery by five or more persons — Accused running away without committing robbery on hue and cry—Villagers chasing accused—One accused, killing one of chasers when they had gone at considerable distance — Offence is one of dacoity punishable under S. 395—Murder not being committed in the course of dacoity within the meaning of S. 396, the murder was a separate transaction — Accused could be convicted under S. 302 though not under S. 396. See Penal Code (1860), S. 395. 1957 Cri L J 416 : A I R 1957 S C 320.

●——S. 300—Intention of causing death.

Where the accused set fire to the cottage in which the deceased was sleeping and before doing so took care to lock the door from outside so that the servants of the deceased who were sleeping outside would be of no help to the deceased and further took active steps to prevent the villagers also from bringing any succour to the person who was being burnt alive.

Held, that the intention of the accused to kill the deceased was clear from these facts. Rawalpenta Venkalu v. State of Hyderabad, 1956 Cri L J 338 : A I R 1956 S C 171 (174) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Ss. 300 (1) and 302—Accused who was asked by his brother to quit his house, following him with axe in hand—Accused hitting deceased on his head, neck and back resulting in instantaneous death—Accused must be presumed to have intended to cause his death—Case falls under S. 300, Cl. (1)—Exception (1) to S. 300 held did not apply as provocation was not grave—Offence is murder. A I R 1950 Ajmer 75 (76) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8).

——S. 300—Serious injury on vital part with dangerous weapon.

Causing of a serious injury on a vital part of the body of the deceased with a dangerous weapon, like an axe, must necessarily lead to the inference that the accused intended to kill the deceased. He is therefore, clearly guilty of murder. 1952 All L J 400 : 1952 All W R (HC) 544 : 1952 All Cri R 143 : 1953 Cri L J 804 : ILR (1954) 2 All 65 : AIR 1953 All 373 (374) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 300, Firstly and Thirdly.

Where injuries are inflicted by a number of persons with the intention of killing a person and death ensues as a result of the injuries, it is a case of murder falling under the first clause of S. 300—Even if the common object of the assembly is not to kill that person still the case will fall under Cl. (3) of S. 300, if the injuries actually inflicted show that they are sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death—The persons who cause such injuries must be held to have inflicted them intentionally. 1952 All Cri R 162 : 1952 All L J 682: 1952 All W R (H C) 615 : 1952 R D (HC) 352 : 1953 Cri L J 450 : AIR 1953 All 189 (191) (Pt A) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 300—Stabbing old unarmed person with knife on vital part of body.

When a person stabs another person, more especially an old unarmed person, with a knife or any other sharp-edged cutting weapon on a vital part of the body, like the abdomen, he obviously intends to cause death or to cause such bodily injury as is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death; and he would be guilty of murder as defined in S. 300. 51 Cri L J 1040 : (LR (1951) 1 All 673 : AIR 1950 All 380 (382) (Pt A) (Pr 19) (DB).

——S. 300—Madness is a question of fact—Held on facts and circumstances of the case that the accused was really of unsound mind at the time of occurrence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1965 (1) Cri L J 138 : AIR 1965 Andh Pra 28 (DB).

——S. 300—Accused without excuse firing a gun at crowd and killing one of the crowd — No premediation or design to kill any particular person—Offence is murder. (In this case it was found that the accused had taken deliberate aim at the deceased). 1962 (1) Cri L J 394 : AIR 1962 Andh Pra 166 (171) (Pt D) (Pr 41) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention—Man is presumed to intend consequences of his own act—Accused piercing spear through vital part (right side of head) of deceased which alone was sufficient to cause death in ordinary course—Accused held intended to cause death. AIR 1955 NUC (Andhra) 3840 (DB).

——S. 300—Intention to cause death—Sword blows aimed at head.

The offence committed would be of murder not only when the act is done with the intention of causing death, but also if it was done with the other intentions or knowledge enumerated in S. 300.

Where blows with a sword were aimed at the head no other inference can be drawn except that the intention of the accused was to cause the death of the person or to cause such bodily injuries as were in his knowledge likely to cause death. 1956 Madh B N. J (Bhopal) 159.

——S. 300—Intention to cause death—Administering aconite.

A person who administers to another aconite producing fatal results within 3 hours cannot but have the intention of killing him. In any case, he must be taken to know that his act is so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and if death ensues, he is guilty of murder, notwithstanding that his intention may not have been to cause death. AIR 1943 Mad. 396, Distinguished. 1953 Cri L J 1900 : AIR 1954 Him Pra 11 (16) (Pr 6) (Pr 13).

——Ss. 299 and 302—Intention to cause death, when to be inferred—Death sentence when to be passed.

The nature of the weapon used by the first accused, the vital parts of the body which were attacked, and the number and nature of the injuries all indicate that the intention of the first accused when he stabbed the deceased was to cause his death. Therefore he has to be convicted for murder.

Per Ange Chandy, J.—Choice as to which of the two punishments prescribed by S. 302 of the Penal Code for murder is the proper one to be awarded, will depend upon the particular circumstances of each case, but broadly speaking, murder for gain and other sordid motives, murder committed in connection with sexual offences or with deceit, premeditated, cold blooded murder committed with unusual brutality and such murders that appear to be particularly heinous as to arouse judicial indignation, may be considered as some of the cases deserving the extreme penalty. Of course these cases are not exhaustive, but merely illustrative.

Per Govinda Menon, J.—It is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule of universal application. Each case must be decided on its own merits and punishment should be awarded suitable to each case. There can be no general rule defining the classes of cases in which lesser sentences can be imposed, though from time to time certain circumstances have been recognised by the Judges as valid grounds for imposing such sentences. In the absence of any extenuating circumstances, whatever, the sentence of death would be the appropriate sentence. The Court whose duty it is to award punishment must exercise its own discretion, but the discretion must be exercised judicially and not arbitrarily. (1963) M L J (Cr) 193 : 1962 Ker L T 1171 : M L R (1962) 1 Ker 548 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 396 (538, 539) (Prs 10, 11, 17) (Ker) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention to cause death—Proof.

Where the serious nature of the injury inflicted on the vital part of the body of the deceased, the weapon used and the words proved to have been spoken to by the accused at the time of stabbing the deceased made it clear that the accused had inflicted the stab injuries with the intention of causing death the accused must be held guilty of murder. (1963) 1 Ker L R 47.

——Ss. 302, 304—Murder—Intoxicated condition of accused—Effect.

Where the degree of the accused's intoxication falls short of a proved incapacity in the accused to form the necessary intent to constitute murder, the offence is murder. AIR 1957 SC 482, Relied on. 1958 Ker L R 356: 1959 Ker L J 940 : (1959) Ker L T 814 : 1960 Cri L J 247 : AIR 1960 Ker 120 (122) (Pr. B) (Pr. 7) (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Accused killing mother during period of epileptic insanity — Act is saved by S. 84. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1959 Cri L J 78 : AIR 1960 Ker 24 (DB).

——S. 300—Intention of causing death—Evidence of.

Where the accused goes at dead of night to the house of his wife who has left him and then after locating her with the aid of his torch-light, deliberately stabs her in the middle of the back with such force as to penetrate the spinal cavity and cause damage to the cord, the intention could only have been to kill her. 1951 Ker L T 978: 1953 Ker L J 424: 1953 Mad. L J (Cri) 481 : 1953 Cri L J 1321 : M L R (1953) Ker 545: AIR 1953 Ker 207 (209) (Pr B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1, 302—Intention of causing death — Heavy stones thrown on vital parts of deceased—Accused must be deemed to have intended the consequences—Exception 1 does not apply. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 4315 (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Accused believing deceased to be witch striking her with axe—Accused is guilty of murder. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 2880 (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Deliberate and premeditated murder—Preparation of burying dead body in house—Plea of insanity raised—Plea held not established. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1959 Cri L J 944 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 258 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 307, 34, 299, Exception 2, S. 511 — Attempt to commit crime—Elements — Distinction between preparation and attempt—Attempt to murder—Accident intervening and resulting in death—Effect—Husband and wife, determined to commit suicide, jumping into well with infant child—Child slipping from hands of mother as accused jumped, falling in and drowned — Accused held guilty only of attempt to murder child and not of murder. 1961 Mad. L J (Cri) 487 : 1961 Mad W N 423 : (1962) 2 Mad L J 293 : 74 Mad L W (Cr) 1 (1961) (SC) (Cri L J 481 : AIR 1961 Mad 493 (500, 501) (Prs 10, 12, 15) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34—Applicability—Repeated stabbing on the back of deceased causing death—Offence was murder. Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1960 Cri L J 358 : AIR 1960 Mad 125 (128) (Pr A) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Applicability — Intention of causing death—Offence falls under S. 302, however the injury was caused. AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 5867 (DB).

——S. 300—Scope of — Drunkenness—When proper defence.

State of intoxication envisaged in S. 86 is not in any way different from that contemplated in the preceding section — Difference between two sections is regarding consequences depending on whether drunkenness is involuntary or voluntary—Absence of qualifying words in S. 86 cannot lead to the inference that even if the intoxicity is not such as to impair the reason of the offender the requisite intent cannot be presumed—Presumption that every man is presumed to intend the consequences of his acts can be rebutted by showing that the person could not have formed the intent by reason of his drunkenness—It is only in cases where it is proved that the prisoner was in such a condition of drunkenness that his reason was "dethroned" and was incapable of forming any intention, that the defence of drunkenness would be available—Held, that offence was one of murder and that his voluntary drunkenness did not avail him to reduce the offence to one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 85. 1954 Cri L J 972 : AIR 1954 Mad 532 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 85, 88 — Intoxicated person killing another by repeated stab wounds—Requisite knowledge and intention can be presumed — Offence cannot be reduced to one under S. 304 — Evidence Act (1872),

S. 14). See Penal Code (1860), S. 85. 1953 Cri L J 1587 : AIR 1953 Mad 827 (DB).

——S. 300 — Intention to cause death — Four sons armed with deadly weapons attacking deceased on the roof of a house—Deceased being unarmed jumping from the roof to save himself and dying — Held, attack by the accused persons must be held to be the direct cause of death of the deceased. 1960 Cri L J 1222 (2) : 38 Mys L J 365 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 575 : AIR 1960 Mys 228 (229) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention to cause death — Separate acts of accused following closely upon and connected with one another—Death caused — All accused may be convicted of murder—Separate charges not necessary.

If the intention is to kill and a killing results and if the acts of the accused follow closely upon one another and are intimately connected with one another, the action being continuous it is impossible to resolve the incidents into two or three wholly separate actions. It cannot be said that these separate actions were inspired by different motives or committed for different reasons. The accused must be treated as having done one act with the intention of causing death; they are therefore guilty of murder. In such a case it is inappropriate to frame separate charges for separate incidents. AIR 1931 Lah 27, Rel. on. 38 Mys L J 365 : 1960 Cri L J 1222 (2) : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 575 : : AIR 1960 Mys 228 (229) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention to cause death—Acts, resulting in death done with reckless indifference or ignorance whether deceased was alive or dead—Accused is guilty of murder. 38 Mys L J 365 : 1960 Cri L J 1222 (2) : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 575 : AIR 1960 Mys 228 (229) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302—Murder—Intention of accused is to be gathered from injury inflicted by him.

The intention of an accused person can be gathered only from the act which has been actually committed by him. When a deadly weapon (such as a Jambia) is used with so much of violence as to result in an injury whereby the chest cavity is punctured, the left lung is injured and the heart is cut, it cannot be said that the offence committed by the accused can be any offence other than that of murder. Therefore, it has to be taken that by dealing the blow with the weapon the accused intended to cause this injury. AIR 1933 Pat 508; AIR 1934 Lah 741; AIR 1956 S C 488; AIR 1958 S C 465, Rel. on. 39 Mys L J 665 : 1961 Mad L J (Cri) 705 : ILR (1960) Mys 446.

——Ss. 300, 302—Accused illiterate, aboriginal boy of 16—Woman killed at night under impression that she was witch—No proof of his awareness that he was killing human being — Accused held not guilty of murder under S. 302. 30 Cut L T 163 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 105 (106) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (Orissa) (DB).

——S. 300—Liability under Ss. 34 and 149—Distinction—Joint liability—Essentials — Inference of intention to form a plan for an offence—Carrying of weapons of every day use — Sufficiency. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. (1961) 3 O J D 315.

——Ss. 300, 86, 304 — Offence by drunken person—Presumption as to guilty intention—Law discussed—Accused held capable of forming necessary intention to constitute murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 86. 52 Cri L J 1136 : AIR 1951 Orissa 354 (DB).

——S. 300—Murder—Terrific blow on head fracturing skull like coconut shell—Inference stated.

Where the accused gave the deceased a terrific blow on the head in consequence of which the skull got fractured like a cocoanut shell and the unfortunate man died, it was held that the only inference that could be made was that the person who gave such a blow either intended to cause the victim's death or else intended to cause such bodily injury as would be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. 52 Cri L J 1136 : AIR 1951 Orissa 354 (354) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302—Intention to cause death — Brutal injuries even after falling of deceased after first blow.

Where the evidence discloses that the deceased had fallen after the very first blow inflicted by the accused by the blunt side of a tabla and that even after the fall, the accused inflicted further assault on his person with the sharp edge of the tabla, that can be only consistent with the intention of finishing him to death; and hence the accused is clearly guilty under S. 302, I. P. Code. ILR 33 Pat 397 : 1955 Cri L J 577 : AIR 1955 Pat 161 (166) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention—Presumption as to intention.

A gandasa is deadly weapon and a person who strikes a blow with it on the head of another from the sharp side with such violence as to cut through the skull and brain and thereby causes his death can be presumed to have done so with the intention of causing death or an injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. ILR (1953) Patiala 123 : 55 Cri L J 362 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 51 (52) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention.

Where injury on the neck given by a formidable weapon cut through the trachea and large vessels and resulted in instantaneous death, the intention of the assailant could have been no other than to take the life of the victim and the assailant could be convicted under S. 302. 1953 Cri L J 1835 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 193 (194) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention of causing death—Presumption from nature of injuries.

The repetition of Barchha blows with violent force on vulnerable and vital parts of the body can easily give rise to the presumption that the intention of the assailant was to take away the life of his victim, 1953 Cri L J 1748 : ILR (1952) Patiala 59 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 186 (186) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——S. 300—Intention of causing death.

Every sane person must be presumed to intend the result that his action normally produces and if a person hits another on a vulnerable part of the body and death occurs as a result of the blow or blows inflicted by him, the intention of the accused was no other than to take the life of his victim and the offence committed by him amounted to murder. (1951) 3 Pessu L R 635.

——S. 300 — Intention of causing death — Presumption of.

Every person is presumed to intend the natural and probable consequences of his act. A man who repeatedly stabs a defenceless person with a dangerous weapon in the abdomen and chest and pierces almost all the vital internal organs like pleura, peritoneum, liver, lung and spleen, can hardly be heard to say that he did not act with the intention of causing bodily injury which was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. The fact that accused acted without premeditation or under some sort of provocation would not be of much importance when his intention was so clearly evidenced from the result of his actions. ('51) 3 Pepsu L R 558.

——S. 300 — Person committing house-breaking by night — Murder committed during occurrence — Punishment under S. 302 cannot be escaped. See Penal Code (1860), S. 460. 1964 (1) Cri L J 353 : AIR 1964 Punj 130 (DB).

——S. 300 — Murder by running a man over by tractor.

Where the accused stood to gain by the death of the deceased and the litigation between the parties showed that they were on terms of enmity with each other and the deceased was run over deliberately by a tractor driven by the accused:

Held, that this was not a case of accident and that the accused had committed an offence under S. 302. 1956 All W R (Sup) 71 : 58 Pun L R 318.

——S. 300 (1) and (2) — Small intestine of deceased torn in track of bullet—His left kidney found smashed in course of bullet injuries suffered by deceased in abdomen—Act of accused falls within S. 108 (1) and (2) of S. 300. 1955 All W R (Sup) 91 : (1955) 57 Pun L R 379.

[Reversed on another point in A I R 1956 S C 528, with the result that the conviction was set aside and the appeal by the accused was allowed.]

——S. 300 — Death of X by strangulation by K in room of S—Body removed by K and S and concealed —S held guilty under S. 201 and not S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 211. 1963 Raj L W 214 : ILR (1963) 13 Raj 199.

——S. 300 — Civil P. C. (1898), S. 367 — Offence of murder—Judgment should contain finding on intention. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. A I R 1955 N U C (Sau) 1646 (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Assault on police party in pursuance of criminal conspiracy—Murder of Inspector and fatal injuries on others — Conviction upheld. See Penal Code (1860), S. 120-B. 56 Cri L J 414 : A I R 1955 Trav Co 33 (DB).

——S. 300 — Intention—Premeditation — Absence of, cannot be presumed — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 114). A I R 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 4115 (DB).

case, the proper section under which the appellant should have been convicted was S. 304 (1) and not S. 302. Kapur Singh v. State of Pepsu, ILR (1955) Patiala 113 : 1956 Cri L J 1265 : AIR 1956 S C 654 (655) (Prs 3, 4).

● ——S. 300—Applicability — Direction to comrade to fire indiscriminately at hostile group — Death of member of group.

If the direction given by the accused to his comrade is a direction to fire indiscriminately as against the members of the hostile group, he would clearly be guilty if his direction brings about a shooting and death of any one or more out of the members of that group. Mathurala Adi Reddy v. Hyderabad State, 1956 Cri L J 341 : A I R 1956 S C 177 (179) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

● ——S. 300 — Lathi blow — Knowledge of bodily injury likely to cause death — Sentence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1955 Cri L J 1014 : A I R 1955 S C 439.

——S. 300—Secondly—Applicability.

Clause (2) of S. 300 refers to the case of a person with a peculiar physical condition and to the accused having knowledge of that peculiarity. A I R 1949 All 342, 1950 A L J 75, A I R 1932 Oudh 186, Not foll. 1952 All L J 546 : 1953 All W R (HC) 63 : 1953 Cri L J 565 : ILR (1953) 2 All 885 : A I R 1953 All 203 (206) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 — Accused without excuse firing a gun at crowd and killing one of the crowd—No premeditation or design to kill any particular person—Offence is murder. A I R 1956 S C 177, Foll. AIR 1959 S C 465, Applied. 1962 (1) Cri L J 394 : A I R 1962 Andh Pra 166 (171) (Pt D) (Pr 41) (DB).

——S. 300—Death caused by bodily injury — Intention—Proof.

What a man intends can be judged from what he does or says. It is a general rule that a man is presumed to do what is the natural consequence of his act. Law presumes in such a case that he intended the natural and probable consequences of his act or in other words that he intended to inflict bodily injury to the deceased and the bodily injury intended to be inflicted was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. Even if there was no intention to cause death, the act would still amount to murder if the act is done with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause death of the person to whom the harm is caused. 1960 Ker L J 609.

——Ss. 300 (2), 300 (4), 299, Expl. II, 304 Part I — Intention.

Where, a grown up person in the full possession of his senses stabs another person on the stomach in the region of the umbilicus inflicting a wound 3" long and causing the intestines to protrude through it that injury is found by medical officers to be a 'very serious injury' with 'very little chance of survival', and when death also has occurred as a result of that injury, it would amount almost to judicial misconduct to hold that there was no intention to cause such bodily injury as the assailant knew to be likely to cause the death of the victim or that he had no knowledge that his act was so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death. Further, in view of Explanation II to S. 299 and clauses (2) and (4) of S. 300, Penal Code, it would be no defence at all to a charge of murder to plead that there was no proper medical treatment if the injury which caused the death was inflicted with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the accused knew to be likely to cause the victim's death or that his act was so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability

5. "Secondly."

● ——S. 300, Secondly — Intention to cause bodily injury likely to cause death—Inference.

Where there were 24 injuries on the person of the deceased and of them 21 were incised and they were either on his head or the neck or the shoulders and on the forearms:

Held, that all the parts of the body on which the injuries were caused, except perhaps the last, were vital parts of the body and the accused who caused those injuries with deadly weapons must be fixed with the intention of causing such bodily injury or injuries as would fall within S. 300 of the Penal Code. B. N. Srikantiah v. State of Mysore. 36 Mys L J 505 : 1959 Mad W N (SC) 24 : 1958 Cri L J 1251 : 1958 S C J 918 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 721 : 1958 All W R (Sup) 118 : 1958 All Cr R 426 : 1959 S C R 498 : A I R 1958 S C 672 (674) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

● ——S. 300 and S. 304, Part I—Applicability.

The appellant inflicted as many as 18 injuries on the arms and legs of the deceased with a gandasa while his companion held the head of the deceased. None was caused on the vital part of the body. The motive for the crime was to wreak vengeance on the deceased for what his son had done to the appellant's son. The Sessions Judge convicted him under S. 302 and passed a death sentence.

Held, that the fact that no injury was inflicted on any vital part of the body of the deceased goes to show in the circumstances of the case that the intention of the appellant was not to kill the deceased outright. He inflicted the injuries not with the intention of murdering the deceased, but caused such bodily injuries as he must have known would likely to cause death having regard to the number and nature of the injuries. Under the circumstances of the cause the victim's death or such bodily injury as was likely to cause death. 1958 Ker L J 236 : ILR (1958) Ker 448 : 1958 Ker L T 1179 : 1959 Cr L J 981 : AIR 1959 Ker 230 (232) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304 (2)—Applicability — Accused killing deceased by gun shot — No evidence of sudden quarrel—Accused held guilty of murder—Sentence in circumstances held should be lesser. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3742 (DB).

——S. 300 — Secondly — "Intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause death"—Injury by arrow discharged at deceased in stomach—Intention can be assumed. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 1552 (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability — Accused beating deceased with lathi and then cutting body in pieces — Offence.

The deceased was beaten by the accused with a lathi giving her two blows upon receiving which she fell down. These blows had fallen on the upper portion of the left pinna, which was not a vital part of the body. There was no reason for the accused to believe that she was dead. He then cut the body in three pieces and buried them.

Held, that as the accused did not exercise any due care and caution and since he acted under a sudden impulse, he must be deemed to have knowledge of the consequence arising from his act and that the accused was guilty of the offence of murder. 1959 M P C 704 : 1959 M P L J 1211 : 1960 Jab L J 77 : 1960 Cr L J 605 : I L R (1959) Madh Pra 300 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 132 (134) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 300 — 'Secondly', S. 302 — Applicability—A stabbing his wife in lungs and intestines — Injuries resulting in death — A complaining about her illicit intimacy with his cousin — Offence — Sentence — Commutation—(Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 402.)

Where it was proved that it was A who stabbed his wife as a result of which she died soon after; that there were four incised wounds some of which punctured the lungs and the small intestines; that A was complaining that his wife was on terms of illicit intimacy with his cousin and he had, therefore, on that account a strong motive to do away with her;

Held, that it was a clear case of murder; (ii) that the fact that she was on terms of illicit intimacy with A's cousin and that A killed her in a fit of passion, would only be a motive for committing the offence but could not be a ground for awarding the lesser of the penalties prescribed by law; (iii) that it was for the Government to consider whether it was a fit case for commuting the sentence to one of transportation for life. (1956) 1 Mad L J 206 : 1955 Madh W N 1042 (2) : (1956) Cri L J 1004 : AIR 1956 Mad 425 (426, 427) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——S. 300, Cl. 4 — Injuries on deceased showing that weapon used for commission of offence must be dangerous weapon — Accused must be presumed to know that if such weapon is used, he would cause death of victim—Act of accused amounts to murder even though there was no intention to cause death of deceased. (1960) 38 Mys L J 603.

——Ss. 300, 302, 328—Accused administering poisonous substance to another resulting in his death — Normally accused must be expected to know the effect of the poisonous substance — If death resulted, accused must be held to have intended to cause death or at least knew that death was the imminent result of the poison administered — Accused guilty under S. 302 and not S. 328. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1957 Cri L J 553 : AIR 1957 Pat 462 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Applicability — Death of suspect caused by torture of police officer.

The application of S. 302, cannot be excluded in a case where the police officer, in the zeal of his duty to trace out an offience, commits torture on the suspect and thereby causes his death. 1955 Cri L J 1385 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 153 (155) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——S. 300—Intention of accused in causing injury—Fatal injury in chest by knife blade of 9 inches — Intention—Offence held murder.

Dealing a blow with a lathi even though on a vital part like the head does not necessarily establish that the accused intended to cause death but where a knife with blade of 9 inches is thrust in the chest of the deceased causing a great damage inside the chest, it must be concluded, in the absence of any reasonable explanation, that the accused intended to inflict the injury which he did and in such a case the offence would be murder under S. 302. AIR 1958 SC 465; Cr. A. No. 194 of 1963, dated 5-11-1964 (SC), Foll.

Once the intention to cause bodily injury actually found to be present is proved, the rest of the enquiry is purely objective and the only question would be whether as a matter of purely objective inference, the injury is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. (1965) 67 Punj L R 1175.

——S. 300 — Intention of causing bodily injury as likely to cause death may be inferred from firing with fire arm at persons indiscriminately. See Penal Code Code (1860), S. 299. 1961 Raj L W 82 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 134.

——S. 300 — "Secondly" — Case on facts. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 497 (DB).

6. "Thirdly".

——Ss. 300 thirdly, 34 — Scope and applicability of the sections—Test of offence under clause thirdly — Intentional causing of bodily injuries sufficient in ordinary course to cause death — Several persons intentionally causing such injuries resulting in death of the victim — All persons are guilty of murder under clause thirdly of S. 300 read with S. 34, Penal Code, Anda v. State of Rajasthan, (1965) 2 S C W R 948 : AIR 1966 SC 148 (151, 152) (Prs 7, 12, 13).

——S, 300, Thirdly — Applicability — Essentials to be proved — Inference of intention from nature of injury — AIR 1916 Bom 191 : I L R 41 Bom 27, Overruled.

The prosecution must prove the following facts before it can bring a case under S. 300 "thirdly"; First, it must establish, quite objectively, that a bodily injury is present; secondly, the nature of the injury must be proved. These are purely objective investigations. Thirdly, it must be proved that there was an intention to inflict that particular bodily injury, that is to say, that it was not accidental or unintentional, or that some other kind of injury was intended. Once these three elements are proved to be present, the enquiry proceeds further and, fourthly, it must be proved that the injury of the type, just described, made up of the three elements set out above, is sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature. This part of the enquiry is purely objective and inferential and has nothing to do with the intention of the offender. Once these four elements are established by the prosecution (and, of course, the burden is on the prosecution throughout), the offence is murder under S. 300 "thirdly". It does not matter that there was no intention to cause death, or that there was no intention even to cause an injury of a kind that is sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature (there is no real distinction between the two), or even that there is no knowledge that an act of that kind will be likely to cause death. Once the intention to cause the bodily injury actually found to be present is proved, the rest of the enquiry is purely objective and the only question is whether, as a matter of purely objective inference, the injury is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

The question whether the intention is there or not is one of fact and not one of law. It is true that in a given case the enquiry may be linked up with the seriousness of the injury. AIR 1916 Bom 191 ; I L R 41 Bom 27, Overruled. Virsa Singh v. State of Punjab, 1958 Cri L J 818 : 1959 Mad W N (S C) 34 : 36 Mvs L J 723 : I L R (1958) Punj 1528 : 1958 S C J 772 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 579 : 1958 All W R (H C) 572 : 1958 All Cr R R 373 : AIR 1958 S C 465 (467, 468) (Prs 12, 13, 15 to 17).

● —S. 300, 'Thirdly' — "Injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death"—Meaning of.

Although the medical evidence does not say that any one of the injuries on the body of the deceased was sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature, it is open to the Court to look into the nature of the injuries found on the body of the deceased and infer from them that the assailants intended to cause death of the deceased. Even if none of the injuries by themselves was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause the death of the deceased, cumulatively they may be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause his death. Brij Bhukhan v. The State of Uttar Pradesh. 1957 Cri L J 591 : AIR 1957 S C 474 (477) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

● —S. 300 — Injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

Whether a particular injury is of the fatal or non-fatal type is a question of fact in each case.

Where as a result of the blow with a penknife on the chest of the deceased, the stomach and the omentum had herniated together and the omentum protruded through the hole which the injury had made and the pleura and the diaphragm were both cut and the injury had extended right up to the abdominal cavity :

Held, that the injury was sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature. Narayana Nair v. the State of Trav-Co. 1956 Cri L J 278; 1956 Ker L T 92; 1956 All W R (Supp) 28 : AIR 1956 S C 99 (101) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

—S. 300, thirdly — Conviction under — Intention to cause injury actually inflicted and sufficient to cause death is sufficient — Such intention can be presumed from circumstances — Conviction under S. 302 held proper.

For the conviction under the third clause of S. 300, I. P. C., it is not necessary for the prosecution to establish that he had an intention of causing such bodily injury as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. All that is necessaey for the prosecution is to establish that the accused had the intention of causing the injury which was actually caused to the deceased, and that that injury was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

Once the intention to cause the bodily injury actually found to be present is proved, the rest of the enquiry is purely objective and the only question is whether as a matter of purely objective inference, the injury is sufficienl in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. Once the existence of an injury is proved, the intention to cause that injury will be presumed unless the evidence of the circumstances warrant an opposite conclusion. If the accused prove or if the totality of the circumstances justify an inference that the accused intended to cause only some superficial injury and that it was purely accidentally or unintentionally that the injury was caused; then of course the offence would not be of murder.

Held, on facts that the accused must be presumed to have intended to cause the injury that was actually inflicted and which resulted in death of the victim and that the accused was guilty of an offence under S. 300, I. P. C. AIR 1958 S C 465, Rel. on. 1962 All L J 347 : 1962 All W R (H C) 277 : 1962 All Cri R 172 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 641 (644) (Pr 28) (All) (DB).

—S. 300 — Injury sufficient to cause death.

Where the spear thrust was given such force that it went deep into the abdominal cavity, penetrated bladder:

Held, that in view of the forceful nature of the spearthrust, the Court would be on safe ground in assuming that the accused knew that the injury inflicted would be likely to cause death or that it would be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death or that it must in all probability cause death. AIR 1956 S C 116, Foll. I L R (1958) 2 All 426 : 1959 All W R (H C) 609 : 1959 All Cr R 510 : 1959 Cri L J 419 : AIR 1959 All 255 (257) (Pt A) (Pr 14) (DB).

—Ss. 300 and 299 — Accused causing deep injury on abdomen — Injury sufficient to cause death in ordinary course of nature — Accused is guilty of murder — Fact that better treatment could not be available at the local dispensary does not affect the nature of offence. See Penal Code (1860). S. 299. 1958 Cri L J 1367 : AIR 1958 All 791 (DB).

—Ss. 300, Exceptions 2 and 4, 302, 149 —Deceased and his men ploughing field — Accused armed with lathis claiming share in field — Deceased and his men denying claim and refusing to get out — Attack by accused with lathis causing death — Offence.

While the deceased and the other members of his family were ploughing their field, the accused appeared there armed with lathis. One of the accused called upon the deceased and his men to unyoke the bullocks, claiming a share in the field. The deceased and his men replied that he had no such share and refused to go out. Thereupon all the accused assaulted the deceased and his men, some of the accused striking the deceased over the head with great vigour resulting in death. The medical evidence showed that the death was due to the injuries on the head which caused concussion of the brain. It was found that the field belonged to the complainant's party.

Held, that (1) Exception 2 to S. 300 could not help the accused because the complainant's party was absolutely unarmed and no attack had been made by the complainant's party over the accused. The right of private defence of property also did not exist as the property belonged to the complainants who were in lawful possession. (2) Nor could the accused take advantage of Exception, because there was neither a sudden quarrel nor a sudden fight between them and the deceased, and, the accused took undue advantage and acted in a cruel or unusual manner. The presumption that in the absence of accident or negligence, every person must be presumed to intend the natural consequences of his acts, left no room for doubt that the deceased intended to cause bodily injuries sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, and the accused must, by virtue of the third clause of S. 300, be held liable for culpable homicide amounting to murder punishable under S. 302 read with S. 149, I. P. C. AIR 1953 All 203 and AIR 1956 All 668, Rel. on. 1958 All W R (H C) 79 : 1958 All Cr R 60.

—S. 300, Thirdly and Exceptions 1 and 4 — Accused giving lathi blows to a woman—Death caused on the spot by laceration of liver and rupture of spleen—No sudden provocation—Offence.

In view of the circumstances in which the attack was made by the accused the use of a dangerous weapon like a lathi for it, the ferocity with which the blows were struck, the fact that the victim was a woman, the delicate parts of her body which were hit, and the presumption that in the absence of accident or negligence every person must be presumed to intend the natural consequences of his acts left no room for doubt that the deceased intended to cause bodily injuries sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause her death. Since her death was due to the laceration of her liver and the rupture of her spleen, which were the direct result of his lathi blows, he must by virtue of the 3rd Clause of S. 300, I. P. C., be held liable for culpable homicide amounting to murder. AIR 1953 All 203, Rel. on, AIR 1931 Cal 261 (SB) and AIR 1954 S C 706, Distinguished. 1956 All W R (HC) 532 : 1956 All L J 643 : 1956 Cri L J 1272 : A I R 1956 All 668 (669) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Cl. 3 and 304, Pt. II — Applicability — Presumption of intention to cause injury— When rebutted.

Section 304, I. P. C., applies to cases where the injury caused is not of the higher degree of likelihood which is covered by the expression 'sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death' but is of a lower degree of likelihood which is generally spoken of as an injury 'likely to cause death' and such a case does not fall under Cl. (3) of S. 300, I. P. C. A I R 1953 All 203, Rel. on.

To bring an act within the four corners of Cl. (3), it is not enough that the injury actually inflicted is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. It is further necessary that the offender should intend to cause an injury of this nature. The one does not conclusively prove the other.

The doctrine that a man intends the natural consequences of his act cannot be carried too far. The true rule is that where the injury caused is not the result of accident or of negligence a strong presumption arises that the injury caused was intended to be caused though this presumption may be rebutted by other circumstances, e.g.. the motive of the accused, the nature of the instrument of attack, the time and place of attack, the position and condition of the deceased, the number of injuries, the force used etc. AIR 1953 All 203, Foll. 1955 Cr L J 884 : ILR (1956) 1 All 84 : AIR 1955 All 321 (323 to 325) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10. 12, 20) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304 — Applicability — Death, result of injuries inflicted — Injuries sufficient, in the ordinary course of nature to cause death —Murder— Enhancement of sentence for offence under S. 304, Part II.

Held : The bodily injuries inflicted resulted in death and when there was an intention to kill (as found) the offence was clearly one of murder. Even if there was no such intention to kill, the nature of the serious injuries inflicted sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death raised a presumption that they caused them intentionally and the offence then would fall under Cl. 3 of S. 300. The case in any view fell under S. 300 ; it did not fall under S. 304, second part. If the Judge was of opinion that the injuries were not sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death but were merely likely to cause death then the offence fell under S. 304, Part I.

But without an appeal against acquittal in exercise of the powers of revision, the High Court could not by itself convict the accused under S. 302 or S. 304, Part I; notice of enhancement of punishment having been already issued the maximum punishment of S. 304, Part II, was awarded. 1952 A L J 682 : 1952 All Cri R 162 : 1953 Cri L J 450 : 1952 A W R (HC) 615 : A I R 1953 All 189 (191) (Pts A, B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 300 , 147, 299, 302, 304, 109 and 34 —Four accused armed with lathis and one with spear — Common object of beating deceased — One member, being struck by deceased, becoming incapable of taking further part — Rest beating deceased with lathis and spear causing several injuries resulting in instantaneous death — Held that accused formed an unlawful assembly with common intention of giving beating to the deceased — They further committed offence of rioting — The accused other than the one who had become incapable of taking part being disabled by the deceased were guilty under S. 302 read with S. 34 — The accused who was disabled was guilty under S. 304 read with S. 109. See Penal Code (1860), S. 147. 51 Cri L J 1133 : A I R 1950 All 418 (DB).

——S. 300, thirdly—Scope.

A person inflicting injuries sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature will be guilty under S. 300, I. P. C. unless it can be shown, or reasonably deduced that the injury was accidental or otherwise unintentional. A I R 1958 S C 465, Foll.; A I R 1960 Andh-Pra 141. Not approved. Cr. A. 654, 689, 694 of 1959 and 12 of 1960 (A. P.) Rel. on. 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 86 : (1962) 1 Andh W R 84 : (1962) 1 Andh L T 181.

——S. 300, Thirdly — Accused hurling a big stone at the head of his wife from close quarters causing fracture of skull bone, concussion of brain and resulting in her death immediately—Accused must be held to have intended to cause injury on the head a vital part of the body—Injuries caused in all probability resulting in her death — Offence falls within third clause of S. 300. 1963 (1) Cri L J 120 (122) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (Him-Pra).

——Ss. 300, Thirdly, 302 — Injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

The accused went to the veranda where the deceased was standing and attacked him with darat causing a very serious injury on the left side of the head. As a result of the impact the deceased fell from the veranda to the courtyard below. He succumbed to his injuries within an hour or so. The darat was a very formidable heavy weapon. According to the Civil Surgeon the incised injury was sufficient in itself to cause death in the ordinary course of nature.

Held, that the accused must be held responsible for causing death. There were no mitigating circumstances; there was no ground for provocation. It may be that the deceased abused the accused in filthy language but that would not amount to grave and sudden provocation. The accused was clearly guilty of an offence under S. 302. 1955 Cr L J 688 : A I R 1955 Him Pra 20 (22) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——S. 300, Thirdly—Injury with heavy sharp cutting weapon—Artery and veins severed —Victim dying of haemorrhage within 30 minutes — Accused held intended to cause injury as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 3682.

——Ss. 300, 302, 304—Bodily injury sufficient in the course of nature to cause death — Deep abdominal injury with knife—Peritonitis cauing death is natural result —Conviction under S. 302 proper.

Courts have to distinguish between two types of cases ; first, where the intervening cause of death like peritonitis is only a remote and a rather improbable consequence of the injury ; then it can be said that the injury is done which may in particular circumstances result in death but which may not in ordinary course of nature be likely to lead to it.

Secondly, there is the type where the so-called complication which is the intervening cause of death is itself a practically inevitable sequence to the injury. In that event the probability is very high indeed amounting to practical certainty; that is, death is a result in due course of natural events. A deep abdominal thrust with a knife followed by injury to the internal organs is clearly a case of murder under S. 302 and not merely of culpable homicide. A I R 1956 S C 116, Dist.; A I R 1949 Nag 19 Rel. on. 1961 Jab L J 1414 : 1962 M P L J (Notes) 12 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 195 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 244 (245) (Prs 5, 7, 8) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Clause 'thirdly' and 299 Explanation (2)—Injury need not necessarily be caused on vital part of the deceased—Victim died due to fatal injury caused by accused—Offence is murder under S. 300 'thirdly'—Absence of immediate medical attention does not affect nature of offence.

Where it was established beyond doubt that the stab wound in question was inflicted by the accused, that the injury was necessarily fatal and death of the victim was due to shock and haemorrhage following the injury :

Held that all the essential ingredients of the offence of murder under S. 300 thirdly, had been made out and hence the offence was punishable under S. 302. The fact that the stab was not given at a vital part of the body did not mean that the offence was not murder. It is not a requirement of S. 300 that injury must be to a vital part of the body. The third part of S. 300 coming thirdly of the section brings within the definition of murder all acts done with the intention of causing bodily injury to any person, when the bodily injury actually found on the person of the deceased was the one that was intended to be inflicted and was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, It is also not the requirement of the section that the injury should be intended to be serious but the prosecution has to establish that the accused had intention to inflict the injury that was present on the victim. A I R 1958 S C 465, Followed. AIR 1939 Mad 269, Doubted. Held, further that the contention that the deceased would have survived if medical attention had been given to him immediately had no relevancy for, if death resulted from an injury intentionally caused. the person who caused that injury should be deemed to have caused death even though the life of the victim might have been saved if proper medical attention had been given. Explanation 2 to S 299 is explicit and gives no room for discussion. The reason for the provision is obvious that it is not always that proper remedies and skilful treatment are within the reach of a wounded man and the danger of allowing any exception in the matter could be easily imagined. 1964 Mad W N 446 : 1965 (2) Cri L J. 42: AIR 1965 Mad 261 (262, 263) (Prs 7 to 9) (DB).

——S. 300, Thirdly—Accused stabbing his wife—One of injuries very grave—Injury held fatal — Accused held guilty of murder.

Where the acused,, who had practically run amok, stabbed his wife and one of the several injuries caused to her was very grave, cutting through the pleura, the inferior margin of the lower lobe of the left lung, and the spleen and the left lobe of the lever and the wife died as the result of the injuries;

Held, that the injury was fatal and the inference must be that the accused was guilty of murder under the third Clause of S. 300. ILR (1964) 2 Mad 881: 1966 Cri LJ 222 (223) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (Mad) (DB).

——S. 300. Clause Thirdly and Exceptions 1, 2 and 4—Accused inflicting thirty-nine injuries by sickle some of them being individually fatal—Death of, victim on spot—Plea of justification—Intention of accused can be gathered from acts actually committed by him—Right of private defence held did not extend to inflicting such injuries—Offence held was under Cl. 'thirdly' and not within Exceptions (1) (2) and (4) of the section.

The accused was charged under S. 302 for an offence of murder. The prosecution clearly established the fact that the accused assaulted the deceased with the sickle and inflicted as many as 39 injuries on his person, that most of the injuries were on vital parts of the body and three of them were individually fatal. The accused also admitted that he belaboured the deceased and he succumbed to those injuries on the spot. The accused failed to establish his plea of justification that he was provoked by the challenge given to him by the deceased and that the deceased hit him with the handle of spade which caused him pain and his mind was very much disturbed on account of the infliction of that injury. On the other hand unchallenged evidence of the eye-witnesses clearly indicated that the accused proceeded a few paces from the place after inflicting some injuries and having observed deceased getting up he came back to the place and once again inflicted a good number of injuries with sickle and caused his death on the spot. The trial Court, though accepted the entire evidence of the prosecution, acquitted the accused of the charge under S. 302 but convicted him under S. 304 for the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

Held, that the offence committed by the accused was clearly murder falling under Cl. 'thirdly' of S. 300 punishable under S. 302, and that the trial Court was not justified in aquitting the accused of the charge under S. 302 and convicting him under S. 304. When a person has inflicted as many as thirty-nine injuries three of them being of fatal character with a sharp weapon like sickle to a person who was unarmed it should be presumed that he intended to cause such bodily injury as was likely to endanger his life.

The intention of the accused, who has inflicted injury to another which in the ordinary course of nature brought about the death of the other person, could be gathered only from the act which had been actually committed. The real question was not whether the accused intended to kill or inflict an injury to a particular degree of seriousness; it was whether the accused intended to inflict the injuries as found on the body of the deceased and once those injuries established the intention to cause those injuries, it must be presumed unless the evidence on record or the circumstances placed on record warranted an opposite conclusion. Therefore where even the fatal injuries were admittedly inflicted by the accused and there was no evidence on record to indicate that the accused did not know the seriousness of the injuries that he had inflicted with the sickle to the accused the accused must be held guilty of an offence of murder under Cl. 'thirdly' of S. 300 punishable under S. 302 : AIR 1958 S C 465 and (1961) 31 Mys L J 665 and AIR 1961 Mys 21, Rel. on.

Further, the offence committed by the accused did not fall within the Exceptions (1), (2) and (4) of S. 300 as the version of the accused that he committed the act in the heat of passion on grave and sudden provocation or the act of the deceased gave him a feeling that his life was in peril or that the deceased was likely to cause any bodily harm was not true in the light of unchallenged evidence of the eye-witnesses; the evidence on record did not also establish that he committed the act in a sudden fight and without any premeditation or that he did not take any undue advantage over the deceased in inflicting the injuries. Moreover. even if there was some truth in the version of the accused that the deceased gave a blow with the hind portion of the spade, the right of private defence of the accused could not be said to be extended to the extent of inflicting as many as thirty-nine injuries, three of them being individully fatal to the deceased. 1965 (1) Cri L J 737 : (1964) 1 Mys LJ 529: AIR 1965 Mys 150 (153 to 156) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 9)

——S. 300—Presumption as to causing injury culminating in death.

Where it is proved that a particular injury was deliberately caused and that injury is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, then the accused must be presumed to have intended to cause such injury as is sufficient to cause death. Thus, the accused must be presumed to have intended to cause injuries which in fact, he had caused on the left of the deceased with a sharp cutting instrument such as a scythe which injuries were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death : A I R 1958 S C 465, Foll, 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 454 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 253 (255) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (Mys) (DB).

——S. 300 'thirdly', 307 and 308 — Applicability — Attempt to murder or to commit culpable homicide.

In order to bring a case within the third clause of S. 300, Penal Code, it is not only necessary that the injury is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death but also that the accused intended to cause such injury.

Where the accused after inflicting dagger wounds on the deceased uttered certain words which clearly indicated that he did not intend to cause death or any injury which he knew to be likely to cause death or even to cause such injury as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, the case would not, apart from the exceptions to S. 300, fall under S. 302 if death were caused and, therefore, the accused can be convicted under S. 308 and not S. 307. 1956 Cri L J 908 : 1956 Nag L J 388 : ILR (1956) Nag 566 : AIR 1956 Nag 208 (208) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 300, 'thirdly' — Accused intentionally dealing blow on head of deceased — Injury caused not accidental — Injury sufficient in course of nature to cause death — Offence under S. 300 'thirdly' is established.

Where the accused gave a blow with a lathi on the head of the deceased with the intention of inflicting an injury on the head and the injury so caused on the head was not accidental or that some other kind of injury was intended and the medical evidence is to the effect that the injury was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, an offence under S. 300 'thirdly' is fully established even though the accused had no intention to cause death. AIR 1958 S C 465, Rel. on. (1963) 29 Cut LT 245.

——S. 300, thirdly.

A man must be deemed to know the nature and consequences of his act. Inflicting a knife injury to the deceased in the region of the heart, the accused must have intended to cause a bodily injury which was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. AIR 1956 S C 116, Foll. 1958 B L J R 454 : 1959 Cri L J 226 : AIR 1959 Pat 66 (68) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——S. 300, thirdly — Intention of causing bodily injury.

Where a person, not under the influence of drink takes out a pistol and shoots at the deceased without motive, the irresistible conclusion is that he does the act with the intention of causing bodily injury to the victim and the bodily injury intended to be inflicted is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death within the scope of the third clause of S. 300. 1955 Cri L J 1621 : ILR (1955) Pepsu 646 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 165 (169) (Pt B) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304 — Trespass with primary object of abduction—Person to be abducted attacked with dangerous weapons—Victim dying of fatal injuries—Intention of accused must be held to have been to cause injuries sufficient to cause death in ordinary course of nature — Offence committed is murder and not culpable homicide. 2 Pepsu L R 660: AIR 1951 Pepsu 66 (67) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 S C 424].

——S. 300, thirdly—Scope — Facts to be proved by prosecution.

The prosecution has to prove the following facts before it can bring a case under S. 300, "thirdly": first, it must establish, quite objectively, that a bodily injury is present; secondly, the nature of the injury must be proved. These are purely objective investigations. Thirdly, it must be proved that there was an intention to inflict that particular bodily injury, that is to say that it was not accidental or unintentional, or that some other kind of injury was intended. Once these three elements are proved to be present, the enquiry proceeds further and, fourthly, it must be proved that the injury of the type, just described, made up of the three elements set out above, is sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature. (1963) 65 Pun L R 503.

——S. 300, 'thirdly' — Presumption of knowledge and intention.

A person dealing seven blows to the deceased four of which were on the head by means of a heavy instrument, out of which two were individually sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature is presumed to know that their natural consequences would be death and he would clearly fall within Cl. 3 of S. 300. AIR 1930 Bom 483; Expl., AIR 1916 Bom 191, Disting. 8 Sau L R 33 : 56 Cri L J 69 : AIR 1954 Sau 150 (151) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

7. "Fourthly".

——Ss. 300, 304 and 325—Clauses 3 and 4.

Where the medical evidence showed that the deceased was given lathi blows with the intention of causing bodily injury to him, and the bodily injury intended to be inflicted was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death or at any rate the persons committing the act knew that it was so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as was likely to cause death, and they committed the act without any excuse whatsoever.

Held, that the case fell within clauses 3 and 4 of S. 300 and not either under S. 304 or 325. 1958 All Cri R 12:1958 All W R (HC) 12.

——Ss. 300, Cl. 4 and 304 — Applicability—Attack by fists or wooden end of scythe — Degree of knowledge.

The emphasis in the preceding part of cl. 4 is on the imminently dangerous nature of the act itself. It cannot be said that the attack by fists or even by the wooden end of a scythe is by itself of such a nature as must in all probability, cause death. Death in an attack of this nature is an exception rather than the rule.

The degree of knowledge required in cl. (4) is so strong as to make it impossible to believe that the peril of the act ensuing in fatal consequences had not irresistibly forced itself on the mind of the offender and yet he had deliberately chosen to disregard this danger signal.

Where, this degree of knowlede cannot be fastened on the accused and it is a case where all that can be said is that death might have been known to be the probable result of the act but not a case where death must have been known to be the most probable result of the act, the conclusion brings the case out of cl. (4) of S. 300 and would reduce the offence to one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, that is, one under S. 304, I. P. Code. ILR (1956) 1 All 84 : 1955 Cri L J 884 : AIR 1955 All 321 (327) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 4thly Illus. (d), 302 and 326 — Accused firing with revolver near the ground where there was a group of persons—No premeditation or intention or knowledge of likelihood of causing death proved —Accused held guilty under S. 326 and not under S. 302. ILR (1959) Andh Pra 797.

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Intention to cause death or such bodily injury as would be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

A person's intention can only be inferred from the acts committed by him; and where a person gives a blow with a dangerous weapon like an axe to another person on his head and causes a fatal injury, the only reasonable inference, which can be drawn, is that he intended to cause that person's death or to cause such bodily injury as would be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. He may at least reasonably be presumed to have known that his act was so imminently dangerous that it would in all probability cause death. Under such circumstances it is proper to convict the accused under S. 302, Penal Code. 1956 Cri L J 1066 : AIR 1956 Bom 609 (612) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Applicability — Accused administering poison—Death—offence—Sentence.

Where a person administers poisonous substance to another which has resulted in his death, he is normally expected to know the effect of the poisonous substance and if death has resulted, it must be held that the accused intended death or at least knew that death was the imminent result, and the accused is guilty of murder (where the accused acted as a foil of her paramour, the ends of justice held did not require the infliction of the extreme penalty of law). 1959 Cri L J 448 : AIR 1959 Him Pra 3 (12) (Pt K) (Prs 33, 34).

——Ss. 300, 304, Part 2 — Arrow shot in thigh of victim—Femoral artery cut causing death—Fourthly of S. 300 not applicable—Offence covered by S. 304, Part 2.

Where the accused shot an arrow in the thigh of the victim, which cut the femoral artery in his thigh and the victim died on account of profuse bleeding.

Held, that as there was nothing established on record apart from the act and its consequence to indicate that the accused intended to cause death or to cause bodily injury which is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, application of Clause 4 of S. 300 to the circumstances of the case is inapt. Shooting an arrow on the lower part of the body cannot constitute an act so imminently dangerous that it must, in all probability, cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death. The cutting of femoral artery was an accident and it is difficult to attribute intention of the accused to bring about the result.

Held; further, that the accused intended to cause bodily injury and that he should be assumed to have knowledge that it is likely to cause death. The arrow struck thigh and not any vital part of body such as chest, stomach, back or head. There was a single arrow shot. The accused therefore ought to be convicted under section 304, Penal Code, Part second. Madh B L R 1956 Cr 142 : 1956 Madh B L J 723 : 1956 Cr L J 1078 : AIR 1956 Madh B 207 (208) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——S. 300, "Fourthly — Woman jumping in well with her children—Death of children—Offence.

The words "without any excuse .... aforesaid" indicate that the imminently dangerous act is not murder if it is done to prevent a greater evil. If the evil can be avoided without doing the act, then there can be no valid justification for doing the act which is so imminently dangerous that it must, in all probability, cause death or such injury as is likely to cause death.

Where the act of the accused in jumping into the well with her children was clearly one done by her knowing that it must in all probability cause the death of her children, she had no excuse for incurring the risk of causing the death of her children, the fact that there were quarrels between her and sister-in-law and that her life had become unbearable on account of this family discord, could not be regarded as a valid justification. The act of the accused was, therefore, clearly murder, under S. 300 (4). AIR 1940 All 486 and AIR 1925 Bom 310, Disting. 1953 Cri L J 588 : I L R (1953) Madh B 43 : AIR 1953 Madh B 61 (62) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 300, Fourthly and S. 304-A — Treatment by medical practitioner — Death of patient — Criminal liability of the doctor—Extent of.

Where the doctor is a qualified person, and administers a drug which after due research and experiment is accepted on all hands as the appropriate remedy, he also administers it in the prescribed quantity and manner, that is to say, orally or by injection as the case may be, and with due precautions indicated in the science and still the patient dies on account of a surprising and unexpected personal idiosyncrasy in such a case, unfortunate as the event may be, the doctor would not be liable for any criminal offence.

Secondly, there is the case where the medicine is certainly the proper one, but a mistake has been committed in regard either to the quantity or the manner of administration, or in regard to the precautions. It is this class of cases that would present a certain amount of difficulty whether the mistake committed by the doctor is so serious or he has gone so, far out of his way that he should be deemed to have knowledge of the certainty of death following his mistake. So such a case would become either murder under S. 302, or a rash or negligent act causing death under S. 304-A of the Penal Code; the decision would depend on all the circumstances of each case.

Thus where the medicine is one not at all indicated as a proper remedy for the ailment in question, in the system practised by the doctor or as for that matter in any system based on science and scientific experiment, even if the quantity is no more than the safe dosage, and the manner is the same as indicated for the disease for which the drug is a proper remedy, still the fact that the doctor is using the drug for a disease for which it has not been prescribed would make him liable for murder if death follows.

The case is undoubtedly one of murder coming under definition "fourthly" in S. 300, I. P. C. AIR 1960 Madh Pra 50, Dist. 1963 (1) Cri L J 296 : 1963 M P L J 839 : 1963 Jab L J 959: AIR 1963 Madh Pra 102 (105) (Pt B) (Prs 28 to 30) (DB).

——S. 300, Fourthly — Knowledge—Presumption of.

A person who plunges his knife into the neck of another and causes an injury which results in death within an hour must be deemed to know that the injury is likely to cause death. 1953 Madh W N 941: 1954 Cr L J 672 : AIR 1954 Mad 523 (526) (Pt B) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 328 — Applicability—Accused administering poisonous substance to another resulting in death—Offence.

Where a person administers a poisonous substance to another which has resulted in his death, he is normally expected to know the effect of the poisonous substance and, if death has resulted, it must be held that the accused persons intended death or at least knew that death was the imminent result of the poison administered. AIR 1918 All 283 and AIR 1923 All 608 and AIR 1926 Bom 518, Rel. on. I L R 34 Pat 821 : 1957 Cr L J 990 : AIR 1957 Pat 462 (464, 465) (Pt A) (Prs 10 to 12) (DB).

——S. 300, fourthly—Applicability.

The fourth clause of S. 300 can only apply when the case is not covered by any of the first three clauses of that section. I L R (1955) Pepsu 646 : 1955 Cr L J 1621 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 165 (169) (Pt C) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 299 'Thirdly' — Medical opinion not definite and consistent that the injury caused by accused which resulted in death was necessarily sufficient to cause death in ordinary course of nature —It was more consistent with the circumstances of the case and medical opinion that the injury was likely to cause death—Held, that the injury causing death was not within scope of thirdly of S. 300 but was one under second part of S. 299. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304, Part 1. 1965 Cri L J 730 : 67 Pun L R 1204.

——S. 300, fourthly — Accused firing gun on members of opposite party without intention of killing any particular person—One member hit and killed — Accused held guilty under S. 304, Para. 2. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 56 Cr L J 305 : AIR 1955 Punj 13 (DB).

——S. 300, Fourthly and S. 304—Evidence disclosing exchange of abusive language, grappling with each other and enmity — Case held did not fall under S. 300, fourthly. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 5395 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302, 304, Part II—Murder case—Medical witness stating that death was caused on account of shock and haemorrage due to certain injuries—Statement of medical witness cannot be equated to statement that 'injuries by themselves were in ordinary course of nature likely to cause death' — Duties of Public Prosecutors and Judges while dealing with medical evidence in murder trials stated — Evidence Act (1872), S. 45—Cr. P. Code, S. 286. 1964 Raj L W 554 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 219 : 1 L R (1965) 15 Raj 129: AIR 1965 Raj 32 (34) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Ss. 300, 302, 304, Part 2 — Murder charge—Circumstantial evidence— Death by throttling—Simulation of ligature mark to give false appearance to crime—Knowledge that in all probability death would be caused by throttling not likely —Offence—Murder or culpable homicide not amounting to murder. 1964 Raj R W 279 : I L R (1964) 14 Raj 572 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 574 (Raj).

——Ss. 300, 302 and 86 — Applicability — Shooting with gun.

Where a person takes the risk of shooting at another with a gun, the act would ordinarily be an imminently dangerous act which must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death and the case would be covered by the fourth clause to S. 300, I. P. Code. 1952 R L W 145: 1953 Cri L J 434 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 727: AIR 1953 Raj 40 (41, 42) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——S. 300, Secondly and Fourthly—Accused attacking boy of eight years with a dantra—Deep cuts in the abdomen causing protrusion of spleen and guts —Case falls under cls. (2) and (4) — Accused deemed to have knowledge that it would cause death in all probability—Absence of motive immaterial—Punishment for offence under, extreme penalty. 1952 R L W 318 : I L R (1952) 2 Raj 222.

8. Exceptions — General.

See also Note 24 and Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

——S. 300—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 — Accused pleading exception — Onus is on accused—Onus how to be discharged — Prosecution case indicating that exception is applicable — Accused not pleading same —Accused cannot be denied benefit thereof. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1960 Cri L J 437 : AIR 1960 All 223 (DB).

——S. 300—Exception not specifically pleaded—Duty of Court pointed out. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1958 Cri L J 883 : AIR 1958 J and K 23 (DB).

——S. 300, Exceptions—Onus of proof — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105).

If an accused person wants to take benefit of one of the Exceptions to S. 300 he has not only to state his case with clarity but also to establish it. (1958) Cri L J 883 : AIR 1958 J & K 23 (24) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 —Applicability—Conditions.

On a plain reading of Exception 1, it is clear that the accused persons will be entitled to come within the exception only if the deceased was responsible for provoking the accused to such an extent that a reasonable man in the circumstances would lose his power of self-control and further that the provocation must be grave and sudden.

If indeed the circumstances in which the offence was committed indicate that there was sufficient time for the passion of the accused to cool down and that reason had in fact resumed its functions before the fatal below was given or the last act was committed which led to the death of the man, it cannot come under Exception 1. Moreover it is settled law now that the mode of resentment bears some proper and reasonable relationship to the sort of provocation that has been given. ILR (1955) Cut 625 : 1956 Cri L J 638 : AIR 1956 Orissa 108 (110) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 300 — Law of homicide— Exceptions — Onus indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1957 Cri L J 532 : AIR 1957 Punj 81 (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 4—Accused to prove exception.

It is the duty of any accused who is claiming the benefit of one of the Exceptions to S. 300 to make an attempt to establish the facts which will support his case. 57 Punj L R 437 : 1955 All W R (Supp) 107 : 1955 Cri L J 1283 : ILR (1955) Punj 1252 : AIR 1955 Punj 191 (192) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

9. Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation.

(A) Sudden provocation.

(B) "Whilst deprived of his power of self-control".

(C) Adultery causing provocation.

(D) Words and abusive language, causing provocation.

(E) Provocation not grave and sudden.

(F) Proviso 1.

(G) Provocation—Burden of proof.

9. Grave and sudden provocation.

——S. 300. Exception 1.—Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 149 of Penal Code for vicarious liability in committing murder on provocation — Offence cannot be said to involve element of moral turpitude to disqualify candidate under S. 5-A (h), U. P. Panchayat Act. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 5-A (h) 1964 All L J 1118 : 1965 All W R (H C) 8 1965 All Cri R 40 : ILR (1965) 1 All 260.

——S 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation—Tests—Difference between English and Indian law—Test of reasonableness of conduct after loss of self-control not required to be imposed by Exception 1—Fact that death was caused by concealed knife not sufficient to overthrow plea of grave and sudden provocation — Use of insulting or abusive language may amount to grave and sudden provocation—Matters which Court must consider in determining whether accused was entitled to benefit of Exception 1.

Held, on the facts and circumstances of the case, that there was a grave and sudden provocation for the appellant and the appellant stabbed S, while he was deprived of the power of self-control, and he was entitled to the benefit of Exception 1 to S. 300, I. P. Code and could not be convicted under S. 302. In cases where power of self-control has been lost, the power to form the intention required for an offence punishable under S 304 Part I, must necessarily be lacking. In the circumstances the appellant could only be convicted under S. 304, Part II, A I R 1961 All 538. Foll. 1965 All W R (HC) 531 : 1965 All Cri R 337 : ILR (1964) 1 All 809 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 617 : AIR 1964 All 262 (265 to 270) (Prs 9, 11, 12, 20, 21, 23 to 25) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation—Test.

Under Exception 1 of S. 300 the provocation must be grave and sudden and must have by its gravity and suddenness deprived the accused of the power of self-control. It ought to be distinctly shown not only that the act was done under the influence of some feeling which took away from the person doing it all control of his action but that the feeling had an adequate cause. The test is that of the effect of the provocation on a reasonable man and not on an unusually excitable or pugnacious individual. In applying the test it is of particular importance to consider whether sufficient interval has elapsed since the provocation to allow a reasonable man time to cool, and to take into account the instrument with which the homicide was effected. 1957 All L J 302 : 1957 Cr L J 617 : 1957 All W R (HC) 351 : AIR 1957 All 377 (380) (Pt A) (Pr 13) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1—Provocation—Nature of.

What may amount to grave and sudden provocation as has been provided for in the Explanation to Exception 1 of S. 300, is a question of fact. The provocation has to be, not only sudden but grave and the gravity of the provocation is to be judged by the fact whether or not the offender is deprived of the power of self-control. The provocation must be such as will upset not merely a hasty, hot-tempered and hypersensitive person but would upset also a person of ordinary sense and calmness. A Court has to consider whether a reasonable person placed in the same position as the accused was would have reached under that provocation in the manner in which the accused did. 1958 All W R (H C) 5 : 1958 All Cr R 5 : 1957 Cr L J 498 : ILR (1957) 1 All 43 : A I R 1957 All 317 (318) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 300, Except. 1—Sudden provocation—Gravity and suddenness has reference to nature of provocation and magnitudes of action of accused—It has reference to normal person and not to hyper-sensitive person — Action of accused out of all proportion to gravity of provocation—Case is not covered by exception—Merely abusing accused in ordinary conversation as "Hai to poora chamar" held did not justify killing the abuser. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 859 (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exceptions 1 and 4, 302—Applicability.

Quarrel between wife of accused and wife of deceased - Accused intervening and scolding wife of deceased — Deceased reprimanding accused and and saying that he should not interfere between quarrel of ladies—Accused threatening to kill some one and running into the room and bringing a knife and rushing towards deceased and inflicting several blows, on back, chest and neck— Serious injury in left bring and cutting of blood vessels of neck and arms—Deceased collapsing and dying — Exceptions 1 and 4 cannot be pleaded in defence If the injuries were caused on vital organs of the body by a sharp-edged weapon, the inference is irresistable that the accused intended to kill the deceased—Exceptions 1 and 4 were held not applicable. 1953 All W R (HC) 138 : 1953 All L J 235 : 1953 Cri L J 1150 : AIR 1953 All 497 (497, 498) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4, 5) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1—Provocation—Consideration of castes of accused and deceased.

The fact that the accused was a Brahmin and the deceased a barbar cannot be taken into consideration in deciding whether the insult by the deceased had reasonably enhanced the degree of provocation. 1952 Cri L J 946; AIR 1952 Bhopal 21 (24) (Pt C) (Pr 16).

—S. 300, Except. 1 and S. 302 — Deprivation of power of self-control as result of grave and sudden provocation—Degree of loss of power is that envisaged by reasonable man — Reasonable relation of violence to degree of loss of power—Attempt to commit unnatural offence against offender—Infliction of injuries by offender — Injuries resulting in death of victim — Held, Except. 1 to S. 300 did not apply — Offender was guilty of murder. 1962 (1) Cri L J 324 : AIR 1962 Guj 39 (43) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 16) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 304—Benefit of Exception 1 given — Conviction would be under S 304, Part 1 and not part 2—Exception 1 to S. 300 can arise in cases of murder and where the accused person has been given the benefit of that exception, the conviction would be under S. 304, Part 1. It can never be under Part II, because that part can apply only to those cases where there was no intention to cause death. AIR 1955 NUC (Him Pra) 2346.

——Ss. 300, 302, 304 — Applicability — "Grave and sudden provocation" — What amounts to.

For sometime past the accused was entertaining a firm belief that his uncle with whom he was residing and his wife were in terms of illicit intimacy. The accused used to accuse his wife of this and to assault her for that reason. The accused had complained to a neighbour about the misconduct of his wife and requested him to persuade his uncle to arrange for a separate residence for the accused and his wife. Nothing came out of this and the ill-feeling of the accused towards his uncle became highly embittered. One early morning the accused woke up his uncle and accused him of the intimacy with his wife and shot him dead with a gun :

Held, that this could not be said to be an act done under grave and sudden provocation so as to bring it under Exception 1 of S. 300 of the Penal Code. On the other hand, it was a deliberate and preconceived act of retaliation and the weapon used was unquestionably a dangerous weapon and the shot was fired at a vital part of the body of the deceased obviously with the intention of killing him. The offence was murder. 1957 Ker L J 439 : 1957 All W R (Sup) 69 : 1957 Ker L T 637 : 1957 Cri L J 1261 : 1957 Mad L J (Cr) 658 : AIR 1957 Ker 166 (169) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1, 302 and 304, Part I—Applicability — Grave and sudden provocation—Plea at late stage—If to be considered.

Held on facts that on a consideration of the entire circumstances in the case, that the statement given by the accused before the Sessions Judge was one that could be accepted as revealing the real circumstances in which the accused was placed, when he lost his balance of mind and resorted to the stabbing of his wife and that those circumstances should be viewed in a liberal manner in the psychological setting, which arose, as constituting sudden and grave provocation. This would consequently reduce the offence of murder into one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder by reason of the operation of Exception 1 to S. 300, I. P. Code. Therefore his case came within S. 304, Part I, I. P. Code and the ends of justice would be amply met if he is convicted under this section and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for five years. AIR 1925 All 676, Rel. on; 1931 M W N (Cr) 105; AIR 1932 Mad 25 (1); AIR 1954 Mad 538 and AIR 1934 Mad 176, Distinguished. English case law discussed. (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 271 : 1957 Mad W N 337 : 70 Mad L W 531 : (1957) 2 M L J 9 : 1957 Cr L J 970 : ILR (1957) Mad 805 : 1957 All W R (Sup) 61 : AIR 1957 Mad 541 (545-546) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 12).

——Ss. 300, 304—Beating with shoe—Grave and sudden provocation — Offence—Culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

In this country if a person were to beat another with a shoe that is considered to be the height of shame and particularly in the midst of number of villagers right in the middle of the street. Where on account of the mothers of the accused and deceased quarrelling with each other the sons joined the affray and when the deceased beat or attempted to beat the accused with a shoe, he retaliated by stabbing the deceased with a pen-knife which he was carrying in his short's pocket, and where there was no evidence that accused came on the scene with the object of causing injury to anybody:

Held, the offence is one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder as the accused had grave and sudden provocation. 1952 Mad W N 978 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 290 : (1953) 1 M L J 180 : 1953 Cri L J 1109 : AIR 1953 Mad 579 (579) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300—Provocation—Whether sudden and grave enough to reduce offence from murder is a question of fact. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304. 1964 (1) Cri L J 685 : AIR 1964 Orissa 149 (DB).

——S. 300, Except. 1 — Grave and sudden provocation — Test of—Held there was no grave and sudden provocation.

One of the tests of 'grave and sudden' provocation is whether a reasonable man, belonging to the same class of society, as the accused, placed in the situation in which the accused was placed would be so provoked as to lose his self-control. AIR 1962 SC 605, Foll.

Held, on facts that the manner in which the deceased was assaulted by the accused and the nature of the injuries indicated that it was not under grave and sudden provocation. ILR (1964) Cut 841.

9 (A). Sudden provocation.

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 304 — Applicability — 'Sudden provocation'.

Whether in the absence of actually seeing one's wife in a compromising position, the sudden appearance of a lover would amount to a sudden provocation or not would depend upon the background and the circumstances of the case.

Where the husband thinks that the illicit intimacy which might have existed earlier between his wife and the deacesed had ceased to exist because of the changed place of residence and this belief is shattered when he finds the deceased at his hut when he was absent, this would certainly give him a mental jolt and as this knowledge will come all of a sudden it should be deemed to have given a grave and sudden provocation. The fact he had suspected this illicit intimacy on an earlier occasion also will not alter the nature of the provocation and make it any the less sudden. 1960 Cri L J 437 : 1960 All L J 136 : I L R (1959) 2 All 255 : AIR 1960 All 223 (226) (Pt C) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Applicability—Interval of time between provocation and act will make exception inapplicable—Interval of time is material.

Before an accused can draw any benefit from Exception I to S. 300, there should be some circumstance to indicate that the act of the accused was done in the same transaction in which he received the grave and sudden provocation (in this of 2 hours) between provocation and act. 1960 All L J 721 : 1960 All W R (HC) 556 : 1960 All Cr R 355.

——S. 300. Excep. 1—Sudden provocation—It is question of fact. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 859 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation — Altercation between A and B in public place — C intervening — A striking C with shoe on face — C stabbing A who died — Provocation held grave and sudden — C's conviction under S. 302 altered into one under S. 304, Penal Code.

There was an altercation between A, a creditor, and B, a boy, his debtor, on a main thoroughfare at a market place. C intervened but A struck him with shoe on his face. Thereupon C stabbed A who died soon after. C was convicted under S. 302, Penal Code and sentenced to death. On appeal:

Held, that there existed a grave and sudden provocation. It was sudden because C did not expect that he would be so treated simply because of his intervention on behalf of B. It was grave because the blow was inflicted with a shoe in a public place and upon the face. Exception 1 of S. 300 applied to the case and conviction under S. 302 was not sustainable. (Section 304, Penal Code, was applied and the appellant was convicted under it). 1949 All W R (H C) 458 : 1949 All Cri Cas 114 : 51 Cri L J 385 : ILR (1950) All 960 : A I R 1950 All 91 (92) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Sudden provocation — Proof.

Chopra J.—To bring a case under the Exception it has to be proved that the provocation was both grave and sudden and that the provocation, by its gravity and suddenness, deprived the accused of the power of self-control. The provocation should be such as would deprive a normal and reasonable man of the control of himself. In the absence of any such proof, the atrocity of the offence cannot be mitigated and the offender must suffer the legal consequences of his act. ILR (1953) Patiala 655 : 1954 Cri L J 1505 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 160 (172) (Pt C) (Pr 58) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 and S. 302—Murder—Grave but not sudden provocation—Punishment.

Where the provocation on which the accused commits an offence is grave but not sudden, though it cannot bring the case within the purview of exception 1 to S. 300, it can all the same be used as an extenuating circumstance for awarding lesser penalty. (1951) 3 Pepsu L R 635 (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Provocation—Effect.

Illicit connection with another person does not provide any justification for murder when nothing is brought on record to show that on the day of the incident the deceased was seen by the accused with that another person. 1955 Cri L J 327 : AIR 1955 Punj 25 (26) (Pt B) (Pr 18) (DB).

9 (B). "Whilst deprived of his power of self-control".

—S. 300, Exception 1 — Benefit of Exception — When can be invoked—Sudden and impulsive attack due to loss of self-control—Tests.

In order to attract Exception 1 to S. 300, Penal Code, the provocation must have been given by the victim and it must have been both grave and sudden. Furthermore, the provocation must have by its gravity and suddenness, deprived the offender of the power of self-control.

Where the scuffle which ensued between the accused and the deceased, was occasioned by the accused himself, and even assuming he had received some provocation because of the scuffle, it cannot possibly be said that it was grave and sudden so as to warrant his whipping out a dagger which he had aapparently kept concealed in the waist, and launching a savage and determined attack on a defenceless woman. The brutal attack by the accused had no reasonable relationship to the provocation and the offence committed by the accused is nothing short of murder. The Sessions Judge fell into a grave error in bringing the case within Exception 1 to S. 300, Penal Code. 1961 Andh L T 699 : 1961 M L J (Cri) 580 : (1961) 2 Andh W R 182

—S. 300, Exception 1—Applicability—There must be act of provocation, grave and sudden loss of self-control and retaliation proportional to provocation — There must not be time for passion to cool down — Deceased abusing accused filthily and then charging accused with having committed unnatural offence with a pigeon — Accused held entitled to protection under S. 300, Exception 1.

Provocation in law consists mainly of three elements, the act of provocation, the loss of self-control, both actual and reasonable and the retaliation proportionate to the provocation. The defence of grave and sudden provocation thus connotes something more than a provocative incident, which could constitute only one of the elements aforesaid. And further the circumstances must also be related to each other—Particularly in point of time, so that there was no time for passion to cool and the inference of deliberation or design was excluded. (1963) 1 All E R 73 and 1946 A C 588 and AIR 1962 S C 605 and AIR 1932 Lah 438 and 7 Suth W R (Cri) 27 and (1949) 1 All E R 932 and (1942) A C 1, Rel. on.

Proof of loss of self-control cannot be dispensed with by the Courts; but loss of self-control can also be shown by inference instead of by direct evidence; and if the facts proved to suggest a reasonable inference of loss of self-control, the Court would be entitled even to discard the denial of the accused and hold that there was loss of self-control. The interval of time between the throwing of the insinuation and the accused's going into his house and coming out with a spear was so short that it could not be said that there was time enough for passion to cool and for reason to regain dominion over the mind. Therefore, under the circumstances established in the case, the accused struck the deceased with a spear whilst he was deprived of the power of self-control by the grave and sudden provocation given by the deceased.

It is true that retaliation must bear a reasonable relationship to the provocation but in the instant case the giving of one blow with a spear, which the accused found handy at the moment in his house, could not be said to be so grossly disproportionate to the provocation as would show that the provocation was not the primary cause of the retaliation but only a pretext for it. Therefore the accused was entitled to protection under Exception 1 to S. 300 of the Penal Code. His case would thus fall under part one of S. 304. 1963 MPLJ 592 : 1963 Jab L J 659 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 631 : ILR (1964) Madh Pra 609 : AIR 1963 M P 364 (366 to 368) (Prs 13, 18, 21 to 25) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Exception 1 applies only when accused deprived of self-control by grave and sudden provocation caused by deceased - Test of provocation is that the act should be sufficient to upset a man of ordinary sense and calmness belonging to same class of society as the accused.

Exception 1 to S. 300, Indian Penal Code, applies only when the accused is shown to have been deprived of the power of self-control by grave and sudden provocation which is caused by the person whose death is caused or when the death of some other person is caused by mistake or accident. The test of grave and sudden provocation is whether a reasonable man belonging to the same class of society as the accused was placed in the situation in which the accused was placed, would be so provoked as to lose self-control. The provocation must be such as would upset not merely a hot-tempered or hyper-sensitive person but one of ordinary sense and calmness. AIR 1962 S C 605, Foll. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 317 : 1963 Jab L J 137.

——Ss. 300 and 304-II — Grave and sudden provocation — Accused caught by throat by deceased — Subsequent altercation resulting in accused shooting an arrow at deceased — Accused held had grave and sudden provocation.

Held, on facts that the circumstances indicated that the accused got some provocation from the deceased in consequence of the catching hold of his throat by the latter and further that he acted without premeditation in a moment of excitement and in a fit of rage at a time when quarrel was going on in the evening between the deceased and the accused's brother. The act of accused, in shooting the deceased was an act done with the knowledge that it was likely to cause death, but without any intention to cause death or to cause such bodily injury as is likely to cause death and accordingly it came under Part II of S. 304, Indian Penal Code. (1962) 4 Ori J D 247 : 28 Cut L T 359.

9 (C). Adultery causing provocation.

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 304, Part 1 — Applicability.

Accused seeing his wife committing act of adultery with deceased — It is a case of grave and sudden provocation within S. 300, Exception 1 — Husband killing wife — Offence is one under S. 304, Part 1. 1953 All L J 158 : 1953 All W R (H C) 129 : 1953 Cri L J 1034 : AIR 1953 All 464 (466) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——S. 300, Exception 1 —"Grave and sudden provocation"—What amounts to—Wife strangulated on confession of adultery and pregnancy by another—Offence.

To come under Exception 1 to S. 300, I. P. Code, the act of causing death should have been done by the offender under the influence of some feeling depriving him of all self-control engendered by a provocation, which is both grave and sudden. Thus where the accused, who was a young man and who had lurking suspicions of the conduct of his wife who newly joined him was confronted with the confession of illicit intimacy with and consequent pregnancy by another, the provocation was both sudden and grave and if the accused, deprived of his power of self-control, strangled his wife to death, his case is covered by Exception 1 to S. 300, I. P. Code. 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 163 : 1958 Cri L J 476 : (1958) 1

Andh W R 149 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 235 (238) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Excep. 1, 302 and 304—Grave and sudden provocation—Accused cutting his wife with dao when he saw her having illicit intercourse with another person — Offence committed is under grave and sudden provocation — Case falls under Exception 1 to S. 300 — Accused held guilty under S. 304 and not under S. 302. 1965 (2) Cri L J 614 : AIR 1965 Assam 89 (92) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — 'Grave and sudden provocation'—Murder of wife — Adultery by wife — Effect.

Held on facts that what occurred in the field in the morning could not ordinarily be regarded as grave and sudden provocation to justify the killing of a person. Bearing in mind the fact that adultery though frowned upon in our country is not uncommon in the village community and bearing also in mind the fact that even before the law made a provision for obtaining a divorce, a customary form of divorce has prevailed in the village communities, it would not be right to hold that the reaction of an Indian spouse from such a community would be different from that of one in the Western countries. The incident which the accused alleged occurred in the field on the morning of August 20, was not sufficient in law to constitute grave and sudden provocation within the meaning of that expression used in the First Exception to S 300 I L R (1959) Bom 1580 : 61 Bom L R 35 : 1959 All W R (Sup) 78 : 1959 Nag L J 341 : 1959 All Cr R 343 (2) : 1959 Cri L J 1299 : AIR 1959 Bom 463 (465) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 1 — Deceased committing adultery with sister of accused — After sufficient interval accused attacking deceased — Murder — Exception 1 does not apply.

It is well settled that if a man were to see a stranger in the actual act of committing adultery with his sister and if he commits murder of either, the offence is culpable homicide not amounting to murder. But if that opportunity is gone and sufficient interval has elapsed since the provocation to allow a reasonable man time to cool, and if the man commits murder of that another man the provisions of Exception 1 to S. 300 will not be attracted. A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 861, Disting. Madh B L R 1956 Cr 19 : 1956 Cri L J 408 : 1956 Madh B L J 262 : A I R 1956 Madh B 107 (109) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 1 — Accused murdering his wife whom he saw in compromising position and she refused to disclose stranger's name — Accused entitled to benefit of Exception 1 to S. 300, Indian Penal Code. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 315.

——S. 300, Exception 1 and S. 304 — Grave and sudden provocation—Adultery causing provocation —Husband discovering deceased with his wife behind chained doors in his house at dead of night—Sentence.

When the appellant at dead of night, found the deceased with his wife alone in the house with the doors chained from inside and losing control of his mind chased the deceased and ultimately killed him.

Held that a person who finds his wife and her paramour in flagrante delicto, undoubtedly receives the highest provocation and the indulgence which the law shows in such cases is condescension to the frailty of human nature. The circumstances provoked the appellant gravely and suddenly. 1959 Jab L J 403 : 1959 Cr L J 850 : 1959 M P L J 487 : 1959 M P C 646 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 267 (269) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304 — Adultery causing provocation.

When a wife or mother or married sister, living under the protection of the husband or son or brother, is caught in the act of having sexual intercourse with a stranger, the killing of that stranger by the husband, son or brother before there is time to get over the sudden anger would be only an offence under S. 304, I. P. Code. But a person who is not the guardian or custodian of a woman would have no similar right to kill her and claim to be convicted only under S. 304, I. P. Code. AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 1834 (DB).

9 (D). Words and abusive language causing provocation.

——S. 300, Exception 1—Provocation whether grave and sudden is question of fact — Abusive language used by deceased—Held provocation was neither grave nor sudden. 1953 Cri L J 1361 : AIR 1953 Bilaspur 27 (30) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

——S. 300 Excep. 1—Grave and sudden provocation —Accused provoking deceased by asking provocative question — Deceased retorting by provocative answer—Accused killing the deceased by firing from gun which he carried — No grave and sudden provocation—Mere verbal abuse does not amount to grave and sudden provocation.

Accused asked the deceased, a Hindu, whether he had unnatural connection with a cow. The deceased got enraged and said "Yes, I have done and I will do so even with your mother". Upon this, the accused fired the rifle which he carried and killed the deceased. The accused pleaded grave and sudden provocation.

Held that it was the accused who first provoked the deceased by asking the deceased whether he had unnatural intercourse with a cow. Putting such a question itself was, to a Hindu who worships a cow, an insinuation of a foul abuse. It was the accused himself who provoked the deceased into the retort which was given by the deceased to the accused. In this view, therefore the provocation was neither sudden nor grave, It was not sudden because the accused himself provoked it. It was not grave for it was the accused who himself first used a very foul abuse.

Held also that mere verbal abuse would not amount to grave and sudden provocation: under Exception 1 to S. 300. (1946) 2 All E R 124, 61 Bom L R 35, Rel. on; A I R 1936 Rang 40, Dissented from; AIR 1934 Mad 722, 3 Mad 33, 1953 Cri L J 1109, Distinguished. (1962) 3 Guj L R 739.

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation — What is—Question is one of fact.

The question as to whether the provocation given to the offender is grave and sudden or not is one of fact and has to be decided on the circumstances of each case.

The circumstances in which the accused murdered his wife were that the wife had successively refused to cook the evening meals and to spread the beds; that she threatened to leave the house on the following morning, that when he fondled her and asked her as to why would she be leaving the house she kicked him at the chest and asked him to get away from her bed and to have sexual intercourse with his mother and sister. This infuriated the accused and he hit her on the head by hurling a stone lying nearby.

Held, that the circumstances were sufficient to provoke a reasonable person to the extent of depriving him of the power of self-control and therefore the provocation was grave and sudden within the meaning of Exception 1 to S. 300, Penal Code. 1963 (1) Cri L J 120 (122) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (Him-Pra).

—S. 300—Grave and sudden provocation.

Accused asking wife to cook food for him — Wife declining to cook saying that she would rather die in sweeper's house than cook meals for him :

Held, that the answer given could not by any stretch of imagination be treated as a provocation which would have led an ordinary and reasonable man to act in the manner that that accused did. Madh-B L J 1955 H C R 1955 : Madh B L R 1955 Cr 441 : I L R (1956) Madh B 46 : 1956 Cri L J 241 : AIR 1956 Madh-B 94 (96) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

—S. 300, Exception 1—Provocation—Use of vulgar or abusive language—Provocation cannot be so grave as to deprive person of self-control to cause fatal injuries on vital part of body—Provocation and gravity have to be determined from point of view of ordinary reasonable man and not irritable or hot headed human being. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh-B) 3795 (DB).

—S. 300, Except. 1—Evidence only indicating that deceased might have abused accused — This is no evidence of grave and sudden provocation to entitle accused to attack unarmed accused with axe, particularly when he had fallen down. M B L J 1955 H C R 1427 : M B L R 1955 (Cri) 244.

—Ss. 300, Exception 1, 304, Part 1 — Husband doubting morality of wife - Effect of wife's words —When amounts to provocation — Offence held one under S. 304, Part 1.

As regards the effect of wife's words on the mind of a jealous husband who doubts the morality of his wife a set of general patterns is traceable, in which there is general judicial opinion that grave and sudden provocation has been caused. Two elements are always found in such cases. The first is speech or conduct on the part of the wife that has altogether been unexpected. The second is a moral revulsion which prompts him to acts of violence which he would not have thought of in a normal state of mind.

When the wife continued by the threatening thereafter to do the very act with which he was charging her and in addition when she insulted him by saying that she wanted him no more, there would be grave provocation and the offence would be one under S. 304 Part I, I. P. C. and not one under S. 302, I. P. C. 1961 Jab L J 1310 : 1962 M P L J 333 : 1962 (2) Cr L J 670 (671) (Prs 6, 7, 8) (Madh-Pra) (DB).

—S. 300, Exception 1—Death as a result of sudden and grave provocation — Quarrel between husband and wife - Relevant factors for applicability of the exception.

The quarrel started between the accused and his wife when the accused returned home late at night (2 a. m). The wife was greatly provoked and stated that she would be better advised to leave him and live with some one else if the husband persisted in his conduct. The accused caught hold of his wife by the hair when she went in and brought a broom-stick and used indecent language of abuse which further aggravated the provocation, culminating in the accused beating her with the broom stick, kicking her and beating her with an iron rod which happened to be there as a result of which she died. In the circumstances:

Held that a husband is likely to be gravely provoked by the threat of his wife to leave him and to live with some one else; if the wife brought a broom-stick and used indecent language of abuse during the course of the quarrel, this is likely to have deprived the husband of all powers of self-control. This is an appropriate case for the award of the benefit of Exception 1 to S. 300 of the Penal Code. The applicability of this Exception has to be judged in relation to the class of persons to whom it is applied, their general habits of living, speech and domestic relations. 1964 M L J (Cr) 121 : (1964) 1 M L J 145.

—S. 300, Exception 1 and S. 302 — Provocation — Deceased nephew, aged 30 years abusing and assaulting uncle (accused) aged 60 years — It is a grave and sudden provocation — Accused allowing his anger to cool down —Deceased found sleeping under tree — Accused dealing blow by yoke on head of deceased— Skull fractured in 15 pieces — Offence held murder. 1954 Cri L J 463 (2) : 1954 Cr L J 1545 : AIR 1954 Mad 1006 (1007) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

—Ss. 300 and 304—Deceased found always teasing accused (a male) that latter is his wife — Provocation leading accused to fatally attack deceased with dao— Offence falls under S. 304 and not S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304. 1953 Cri L J 89 : A I R 1952 Manipur 11 (2).

—S. 300, Exception 1—Provocation— Test—Verbal provocation caused by physical attack.

Whether or not there is provocation in a particular case is essentially a question of fact. There can be no universal rule as to what may amount to provocation. Words alone can never in law amount to sufficient provocation so as to reduce the offence of murder into one of culpable homicide when the act is done with intent to kill. The test, in all such cases is firstly whether the accused was subjected to such provocation as to cause reasonable man to do what he did, and secondly whether the provocation was such that it influenced him so to act. But mere verbal provocation even if it be by threat or gestures or by the use of abusive and insulting language cannot induce a reasonable person to commit an act of violence. The case of provocation caused by physical attack is, on the other hand, different as the instinct of self-defence will be both grave and sudden. In such a case the question is one of degree rather than of kind. But hard words never break bones and the law expects a reasonable person to endure abuse without resorting to fatal violence. There may be circumstances which may merely pre-dispose to a violent act but these are not enough to bring the offender within the exception. The provocation must be an act or series of acts which by their very nature, would induce sudden and temporary loss of self-control in a reasonable man so that it can be said that he is no longer master of his mind. But mere threat which may induce a desire for revenge cannot constitute provocation. 16 Cut L T 102 : ILR (1950) Cut 293 : A I R 1950 Orissa 261 (263) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

—Ss. 300, 299—Exchange of abusive language — Being excited by abusive language and in moment of frustration accused striking deceased on head with halsundi lying nearby — No evidence of previous enmity — Offence held was culpable homicide not amounting to murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1952 Cri L J 1189 : AIR 1952 Pepsu 112 (DB).

9 (E). Provocation not grave and sudden.

—S. 300, Exception 1, S. 302—"Grave and sudden provocation" explained — False accusation of theft— Accused stabbing accuser to death—No grave provocation within the meaning of Exception 1 to S. 300— Case one of murder — But death sentence commuted. 1961 All L J 209 : 1961 All W R (HC) 207 : 1961 All Cri R 90 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 591 : A I R 1961 All 538 (539, 542) (Prs 3, 30, 31) (DB).

—S. 300, Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation — What is — Test to be applied — Husband insisting on wife to part with ornaments on her body —Wife reluctantly throwing the same at him — No provocation. 1961 All W R (H C) 135 : 1961 All Cr R 54 : (1961) All L J 100.

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation – Wife of accused discovered to be thief not grave provocation.

That the wife of the accused was discovered to be a thief might have been a shock to the accused but it is not possible to treat it as a grave provocation. One has to judge these things in the light of reactions of normal human beings and not in the light of hypersensitive and unbalanced individuals. 1960 All W R (HC) 558 : 1960 All Cr R 355 : 1964 All L J 721.

——S. 300—Mutual provocation — Accused stabbing deceased with pen-knife apprehending danger from unarmed relations of deceased — Held although accused acted in exercise of his right of private defence of body, he exceeded the right — Case fell under S. 300, Exception 2—Provocation was not so great as to bring the case within Exception 1 to S. 300. (1965) 2 Andh W R 145 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 440 (Andh Pra).

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation — Deceased challenging members of accused's party and calling for a fight— Accused's party itself responsible for starting whole trouble and for offering earlier provocation—Provocation offered by deceased held was not grave and sudden as contemplated by Exception 1 to S. 300. 1962 (1) Cri L J 394 : A I R 1962 Andh Pra 166 (171) (Pt E) (Pr 43) (DB).

——S. 300—Provocation—Existence of dispute.

The mere existence of a dispute does not invite the commission of an offence of murder. 59 Bom L R 244 : 1957 Cri L J 1107 : I L R (1958) Bom 1092 : AIR 1957 Bom 226 (231) (Pt E) (Pr 15) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 and S. 302 — Deprivation of power of self-control as result of grave and sudden provocation—Degree of loss of power is that envisaged by reasonable man — Reasonable relation of violence to degree of loss of power - Attempt to commit unnatural offence against offender—Infliction of injuries by offender — Injuries resulting in death of victim - Held Except. 1 to S. 300 did not apply — Offender was guily of murder.

Held, (1) that the statement suggested that the accused lost his temper after the stick blow and not before. A stick blow was not grave provocation. This was therefore not a case of the loss of the power of self-control by grave and sudden provocation; (2) that the injuries inflicted on the deceased were not commensurate with the degree of loss of self-control that could be expected in an average person having regard to the nature of provocation consequent on the attempt to commit an unnatural offence; (3) that the accused was not entitled to the benefit of Exception 1 to S. 300, Penal Code, and that it must be inferred that the accused had caused injuries with the intention to cause bodily injuries to the deceased sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death; (4) that the offence committed by the accused amounted to murder punishable under S. 302, Penal Code. 1962 (1) Cri L J 324 : AIR 1962 Guj 39 (43) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 16) (DB)

——S. 300, Except. 1 — Provocation not grave — Attempt to commit unnatural offence.

Assuming that there was, on the part of the deceased, an attempt to commit an unnatural offence evinced by the act of removal of 'langoti' of the accused, mere attempt will not amount to grave provocation as contemplated by Except. 1 to S. 300 although the commission of an unnatural offience may amount to grave provocation. (1837) 8 C and P. 182, Rel. on. 1962 (1) Cri L J 324 : AIR 1962 Guj 39 (41) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation — Wife of accused developing illicit connection with deceased and living with her father — At latter's house deceased insulting accused and saying his wife would not accompany him — Held no grave and sudden provocation. AIR 1955 NUC (Him Pra) 2346.

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 302—Grave and sudden provocation — Long standing feeling of provocation becoming motive — Exception 1 will not apply.

Where the accused had known that the deceased was misbehaving with his mother, that would certainly afford provocation to him to retaliate. But when such feeling of provocation is a long standing one gaining intensity from day to day until finally the person harbouring such feeling yields to the provocation by attacking his enemy, it cannot be said that he is acting under grave and sudden provocation. Feeling of provocation which he was entertaining can only be termed the motive for the act committed by him and when the accused comes to the house, knowing that the deceased is there, to punish the deceased, he cannot be said to have acted under Exception 1 to S. 300. 1962 Ker L J 1094.

——S. 300, Exception 1 — No grave provocation.

To bring the offence under Exception 1 to S. 300, it should be shown that the accused acted while deprived of self-control, due to grave and sudden provocation.

Held, that though the act of the deceased was highly provocative it was not so grave as to provoke a matured man like the accused to stab the deceased (his father) to death. 1959 Ker L R 1457.

——S. 300, Excep. 1 — Applicability — Statement by wife, that she liked to live with her husband's brother during a wordy quarrel between her and her husband — No admission by her of adultery or of a determination to persist in such conduct — Husband killing his wife with axe—Held that though there was some degree of provocation it was not grave and sudden so as to bring the case within exception 1 to S. 300 — Accused held was rightly convicted under S. 302, Penal Code and lesser sentence under S 302 was justified and proper in view of the provocation — 1957-1 M L J (Cr) 271, Dist. 1959 Ker L J 1230 : 1959 K L T 1264 : 1959 Ker L R 1266.

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Provocation — What amounts to.

Where the accused who was charged with killing his wife, mother-in-law and brother in law, well knew before that his wife was unwilling to go with him tried to take her away forcibly from his mother-in-law's house and he was resisted by her relations as they did in the past as well, in these circumstances it could not be said that he did not anticipate the resistence from the relations on the day of occurrence of the offence and consequently when he pleaded that his case fell within Exception 1 to S. 300, it was held that the provocation, if any, could not under the circumstances, be grave and in no event could it be called sudden. 1956 Madh B L R (Cri) 420.

——Ss 300, Exception 1 and 302—Grave and sudden provocation—Wife leaving husband's house — Husband following her with view to bring her back — Wife refusing to return but promising to come back next day—No fowl language used—Husband causing serious injury by dow — Held no grave and sudden provocation — Death of wife — Husband held guily under S. 302. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 1339 (DB).

——S. 300, Except. 1 — Wife within two months of her marriage discovering her husband to be impotent and often running away to her father's place — Husband's impotency given out as reason for her conduct —Wife alleging impotency before Panchas—Accused alleging that he was cured—Wife acceding to the request of Panchas, going to live with husband but again leaving him, finding that there was no change in condition of accused — Accused along with wife's father going to fetch her, to a third person's house where she had gone to stay — Refusal of wife to accompany husband—Accused giving blows with bamboo — Death of wife—Skull found fractured — Held circumstances did not make out a case of sudden and grave provocation. M B L J 1955 H C R 1981 : M B L R 1955 (Cri) 399.

——S. 300, Excep. 1 and S 304, Part 1—Grave and sudden provocation — Accused admitting to have killed deceased with axe — Story set up by him that when his wife had gone to field of deceased which adjoined his field to bring back his bullock which had strayed in there, the deceased abused her—Story not corroborated by near relations who were there—Case of sudden and grave provocation held not proved. M B L J 1955 H C R 1179 : M B L R 1955 (Cri) 184.

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation — Test of — Murder of wife – F. I. R. stating only abuse by her and no other provocating circumstance — No evidence of provocation —Held case not within Exception 1 to S. 300. 1963 Lab L J 137 : 1962 M P L J (Notes) 317 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 596 (Madh Pra).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Sudden and grave provocation—Murder of wife—Course of living constituting continuing course of provocation cannot be considered.

In a case of murder of the wife by her husband, a Court would not be justified in taking into account a certain course of living, which is said to have constituted a continuing course of provocation to one or other spouse, as adequate to attract the Exception 1 to S. 300, when the actual provocation was sudden, but not grave. At any rate, that would indeed be an unsafe doctrine. ILR 2 Mad 122, Disting. I L R (1964) 2 Mad 881 : 1966 Cri L J 222 (223) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (Mad) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 302 — Provocation not grave and sudden—Murder or culpable homicide.

The accused suspected that his wife was in criminal intimacy with one N who was living nearby. On the day of occurrence while the accused was busy in some work in front of his house, his wife passed that way in the direction of N's house. On being questioned by the accused whether she was going to N's house, she replied in a defiant tone that that was her destination. Thereupon the accused tried to prevent her from going there and threatened her with dire consequences if she did not listen. When in spite of this she proceeded in that direction the accused caught her by the tuft of her hair and brutally cut her several times with an aruval resulting in her death :

Held, that in the circumstances of the case the provocation was not sufficiently grave and sudden so as to bring the case within exception 1 to S. 300 and, therefore, the offence was one of murder and not culpable homicide not amounting to murder. (1946) 2 All E R 124, Foll. ; A I R 1925 All 676, Dist. 1954 Cri L J 733 : 1953 Mad W N 945 : A I R 1954 Mad 538 (540) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1, 302 — Accused, himself a married person, in illicit love with brother's widow — Knowledge of widow's illicit intimacy with third person held not grave enough to provoke widow's murder — Illicit intimacy allowed both to accused and another person for time long enough for passions arising out of any provocation to cool down — Provocation held not so sudden. A I R 1962 S C 605, Foll. 30 Cut L T 1 : ILR (1964) Cut 137.

——Ss. 300, Exception 1, 302—Concubine's refusal to marry accused — Accused himself a married man in illicit intimacy with brother's widow — Offer of carriage made to and refused by widow long before her murder — Provocation arising out of refusal to marry held neither grave nor sudden. AIR 1962 S C 605, Foll. 30 Cut L T 1 : ILR (1964) Cut 137.

——S. 300, Exception 1—Sudden provocation — Provocation not sudden when there is some deliberation and desire to have revenge.

Where there is some deliberation and desire to have revenge, it cannot be said that the provocation was so sudden as to deprive the accused of all self-control.

When a person, anticipating entry into the house of another person whom he reasonably suspects to be carrying on illicit intrigue with his wife, is determined to punish him and for that purpose keeps himself ready with a katari by his side and as soon as he notices that person attacks him with that weapon and kills him, it cannot be said that the crime was committed under such sudden provocation as to deprive him of all self-control. There is clear deliberation and attempt to take revenge. 29 Cr L J 454 and A I R 1938 All 532, Distinguished. 25 Cut L T 413 : (1959) 1 Orissa J D 356.

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation — Husband murdering wife on unfounded suspicions about her chastity.

In order to bring a murder under Exception 1 to S. 300, the provocation must be grave and sudden upon an adequate cause and that should be strong enough to make a normal man lose his self-control. The peculiar notions of a man about his wife's subjection to him cannot be allowed to give latitude to murder. The weaker sex is not to be regarded as chattel and a husband cannot be given the right to take the life of his wife on the unfounded suspicions that his wife was carrying on an intrigue with some one else. A I R 1939 Lah 436; A I R 1929 Lah 861; A I R 1933 Lah 126 and A I R 1933 Lah 869, Disting.

(Note. — In this case it was held that there was neither grave nor sudden provocation to the accused, nor had he lost his self-control on any such account and that the case was not covered by Exception 1 to S. 300). 1953 Cri L J 445 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 32 (33) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 302—Grave and sudden provocation.

Where the accused had already purchased a knife and had threatened the wife with murder if she did not mend her ways and after what the wife had said he was not so enraged that there and then he picked up something and struck his wife, but asked her to help him in picking up the chhabri, went upstairs; brought down the dagger, caught hold of his wife, took her inside, chained the door from inside and then gave her dagger blows:

Held : that there was no grave and sudden provocation within S. 300, Exception 1 of the Indian Penal Code, and the accused was rightly convicted under S. 302. 1953 Cri L J 1629 : A I R 1953 Punj 255 (255, 256) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304 — Applicability—Grave and sudden provocation.

The accused heard rumours a week before the occurrence that his wife had illicit intimacy with the deceased. He investigated into these rumours and was confirmed in his mind that the rumour was true. He went to his wife and confronted her with the information. She made a confession which enraged the accused. He bit off her nose then and there and then proceeded to take revenge upon the deceased. He took a dagger from the shop K and went to the shop of the deceased. He attacked him with the dagger and killed him and, after severing his head from his body he went to the police outpost with the head and the dagger and made a report :

Held, that the accused had undoubtedly received some provocation. But this provocation could not be regarded as grave and sudden enough to extenuate the offence under S. 302 to one under S. 304, I. P. C. 1960 Cri L J 520 : A I R 1960 Raj 101 (105) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 — Grave and sudden provocation.

The accused, who was charged with the murder of his wife, pleaded grave and sudden provocation. The defence was that there were rumours regarding the bad character of the wife and when he returned home on the night of the occurrence, he saw a person in the osri of his house and going away. On account of this provocation he dealt numerous dharia blows to the deceased and killed her.

Held that the mere presence of a stranger in the osri would not constitute either grave or sudden provocation, nor would it be such provocation as to deprive him of his self-control. Nor did the fact that the accused had dealt numerous blows to the deceased in a brutal manner suggest that he must have lost self-control and that must have been because of some grave and sudden provocation. 1952 Cri L J 137 : AIR 1952 Sau 3 (6) (Ft B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation—Test to be applied stated — Debtor's conduct in denying liability and asking creditor to resort to his legal remedies is not grave and sudden provocation. A I R 1955 N U C (Trav. Co) 4114 (DB).

9 (F). Proviso 1.

——S. 300, Exception 1 and First Proviso—Provocation not sudden and sought by accused himself.

The provocation, if any, must be not merely sudden nor only grave but must be both grave as well as sudden which alone gives the benefit to the culprit The effect of such grave and sudden provocation, if any, must be the loss of self-control. If there was time enough to cool down and the accused afterwards avenges himself for the insult or offence given, he can hardly plead the extenuating circumstance as enacted.

Held on facts that provocation was not sudden and further was sought by accused himself. Case law discussed. 1952 Cri L J 946 : AIR 1952 Bhopal 21 (23, 24) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 14).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and Proviso 1 and 302 — Grave and sudden provocation — Grave provocation must also be sudden — Provocation must come to offender—He should not go to it — Case held did not fall under Exception I to S. 300. A I R 1955 N U C (Raj) 3452 (DB).

9 (G). Provocation—Burden of proof.

—— S. 300, Exception 1 — Provocation — Burden of proof is on accused to show that he acted under grave and sudden provocation — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105). AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 4525 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1—Grave and sudden provocation — Burden of proof lies on accused — Facts on record must establish provocation not only grave but also sudden- Provocation must be sufficient to deprive ordinarily reasonable man of self-control. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 4315 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 1 Burden of proof—Burden to show that case falls within exception is on accused—To apply Exception 1 to S. 300, he must establish that act has been committed by reason of grave and sudden provocation and it was committed when he was deprived of self control. (Evidence Act (1872), S. 105). AIR 1955 N U C (Madh Bha) 3795 (DB).

10. Exception 2—General.

See also Penal Code (1860), Ss. 96-106.

(A) "In the exercise of the right of private defence."

(B) No right of private defence.

(C) "Exceeds the power given to him by law".

(D) "Without any intention to do more harm than necessary."

10. Exception 2—General.

See also Penal Code (1860), Ss. 96-100.

——Ss. 300, 302, 96 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105—Pleas of self-defence — Accused found to have killed another—Onus is on him to establish that killing was justified—It is however open to an accused person at any stage of the trial to request the Court to examine the evidence and ascertain for itself whether it is consistent with a plea of self-defence. See Evidence Act (1872) S. 105. 1961 (1) Cri L J 15 : A I R 1961 All 38 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 100, 302—Plea of self-defence—Duty of Court and the prosecution — Benefit of doubt to be given to accused. See Penal Code (1860), S. 100. 1960 Ker L J 597.

——S. 300—Accused not pleading private defence — Evidence disclosing exercising of the right—Accused is entitled to its benefit. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1959 Ker L T 796 : 1959 Ker L J 1313.

——S. 300 - Omission to plead right of self-defence—This will not influence the Court in concluding that the plea of self-defence was not available to the accused to any degree. 1957 Cri L J 635 : A I R 1957 Ker 53 (54) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 99 — Burden of proof — Plea of self-defence—Onus of proof.

Where the evidence in the case clearly shows that accused was responsible for causing two injuries on P and one injury on M, if accused is to be exonerated from blame, it is clearly on him to show that he had justification for inflicting those injuries, or rather that he acted in self-defence. 1955 Cri LJ 852: I L R (1954) Trav-Co 1308 : 1954 Ker L T 920 : AIR 1955 Trav Co 104 (106) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

10 (A). "In the exercise of the right of private defence."

——S. 300—Right of private defence—Right held not exceeded. See Penal Code (1860), S. 99. 1952 Cri L J 1366 : AIR 1952 Bhopal 25.

——S. 300—Infuriated persons trespassing into accused's house — Accused placed in dangerous situation—Apprehension of death or serious injury -Trespassers not armed with dangerous weapons—Accused held entitled to right of private defence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 100. 1959 Ker L J 1313 : 1959 Ker L T 796.

——S. 300—Right of private defence of body — Accused, deceased and some others playing cards — Verbal altercations leading to blows — Deceased aggressor and beating accused — Accused caught hold of by friend of deceased — Accused severely beaten, getting exhausted and falling down—Deceased again attacking — Accused taking out knife and stabbing deceased fearing death at hands of deceased and attempting to run away — Friend of deceased following accused—Fearing renewal of attack accused using knife and wounding the friend—Accused held acted in self-defence in both cases and that in doing so he did not exceed his right. See Penal Code (1860), S. 99. 1957 Ker L J 413.

——Ss. 300, 304 (Part I), 96 and 102—Applicability—Deceased striking his mother and accused intending to kill with handle of spade — Accused snatching handle—Deceased trying to snatch back — Accused giving blows on head of deceased — Fracture and death—Offence.

On a quarrel between mother and son the latter slapped the mother. The accused intervened but the son took up a handle of a spade and rushed at them. Evidence showed that the accused had declared that the son would kill the mother as well as the accused. The accused snatched the handle resisting the attempt of the deceased son to snatch it back, gave two blows on the head of the son resulting in multiple fracture and death. In his trial for murder the accused pleaded right of self defence, but the Sessions Judge convicted him under S. 304, Part I and sentenced him to 5 years' R. I.

Held, in appeal, that in the circumstances of the case, the intention of the deceased to kill his mother and the accused being proved, the accused could not be convicted of murder or of culpable homicide not amounting to murder as he hit the deceased in self-defence. The extent to which the exercise of the right of self-defence will be justified will depend not on the actual danger but on whether there was reasonable apprehension of such danger. If the accused, already provoked as he was consequent upon the assault on the mother first and on him later on by the deceased, after snatching the handle and gave two blows by the same in the heat of moment, evidently with the sole intention of disabling the assailant he could not be said to have exceeded his right of self-defence. AIR 1959 S C 165, Rel on. As the intention to cause death was not established, the fight being sudden and unpremeditated, there could be no conviction under S. 304, Part I, Penal Code. 1960 M P L J (Notes) 34.

—S. 300 — Applicability — Deceased giving lathi blow to accused — Accused snatching lathi from deceased and giving blows on head of deceased — Deceased dying — Accused held not guilty under S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 100. A I R 1955 N U C (Orissa) 6106 (DB).

10(B). No right of private defence.

—S. 300, Exception 2—Deceased peacefully cutting crops—Accused claiming the crops attacking the deceased in furtherance of common intention and killing them — Exception 2 to S. 300 does not apply to the case of accused. See Penal Code (1860), S. 103. 1965 (1) Cri L J 242 : AIR 1965 S C 257.

— S. 300—Accused robbing a boy at point of knife —Deceased accosting the accused tried to apprehend him in discharge of his duty under S. 59, Criminal P. C.—Accused stabbing the deceased on vital spot—Defence of grave and sudden provocation, held not tenable in the circumstances. I L R (1956) Hyd 914.

—S. 300 — Free fight between the parties—Accused beating the adversary even though he had fallen and was completely overpowered — Adversary dying — Accused had no right of private defence and was guilty of murder.

Held, on facts that the deceased died of homicidal violence. There was no evidence to establish that the appellant could have any bona fide claim of right to the land which the deceased was ploughing and consequently in entering that field which at that moment was in possession of the deceased and which he was then ploughing, the appellant was guilty of criminal trespass and unauthorised aggression. He, therefore, under the circumstances established in the case, could not validly claim any right of defence of his property or person. In any case, as both the appellant and the deceased had no right or title to the land then being ploughed by the deceased, they would be guilty of a free fight where both would be guilty of their individual acts and as the appellant had beaten his adversary to death, he would be guilty of murder and his plea of right of private defence was rightly rejected. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 83.

—S. 300, Exception 1 — "Grave and sudden provocation".

The deceased was on the top of a cocoanut tree for tapping it. The accused questioned him as to who was on the top of the tree and the deceased announced his identity. When the accused interrogated him as to with whose permission he was climbing the trees, the deceased replied that he need not ask for anybody's permission as he (deceased) was Pattomdar. The accused then stated that if he wanted to exercise his rights as Pattombar, he must pay the pattom to him (accused). The deceased stated that he had paid portion of the pattom due for that year and has also paid the advance and therefore he would pay the Pattom only from next year onwards. The accused persisted that unless he was paid, the deceased could not climb the trees in that garden. In the course of this altercation the accused stabbed the deceased which caused the death of the deceased.

Held, that the plea of grave and sudden provocation would not apply, because it was the accused who picked up quarrel with the deceased. (1961) 1 Mad L J 307 : 1961 M L J (Cr) 241 : ILR (1960) Mad 1082.

—Ss. 300, 96, 97, 104 — Deceased in possession of disputed land sowing bangi variety of paddy 4 or 5 days prior to occurrence — Accused claiming to have purchased land coming for first time on date of occurrence and starting ploughing land and not heeding to protests by deceased — Deceased giving blow with lathi on head of accused causing simple injury — Accused dealing fatal blow to deceased thereafter —Right of private defence of property held available to deceased — Accused held not to have right of private defence of person.

The crucial test for deciding whether a right of private defence of property is available or not, is whether the harm to the property committed by the offender is immediate or not. The concept will vary according to facts and circumstances of each case and no hard and fast rule can be laid down to determine the character of the harm.

The deceased (exercising the right of private defence of property) was in possession of the disputed land as bhag tenant and had showed bangi variety of paddy which was likely to germinate soon, 4 or 5 days prior to the date of occurrence. The accused claiming to have purchased the land came to enforce this right for the first time on the date of occurrence and started ploughing the land and continued to do so in spite of the fact that the deceased arrived on the spot and tried to dissuade him from doing the unlawful act of criminal trespass and mischief. The police station was about 7 miles from the place of occurrence. On refusal by the accused to listen, the deceased gave a blow on the head of the accused causing a simple injury on his head. The accused thereafter gave the fatal blow with a lathi on the head of the deceased.

Held, that the harm that was being caused to the property of the deceased by the accused was immediate and as there was no time to take recourse to the protection of the public authorities to prevent the loss, that would have been caused to him, the right of private defence of property was available to the deceased. That inasmuch as the infliction of the injuries on the accused by the deceased in exercise of his right of private defence was not an offence under S. 96, the accused had no right of private defence of person. AIR 1948 Pat 294, Disting. (1963) 29 Cut L T 245.

——S. 300, Excep. 2—Accused himself being aggressor — Plea of self-defence, if available.

A person cannot avail himself of the plea of self-defence in a case of homicide when he was himself the aggressor and wilfully brought on himself without legal excuse the necessity for the killing. It would be strange indeed if a person who provokes an attack, brings on a combat and then slays his assailant, were to take shelter behind the plea of self-defence in justification of the blow which he struck during the encounter. 53 Punj L R 284 : 52 Cri L J 1517 : ILR (1951) Punj 202 : AIR 1951 Punj 137 (140) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 2 and 100—Plea of self-defence —When not available stated—See Penal Code, Ss. 100 and 300, Exception 2. AIR 1950 East Punj 325.

——Ss. 300 and 97 — Fight for possession of land — Right of private defence—One of complainant's party dying — Right of private defence not exceeded — Neither party can claim right of private defence. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 15 : 1958 Raj L W 24 : 1958 Cri L J 222 : AIR 1958 Raj 52 (55, 56) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 12, 13) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 103, 104, 99, 100 — Right of private defence of property, when extends to causjng death indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 103. AIR 1951 Sau 1 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 2 — Held, no right of self-defence — Right if existed, had been exceeded.

From the mere fact that the deceased, who was unarmed started the abuse or he went near to the accused, it cannot be taken that he had any aggressive intention, justifying the use of a pen-knife on the part of the accused, even granting that the accused apprehended that the deceased might cause him injury and that he had right of private defence. 51 Cri L J 653 : AIR 1950 Tra-Co 12 (12) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

10 (C). "Exceeds the power given to him by law".

——S. 300 — Deceased entering appellant's house at night in prosecution of his intrigue with appellant's daughter — Assault by appellant and his companions — Injuries caused leading to death — Appellant held had right of private defence — Held, also that he did not exceed the right — Conviction under S. 302 set aside. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. ILR (1960) 2 All 235.

——S. 300 — Applicability — Cattle of deceased grazing on presumed grass of accused — Accused rounding up cattle to take them to cattle pound — Deceased forcibly taking away cattle from possession of accused — Deceased though armed with lathi not using it — Accused hitting deceased with lathi on head — Death of deceased as result of injury — Accused held exceeded right of private defence — Act covered by Exception 2 to S. 300 — Conviction should be under S. 304, Part I and not Part II. See Penal Code (1860), S. 99. 1953 Cri L J 1275 : AIR 1953 All 555.

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304 — Mutual provocation — Accused stabbing deceased with a pen-knife apprehending danger from unarmed relations of deceased —Act of stabbing, if comes within Exception 1 or 2.

The deceased, on seeing the accused coming along a road on his way home, went up and asked him why he had beaten his son (P. W. 1) in the morning. The accused did not regret his act but gave a challenging reply provoking the deceased to catch hold of his tuft and they began to exchange blows. When P. Ws. 1 to 4 approached them with the intention of helping the deceased, the accused stabbed the deceased and P. W. 1 and escaped. The Sessions Judge convicted the accused under S. 302, Penal Code, and an appeal was preferred to the High Court. Held, that the accused had reason to apprehend that he could not escape, except by using against the deceased before P. Ws. 1 to 4 pounced upon him, the pen-knife which happened to be in his possession. Although the accused acted in the exercise of his right of private defence of the body he exceeded that right and came under Exception 2 to S. 300, Penal Code. There was mutual provocation in the case and it cannot be said that the provocation to the accused was so grave as to bring his act of stabbing the deceased within Exception 1 to S. 300, Penal Code. (1965) 2 An W R 145 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 440 (442, 443) (Pt B) (Prs. 10, 12, 14) (Andh Pra) (DB).

——S. 300, Except. 2, S. 99 and S. 100 — Attempt to commit unnatural offence against offender — Injuries inflicted on and consequent death of victim — Right of private defence pleaded — More harm caused than necessary—No right of private defence. 1962 (1) Cri L J 324 : AIR 1962 Guj 39 (41) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception II — Applicability — Right of private defence exceeded—Effect.

Even when the right of private defence is exceeded and even when more harm was done than was necessary for the purpose of private defence, Exception II would apply provided (1) the accused caused the death of a person without premeditation and (2) provided that when the accused caused the death of a person he had no intention of doing more harm than was nceessary for the purpose of defence. It is important to note that these two provisos have reference to the act of causing death which amouts to culpable homicide. (1960) 1 Guj L R 151 : (1961) 2 Guj H C R 10 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 813 (814) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (Guj) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 2 and S. 304, Part 1 — Accused snatching away axe from deceased and hitting him back—Act in excess of right of private defence — Offence held fell under Excep. 2 of S. 300. Madh B L J 1955 H C R 1744 : Madh B L R 1955 Cr 350 : 1956 Cri L J 70 : A I R 1956 Madh B 23 (25) (Pt B) (Prs 20, 22) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 2, 430 and 103 — Exceeding right of private defence in preventing mischief and causing death—Offence.

The accused used a heavy instrument like a spade on the head of the deceased so forcibly as to fracture the skull extensively and injure the brain causing his death. Where the deceased was committing the specific offence of mischief enumerated in S. 430, Penal Code, i.e., by wrongfully diverting water, the accused was justified in preventing him forcibly from consummating that mischief in defence of the property of his master. The accused was held however to have clearly exceeded the right of private defence and therefore his act fell within the Exception 2 to S. 300, Penal Code and the conviction under S. 304 (Part II) of the Penal Code had to be confirmed. 1959 Mad W N 585 : (1960) 1 M L J 341 : 1960 M L J (Cr) 251 : 1960 Cri L L J 834 : 1960 All W R (Sup) 23 : 1960 All Cr R 219 : A I R 1960 Mad 240 (244) (Pt D) (Pr 20) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 2 — Exceeding right of private defence — Indiscriminate beating of deceased—Case held not covered by Exception 2. See Penal Code (1860), S. 105. (1965) 31 Cut L T 265.

——Ss. 300, 149, 304, Part 2—Land dispute — Prosecution party trying to take forcible possession—Protest by defence party in possession — Aggression by prosecution party — Attack with lathis by defence party, resulting in fatal injuries — No evidence to prove apprehension of death or grievous hurt to members of defence party—Members of defence party held exceeded right of private defence and were guilty under S. 304, Part 2.

Held, on facts, that although the defence (accused) party might have had a right of private defence, they exceeded that right by inflicting fatal blows on the members of the prosecution party. The weapons used were lathis and the accused must have known that injuries inflicted with such weapons were likely to cause death, even though they had no intention either to cause death or grievous bodily injury. In those circumstances, the accused were not guilty of murder but were guilty under second part of S 304. 29 Cut L T 15 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 700 (704) (Pt D) (Pr 17) (Orissa) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Excep. II and S. 304, Part 1—Exceeding right of private defence of property—Death caused — —Case falls within purview of S. 300 Excep. II and accused can be convicted under S. 300, Part 1—No enmity of any kind alleged between accused and deceased — Incident not the outcome of deliberate desire on the part of accused to take life—Accused of good character—Sentence of 7 years' R. I. reduced to five years. (1951) 3 Pepsu L R 620 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 2 — Applicability — Accused molesting wife of deceased—On complaint by wife of deceased, the deceased and his father going to the house of the accused, probably armed, to remonstrate him — Accused killing deceased by causing him injuries with barcha blows—Circumstances showing that the accused did have apprehension of danger though not reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt —Although right of private defence to the extent of killing deceased may not be proved, case held fell under S. 101, Penal Code and therefore came within exception 2 to S. 300 — Accused held guilty under S. 304, Part. 1 and not under S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 101. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 4939 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 2 and Ss. 100, 103—Deceased seen stealing sugarcane from field of accused —Accused fetching axe and dealing blow on deceased—Death — Offence — Right of private defence of property.

The right of private defence against theft continues till the offender has effected his retreat with the property or till the property has been recovered. But where the deceased who was in the habit of stealing sugarcane from the field of the accused, was seen by the accused, taking away a bundle of sugarcane, and the accused went home and fetched an axe and gave a blow on the head of the deceased, who immediately fell down unconscious and was completely at the mercy of the accused, it could not be said that after the deceased had fallen down completely prostrated and the stolen property thrown on the ground the right of private defence still continued and extended to inflicting two more fatal blows to the deceased, so severe and brutal as to lead to the inference that the accused had the intention to cause the death of the deceased. In such circumstances the case of the accused neither fell under S. 103 giving absolute immunity nor under exception 2 to S. 300 to reduce the offence to culpable homicide not amounting to murder but fell under S. 302. AIR 1951 Sau 1 (3, 5) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 12) (DB).

10 (D). "Without any intention to do more harm than is necessary."

——S. 300, Exception 2—Applicability.

Accused 1 had invited accused 2 to go over to his residence during the night of murder and there he joined hands with accused 1 in bringing about the death of a woman by tightening the copper wire around her neck. Accused 2 admitted having held one end of the wire and helped accused I to strangulate the victim. He however stated that when he went there he found a quarrel between accused 1 and the deceased wowan and he entered the hut only after hearing the cries of the woman and that then he found that accused 1 had already put the copper wire around her neck and was tightening it while the woman was holding accused 1 by his private parts.

Held, that assuming there was occasion to defend or protect the person of accused 1, accused 2 not only far exceeded that right but even on his own showing also engaged himself in tightening the wire even after the woman fell down. The woman died soon after. Even if his version were fully accepted, Exception 2, S. 300 Penal Code would have no application to such deliberate act of strangulating a woman to death. Not only could there have been any good faith for the action but it was also clear that more harm than was necessary for the purpose of defending accused 1 was caused. 1958 Ker L T 761 : 1958 Ker L J 985 : 1959 Cri L J 137 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 369 : AIR 1959 Ker 46 (50) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

11. Exception 3.

——Ss. 300, Exception 3, 302 and 304 — Police constable while attempting to re-arrest escaped thief firing at him but hitting another person—Offence.

A suspected thief who had been arrested by the Police Constables escaped from the running train. One of the Constables pursued him with a view to effect his re-arrest and when he was not in a position to apprehend him, he fired at him but in that process he hit the fireman of the engine and killed him.

Held, that the case was covered by Exception 3 to S. 300, Penal Code. The constable no doubt exceeded the powers given to him by law and caused the death of the fireman by doing an act which he, in good faith, believed to be lawful and necessary for the due discharge of his duty. In such circumstances the offence that was committed was culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under S. 304, Part 2, Penal Code, and not under S. 302. 1955 Cri L J 905: AIR 1955 All 379 (382) (Pt A) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 76 and 79—Murder by soldier — Plea of obedience to order of superior, when not available.

Obedience of an unlawful order of his superior, does not exonerate or excuse the soldier who commits a murder as a consequence of such an order. To plead that he acted in obedience to the order of his superior will not excuse him where the order is unlawful.

Information was received that some persons were gambling in a tent. A party consisting of A, as superior officer and B, a soldier, was sent to make an enquiry into this matter. The party arrived outside the tent and surrounded it. Soon after this the report of a gun was heard and the deceased who was inside the tent was found to have been shot dead. At the trial B admitted that he had fired the shot but pleaded that he had done so in obedience to the orders of his superior :

Held, (1) that the order issued by A was wholly unjustified and unlawful and therefore B was not bound to obey it;

(2) that B was guilty of the offence of murder; and

(3) that neither Ss. 76, 79 nor Exception 3 to S. 300 applied. 52 Pun L R 331 : I L R (1950) Punj 354 : AIR 1950 East Punj 321 (322) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

12. Exception 4—Scope and applicability.

(A) "Without premeditation."

(B) "In a sudden fight".

(C) "In the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel."

(D) "Without offender's ..... unusual manner."

12. Exception 4 — Scope and applicability.

——Ss. 300, Excep. 4, 302 and 304, Part II—Applicability.

Sudden altercation between accused and deceased ensuing in free fight between two parties in which each party assaulted the other with sticks in their hand—Accused dealing only one blow on deceased resulting in his death—Injuries suffered by both sides evenly distributed—Accused receiving several injuries including injury on head and fracture of bone—Accused held entitled to benefit of exception to S. 300 and was guilty under S. 304, Part 2 and not under S. 302. Prandas v. State, 1954 Cri L J 331: AIR 1954 SC 36 (39) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——S. 300, Exception 4—Applicability—Accused held not entitled to benefit of Exception 4. AIR 1955 N U C (Ajmer) 4732.

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304—Scope—Conditions for applicability of Exception 4 to S. 300—Accused dealing only one lathi blow in sudden quarrel on head of deceased who was unarmed — Death—Murder or culpable homicide.

The relations between the accused and the deceased were strained because the accused wanted to build a ghar on the disputed land and the deceased was not allowing him to do it. There was a sudden altercation with exchange of abuses between the two over this dispute and the accused gave only one lathi blow on the head of the deceased who was unarmed, resulting in his death on the spot. The accused was tried for murder but was convicted under S. 304, Penal Code, and sentenced to 9 years' R. I.

Held, (i) To bring the case within Exception 4 to S. 300, it was necessary that all the ingredients of that exception should have been present. Since the accused was armed with lathi and the deceased was not, it must be held that the accused took undue advantage of the situation of his opponent. Further though there was sudden quarrel there was no fight since there was but one blow dealt by the accused only. Hence the accused was not entitled to the benefit of Exception 4 to S. 300. (ii) That the act of the accused was one of murder as the case fell within clause thirdly under S. 300, Penal Code. The only intention qua the act which caused the death that need be proved is the intention to cause the bodily injury actually found, and that the other requirement as to the nature of the injury inflicted being such as to be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death should be established objectively independently of the intention of the accused: 1936 All L J 335 and AIR 1916 Bom 191, held no longer good law in view of AIR 1958 S C 465. (iii) Since the injury caused depressed fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain, and death was instantaneous on receipt of it, the injury was undoubtedly such as to be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. In this view the offence committed was one of murder under S. 302, Penal Code 1959 All W R (HC) 505: 1959 Cri L J 158: 1959 All Cr R 424: A I R 1959 All 131 (132, 133) (Prs 6 to 9).

——S. 300, Excep. 4—Scope and applicability.

Exception 4 will not come into play every time that a quarrel takes place suddenly; for its applicability a number of facts are required in addition to the suddenness of fight; there must be heat of passion, sudden fight and absence of undue advantage or of acting in a cruel or unusual manner. 1953 Cri L J 1505: ILR (1954) 1 All 214: AIR 1953 All 668 (670) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 96, Exception 4—Applicability—Sudden fight—One person deliberately attacking another—Offence.

If some persons deliberately go to another with the intention of attacking him, that can never be a case of free fight or sudden fight. That would be a case where the latter would be entitled to the right of private defence in order to ward off the attack on him by the former. (1960) 1 Gui H C R 134: (1960) 1 Gui L R 157: 1961 (1) Cri L J 54 (2): A I R 1961 Guj 8 (10) (At C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 4—Applicability.

Where from words the parties come to blows and if after exchange of blows on equal terms, one of the parties without any such intention at the commencement of the affray snatches a deadly weapon and kills the other party with it, such a killing will be only manslaughter. But if a party under colour of fighting upon equal terms, uses from the beginning of the contest a deadly weapon without the knowledge of the other party and kills the other party with such a weapon, or if, at the beginning of the contest he prepares a deadly weapon so as to have the power of using it at some part of the contest and uses it accordingly in the course of the combat, and kills the other party with the weapon, the killing in both these cases will be murder. As long as the fight is unpremeditated and sudden, the accused irrespective of his conduct before the fight, earns the mitigation provided for in the Exception 4 to S. 300 subject to the condition that he did not in the course of the fight take undue advantage or act in a cruel or unusual manner. 1959 Cr L J 993: 1959 Mad W N 215: AIR 1959 Mad 323 (327) (Pt D) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Excep. 4, 302 and 304—Applicability.

Where the accused dragged the deceased, his father (who remonstrated with him about his waywardness) and made him lie down and when he was in that posture and trying to extricate himself the accused threw stones on his head with force, resulting in fracture of the skill with instantaneous death:

Held, that the offence committed was one of murder and exception 4 to S. 300 could not be invoked in such a case. (1954) 2 M L J 398: 1954 Mad W N 332: 1954 Cr L J 1443: AIR 1954 Mad 948 (949) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 4—Mutual fight—Neither party having right of self-defence—Consequences.

In the case of a mutual fight, where neither party had the right of private defence the question as to which party was the aggressor in such a circumstance would be immaterial. When neither party had a cause to fight and if they do fight, both the parties would become members of an unlawful assembly as soon as the fight develops, if the number of either side is more than 5, and they would be guilty of the consequences that follow. I L R (1964) 43 Pat 156.

——S. 300, Excep. 4 — Applicability indicated See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 3280 (DB).

——S. 300 Exception 4 — Fight—What is.

Before a case can come within the ambit of the exception 4 to S. 300, it must be shown that there was fight, which implies mutual attack by both the parties, or at least an actual attack by one party and preparation to attack by the other. Where it was all one-sided after and only the accused and their companions caused injuries to their opponents and the latter did not even attempt to retaliate, the exception can have no application. (1950) 2 Pepsu L R 288 (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 4—Applicability.

The help of the Exception 4 to S. 300 can be invoked if and only if death is caused (a) without premeditation (b) in a sudden fight (c) without the offender's having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner. To bring a case within this Exception all the ingredients mentioned in it must be found. 53 Punj L R 284: 52 Cri L J 1517: I L R (1951) Punj 202: AIR 1951 Punj 137 (138) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

12 (A). "Without premeditation".

——S. 300. Excep. 4, Ss 302 and 304—Applicability—Deceased just finishing bath in public street—M & D asking him to refrain from taking bath in public street which was frequented by women—Deceased protesting and claiming his right as member of public to have bath at public tap—M & D remonstrating and pushing him from tap into street—Exchange of abuse and tempers running high—One of accused passing on knife to M who plunging it into chest of accused—Accused succumbing during night—Exception 4 to S. 300 applied—M was guilty under S. 304 and not under S. 302. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 3432 (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 4 — Without pre-meditation—Meaning.

Exception 4 comes into play only if death is caused without pre-meditation. To constitute a pre-meditated killing, it is necessary that the accused should have reflected with a view to determine whether he would kill or not; and that he should have determined to kill as the result of that reflection; that is to say, the killing should be a pre-determined killing upon consideration and not a sudden killing under the momentary excitement and impluse of passion upon provocation given at the time or so recently before as not to allow time for reflection. 53 Punj LR 284 : 52 Cr L J 1517 : I L R (1951) Punj 202 : AIR 1951 Punj 137 (140) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 4 — Without pre-meditation — Proof of.

Prermeditation may be established by direct or positive evidence or by circumstantial evidence. Evidence of pre-meditation can be furnished by former grudges or previous threats and expressions of ill-feeling; by acts of preparation to kill, such as procuring a deadly weapon or selecting a dangerous weapon in preference to one less dangerous and by the manner in which the killing was committed. For example, repeated shots, blows or other acts of violence, are sufficienl evidence of pre-meditation. Pre-meditation is not proved from the mere fact of killing by the use of a deadly weapon but must be shown by the manner of the killing and circumstances, under which it was done or from other facts in evidence. 53 Punj L R 284 : 52 Cri L J 1517 : I L R (1951) Punj 202 : A I R 1951 Punj 137 (140) (Pt E) (Pr 14) (DB).

12 (B). "In a sudden fight".

■——S 300, Excep. 4 — Applicability—Contending factions meeting accidentaily and attacking each other—Offence.

Where a mutual conflict develops and there is no reliable and acceptable evidence as to how it started and as to who was the aggressor, it will not be correct to assume private defence for both sides. Such a case will be a case of sudden fight and conflict and has to be dealt with under S. 300, I. P. Code. Exception 4. Jumman v. The State of Punjab, 1957 Cr L J 586: AIR 1957 S C 469 (474) (Pt C) (Pr 24).

■——Ss. 300, Exception 4, 302 and 304, Part 1 — Applicability — Sudden and free fight between two contending parties armed with deadly weapons —Death—Offence.

Proceedings under S. 145, Cr. P. Code were pending with regard to a dispute regarding shamilat land between the party of the accused and the party of the deceased. On the day of occurrence there was a sudden and free fight in the course of which the deceased M died by reason of the injury inflicted by the appellant, one of the accused, by a sharp-edged instrument without any premeditation. The evidence established that the deceased's party was also armed with dangerous weapons and though the appellant had received only minor injuries, the other accused had received incised wounds. Both, the lower Courts found the appellant guilty under S. 302 and sentenced him to transportation for life. On appeal by special leave:

Held, (1) When two such contending parties, each armed with sharp edged weapon clashed and in the course of a free fight some injuries were inflicted on one party or the other, it cannot be said that either of them acted in a cruel or unusual manner. (2) On the findings arrived by the High Court the case against the appellant clearly falls within Exception 4 of section 300 of the Indian Penal Code. (3) That at the time the appellant caused the injury he did it with the intention of causing death or such bodily injury as was likely to cause death and therefore, the offence is one under Part I of section 304 and not under S. 302 of the Indian Penal Code. Dharman v. State of Punjab, 1957 S C R. 1 : 1957 Cri L J 420 : AIR 1957 S C 324 (326) (Pt B) Prs 7, 10).

——S 300, Exception 4 — Applicability — Sudden fight — Prosecution evidence unreliable — Duty of Court — Conviction—Legality.

The occasion to use Exception 4 to S. 300 arises only when it is found that the accused has committed culpable homicide and the Court is to determine whether it amounts to murder or not. A person who causes the death of another in the exercise of the right of private defence of person does not commit the offence of culpable homicide as defined in S. 299, I. P. Code and therefore no question can ever arise for determining whether he has committed the offience of murder. Consequently, no occasion will arise to determine whether his case comes under Exception 4 to S. 300 I. P. Code or not. An occasion to consider the applicability of this Exception will thus arise where the accused, who had no right of private defence of person, had caused the death of another in circumstances which according to him would bring his case within Exception 4

Where a fight between two parties leading to death was a sudden one and without premeditation and the prosecution has led no reliable evidence to determine which party was the aggressor, the aid of Exception 4 to S. 300 cannot be invoked for the purpose of recording a conviction. The Court has still to decide who started the fight and who was the aggressor. It cannot follow the path of least resistance and convict both parties by holding that the fight was a free one. If the prosecution evidence is unworthy of credence, the onus still lies on the Court to arrive at a finding on the basis of probabilities : Criminal Appeals Nos. 804, 805 and 1044 of 1955, dated 3rd December, 1957 (All), Foll. 1960 Cri L J 1179 : AIR 1960 All 567 (569) (Pr 9).

——S. 300, Exception 4 — 'Fight' — Essentials.

In order to constittue fight it is necessary that blows should be exchanged and it is not necessary that weapons should be used. 1959 Cri L J 993 : 1959 Mad W N 215 : AIR 1959 Mad 323 (327) (Pt C) (Pr 27) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 4 — "Fight" meaning of.

The term 'fight' occurring in Excep. 4 to S. 300 is not defined in the Code. It takes two to make a fight. It is not necessary that weapons should be used in a fight. An affray can be a fight even if only one party in the fight is successful in lending a blow on his opponent. In order to consitute fight, it is necessary that blows should be exchanged even if they do not all find their target. 57 Punj L R 437: 1955 All W R (Supp) 107 : 1955 Cri L J 1283 : I L R (1955) Punj 1252 : AIR 1955 Punj 191 (192)(Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 4 and 304, Part I — Sudden fight—Sentence.

On quarrel arising between A and B, both grappling with each other and catching hold of each other's long hair — On B shouting his relatives, including C, coming to the spot. Some helpers of A also coming — Grappling itself turning into free fight in which C giving fatal blow with his spear to A B and C also receiving injuries at the hands of relations of deceased A — Held, that case was one of sudden fight and fell within exception 4 to S. 300. Offence of C, therefore, fell under S. 304, Part I and sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment would meet the ends of justice. 1954 Cri L J 746 : 56 Punj L R 106 : AIR 1954 Punj 121 (121) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

12 (C). "In the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel".

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304, Part 2—Applicability.

The circumstances as found by the Court were that there was a severe exchange of abuses between the parties preceding the incident, that during the abuse the temper rose and both the parties came out of their respective houses in anger and that in the course of quarrel the accused dealt the fatal blow on the head of the deceased with his lathi.

Held, that even though the circumstances were such as not to bring the case within Exception 1 to S. 300 the crime was committed without premeditation in a sudden fight in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel and without the accused having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner thus bringing the case within Exception 4 thereto with the result that the offence committed was culpable homicide not amounting to murder. The accused therefore could not be convicted of having committed an offence under S. 302 of the Indian Penal Cede.

Held, further, that when the fatal injury was inflicted by the accused on the head of the deceased by only one blow it could as well be that the act by which death was caused was not done with the intention of causing death or of causing such bodily injury as was likely to cause death. The act appeared to have been done with the knowledge that it was likely to cause death, but without any intention to cause death or to cause such bodily injury as was likely to cause death within the meaning of Part II S. 304 of the Penal Code. Chamru v. The State of M. P., 1954 Cri L J 1676 : AIR 1954 S C 652 (653) (Prs 4, 5).

——Ss. 300, 302, 325 — Accused persons attacking deceased with sticks indiscriminately and one of them hitting him on head — Accused guilty under S. 325 and not under S. 302.

Where the accused persons attacked the deceased indiscriminately with sticks and one of them hit him on the head, the accused cannot be convicted under S. 302 as it is not a murderous attack, death being neither known to be likely nor intended. They should, however, be held to have known that they were likely to cause grievous hurt and are guilty under S. 325. 51 Cri L J 363 : AIR 1950 Kutch 2 (3) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

—— S. 300, Thirdly and Exception 4 — Applicability — Family quarrel suddenly taking serious turn — Accused giving one stab of knife in abdomen — Victim dying within one hour — Offence.

Held, that in the family quarrel which had taken a serious turn, though there was neither premeditation nor any deliberate intention to kill on the part of the accused the injury was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death and as the accused did intend to cause the injury of such nature the case clearly fell under clause 'thirdly' of S. 300 and the offence was punishable under S. 302.

Further that the case did not fall under the fourth exception as the accused had failed to establish that he stabbed the victim in the heat of passion without taking any undue advantage and without acting in a cruel or unusual manner. 38 Mys L J 352 : I L R (1960) Mys 571 : 1960 Mad L J (Cr) 808 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 120 : AIR 1961 Mys 21 (24, 25) (Pt B) (Prs 16, 22) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 4, S. 304—Applicability — Free fight taking place between accused and deceased and their associates — Accused beating deceased in heat of passion without premeditation — Accused held punishable under S. 304, second part. AIR 1955 N U C (Nag) 3957 (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 4 — Applicability — Stabbing without pre-meditation and in heat of passion but no sudden fight.

The mere exchange of hot words does not constitute a fight, even though it may be regarded as a quarrel.

Where there was no sudden fight between the accused and the deceased and the accused caused the death of the deceased by plunging spear into his abdomen :

Held, that the accused was guilty of murder. Exception 4 did not apply even though the accused acted without pre-meditation and in the heat of passion. AIR 1933 Pat 508; AIR 1943 Pat 397 and AIR 1940 Mad 293, Rel. on. (1950) 2 Pepsu L R 639 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302, 304 Pt 1 — Sudden and unpremeditated fight — Both parties inflicting injuries by weapons — Death of one person — Case held covered by Exception 4 of S. 300 — Conviction under S. 302 altered to that under S. 304 Pt. I — Sentence of transportation reduced to 5 years' R. I. 52 Cri L J 1034 : AIR 1951 Raj 129 (131) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

12 (D). "Without offender's . . . . . unusual manner."

——S. 300, Exception 4—Applicability.

The fight was between V and the accused. The deceased had no hand in it. He did not even try to separate the assailants. All that he did was to ask V to stop fighting and said that he would settle the dispute. The accused thereupon stabbed the deceased causing injury resulting in death.

Held, that the exception requires that no undue advantage be taken of the other side. It was impossible to say that there was no undue advantage when the accused stabbed the unarmed person who made no threatening gesture and merely asked the accused's opponent to stop fighting. Then also, the fight must be with the person who is killed. Here the fight was between V and the accused. The exception, therefore, did not apply. Narayanan Nair v. State of Travancore Cochin, 1956 Cri L J 278 : 1956 All W R (Sup) 28 : 1956 Ker L T 92: AIR 1956 S C 99 (101) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——S. 300 — Question as to what is "undue advantage" in each particular case is a question of fact and no question of law is involved. The case involving interpretation of those words does not fall under Art. 134 (1), Cls. (a) and (b). AIR 1954 Ajmer 7 (1) (7) (Pr 2).

——S. 300—No enmity between accused and deceased — On trivial quarrel accused momentarily losing temper and giving stick blow on head of deceased — Held though accused could be imputed with knowledge that the hit was likely to cause death he could not be imputed with intention of causing such bodily injury as was likely to cause death — Conviction under S. 302 changed to S. 304, Para. 2 and accused fined Rs. 300/- only. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304. 1960 Andh L T 510.

—S. 300, Exception 4 — No premeditation but accused taking undue advantage and acting in cruel manner.

To claim the benefit under Excep. 4 to S. 300, it must be shown that the accused committed the offence without premeditation in a sudden fight and without taking undue advantage or acting in a cruel manner. Where though there was no premeditation, but the quarrel was sudden, the accused took undue advantage of the deceased who was unarmed and had acted in a cruel manner in stabbing him thrice, the accused is not entitled to the benefit of Excep. 4. 1959 Ker L R 1457.

—S. 300, Exception 4 — Offender taking undue advantage and acting in unusual manner.

The expression 'undue advantage' as used in Exception 4 to S. 300 means 'unfair advantage' and cannot be limited to a case where the victim is made physically incapable to defend himself. An assailant cannot but be said to have taken undue advantage of his victim if the latter is taken completely unawares and is struck when he does not even suspect that he is about to be struck. Furthermore, no reasonable person can expect that a man would whip out knife and strike another on a vital part of the body with it on account of a petty quarrel. If the weapon or manner of attack by the assailant is out of all proportion to the offence given, that circumstance must be taken into consideration for deciding whether undue advantage has been taken. In such a case, the assailant must also be held to have acted in an unusual manner. AIR 1954 S C 652, Dist. AIR 1947 Pat 168, Rel. on. 1958 B L J R 454 : 1959 Cri L J 226 : AIR 1959 Pat 66 (69) (Pt D) (Pr 19) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 4— Applicability — Essentials.

In order to bring a case within Exception 4 to S. 300, it must be shown that not only was the culpable homicide committed without premeditation in a sudden fight in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel but also the other condition that the offender did not take undue advantage or act in a cruel manner. Where the accused is found to have acted without premeditation in a sudden fight in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel but though the deceased was unarmed and the accused did not stop short of giving as many as five slabs, three of which were fatal:

Held, that accused was guilty of the offence of murder. (1951) 3 Pepsu L R 558.

—S. 300, Excep. 4, Part 2— Applicability—Quarrel between cow-heards—B catching hold of C and A stabbing C in chest—Case not covered by Exception 4. AIR 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 5428 (DB).

— S. 300, Excep. 4 — Fight not premeditated and occurring out of sheer accident — Accused giving stab wound by penknife — Manner of attack not cruel and unusual — Stab on vulnerable part of body and victim dying — Case held not one of murder but fell under Exception 4. 51 Cri L J 653 : AIR 1950 Trav-Co 12 (13) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

13. Exception 5.

——S. 300, Excep. 5—Consent must be unconditional and without any reservation.

In order to bring the offence of murder under Excep. 5 to S. 300, Penal Code, the consent by the deceased must be given unconditionally and without any reservation. It must further be unequivocal consent which does not involve the choice of alternatives to which the person taking the life more or less has driven the person.

Thus where although the wife flatly refused to go back to her mother and said that if her husband insisted on her doing so she would rather be killed, the consent was not the type of consent which is contemplated by Exception 5 to S. 300, Penal Code and the husband was guilty of murder. (1955) 2 M L J 383 : 1955 Mad W N 605 (2) : 1955 All W R (Sup) 102 : 1956 Cri L J 244: AIR 1956 Mad 97 (97) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——S. 300, Excep. 5 – Applicability — Accused, a 10th class student failing at annual examination for third time—His wife aged 19 years, a literate woman — Accused upset at his failures, and taking the last failure at heart, deciding to end his life — Wife informed of the resolve — Wife asking him to kill her first and then kill himself — Accused accordingly killing her but was arrested before he killed himself— Held that wife did not give her consent to be killed under fear of injury or under a misconception of fact and thus the case was covered by Exception 5 — Accused was held guilty under S. 304, Part I, and not S. 302. 1958 Cri L J 548 : AIR 1958 Pat 190 (192, 193) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

14. Murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder—Distinction.

See also Penal Code (1860), Ss. 299 and 304.

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304, Part II— Scope and applicability.

Where the accused causing the death of another had no intention to kill, then the offence would be murder only if (1) the accused knew that the injury inflicted would be likely to cause death or (2) that it would be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death or (3) that the accused knew that the act must in all probability cause death. If the case cannot be placed as high as that and the act is only likely to cause death and there is no special knowledge, the offence comes under S. 304, Part II of the Penal Code. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M P., 1956 Cri L J 291 : 1956 Mad W N 391 : (1956) 1 Mad L J (S C) 100 : 1956 S C J 182: 1956 S C A 183: 1956 All W R (Sup) 38 : (1955) 2 S C R 1140 : AIR 1956 S C 116 (133, 138, 140) (Pt B) (Prs 70, 71, 72, 90, 91, 101).

——Ss, 300 and 299—Scope of.

Section 299 defines culpable homicide. Culpable homicide is of two kinds: culpable homicide amounting to murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder. Section 299 cannot be taken to be definition of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, as the section clearly speaks of culpable homicide simpliciter. The scheme of the Code is that first the genus "culpable homicide" is defined and then murder, which is species of culpable homicide is defined ; what is left out of culpable homicide after the special characteristic of murder is taken away from it, is culpabale homicide not amounting to murder. For this reason the Code does not contain any definition of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. 1952 All L J 546 : 1953 All W R (H C) 63 : 1953 Cri L J 565 : ILR (1953) 2 All 885 : AIR 1953 All 203 (205) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304, Second Part, 299 — Case not falling within any exception to S. 300 — Still second part of S. 304 may apply — Classes of cases where S. 304 applies narrated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304, Second Part. 1960 Cri L J 303 : AIR 1960 Andh Pra 141 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 299 — Scope — Culpable homicide and murder — Distinction.

The difference between the two offences of culpable homicide and murder is fine but real. Culpable homicide is a generic term. The offence will amount to murder if the conditions laid down in S. 300 are satisfied. If the offence comes under S. 299 or under one or other of the exceptions to S. 300, it will be culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

The offence is culpable homicide if the bodily injury intended to be inflicted is likely to cause death, it is murder, if such injury is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. The distinction is fine, but appreciable.

The third clause of S. 300 can be invoked only if the intended bodily injury is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

Where the accused used a stick 3½ feet in length and 3 inches in diameter to beat the deceased on his head causing serious injuries both external and internal including fracture of the skull resulting in compression of the brain and also used a knife to chop off the victim's nose when he fell on the ground :

Held, that the accused intended to cause bodily injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. The serious wounds caused in the vital part of the body of the deceased were also sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. The accused was therefore guilty of murder. 1955 Andh W R 130: 1955 Cri L J 329: AIR 1955 Andhra 24 (25, 26) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——S. 300 — Judge not explaining circumstances when an act, if it does not amount to murder, whether it amounts to culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Charge held amounted to misdirection— Plea of right of private defence — Burden lies on accused — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 392.

——Ss. 300 and 299 — Distinction between pointed out. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1952 Cri L J 1366 : AIR 1952 Bhopal 25.

——Ss. 300 and 299—Culpable homicide and murder — Distinction.

To cause death by an act intended to cause death is culpable homicide amounting to murder. To cause death by an act intended to cause a bodily injury which is known to the doer to be likely to cause the death of the person in question, or to cause death by an act intended to cause a bodily injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death is culpable homicide amounting to murder. To cause death by an act known to be likely to cause death is culpable homicide; but it is not murder, unless the conduct is so imminently dangerous, that death, or a bodily injury likely to cause death, must in all probability occur. Wherever, however, culpable homicide, amounts to murder, it is reduced to culpable homicide if it falls within one or other of the Exceptions to S. 300. 1959 Mad W N 215 : 1959 Cri L J 993 : AIR 1959 Mad 323 (326, 327) (Pt B) (Prs 21, 23 to 25) (DB).

——S. 300 — Applicability — Distinction between murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder in border line cases pointed out. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 452 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304 — Applicability — Offence when amounts to one under S. 304.

The Penal Code recognises no exception to a case of murder than the five exceptions enacted in S. 300 and no Court will be justified in reducing a crime of murder into one of culpable homicide not amounting to murder without advertence to those exceptions. 1954 Ker L T 206 : 1954 Cri L J 1181 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 396 (398) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

15. Murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Illustrative cases.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 304.

——Ss. 300, 86, 302 and 304, Part II — Offence of murder under influence of drink — No evidence to show accused's incapacity to form requisite intention — Offence is one under S. 302 and not S. 304, Part II. See Penal Code (1860), S. 86. 1956 Cri L J 919 (2) : AIR 1956 S C 488.

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304, Part 2 —Offence held fell under S. 304 and Part 2. Chamra Budhwa v. State of Madh. Pra., 1954 Cri L J 1676 : AIR 1954 S C 652 (653) (Prs 4, 5).

——S. 300 — Rash and negligent act resulting in death of a person — Sentence — A, a mahant going to house of B who was having drinking party — B, over-anxious to show hospitability to A — B anxious that A should not go away without taking meals and spending night with him — A seen going away — B letting go his gun without aiming but only to terrify him to deter him from leaving — A hit in chest — A later on dying of the wound — That B had any intention of firing at A held not proved — B's act held was rash and negligent or at worst amounted to manslaughter—No offence of murder held constituted — Offence held one under S. 304-A — Sentence to imprisonment already undergone awarded. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304 A. 1954 Cri L J 727 : AIR 1954 S C 271.

——S. 300 — Applicability — Injuries caused in fight — Absence of intention to cause death No intention to cause such bodily injury as was likely to cause death — Offence indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304. 1959 All L J 340.

——Ss, 300. 302 and 304 — Applicability — Accused dealing only one lathi blow in sudden quarrel on head of deceased who was unarmed — Death — Murder or culpable homicide. 1959Cri L J 158 : AIR 1959 All 131 (132, 133) (Prs 6 to 9).

——S. 300 — Sections 300 and 146, applicability — Rescue of cattle lawfully taken to pound — Injury caused in commission of common object — Death — Accused held guilty of offence under S. 24, Cattle Trespass Act and Ss. 147 and 323, Penal Code read with Ss. 149 and 34, Penal Code — One of persons injured seriously on head and dying within few hours — Held, 3rd para. of S. 300 applied and that none of the exceptions applied — Act of killing amounted to murder under S. 302 and not an offence under S. 304. See Penal Code (1860), S. 146. 1958 Cri L J 588 : AIR 1958 All 348 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304 — Violent lathi blows on vital part of body — Death ensued — Attacker to be charged under S. 302 and not under S. 304. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1496.

——Ss. 300, 304, 149—Attack by members of unlawful assembly resulting in death of victim — Medical officer deposing that only two out of 43 injuries had caused death — Prosecution failing to elicit whether the two injuries were sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Only offence under S. 304 is proved and not one under S. 300.

Where, in a trial for offences under S. 302 read with S. 149, the accused are charged with having caused the death of a person by attacking him with sticks and other weapons, the Medical Officer, while deposing about the 43 injuries found on the person of the deceased, at first deposes that all the injuries were responsible for the death but subsequently admits, during his cross-examination, that only two of the injuries had caused the death and that the other injuries had nothing to do with the result and the prosecution fails to elicit specifically from him during re-examination the fact that the two injuries were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death and leaves that fact only to be inferred from the fact that the deceased died within four hours after he received the injuries and there is no knowing as to whether there was any other contributory cause, it cannot be held that the higher decree of probability required by S. 300 is established The injuries are proved to be only likely to cause death and the offence committed by the unlawful assembly against the deceased would be punishable under S. 304 only. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 70 (74) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (Andh Pra) (DB).

——Ss 300 and 304, Part 2 — Sudden quarrel — Unarmed person stabbed in chest — Victim dying in a few hours — Offence held murder and not culpable homicide not amounting to murder — Accused drunk at the time — Does not affect nature of the offence. 1958 Andh L T 920.

——Ss. 300, 304, 302 — Sudden fight between young boys—Accused stabbing deceased without premeditation—Offence is one under Part I of S. 304. In view of the fact that accused was a young boy of about 17 years, having no criminal tendencies, sentence of 4 years R I. would meet ends of justice. See Penal Code (1860) S 304. 1956 Cri L J 503 (2) : AIR 1956 Bom 267 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304 — P causing injuries to Q likely to cause death—Q operated on and dying after operation —Injuries not immediate cause of death in medical sense—P still must be deemed to have caused death of Q. (1961) 2 Guj L R 716 : 1962 (1) Cr L J 609 : AIR 1962 Guj 77 (77) (Pr 1) (DB).

——S. 300, Exception 2—Applicability—First attack on deceased followed by another after some time—Accused found to have acted in private defence in course of first incident and acquitted of charge under S. 302—Evidence indicating that injuries inflicted in the first incident were sufficient to cause death—Charge under S. 304, Second part — Validity if considered. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. 1960 Ker L J 546.

——S. 300, S. 304 and S. 96—Applicability — Omission to plead right of private defence — Murder or culpable homicide.

The fact that the accused does not specifically plead the right of self-defence should not influence the Court in concluding that the plea of self-defence was not available to the accused to any degree.

Where the circumstances which led up to the infliction of the fatal stab on the deceased showed that the accused had reason to apprehend some danger to his body at the hands of the deceased and his brother:

Held, that there was no gainsaying that the accused exceeded the right the law gave him, but it was without premeditation and in the lawfully drunken state the accused was it could not be predicated that he intended to cause more harm than was necessary for the purpose of defence. At the same time it could not be said that he did not intend to cause such bodily injury as was likely to cause death. The offence committed against the deceased would in the circumstances amount only to an offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder falling within the first part of S 304. I P. Code and not of murder under S. 302. 1957 Ker L T 278 : 1957 Cr L J 615 : 1957 Ker L J 369 : AIR 1957 Ker 53 (54) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304, Part I—Offence at night time — Arrow striking deceased on ribs — Spleen penetrated causing death — Accused drunk — No evidence of accused having selected place of injury — Intention to cause bodily injury which was likely to cause death — Offence falls under S. 304, Part I and not S. 302. 1956 Madh B L J 715 : Madh B L R 1956 Cr 136 : 1956 Cr L J 1410 : AIR 1956 Madh B 271 (272) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——Ss 300 and 304 (2) — Applicability — Boy of 15 years shooting arrow at deceased without any intention to kill — Boy extremely careless and drunk—Deceased dying — Offence held did not fall under S. 300 but under S. 304, Part 2. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3855 (DB).

——Ss 300 and 304—Applicability—Accused bearing ill-will against deceased discharging arrow towards deceased while the deceased was running—Arrow piercing throat of deceased and causing his death—Accused held guilty under S 302 and not under S. 304 AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3730.

——S. 300 — Accused beating wife — Death of wife—Meningial artery in brain ruptured and death due to haemorrhage in brain — No intention to cause death—Accused should be taken to know that injuries were likely to cause death — Accused held guilty under S. 304. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304. Madh B L J 1955 H C R 1532.

——Ss 300, 304—Applicability.

Where the handkerchief was stuffed into the mouth of the deceased in order to silence her and the female died due to suffocation before the offender could commence sexual intercourse, it cannot be said that the natural consequences of behaving in this way is definitely death. Though the conduct of the offender was most reprehensible and constituted a criminal offence, yet he cannot be saddled with the intention or knowledge, necessary to constitute an offence under S 302 The most that can be said then is that the offender must be presumed to have known that he was likely in so doing to cause her death He is, therefore, guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. The conviction under S 302, Penal Code and the death sentence should be set aside and a conviction should be recorded under S. 304. AIR 1918 Mad 651. Rel. on. 1952 Cri L J 1261 : AIR 1952 Madh B 25 (27, 28) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 18) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304—Death caused as result of peritonitis caused in consequence of deep abdominal injury inflicted by means of deadly weapon brought by accused with him with intention of attacking victim - Offence falls under S. 302—S. 304 has no application.

In deciding whether the offence committed falls under section 302 or section 304, I. P. Code an intervening cause or complication is, by itself, not of such significance, what is significant is whether that is only a remote possibility or which itself occurs in due course. In a case, therefore, where a deep abdominal injury caused by means of a deadly weapon which comes to the hands of the accused, not by accidentally picking it up at the moment nearabout the incident, but brought by him with the intention of attacking the victim, and the victim succumbs as a result of acute peritonitis which itself is the natural consequence of the stab injury, the intervening cause which results in death can be said to be a practical certainty of the injury; and in such a case the offence committed falls under the second category and is covered by S 302, and not one under S. 304, I. P. C. AIR 1956 S C 116, Dist. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 12 : 1962 Jab L J 1414 : (1962) 2 Cri L J 195 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 244 (245) (Prs 5, 7, 8) (DB).

——Ss 300 and 304 (1)—Grave and sudden provocation—Mere abuses — Blow not premeditated — Blow severe—Person dying in single blow of lathi—Offence under S. 304 (1), made out.

The appellant struck one blow on the head of the deceased resulting in his death. The deceased had abused the appellant who was inside his house. The appellant came out and objected to the abuses and challenged the deceased. The deceased wanted to meet the challenge. There were injuries on the knuckles of the appellant. The appellant was convicted under S. 302, I. P. Code.

Held, that mere abuses did not constitute any grave and sudden provocation as contemplated by Exception 1 to S. 300, I. P. Code. The injuries to the appellant showed that it was not improbable that the deceased also had used violence towards the appellant. It was thus a case of sudden fight without premediation and the appellant acted in the heat of passion on a sudden quarrel. He did not take undue advantage and did not act in a cruel and unusual manner, since only one blow was struck on the head of the deceased. Exception 4 to S. 300, I. P. Code would be attracted. There could also be no doubt, looking to the force with which the blow was struck and that too on the vital part of the body, that the appellant intended to cause injuries sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to result in death. Because Exception 4 was attracted, the offence would be one under S. 304 (1), I. P. Code. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 69.

——Ss. 300 and 304 — Applicability — Absence of intention to kill — Sudden attack—Offence.

The accused on reaching his home did not find his wife there. He, therefore, went to his brother's house where he found his wife On his wife's refusal to accompany him he stabbed her as a result of which she subsequently died There was nothing to indicate that the accused had gone prepared to kill his wife and had armed himself with a knife for that purpose. The attack was sudden and consequent to the refusal of the wife to accompany the accused to his house. No motive adequate to lead to the conclusion that the accused had an intention to kill his wife had been proved. The evidence of the doctor who had conducted the post mortem examination was silent on the question whether the accused intended to cause such bodily injury as he knew to be likely to cause death or such as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death.

Held, that the accused was not guilty under S. 302, Penal Code. He was guilty of the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under S. 304, Penal Code. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 228.

——Ss. 300, 301, 304, Paras 1, 452 and 148 — Applicability — A and his companions armed with lathis and dagger trying to take away A's wife — A striking dagger in his daughter's abdomen in scuffle—Death — Offence—S. 148.

Held, that to establish the offence of murder it is not sufficient that the injury inflicted was in the ordinary course of nature sufficient to cause death; it must further be proved that the assailant intended to cause an injury of this kind. There being no evidence of this intention, A the accused must be held guilty of the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder under para 1 of S. 304, I. P. C. and not of murder under S. 302, I. P. C. (2) That even if the blow was not aimed at C the daughter of A but at B, A's wife, the accused A would still be guilty of the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder by virtue of S. 301, I. P. C. (3) That there being no evidence to indicate that the accused entered the house with the intention necessary to constitute a criminal trespass and that he entered the house after having made a preparation to assault his wife B, A's conviction under Ss. 452 and 148, I. P. C. must be set aside. 1957 M P C 370 : 1957 Jab L J 773:1957 Cri L J 1405 (2) : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 217 (218, 219) (Prs 3 to 5) (DB).

——S. 300 — Sudden fight — No premeditation — Rude behaviour of accused — Quarrel ensued — Accused inflicting fatal injury and also receiving injuries — Conviction, held should be altered from one under S. 302 to one under S. 304.

Held, on facts that the act of the accused came under Exception 4 of S. 300 and that he could only be held guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under S. 304 and not of murder punishable under S. 302: AIR 1957 S C 324 and AIR 1957 S C 469, Foll. (1964) 1 Mys L J 543 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 288 (292) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 12) (Mys) (DB).

——Ss. 300, Exception 1 and 304—Large number of injuries on both parties to quarrel — Deceased suffering fatal injury in course of quarrel—Failure on part of prosecution to explain injuries suffered by accused —Held on evidence of eye-witnesses read with evidence of doctor that grave and sudden provocation on part of accused was proved. (1965) 7 OJD 179 : 31 Cut L T 67.

——Ss. 300, 304 — Applicability — No premeditated plan for the murder, but it was the result of a sudden quarrel on the spur of the moment and in a fit of temper the accused persons assaulted the deceased to death — The case clearly came within the purview of S. 304, Part II and not under S. 302. ILR (1962) Cut 366 : (1962) 4 O J D 156: 1964 (2) Cri L J 487 (492) (Pt I) (Pr 15) (Orissa) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302, 304 — Applicability — Blow with ordinary force with a faggot on forehead causing fracture of the frontal bone — Accused held guilty under S. 304, Part II and not under S. 302.

The accused as soon as he picked up the half-burnt faggot took care to extinguish it by rubbing it on the ground and he dealt the blow on the forehead of the deceased with ordinary force causing a fracture of the frontal bone to an extent of 4" vertically upwards.

Held that this indicated that he did not intend to fracture the skull of the victim, though it might be reasonably inferred that the accused knew that by giving such a blow on the forehead of a person with such a weapon he was likely to cause such an injury as might result in the death of the victim. The case would therefore more appropriately come within the scope of Part II of S. 304 than under S. 302. (1963) 5 Ori J D 42 : (1964) 30 Cut L T 59 (Ori).

——Ss. 300, 299, 304, Part I and S. 34 — Scope of three clauses of S. 300—Intention or knowledge a necessary ingredient of these clauses — Applicability of fourth clause—Wounds made on hands and feet and bhujali — Death of deceased in hospital — Offence committed held was one under S. 299 and not under S. 300 — Accused was punishable under S. 304, Part I, and his assistants under that section read with S. 34.

In the first three clauses of S. 300, Penal Code, intention or knowledge is the essential ingredient, in absence of which the act will not be murder. The 4th clause contemplates the doing of an imminently dangerous act in general, and not the doing of any bodily harm to any particular individual. In case of intentionally causing bodily injury to a particular person, the question whether such an act is murder has to be decided with reference to the first three clauses of S. 300. The fourth clause is designed to provide for rare class of cases, like putting, by act done, in jeopardy lives of many persons as envisaged in illustration (d) of the section and the like.

Held on facts. (1) that owing to the inconclusive nature of the medical evidence it was not possible to hold with any precision that the injuries in question were inflicted on the deceased either with the intention of causing his death or of causing such bodily injuries as were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, or with the knowledge that they were likely to cause his death: (2) that the first three clauses of S. 300 were not attracted, but the act of the third accused was covered by the second part of S. 299, namely, the doing of an act with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; (3) the trial Court was in the wrong to have taken the aid of the fourth clause of S. 300 when the other three clauses did not suit the circumstances of the the case; (4) that the offence found to have been committed in this case by the third accused was not the offence of murder falling under any of the four clauses of S. 300, but it was an offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder falling under the second part of S. 299 and punishable under S. 304, Part I of the Penal Code; (5) that the first and second accused were guilty under S. 304, Part I, read with S. 34 of the Code. 1964 (2) Cri L J 171: 1963 B L J R 384 : AIR 1964 Pat 334 (337, 338) (Prs 22, 23, 25) (DB).

——S. 300 — Accused, a person belonging to backward tribe of Chotanagpur inflicting a tangi blow on his nephew believing him to be a wizard — No intention to cause death — Nephew surviving for several hours after assault but ultimately succumbing — Offence comes under S. 304, Part II and not under S. 302 — Sentence altered from rigorous imprisonment for life to that for five years. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304, Part II. 1961 B L J R 513.

——S. 303 — Applicability — Offence held murder. AIR 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 3281 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304, Part II—Intention.

It is no doubt true that a person must normally be presumed to intend the result that his action produces; but this intention is to be judged by his acts in relation to the surrounding circumstances.

It appeared that the accused, a young lad in his teens, was provoked by the deceased, his mother, and the lad reacted suddenly to that provocation. The kulhari which is commonly found with the villagers happened to lie close by. He picked it up and struck a blow which landed on her head. There was no motive for the accused to kill his mother. The whole affair was sudden and unpremeditated. The blow proved fatal and the mother died of the injury caused by the blow :

Held, on the circumstances of the case that the accused was not possessed of an intention either to kill or to cause a fatal injury to his mother but he knew that a blow on the head with a weapon like kulhari was likely to cause death and that the offence committed by the accused fell not under S. 302 but under S. 304, Part II. Case-law Ref. 1953 Cri L J 1878 : ILR (1953) Patiala 151 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 10 (13) (Prs 12, 13) (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability — Bitter enmity between accused and deceased — Accused inflicting as many as seventeen injuries on deceased out of which eight were on head — Death due to shock and internal haemorrhage — Accused throwing body in a well — Accused using blunt sides of weapons. Held, that in the circumstances the offence was one under S. 304, Part 2 and not one under S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1953 Cri L J 1815 : AIR 1953 Punj 262 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304—Intention to cause death.

After a quarrel at a well between A and B and C, B and C arrived at the spot armed with dangs. There was an exchange of abuse and blows were given by B and C. C's blows fell on A's head which resulted in A's death. B was tried separately and acquitted. C was tried, convicted under S. 302, Penal Code and was sentenced to transportation for life. In the appeal by C,

Held, that in the circumstances of this case the intention was one to give a beating and not necessarily to kill. The offence would therefore fall under S. 304, Part II. The sentence was therefore reduced to five years' rigorous imprisonment. 1953 Cri L J 1805 : AIR 1953 Punj 261 (261) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304—Applicability.

Where there was a great deal of ill-will between the parties and the deceased had intervened when other fighters were grappling with each other.

Held, that the circumstances took the case out of offence of murder and came only under S. 304, Part II. 1953 Cri L J 1642 : AIR 1953 Punj 241 (242) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300—Circumstantial evidence—Death by throttling—Simulation of ligature mark to give false appearance of crime — Knowledge that in all probability death would be caused by throttling not likely — Offence — Murder or culpable homicide not amounting to murder. 1964 Raj L W 279.

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304 second part — Quarrel between two brothers over food—Accused acting impulsively and inflicting blow with sharp weapon on vital part of body causing death—Offence falls under S. 302—Trial Court convicting accused under S. 304, Second Part—No rule for enhancement issued—Conviction not altered to S. 302.

Intention is what intention does. If with a four pronged instrument a blow was inflicted on a vital part of the body and according to the doctor each one of those injuries was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause the death, then surely the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knew was likely to cause death or was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death would be attributed to the accused.

Where the quarrel ensued between two brothers regarding some food and the accused who was a young man lost his temper and inflicted a chowkani blow on the chest of his brother resulting in death.

Held, that though it was a case of murder, and as the trial Court assumed that the offence fell under the second part of S. 304 and there was no rule for enhancement of that finding, it was not necessary to alter the conviction to S. 302. 1962 Raj L W 55 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 1091.

——Ss. 300 and 304, Part 2 — Scope — Offence held fell under S. 304, Para 2. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 267.

——Ss. 300, 302 and 304 — Murder — Evidence of quarrels between accused and deceased about woman —No evidence of threat uttered by accused to murder deceased — Lathi used as weapon and only three blows inflicted — Held that accused should properly be convicted under S. 304 and not under S. 302. 1952 Raj L W 20 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 718 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304 — Applicability — Deliberate and cold-blooded cutting of throat — Offence.

Where the accused in order to rob a person of his ornaments throws him on the ground and cuts his throat from ear to ear with a razor, of which wound the person dies subsequently and the ornaments and the razor are recovered from the accused and further the evidence shows that the offence committed is deliberate and is not a result of an action on the spur of the moment.

Held, that judging from the nature of the injury there was no doubt that the offence committed is one of murder and not of culpable homicide. 1956 Cri L J 1240 : AIR 1956 Sau 83 (87) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 300 — Exceeding right of private defence — Attack by B followed by tussle with deceased — Deceased gripping his armed hand in order to save himself — Fatal stab attack by A while tussle still going on—Conviction of A under S. 304, Part I — If proper. See Penal Code (1860), S. 97. I L R (1956) Trav-Co 615.

16. Murder or hurt.

—Ss. 300 and 326—Illegal seizure of cattle purporting to be under S 10, Cattle Trespass Act—Does not amount to theft—Owner of cattle has no right to use force to rescue them—Persons seizing cattle held committed no offence in resisting attack by owner's party with arms and lathis. See Cattle Trespass Act (1871), S. 10. 1965 (2) Cri L J 18 : AIR 1965 SC 926.

—Ss. 300 and 34—Conviction for murder—Common intention.

Even where it is true that the appellant convicted under S. 302 read with S 34, Penal Code did not inflict any blow on the deceased yet if it is found that he shared the common intention to kill him and actually participated in the criminal Act by being present on the spot armed with his lathi, then in the eye of the law, he is as much guilty of the whole criminal act as is his co-accused who actually dealt the fatal blow on the sleeping man. Rishideo Pande v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1955 Cri L J 873 : A I R 1955 SC 331 (333) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

—S. 300 - Applicability—Held on facts that common intention to kill the deceased could not be attributed to the three accused — Only common intention that could be attributed was only to beat the deceased with weapons in their hands which were likely to produce grievous hurt — All the three accused were guilty in respect of assault on the deceased for an offence under S. 326, while B one of the accused alone has guilty of offence under S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1954 Cri L J 178 : AIR 1954 SC 706.

—S. 300 — Accused knowingly and intentionally throwing corrosive acid on deceased — Inference is that it was done to cause such bodily injury as is likely to cause death — Acid thrown when deceased was sleeping — Accused having motive of revenge against deceased — Previous attempts to put deceased out of her way — Act of throwing acid not sudden or at spur of movement or heat of passion — Offence held fell under S. 302 and not S 326 Nature of offence under S. 326, indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 302. ILR (1958) 2 All 698.

—Ss. 300, 304 and 323—Applicability—Beating with stick with object of chastisement—No intention or apprehension of death - Offence.

Accused A 1 and A-2, the father-in-law and husband respectively of the deceased, finding her with a man in their house, beat her with a stick on her buttocks and thighs which are not the fatal parts of the body. Their idea was only to chastise her and there was no intention to kill her and she had also taken her meals 2 or 3 hours before her death.

Held, that having regard to the injuries found on the person of the deceased and the circumstances justifying the chastisement, S 302, Penal Code or 304, Penal Code would not be applicable, and that they would be liable only under S 323 Penal Code for a simple hurt. (1960) 1 Andh W R 305 : 1960 M L J (Cri) 256 : 1960 An L T 304 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 219 : ILR (1960) 1 Andh Pra 411 : AIR 1961 Andh Pra 79 (85) (Pt C) (Pr 21) (DB).

—Ss. 300, 4thly Illus. (d) 302 and 326 — Accused firing with revolver near the ground where there was a group of persons — No premeditation or intention or knowledge of likelihood of causing death proved—Accused held guilty under S. 326 and not under S. 302. ILR (1959) Andh Pra 797.

—Ss. 300, 34, 324, 326 - Applicability — Attack by three persons with sticks and one with spear—Death due to all injuries taken together—Offence.

Two persons were attacked by four persons, three, armed with heavy sticks and one with spear. All of them inflicted several injuries resulting in the death of the two There was no evidence to disclose which injury was caused by which of the accused. The medical evidence was that the deaths of the deceased were due to all the injuries sustained by each of them, taken together It was impossible from the evidence to gather whether anything less than all the injuries together would have caused death nor to ascribe any particular injury to any particular accused except that all the incised wounds must have been caused by the 4th accused.

Held, that in this state of the evidence, it was impossible to convict any one of the accused of murder simpliciter under S. 302, Penal Code. AIR 1953 SC 364, Rel. on. (2) That as S 34, Penal Code was not invoked in the charges under S. 302, framed against the accused the Court was not justified in making each of the accused liable for the effect of their co-joint action. (3). That the fourth accused alone being responsible for an incised wound resulting a grievous hurt was punishable under S. 326, Penal Code (4) That accused 1 to 3 should be given the benefit of the doubt as to which of them caused grievous hurt to the 1st deceased. But the sticks with which they were armed being undoubtedly deadly weapons they were guilty of an offence punishable under S. 324, Penal Code. 1956 Andhra W R 369.

—Ss. 300 and 326 —Applicability—Absence of post mortem examination—Injury on deceased severe one and one in nature of endangering life—Post mortem not possible due to custom not allowing anybody to touch dead body some days - Possibility that death might have been caused by blow inflicted by accused but not certainty—Conviction altered to one under S. 326. AIR 1955 NUC (Assam) 2852 (DB).

—Ss. 300, 321 Accused beating wife with bamboo stick and causing two abrasion injuries on her chest—Death of wife due to rupture of spleen—Accused not aware of enlarged spleen - Offence under S. 323 and not S 304 held committed.

Where the injuries caused to a person are not such as are likely to cause death, it is not a case of culpable homicide Where the accused beat his wife with a bamboo stick and inflicted two abrasion injuries on her chest and the wife died short time afterwards of the rupture of enlarged spleen, and there was no evidence that the accused was aware of the existence of enlarged spleen and nor was there any medical evidence to show that the death was the result of abrasions, the accused must be held to have beat his wife without intending to cause her death or without intending to cause such bodily injury as was likely to cause her death.

(Conviction under S. 304 altered to one under S. 323 and sentence of 7 years rigourous imprisonment reduced to 6 months.) 1952 Cri L J 997 : AIR 1952 Assam 110 (111) (Pr 5) (DB).

—Ss 300 and 326—Applicability.

Where the accused fired a gun at the deceased causing wound in the abdomen but there is no medical evidence that injury was the cause of death, conviction under S. 326 and not under S. 302 is proper. 10 J & K L R 1 : 1954 Cri L J 505 : AIR 1954 J & K 19 (21) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

—S. 300—Applicability.— Accused aged 16 years and deceased studying in 6th standard — Boyish quarrel — Accused hitting deceased with granite stone on temple — Death of deceased—Injury sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Only intention which accused could have had was to give a good blow to deceased as he entertained a grudge against him — Offence was of committing grievous hurt falling under 7th category of S. 320 and considering the weapon, offence held fell under under S. 326 — Accused not entitled to benefit of

S. 399, Criminal P. C.—Sentence of five years R I. would meet ends of justice. See Penal Code (1860), S. 323. 1960 Cri L J 1213 : AIR 1960 Ker 301 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Accused persons attacking deceased with sticks indiscriminately and one of them hitting him on head Accused guilty under S 325 and not under S 302. 51 Cri L J 363 : AIR 1950 Kutch 2 (3, 4) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Ss. 300, 326—Accused held, on evidence, not guilty under S 302 but under 326.

Held, that evidence clearly indicated that immediately after the injuries inflicted upon deceased, another person who appeared on the scene and applied tincture iodine to these deep bleeding wounds. Within a short time thereafter Chena died The medical witness had stated that tincture iodine if applied to such wound it is sure to result in death due to irritation caused Whatever may be the reason for this sort of uncertainty about the evidence the benefit of that must go to the accused.

In taking stock of the entire evidence, oral and circumstantial, there was enough material to hold that the accused Dhulji caused injuries with a sharp pointed and edged weapon upon back and neck of the deceased but it was not enough to hold him guilty under S. 302, Penal Code. The injury on the neck was grievous. Therefore, he was liable to be convicted for an offence under S. 326, Penal Code instead of S. 302, Penal Code. 1956 MBLJ 534 : Madh BLR 1956 (Cri) 94.

——Ss. 300 and 325—Applicability—Sudden quarrel under influence of liquor No intention to kill — Nature of offence committed — Offence is under S. 325. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 5627 (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Accused beating deceased with sticks without pre-meditation—Deceased falling down and later on dying—Injuries sustained simple and caused on scapula back and buttocks—Accused held were guilty under S. 323 and not under S. 304/34 or under S. 302 See Penal Code (1860), S. 323. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 2113.

——S. 300—According to evidence of eye witnesses, the deceased was surrounded by four persons and beaten by them with lathis - Death of deceased — According to evidence, deceased sustaining injuries on head, temple, neck and back—Injuries bleeding — Body of deceased in advance stage of decomposition, at time of post mortem examination — Evidence of injuries not corroborated by medical evidence—Whether skull or any other bone was fractured not detectable — Codition of vital organs not known —Accused held could not be found guilty under S. 302—Accused convicted under S. 323—See Penal Code (1860), S. 323. MBLJ 1955 HCR 1329.

——Ss. 300 and 325—Accused hanging his wife rendered unconscious by blows believing she was dead and to make it appear to be a case of suicide Injuries caused by blows not serious enough to cause death — Death due to asphyxiation caused by the hanging—Offence.

A husband in a quarrel with his wife dealt her two blows on the head as a result of which she became unconscious. Imagining her to be dead, he wanted to erase the fact of his having given her blows and therefore he tied a rope round her neck and hung her to a beam to create the impression on others that she had committed suicide. The medical evidence proved that the injuries on her were not serious enough to have killed her and that she should have only died of asphyxiation by the tying of the rope round her neck. In the circumstances.

Held, that the charge and conviction for transportation for murder under S. 302, Indian Penal Code, was not sustainable and that the accused should be only convicted under S. 325, Indian Penal Code and as such, punishable with rigorous imprisonment for seven years. (1952) 2 M L J 550 : 1952 Mad W N 779 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 227 : 54 Cri L J 449 : AIR 1953 Mad 239 (239) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 328 — Accused pouring out of bottle arsenic poison into food - Person dying — Accused having no knowledge of real contents of bottle - Accused mere tool in hands of others — Accused held could not be convicted of murder — Accused held could properly be convicted under S 328. (1952) 2 Mad L J 62 : 1952 Mad W N 974 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 286 : 1952 Cri L J 1150 : AIR 1952 Mad 535 (538) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 12a) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 326—Accused dealing blow on forehead of deceased with dao (sharp cutting instrument) — Deceased fully conscious for 4 days and then collapsing—Disagreement between doctors whether injury was fatal—Offence fallas under S. 328 and not under S. 302 — Sentence of 4 years R. I. held sufficient to meet ends of justice. 1963 (2) Cr L J 592 (595) (Prs 12, 15) (Manipur).

——Ss. 300, 326, 149—Absence of evidence of doctor or post-mortem certificate—Not possible for Court to infer whether injury in question to skull would have been sufficient in the ordinary course to cause the death — Conviction of accused only for offence of causing grievous injury with deadly weapon, considered safe. (1964) 1 Mys L J 393 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 323 — Applicability — Accused only beating deceased — Injuries not caused by accused — Accused could not be convicted only under S. 323. AIR 1955 NUC (Nag) 3956 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 320—Murder or grievous hurt—Injuries developing into gangrene — Death, natural consequence of gangrene — Offender must be deemed to be responsible for death — Plea of grievous hurt cannot be raised.

Where the medical evidence was clear to the effect that gangrene was itself the result of two injuries suffered by the deceased, the offender must be deemed to be responsible not only for causing gangrene but also for death which is its natural consequence. The offender cannot contend that it was no more than a case of grievous hurt, inasmuch as the death of the deceased was postponed and, in the meantime, gangrene supervened. 1964 (1) Cri L J 426 : AIR 1964 Pat 158 (158) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 326 & 34—Miscellaneous

When the evidence fell short of showing that the two accused had entered into a plan to bring about the murder and it was impossible for accused A to appreciate or realise the weight and magnitude of the strokes which were being inflicted by the other accused B, it could not be held that A had the intention of committing the murder or he knew that B had the intention of murdering the deceased. He could not therefore be convicted under S. 302/34. But since there were other injuries also which by themselves could prove fatal, the offence could not be less than an offence under S. 326/34, Penal Code. AIR 1948 P C 45, Distinguished; AIR 1945 P C 118, Applied. ILR 31 Pat 1037 : 1953 Cri L J 1809 : AIR 1953 Pat 394 (398) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 304 and 325—Applicability—Altercation between parties — Violence resulting in death — Offence.

Where there was some altercation between the parties and in all probability hot words, possibly even abuses were exchanged, some kind of resort to violence between the parties was also imminent.

Held, that the blow to the deceased given by the accused in the circumstances, did not constitute an offence under S. 302 or even under S. 304, Penal Code. Intention to cause grievous injury under S. 325 alone could be imputed to him. 1960 Cri L J 513 : I L R (1960) Punj 74 : AIR 1960 Punj 214 (216) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability—Assault by several persons armed with dangerous weapons — Death caused by one—Common object to cause murder, not established —Offence—Conviction of every one under S. 302 read with S. 149 is not proper — Proper section under which they could be convicted is S. 326 read with S. 149 and S. 307 did not apply. See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. 1957 Cri L J 1307 : AIR 1957 Punj 278 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 325—Sudden altercation between accused and deceased who had plucked sugarcane from accused's field — Accused inflicting on deceased two blows one of which causing rupture of spleen resulting in his death — Fact that deceased had an abnormally enlarged spleen not known to accused—Accused held guilty under S. 325 and not under S. 302 — Sentence reduced from four years R. I. to two years R. I. ('52) 54 Punj L R 153 : 1953 Cri L J 1190 : AIR 1953 Punj 173 (173, 174) (Prs 3, 4).

——S. 300 - Several accused beating deceased—No evidence who inflicted fatal blow—S. 34 not applicable—Accused held could only be convicted of offence under S. 324 and not S. 302. See Penal Code (1860), S. 324. 1952 Raj L W 387 : 1954 All W R (Supp) 1 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 258.

——S. 300 — S. 316 does not apply to a case where act attributed to accused has resulted in death of pregnant woman — Obiter. See Penal Code (1860), S. 316. 1953 Cri L J 1551 : AIR 1953 Trav Co 374.

——Ss. 300, 325, 326—Accused inflicting injuries on body of victim in fit of anger — Injuries caused by piece of blunt stick to vital part — Consequent haemorrhage and collapse — Accused imagining victim to be dead hanging body to tree to suggest suicide — Death resulting from asphyxiation — Evidence not disclosing intention to kill when beating started — Accused is not guilty of murder under S. 301, Travancore Penal Code — Offence committed is one under S. 325, Penal Code and not under S. 326, Penal Code as stick used is not weapon falling within scope of latter section. 1950 Ker L T 657 : 52 Cri L J 871 : 1950 T C L R 570 : AIR 1951 Tra-Co 159 (160, 161) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

17. Motive.

See also (1) Evidence Act (1872), S. 5.
(2) Penal Code (1860), S. 302.

●——S. 300—Motive for crime.

The motive behind a crime (in this case one punishable under S. 302, Penal Code) is a relevant fact of which evidence can be given. The absence of a motive is also a circustance which is relevant for assessing the evidence. The circumstances which prove the guilt of the accused are, however, not weakened at all by this fact that the motive has not been established. It often happens that only the culprit himself knows what moved him to a certain course of action. Rajinder Kumar v. State of Punjab, (1963) 2 S C J 418 : 1963 S C D 43 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 506 : 1963 S C R 281 : AIR 1966 SC 1322 (1324) (Pr 11).

●——S. 300 — Evidence — Motive — Murder of several boys — Overwhelming evidence to prove that accused committed murder — Speculation about motive which induced accused to murder innocent boys unnecessary. Nand Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, 1963 S C D 137 : (1963) 2 S C R 890 : (1963) 2 S C J 422 : 1963 M L J (Cri) 509 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 702 (706) (Pt D) (Pr 21) (S C).

●——S. 300—Motive—Accused charged with murder of his wife — Infatuation with another woman — Accused found to be oversexed — Obstacle of wife held to be sufficient motive.

Accused was charged under S. 302, Indian Penal Code, for the murder of his wife. He had illicit intimacy with another woman which fact was known to the wife who was opposing the accused. It appeared from the letters written by the accused to the woman that he was infatuated with her and was some what oversexed. He used to write in gross language expressing his sentiments about love, marriage and sex. On the question of motive for the murder,

Held, that to such a person the obstacle of a wife in the successful prosecution of an amour would be a motive sufficient for almost any purpose. Mathew v. State of Kerala, 1960 Ker L J 563 : 1960 Ker L T (S C) 1.

●——S. 300 — Motive — Evidence of previous bad conduct of accused — Relevancy discussed — See Evidence Act (1872), S. 54. 1957 Cri L J 325 : AIR 1957 S C 199.

●——S. 300 — Evidence — Motive.

Where it appeared that the accused had an eye on the handsome wife of the deceased and that he had already developed a liaison with her, it cannot be said that those circumstances were not sufficient motive for murdering the deceased. Sunder Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1956 Cri L J 801 : AIR 1956 S C 411 (415) (Pt E) (Pr 10).

——S. 300 — Motive — Weak motive cannot by itself lead to an inference adverse to prosecution — Evidence Act (1872), S. 5 — Motive — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 5 and 114 — Absence of motive for committing murder — Inference — Evidence — Appreciation of Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 117. 1963 All L J 977.

——S. 300 — Motive not proved — Effect stated — See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1957 Cri L J 337 : AIR 1957 All 177 (DB).

——S. 300 — Motive — Relevancy.

The question of motive may no doubt be irrelevant if there is direct evidence establishing the murder. But in weighing the evidece of the prosecution witnesses the motive has an important role to play. 1959 Andh L T 139 : 1959 Cri L J 689 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 313 (314) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Ss. 300 and 40—Scope—Inadequacy of evidence of motive can only be regarded as a lamentable defect in the investigation by the Police and not as one militating against the prosecution story. 1956 Andh W R 369.

——S. 300 — Motive — Evidence of eye-witnesses coupled with admission of accused — Absence of evidence of motive is immaterial. AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 2852 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 120-A — Conspiracy — Murder — Persons suffering from social disabilities (Mahars or harijans) forming criminal conspiracy against establishment of Gram Panchayat which they thought was not beneficial to them — This is hardly a reason for forming criminal conspiracy and to carry out the object of the conspiracy by committing murder—See Penal Code (1860), S. 120-A. AIR 1957 Bom 226 (DB).

——S. 300 — Conviction — Motive — Evidentiary value.

Per Anna Chandy J.— Motive may not be very material in cases where there is enough of direct evidence, but in cases where there is not even an iota of legal evidence or a single telling circumstance, motive has vital part to play.

Per Govinda Menon J.— Motive by itself would not advance the prosecution case. 1963 Ker L T 292: 1963 Ker L J 369 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 347 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 493 (498) (Pt E) (Pr 15) (Ker) (DB).

——S. 300 — Conviction — Motive — Proof — Not essential when circumstances consistent with only guilt of accused.

Motive being a mental attitude is often difficult of proof. Absence of proof of motive or adequate motive is not fatal to the prosecution even in a case depending solely on circumstantial evidence. If the circumstances otherwise establish guilt, inability to prove motive or an adequate motive is not an impediment to a conviction.

Where the accused was convicted for murder of his children on the basis of the circumstantial evidence which fully established the charge and the circumstances were consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and did not leave any reasonable ground for concluding that they could also be consistent with the innocence of the accused, and the chain of circumstantial evidence was so complete as to leave no reasonable ground for escape to the accused, the accused was held to have been rightly convicted : AIR 1952 S C 343 ; AIR 1960 S C 800 ; (1854) 2 C and K 309 and (1911) 1 K B 988, Rel. on. 1963 Ker L J 228 : 1963 Ker L T 229 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 102.

——S. 300—Evidence—Case of murder purely based on circumstantial evidence — Motive for crime is of importance — Motive alleged by prosecution may mislead and vitiate appreciation of evidence if that is relied on before other evidence is discussed and appreciated — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367—Evidence Act (1872), S. 8. 1961 Ker L T 201.

——S. 300 — Motive — Importance of.

Inadequacy or absence of motive might not be very important in a case where the crime itself has been proved beyond doubt. But in case where the prosecution evidence does not bring out some suspicious circumstances against him, the existence of adequate motive is of the greatest importance. 1960 Ker L J 438 : 1960 Ker L T 510.

——S. 300 — Bitter feeling entertained by accused towards wife — Adequacy of motive for murder discussed — See Evidence Act (1872), S. 8. 1959 Ker L T 167 : 1959 Ker L J 221 : ILR (1959) Ker 319.

——S. 300 — Evidence of — Motive — Relevancy.

In a case of cruel and revolting murder, depending on circumstantial evidence and the testimony of an accomplice, motive assumes some importance. 1958 Ker L J 282 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 412 : 1958 Ker L T 181 : ILR (1958) Ker 420.

——S. 300 — Motive — Proof of motive for murder is not necessary where there is sufficient evidence of the commission of the offence. 52 Cri L J 278 : AIR 1951 Madh Bha 72 (74) (Pt C) (Pr 14) (DB).

——S. 300 — Murder — Evidence—Appreciation of — Motive.

Per Sharma J.— Persons who are about to commit a heinous offence like murder do not always act in a strictly rational manner. Only those motives could be brought to light which appeal in the conscious portion of the individual's psychic apparatus. The unconscious motives which not infrequently exert a greater dynamic influence on our actions remain unknown. That is why it is even impossible for the offender to give a really valid, casual explanation of his facts. 1964 Jab L J 10 : 1962 (2) Cri L J 672 (679) (Pt F) (Prs 49, 50) (Madh Pra) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Reliable and direct evidence of murder available—Question of motive—Relevancy.

In a trial for murder under S. 302, Penal Code, where there is direct evidence of the commission of offence of a reliable character no question of motive can arise. This is subject to the consideration that the absence of motive may throw doubt on the truth of the direct evidence; but, if making all allowances for it the direct evidence can be trusted, the question of motive presents little difficulty. 1960 Mad W N 524 : 1960 All W R (Sup) 49 : 1960 All Cri R 279 : 1960 Cri L J 1622 : AIR 1960 Mad 533 (535) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 40 — Murder — Proof — Circumstantial evidence - Importance of motive.

It is perfectly true that the law does not require that the elements of motive should be proved by the prosecution; criminals have been punished for apparently motiveless murders, upon proof of crime. But, in a case resting entirely upon the probabilities of circumstantial evidence it may be significant where the alleged motive also fails to fit the few circumstances actually established. 1960 Cri L J 1102 : 1960 Mad W N 512 : AIR 1960 Mad 370 (372) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300 — Motive — Mere proof of motive not sufficient.

The evidence of motive which is frequently given in the cases of murder is of subsidiary importance. The mere fact that the accused had a motive to cause the death of the deceased is not a fact which will dispense with the proof of the other points namely that the accused had got a suitable immediate occasion for committing the crime and that he actually committed it. AIR 1933 All 394, Rel. on. 1955 Cri L J 139 : AIR 1955 Manipur 1 (5) (Pt A) (Pr 16).

——S. 300—Motive becomes important when cogent evidence to establish murder has not been given. AIR 1955 NUC (Manipur) 4549.

——S. 300 —Motive —Necessity of proof of, pointed out. (1965) 2 Law Rep 699 (Mys).

——S. 300—Motive—Relevancy of.

Motive is not a necessary ingredient of an offence. If evidence of motive is produced, it may support the prosecution in showing that the other substantial evidence on which an offence can be established is more probable. Hence the evidence of motive is one which helps the appreciation of evidence by showing whether the evidence could be more or less probable. There may be cases where the evidence is strong enough to sustain a conviction but where there may be little or no evidence in respect of motive or where the motive suggested may itself be very weak. 35 Mys L J 353 : 1957 All W R (Sup) 117 : (1957) Mad L J (Cri) 832 : 1958 Cri L J 529 : ILR (1957) Mys 159 : AIR 1958 Mys 48 (53) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——S. 300—Motive—Enmity incurred by dispossessing accused of their lands — Accused aboriginal khonds—Motive for murder held was adequate.

The fact that there were a large number of cases, both civil and criminal, between the accused who were aboriginal khonds and the deceased coupled with the fact that ultimately the deceased succeeded in depriving the accused of his lands would be sufficient to incur bitter enmity of the khonds and would be a strong motive even for a non-aboriginal khond to assault the adversary. For an aboriginal khond, who should not be judged by standards applicable to men of the plains, the motive was certainly stronger. Similarly, where on the day, previous to the occurrence the other accused entreated the deceased to give him some land saying that he would otherwise starve, but the deceased gave evasive replies, the motive was sufficient for him to join in the murderous attack on the deceased. (1963) 5 Orissa J D

145 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 464 (465, 466) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (Orissa) (DB).

——S. 300 – Evidence of motive.

There is no burden of proof on the prosecution to establish the existence of any motive, ILR (1962) Cut 806 : 29 Cut L T 290 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 213 : AIR 1963 Orissa 33 (DB).

——S. 300—Motive.

In a criminal trial failure to prove a motive does not necessarily mean that there was no motive for the crime. The circumstances of an Act being apparently motiveless is not a ground from which the existence of a powerful or irresistible influence or homicidal tendency can be inferred. Motives exist unknown and innumerable which might prompt the act. 29 Cut L T 290 : ILR (1962) Cut 806 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 213 : AIR 1963 Orissa 33 (37) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

——S. 300 — Criminal Trial — Motive — Proof of — Penal Code (1860), S. 302. (1962) 28 Cut L T 460 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 470 (Orissa).

——S. 300—Evidence appreciation of—Mere absence of motive is not enough to hold that murder charge is not established if the case is otherwise made out—Criminal trial — Evidence appreciation of - Murder charge — Motive absence of — Evidence Act (1872), S. 3 "Proved". 30 Cut L T 194 : ILR (1963) Cut 511.

——S. 300 — Motive — Consideration — Existence of positive evidence of offence against accused – Motive is not important : AIR 1956 S C 460, Rel. on. (1963) 29 Cut L T 200.

——S. 300—The motive, however adequate, is wholly insufficient to sustain a criminal charge of murder. 18 Cut L T 345 : ILR (1952) Cut 620 : 1953 Cri L J 1008 : AIR 1953 Orissa 149 (150) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

—— S. 300 — Motive — Mere existence of motive is by itself not an incriminating circumstance. AIR 1951 Orissa 53 (59) (Pt J) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 300—Motive—Evidence as to participation of accused clear and convincing—Question of motive is of no importance. 1964 B L J R 263,

——S. 300—Motive—Relevancy and effect indicated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1957 Pat L R 434.

——S. 300—Motive—Proof.

It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove by any affirmative evidence the motive which impelled the offender to commit murder. 1956 Pat L R 434.

——S. 300—Motive—Existence of adequate motive is not necessary to be proved,— (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 243 (DB).

——S. 300—Motive—Proof of.

Motive is a thing which is primarily known to the accused themselves and it may not be possible for the prosecution in every case to explain what actually prompted or excited the accused to commit the particular crime or crimes. The alleged motive in a case may be very meagre and ostensibly in some others there may not be any motive, but for that reason alone the prosecution story cannot be thrown out as false, or regarded improbable or suspicious. If the evidence is sufficiently clear and convincing, the fact that there is no apparent motive or the one alleged is inadequate shall not be of much consequence or stand in the way of recording conviction.

The manner in which the culprits act to attain a particular object depends on the way in which their minds work at the moment; or the way in which they set out their plans. Direct and reliable evidence that the act was so committed cannot be brushed aside on the seeming improbability of it. ILR (1954) Patiala 352 : 1955 Cri L J 983 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 81 (83) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S 300 –Evidence—That accused was the assassin proved — Absence of motive or evidence of immediate cause of attack—Effect.

The absence or inadequacy of motive or the absence of the evidence relating to the immediate cause of the attack cannot adversely affect the prosecution case, if clear evidence of the accused being the assassin is available on record. ILR (1952) Patiala 59 : 1953 Cri L J 1748 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 186 (187) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300 and S. 302—Trial for murder—Prosecution resting case on circumstantial evidence. There must be reliable evidence of motive for murder. (1962) 64 Punj L R 98.

——S. 300—Motive—No reason to disbelieve story of eye-witness – Fact that there was no adequate motive for murder held was, immaterial. ILR (1952) 2 Raj 977 : AIR 1953 Raj 105 (110) (Pt D) (Pr 29) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1953 S C 174.]

——S. 300 –Absence of motive.

The absence of any motive being proved is not material where there is direct evidence of the offence. (1951) 4 Sau L R 223 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304—Motive.

When question in issue is whether accused had committed offence of murder or not it might be material to examine whether he had any motive—But when it has been found he had committed the offence, fact that he was actuated by lofty ideals is not a ground for holding the offence committed as one falling under S. 304 — In deciding nature of offence committed motive is irrelevant. 1953 Ker L T 340 : 1953 Cri L J 1551 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 374 (375) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

18. Framing of charge under S. 302, Penal Code.

● ——Ss. 300 and 149 – Offender accused of offence under S 302 read with S. 149 — It is not obligatory that a charge under S. 147 or S. 148 should have been framed.

It is not obligatory to charge a person under S. 143 or S. 147 when charging him for an offence with the aid of S. 149. Sections 143 and 147 are implied. When the charge is laid for an offence like murder with the aid of S. 149, offences under Ss. 143 and 147 must always be present but the other two charges need not be framed separately unless it is sought to secure a conviction under them. It is thus that S. 143 is not used when the charge is under S. 147 or S. 148 and S. 147 is not used when the charge is under S. 148 When the charge is under S. 149 read with an offence under the Penal Code, S. 147 may be dispensed with. For the validity of the conviction under S. 302/149, Penal Code, it is not obligatory that a charge under S. 147 or S. 148 should have been framed and a conviction under those sections recorded. Mahadev Sharma v. State of Bihar, (1965) S C W R 686 : 1965 B L J R 914 : 1965 S C D 1160 : 1966 Cri L J 197 : I L R 45 Pat 896 : AIR 1966 S C 302 (304) (Prs 8, 9).

● ——S. 300 — Error in charge — Held that omision to mention S. 34 in the charge had only academic significance and had in no way mislead the accused and further the charge of murder had been brought home against both the accused. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 537. 1956 Cri L J 338 : AIR 1956 S C 171.

● ——S. 300—Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 233, 535 and 537 — Charge against two accused nnder S. 302 read with S. 34 Penal Code — Acquittal of one accused and conviction of the other under S. 302, Penal Code — Absence of separate alternative charge under S. 302, Penal Code — Effect of on validity of conviction, indicated — Prejudice question of — Relevancy. See Criminal P. C (1893), S. 233. 1956 Cri L J 291 : AIR 1956 S C 116.

●——S. 300 — Applicability — Accused charged under S. 302, read with S. 149, I. P. Code — He cannot be convicted under S. 302 when he was acquitted of S. 302 read with S. 149. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233. 1955 Cri L J 721 : AIR 1955 S C 274.

●——Ss. 300, 201 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 236 and 237 — Charge of murder—Conviction for offence under S. 201, Penal Code — Legality — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 236. 1952 Cri L J 559 : AIR 1952 S C 159.

——S. 300—Charge under—Conviction under S 302/149—Legality. See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. 1958 Cri L J 424 : AIR 1958 All 255 (DB).

——S. 300—Criminal P. C (1898), Ss. 233, 236, 237 — Penal Code (1860), Ss. 149, 302, 323 — Charge against accused under Ss. 302 and 323 read with S. 149, Penal Code — Conviction under Ss. 302 and 323 — Legality. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 233. 1956 Cri L J 1039 : AIR 1956 All 529 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 149 and 34 — Charge — Charge under S. 302 read with S. 149 — Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34 held valid — Object and intention — Distinction pointed out — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 236, 237). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1697.

——S. 300 — Charge under — Facts justifying conviction under S. 201 — Accused can be convicted under S. 201, though there is no specific charge—Legality. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 237. 1957 Cri L J 1071 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 611 (DB).

——S. 300 — Criminal P. C., S. 173 — Framing of charge — Duty of Prosecution pointed out—Prosecution case that act of accused in inflicting injuries on deceased caused death of deceased — Charge should be under S. 302 and not under S. 304, unless special circumstances are present which clearly and beyond any doubt indicate that offence could only be under S. 304 — Prosecution should leave the matter of determining under what section offence falls, to the Sessions Court — They should not pre-judge the case by deciding to frame a charge under S. 304 — If a charge is framed under S. 302 and the Court ultimately comes to the conclusion that the offence is one under S. 304, it would be open to the Court to acquit the accused under S. 302 and convict him on the charge under S. 304. 1964 (1) Cri L J 393 : AIR 1964 Assam 53 (54) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Ss. 300 and 34 — Applicability — Two accused charged under — One acquitted — Other can be convicted under S. 302.

Where two co-accused are charged under S. 302 read with S. 34 and one of them is acquitted or found not guilty of the offence charged, the other co-accused can be convicted of murder under S. 302, provided of course the evidence justified it. That there was no alternative charge under S. 302 against the convicted person is not of much consequence : AIR 1956 S C 116, Rel on. 1957 Cri L J 360 : AIR 1957 Assam 45 (47) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——S. 300 — Criminal P. C., S. 210 (1) — Case under S. 302, Penal Code, put in Magistrate's Court for enquiry — It is advisable to commit, accused on charge under S. 302 instead of framing charge under S. 304 — Whether offence falls under S. 302 or S. 304 should be left to Sessions Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 210 (1). 1953 Cri L J 217 : AIR 1953 Bhopal 1.

——Ss, 300, 34 and 149 and 147 — Accused charged under S. 302/149 — Conviction of the accused under S. 302 read with S. 34 when permissible.

When several persons are charged for an offence committed in pursuance of a common object under S. 149, I. P. C. and the charge under S. 147, I. P. C. is not established, a conviction for an offence committed in furtherance of a common intention under S. 34, I. P. C. is permissible provided no prejudice results therefrom and the facts are such that the accused could have been charged alternatively under S. 149 or under S. 34, I. P. C. Such a situation might arise only when the common intention is co extensive with the common object and does not go beyond the common object. AIR 1956 S C 731 and AIR 1952 S C 167 and AIR 1954 S C 204 and AIR 1961 S C 1787 and AIR 1955 S C 274, Rel. on. 1965 (1) Cri L J 160 : AIR 1965 Cal 89 (93) (Pt E) (Pr 28) (DB).

——S. 300 — Charge under, against two named persons only — No reference in charge or in evidence that any other person was involved — Acquittal of one, conviction of other under S. 302 or 201 read with S. 34 cannot be sustained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1963 (1) Cri L J 579 : AIR 1963 Cal 261.

——Ss. 300, 34 — Murder — Applicability — Several accused—Absence of charge under S. 302 read with S. 34—No evidence to show who actually committed murder — Conviction for murder—(Cri P. C. (1898), S. 367).

Per Guha Ray, J. — Where there are two accused and both of them are charged under S. 302 read with S. 34 and it is proved that both of them committed murder in furtherance of their common intention then both would be guilty of murder irrespective of the part each played therein But where there is no such charge, and the evidence does not indicate which of the accused actually murdered the deceased, the charge of murder against any of the accused cannot be sustained. 1960 Cri L J 338 : AIR 1960 Cal 183 (185) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 — Defect in charge — Omission of words "intentionally or knowingly" — No failure of justice. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 225. 1953 Cri L J 1665 : AIR 1953 Him Pra 105.

——Ss 300 and 364—Abductor charged with murder of abducted person — Further charge under S. 364—Maintainability.

When the case of the prosecution is that the person abducted has been murdered by the abductor, there is no scope for further charge under S. 364 I. P. C. for kidnapping or abducting in order to murder. AIR 1953 Hyd 249, Foll. 1960 Ker L J 220.

——S. 300—Charge under Ss 302/149 and 302—Contents—Mere mention of S. 302, if sufficient indicated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221. 1958 Cri L J 516 : AIR 1958 Ker 94 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34 - Scope—Murder by two accused by beating deceased — No evidence as to whose act caused death—No charge for constructive liability—One accused cannot be held responsible for death of deceased and convicted under S. 302. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3786 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34—Omission to frame charge under S. 34—Murder by several accused—Fatal and non-fatal injuries inflicted on deceased with sharp weapons Evidence not sufficient to fix responsibility for fatal injuries on individual accused—Evidence indicating pre-concerted plan - Fit case for applying principle of S. 34 — Charge under S. 34 not framed by lower Court—Lower Court convicting accused under S. 302 alone—Appellate Court can convict them under S. 302 read with S. 34—Omission to frame charge not material where no prejudice has been occasioned. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1960 Cri L J 1100 : AIR 1960 Mad 362 (DB).

——S. 300—Ss. 337, 342 and 494, Criminal P. C. — A and B charged together before committal Court, former under Ss. 302 and 379 I. P. C. and latter under Ss. 201 and 411, I. P. C.—When case was before Sessions Court and before commencement of trial, case against B separated—B offered as witness against A in the trial - Pardon need not have been granted to B—This would, however, affect value of B's evidence —Movement cases were separated, B was not an accused within the meaning of S. 342 Criminal P. C. at the trial of A and oath could be administered to B. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 337. 1957 Cri L J 1287 : AIR 1957 Mad 727 (DB).

—S. 300—Charge—Charge under Ss. 147 and 302/34—Conviction under Ss. 147 and 325/34 — Legality considered. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 3941.

——S. 300—Charge under —Conviction under S 201. See Penal Code (1860), S. 201. 1954 Cri L J 1768 : AIR 1954 Mad 1088 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302, 379, 411 or 201 — Separate charges if essential—Conviction for murder—Power of appellate bench to modify into one under S. 201.

It is quite unnecessary in a case of murder for gain to frame separate charges under S. 302 or 411 or S. 379 or 201, I. P. Code. Normally if an accused person is convicted under S. 302, I. P. Code, of murder it would be quite open to the Appellate Bench, if the evidence warrants it to modify the conviction to one under S. 201, I. P. Code, if the facts show that the accused had no hand in the murder itself but only assisted in the disposal of the body after the murder.

Where, however, the Sessions Judge convicted the accused under S. 302, I. P. Code, and in addition found him guilty under S. 379 or 411, I. P. Code, in the alternative but acquitted him of the charge under S. 201, I. P. Code, it would not be strictly correct for the appellate Court to modify the conviction to one under S. 201, I. P. Code, without the State filing an appeal against the acquittal. 1952 Mad W N 613 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 185 : (1952) 2 M L J 288 : 54 Cri L J 1889 : AIR 1953 Mad 1006 (1006) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 300 — Cri. P. C., S. 240 — Accused committed under Ss. 302, 307, 392, Penal Code — Sessions Judge should not spilit up case of murder from robbery to be dealt with separately—(Madras High Court Rules of Practice, R. 156). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 240. 1952 Cri L J 853 : AIR 1952 Mad 411 (DB).

——S. 300—Charge under S. 149 read with S. 302 but no separate charge under S. 302—Conviction—Appeal — Charge under S. 149 not established—Accused not prejudiced in defence by absence of separate charge under S. 302 — Conviction of accused under S. 149 can be converted into conviction under S. 302. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 535. (1965) 1 Law Rep 714 : 1966 Cri L J 223 (Mys).

——S. 300—Charge—Proof—Necessity.

It is no doubt true that even in the absence of the discovery or production of the body of the murdered person a conviction can be sustained if the evidence clearly establishes that a particular person was intentionally killed. But if the charge is that a particular person was murdered that fact has to be established. 1959 All W R (Sup) 15 : 1959 All Cr R 1114 : 1959 Cri L J 617 : 37 Mys L J 53 : ILR (1958) Mys 411 : AIR 1959 Mys 116 (116) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 300—Knowledge and intention — Absence of words in charge — Effect — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 223).

The view of the Sessions Judge that the accused, in stabbing his father and thereby causing his death, acted without motive, ill-will or sinister purpose and that he must be presumed to have known the result of it is tantamount to saying that the act was intentional, as intention has to be inferred from the manner in which a person acts. The accused cannot, therefore, be said to have been prejudiced by absence in the charge, which imputes intention to commit the act, of words alleging that he stabbed the father with knowledge that it is likely to cause death. 35 Mys L J 76 : ILR (1956) Mys 414 : 1957 Cri L J 985 : A I R 1957 Mys 68 (69) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 201—Charge under Ss. 302 and 201—Acquittal under S. 201 on mere ground of conviction order S. 302—Propriety.

Where the accused was charged under Ss. 302 and 201, the Court ought not to record a finding of acquittal on the charge under S. 201 without going into that question and taking the evidence into consideration, on the mere ground that as she was convicted under S. 302 she is to be acquitted of the charge under S 201. Such a procedure is dangerous. 23 Cut L T 180: 1957 Cri L J 1152: AIR 1957 Orissa 216 (219) (Pt D) (Pr 11) (DB).

——S. 300—Charge reciting facts constituting offence of murder and common object to commit murder—Accused proved to have shared common object at particular time—They cannot complain that they had no notice of charge. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 221. ILR (1952) Cut 219.

——Ss. 300, 302/84, 302/149 — Common object and common intention may overlap—Charge under S. 302 would also include charge under S. 302/34.

Held, that there is undoubtedly a real distinction between common intention on the one hand and common object on the other though they sometimes overlap. If five or more persons jointly attack an officer with the object of killing him their common object and their common intention are just the same. A discussion of this aspect of the case is merely academic where the accused persons have been charged under S. 302, Penal Code, also which would include a charge under Section 302/34, Penal Code, and in the alternative under S. 302/149. for having brought about the murder of the deceased with the common object of murdering him. ILR (1952) Cut 219.

——Ss. 300 and 34—Common intention — Charge under S. 34, whether necessary.

To constitute common intention, the acts of the accused should be done in pursuance of a pre-arranged plan or a pre-arranged concert, which may even develop on the spot during the course of commission of an offence.

Held, on facts, that there was a pre-arranged plan to bring about the death of the deceased; both the accused shared the common intention to cause death and therefore both were guilty of the offence of double murder under S. 302 read with S. 34, I. P. Code, since the absence of any charge has not caused any prejudice to the accused, omission of the charge was of no consequence in the circumstances of the case 1964 (1) Cri L J 121 (124) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 19) (Pat) (DB).

——S 300—Charge under S. 364 — Maintainability—Intention of abductor to murder the person abducted must be proved—Specific case that abductors had murdered the person abducted — Charge under S. 364 cannot be maintained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 364. (1961) ILR 40 Pat 809.

——S. 300 — Charge under S. 149/302 — Conviction under S 34/302. When legal considered. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1957 Cri L J 216 : AIR 1957 Pat 52 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34—Charge — Facts showing that attack on deceased was in furtherance of common intention of accused with another person — Accused can be convicted under S. 302 read with S. 34, even though there was no separate charge under S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 N U C (Pat) 452 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 149 — Charge under S. 302/149 framed against accused — Charge and questions during his examination leaving no room for doubt that prosecution held him responsible for murder — Failure to frame specific charge under S. 302 does not prejudice accused - Omission does not vitiate trial — Cr. P. Code (1898), Ss. 225, 537.

Where the charge under S. 302/149 framed against the accused and the questions put to him during the course of his examination by the committing Magistrate and the Sessions Court should not have left him in doubt that the prosecution intended to prove that he was responsible for the murder of the deceased, it cannot be said that his case has been even remotely prejudiced simply because a charge under S. 302 was not specifically framed against him. The omission is curable and cannot vitiate his trial in the Sessions Court. AIR 1958 S C 116, Foll.; AIR 1955 S C 274; AIR 1955 S C 419, Dist. (1962) 64 Pun L R 338.

——Ss. 300 and 34 — Scope—Charge under S. 302, Penal Code simpliciter mentioning that each of the accused along with the other intentionally killed the deceased — Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34 — Validity — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 233.

Section 34, Penal Code, does not create any distinct offence but is merely explanatory. Therefore if S. 34 is not mentioned in the charge sheet the conviction for the substantive offence is not bad. (Accused charged under S. 302, Penal Code, charge mentioning that each of the accused along with the other intentionally killed the deceased—Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34 held not illegal.) ILR 14 Pat 225, AIR 1942 Lah 214; AIR 1931 Cal 625 and AIR 1948 All 162 Rel. on; AIR 1955 S C 274, Expl. 1956 Raj L W 435.

——S. 300 — Charge under S. 149/302 — Conviction under S. 34/302 is legal even if no charge has been framed under S. 34 — (In this case though no charge under S. 34 was framed, the words 'common intention" were used and the principle ingredients of "common intention" had been brought home to the accused. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 237. 1954 Cri L J 1458 : AIR 1954 Sau 115 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34, 109, 149 — Section 109 need not be invoked when accused are charged under S. 149 and S. 302/34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Tra-Co 230 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 148, 149, 341 and 109 — Charges under — Leaving out S. 149 in relation to charge of murder held was a serious omission as it would keep the door open for guilty man to escape. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1956 Cri L J 1358 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 230 (DB).

19. Charge to jury.

See also Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297.

● ——S. 300 — Misdirection — Whether a reasonable person in the circumstances of a particular case committed the offence under provocation which was grave and sudden is a question of fact for the jury to decide. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1962 (1) Cri L J 521 : AIR 1962 S C 605.

——S. 300 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 — Charge of murder by poison - Giving of lethal dose not proved — Benefit of doubt has to be given to the accused. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1957 Cri L J 930 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 456 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 and 804 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297 — Charge to jury — Misdirection — Judge not explaining circumstances when an act, if it does not amount to murder, whether it amounts to culpable homicide not amounting to murder—Charge held amounted to misdirection — Plea of right of private defence — Burden lies on accused. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 392.

——S. 300 — Criminal P. C., S. 297 — Summing up — Trial for murder—Motive—See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 297. 1958 Cri L J 1380 : AIR 1958 Bom 439 (DB).

——S. 300—Criminal P. C. (1898), S 297 — Misdirection — Plea of private defence—Raising of—Accused repudiating complicity in crime — Evidence and circumstances showing that such plea could properly be raised — Duty of Sessions Judge — Omission to explain to jury exception II to S. 300, Penal Code and law of private defence is misdirection. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 297. 1962 (1) Cri L J 137 : AIR 1962 Cal 85 (DB).

20. Sections 34 and 300, Penal Code.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 34.

● ——Ss. 300, 34, 301 and 302 — 'Criminal act' and 'in furtherence of common intention' — Meaning of — Four accused with common intention to kill M shooting at R bona fide taking him to be M — Shooting resulting in R's death — Accused are guilty under S. 302 read with S. 34 — Section 301 has no application. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1965 (2) Cri L J 266 : AIR 1965 S C 1260.

● ——S. 300—Common intention—Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34—Pre-requisite — Four persons charged under S. 302 read with S. 34—Three acquitted — Fourth cannot be convicted for having committed the offence along with one or more of the acquitted persons. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1963 (2) Cri L J 351 : AIR 1963 S C 1413.

● ——Ss. 300, 34, 302—Accused charged under S. 302 read with S. 34 along with four others, gravamen of charge being that he shared common intention with four other accused — Four other accused acquitted—Conviction of accused with aid of S. 34 cannot be bad. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 147 : AIR 1956 S C 51.

——S. 300 — Common intention how gathered stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1957 Cri L J 28 : AIR 1957 All 50 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34 — Common intention — Want of sufficient evidence—Applicability of S. 34.

In a trial for offence under S. 302 read with S. 34 unless there is sufficient evidence to establish common intention, S 34 cannot be pressed into use and all the accused cannot be convicted under S. 302 of the Code. 1957 Cri L J 28 : I L R (1956) 2 All 188 : AIR 1957 All 50 (52, 53) (Pt A) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34 — Common intention — One accused instigating others to kill deceased and his father — Accused held had common intention. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4169 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34, Thirdly, 302 and 304—Death by single lathi blow by one of three persons — Head injury sufficient to cause death in ordinary course of nature—Case falls under thirdly — Who caused injury not known — Same intention (to cause injury sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death) must be attributed to other accused — All are liable for murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1953 Cri L J 565 : AIR 1953 All 203 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34 and 323 — Assault by several persons armed with spears and lathis — Constructive liability —Death caused mainly due to incised wounds—Conviction of accused under S. 302/34 armed only with lathis for murder, when those who were armed with spears acquitted, held not legal—They could only be convicted under S. 323. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 51 Cri L J 993 : AIR 1950 All 355.

——Ss. 300 (3), 302 read with S. 34 — Conviction under—Existence of a common intention to beat—Sufficiency.

For a conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34, Penal Code, the existence of a common intention to beat is not insufficient and a common intention to kill is not always necessary. Even if the common intention is merely of beating, if the bodily injury intended to be inflicted by the beating is found to be sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature, the mens rea required for liability under S. 302, read with S. 34, Penal Code, would be satisfied. The question would depend upon the extent to which the beating was carried out in furtherance of the common intention. But if the acts exceed the common intention, S. 34 would, of course, not be applicable. (1965) 2 Andh W R 151 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 607 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 458 : A I R 1965 Andh-Pra 361 (366, 367) (Pt A) (Prs 20, 24, 27, 28, 29) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34 and 326 — Rioting with guns and other deadly weapons resulting in deaths—Deceased sustaining gunshot and other fatal injuries—Accused charged under S. 302 read with S. 34 — Conviction should be under s. 302 read with S. 34 even if there was no evidence to prove who caused fatal injury—Conviction under S 326 read with S. 34 not proper. See Penal Code (1860), S 34. 1961 (1) Cri L J 42 : AIR 1961 Andh-Pra 23 (DB).

——Ss, 300, 34, 302, 304 and 323—K cleaning nala—T, his uncle, objecting — K not heeding objection — T's sons J and N coming out armed with daos — T holding K from behind and sons dealing blows with daos—K dying of injuries—J and N held participated in assault with common intention—T held was guilty under S. 323. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 NUC (Assam) 4206 (DB).

——S. 300—Common intention— Attack by number of person, one of whom was armed with axe — Common intention to cause bodily injuries sufficient in ordinary course to cause death may be inferred. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1962 (2) Cri L J 55 : AIR 1962 Guj 214 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34 — In speaking to the accused-appellant of the errand which he was asked to join, the other accused only saying that they would take revenge with their own hands—Diverse acts of appellant's companions not such as to have necessarily led the appellant to the conclusion that those acts were a preliminary to murder—Appellant held not guilty under S. 302 read with S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1952 Cri L J 133 : AIR 1952 Him-Pra 3.

——S. 300 -Applicability - Murder by several accused —Deceased sending buffaloes in B's field for grazing —Attitude of deceased leading to sudden quarrel—Several accused armed with 'luhangis' and 'lathis' arriving at the spot and assaulting deceased, causing injuries on the head of deceased who dies soon after —No enmity which might have prompted the murder established—Medical report stating that first injury was grievous which caused his death — Held that in the circumstances it could not be held that all the accused were there assembled with the common object and with the common intention of murdering deceased. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 3097 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34—Bandits armed with revolvers waylaying passer-by — One firing shot and killing the passer-by—All of the bandits carrying revolvers are guilty under S. 302 read with S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1952 Cri L J 853 : AIR 1952 Mad 411 (DB).

——S. 300—Conviction and sentence—Charge under S. 302 read with S. 34 — Accused is as much guilty of criminal act as is his co-accused who actually committed the murder. AIR 1955 S C 331, Rel. on. ILR (1962) Cut 726 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 294: AIR 1963 Orissa 144 (150, 151) (Pt F) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Ss, 300, 299—Two persons attacking deceased—One having murderous intention causing injury sufficient to cause death — Other not having that intention causing simple injury—Offence.

Cases frequently arise that the death could not have occurred but for an act on the part of the accused, but in which he had been excused on the ground that some other person intervened and appeared to have been the more immediate and direct cause of the death on the ground that the death was not the consequence of what the accused did, but was the consequence of what the intervener did. But if one person is engaged in murderously beating another to death and causes injury which is sufficient to cause death and a stranger, without sharing the common intention, was to rush in and add some more blows so that the victim's death was more speedily brought about, then, it is a case where both would be guilty of murder and the first man cannot be allowed a defence that it was the second assailant's stroke that finally ended the victim's life. 1958 Cri L J 785 : 24 Cut L T 350 : AIR 1958 Orissa 113 (115) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 304, Part I — Accused charged for murder—Free fight between two parties resulting in death of deceased -Accused also sustaining some injuries—Evidence of doctor indicating that if injuries of the deceased were attended to he would have survived — Conviction altered from S. 302 to S. 304, Part I. 1964 (2) Cri L J 107 (111) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (Pat.) (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability — Several accused, armed with axes, attacking M with intention of using them not only against M but against one who interceded on his behalf—Stranger unexpectedly arriving on the scene injured while trying to intervene on behalf of M and died as result of injuries—Accused held liable for murder — Question whether deceased's arrival was unexpected and accused could not have intended to cause his death in particular had no relevance in considering their liability for murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. AIR 1955 NUC (Sau) 4083 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 34—Common intention to murder.

Unless it is shown that there was from the outset a common intention to murder the deceased, the accused (in this case two in number) cannot be convicted under Section 302 read with Section 34, and in the absence of any evidence to show which of the accused killed the deceased neither can be convicted of murder, for the mere fact that one of the accused had an axe will not mean conclusively that they had a common intention and that common intention was to kill the deceased. 6 Sau L R 183 : 1954 Cri L J 378 : AIR 1954 Sau 24 (25) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34 and 149—Common intention.

Common intention does not necessarily mean that the pre-arranged plan must have contemplated the actual offence that would be made out from the conduct of some of the accused or that the pre-arranged plan must have decided all the minute details of the transaction. Every confederate becomes guilty of the actual offence which is made out from the acts comprising the criminal acts. The intention so imputed to such confederates who did not actually commit that particular act leading to the serious consequences need not be the same common intention which existed between all the confederates at the start of the course of conduct which amounted to the criminal act and which resulted in the commission of the offence.

Where there was previous enmity between P (one of the accused) and the deceased, all the seven accused were standing at P's door armed with lathis from before and they attacked the deceased and his companions when they passed in front of his house killing him on the spot.

Held that the accused intended to give a good beating to the deceased and his companions without any clear conception of the precise nature of injuries which would be caused and they were all liable for the offence under S. 302 Penal Code, in view of the provisions of S. 34, Penal Code.

Held, further that S. 149, Penal Code, was also applicable. The common object of the unlawful assembly was to beat the deceased and his companions. All the appellants must have known that they were likely to commit murder. Therefore, all the appellants were constructively guilty of it in view of the provisions of S. 149, Penal Code. AIR 1948 All 229, Foll. 1954 Cri L J 1303 : AIR 1954 Vin Pra 36 (39, 40) (Pt C) (Prs 18, 19, 20).

21. Sections 149 and 300, Penal Code.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 149.

● ——Ss. 300, 34 and 149 — Scope — Common object of unlawful assembly only to administer chastisement to deceased — Charge not mentioning that members of unlawful assembly knew that deceased was likely to be killed in prosecution of that common object — Deceased killed — Members not causing fatal injury held not guilty under S. 302 read with S 149 or S. 34. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1956 Cri L J 1365 : AIR 1956 S C 731.

——S. 300 — In prosecution of the common object of the assembly — Interpretation of — Not killing but only beating of deceased in contemplation of members of unlawful assembly — Murder of deceased by one member while unlawful assembly was acting in accomplishment of common object — Other members not liable for murder under S. 149. See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. 1962 (1) Cri L J 698 : AIR 1962 All 272.

——S. 300 — Applicability — Reserve of cattle lawfully taken to pound — Injury caused in commission of common object — Death of injured — Offence stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 148. 1958 Cri L J 588 : AIR 1958 All 348 (DB).

——Ss. 300 (3), 302, 304 and 149 — Applicability — Accused persons leading their cattle into field of complainant's — Complaints when taking cattle to pound intercepted and beaten by accused — One of complainants receiving smashing blow on head by one of accused and dying — All held guilty under S. 302/149. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1701 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34 and 149 — Rioting with deadly weapons resulting in murders—Charge framed under S. 302 read with S. 34 — No evidence to establish who had participated in attack on deceased — No legal bar to convict accused under S. 302 read with S 149 See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1961 (1) Cri L J 42 : AIR 1961 Andh-Pra 23 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 149, 324 — Common object — Proof of, by course of conduct — Individual act need not be proved See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. 1956 Cri L J 389 : AIR 1956 Bom 183 (DB).

——S. 300 — Common intention and same intention — Distinction — Person when can be vicariously convicted for murder committed by another — What prosecution has to prove — Prior meeting of minds essential for common intention. See Penal Code (1860), S. 3. 1959 Ker L J 785.

——Ss. 300 and 149 — Conviction — Several accused charged under S. 302 read with S. 149 of murdering deceased — No finding as to whether accused had constituted themselves into an unlawful assembly with the common object of murder and whether murder was committed in prosecution of that common object — Conviction of accused under S. 302 read with S. 149 cannot be sustained. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 3498 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 325, 323, 149 and 147 — More than five persons with only thin lathis in their hands coming together — Some of them beating complainants who were working at their fields — Death of some of the victims — Deceased persons not having injuries in such number or or in such circumstances as would indicate anything like grim determination on the part of assailants to endanger their lives — Held, that all the persons could be held as members of unlawful assembly whose common object was at least to cause hurt — That they could be aware of the possibility of grievous hurt but not of killing any persons — That the case fell under S. 325, read with S. 149, besides under S. 323 read with Ss. 149 and 147 — That offence under S 323 being only a minor form of offence to the offence under S 325 conviction under S. 323 was superfluous. 1963 Jab L J 932 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 185 : AIR 1964 Madh-Pra 182 (192, 193) (Pt C) (Prs 44 to 47) (DB).

——S. 300 — Unlawful assembly — Common object — Carrying of weapons - Conviction under S. 149 read with S. 302 held justified. See Penal Code (1860), S. 141. 1964 (1) Cri L J 198 : AIR 1964 Madh-Pra 30 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 34, 149 — Murder by several accused — Common intention — Cannot be inferred unless it is a necessary inference from circumstances of case — Held on facts of case that there was no common intention.

Where the accused party consisting of eight persons went to the house of B armed with weapons and sticks to chastise him for his rude and insolent behaviour towards one of them, and on B raising an alarm, his brother K and others arrived on the spot and pleaded with the accused party not to harm B, but still one of the accused opened the attack by giving the fatal blow with a kirpan on the head of K,

Held, that it could not be said that all the accused had the common intention to punish K, much less to kill him, and the accused other than the accused giving the fatal blow with kirpan could not be held responsible for the stray individual act of the accused giving the fatal blow to K. (1962) 64 Pun L R 338.

——Ss. 300, 149 — Murder — Constructive liability — Other members of the mob were not aware of the fact that the first accused did have a sharp weapon like knife or dagger in his possession and that he was going to use it to stab the victim — Held, that there was no constructive liability in the circumstances, incurred by the other members of the mob for the act of stabbing done by the 1st accused. It was only the 1st accused that was liable for the offence of murder committed by him — See Penal Code (1860), S. 149. 1952 Cri L J 1592 : AIR 1952 Tra-Co 459 (DB).

22. Evidence — General.

● ——S. 300 — Unlawful assembly assaulting with weapons, including guns—Death of some victims—Duty of Court in appreciating evidence. Masalti v. State of U. P. 1965 (1) Cr L J 226 : 1964 S C D 980: 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 312 : I L R (1964) 2 All 694 : (1964) 1 An L T 19 : (1964) 1 S C W R 721 : A I R 1965 S C 202 (210) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

● ——S. 300 — Corroboration of evidence admitted under the Section—Extent of indicated. See Criminal

P. C. (1898), S. 288. 1964 (2) Cr L J 359 : AIR 1964 S C 1357.

● —S. 300—Evidence — Appreciation of — Murder trial — Duty of Court pointed out. Moti Singh v. State of U. P. 1963 MLJ (Cri) 625 : 1963 All W R (H C) 469: ILR (1963) 2 All 708 : 1963 All L J 647 : (1964) 1 SCR 688 : 1963 All Cr R 250 : 1963 Cur L J (S C) 87 : 1963-2 S C J 714 : 1963 S C D 1007 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 727 : AIR 1964 S C 900 (902) (Pt B) (Pr 14).

● —S. 300—Conviction—Evidence—Conviction on evidence of single witness—Propriety of, discussed. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 134. 1957 Cri L J 1000 : AIR 1957 S C 614.

● —Ss. 300 and 302—Murder charge — Cruel and revolting murder — Evidence —Necessity to examine evidence with more than ordinary care.

Where the murder committed is a particularly cruel and revolting one, it is necessary to examine the evidence with more than ordinary care lest the shocking nature of the crime might induce an instinctive reaction against a dispassionate judicial scrutiny of the facts and law. Kashmira Singh v. State of M. P., 1952 Cri L J 839: 1952 All W R (Supp) 64 : (1952) S C A 474 : 1952 S C J 201 : 1952 Mad W N 402 : 1952 Mad W N 106 : 1952 1 Mad L J 754 : 1952 S C R 526 : AIR 1952 S C 159 (160) (Pt E) (Pr 2).

—S. 300. Exception 4 — Circumstances showing probability that complainants were aggressors and accused acted in self-defence—Prosecution witnesses disbelieved — Case of free fight could not be made out—Conviction of accused—Illegal.

Held, on facts, that the probability that the members of the complainant's party were the aggressors and the accused persons had acted in exercise of the right of private defence could not be ruled out. It was not safe to convict the accused persons on the ground that as they were injured at the time and place of the occurrence, they must have taken part in the fight which must be a free fight. The prosecution evidence was totally unreliable, and hence a new case could not be made out for the prosecution and the accused persons could not be convicted on the assumption that it must be a case of free fight between the members of the two rival parties. AIR 1957 S C 469, Distinguished, 1959 All L J 423, Applied. 1965 (1) Cr L J 373 (377) (Pr 30) (All) (DB).

—S. 300—Murder by firing gun-shot from close range. Absence of blood at the place of occurrence cannot establish that the murder has not taken place at the alleged place of occurrence. Once internal bleeding starts, very little blood comes out of the wound outside the body particularly if the wound is caused by gun-fire and from a close range. Where the accused was prosecuted for committing murder by firing a gun-shot from a very close range, the absence of blood at and near the place of occurrence cannot establish that the murder has not taken place at the alleged place of occurrence. 1963 All L J 977.

—S. 300—Appreciation of evidence—Conviction for murder — Private defence pleaded by accused—No explanation of evidence against him by the accused in his statement — Court cannot invent possible explanation in his favour. Power of Court' See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. ILR (1961) 1 All 609.

—S. 300—Proof of intention—Conviction on statement made in Court—Accused's act stated to be under duress—Absence of common intention between accused and those who killed - Accused held not responsible for acts of others which were not committed in furtherance of any common intention —His act above amounted to assistance given to other murderers— If this assistance was intentional he would be guilty of abetting the offence of murder — If it was not intentional, he would not be guilty even of such offences— If he committed abetment of murder under threats or of being put to death, he committed no offence in view of S 94. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 342. 1957 Cri L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

—S. 300—Intention—Presumption of.

The accused is ordinarily responsible for his own acts and is not responsible for the acts of others unless law specifically makes him responsible for the acts of others. Where, in a case of murder, it was sought to infer the necessary intention on the part of the accused from the fact that he held the legs of the deceased while the others killed him and there was nothing to show that those others committed the acts in furtherance of any common intention between them and the accused but on the other hand the accused's act was committed under duress :

Held, that this was a case where intention of the accused could not be presumed from the natural consequences of his conduct and the conduct of the others who were acting simultaneously with him at the time. His own act also was not so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability have caused death. His conduct would not amount to the offence of murder even under Cl. (4) of S. 300, I. P. Code. (1947) 1 All E R 813, Rel. on. 1957 All L J 20 : 1957 All W R (HC) 86 : 1957 Cr L J 344 : AIR 1957 All 184 (187, 188) (Pt D) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1966 All 192.]

—S. 300 - Criminal P. C., Ss. 288, 367 —Murder trial —Out of eight eye-witnesses named in FIR, only three were examined in committing Magistrate's Court— Mere fact that these witnesses did not give evidence helpful to prosecution is no ground for not examining the rest — Prosecution examining different set of eye-witnesses at trial whose evidence was not trustworthy —Motive for crime not established— Held on a consideration of entire evidence that evidence adduced was not of such a character as could be relied upon for conviction — In any case accused was entitled to benefit of doubt. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 286. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1326 (DB).

—S. 300—Charge against accused substantiated by overwhelming evidence such as dying declaration and testimony of four persons out of whom two were independent witnesses—Sessions Court rejecting large body of evidence on fanciful grounds and acquitting accused — Finding of acquittal held was based on wrong approach and was perverse and therefore set aside. (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 417). ILR (1964) Andh Pra 286 (DB).

—S. 300—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3 — Cogent evidence of conclusive nature cannot be jettisoned on 'a priori' considerations.

Cogent evidence of a conclusive nature cannot be jettisoned on 'a priori' considerations. There is no talismanic test to determine the course of human conduct in a given situation, and as human behaviour may manifest itself in infinite varieties of circumstances, it is perilous to generalise as to what a man may or may not do, after committing a ghastly murder. There is, however, nothing inherently improbable in a murderer trying to cover up his tracks as best as he could. (1963) All L R (Cri J) 25 : (1962) 2 Andh L T 393 (DB).

—S. 300—Evidence and proof—Evidence — Criminal trial — Murder — Proof—In the trial for murder, if there is total absence of substantive direct evidence the absence of cogent medical evidence on the point of suicide and insanity of the deceased will not prove the guilt of the accused. (1965) 69 Cal W N 764.

—S. 300 — Autrefois acquit — Principle of - Scope and applicability—Trial of seven accused under S. 302 read with S. 34, Penal Code -Conviction of two and acquittal of rest — Appeal by convicted persons—No appeal filed against acquittal order:— High Court can reappreciate evidence on record in so far as it affects case for and against convicted accused for determining whether they had common intention with those who were acquitted. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 403. ILR (1964) Guj 414.

—S. 300—Murder case—Overwhelming direct and circumstantial evidence for prosecution — Knife and clothes recovered from accused not got examined by Chemical Examiner—Lacuna held of no consequence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1965 (2) Cri L J 771 : A I R 1965 J & K 126 (DB).

—S. 300—Evidence—Recovery of head and clothes of deceased at instance of accused—Accused cannot be convicted under S. 302 — Accused is guilty of offence under S. 201. See Penal Code (1860), S. 201. 1954 Cri L J 1124 : A I R 1954 J & K 42 (DB).

—S. 300—Murder case—Prior deposition of witness —Admissibility—Record of reasons essential -Reasons not sufficient—Other evidence ample to prove guilt of accused — Conviction affirmed. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 33. 1962 Ker L T 374.

—S. 300—Murder by hanging—Proof—Distinction between death by strangulation and hanging — Appreciation of medical evidence.

In case of strangulation a continuous transverse ligature mark will be found on the neck but in the case of hanging it would be oblique and non-continuous. In the case of hanging marks would be high up in the neck and the neck would be stretched and elongated. In the case of strangulation no such symptoms would be seen. Bleeding from the nose, mouth and and ears would be very rare in the case of hanging and will be found in the case of strangulation. Again in the case of hanging, saliva would be flowing out of the mouth down on the chin and chest and in the case of strangulation no saliva would be seen. Emphysematous patches on the surface of the lungs would not be present in the case of hanging but would be present in a case of strangulation. 1960 Ker L J 618.

—S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 104 — Criminal Trial — Explanation by accused — Appreciation of evidence — Duty of Court pointed out. See Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 104. (1960) 2 Ker L R 329.

—S. 300 - Scope — Statement of witnesses recorded not in their language but in English — Effect stated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 161 (3). (1960) 2 Ker L R 329.

—S. 300—Offence of murder—Defence of drunkenness—When available stated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 86. 1959 Ker L T 634.

—S. 300—Silence of accused—Admissibility as conduct—Silence observed by accused when the accusation was made and what he did on hearing, that would be relevant material to be taken into account along with other circumstances. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 8. 1959 Ker L T 167 : 1959 Ker L J 221 : ILR (1959) Ker 319.

—Ss. 300 and 34 — Common intention — Proof — Circumstances.

That no one cut inflicted on the deceased was in itself fatal is no reason to hold that the offence committed is not murder or that all the accused who participated in the occurrence cannot be convicted of that offence. Where the fact that there was enmity between accused on the one hand and the deceased on the other was not only proved in the case but was also admitted by accused. The injuries sustained by the deceased external and internal-were of a serious nature even though no vital part as the head or the chest or the abdomen was involved, no important artery, however escaped being injured, the medical evidence was positive that a man sustaining these injuries could never survive, all the three accused came to the scene together, well-prepared and well-armed, and after the incident all the three ran away together and escaped in the dead of the night, they remained in hiding for some period and then, all the three together surrendered themselves before the Sub-Magistrate.

Held that these would appear tell-tale circumstances that the accused was acting in pursuance of a common intention. The nature of the weapons used and the extent and the enormity of the injuries inflicted would clearly show that the common intention was to bring about the death of their victim. The offence committed was nothing short of murder and all the three accused were equally guilty. 1957 Ker L J 1224 : ILR (1957) Ker 524.

—S. 300 - Criminal trial—Evidence—Murder charge —Material contradictions and discrepancies in evidence—Cannot be relied upon conviction. 1956 M B L J (H C R) 1412.

—S 300—Evidence.

Held, having regard to the evidence of two witnesses before whom the accused had admitted to have killed his wife with an axe, and having regard to the admission made by him before the committing Court which was subsequently retracted before the Sessions Court on the ground that it was extracted from him by police under undue pressure which was an excuse put forward as an after-thought and having regard to the place namely the house of the accused, where the body of the wife was found, the conclusion arrived at by the Sessions Judge that the accused had killed his wife was not erroneous. 1956 M B L J 472 : Madh B L R 1956 (Cri) 56.

—S. 300—Evidence.

Held, that the medical evidence indicated that only a portion of the liver of the deceased was smashed. The direct evidence was unmistakably decisive on the point that the deceased was on his senses after firing and he while lying with face downwards declared that the accused had fired at him. The declaration was recorded in the first information report lodged before the death of the deceased and even thereafter the Police Sub Inspector on reaching found him in a position to make a dying declaration which he took down. Having regard to all these facts it could not be said that the finding of the Court below that it was the accused who had fired at the deceased was erroneous. 1956 M B L J 343 : Madh B L R 1956 (Cri) 1.

—S. 300—Evidence—Sufficiency of, for conviction.

Criminal Trial — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence — Murder charge — Existence of bad blood between accused and deceased — Shirt of accused stained with human blood -Extra judicial confession made by accused before witnesses who were examined in the case — Conviction held proper. 1956 M B L J (H C R) 288.

—S. 300—Murder charge—Evidence.

Murder charge—Evidence — Discrepancy between oral testimony and medical evidence — Sufficiency of evidence for conviction — Circumstantial evidence —Conduct of accused suspicious — Report of incident made immediately—Evidence held adequate for conviction. See Criminal Trial. 1956 M B L J (H C R) 85.

—S. 300 —Acquittal upheld in appeal.

Held, in view of the previous acquittal of the rest of the accused by the former Sessions Judge, and its confirmation by the High Court the opinion of the Sessions Judge received considerrable weight. Even on materials as they stood the Sessions Judge was justified in disbelieving the witnesses in view of the absence of motive, absence of reasonable and consistent nature of the version given by them and intrinsic inconsistency in their statements. 1956 M B L J 62 : Madh B L R 1956 (Cri) 17.

——S. 300—Evidence — Opinion of medical expert — Appreciation of. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 45. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3407 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence — In post-mortem examination report of doctor stating cause of death to be haemorrhage in abdominal cavity but not deposing so in witness box — Omission held did not help accused. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 1815.

——S. 300—Murder — Conviction can be based on evidence of witnesses related to deceased although uncorroborated—Criminal Trial—Evidence—Murder.

It is not a universal proposition that a conviction cannot be based on the statements of the witnesses who are related to the deceased in the absence of corroboration Such statements will have to be judged on their own merits and, if the Court finds that there is nothing to warrant a disbelief in the statements of such witnesses, conviction can legally rest on such testimony. Madh B L R 1954 (Cri) 198 : Madh B L J 1954 (H C R) 663.

——S. 300 - Proof — Evidence contradictory and discrepant for co-accused — Co-accused acquitted — In absence of strong corroborative evidence of witnesses whose evidence was found discrepant and contradictory regarding other accused could not be made basis for conviction even though consistent regarding him. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 60.

——S. 300—Proof of guilt—Murder—Guilt-conscious conduct of accused.

When summons are afloat connecting a man with a grave and brutal murder, a quite innocent man may behave very foolishly quite like a guilty one. He may attempt to fabricate some evidence in order to see that he may not be required to undergo the fortune and suspense of a trial for murder. Such apparently guilty conscience conduct should not be heavily weighed against the accused, particularly where the identification itself is a matter of doubt. 1960 Cri L J 1102 : AIR 1960 Mad 370 (373) (Pt D) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302—Evidence—Value of.

Where, on the question whether the injuries which caused death were caused by the first accused only, or by the second accused only, or by both, the version untill the case came up before the Sessions Court was that the stones which caused the fatal injuries were used by the second accused, but the evidence at the sessions trial was that the injuries were caused by the first accused and not the second' then neither of the accused can be held responsible for the injuries caused to the deceased and both of them must necessarily be acquitted. 1957 Mad W N 153 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 366 : 1957 Cri L J 863 : (1957) 2 M L J 126 : AIR 1957 Mad 505 (507) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 10) (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Appreciation of — Medical evidence — Murder — Rigor mortis - Inference about time of death on basis of. See Criminal Trial. 1962 (1) Cri L J 733 : AIR 1962 Mys 124 (DB).

——S. 300—Proof of accused holding deceased by neck — Deceased missing thereafter — Accused in police custody stating that he had thrown dead body into cave— Discovery of dead body from cave—Held that deceased died as result of homicide of which accused was author. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 27. (1965) 7 O J D 170: 1965 All Cri R 258: 1965 All W R (Supp) 11 : (1965) 31 Cur L T 229.

——S. 300— Trial for murder — Evidence — Appreciation of — Opinion of doctor not conclusive — Evidence Act (1872), Ss 3 and 45—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 — Criminal Trial —Evidence, circumstantial.

Two persons (cousin and the second wife of the deceased) who were living with the deceased were charged for offence of murder for having caused the death of the deceased by strangulation. The prosecution was based on circumstantial evidence and the circumstances relied upon were the illicit intimacy between the accused persons and the knowledge of the deceased about it; presence of ligature marks on the neck of the deceased and an alleged attempt of accused to hide the mark by application of Sandalwood paste to it and the opinion of the doctor that it was an homicidal strangulation by application of chord or rope. Some ropes were found with blood-like stains but were not shown to the doctor nor was it clear from the evidence whether these ropes were sent to chemical examiner. The evidence as to wherefrom these ropes were found was also at variance. The illicit intimacy between the accused was sought to be proved by the fact that accused 1 was found to be carrying accused 2 on cycle to another village and both of them staying there for some time. The investigating officer was not examined nor was the report of chemical examiner produced even though demanded by accused.

Held, on appreciation of evidence that there was not a single circumstance which directly connected any of the accused persons with the alleged murder of the deceased. Though there was enough room for suspicion against the accused persons, suspicion however strong could not take the place of legal evidence. By their close relationship the accused were supposed to be intimately connected and no inference of illicit intimacy could be inferred merely because they were found going on one cycle. The only circumstance that was considered as incriminating against the accused was that they had not explained the existence of the ligature marks which was the result of a homicidal strangulation, as opined by the doctor. The doctor's opinion could be given its due weight but it could not be the sole basis for a conviction. Assuming, however, that the deceased died as a result of homicidal strangulation, there was no evidence to show that either one or both the accused effected such strangulation. AIR 1960 S C 500, Rel on. (1963) 29 Cut L T 557.

——S. 300 — Practice and procedure — Evidence — Examination of investigating officer essential — Non-examination likely to cause prejudice to accused. (1963) 29 Cut L T 557.

——S. 300—Appreciation — Murder and concealment of dead body — Evidence disbelieved on murder charge if can be accepted for charge uner S. 201, Penal Code. (1960) 26 Cut L T 638.

——S. 300 — Evidence — Duty of prosecution to put all material evidence—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 286.

Per Panigrahi, J. — In a case involving capital punishment it is essential that all material evidence should be placed before the Court, particularly if that evidence would go in favour of the accused. But it is not obligatory on the prosecutor to examine any number of witnesses on the same point, regardless of time or propriety. ILR (1952) Cut 219.

——Ss. 300 and 302 — Criminal Trial — Evidence — Medico-legal — Murder — Stomach contents of deceased —Inference as to time of death. 1964 (1) Cri L J 426 : AIR 1964 Pat 158 (159) (Pt B) (Pr 22) (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence — Presence of bloodstains on shirt and body of accused—If conclusive — Criminal trial—Murder—Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

The murder took place in a village at night. In the morning the accused, elder brother of the deceased, contacted some of the villagers including the village chaukidar and took them near the dead body of his brother. Later the accused proceeded to the police station along with the chaukidar and there he lodged the first information report. Some bloodstains were discovered on his shirt and person at the time of F. I. R. The accused denied those established facts in his statement under S. 342, Criminal P. C.

Held, that the movements of the accused in the morning in question were not those of an assailant of the deceased. In this view of the matter it was not safe to draw an inference as to the guilt of the accused merely from the circumstance that there were blood stains on his shirt and person at the time when he appeared at the police station for lodging the F. I. R., particularly when the explanation offered by the accused for the presence of the blood on the person in the F. I. R. also appeared reasonable. The complicity of the accused in the crime had not been proved beyond reasonable doubt and he was entitled to the benefit of doubt. 1961 B L J R 249.

——S. 300—Evidence Act, S. 3—Intention—Evidence as to — It can be gathered from facts and circumstances — It is matter of inference to be drawn from evidence on record. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. 1955 Cri L J 1385 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 153.

——S. 300—Evidence.

The fact that the murder was committed at accused's house raises a strong suspicion of guilt against him but any amount of suspicion cannot take the place of proof. Without reliable and convincing evidence that he actually took part in the assault or was in any way responsible for it he cannot be held liable for the murder. ILR (1953) Patiala 435 : 1954 Cri L J 592 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 69 (72) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——S. 300—Identity of spot of murder should be established.

In cases of murder it is not only desirable but necessary that the identity of the spot of murder should be fixed by collecting the blood-stained earth, if and when available, and forwarding it to the Chemical Examiner and the Imperial Seriologist for analysis of the blood. (1950) 2 Pepsu L R 489 (DB).

——S. 300—Murder Charge—Evidence—Medical evidence—Accused striking with iron picket (weighing more than two kilograms used for pegging tents) twice on uncovered head of A (deceased) with great force—A dying next day after unsuccessful operation — Post-mortem report saying that death was due to "extensive subarachnoid haemorrhage complicated by laceration of brain as a result of fracture of skull"—Defence that haemorrhage was result of violence or lesion caused by operation and death was not directly attributable to injury inflicted by accused. Extensive haemorrhage (assigned to be the reason of death) held was probably the result of violent physical blows inflicted on deceased and death was caused by those injuries—Evidence Act (1872), S. 45—Taylor's Principles and Practice of Medical Jurisprudence (11th Edition, Vol. 1, p. 309) and Medical Jurisprudence by Modi (14th Edition, p. 274) Quoted with approval. 1964 Cur L J 435 (Punj) : 1965 (2) Cri L J 832 (2) (834) (Prs 7, 8) (Punj) (DB).

——S. 300—Appreciation of evidence—Eye-witnesses —Determination of credibility of their testimony—Test. (Evidence Act (1872), S. 5) and (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367).

Where persons offer themselves as eye witnesses, there are a number of ways to find out and to check if they have actually seen the occurrence as alleged by them. One of the tests is whether the evidence of such witnesses is corroborated by legal evidence. The other is whether there are any contradictions or discrepancies in the statements of those witnesses. It has also got to be seen whether during the trial the witnesses have tried to improve upon their earlier statements. If the answer to the above questions is in the affirmative, this leaves an impression in the mind of the Court that such witnesses have not seen the occurrence and the Court can on this basis either accept or reject the testimony of such witnesses. ('65) 67 Pun L R 960 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Recoveries of Kirpan and clothes from accused—Evidentiary value of.

In a murder case when the prosecution evidence is held to be untrustworthy or unsafe of credence and the dying declaration to have been recorded in circumstances which do not inspire confidence, the Court would be most reluctant to base the conviction of the accused only on the recovery of the kirpan and the clothes particularly when the investigating agency also does not appear to have conducted themselves in a straightforward manner. Such recovery of articles should not be held to be a strong corroborative piece of evidence. 64 Punj L R 1064 : ILR (1962) 2 Punj 855 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 469 : AIR 1963 Punj 170 (174) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——S. 300—Medical evidence—Murder—Question of time when food was taken by deceased—Medical evidence based on contents of stomach not reliable. (1961) 63 Punj L R 742.

——S. 300—Murder—Delay in post-mortem examination of dead bodies is not material factor which should seriously tell against authenticity of prosecution story. (1961) 63 Punj L R 742.

——S. 300—Accused last seen with deceased—Accused hiding in a field and when found making confessional statement which is supported by tracker's evidence that accused was near the dead body of deceased — Traces of seminal fluid found on turban of accused and on langota of deceased—Anal margin of deceased found torn—Confessional statement retracted—Circumstances and evidence held sufficient to uphold conviction under Ss. 302 and 377, I. P. C. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 4997 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Accused held could not be convicted on evidence tendered—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 3). AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 1359.

——Ss. 300, 302, 304, Part II—Murder case—Medical witness stating that death was caused on account of shock and haemorrhage due to certain injuries—Statement of medical witness cannot be equated to statement that "injuries by themselves were in ordinary course of nature likely to cause death"—Duties of Public Prosecutors and Judges while dealing with medical evidence in murder trials stated—Evidence Act (1872), S. 45 — Criminal P. C., S. 286. 1965 (1) Cri L J 219 : AIR 1965 Raj 32 (34) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

—S. 300 — Appreciation of evidence—Principle of falsus in uno falsus in omnibus does not apply in India — Prosecution witnesses omitting to explain injuries on the accused — Accused not entitled to acquittal on that ground alone. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. ILR (1952) 12 Raj 481.

—S. 300 — Omission to send alleged weapon of offence to chemical examiner for examination — —Effect.

In cases where the accused seriously challenges that the alleged weapon of offence had nothing to do with him or the crime in question, the omission to send the suspected blood-stained article for examination by a chemical examiner and by a serologist may lead to acquittal of a guilty person simply on account of such omission. Where, however, there was evidence of a witness to show that the axe in question was the axe with which the accused had committed the offence in question and the accused far from challenging the statement of this witness, admitted in his examination before the Committing Magistrate that that was the axe with which he had committed the offence, the omission to send the axe or scrapings from it for chemical examination or examination by a Serologist has no effect upon the prosecution. ILR (1955) 5 Raj 1012 : 1956 Cri L J 266 : 1956 Raj L W 229 : AIR 1956 Raj 34 (36, 37) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 12) (DB).

——S. 300—Murder — Accused, uneducated villager —His running away from scene of occurrence and remaining absconding does not necessarily suggest guilty mind.

The conduct of an accused charged with murder, in running away from the scene of occurrence and in absconding for a period of four months, although it may raise some suspicion against him, does not necessarily suggest a guilty mind when he happens to be an uneducated person living in a village. 1955 Raj L W 307.

——S. 300—Murder—Person dying of injury—Medical witness—Duty of prosecutor and Sessions Judge.

In all cases especially in the case of a murder, where a person dies of injuries, it is the duty of the prosecutor to put a question to the Doctor, when he is examined in Court, as to the nature of the injuries, i. e., whether they were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, or likely to cause death, because the intention or the knowledge of the person is to be inferred only from the nature of the injuries. And if this duty is neglected by the Prosecutor, then the Sessions Judge, when the case comes up before him, ought to examine the Doctor when he sees that no such question has been put by the prosecutor in the committing Magistrate's Court. (1951) 52 Cri L J 207 : A I R 1951 Sau 17 (17) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300—Proof—Suspicion—Sufficiency.

Where there is neither direct evidence nor any circumstantial evidence worth the name to connect the accused with the cause of the death, he cannot be held responsible for the killing of the deceased. It is really unfortunate that a grave crime should go unpunished but the question before the Court is whether the accused is proved to have been the murderer. There is no doubt that there is the strongest suspicion against him, but suspicion however strong ; is no substitute for proof. 1954 Ker L T 206 : 1954 Cri L J 1181 : A I R 1954 Trav-Co 396 (398) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

23. Onus of proof.

See also (1) Notes 8 and 9 (G).

(2) Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.

——S. 300 and S. 84—Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 —Burden of proof — Burden of proving offence lies on prosecution — Where necessary it has to prove intention — But where plea of insanity is invoked by accused it is for him to establish that fact. Bhikari v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1965 S C D 953 : (1965) 3 S C R 194 : (1965) 4 Law Rep 97 : (1965) 2 S C W R 777 : 1966 Cri L J 63 : A I R 1966 S C 1 (2) (Pr 5).

——Ss. 300, 299 and 302/34 — Death caused by administering poison—Intention or guilty knowledge —Burden of proof lies on prosecution and not on accused — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 106)—Scope and applicability. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1960 Cri L J 309 : A I R 1960 Andh Pra 153.

——S. 300—Burden of proof—Duty of prosecution.

The burden of establishing guilt of the accused is throughout on the prosecution and the prosecution must prove every link in the chain of evidence against the accused from the beginning to the end. When two persons are seen together and shortly afterwards one of them is found to have been murdered it cannot be inferred positively that his companion is responsible for the murder of the deceased unless there are other circumstances to support that inference. No doubt the circumstances that the deceased was last seen in the company of the accused raises a strong suspicion against the accused but mere circumstances of suspicion without more conclusive evidence are not sufficient to justify conviction of the accused. 1953 Cri L J 242 : 11 J & K L R 111 : A I R 1953 J & K 1 (3) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——S. 300 — Plea of insanity and burden of proof, indicated. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1965 Ker L T 263 : I L R (1965) 1 Ker 454.

——S. 300—Essentials of—Offence under—Burden of proof indicated. A I R 1955 N U C (Madh B) 5627 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 105 — Scope— Presumption of innocence of accused — Burden to prove guilt of accused—Benefit of doubt—Burden of introducing evidence to bring case within exceptions —When can be said to be discharged—Duty of Courts to determine guilt of accused on consideration of whole of evidence—Murder charge—Facts established by prosecution raising plea of self-defence, not explained by prosecution — Conviction for murder cannot be sustained. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 1961 (2) Cri L J 346 : A I R 1961 Madh Pra 241 (DB).

——S. 300—Injury—Nature of—Duty of prosecution —Nature of medical evidence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 299. 1963 (2) Cri L J 651 : A I R 1963 Mad 476 (DB).

——S. 300—Offence under S. 302, Penal Code—Prosecution prima facie establishing guilt of accused— Plea of alibi by accused, but accused not supporting it by calling defence witnesses on ground that he cannot be called on to prove his innocence — Held, it was for accused to rebut prosecution evidence by pointing out inherent weaknesses in prima facie case established by prosecution, See Evidence Act (1872) S. 3. 1963 Mad W N 638.

——Ss. 300 and 84—Murder—Accused charged with —Plea of unsoundness of mind set up — Burden lies heavily on him to prove unsoundness—He must prove that he was totally deprived of his understanding and memory — Held accused failed to discharge burden of proof.

Section 84 of the Penal Code and S. 105 read with S. 4 of the Evidence Act place a heavy burden on the defence before the offence can be excused. The effect of S. 4 of the Evidence Act interpreting the words "shall presume" is that the Court shall regard the absence of unsoundness of mind proved, unless and until it is disproved. The mere fact that the accused's mind was partially deranged or that he was subject to some uucontrollable impulse due to insanity will not do. So long as the accused was not insane as to make it impossible for him to know the nature of the act or to realise that his act was wrong or contrary to law, he would be guilty of the offence committed by him. The evidence ought to be sufficient for a categorical finding that at the time when the accused committed the act he was of unsound mind to such an extent that he was incapable of knowing what he was doing was wrong or contrary to law.

Eccentricity or unsoundness of mind of a very minor type is not sufficient. It is not every kind of idle and frantic humour of a man, or something unaccountable in his actions, which will show him to be such a mad man as is to be exempted from punishment; but where a man is totally deprived of his understanding and memory, and does not know what he is doing, any more than a wild beast, he will properly be exempted from the punishment of the law.

Where the accused, a barber, gave with a razor three deep cuts on the throat of the deceased, who had been to the barber's shop to have a shave, sat on the dead body of the deceased and drew out some cords of the throat by his fingers and when charged with the offence of committing murder set up the plea of unsoundness of mind.

Held, that the circumstances on which the defence relied were innocuous, that the defence did not establish insanity or even probability of insanity, that the circumstances were consistent with the behaviour of a sane person and that, therefore, defence failed to discharge the burden of proof. I L R (1962) Cut 806.

——S. 300 — Burden of proof — Onus to prove that case falls under exception — Accused not pleading exception — Prosecution case and examination witnesses making out case of grave and sudden provocation — Accused is entitled to benefit of doubt. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. 55 Cri L J 1505 : A I R 1954 Pepsu 160 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 80 — Defence that there was no real intention to kill and it was by chance that injury inflicted happened to be on vulnerable part—Defence does not take case out of offence of murder. 66 Punj L R 1230 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 127 : AIR 1965 Punj 291 (295) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence—Onus of proof.

In a murder case where the penalty provided by law is that of death, it is the duty of the prosecution to leave no room for any doubt or suspicion in establishing the facts on which conviction is sought against the accused. 1952 Raj L W 140 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 808 (DB).

——S. 300 — Accused producing weapon with blood on it and saying that he killed deceased with it — Prosecution failing to prove that blood on weapon was human blood — It must be presumed that blood was not human blood and consequently weapon had no connection with crime. 51 Cri L J 739 : A I R 1950 Raj 5 (7) (Pt E) (Pr 5) (DB).

24. Benefit of doubt.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

● ——S. 300, Exception I — Grave and sudden provocation—What amounts to — Accused momentarily losing self-control but regaining it — S. 300, Exception I when applicable.

The test of "grave and sudden" provocation is whether a reasonable man, belonging to the same class of society as the accused, placed in the situation in which the accused was placed would be so provoked as to lose his self-control. Where between the time when the accused left his house, and the time when the murder took place, three hours had elapsed, there was sufficient time for the accused to regain his self-control, even if he had not regained it earlier. On the other hand, his conduct in the instant case clearly showed that the murder was a deliberate and calculated one. The mere fact that before the shooting, the accused abused the deceased and the abuse provoked an equally abusive reply could not conceivably be a provocation for the murder. Therefore, the facts did not attract the provisions of Exception 1 to S. 300. Nanavati K. M. v. State of Maharashtra, 64 Bom L R 488 : 1962 Mad W N 363 : 1962 Supp (1) SC R 567 : (1962) 2 S C A 434 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 531 : (1962) 2 S C J 347 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 521 : AIR 1962 S C 605 (630) (Pt I) (Prs 85, 86).

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence — Death by throttling—Medical evidence.

As a result of post-mortem examination, the doctor found in a suspected case of death by throttling a contusion mark on the whole front area of the neck but he did not find any bruising of the subcutaneous tissues under the contused area of the neck. There were no external signs found on the body to indicate that death was due to strangulation and even the blueness of the finger nails and the typical post-mortem appearance of asphyxial death were absent. The internal symptoms showed that the suggestion of the defence that the deceased might have contracted pneumonia on the previous day of the death could not be lightly brushed aside. The medical testimony given in the case was the most valuable piece of evidence on which the prosecution could rely to make out a case of death by throttling. The medical witness was also not certain as to the cause of the death.

Held, it was not possible to say for certain that the mark found on the neck was as a result of external pressure brought about by throttling. The law entitled the accused to have the benefit of this dubiousness in regard to the cause of the death of deceased. 1956 All W R (HC) 295 : 1956 All L J 399 : 1956 Cri L J 1385 : AIR 1956 All 731 (734) (Pt A) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Ss. 300 read with 34, 324 read with 34 and 397 —Accused A, B, C and D attacking N, J, R and S who were carting paddy to their house — Continued beating with spears and sticks even after victims fell down with injuries — A and B taking away paddy — Death of N and J the same day as result of injuries — Inference as to intention from nature of injuries — Existence of common intention — Divergence in prosecution evidence raising doubt as to extent of liability of A and C — Benefit of doubt must go to accused — Conviction of A and B under S 397, propriety of—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. (1965) 2 Andh W R 151 : 1965 Mad L J (Cri) 607 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 458 : A I R 1965 Andh Pra 361 (366, 367) (Pt A) (Prs 20, 24, 27, 28, 29).

——S. 300—Charge of murder by poisoning—Giving of lethal dose not proved — Accused should be given benefit of doubt (Accused convicted under S. 328. 1957 Cri L J 930 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 456 (462) (Pt D) (Prs 23, 24) (DB).

——S. 300—Benefit of doubt.

No convincing motive for murder brought home to accused — Testimony of eye-witness regarding discovery of dead body shattered by evidence of investigating officer — Mystery surrounding two reports made to police, in that, one drawn up by Lumberdar and Chowkidar, did not mention names of eye-witnesses and the other drawn up by husband of deceased, from which conclusion was irresistible that report was outcome of conspiracy against accused who was regarded as a village-bully — Also it was impossible to record definite finding on question of scene of murder — Held there was room for grave doubt in truth of prosecution story — Accused held was entitled to benefit of doubt. (Board of Judicial Advisor.) 1953 Cri L J 1706 : A I R 1953 J & K 44 (46, 47) (Prs 20, 21) (DB).

——S. 300 — Conviction — Circumstantial evidence must be wholly inconsistent with innocence of accused — Accused has to be given benefit of any doubt arising in such evidence.

Accused was convicted under S. 302, I. P. Code, for murder of his wife. The prosecution case was that on the date of occurrence, the accused came home drunk in the night and started quarrelling with his wife and severely belaboured her causing her death. Accused denied the charge. His case was that on that night when he returned home he found his wife lying dead in the court-yard; carried her inside and took the children to his sister's house. After coming back he called his neighbours and told them. There were no eye-witnesses. The prosecution relied on the evidence of two of the neighbours of the accused who were residing near the house of the accused and deposed to having heard the noise of the accused belabouring his wife. These witnesses were living at a distance of 100/125 yards and the open space between their houses and that of the accused was planted with trees and there was also a brook. The evidence was discarded by Sessions judge. The F. I. R. of the incident was unusually delayed. The nature of injuries revealed in the post-mortem which was conducted after putrefaction had started, did not rule out the probability of death being caused as a result of fall from a height. Enmity between the accused and his wife wss alleged but was not sufficiently proved.

Held, Per Anna Chandy J. — That accused could not be convicted. It began as a case of suspicious death and remained as such when all was said and done. There were no eye-witnesses to the occurrences and there was not a single telling circumstance to connect the accused with the crime. There was no motive much less an adequate one. The medical evidence was unconvincing. The identification by voice was too fragile a foundation and could not be relied. The conduct of the accused to carry the dead body of his wife from the courtyard to the house, his attempt to call his immediate neighbours to his help and when that failed, taking his children to his sister's house and returning to the house to keep watch over the body were not in the least incompatible with his innocence. It was conduct more compatible with innocence than guilt.

Per Govinda Menon J.—Circumstantial evidence in order to furnish a basis for conviction in a criminal case required a high degree of probability and ought to be consistent and consistent only with the guilt of the accused. If any rational explanation was possible then there was an element of doubt of which the accused must be given the benefit.

Though there was some evidence of strained relationship between the accused and his wife the motive by itself was not sufficient to advance the prosecution case. The conduct of the accused was far from establishing his innocence was indicative of his guilt but the rule of circumstantial evidence had inevitably to satisfy the inexorable test that the evidence ought to be wholly inconsistent with the innocence of the accused and unmistakably point to the guilt of the accused. The circumstantial evidence afforded in the case against the accused did not satisfy the test laid down for cases of circumstantial evidence and the accused had therefore to be given the benefit of doubt and ought to be acquitted, 1963 Ker L T 292 : 1963 Ker L J 369 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 347 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 493 (499 to 501) (Pt A) (Prs 16 to 18, 23, 29, 30) (Ker) (DB).

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence — Plausible explanation for circumstance appearing against accused—No motive — Held accused entitled to benefit of doubt.

In cases depending on circumstantial evidence, motive one way or the other is highly relevant. In cases depending on circumstantial evidence, no one case can be exactly parallel to another.

The only and a very strong link of circumstantial evidence against the accused was that the weapon, which was most likely used in the murder of the deceased (the father of the accused) was found out from the possession of the accused. There was no evidence on the prosecution side whatsoever that the said weapon belonged to the accused. There was no motive for the murder, on the contrary it was established that the accused and the deceased were on very good terms. The explanation given by the accused for the discovery of the weapon, was a plausible one.

Held, that the explanation offered by the accused regarding the possession of the axe, which was the most likely weapon of the murder, was a plausible one and even if it was not so that link alone and with no other incriminating circumstance could not be definitely taken to be a conclusive link to establish the case against him. A I R 1943 Mad 408, Disting. (1960) 26 Cut L T 491.

——Ss. 300, 84 — Plea of unsoundness of mind — Burden of proof — Nature of proof required stated— Evidence Act (1872), S. 105. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1961 (2) Cri L J 357 : A I R 1961 Pat 355 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302, 324 — Applicability.

Held, that though the injuries were individually fatal, it was impossible to ascribe any particular injury to one or the other of the accused and hence neither the conviction of one nor of the other under S. 302 could be sustained. (Conviction was altered to one under S. 324). 1954 Cr L J 752 : 56 Punj L R 43 : ILR (1954) Punj 813 : AIR 1954 Punj 126 (128) (Pt D) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 299 — Murder — Evidence and proof— Discovery of blood stained weapon through accused —Possibility of weapon having kept at the spot by other person—Benefit of doubt.

It was alleged that A and B had conspired to murder the deceased C and for that purpose got a pharsa fixed to a stick at the shop of S. The only evidence was the recovery of blood-stained pharsa from the house of A at his instance. The evidence of S was that B got the blade of Pharsa fixed to the handle at his shop one week before the occurrence. The evidence of motive was both against A and B;

Held, that the possibility that B might have committed the murder and put the pharsa at the spot where it was found could not be ruled out and the recovery of pharsa by itself could not therefore prove the case of murder against A and as such he was entitled to the benefit of doubt. 1960 Raj L W 314.

——S. 300—Evidence and proof — Death caused by gun shots — Evidence of ballistic expert and wife of deceased creating strong suspicion against two accused who were proved to be on inimical terms with deceased — Evidence however not sufficient to prove beyond reasonable doubt that accused persons fired shots at deceased person causing his death — Benefit of doubt allowed to accused. 1960 Raj L W 32.

25. Circumstantial evidence.

See also (1) Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367.
(2) Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

——S. 300 - Evidence - Circumstantial evidence— Discovery of dead body and silver buttons stained with human blood at instance of accused — Value of —Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3 'proved', 114 Illus. (a).

The mere fact that the dead body was pointed out by the prisoner or was discovered as a result of a statement made by him would not necessarily lead to the conclusion of the offence of murder. But the discovery of the silver buttons belonging to the deceased with human bloodstains at the instance of the prisoner is a circumstance which may raise the presumption of the participation of the prisoner in the murder. AIR 1956 S C 400. Ref. Kanbi Karsan Jadav v. The State of Gujarat. 1962 S C D 618 : (1962) 1 Ker L R 511 (SC) : (1963) 2 S C J 364 : (1963) Mad L J (Cr) 465 : (1962) Supp 2 S C R 726 : 1966 Cri L J 605 : AIR 1966 S C 821 (823) (Pr 9).

● —S. 300 — Incriminating statement made by accused to police officer—Statement not leading to discovery of fact—It is not admissible in evidence—Fact when can be treated as discovered—Held that if statement of accused was excluded from evidence, the circumstantial evidence was not complete to lead to conviction of accused for murder. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 25. 1963 (2) Cri L J 182 : AIR 1963 S C 1113.

● —S. 300—Circumstantial evidence —Appreciation of — Charge against husband of murdering his first wife and her son by gun-shots — Ill-feeling between accused and his family and first wife after second marriage—Accused present in his village house with first wife and son on day of occurrence — Gun-shots heard from house:—Accused leaving village same night in his jeep and reaching Lucknow next day where he had second wife—First wife and son disappearing and not seen alive thereafter — Absence of any enquiry by accused or other members of his family as to whereabouts of wife and son—Blood-stained earth recovered from house in village—Accused absconding after matter was reported to police—Blood-stained clothes belonging to accused recovered from laundry in Lucknow—Police unable to trace out jeep — Circumstances held insufficient to draw sole conclusion that husband committed murders. 1963 (1) Cri L J 70 : AIR 1963 S C 74.

● —S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence — Proof — Murder by shooting—Evidence of fire-arms expert—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3 and 45)— Criminal P. C. (1898) S. 367.

Held, on facts that the fire-arms expert made the necessary tests and was careful in what he did. There was no good reason for distrusting his opinion. There could therefore, be no room for thinking, in the circumstances established in this case that any one else other than the accused might have shot the deceased. He was, therefore, rightly convicted for the offence of murder. Kalua v. The State of U. P. 1957 S C R 187 : 1958 Cri L J 300 : I L R (1957) 1 All 15 : A I R 1958 S C 180 (181) (Pr 8).

● —S. 300—Circumstantial evidence — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3 and 5) — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367).

It is a fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that circumstantial evidence should point inevitably to the conclusion that it was the accused and the accused only who were the perpetrators of the offence and such evidence should be incompatible with the innocence of the accused.

Where the accused enticed away the deceased on the evening of the day of murder and the deceased was found hanging in the backyard of his house these circumstances by themselves are not enough without anything more to connect the accused with the crime. Eradu v. State of Hyderabad, 1956 Cri L J 559 : AIR 1956 S C 316 (318) (Pr 10).

● —S. 300 — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence.

Where there is no eye-witness to the murder and the case against the accused depends entirely on circumstantial evidence, the standard of proof required to convict the accused on such evidence is that the circumstances relied upon must be fully established and the chain of evidence furnished by these circumstances should be so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused. AIR 1952 S C 343, Rel. on.

It is true that in a case of circumstantial evidence not only should the various links in the chain of evidence be clearly established, but the completed chain must be such as to rule out a reasonable likelihood of the innocence of the accused. But in a case where the various links have been satisfactorily made out and the circumstanses point to the accused as the probable assailant, with reasonable definiteness and in proximity to the deceased as regards time and situation, and he offers no explanation, which if accepted though not proved, would afford a reasonable basis for a conclusion on the entire case consistent with his innocence, such absence of explanation or false explanation would itself be an additional link which completes the chain. Deonandan Mishra v. State of Bihar, 1955 S C J 41 : 58 Pun L R 171 : 1956 B L J R 77 : 1656 Mad W N 385 : 1956 Pat L R (SC) 21 : 1956 All L J 97 : 1956 All W R (Supp) 17 : (1956) 1 M L J (SC) 31 : 1956 An W R (SC) 31 : 1955 Cri L J 1647 : (1955) 2 S C R 570 : AIR 1955 S C 801 (806) (Pr 9).

● —S. 300 — Evidence.

The accused was tried for the murder of the deceased. The only evidence against him was as follows. Some 5 or 6 days before the murder the accused and the deceased had both attended the Court in connection with some litigation The accused knew that the deceased had attended the Court and that he had seen him there but when questioned about it he told a lie.

Thirteen days after the murder he knew that the deceased had been murdered. He also knew where the murder had been committed and where the body and certain articles belonging to the deceased were hidden. There was also ill-will between them, but an ill will, that other members of the accused's family might be expected to share. He had full opportunity to commit the crime but the same kind of opportunity that the other members of his family also had. His brother was also challaned for murder but as he absconded he could not be tried.

Held, that the mere knowledge thirteen days later, coupled with a motive which three others shared and a lie about the deceased's movements told four or five days after the murder were not enough to warrant a conclusion of murder by the accused, as the same circumstances could be said to point with equal suspicion at other members of the accused's family. Machander v. State, ILR (1955) Hyd 807: 1956 S C A 12 : 1956 All W R (Supp) 14 : 1956 All L J 76 : 1956 Mad W N 190 : 58 Pun L R 163 : 1956 B L J R 93 : 1956 Pat L R (SC) 17 : 1956 S C J 34 : (1956) 1 M L J (SC) 25 : (1955) 2 S C R 524 : 1956 An W R (SC) 25: 1955 Cri L J 1644: AIR 1955 S C 792 (794) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

● —Ss. 300, 302, 378, 379 — Circumstantial evidence.

The circumstances fully established against the accused were that on the date of the occurrence about an hour before sunset she was seen by two ladies proceeding with the deceased in the direction of the scene of the occurrence; that the accused came home without the deceased in her company in the evening of the same day in hurried steps and with her clothes lifted up; the cloth was, on examination, found to be stained with human blood and that the two Naulis of the deceased which were seen on her person up to her going towards the scene of the murder had been discovered at her instance from the thatch of her hut.

Held, that the circumstantial evidence in the case was only consistent with the guilt of the accused. The murder undoubtedly was cold blooded and committed out of pure greed, and the accused was properly convicted under Ss. 302, 379 of the Penal Code. Nisa Stree v. State of Orissa, 20 Cut L T 247 : 1954 Cri L J 743 : AIR 1954 S C 279 (280) (Pr 5).

●——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence.

Both the accused and the deceased were seen together at about 2 P.M. on the 25th July, 1951, by the prosecution witnesses. Immediately after the alleged murder the accused went to one Bishandas Tularam with the gold half mohur and the silver churas and offered to sell them to Bishandas Tularam, who did not purchase the half gold mohur but accepted the pledge of the silver churas. The accused went the next morning to Bhagwandas the goldsmith and sold to him the half gold mohur which was melted by Bhagwandas into a gold bar. The accused himself took the police to Bishandas Tularam and to Bhagwandas the goldsmith from whom the silver churas and the gold bar were recovered along with the relative documents showing the pledge and the sale by the accused to these respective parties. These silver churas were identified by the prosecution witnesses as those which were habitually worn by the deceased.

Held, that as the ornaments were established to be the ornaments worn by the deceased and the accused was not in a position to give any satisfactory explanation as to how he came to be in possession of the same on the very same day on which the alleged murder was committed the circumstantial evidence was sufficient to hold the accused responsible for the murder of the deceased. Sunderlal v. State of M. P., 1954 Cri L J 357 : AIR 1954 S C 28 (30) (Pr 6).

——S. 300 — Murder — Absconding of accused — Effect of, stated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1963 All L J 977.

——Ss. 300 and 392 — Murder and robbery — Circumstantial evidence — On evidence accused held guilty under Ss. 302 and 392.

Held on facts that circumstances 5 and 6 had also been satisfactorily established and the result was a completed chain of circumstanses which unmistakeably and inexorably fastened the guilt to the accused. Hence the accused should be convicted under Ss. 302 and 392, Penal Code and sentenced to life imprisonment.

(As the accused was over sixteen years by the time the judgment was pronounced, the High Court recommended under S. 10-A, Andhra Pradesh Borstal Schools Act, read with R. 172-A of the Criminal Rules of Practice to the State Government that the accused might be detained in a Borstal School for a period of 5 years). 1965 (2) Cri L J 63 : AIR 1965 Andh Pra 251 (260) (Pr 40) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3 and 5 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 — Conviction on circumstantial evidence — Consideration of evidence. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 1230.

——S. 300—Murder charge—Circumstantial evidence — Nature of evidence required stated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 3. 1958 Andh L T 633.

——S. 300 — Recovery of blood-stained knife — Evidential value.

Ordinarily, in a case of circumstantial evidence where there has been a discovery as a result of confession made under S. 27, Evidence Act, one expects to find the discovery of something which can be associated with the deceased and not with the accused. Hence, in a case of murder the mere fact that a weapon, which could have been used for the commission of the crime, was discovered with blood stains on it on information given by the accused would not by itself be sufficient to show that he was the murderer. AIR 1950 Mad 714, Rel. on.

Held, that the prosecution evidence at the most created a strong suspicion which, however strong, could not be a ground for conviction. 1958 Andh L T 633.

——S. 300 — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence—Sufficiency.

The accused and the deceased were living as husband and wife. The accused was charged with having committed murder of the deceased. He and the deceased were seen moving together on the day of the occurrence. He had reasons to suspect the faithfulness of the deceased to him. And after the occurrence of murder he made himself scarce in the neighbourhood until he surrendered to the police after five days of the occurrence ;

Held, that these circumstances were insufficient to sustain a conviction of the accused for the offence of murder. 1955 Andh W R 863 : 1957 Cri L J 814 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 213 (214) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300—Accused and deceased living together as husband and wife — They were seen together on the date of occurrence after which the accused made himself scarce until he surrendered to the police after 5 days—Held circumstantial evidence was not enough to convict the accused for murder. AIR 1955 N U C (Andhra) 6013 (DB).

——S. 300—Criminal P. C., S. 297 — Summing up the evidence to jury — Non-direction — Failure to place before jury two versions of evidence which were at variance, that if one version were believed, there would be no direct evidence but only circumstantial evidence against accused and that for conviction circumstantial evidence should point to only one conclusion that of guilt — Charge held defective. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 297. 1955 Cri L J 450 : AIR 1955 Assam 59 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence—Conviction on.

Circumstantial evidence must be a combination of facts creating a network through which there is no escape for the accused because the facts taken as a whole do not admit of any inference but of his guilt. AIR 1960 S C 500 Foll. 1962 (2) Cr L J 354 : AIR 1962 Cal 504 (507) (Pt C) (Pr 20) (DB).

——S. 300—Circumstantial evidence.

In a trial on the charge of murder, the chain of circumstantial evidence against the accused was that the deceased child was last seen in his company. She was wearing some ornaments. She was missing for over 24 hours during which period the accused was also absent from his house. The body of the child and the ornaments she was wearing were discovered at the instance of the accused, the body from the well and the ornaments from S, who deposed that the accused sold them to him on the very day of occurrence. The accused did not explain how he came by the ornaments and how he came to know that the body was in the well nor did he explain why was he absent from his house. The death of the child was from drowning. The well was more than a mile away from the residence of the child. The way to it passed through graveyards which excludes the possibility of the child going there and falling in it by inadvertence. There was no explanation on the record as to why the accused did not sleep in his own house in the night of occurrence:

Held, that taking into consideration all these factors the only inference was that of the guilt of the accused. I L R (1954) Hyd 256 : 1955 Cr L J 1262 : AIR 1955 Hyd 200 (202) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence—Accused last seen with deceased and disappearing after occurrence —Not sufficient for conviction. 1959 Cri L J 839 : AIR 1959 J & K 66 (66) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 300 —Circumstantial evidence against accused —Conduct of accused incompatible with innocence —Absence of explanation and false explanation regarding facts proved — Offence can reasonably be held to be proved.

Where the conduct of the accused charged with murder is entirely different from what it would have been had he not committed the offence and the accused has no explanation to offer with regard to some proved facts which go against him and gives false explanations with regard to others these circumstances, taken along with the other circumstantial evidence against him advance the case against the accused very much beyond suspicion and reasonably and definitely point to the conclusion that he was responsible for the murder. AIR 1955 S C 801, Rel. on. I L R (1963) 2 Ker 26 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 458 (462, 463) (Pt D) (Pr 22) (Ker) (DB).

——S. 300 — Attempt at suicide by accused, though strange coincidence does not amount to proof of offence of murder.

The attempt to commit suicide by the accused charged with murder on the night of murder is, no doubt, a strange coincidence which would give room for strong suspicion but law does not permit of neither the strongest of coincidences nor the gravest of suspicious being substituted for proof. 1962 Ker L J 755 : (1962) 2 Ker L R 244 : 1962 Ker L T 476.

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence — Nature of proof required — Some links missing in prosecution evidence — Circumstances held not sufficient to warrant conviction—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

In a case of circumstantial evidence not only should the various links in the chain of evidence be clearly established but the completed chain must be such as to rule out a reasonable likelihood of the innocence of the accused. AIR 1955 S C 801, Followed. 1961 Ker L T 546.

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence —Sufficiency for conviction.

The deceased was murdered between 2 and 4 P.M. At the time when the murder must have been committed, the accused and the deceased were together at the place of the murder and they were alone there. The gate had been fastened from within by the accused and, soon after the murder, the accused came out with a false story that the deceased had gone out at about 3 P. M.

Held, that the circumstances were sufficient to bring home guilt to the accused for they were consistent only with his guilt and were inconsistent with any reasonable hypothesis of innocence. 1959 Ker L T 167 : 1959 Ker L J 227 : I L R (1959) Ker 319.

——S. 300 — Murder — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence—Adequacy of, for conviction.:

Criminal trial—Evidence—Circumstantial evidence —Murder charge — Accused admitting presence of eye-witness near deceased immediately after he was shot at—Explanation of accused not plausible one—Recovery of a gun from the accused immediately or short while after the incident—Deceased in his dying declaration to witnesses naming accused as the culprit—Evidence held adequate to base conviction. See Criminal Trial. 1956 M B L J (H C R) 343.

——S. 300—Direct and circumstantial evidence held proved the guilt of accused.

Held, on facts that taking stock of the entire evidence, the existence of bad blood between the accused and the deceased, statements of eye-witnesses who saw the accused with an axe near the place of the incident immediately on coming out after their doors, which were chained from outside, were later unchained, and soon after they heard the sound of strokes which killed the deceased, existence of blood stains said to be of human origin, on the shirt of the accused and the fact that the wife of deceased, who was one of the eye-witnesses had named the accused as the culprit from the very start, all go to indicate that the view taken by the lower Court that the accused killed the deceased, was well founded. 1956 M B L J 288 : Madh B L R 1956 (Cri) 49.

——S. 300—Evidence—Criminal Trial—Circumstantial—Murder trial —Some conflict between evidence of eye-witnesses and medical evidence — Incident happening on dark night whereas witness stating it to be moonlit night and also stating that there was fire burning nearby — Conduct of accused suspicious —Report of incident promptly made — Accused held guilty of murder. See Evidence—Appreciation. 1956 M B L J 85.

——S. 300 — Direct evidence and circumstantial evidence held amply made out a case against the accused. M B L J 1955 H C R 2187 : Madh Bha L R 1955 (Civil) 432.

——S. 300 — Murder — Circumstantial evidence — Accused and his wife, the deceased, only inmates in house — No explanation of killing of wife—Accused himself reporting to police — Discovery of weapon and dead body on such information — Sufficient to conclude that accused had killed her.

The very fact that at the time of occurrence the accused and the deceased, his wife, were the only inmates of the house who were in and the accused has given absolutely no explanation as to how his wife was killed, constitutes very strong circumstantial evidence against him and in the absence of anything pointing to the contrary, the only possible conclusion to draw is that it was accused who killed his wife. Further, the conduct of the accused in going to the police station shortly after the crime was committed and the recovery of the basula and also of the dead body in consequence of the information given by him are again strong pieces of evidence against him.

The test of grave and sudden provocation is whether a reasonable man belonging to the same class of the society as the accused placed in the situation in which the accused was placed would be so provoked as to lose his self-control. The provocation must be such as will upset not merely a hot tempered or hyper-sensitive person but one of ordinary sense and calmness : AIR 1962 S C 605, Rel. on. Thus where in a trial for murder, of his wife by the accused, the first information report, given by the accused himself, stated only that the deceased wife had abused the accused, and the circumstances in which provocation was caused had not at all been brought on record ; the statement of the accused, under S. 342, Criminal P. C., was absolutely silent on the question of any provocation, much less of its being sudden and grave; there was no eye-witness to the occurrence and so it was futile to expect any evidence with regard to provocation which might have been caused to the accused at that time.

Held, that, in these circumstances, it was not possible to hold that the case fell within the first exception to S. 300. 1963 Jab L J 137 : 1962 M P L J (Notes) 317 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 596 (597, 598) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 9) (Madh Pra) (DB).

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence — Accused found in possession of jewels worn by deceased, shortly after murder — No explanation of possession — Circumstances held not sufficient to convict accused of murder — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 114, 106 and 3.

The inference of presumption of guilt, upon the charge of murder can be safely drawn, where the accused is in unexplained possession of jewels or articles of the victim after the crime, and where in addition, there is some evidence at least connecting the movements of the accused with those of the victim, either before or after the crime, and in some manner or another, establishing a nexus between the accused and the offence. The mere unexplained possession or production of the jewels of the victim by the accused may not constitute a safe basis for a conviction upon a charge of murder, when that is the only bare circumstance proved in evidence.

Section 106, Evidence Act, cannot apply to shift the onus of proof in a criminal prosecution, at any stage of the prosecution. It is only where the circumstantial evidence fully establishes the guilt of the accused, and where, nevertheless some explanation by the accused compatible with his innocence could possibly be put forward by him relating to facts within his exclusive knowledge, that his failure to put forward any such explanation could be considered by the Court as an additional circumstance against him. Clearly, an accused might fail to put forward a particular explanation such as theft or dishonest retention of the jewels of the victim, which may be true, owing to fear or ignorance. Where such a probability exists, the mere fact that he does not put forward the explanation, cannot justify the inference of guilt, when the chain of circumstantial evidence is otherwise incomplete. 1962 Mad W N 24 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 651 : AIR 1963 Mad 476 (478, 479) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——S. 300 — Appreciation of evidence — Offence of murder proved by clear and credible testimony of eye-witness—Circumstantial evidence is not of great importance—See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1960 Cri L J 1100 : AIR 1960 Mad 362 (DB).

——S. 300—Circumstantial evidence—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3.

The deceased and the accused were on inimical terms some time prior to the date on which the murder took place. The accused had threatened the deceased that he would cut him even as the deceased had cut and killed his goat. On the date of murder both the deceased and the accused were seen either in each other's company or in close proximity to each other some hours before the murder took place. Sometime after the alleged murder, the accused was seen with a blood-stained chopper going in a direction opposite to the place of murder but coming from the place of murder ; and on information given by the accused, a blood-stained chopper was recovered from a bush about 2 furlongs to the east of the scene of murder :

Held, that the offence of murder could not be held to have been brought home beyond reasonable doubt to the accused. (1950) 1 Mad L J 663 : 1950 Mad W N 333 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri.) 89 : AIR 1950 Mad 714 (714, 715) (Pt A) (Prs 1, 3) (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence.

In order to justify an inference of guilt, the circumstances from which such an inference is sought to be drawn must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt. 1955 Cri L J 139 : AIR 1955 Manipur 1 (9) (Pt F) (Prs 26, 27).

——S. 300 — Murder — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence — Deceased and accused seen together on day of occurrence — Injuries on person of deceased caused by sharp cutting instrument like sickle — Sickle recovered on information supplied by accused —Clothes of accused found blood-stained at the time of arrest — Blood-stains not satisfactorily explained by accused — Ring which deceased was wearing produced by accused — Evidence held sufficient to prove that accused was guilty of murder. 1963 Mad L J (Cri.) 5 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 733 : 39 Mys L J 993 : ILR (1961) Mys 586 : AIR 1962 Mys 124 (126) (Pt B) (Pr 19) (DB).

——S. 300 — Appreciation of evidence — Circumstantial evidence — Incriminating facts must be incompatible with innocence of accused and incapable of explanation on any hypothesis other than that of his guilt. 1955 Cri L J 1274 : AIR 1955 Mys 119 (120) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 8 — Accused charged with murder running away after suspicion falls on him and joining service elsewhere under another name — Conduct does not by itself, lead to inference of guilt. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 372 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 680 : 31 Cut L T 17 : AIR 1964 Orissa 144 (149) (Pt E) (Pr 22) (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence consistent with guilt of accused — Conviction held proper—Criminal Trial—Evidence. 29 Cut L T 531 : ILR (1963) Cut 567.

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence—Sufficiency for conviction—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367.

In dealing with circumstantial evidence, there is always the danger that conjecture or suspicion may take place of legal proof. In cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. There must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused: AIR 1952 S C 343 and AIR 1960 S C 29, Foll. ILR (1959) Cut 659.

——S. 300—Circumstantial evidence — Sufficiency.

Where there is no eye-witness to the murder and the case against the accused depends entirely on circumstantial evidence, the standard of proof required to convict the accused on such evidence is that the circumstances relied upon must be fully established and chain of evidence furnished by these circumstances should be so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused. Not only should the various links in the chain of evidence be clearly established, but the completed chain must be such as to rule out a reasonable likelihood of the innocence of the accused. But in the case where the various links have been satisfactorily made out and the circumstances point to the accused as the probable assailant, with reasonable definiteness and in proximity to the deceased as regards time and situation and he offers no explanation which, if accepted, though not proved would afford a reasonable basis for a conclusion on the entire case consistent with his innocence, such absence of explanation or false explanation would itself be an additional link which completes the chain. AIR 1955 S C 801 and AIR 1958 S C 343 Foll. (1959) 1 O J D 265 : (1959) 25 Cut L T 216.

——S. 300 — Evidence — Circumstantial evidence — Must be consistent with guilt of accused — (Criminal P. Code (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 6082 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Appreciation of — Circumstantial evidence — Accused and deceased seen together for the last time — Explanation given by accused not checked by prosecution — Circumstance cannot go against accused—(Criminal P. Code (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 6082 (DB).

— S. 300 — Murder trial — Seizure of blood-stained articles—Seizure made a week after alleged murder—Blood-stains disintegrated and their origin not detectable — No value can be attached to this evidence. AIR 1951 Orissa 53 (56) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

—S. 300 — Murder — Circumstantial evidence.

Mere fact that person has been last seen with murderer is not by itself enough, unless it appears that the latter was in the company of the deceased at or about the time when and at the place where the murder appears to have been actually committed. AIR 1951 Orissa 53 (59) (Pt I) (Pr 11) (DB).

—Ss. 300 and 394, 34, 302 — Charge of robbery accompanied with murder — Murderous assault at night with dagger on first class passenger in running train — Circumstantial evidence — Appreciation of. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1964 (1) Cri L J 473 (Pat).

—S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence.

Where the circumstances are not inconsistent with the innocence of the accused, the medical evidence supports the theory of death by misadventure; there is no positive motive for the alleged murder; the witnesses make inconsistent and untrue statements from stage to stage, and the only eye-witness, who is a child of tender years cannot be believed or trusted implicitly the accused cannot be convicted of an offence of murder. 1953 B L J R 280 : 1953 Cri L J 1344 : I L R 32 Pat 217 : AIR 1953 Pat 246 (249) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

—S. 300—Circumstantial evidence—Sufficiency — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 3).

The fact of the recovery of dead bodies at the instance of the accused together with the possession of property belonging to the deceased immediately after murder and giving rise to presumption under illustration (a) of S. 114, Evidence Act is sufficient to hold the accused guilty of murder. 1958 Raj L W 353 : 1958 Cri L J 1540 : I L R (1959) 7 Raj 944 : AIR 1958 Raj 338 (341) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

—Ss. 300 and 364 — Murder — Proof of death — Abduction with intent to murder — Proof of intention — Circumstantial evidence — Charge under Ss. 302/34 and 364 — Failure to prove that accused was murderer — Accused can be held guilty under S. 364 — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 3).

The accused was committed to Sessions under Ss. 364, 397 and 302/34 I. P. C. but was convicted only under S. 342 and was acquitted under S. 302/34 I. P. C. It was proved that the accused along with two other dacoits had come to the house of deceased Swamiji, tied his hands with a rope and took him away on a camel towards a jungle. Prior to this they searched his house but nothing valuable was discovered. Finding that they could not get sufficient loot from the house of Swamiji, they managed to stop a bus on their way. In that bus there was one circle inspector. One of the dacoits did not hesitate to shoot him and straightway killed him. All the passengers of the bus were thereafter, robbed at the point of the gun. Then they took away Swamiji. The search party had discovered a skull and certain bones and Arts. 1 to 5 in a jungle in the village Basoda. It was also proved that since the date of his abduction the Swami was not heard of by any person who might have heard of him, had he been alive. It was not proved that the skull was that of Swami but there was the significant fact that the saffa and other articles were found at the place where the skull and the bones were found and the earth of that place was also blood-stained.

Held, (i) that the circumstances proved led to the irresistible inference that the death of Swami had taken place and he was no longer alive.

(ii) that it cannot be laid down as a matter of law that in no circumstances a charge under S. 364, I.P.C. can be made out if the prosecution alleges that the deceased met death at the hands of the abductors or other persons. The circumstances proved clearly showed that the abductors of Swamiji had the intention at the time of abduction to murder him or to put him in such state that he might be in danger of being murdered. Since the accused was one of the persons who abducted the Swamiji he was liable under S. 364 I. P. C. The prosecution evidence fell short of proving that the accused caused the death of Swamiji or abetted his murder. It may have been caused by some one else also. He, therefore, could not be convicted under S. 302 or 302/34 I. P. C. AIR 1945 Cal 42, AIR 1947 Cal 35, AIR 1937 Cal 578, AIR 1953 Hyd 249, AIR 1940 Cal 561, Disting. 1958 Raj L W 584 : I L R (1958) 8 Raj 181.

—S. 300 — Evidence — Conviction on circumstantial evidence.

In a case depending upon circumstantial evidence, all possibility of the innocence of the accused should be excluded. The mere possession of articles belonging to the murdered person, even supposing that they were bloodstained, would not be sufficient to prove a case of murder against the accused beyond all reasonable doubt, particularly when it is not proved that the articles were in possession of the deceased or that they were not missing before the date of the offence. Case-law referred.

Similarly the presence of the blood stains on the coat and turban of the accused after a period of seven days does not necessarily indicate that they must have been received in the murder. 4 Raj L W 640 : I L R (1953) 3 Raj 655 : 1955 Cri L J 835 : AIR 1955 Raj 82 (84) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 12) (DB).

—Ss. 300 and 322 — Evidence — Charges based on circumstantial evidence — Inference of guilt when can be drawn—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 3). AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 478 (DB).

—S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence.

Where the deceased wore the jewellery, went in the direction of the well in the company of the accused and his dead body was found in the well without the jewellery and there was the additional fact that the two accused were last seen in the company of the deceased:

Held, that the accused could be held guilty of murder in default of any reasonable explanation. AIR 1943 Mad 69 Rel. on. 6 Sau L R 473 : 1954 Cri L J 1553 : AIR 1954 Sau 129 (130, 131) (Pt G) (Pr 6) (DB).

—S. 300 — Cricumstantial evidence — Conviction on — One tongawalla taking certain constable with complainant to wadi belonging to accused — Constable and complainant not heard of afterwards — Blood-stained knife and service belt bearing number of constable recovered from wadi — Traces of recent burning in a pit in wadi — Held, conviction of accused for murder of two persons on this evidence was proper, though burnt bones were not found. (1950) 3 Sau L R 114 : AIR 1950 Sau 2 (4) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

—Ss. 300 and 299 — Circumstantial evidence — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 3) - Circumstantial evidence when can be accepted and acted upon as direct evidence indicated. 1952 Cri L J 1304 : A I R 1952 Trav-Co 305 (306) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

26. Proof of death.

See also Penal Code (1860), S. 302—Absence of corpus delicti.

● ——Ss. 300 and 302 — Conviction—Basis of—Corpus delicti not traceable — Proof of murder solely dependant on retracted confession — Improbability of manner of murder—Benefit of doubt — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 24, 3 and 5) — (Cr. P. Code (1898), Ss. 164 and 367.)

In law a conviction for an offence does not necessarily depend upon the corpus delicti being found. There may be reliable evidence, direct or circumstantial of the commission of the murder though the corpus delicti is not traceable.

Normally speaking it would not be quite safe, as a matter of prudence if not of law, to base a conviction for murder on the confession of the alleged murderer, by itself and without more.

Held, on facts that having given careful and anxious thought to all the features of the case and to the findings of the Courts below, in that behalf, the confession in this case was not safe to be acted upon, at least in so far as the commission of murder was concerned; that the Court was not satisfied that the murder, if any, had been committed at the time and the place and in the manner indicated in the confession and hence the accused were entitled to benefit of doubt in respect of the offence of murder. Ram Chandra v. State of Uttar Pradesh. 1957 Cri L J 559 : AIR 1957 S C 381 (387) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——S. 300 — Failure to recover body of deceased — Effect — Conviction on circumstantial evidence — Validity—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367)—Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 3, 5.

To sustain a charge of murder, the failure on the part of the prosecution to recover the dead body will not indicate that there was no murder if the other evidence is convincing enough to establish the crime of murder. On a criminal charge the fact that the murdered man was killed like any other fact, can be proved by circumstantial evidence, being evidence which leads only to that one conclusion of fact, although no body is found.

Held, on facts that the incriminating circumstances appearing against the accused were fully established and that those circumstances were consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and that they did not leave any reasonable ground for concluding that they may also be consistent with the innocence of the accused. The conviction of the accused under S. 302 read with S. 34 was therefore upheld. 1958 Cri L J 842 : AIR 1958 All 514 (520, 521) (Pt E) (Prs 31 to 34) (DB).

——S. 300 — Proof — Non-recovery of dead body — Effect does not render conviction of accused impossible — Corpus delicti — Meaning is that offence has been committed and not that dead body has been recovered — Death can be proved by circumstantial evidence as any other fact can be. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4425 (DB).

——S. 300—Conviction on circumstantial evidence—Absence of corpus delicti—Legality — Evidence Act (1872), S. 3—Circumstantial evidence.

Even though the dead body is not traced and the cause of death is not known, murder can be proved by circumstantial evidence. Whether there is sufficient proof to arrive at such a finding would depend on the facts of each case. A conviction for the offence does not depend upon the corpus delicti being found. There may be reliable evidence, direct or circumstantial, of the commission of the murder though the corpus delicti are not traceable. Failure on the part of the prosecution to recover the dead body will not indicate that there was no murder if the other evidence is convincing enough to establish the crime of murder. AIR 1960 S C 500; 1955-1 Q B 388; 1952 N Z L R 111; 1911 Cr App R 225, Rel. on.

Where only the skulls of the two small children were found but the other circumstances clearly indicated that they belonged to the deceased children murdered by accused, the accused was convicted on the basis of such evidence. 1963 Ker L J 228 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 102 : 1963 Ker L T 229.

——S. 300 — Proof of death — Absence of corpus delicti.

It is not obligatory for proving the death of an individual that his dead body should be recovered. (1950) 1 Mad L J 428 : 63 Mad L W 315 : 1950 Mad W N 260 : 1950 All W R (Supp) 70 : 51 Cri L J 1068 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 64 : AIR 1950 Mad 452 (452) (Pr 5) (DB).

——S. 300 — Proof—Evidence of death—Either dead body should be available or somebody's statement who knew deceased that he had seen deceased dead or had seen the dead body — In absence of this from the fact that certain person has not been seen for certain period, it cannot be said that he is dead. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1637 (DB).

27. Dying declaration.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 32.

——S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 — Dying declaration — Containing complete statement and making clear accusation against accused — Declarant suddenly dying and his thumb impression taken after his death — Admissibility and probative value of — Corroboration — Necessity. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 32. 1962 (2) Cri L J 404 : AIR 1962 SC 1252.

● ——S. 300—Accused pouring oil on clothes of wife and setting fire — Wife dying of burns — Conviction under S. 302, Penal Code, based solely on her dying declaration—Held correct. (Majority view). AIR 1958 S C 22, Rel. on. Tarachand Damu Sutar v. State of Maharashtra. 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 307 : 1962 All W R (HC) 135 : 1962 All Cri R 103 : (1962) 2 S C R 775 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 196 : 64 Bom L R 74 : AIR 1962 S C 130 (132, 133, 134) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 12, 21).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 (1) — Dying declaration — Proof of — Actual words need not be proved—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 512). See Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 (1). 1957 Cri L J 337 : AIR 1957 All 177 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 (1) — Dying declaration — Proof of — Needs corroboration. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 (1). 1957 Cri L J 337: AIR 1957 All 177 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act S. 32 (1) — Dying declaration — Probative value of — Tests to be applied — Duty of Court indicated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 (1). 1963 (1) Cri L J 469 : AIR 1963 Punj 170 (DB).

28. Evidence of poisoning.

● ——S. 300 — Murder by poisoning — Facts to be established — Possession of poison — Evidence of.

In the case of a murder by administering poison, the prosecution has, along with the motive, also to establish that the deceased died of a particular poison said to have been administered, that the accused was in possession of that poison and that he had the opportunity to administer the same to the deceased. Criminal App. No. 98 of 1958, (S C), Rel. on. Where the evidence in the case shows that the accused gave the deceased three 'peras' and within half an hour, he became ill and died within two hours, that the food which the deceased had taken did not contain any poison, that the deceased did not take any other food apart from the peras and lastly it was clear from the result of the chemical examination that he had died of arsenic poisoning.

Held, that arsenic was contained in the peras given by the accused and it also inevitably followed that the accused was in possession of arsenic before he gave the paras to the deceased. Mohan v. State of U. P. 1960 Cri L J 1011 : (1960) 2 Ker L R 14 : AIR 1960 S C 659 (660) (Prs 8, 9).

——S. 300 — Poisoning — Burden of proof.

It is of the utmost importance in a case of arsenic poisoning that the prosecution should prove that a lethal dose of arsenic, that is, two grains or upwards, had been administered. In India, arsenic is used as a medicine in all manner of diseases. It is therefore impossible to take the mere evidence that arsenic was detected as sufficient to prove conclusively that death was from arsenic poisoning. Before a Court can find any individual guilty of murder by the administration of arsenic complete analysis should be made. AIR 1933 All 837, Rel. on. 1958 Cri L J 1 : AIR 1958 All 1 (4) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 and 328—Charge of murder by poison — Giving of lethal dose not proved—Accused should be given benefit of doubt (Accused convicted under S. 328). 1957 Cri L J 930 : AIR 1957 Andh-Pra 456 (462) (Pt D) (Prs 23, 24) (DB).

——S. 300 — Death due to administration of lethal dose of dhatura—Question as to knowledge of accused that particular dose was so poisonous — Evidence of previous similar incident is admissible. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 14. 1963 (1) Cri L J 296 : AIR 1963 Madh-Pra 102 (DB).

——S. 300—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 — Appreciation of evidence—Murder by poisoning — Facts to be established by prosecution — Facts are not invariable criteria of proof by direct evidence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1965 (1) Cri L J 321 : AIR 1965 Orissa 38 (DB).

——S. 300 — Circumstantial evidence — Nature of—Murder by poisoning.

The quantum of circumstantial evidence must be such as to lead to the inference that the guilt of the accused is established beyond reasonable doubt and that the circumstances are wholly incompatible with the innocence of the accused.

Where, therefore, there is (1) unimpeachable evidence that the viscera and the chatni contained oleander poison, (2) the unchallenged testimony of the doctor that death was due to oleander poisoning and (3) full corroboration from the findings on Chemical tests and the medical opinion of the statements made by deceased at three different stages that the chatni, served to him by the accused, tested bitter.

Held, the chain of circumstantial evidence was complete and no link was missing to come to a conclusion beyond reasonable doubt that the deceased died of poisoning arising out of the service of the chatni by the accused. 1965 (1) Cri L J 321 : AIR 1965 Orissa 38 (41, 44) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 14) (DB).

29. Evidence as to possession of property.

See also Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

——S. 300 — Evidence — Possession of stolen property belonging to murdered person — Inference that the thief was the murderer when justifiable stated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Illus. (a). AIR 1955 N U C (S C) 5807 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 411 — Applicability — Murder taking place at night — Early next morning accused disappearing from his house — After his arrest accused producing articles which were removed from body of deceased from his house — Inquests made shortly after dawn and not late in day — Accused held was not merely receiver of stolen property but murderer. Ram Bharosey v. State of U. P. 1954 Cri L J 1755 : AIR 1954 S C 704 (706) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act, S. 114 — Inference — Circumstances showing that theft and murder were committed at same time — Person in possession of stolen property — Inference that he was murderer cannot be drawn. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. 1952 Cri L J 1585 : AIR 1952 All 776 (DB).

——S. 300 — Conviction — Evidence—Accused found in possession of property proved to have been in possession of deceased at time of murder—Absence of any other evidence — Conviction for murder is not justified on this circumstance alone. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114 (a). AIR 1958 Andh-Pra 273 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114 — Presumption for graver offence can be drawn in proper cases — Ornaments on person of deceased recovered from accused, shortly after murder — Murder and theft held appeared to be part of same transaction — Presumption of graver offence under Ss. 302 and 380 could be drawn against the accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. 1958 Cri L J 596 : AIR 1958 Andh-Pra 255 (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 201 — Applicability — Recovery of head and clothes of deceased at instance of accused — Accused cannot be convicted under S. 302 — Accused is guilty of offence under S. 201. See Penal Code (1860), S. 201. 1954 Cri L J 1124 : AIR 1954 J & K 42.

——Ss. 300 and 390 — Robbery and murder as part of the same transaction — Recent and unexplained possession of stolen property — Presumption to be drawn — Section 302 — Murder by a child below 16 years — Nature of sentence to be awarded—Children Act (Travancore, 1120), Ss. 26 and 33.

In cases, where robbery and murder are connected as to form part of the same transaction, the recent and unexplained possession of the stolen property is not only presumptive evidence against the accused on the charge of robbery but also on the charge of murder.

The offence committed by the accused (who was below the age of 16 in the instant case) in this case is of a very serious nature and mere detention in a Certified School under S. 26 of the Children Act will be no adequate punishment for the offence. The more appropriate section for dealing with the accused under the Children Act is S. 33. (1965) M L J (Cri) 454 : 1965 Ker L T 279.

——Ss. 300, 392 — Evidence — Unexplained possession of stolen articles soon after the crime — Inference — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

In cases where robbery and murder are so connected as to form parts of the same transaction the unexplained possession of the stolen property soon after the event will not only be presumptive evidence against the accused on the charge of robbery but also on the Charge of Murder. AIR 1953 Trav-Co 402; AIR 1954 S C 28; AIR 1956 S C 400, Rel. on. 1960 Ker L J 896 : (1960) 2 Ker L R 222 : 1960 Ker L T 829.

——S. 300 — Evidence—Statement as regards possession — Inference of murder cannot be drawn. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 27. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 3861 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Murder — Articles recovered from possession of accused—Nature and extent of presumption. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh-B) 1556 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence Act S. 114, Illus. (a)—Applicability to cases other than theft discussed. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Illus. (a). AIR 1950 Madh-Bha 104 (DB).

● ——Ss. 300 and 390—Stolen property of deceased found in possession of accused — No common intention to commit murder —Inference — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

Merely on the recovery of stolen property of the deceased, found in possession of the accused soon after murder and in the absence of any evidence that the common intention of both the accused was to commit murder in furtherance of common intention to commit robbery, the Court is not justified in drawing the inference that the accused are guilty of murder. The possession by the accused of all the property which was the result of robbery, justify an inference that they took part in the robbery. Fakirchand Nandram v. The State, 51 Cri L J 1345 : AIR 1950 Madh-B 76 (79) (Pt D) (Pr 18) (FB).

● ——S. 300 — Accused refusing to give explanation about possession of property stolen from deceased——Inference as to commission of murder — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

Merely because the accused refused to give explanation about the possession of property stolen from a murdered person or gives unsatisfactory explanation, no inference can be drawn that the accused committed murder in the act of theft or robbery. The accused is not bound to give explanation. A reasonable explanation of the evidence should not be rejected because it is not offered by the accused. 51 Cri L J 1265 : AIR 1950 Madh-B 76 (80) (Pt E) (Pr 22) (FB).

——Ss. 300 and 411 — Applicability — Unexplained possession of stolen property in case of murder — Absence of other evidence—Offence.

It is now well established that where unexplained possession of stolen property is the only circumstance the presumption for a graver offence cannot be drawn unless there are other circumstances justifying the drawing of presumption for a graver offence. Where the prosecution in a case of murder had not established any further circumstance other than the unexplained possession of stolen property the presumption for the lesser offence under S. 411, I. P. C. was drawn and not S. 302. 1957 M P L J (Notes) 164.

——Ss. 300, 379 and 411—Evidence Act S. 114, Illustration (a)—Possession of stolen property — Application of principles to murder case—Held on facts that presumption of murder against accused should have been drawn. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Ill. (a). AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 1217.

——S. 300—Evidence — Recent possession of articles belonging to deceased—Presumption—Circumstantial evidence. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. 1954 Cri L J 115 : AIR 1954 Mad 152 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302, 379, 411 and 201— Murder for gain —Accused found in possession of jewels worn by deceased — Actual participation in murder not established—Conviction and sentence for offence under Ss. 379 and 411 affirmed but conviction under S. 302 set aside. 1952 Mad W N 613 : 1952-2 Mad L J 288 : 1952 Mad W N (Cr) 185 : 1953 Cri L J 1889 : AIR 1953 Mad 1006 (1006) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 300—Applicability — Mere knowledge of facts as to an offence—Person in possession of incriminating articles—Adverse inference can be drawn — But mere knowledge of facts such as the place where blood-stained articles are found or the place where the dead body is found does not conclusively establish that the person to whom such knowledge is attributed is guilty of murder. A I R 1955 N U C (Mys) 435 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence — Absence of ridge between land is no evidence of oneness in title or possession—(Limitation Act (1908), Art. 144) — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145). 1955 Cri L J 597 : A I R 1955 Pat 161 (165) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——S. 300—Offence of murder — Presumption from circumstances. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114, Ill. (a). AIR 1954 Punj 201 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 411 — Charge of murder and receiving stolen property—Forming part of same transaction—Accused in unexplained possession of stolen property —Presumption of murder, therefrom—Propriety of.

It is well settled that in cases where murder and robbery or a like offence form part of one transaction, recent and unexplained possession of stolen property, while it would be presumptive evidence on a charge of theft or robbery or receiving stolen property, would similarly be evidence on a charge of murder. There is, therefore no doubt that where murder and robbery (or theft or receipt of stolen property) are proved to have been integral parts of a certain transaction, the presumption that can be drawn from the possession of the property may, consistent with all the facts proved in the case, be not only that the person to whom such possession was traced committed the theft or received the stolen property but also that he committed the murder which forms part of the same transaction as theft or robbery. AIR 1954 S C 1 : AIR 1954 S C 28, Foll. 1965 Raj L W 418 : I L R (1965) 15 Raj 989 : A I R 1966 Raj 74 (82, 83) (Pt C) (Prs 26, 27) (DB).

——Ss. 300 and 302—Proof of death—Non-discovery of body of deceased is not fatal to the proof of the offence, when there is clear proof that the person alleged to have been murdered was in fact dead. 1952 Raj L W 376: 1953 Cri L J 1038 : 1LR (1952) 2 Raj 669 : A I R 1953 Raj 131 (133) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

—— Ss. 300, 397 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114 — Murder and robbery—Circumstantial evidence — Inference from possession of ornaments worn by deceased - Inference that person found in possession committed murder or robbery, when should be drawn, indicated—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367). See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. 1955 Cri L J 1522 : A I R 1955 Sau 93 (DB).

30. Confession.

● ——S. 300—Evidence—Extra-judicial confession—Value—Proof by person who had no reason to state falsely—Corroboration by circumstances proved by independent evidence — Accused held was rightly convicted under S. 302—Evidence Act (1872), S. 24.

Extra judicial confessions are not uasully considered with favour but that does not mean that such a confession coming from a person who has no reason to state falsely and to whom it is made in circumstances which tend to support his statement, should not be believed. The appellant was convicted under S. 302, I. P. C. and sentenced to death for the murder of one, S. with sword. The prosecution evidence established that the accused had made an extra judicial confession just after the murder when he was having a bath in the canal, that he purchased a cycle from the deceased that there was quarrel between the appellant and the deceased at a play of cards, that he had purchased the sword and that he had deposited the sword stained with human blood at the police station after making a confession to the police by way of first information.

Held that apart from the confession to the police, the extra judicial confession, supported by independent evidence of the appellants having enmity with the deceased, the appellant's conduct in purchasing a sword and delivering it stained with human blood, fully establish that the appellant did commit the murder and that he was rightly convicted and sentenced to death under S. 302. Ram Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1962 All L J 302 : 1962 (Sup) 2 S C R 203 : 1962 All W R (H C) 230 : 1962 All Cri R 147 : (1962) 2 S C J 136 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 429 : 1962 S C D 733 : AIR 1967 S C 152 (154) (Prs 18, 19).

●——Ss. 300, 364, 386 — Accused charged under Ss. 302, 364 and 386, Penal Code — Confession not relied in respect of offence under S. 302 — Value in regard to other offences indicated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 24. 1957 Cri L J 559 : AIR 1957 S C 381.

——S. 300 — Offence of murder — Accused making confession to his son and daughter that he killed their mother — Weapon used in committing offence discovered at his instance—Held conviction was proper under S. 302, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 84. 1965 (2) Cri L J 765 : AIR 1965 Him-Pra 68.

——S. 300—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 287—Statement of accused — Allegation of police pressure— Mere allegation not sufficient to exclude such admission. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 287. 1963 Ker L T 229.

——S. 300, 302—Evidence Act (1872), S. 27—Confession — Corroboration — Circumstances connecting accused with murder absent—Subsequent attempt by accused to commit suicide, plausibly explained, not sufficient corroboration. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 27. 1962 Ker L T 476.

——S. 300 — Ornaments worn by deceased recovered as result of statement made by accused under S. 27, Evidence Act — Production of ornaments would not by itself be sufficient to charge accused with crime of murder. (1953) 1 M L J 467 : 1953 Mad W N 150: 1953 Cri L J 1069 : ILR (1953) Mad 1170 : AIR 1953 Mad 564 (565) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence Act, S. 27—Weapon discovered with blood-stains thereon — Evidentiary value— See Evidence Act (1872), S. 27. AIR 1950 Mad 714 (DB)

——S. 300 — Evidence — Recoveries of Kirpan and clothes from accused — Evidentiary value of — Evidence Act (1872), S. 27.

In a murder case when the prosecution evidence is held to be untrustworthy or unsafe of credence and the dying declarations to have been recorded in circumstances which do not inspire confidence, the Court would be most reluctant to base the conviction of the accused only on the recovery of the kirpan and the clothes, particularly when the investigating agency also does not appear to have conducted themselves in a straightforward manner. Such recovery of articles should not be held to be a strong corroborative piece of evidence. (1962) 64 Pun L R 1064.

——S. 300—Murder — Evidence of approver — Corroboration — Necessity of, pointed out. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. (1957) 59 Pun L R 70.

——S. 300—Murder—Proof of— Accused in his statement before police describing the place where and the manner in which dead body was placed—Accused leading the police to the place indicated by him in his statement — Recovery of the body tied exactly as stated by the accused — Accused, though denying the charge of murder, unable to explain how he knew the dead body was in that place — Accused further giving discovery of ornaments belonging to the deceased — Discovery of the dead body in the place at the instance of accused is reasonably consistent with the only hypothesis that the accused was the murderer and no other. 1965 Raj L W 418 : ILR (1965) 15 Raj 989 : AIR 1966 Raj 74 (83) (Pt D) (Pr 28) (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence — Extra Judicial confession — Duty of Court pointed out. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 24. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 2172 (DB).

31. Evidence, value of — Illustrative cases.

●——S. 300 — Trial for murder — Eye-witnesses closely related to victim — Evidence given by such witnesses to be closely scrutinised — Plea that their evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated is not acceptable. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, 1965 (1) Cri L J 350 : (1964) 2 S C J 319 : 1964 S C D 87 : 1964 Mad W N 1 : 1964 M L J (Cri) 503 : 1964 All W R (H C) 532 : 1964 All Cri R 394 : (1964) 3 S C R 397 : (1964) 7 S C R 410 : AIR 1965 S C 328 (331) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

●——S. 300 — Approver's evidence — Corroboration necessity—There should be corroboration in material particulars and qua each accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1963(1) Cri L J 489 : AIR 1963 S C 599.

——S. 300—Evidence Act (1872), S. 5 — Credibility of witness — Independent witness — Who is — Testimony — Evidentiary value, See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. ILR (1961) 1 All 609.

——S. 300—Evidence and proof— Discovery of dead body and confession—Accused's statement supported by medical evidence — Probative value — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 327).

In a murder case recovery of a dead body at the instance of an accused and his judicial confession are no doubt important pieces of evidence, but where it was contended that neither the confession was voluntary nor the discovery genuine, and this contention was supported by the circumstance that the jail doctor who had examined the accused at the time of his admission in jail before the confession, had found a number of contusions on the person of the accused, and it was also found that not only did the prosecution make no attempt to explain the injuries but the investigating officer tried to whittle them down that the accused was beaten by the police twice, once before the recovery of the dead body and again before his consignment to jail.

Held, that the medical evidence fully corroborated the accused's statement and it was therefore, worthy of reliance and particularly so in view of the suppressio veri indulged in by the prosecution. 1957 Cri L J 431 : 1957 All L J 330 : 1957 All W R (H C) 114 : AIR 1957 All 197 (201, 202) (Pt A) (Prs 20, 21) (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence — Appreciation of— (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367).

If the assailant recognised by the victim were only a single person, the mere ability to recognise can be a guarantee that the person accused of the crime must be the culprit as naturally the victim must have no soft corner for him. But when persons more than one are accused of the crime, it is possible that the persons so accused might comprise both the real culprits and the culprits against whom there might be some reason to bring accusation. 1956 All L J 751 : 1956 All W R (H C) 716 : ILR (1956) 2 All 736.

——S. 300—Witnesses asserting that accused charged with murder suspected that deceaced had murdered his father — Ground of knowledge as to state of mind of accused, not mentioned — Requirement of S. 60, Evidence Act are not satisfied. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 60. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 313.

——S. 300 — Proof — Evidence, unsatisfactory — Infirmity — Effect of.

Where the eye-witnesses for the prosecution, though unsophisticated, were found clever enough to make improvements on the points which they thought material, it is a very serious infirmity particularly in a murder case and if such direct evidence is not wholly satisfactory, the subsidiary facts on which the prosecution relies, viz., the discovery of the axe, however suspicious, cannot cure the infirmity. 1956 Cri L J 869 : AIR 1956 Bom 471 (472, 473) (Prs 7, 9, 10) (DB).

——S. 300 — Murder case — Statements of eye-witnesses in committing Court and under S. 164 connecting the accused with crime — In Sessions Court witnesses resiling from their statements on the ground that statements were obtained under Coercion —Statements cannot be relied upon under S. 288. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 288. 1963 (2) Cri L J 148: AIR 1963 J & K 34 (DB).

——S. 300 — Approver's testimony and its corroboration — Conviction based thereon — Corroboration of every minor detail not necessary — Recovey of dead body from a particular spot and articles of deceased from different accused held sufficient corroboration. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 133. 1963 (2) Cri L J 148 : AIR 1963 J & K 34 (DB).

——S. 300—Criminal trial — Prosecution witnesses — Relations of each other — Credibility of evidence considered. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1958 Cri L J 883 : AIR 1958 J & K 23 (DB).

——S. 300 — Evidence — Identification by voice — Reliability. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 9. (1964) Mad L J (Cri) 347 : 1964 (1) Cri L J 493 (Ker).

——S. 300 — Murder — Evidence— Blood-stains on clothes of accused—Sufficiency for conviction—Evidence Act (1872), S. 3—'Proved'—Evidence—Appreciation of.

Unless the blood-stains are of considerable size, it is not possible to draw any damning conclusion against the man from the mere existence of slight blood-stains on his wearing apparel. Moreover, in the absence of other evidence, the fact that some blood-stains were found on his clothes would not by itself provide sufficient basis for a conviction. 1960 Ker L J 438 : 1960 Ker L T 510.

——S. 300 — Evidence — Proof of death — Doctor's opinion expressed on noticing in X-ray photo metallic bodies that death was due to shock caused by homicidal gunshot injuries—Doctor not removing metallic bodies giving convincing reasons for his action—His opinion cannot be rejected as not conclusive— (Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 4525 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence—Deceased found lying on top of staircase — Statement in F I R that deceased was found in middle of staircase and death might be due to fall—Statement is mere opinion. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3861 (DB).

——Ss. 300, 302 — Evidence— Panchnama—Panchnama cannot be used in place of statements of eye-witnesses as substantive piece of evidence. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3786 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence—Witnesses related—Slight prevarication in the statement of one witness before Court of Session and before committing Magistrate regarding implication of one accused — Entire evidence of witnesses held could not be thrown out. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. A I R 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3747 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence—Child witness—Offence under S. 302, read with Ss. 149 and 147—Only eye-witness, a child of 12 or 13 years—Discrepancies in his statements recorded before committing magistrate and Sessions Judge — Such witness held could not be relied upon for convicting all the accused. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 118. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3097 (DB).

● ——S. 300 — Evidence Act, S. 45—Murder case — Opinion of expert as to footprints—Value of, stated. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 45. 51 Cri L J 1265 : AIR 1950 Madh Bha 76 (FB).

——S. 300—Appreciation of evidence —Discrepancy between first report and testimony of eye-witness in Court—Brutal murder committed at stop in few minutes by several accused while deceased was proceeding along footpath accompanied by witness —Discrepancies between first report and witnessess's testimony in Court relating to minor particulars (such as the exact manner in which accused came to assault the deceased, who surrounded him first, etc.) — Eye-witness cannot be held to be unreliable on account of the discrepancies. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1960 Cri L J 1100 : A I R 1960 Mad 362 (DB).

——S. 300 — Statements before committing Court — Evidentiary value — Statements are admissible if the Court is satisfied about their truth. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 288. (1964) 6 O J D 248 (Orissa).

——Ss. 300, 149—Land dispute leading to mutual assault by rival parties resulting in deaths—Evidence —Appreciation of — Testimony of partisan eye-witnesses.

Once it is established that eye-witnesses belong to a hostile faction and it is also clear that they are suppressing material portion of the occurrence, it is not possible to accept their evidence as to how exactly the fight took place; doubtless, if a consistent story has been put forward, it may be possible for a Court even to accept the testimony of partisan witnesses especially when the village is divided into two factions and disinterested persons may not be available; but when the F I R version and the case as put forward in their Court do not tally, it will be hazardous for a Court to conjecture as to how the fight must have taken place. The Court, however, should not reject eye-witnesses, who speak with slight and inconsequential variations, on unsubstantial grounds and on the basis of insignificant discrepancies. 29 Cut L T 15; 1963 (1) Cri L J 700 (704) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 16) (Orissa) (DB).

——Ss. 300, 109 — Identification of accused by voice —Accused close relation of identifier—Identification can be relied on — Evidence Act (1872), S. 9.

Identification of a person by his voice can be relied upon, if the person who is to be identified is intimately known to the person who identifies him.

Thus where the accused persons were close relations of a blind woman and who were also living in close proximity of the woman it was held that the identification of the accused by his voice by the woman could be relied on. (1961) 3 Orissa J D 110.

——S. 300 — Evidence — Appreciation of—Murder—Nature of weapon—(Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 NUC (Orissa) 6082 (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence — Katari alleged to be used for murder not having blood marks is no evidence of incriminating circumstances against accused—(Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 367). AIR 1955 N U C (Orissa) 6082 (DB).

——S. 300—Murder — Evidence of approver—Corroboration, necessity of, pointed out. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 114. (1957) 59 Pun L R 70.

——S. 300—Evidence—Prosecution witnesses related to deceased—Credibility.

The mere fact that the prosecution witnesses are closely related to the deceased, (here, mother and the son of the deceased) does not by itself render the evidence given by them open to doubt and suspicion. 52 Cri L J 1517 : 53 Punj L R 284 : ILR (1951) Punj 202 : AIR 1951 Punj 137 (139) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——S. 300—Evidence—Mere suspicion.

There may be a suspicion that the accused took part in a murder; but suspicion cannot take the place of proof, particularly when the entire case depends upon circumstantial evidence, 4 Raj L W 640 : I L R (1953) 3 Raj 655 : 1955 Cr L J 835 : AIR 1955 Raj 82 (85) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

—S. 300—Evidence — Conviction on evidence of one witness who has no scruples, is unsafe—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 1 and 134). AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 511 (DB).

—S. 300 — Evidence — Time of death — Degree of digestion—Value of. The time of death can be ascertained with some possibility from the degree of digestion of the stomach contents and from the condition of the bladder and intestines as regards their contents. The degree of digestion of the contents, however, cannot always be relied upon in determining the time of death, inasmuch as the power of digestibility may remain in abeyance for a long time in states of privation, shock and coma. 1950 Raj L W 351 : ('51) 52 Cr L J 201 (Raj) : A I R 1951 Raj 37 (41) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

—S. 300—Eye-witnesses, natural witnesses of occurrence of murder—Their testimony cannot be doubted only because they happened to be relatives of deceased. 1964 (2) Cri L J 585 : AIR 1964 Tripura 54 (56) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

SECTION 301

● —Ss. 301 and 302 — Four accused with common intention to kill M shooting at R bona fide taking him to be M — Shooting resulting in R's death—Accused are guilty under S. 302 read with S. 34 — S. 301 has no application. See Penal Code (1860), S. 34. 1965 (2) Cri L J 266 : AIR 1965 S C 1260.

●—Ss. 301, 302, 326 and 34 — Scope—Sentence — Two accused firing shots at X with common intention to kill him but actually causing death of S through mistake — No evidence to show which of them caused fatal injuries—Conviction of both under S. 302 read with Ss. 34 and 301 — No distinction should be made in matter of sentence. Wazir Singh v. State of Punjab. AIR 1956 S C 754 (757) (Pr 9).

—Ss. 301, 304-A, 323 and 304, Part II — Accused attacked N who was sitting on chabutra with baby in his lap — Lathi after hitting N fell on baby — N while falling from Chabutra dropped baby into lane —Baby sustained injuries on eyelid and head — Baby expired as a result of head injury — Held accused was not guilty for an offence under S. 304, Part II by virtue of S. 301 but he was punishable under Ss. 304-A and 323. A I R 1920 Bom 224, Disting. Rash or negligent act causing death by. See Penal Code (1860), S. 304-A. 1965 All W R (HC) 132 : 1965 All Cri R 136 : 1965 All L J 52.

—S. 301—Scope of.

Section 301 declares a rule deducible from Ss. 299 and 300. It states that the quality of the homicide, that is, whether it amounts to murder or not, will depend on the intention or knowledge which the offender had in regard to the person intended or known to be likely to be killed or injured and not with reference to his intention or knowledge with reference to the person actually killed.

Thus S. 301 clearly makes the culpable homicide murder notwithstanding the fact that there was no intention actually to commit the murder of the deceased particularly. In such a case the accused can be rightly convicted under S. 302. 13 Cri L J 145 (Mad) and AIR 1917 All 455, Foll. 1955 Cri L J 1448 : AIR 1955 All 626 (629) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

—Ss. 301 and 149 — S. 301 applicable to facts — S. 149 does not apply.

Section 301 applies to a situation where a person causes the death of another whose death that person neither intends nor knows himself likely to cause. That being so, it is rather difficult, as a process of logical reasoning, to apply S. 149 to a situation, like that, S. 149 contemplates inter alia the commission of an offence which the members of the assembly knew likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly. If by the terms of S. 301 the offender could not have known it likely that he would cause the death of the person whom he has actually killed, equally, by the terms of S. 149, the other member of the unlawful assembly, that is to say, the members other than the member who has actually caused the death of the person, could not have known it to be likely that the death of that particular person would be caused. (1962) 2 Andh L T 303 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 415 : A I R 1963 Andh Pra 146 (147) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

—Ss. 301, 304 (Part II) and 323 — Doctrine of transfer of malice or transmigration of motive — Applicability.

Where the accused gave a blow with a small stick to a woman who had a small child in her lap and the blow fell on the head of the infant who died on the next day.

Held that the doctrine of "transfer of malice" or "transmigration of motive" namely, that where a blow aimed at one person alights upon another the offence committed by the assailant is the same as it would have been if the blow had struck the intended victim, was applicable. In the instant case, the intention of the accused was only to cause simple injury to the woman, and therefore, he could be convicted only for an offence under S. 323 and not under S. 304 (Part II) of the Penal Code. A I R 1920 Bom 224, Foll. 1959 M P L J 21 : 1959 Jab L J 57 : 1958 M P C 722.

—Ss. 301, 300, 304, Part. I, 452 and 148 — A and his companions armed with lathies and dagger trying to take away A's wife — A taking out dagger to cut his wife's nose — A striking his dagger in his daughter's abdomen in scuffle:— Death of daughter— No evidence to show intention to cause injury sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Even if blow was aimed at the wife and not at the daughter, A would still be guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. 1957 Cri L J 1405 (2) : A I R 1957 Madh Pra 217 (DB).

SECTION 302

SYNOPSIS

(Penal Code (1860), S. 302.)

1. Sentence.
2. Premeditation.
   See also Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
3. Provocation.
   See also Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
4. Enmity.
5. Conviction on circumstantial evidence.
   See also Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
6. Mental condition of accused.
7. Age.
8. Superstition.
9. Intention.
10. Drunkenness.
11. Starvation.
12. Confession by accused.
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
13. Sex.
14. Insanity.
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 84.
15. Deaf and mute accused.

16. Nature of injury.
17. Class to which accused belongs.
18. Motive.
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
19. Injuries to accused.
20. Attempt to suicide.
21. Family considerations.
22. Lapse of time.
23. Weapon used.
24. Absence of corpus delicti.
    See also Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
25. Verdict of jury.
26. Murder under instigation or threat.
27. Murder by several accused.
    See also Penal Code (1860), Ss. 34, 149 and 300.
28. Acquittal of some accused.
29. Leniency to some accused.
30. Abetment.
31. Charge.
    See Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
32. Evidence.
    See Penal Code (1860), S. 300.
33. Onus.
    See Penal Code (1860), S. 300 and Evidence Act (1872), S. 105.
34. Sentence of fine.
35. Remission of sentence.
36. Interference by High Court.
37. Procedure.

1. Sentence.

● ——S. 302 — Sentence—Death sentence when can be substituted by life imprisonment by Supreme Court—Constitution of India, Art. 134.

Each case must be decided on its own facts and a sentence of imprisonment for life can only be substituted if the facts justify that the extreme penalty of law should not be imposed. Where the offence is one of brutal murder normally the death penalty should follow. Where the Judges of the High Court differed as to the guilt of the accused but there was no difference on the question of death sentence when the opinion of the third Judge was given under S. 429, Cr. P. C. the Supreme Court refused to reduce the sentence to one of life imprisonment. The observation of Bose J. in AIR 1955 S C 216, that when appellate Judges, who agree on the question of guilt differ on that of sentence, it is usual not to impose the death penalty unless there are compelling reasons, cannot be raised to the pedestal of a rule for that would leave the sentence to the determination of one Judge to the exclusion of the other. Babu v. State of U.P. (1965) 1 S C W R 936 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 539 : (1965) 2 S C A 296 : (1965) 2 S C R 771 : (1965) 2 Law Rep 221 : ILR (1965) 1 All 951 : AIR 1965 S C 1467 (1472, 1473) (Pt C) (Prs 16, 17).

● ——S. 302—Sentence—Account of background of incident must be considered.

On the question of sentence it would be relevant to take into account the background of the incident, the nature and extent of the threat held out by the crowd of villagers, the excitement which must have been caused at the time of the incident. Jai Dev v. State of Punjab, 1963 S C D 66 : (1963) 3 S C R 489 : 1964 Mad L J (Cri) 478 : (1964) 2 S C J 272 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 495 : 1963 All Cri R 170 : 1963 All W R (HC) 338 : A I R 1963 S C 612 (621) (Pt E) (Pr 24).

● ——Ss. 302, 303, 34, 149—Applicability and scope of S. 303—Person undergoing sentence of imprisonment for life — Conviction under S. 302 read with S. 34 — Sentence of death can be imposed upon him — Fact that he himself did not commit murder will not save him from effect of S. 34 —Scope and effect of Ss. 34 and 149, Explained. See Penal Code (1860), S. 303. 1963 (1) Cri L J 86 : AIR 1963 S C 118.

● —S. 302—Sentence—Considerations — Nature of proof—Relevancy—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 32).

In a case of murder the first question which the Court has to consider is whether the accused has been proved, to the satisfaction of the Court, to have committed the crime. If the Court is convinced about the truth of the prosecution story, conviction has to follow. The question of sentence has to be determined, not with reference to the volume or character of the evidence adduced by the prosecution in support of the prosecution case, but with reference to the fact whether there are any extenuating circumstances which can be said to mitigate the enormity of the crime. If the Court is satisfied that there are such mitigating circumstances, only then, it would be justified in imposing the lesser of the two sentences provided by law. In other words, the nature of the proof has nothing to do with the character of the punishment. Vadivel Thevar v. The State of Madras, 35 Mys L J 164: 1957 S C J 527: (1957) 2 Andh W R (S C) 69 : (1957) 2 M L J (S C) 69 : 1957 Cri L J 1000 : 1957 M P C 711 : 1957 All L J 898 : 1957 S C A 798 : 59 Bom L R 910 : 1957 All W R (H C) 640 : AIR 1957 S C 614 (619) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

● ——S. 302—Sentence—Two accused firing shots at X with common intention to kill him but resulting in death of S — No evidence to show which of them caused fatal injuries—Conviction of both under S. 302 read with Ss. 34 and 301 — No distinction should be made in matter of sentence. See Penal Code (1860), S. 301. AIR 1956 S C 754.

● ——S. 302—Sentence — Miscellaneous — Judges agreeing as to guilt but differing on question of sentence—Sentence should be that of transportation.

The sentence should be reduced to transportation where there is difference of opinion in the High Court, not only on the question of guilt, but also on that of sentence. But the discretion of judges in this matter, should not be fettered for a question of sentence is and must always remain, a matter of discretion, unless the law directs otherwise. But when appellate Judges, who agree on the question of guilt, differ on that of sentence, it is usual not to impose the death penalty unless there are compelling reasons Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad. 1955 Cri L J 572 : 1955 Mad W N 228 : (1955) 1 SCR 1083: 1955 S C A 228 : 1955 All W R (Sup) 34 : 1955 S C J 106 : AIR 1955 S C 216 (223) (Pt G) (Pr 37).

——S. 302—Sentence—Held, no extenuating circumstance justifying lesser penalty. AIR 1955 N U C (Ajmer) 4732.

——S. 302—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 (5) — Effect of amendment of section in 1955 —Murder—Reasons for not imposing death sentence not required after amendment — Court cannot however depart from judicial considerations in imposing lesser sentence. See Criminal P. C (1898), S. 367 (5). 1963 (2) Cri L J 481 : AIR 1963 All 501 (DB).

——S. 302 — Murder—Sentence — Judges of High Court differing on question of sentence—Sentence should be that of imprisonment for life. AIR 1955 SC 216 and AIR 1953 All 220, Foll. 1963 (2) Cri LJ 481: AIR 1963 All 501 (505) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

——S. 302 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367—Effect of amendment of section in 1955 — Reasons for not imposing death sentence for offence of murder not essential now—Court cannot however depart from judicial considerations in imposing lesser punishment. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. 1960 Cri L J 1536 : AIR 1960 All 748 (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Discretion of trial Court—Interferenee by High Court—Extenuating circumstances — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32, 367 (1) and (5), 423).

The determination of the right measure of punishment, not being subject to any rule, is necessarily a matter of discretion. It is, therefore, a matter within the province of the trial Court. That being so, appellate Court's interference in that regard would only be justified on exceptional grounds. One such ground may be, that the trial Court proceeded on wrong principle and that, as a consequence thereof, it committed an error in imposing the sentence it did. The assumption that the sentence of death was the normal penalty for murder and imprisonment for life, the exception which had to be justified by some reason, was based on the law as embodied in sub-s. (5) of S. 367, Criminal P. C. before its repeal by the Criminal P. C. (Amendment) Act 26 of 1955 with effect from 1st January, 1956. Since the omission of that sub-section, the question of proper sentence where the accused is convicted of an offence punishable with death is to be decided, not on any assumption of that nature, but like any other point for determination with the decision thereon and the reasons for the decision, as provided by sub-s. (1) of that section. The absence of cause of enmity between the accused and the deceased is an extenuating circumstance justifying the award of lesser punishment of imprisonment for life. 1958 Cri L J 1266 : AIR 1958 All 746 (757) (Pt I) (Pr 32) (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Lesser punishment—Accused himself not striking deceased—Sentence of transportation for life awarded. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 4169 (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Lesser sentence held would meet ends of justice — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 (5)). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1722.

——S. 302—Sentence—Award of lesser sentence when warranted, stated. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 166 (DB).

——S. 302 — Punishment — Criminal P. C. (1898) S. 367 (5).

Per Agarwala, J. : Under S. 302 a discretion is vested in Courts either to impose a sentence of death or of transportation for life. The true principle of exercising the discretion of imposing either the penalty of death or of transportation for life should be that the sentence of death is awarded in cases in which the act is very brutal and highly repugnant to morals and the sentence of transportation for life is imposed in all other cases. Though under S. 367 (5), Criminal P. C., the Court is required to give reasons why the sentence of death is not passed for an offence punishable with death, the law does not lay down in what cases the two sentences shall be imposed and the law has deliberately conferred a discretion on the Court to award one sentence or the other according to the circumstances of each case. This discretion is intended to be exercised to secure the end which the law has in view, namely, social justice.

While one accused inflicted the gandasa injuries, the other merely held the legs of the deceased and the latter was aged 20 years only :

Held, that in the circumstances, a sentence of transportation for life would meet the ends of justice in the latter case.

Per Raghubar Dayal J.: Under the provisions of the Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure the Court is to pass the sentence of death unless there be extenuating circumstances and the Court is not to withhold the passing of the death sentence on the ground that there were no aggravating circumstances to justify the death penalty. The facts that one of the accused is about 20 years old and that he is not alleged to have actually used the gandasa do not justify awarding him the lesser penalty of law provided for the offence, when the murder was planned and brutal : Case-law discussed. 1952 All Cri R 173 : 1952 All W R (H C) 653 : 1953 All L J 35 : 1952 All Cr R 173 : 1953 Cri L J 580 : ILR (1953) 1 All 608 : A I R 1953 All 220 (222 to 224, 226) (Prs 14, 18, 19, 31, 41) (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 (5) (as amended in 1955)— Absence of extenuating or mitigating circumstances — Court not bound to award sentence of death—Full discretion to award lesser sentence — Correct approach to the question of sentence.

The theory that where there are no extenuating or mitigating circumstances it is incumbent upon the Court to impose the sentence of death stems from the assumption that the sentence of death is the normal punishment for the offence of murder and the lesser sentence of imprisonment for life is the exception. This view was based on sub-s. (5) of S. 367, Criminal P. C. as it stood before the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1955. That sub-section has, however, been substituted by a new sub-section by Act 26 of 1955. The result of the amendment is that by virtue of the provisions of S. 302 of the Penal Code, the Court is now allowed full discretion to award the sentence of death or the lesser sentence of imprisonment for life for the offence of murder. That being the legal position now the view that the extreme penalty is the normal sentence and the mitigated sentence is the exception, does not hold water. It can no longer be said that death is the normal punishment for murder, and the view formerly held by Courts in India that it is not for the Judge to ask himself whether there are reasons for imposing the penalty of death but he should ask himself whether there are reasons for abstaining from doing so has lost its validity.

Correct approach to this question now is that upon a conviction for murder the Judge should ask himself the question, 'Are there any aggravating circumstances in this case which imperatively call for the exaction of the extreme penalty? If, in a given case, there are such circumstances, it is his bounden duty to award the capital sentence in the larger interest of society. If, on the ot herhand, circumstances of an aggravating nature are absent in a given case, the Judge would be justified in imposing the lesser of the two punishments prescribed by law, viz., imprisonment for life. The mere fact that a human life has been taken, cannot in itself be an aggravating factor calling for the extreme penalty for the simple reason that if death is not caused with the requisite intention or knowledge the offence would not amount to murder. (1963) 1 Andh W R 18 : 1963 Mad L J (Cr) 2 : 1963 (1) Andh L T 60 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 733 : ILR (1964) Andh Pra 87 : A I R 1963 Andh Pra 249 (249, 250) (Prs 19, 20) (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Mitigating circumstances.

Accused a young man of 25 years beating the deceased with a stick and also cutting his nose with a knife with the intention of disfiguring him but without any intention to kill him — Quarrels existing between family of accused and that of deceased — Accused suspecting that deceased had thrown acid on his brother and in order to teach him a lesson committing the above acts resulting in death of deceased — Held, that in the circumstances the extreme penalty of death should be reduced to one of transportation for life. 1955 Andh W R 130 : 1955 Cri L J 329 : AIR 1955 Andhra 24 (26) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——S. 302 — Though under S. 302, the minimum sentence is transportation for life the sentence of seven years is not illegal as Rules 10 and 16 of Administration of Justice and Police in Mikir Hills Rules do not fix any minimum sentence for murder. See Administration of Justice and Police in Mikir Hills Rules — R. 10. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 413.

——S. 302 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 5 — Shocking crime — Appreciation of evidence by Court must be dispassionate — It would not be right to inflict death penalty because the crime was shocking inasmuch as 6 members of a family including a six month child were killed mercilessly — In proper case the Court has to discriminate on ground that some accused took major part and some minor — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 32, 367). See Evidence Act (1872), S. 5. 1957 Cri L J 1107 : AIR 1957 Bom 226 (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Lesser sentence—Reasons for stated, See Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 367 (5). AIR 1955 N U C (Bom) 5329 (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Deceased persons defenceless —Attack of severe character resulting in four murders and severe injuries to six other persons — Number of assailants taking part in attack—Difficulty in attributing any of fatal injuries on deceased persons to any of accused in particular—Court is justified in refraining from imposing extreme penalty of death. A I R 1955 N U C (Bom) 4251 (DB).

——S. 302 — Murder case — Sentence. 1965 (2) Cri L J 771 : 1965 Kash L J 301 : A I R 1965 J & K 126 (128) (Pt C) (Pr 15).

——S. 302 — Sentence — Discretion — How to use stated—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367 (5)). A I R 1952 J & K 36 (37) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Ss. 302, 60 (as amended by Act 26 of 1955) — Murder — Sentence — Alternative punishment — Rigorous or simple can be awarded.

Section 302 as amended by the schedule to the Criminal P. C. (Amendment) Act, 1955 (Central Act 26 of 1955) only states that the alternative punishment for murder shall be imprisonment for life and not rigorous imprisonment for life or simple imprisonment for life. The Court passing the sentence has, however, to keep in view the provisions of S. 60 of the Penal Code and choose one or the other form in view of all the circumstances. 1957 Ker L J 404 : 1957 Ker L T 418 : 1957 Cri L J 852 : 1957 Mad L J (Cr) 321 : A I R 1957 Ker 102 (102) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——S. 302 — Sentence of hanging—Court sentencing accused to be hanged (फाँसी की सजा दी जाती है) —Sentence held not in proper legal form — Manner and method by which death is to be carried out is not mentioned in S. 302. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 368. AIR 1955 Madh B 119 (FB).

——S. 302 —Applicability—Accused killing deceased by gun shot—No evidence of sudden quarrel—Accused held guilty of murder:— Sentence — Lessor punishment held would meet the ends of justice. See Penal Code (1860), S. 300. AIR 1955 N U C (Madh B) 3742 (DB).

——S. 302 (after amendment of S. 367 (5), Criminal P. C. in 1956)—Sentence—Lesser sentence—Reasons.

Though after the amendment of S. 367 (5), Criminal P. C. in 1956 there is no statutory direction that a Court should in such cases record its reasons why the lesser penalty is being awarded, still the Courts are not absolved of their duty of exercising their judicial conscience as to whether the extreme penalty should be awarded or only the life sentence. 1960 Jab L J 799 : 1960 M P L J 1226 : 1961 (1) Cr L J 89 : 1960 M P C 768 : I L R (1960) Madh Pra 692 : AIR 1961 Madh Pra 10 (12) (Pt C) (Pr 26) (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence.

Per Mack J. — The ordinary penalty for murder is the death sentence unless some extenuating circumstance can be found to mitigate the extreme penalty and to justify the Court passing the lesser sentence. The fact of the youth of the accused that he is 16 or 17 years old cannot be taken into consideration as an extenuating circumstance ; nor can the mere fear or apprehension of a complaint being made against the accused (by the deceased) of theft (which made him commit the murder) be so taken into consideration.

It is a wrong impression that the law of murder has undergone a radical alteration in the matter of sentence and that the death sentence should not ordinarily be awarded unless the circumstances attaching to the murder are of a particularly revolting nature in addition to its being premeditated and cold-blooded. The law still remains the same. 54 Cri L J 651 : 1952 Mad W N 958 : 1952 Mad W N (Cri) 270 : (1952) 2 Mad L J 751 : A I R 1953 Mad 372 (373) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——S. 302—Murder—Sentence—It is not necessary to give reasons for awarding lesser sentence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 367. (1965) 2 L R 699 (Mys) (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Duty of—Court.

The question whether, for an offence of murder the sentence to be imposed should be a sentence of death or should be a sentence of imprisonment for life, is one about which there can be no inflexible rule of universal application. It is for the Court which is vested with plenary discretion in the matter to select the one sentence or the other having regard to all the circumstances of the case. While in a proper case, if the court is of opinion that a sentence of death would be the appropriate sentence, it should not hesitate to award that sentence, it should not consider itself fettered by the absence of what is described as an extenuating circumstance, in the choice of the smaller sentence.

Held, on facts that the circumstsnces of the case were such that it would not be proper to award a death sentence for the offence committed by the accused. (1965) 2 L R 699 (Mys) (DB).

——S. 302—Sentence—Award of—Considerations.

